The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 793. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 4, 1871. VOL. XXXII.—NO. 15.

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at
160 HANOVER ST., } CORNER OF SALEM STREET.
BOSTON, MASS. } (☞ Entrance No. 7 Salem St.)

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.
WILLIAM SHELDON, Corresponding Editor.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, L. BOUTELL,
JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
HOMER A. KING, H. V. DAVIS,
L. T. CUNNINGHAM, J. G. HAMBLIN,
H. H. DICKENSON.

GEO. T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ The CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

BE ALWAYS GIVING.

The sun gives ever; so the earth—
What it can give so much 'tis worth;
The ocean gives in many ways—
Gives baths, gives fishes, rivers, bays;
So, too, the air, it gives us breath,
When it stops giving, comes in death.
Give, give, be always giving,
Who gives not, is not living;
The more you give
The more you live.

God's love hath in us wealth unheaped;
Only by giving it is reaped;
The body withers, and the mind
Is pent in by a selfish rind.
Give strength, give thought, give deeds, give pelf,
Give love, give tears, and give thyself.
Give, give, be always giving,
Who gives not, is not living:
The more we give,
The more we live.

For the World's Crisis.

FUTURE PUNISHMENT CONSIDERED.

"The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord."—Rom. 6: 23.

The word wages is defined by Webster—"Hire, reward of service, recompense." Then the reward, or recompense, of the sinner will be death. The term "punishment" is used in the sense of recompense. Webster defines the word punishment, "Any pain, suffering, or loss, suffered as the reward of crime." The words punishment, reward, recompense, wages, and words of similar import, are used in the Scriptures in speaking of the penalty of sin. But all do not agree as to the meaning of the word death, and we wish to know its true meaning, as used in the text.

Webster says death is "the extinction of life, mortality, manner of dying, state of the dead." Here we find "death" not only means the condition of the dead, but dying, or the manner of dying, is also called death. Paul, in speaking of the final punishment of the wicked, in 2 Thess. 1: 7–9, says: "Seeing it is a righteous thing with God to recompense tribulation to them that trouble you; and to you who are troubled, rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ; who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power." Do we not learn from this scripture that the recompense, or punishment of the wicked, includes the affliction, or tribulation, which they must suffer in dying, as well as the condition of eternal death, which is here called everlasting destruction? Again, in Rom. 2: 5–9, 12, we read—"But after thy hardness and impenitent heart treasurest up unto thyself wrath against the day of wrath and revelation of the righteous judgment of God; who will render to every man according to his deeds; to them who, by patient continuance in well doing, seek for glory and honor and immortality, eternal life; but unto them that are contentious, and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness, indignation and wrath, tribulation and anguish, upon every soul of man that doeth evil, of the Jew first, and also of the Gentile. . . . For as many as have sinned without law, shall also perish without law; and as many as have sinned in the law, shall be judged by the law."

Do we not from this understand that the indignation and wrath, tribulation and anguish, which the sinner must suffer in the day of wrath, which in other places is called the day of judgment, will result in his destruction; and that this will be accomplished "in the day when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ"? Ver. 16. If so, then all the tribulation and anguish which the wicked must suffer is included in the wages of sin, which is death. Death, then, as the wages of sin, is not the end of dying merely, but the whole of dying, which will be produced by pain and suffering.

Our Savior, in giving us a view of the great day of final accounts in Luke 12: 45–48, says—"But and if that evil servant say in his heart, My Lord delayeth his coming; and shall begin to beat the men-servants and maidens, and to eat, and drink, and to be drunken, the Lord of that servant will come in a day when he looketh not for him, and at an hour when he is not aware, and cut him in sunder, and appoint him his portion with the unbelievers. And that servant which knew his Lord's will, and prepared not himself, neither did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes. But he that knew not and did commit things worthy of stripes, shall be beaten with few stripes; for unto whomsoever much is given, much will be required."

We are told by some that this is a parable. Others say it has its application in this life; that in this world we receive the few or many stripes. But from what precedes it, from the thirty-second verse and onward, especially from the fortieth verse, we learn that it has reference to the coming of Christ and to events which shall follow it. Verse fortieth reads—"Be ye also ready; for the Son of man cometh at an hour when ye think not." This seems to settle the point, and prove that Jesus is speaking of what will take place when he comes to judge the world in righteousness. Then the wilfully disobedient will suffer many stripes, and those who sin ignorantly will be beaten with few stripes. Thus we learn that those who sin ignorantly will receive punishment justly due them for transgression, but not so severe as those who wilfully sin. And do we not see from the foregoing passages that the few or many stripes which justice demands, together with all the sufferings of tribulation, wrath and anguish, which God has declared in other places that the sinner shall suffer in the day of judgment, are included in the penalty for sin? It is certainly a part of the wages, or hire, which will be recompensed to every soul of the disobedient who doeth evil, to every man according to his deeds.

But will all the wicked undergo the same amount of suffering and anguish in the great day of God? Some have sinned against greater light than others, and will not their guilt and condemnation be greater? Is it not here and for this reason that the few or many stripes are received? It is the truth we want, and we are willing to believe anything that the word of God says. (If degrees of punishment are taught in the Scriptures, I am willing to believe it.) We will look at a few passages touching this point.

Jesus says, in Matt. 23: 14—"Wo unto you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites; for ye devour widows' houses, and for a pretense make long prayers. Therefore ye shall receive the greater damnation." From the twenty-third verse of the same chapter, we learn that it is the "damnation of hell" (gehenna) which is threatened against them. Here he spoke to a class that would have been damned, or condemned, any way, for devouring widows' houses; but because they made long prayers for a pretense of piety, which made them hypocrites, therefore they will receive greater damnation.

Again. In the parable of the servant who, after his Lord had forgiven him the debt he could not pay, went out and refused to forgive his fellow servant, but cast him into prison, Jesus says that his Lord was wroth, and delivered him to the tormentors until he should pay all that was due him. "So likewise [says Jesus] shall my heavenly Father do also unto you, if ye from the heart forgive not every one his brother their trespasses." Matt. 18: 23–35. This last verse is not a parable, and must stand as it reads; and by it we learn that the unforgiving will be cast into a condition of suffering until the whole debt they owe to God is paid; and if the unforgiving are punished, will not God punish all the ungodly in the same manner, until the demands of justice are satisfied?

Again. Jesus, when he sent out his disciples to preach the kingdom of God, charged them to shake off the dust of their feet against that city or house that received not their words; saying, "It shall be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of judgment, than for that city." Matt. 10: 14–15; Mark 6: 11–12; also Matt. 11; 20–24; Lk. 10: 11–14. The Emphatic Diaglott renders it—"It shall be more endurable." Question: What will be more endurable; to be dead, and remain dead eternally? or, the sufferings of tribulation, wrath and anguish, which produce the second or eternal death? Both classes must suffer, and both classes must, through the agonies of dying, pass into eternal death. But the suffering or punishment of one is more endurable than the other.

The Savior, speaking of the wicked Jews who persecuted him, says, "If I had not come and spoken unto them, they had not had sin; but now they have no cloak for their sin. . . . If I had not done among them the works which none other man did, they had not had sin; but now have they both seen and hated both me and my Father." John 15: 22, 24. In saying they had not had sin, we think he refers to the sin of persecuting him. He had proved himself to be the Messiah, by the works which he had done among them; therefore they had no excuse for persecuting him, as they would have had if he had been an impostor. Thus they sinned wilfully. Paul says (Heb. 10: 26–31)—"For if we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, but a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries. He that despised Moses' law died without mercy under two or three witnesses: of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye, shall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done despite unto the Spirit of grace? For we know him who hath said, Vengeance belongeth unto me, I will recompense, saith the Lord. And again, The Lord shall judge his people. It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God."

Some, I know, tell us that this refers to the Jews alone, and that they received it in the tribulation which fell upon them at the destruction of Jerusalem. But was it the fiery indignation and wrath, and the flaming fire of the judgment day, that devoured the wicked Jews at the destruction of Jerusalem? I read that it was the Roman army under Titus that did it. And again, to such I would say, that others besides the wicked Jews have trodden, and are daily treading, under foot the Son of God, and are treating lightly and even mocking the blood of the covenant; and God allows them to prosper in this life like the green bay tree; and sometimes they are permitted to die suddenly without a moment of pain; and I would ask, When and where will they receive what God has declared against them in this and other scriptures, unless they are brought up from the dead to judgment, and there receive according to the deeds done in the body. And if wilful disobedience merits a more fearful retribution than the sin of ignorance; and if God will in the judgment "render to every man according to his deeds" (Rom. 2: 6), then justice demands of the ungodly something more than "to be dead." But the sufferings of "indignation and wrath, tribulation and anguish," which produce death, must be included in the penalty of transgression, or wages of sin.

The penalty for violation of civil law, in many instances, is death. Some nations have various ways of putting their criminals to death, which vary according to the crime; but in every instance, in the penalty which is death, is included the manner of dying. In most of the States of this nation, the penalty for murder is death; but the manner of dying, and the time, are included. The jury bring verdict against the criminal at the bar,—guilty of murder in the first degree; then the judge gives sentence. He shall be put in solitary confinement four days; one year of hard labor in the penitentiary, then be hanged by his neck until he is dead, dead, dead. Now as the whole of the sentence makes up the penalty for murder, so, if any part of it is left out, or anything else substituted for any part of it, then the culprit does not suffer the full penalty. The law gives for the penalty of murder—death; and also in other parts of the same law, it gives the manner and condition of dying; so likewise God has in his law said the wages, or reward, of sin is death. "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." And he has also said in his word how the sinner shall die, and what he shall endure while dying; that there shall be bitter anguish and agony connected with the second death, or penalty of sin.

The criminal, after receiving the above referred to sentence from the judge, cannot say to the executioner, As I am only to die, let my head be struck off instantly with a sharp sword, and gain his request; because hanging is part of the penalty. Just so in the case of the sinner deserving the wrath and vengeance of the Almighty God. He cannot say, When I die the death common to all men, let me remain eternally dead; or, when I receive sentence at the bar of God, let me in the smallest part of a moment pass and be dead, without a struggle or a shadow of pain, and have his request granted; because God has declared in his word, as a part of the penalty of sin—"Indignation and wrath, tribulation and anguish, upon every soul that doeth evil"—"to every man according to his deeds" (Rom. 2: 6–9); "and shall cast them into a furnace of fire; there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth."—Matt. 13: 42, 50.

I cannot find any where in the Bible that the wages of sin is merely to be dead; but I do find suffering, anguish, agony, wailing, gnashing of teeth, dying, and death, as the recompense of sin. The demands of justice will be satisfied, whether we believe or not.

E. MORRILL.

(Concluded next week.)

For the World's Crisis.

THE DANGER OF THE HOUR.

God's people will never get out of danger until they get entirely out of "the land of the enemy"; till they pass over Jordan, and on the other river-shore may shout—"We are come!" Till then they will often sing—

"My soul, be on thy guard,
Ten thousand foes arise."

But more than these common dangers, there stand forth clearly defined in the prophetic word, peculiar dangers that are to threaten the faithful at the last point of time, the point to which we have now undoubtedly come. They are set forth in many passages, and specially in the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth chapters of St. Matthew. In these chapters the special danger set forth is the danger to which they are subjected who, knowing the truth as it is in Jesus—particularly the truth relating to the second advent of the Lord—yet refuse to let their light shine, to give the truth the place and weight it ought to have in their own minds. For truth cherished and nourished in the heart is certain to produce fruit. "My words, they are spirit and they are life," said our Lord; and no man can honestly cleave to Christ's words, without finding his own heart blessed with their presence, and himself moved to impart to others what has thus enriched his own heart. But, alas! how many according to the tenure of this Scripture will, through want of watchfulness, through attention to eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, have that day come upon them in such an hour as they think not!

See how impressive the first parable of this twenty-fifth chapter; the faithful, the virgins, all go forth to meet the heavenly Bridegroom; the vision seems to tarry; they all slumber and sleep. Alas, this comforting, deceptive slumber! The Bridegroom comes, and then what tumult, what mental anguish, what upbraiding of themselves! But one thing only will now meet their case, and that is "oil in their vessels." Oil is emblematic of the Spirit, and "without the Spirit of Christ we are none of his." But the whole of this sad story—story that is to be soon, though a clear prophecy now—is brought to its practical conclusion when it is said, "Give us of your oil, for our lamps are gone out!"

Dearly beloved, shall we take the warning? Surely it is not enough that we are virgins, nor that we have gone forth to meet the heavenly Bridegroom, and still have with us our lamps, and robes, and girdles, and our sandals on; and our pilgrim staves in our hands; or that we even know the goodly fellowship of Christ's chosen ones. Have we oil in our vessels? Are we abiding in the Spirit? Do we know from day to day, and from hour to hour, what it is to abide in the unity of the Spirit, and in the bond of peace?

Nothing else will produce preparation for the coming of the Lord. Everything taken in lieu of this is a deception. O brother beloved, be not deceived. If we are not wary, the world will deceive us; prosperity will deceive us; attention to things which force themselves upon us as "duties," will deceive us. Satan, our great spiritual foe, will most surely deceive us, if he can. And we may certainly know—know as well now, as when the Bridegroom actually comes, whether we are in this state of entire preparation for the Lord's second advent, or whether we are not. If our lamps are shining, shining with a steady, undimmed light, reflecting fully and clearly heaven's light, then we are safe. Then we most undoubtedly have oil in our vessels. Then when our Lord comes we will open to him immediately. Then we will exclaim—"Lo, this is our God, we have waited for him."

But if on the other hand we are in doubt; if, when asked how we are, we "do not know exactly how to answer," and begin to talk of the "changes and chances of this mortal life," then let us beware. If the light that is in us becomes darkness, how great is that darkness! "If we say that we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, we lie, and do not the truth; but if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin."

Let us, then, as lamp-bearers, abide in the light, as "children of light." It is to such St. Paul says, "For yourselves know perfectly that the day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night."

P. B. MORGAN.

Des Moines, Ia.

For the World's Crisis.

ACROSTIC.

TO T. P. O.

There's joy in heaven to-night, new joy,
High notes angelic harps employ;
Earth breathes the strain, so rich and sweet,
Regions of bliss those strains repeat.
Each thrilling note: this joy complete,
Into my heart doth heaven now send
Such gifts high heaven alone can lend.
Joy, joy on earth, and joy above,
O'er a returning wanderer's love.
Yearning 'mong heavenly hosts to move,
In heavenly courts whose happy throng
Ne'er cease to sing redemption's song.
How high thy refuge, thine abode,
Eternity's unchanging God!
Around thee earth one wreck may lie,
Verily no harm to thee comes nigh.
Ever in him, no more to rove,
Now find thy rest, thy God, thy love.

C. HILL.

TENNYSON ON UNIVERSAL RESTORATION.

BY HENRY CONSTABLE.

There is an old relation between the poet and the prophet. In heathen times one spirit was supposed to animate them both, and the vates of the Latins stand alike for each. Even now between poetry and theology there is a bond. Theology affords to the poet his grandest idea. And so, if in ancient times we have Hesiod and Homer occupying their genius with the mythology of their country, we have in modern times Dante and Milton taking as the themes for their grand poems subjects which christianity, as it was understood by each, presented to their minds.

In Tennyson we have a poet. We have in Tennyson a great and an undying poet, a poet to kindle thought and genius in others—a poet to read and re-read, and still to find fresh thought and beauty in fields traversed before. This is his claim to the name of poet, beyond that marvelous language of his to which an equal can scarcely be found.

Death gives rise to his most beautiful poem, "In Memoriam." He will raise a monument to his friend more lasting than brass, more worthy of friendship than the marble sepulchre or the majestic pyramid. Death! the commonest of things, which has come to all before us, which is coming to all of us. What is it? an end or a beginning? a goal or a transition? the way to endless better or endless worse?" Such thoughts came to Tennyson when he lost his friend. Where was he? What was he? What is the race of whom he was one? What is its future? Has it any? Tennyson becomes a theologian. The poet of the nineteenth century becomes a prophet, even as his predecessor of eleven centuries before Christ.

The poet reflects his age. In a sense he is a creator, a maker, i. e., a poet; but he is only a creator out of rude materials lying to hand. The age makes the poet; the poet makes a work the marvel of his age. So with Tennyson as a theologian.

The age has revolted against a theology sixteen centuries old. The vulture preying for eternity upon the ever-renewing liver, the thirst perpetually excited to be as perpetually mocked, the hell of heathen poetry transferred under the guise of Christian phraseology into the church of Jesus Christ, where the Father stands for Pluto, and devils for vultures, and the sinner for the fire-stealer, themes upon which fathers dilated, and over which schoolmen gloated, on which modern preachers have expatiated, and which poets have woven into undying verse—are a loathing to the mind of our age. Believers and unbelievers denounce the hell of Augustine as a creation which only a devil could create, which even a devil, sick of his work, would obliterate when made.

What instead? That is the question of our age. There is no question before us of equal importance. All our views of God are moulded by what we believe is to come after it.

One opposite to Augustine's hell is Origen's restoration. The greatest mind of heathen times nearly reached this idea. Plato saw the world wicked. He saw wicked men unpunished; he placed a scene of retribution beyond the grave, as every justice-lover must; but with almost all the retribution was not the end. He saw in the far-off future—after the lapse of sad years, of centuries of years—a restoration. With him were a few incurables, the model and types for the Christian fathers' populous hell, but almost all he saw in his bright fancy brought back to the purity and happiness of their original.

The greatest mind of the fathers of the Christian church fully reached the idea which Plato had nearly arrived at. He carried it out, too, to an extent which the heathen philosopher could not, for he knew of an existing evil of which the other knew not. He knew of angels who kept not their first estate, of others who fell through pride, as well as of men and women to whom evil was their good. Immortals all, in Origen's mind! But he would not admit an immortality of pain in the fatherland of God. So he pictured the pains of hell working out the graces of heaven, and men and angels, condemned in the judgment, retracing through pain and suffering their way to their Father's home and love.

There is no doubt that this is a very grand and captivating idea. There is also no doubt that it is the idea on the very verge of which the religious mind of our age is trembling—longing to enter, half fearing it is but fairy land, half hoping it is God's own paradise. As we hear, it is the idea of the thoughtful German mind, which has burst away from Augustine's horrors, and knows not where to rest. No doubt it is the idea of many minds among us, which perhaps will not admit that it is so even to themselves. Mr. Birks says—we will go farther, thinks—that he does not hold it, but he does. He is not an Augustinian; he abhors Augustine's hell; he does not hold with us. We defy even his ingenuity to invent another than Origen's resource. Bishop Ellicot perhaps thinks that he does not, but we think he has drunk into this as he has into so much more of his idol, Bengel, and goes with Origen. This great idea has seized hold of the mind of a man whose work we have closely criticised, but for whose personal character, from all we hear, we hold the highest respect; and Mr. Jukes has pored over the volume of Scripture, in its mysteries and types as well as in its plainer portions, and ventured to insist that Scripture teaches universal restoration, that there is not in God's world a place "so drear" that "tears come too late for grace."

What the professed theologian and divine teach in graver books of theology, has found its way into the lighter literature of the age. We find it breaking out in the magazine; we find the novelist insinuating it into his tale of romance and love. But perhaps the man who has done more to spread this theory than any or all the writers of our day is our Poet Laureate.

It shows the marvellous power of a poet! it tells him how carefully he should use his giant strength. For Tennyson, certainly, has never strained a point to strengthen his case. We think him one of the most honest writers who has ever advocated a cause. He has most fairly exhibited the argument for Universal Restoration in its strength and in its weakness. What can be said for the cause he has said; what may be argued against it he has admitted. In a few words we would gather from his poem that what may be urged from his view is a sentiment, what may be urged against it is an analogy. Of course, we here only speak of the natural argument. Tennyson has not ventured upon the domain of Revelation.

We have said that Tennyson presents us with a sentiment and hope of the heart as the basis for his trust in universal restoration. He thus expresses himself:—

"Oh, yet we trust that somehow good
Will be the final goal of ill,
To pangs of nature, sins of will,
Defects of doubt, and taints of blood;

That nothing walks with aimless feet;
That not one life shall be destroyed,
Or cast as rubbish to the void,
When God hath made the pile complete;

That not a worm is cloven in vain,
That not a moth with vain desire
Is shrivelled in a fruitless fire,
Or but subserves another's gain.

Behold, we know not anything;
I can but trust that good shall fall
At last—far off—at last, to all,
And every winter change to spring."

Such is Tennyson's general sentiment and hope. He proceeds to strengthen it by the following considerations:—

"The wish, that of the living whole
No life may fail beyond the grave,
Derives it not from what we have
The likest God within the soul?

And he, shall he,
Man, her last work, who seemed so fair,
Such splendid purpose in his eyes,
Who willed the psalm to wintry skies,
Who built him fanes of fruitless prayer,

Who trusted God was love indeed,
And love creation's final law—
Though nature, red in tooth and claw—
With rapine, shrieked against his creed—

Who loved, who suffered countless ills,
Who battled for the true, the just,
Be blown about the desert dust,
Or sealed within the iron hills?"

Now we do not undervalue such sentiments or their strength. We are far, indeed, from supposing that feelings that come ever welling up from the depths of the human heart—fallen though that heart may be from its original purity and truth—find no response in him, the Father, who made the human heart, and gave it its instincts and its hopes. So far are we from this, that we assert that in the gospel of Jesus Christ is the favorable answer to all that can legitimately be claimed from such a deep sentiment of the heart as Tennyson has so beautifully expressed.

Is there not in the gospel of Christ a restoration of this very kind which the poet speaks of? Man, as a race, is rescued by it from that ruin which death apparently reduces him to. Is not Isaiah's noble assurance the answer to the poet's hope: "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust: for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead"? 26: 19. Man, God's "last work," is not lost. He is restored; he is more than restored in redemption. The Shepherd came down from heaven, and sought the sheep that had strayed, and ceased not to search till he had found it and restored it to the fold.

But this is not enough for Tennyson, and here is where we think him and his school in most dangerous error. With him "no life may fail beyond the grave." A restoration is not sufficient if but one life is left out. Here he goes beyond the gospel, which speaks of some lives saved, and some lives lost.

And here let us examine Tennyson's own reasons for his universal hope. We will find them utterly to fail to support it. When he would argue for a universal restoration for mankind, he selects from men the individuals best suited to his purpose! It is from men of "splendid purpose," with praise in their hearts and on their tongues, even where the sky above them was "wintry," who trusted that "God was love," even though appearances were against their faith, who battled and suffered for the true and the just—it is from such individuals that he contends for a restoration for all! What if we said, if all men were such indeed, then might his creed be true? But is this a picture of man? Is it such a picture that even heathen moralists drew of men? Is mankind such as Tennyson depicts, in the page of Terence, of Horace, or Juvenal? Is it such a picture we read drawn by Paul, who knew men well, and described them as filled with unrighteousness, fornication, wickedness, covetousness, maliciousness; full of envy, murder, debate, deceit, malignity; whisperers, backbiters, haters of God? Rom. 1: 29. If Tennyson had based his hopes of a universal restoration upon the noble aspirations of a Judas, a Pilate, a Simon, a Demas, a Herod, or a Nero, he would scarcely have carried with him the convictions of his readers. And yet all these were men!

So even here, and on the poet's own ground, we see that it is too much to say that every wish and sentiment of the heart must needs find its exact fulfillment. That were to make every wish a prophetic monition, which experience tells us it is not. There is such a thing as caution in our conclusions. What may be only fond, empty hopes, are not to be set down as certainties: and so, we must say, Tennyson feels and confesses. His bright hopes, he owns, are but a dream of his own bright fancy:—

"So runs my dream; but what am I?
An infant crying in the night,
An infant crying for the light;
And with no language but a cry."

Is there any balance—set off—to the hopes of his heart in the book that Tennyson reads and quotes? Yes. Tennyson opens the book of nature, a book as true as Scripture, for both are from one author. He reads it honestly, and he interprets it truly. From his interpretation we learn that analogy sets a limit to his hope:—

"Are God and nature then at strife,
That nature lends such evil dreams?
So careful of the type she seems,
So careless of the single life;

That I, considering everywhere
Her secret meaning in her deeds,
And finding that of fifty seeds
She often brings but one to bear,

I falter where I firmly trod,
And falling with my weight of cares
Upon the great world's altar stairs
That slope through darkness up to God,

I stretch lame hands of faith, and grope,
And gather dust, and chaff, and call
To what I feel is Lord of all,
And faintly trust the larger hope."

We will then venture to draw our conclusion from Tennyson's premises. There is, from the book of nature, reason for human hopes in the direction that he looks to; there is also in it reason for human fears in the direction that he dreads; and the book of Revelation exactly corresponds with the book of nature in both respects.

Nature speaks of the disappearance of types. Revelation holds out the prospect of the disappearance of that whole angelic race which sinned. Nature speaks of the disappearance and destruction of individuals. So Revelation speaks of "them that perish." But nature speaks also of the divine care for types and individuals, and so we see that God in the world of grace does the same. The Son of God came down from heaven to save the individual and the race. The renovated earth, with its saved race of man, shows the ideal of divine goodness advancing to a loving perfection and completeness, even as geology testifies to a higher order succeeding to a lower. In a redeemed and immortal race of man inhabiting the earth, we see the fulfilment of Tennyson's hope and trust, as in the death and destruction of angels and man we find the fulfillment of the fears which his book of nature suggested to his mind.—Rainbow.

For the World's Crisis.

"RESIST NOT EVIL."

Be not frightened at the above heading, for it is as truly the doctrine of Christ as any one gospel precept claiming the obedience of man; a truth that cannot be honestly refuted. "But I say unto you, That ye resist not evil." Matt. 5: 39. War men and war governments teach us to resist evil. Which shall we obey, God, or man? "The just . . . doth not resist." Jas. 5: 6. Whose example should we follow, the just, or the unjust? Christ says—"Learn of me." Matt. 11: 29. Do men or governments learn of Christ the art of human butchery? Does not his law complete "the whole duty of man"? "Fear God, and keep his commandments; for this is the whole duty of man." Eccl. 12: 13.

Were governments framed on gospel principles, divested of war elements, disarmed of carnal weapons, they might be in a condition to justify support and co-operation; but so long as human butchery is attached to their codes, it will be quite inconsistent for christians to lend their voluntary support, by vote, or otherwise. "For he that biddeth . . . God speed, is partaker of . . . evil deeds." 2 John 11. And what deeds are more emphatically evil than those of human butchery? What evil has ever pervaded the land that competed with the slaughter of mankind, and done through the agency of almost every human government?

Is it not wise and proper for christians to always walk in wisdom's ways? We do not conceive that a warlike attitude, either offensive or defensive, can be quite in wisdom's ways, because "all her paths are peace."—Prov. 3: 17. Why should the christian desire any other than wisdom's ways, or other weapons than those "not carnal, but mighty" and effectual, alone provided by "the Prince of peace"?

T. F. TUKESBURY.

For the World's Crisis.

THE COMING OF THE LORD.

"When He shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe . . . in that day."—2 THESS. 1: 10.

"When He shall come!" What then? He will be admired and glorified by his waiting people, and then (if never before) they will rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory.

It is my aim to use Bible language now, and I need not apologize for quoting freely several of those passages which refer to that great and glorious day, when "the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel and the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise." "Let the heavens rejoice, and let the earth be glad; let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof. Let the field be joyful, and all that is therein: then shall all the trees of the wood rejoice before the Lord: for he cometh, for he cometh to judge the earth: he shall judge the world with righteousness, and the people with his truth. Psalm 96: 11–13. "The Lord my God shall come, and all the saints with thee." "And the Lord shall be king over all the earth." Zech. 14: 5–9. "The Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father, with his angels: and then he shall reward every man according to his works." Matt. 16: 27. "Hereafter shall ye see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven." Matt. 26: 64.

When Jesus had given an account of the signs that should precede his coming, he said, "When these things begin to come pass, then look up and lift up your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh." Luke 21: 28. All who truly love the Lord, will rejoice when they see the signs of the near approach of the day of his coming, and as the evidence increases so will their joy increase.

But there is a large class who do not rejoice at such a prospect, and there is a number of passages adapted to this class, some of which may be here quoted. One of the prophets asks this question—'Who may abide the day of his coming? and who shall stand when he appeareth?' Mal. 3: 2. Another says—"The day of the Lord is great and very terrible; and who can abide it?" Joel 2: 11. And Isaiah says—"Behold, the day of the Lord cometh, cruel both with wrath and fierce anger, to lay the land desolate; and he shall destroy the sinners thereof out of it. For the stars of heaven and the constellations thereof shall not give their light, and the sun shall be darkened in his going forth, and the moon shall not cause her light to shine. And I will punish the world for their evil, and the wicked for their iniquity; and I will cause the arrogancy of the proud to cease, and will lay low the haughtiness of the terrible. . . . Therefore I will shake the heavens, and the earth shall remove out of his place, in the wrath of the Lord of hosts, and in the day of his fierce anger." Isa. 13: 9, 13. "And all the host of heaven shall be dissolved, and the heavens shall be rolled together as a scroll; and all their host shall fall down, as the leaf falleth off from the vine, and as a falling fig from the fig tree." Isa. 34: 4. "For it is the day of the Lord's vengeance, and the year of recompenses for the controversy of Zion." Verse 8. "And there shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of nations with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken. And then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud, with power and great glory." Luke 21: 25, 27. "But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night; in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat; the earth also, and the works that are therein shall be burned up." 2 Pet. 3: 10. "For behold, the day cometh, that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble; and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch." Mal. 4: 1. "And I beheld when he had opened the sixth seal, and, lo, there was a great earthquake; and the sun became black as sackcloth of hair, and the moon became as blood; and the stars of heaven fell unto the earth, even as a fig tree casteth her untimely figs, when she is shaken of a mighty wind. And the heaven departed as a scroll when it is rolled together; and every mountain and island were moved out of their places. And the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every freeman, hid themselves in the dens and in the rocks of the mountains; and said to the mountains and rocks, Fall on us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb: for the great day of his wrath is come: and who shall be able to stand?" Rev. 6: 12–17.

If you will "search the Scriptures" diligently, you may find a great deal more upon this subject; but here is enough for our present purpose. This purpose is to faithfully warn every man, and to give the "trumpet a certain sound," that whosoever heareth may prepare himself for the coming of the Lord. The event is unmistakable; the time of the event is at hand. Therefore "let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon."

F. A. CHAMBERLAIN.

— He gives twice that gives quickly.

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, January 4, 1871.

☞ Please Remember!

☞ All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the Business Agent, GEO. T. ADAMS.

☞ Take Notice!

☞ All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

☞ Money Orders.

☞ Our correspondents should remember that if they send money orders in a letter which contains the name of the sender, and the name of the person to whom the order is payable, there is NO SAFETY for their money. Any person may draw the amount named in the order, if these names are given.

Neither is it safe to send us your names in advance. Somebody may open the letter, get the names, and then wait till the order comes, and get that too.

Send on the order, not writing a word; make it payable to GEO. T. ADAMS, directing it to MILES GRANT, or World's Crisis. Then, in two or three days, write in the usual way, stating that you have sent the order, and what you wish done with the money obtained on the same, and it will be entirely safe. In the second communication be sure to give us your NAME and POST OFFICE ADDRESS. AG'T.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

For the encouragement of our friends, we would say, that during the months of October, November, and December, we have received the names of 669 NEW SUBSCRIBERS for the Crisis. One brother subscribes and pays for ten copies, to be sent to as many different persons; others a less number; and various brethren and sisters have interested themselves in extending the circulation of our paper. We hope that all who are looking for our Lord's soon return, will do what they can in this matter—scattering the truth in all directions.

AG'T.

OUR CALIFORNIA TRIP.

We closed our last notes at Ogden, Thursday evening, Dec. 16th. After mailing our last wayside gleanings, we went back into the cars, and learned from our California clergyman friend that he had just been into a barber's shop at the depot, to be shaved, and have his hair cut, for which he was charged $1.50. In one sense, we think he was most certainly shaved. This is a sample of the prices in this part of the world. They asked on the cars to-day, twenty-five cents for a California daily paper, and we paid thirty cents for a pint of milk. We learn that beyond Ogden things have to be paid for in gold, or its equivalent.

We have not yet come to snow sufficient for sleighing. The ground is barely covered. They sometimes have very deep snows on these mountains, which, with the aid of the strong winds, is often piled in tremendous heaps. To protect the R. R. from the drifts, from one to four fences have been built for many miles, and where there are deep cuts, snow-sheds have been built over the road, which save the road much labor, though they are dark and dreary to the traveler.

We passed Bear River station to-day (Thursday), that was attacked by some three hundred desperadoes, in 1868, when fifteen of them were killed on the spot, and several wounded unto death. One of the citizens was killed in the fray. Many records of the terrible and horrible might be given in connection with the various localities through which we passed; but we prefer to speak of things more agreeable.

Friday, Dec. 16th. We are still favored with good weather, and the absence of snow, excepting just enough to whiten the ground. We are getting along nicely, and are now about three thousand miles from Boston. The way has not seemed as long, nor been as tedious as we expected. We have very good cars, nicely jointed rails, and some congenial company. We have/had pleasant times in singing the songs of Zion. Our conductor yesterday, Mr. G. H. Littlejohn, of Ogden, Utah, was a fine singer, and while passing through the cars, would lead off in singing, "We'll gather at the river," or some other sweet song, when the passengers would unite in hearty chorus. Conductor Littlejohn is a very earnest, energetic man, with undaunted courage, yet gentlemanly, pleasant and obliging, and well calculated to inspire confidence in his passengers, and cause them to feel that no one is better adapted to conduct a train of cars through this wild country, where there are perils unknown on most railroads.

Some of our friends, who are familiar with our mode of living, may be inclined to inquire how we manage to get our regular hygienic food? We are all right. When we left Chicago we were supplied with unleavened bread, apples and raisins to last to San Francisco; oat-meal mush for two days and a half, milk for one day, and rusk, made from unleavened bread dried and ground, sufficient for the journey. We buy a pint of milk a day at the eating stations; and are now living well on the bread, apples, rusk and milk, and raisins.

We have passed through a great variety of scenery to-day. At one time we are winding among rocks rising perpendicularly hundreds of feet above us, assuming almost every variety of shape. These mountain rocks are composed of a material that is continually crumbling and wearing away, some parts of them faster than others, thus leaving them in curious shapes, in which the traveler may trace the likeness of men and animals. After rushing through the wild scenery for a number of miles, winding along like a serpent to avoid the peaks of the Humboldt mountains, we rush out into a wide-spread plain, surrounded by the snow-clad hills, through which the train goes in an air-line for many miles. At each station, we found groups of the Shoshone Indians, presenting no very inviting appearance. They are a very inferior tribe; perhaps the most so of any among the various races in the United States. Some of them do not appear as intelligent as the common monkey, while others have considerable intelligence. Several of the women had their pappooses done up like mummies, with their faces uncovered, fastened to boards, and tied on their backs. The little fellows made no fuss about their peculiar situation. The only covering the women had on their heads was their coarse black hair, that had rarely, if ever, been troubled with the teeth of a comb. They were clothed in dirty, ragged garments, made out of old bagging, or some other similar material, with a coarse blanket wrapped around them, and old rags tied upon their feet to keep them warm in the snow. Judging from what they wear in the winter, we think their clothing must be very scanty in the summer. They would come about the cars, like pigs, to pick any pieces of food that might be given them. Some of the men had their faces painted a dark orange color, and in personal appearance looked more respectable than the women. They did not appear to pay any attention to their squaws or children. We saw some of their wigwams on the hill-side, which corresponded in appearance very well with the dress of the squaws. These Indians are of small stature, low foreheads, and appear to have no purpose in life more than merely to live. Excepting idiots, some of them were the lowest specimens of humanity we ever beheld. We did not care to tarry in their presence.

Leaving these, we notice, in passing, some hot springs on the plains, among the Humboldt mountains, which produce boiling water, and from which steam is continually ascending many feet into the air. We thought it would be a nice place to have a bathing house.

THE SABBATH.

In Alaska, California, the people keep Saturday for the first day of the week. This territory was formerly a part of Russia, and the people received their first day from those who went east to Alaska. When others came west to the same point, they had lost a day, and found themselves keeping for Sunday the Alaskans' Monday. On one occasion a ship's crew arrived at Alaska, which had carefully kept the first day during their voyage, but found on their arrival that the Alaskans' Sunday came a day earlier. The captain required his men to keep the same rest day as the Alaskans. The crew prosecuted the captain for requiring them to work on their Sabbath; and the case was tried in the California court, and decision was given against the captain.

QUERY. If a particular day is to be kept as the Sabbath, which one should be observed at Alaska by those who reach that place from opposite directions? Who knows?

MORTAL RESURRECTION.

During the past two years, we have seen several articles in different papers, in relation to a "mortal resurrection." We think some do not understand the views of those whom they consider in error. To us, there is but one point to settle; and that is, whether each particular particle that will constitute a part of the resurrected body is immortalized before the organization takes place, or afterwards? In other words, is the man organized,—perfect in all his parts—and then made alive, immortal, and incorruptible; or is each element of which he will be composed made immortal by itself, before it enters into the organization? That which has no life cannot be made immortal before it lives. "Mortal" properly applies only to that which has life, and is susceptible of death. A being, who already has life, could be changed to immortality. That which is mortal can "put on immortality;" and that which is corruptible could "put on incorruption." It is not proper to call the mainspring, nor any other single part of a watch, the watch; neither would it be correct to say that a single atom was the man. Before man is made immortal he should be perfected in all his parts; or be completely organized without a single defect in his constitution; then it would be proper to render him immortal and incorruptible. The terms immortality and incorruptibility apply to man as a whole.

When the prophet Ezekiel described the resurrection, he proceeded to say: "The bones came together, bone to his bone; . . . the sinews and the flesh came upon them, and the skin covered them above; but there was no breath in them." Eph. 37: 7, 8. This is like the work of creation, when man was first made. The Lord did not give life to each particle before it was placed in the human organism; but formed the whole man, and then "breathed into his nostrils the breath of life," and he "became a living soul;" so at the resurrection, the man, as a whole, is to be reorganized, and then, if saved, "this corruptible" will "put on incorruption, and this mortal" will "put on immortality." 1 Cor. 15: 53.

This appears to be the plain teaching of the Bible on this subject. Those who have loved and served the Lord "put on incorruption;" while those who have sown to the flesh "shall utterly perish in their own corruption." 2 Pet. 2: 11. Instead of putting on immortality and incorruption, they die "the second death," from which there is no resurrection. The waves of oblivion roll over them for ever and ever. They will be destroyed for eternity, and be heard of no more. Then sin will be "finished," and only the pure in heart will be immortal and incorruptible.

DEATH OF REV. ALBERT BARNES.—This well known author of "Barnes' Notes on the Gospel," died in Philadelphia, on the 24th ult., very suddenly, aged seventy-two years. He had preached the previous Sabbath, and was apparently in perfect health. Of his "Notes," over half a million copies have been published, some editions having been translated into several languages.

FROM "THE SUMMER LAND."

Thinking the readers of our columns would like to get the latest tidings from the Editor, we cheerfully give some extracts from a private letter, just received, under date of Dec. 19th:—

"I am delighted with this country. It is properly called 'The Summer Land.' It is the most beautiful country I ever beheld. . . . I had thought its beauties had been much exaggerated, but the picture has not been overdrawn. There is no snow here. It is said to be very cold now for California, but I am writing this in my room, without a fire, and an open window, in the morning. The distance here is three thousand five hundred and thirty-nine miles. When I arrived at Sacramento, one hundred and thirty-nine miles from San Francisco, it seemed like our pleasant Indian summer in October. The scenery was enrapturing, after our dreary ride over the mountains but I should not like to lose the sublime scenes on the Rocky, Humboldt, Truckee, and Sierra Nevada mountains. I never before witnessed any scenery so grand and sublime. Imagine a mountain fifteen hundred feet high, with a railroad cut through it, and the track laid at the opening of the cut, at the top of the mountain, and from that elevation look down to the bottom of that deep cut, and you would have some idea of many scenes among the mountains. These deep natural cuts in the mountains are called 'cañons,' a Spanish name. In the bottom a small stream of water, like a vein of silver, may be seen winding its way along, affording drink for the wild beasts of the forest. It would be a vain attempt to try to describe the grandeur of some of this scenery. It must be seen to be appreciated. . . . One could well afford to take a long journey to see what I have seen. I am thankful for the privilege of beholding such sublime sublimity and grandeur of the grand. How little I thought, when a school-boy studying geography, that I should ever cross the Rocky mountains and see the Pacific ocean. . . .

On our way, before reaching Sacramento city, we passed through the mining regions, where an immense amount of earth has been moved. About these mines are pleasant homes on the hill-sides, where may be seen fruit trees and vines that bear most delicious burdens, that are scarcely equalled in any other part of the world. It is said they never find a worm in an apple in California. I never saw such nice fruit in any other place. Roses and other flowers bloom in the open air during the whole year. I saw to-day some beautiful roses just picked. The grass in the parks is as green as it is on Boston Common in May. Their public gardens and plazas are the most lovely spots I ever saw, with the cedar and other evergreen cones that grace these public places. One might easily exhaust his list of expletives in describing the scenery.

San Francisco is built largely upon hills, which afford some most delightful situations, overlooking the bay, the distant snow-clad mountains, and almost the entire city. The buildings are elegant, with pleasant surroundings, which give the city a very inviting appearance. I am most happily disappointed. I think it is rare that one who comes to California wishes to go away, or feels sorry that he is here. In the summer they have cool weather in this city, so that it is seldom so warm but they sleep under a common amount of bedding. It is neither too warm nor too cold. Public halls and churches are without stoves for winter use.

It is a wicked city, like Sodom, but I have already found some real christians, whose sympathie I have secured. The Lord has opened the way for me in a special manner.

. . . . Last Sabbath morning, I went to hear Dr. A. L. Stone, and was introduced to him at the close of the meeting. He is popular. In the evening I went to Zion's church (Methodist), and was urged by the pastor to take a seat in the desk, and to speak at the close of the sermon, which I did. He then gave me a standing invitation to preach in his house, and requested me to occupy his desk next Sabbath evening. This is the house occupied by Starr King. . . . I am to preach in the hall of the Y. M. C. A. Thursday and Saturday evenings. . . . I have now been in California five days, and have not yet seen a cloud."

A SAMPLE.

The following is a sample of the manner in which popular evangelical (?) churches in Chicago manage their affairs. Is it not time for Luthers and Wesleys to rise up again, and cry aloud against such abominations? People may well inquire, To what are we coming?

PLYMOUTH CHURCH FAIR.

The ladies of Plymouth Congregational Church are just now deeply engrossed in their preparations for a grand fair, which is to open this evening, and continue all the week. They have taken possession of the entire basement of the church, and are busily engaged in fitting it up and preparing it for the various departments, of which there will be twenty-four, embracing some especially novel and attractive features. Prominent among these will be the art gallery, which will contain the gems of several private collections never before exhibited in public; the dramatic department, which occupies a room by itself, with stage appointments complete, and which will be devoted to plays, tableaux, and, last, a baby show; the refreshment room; fancy-work booth; children's clothing; the doll department; the telegraph and express lines; Jacob's well; the country store; the variety store; the flower and fruit department; books and stationery; confectionery; the post office; fortune telling; the gallery for the display of photographs; the grab-bag, and numerous other features common to church fairs.

A peculiar feature of this fair is, that the prices of articles on sale will be no higher than those at the retail stores, so that no one need feel apprehensive of being bled. A daily paper, to be called the Plymouth Bazaar, will be published during the fair, the circulation reaching about three thousand copies per day. Elaborate preparations are making for a fair, the like of which has not been given in the city, and present progress promises a grand success.

The following is the report after the first entertainment:—

"Plymouth Bazaar, the grand fair gotten up by the ladies of Plymouth Congregational Church, was fairly inaugurated last evening in the church parlors, on the corner of Eldridge court and Wabash avenue. The attendance was large, as well it might be, for the Bazaar is unusually interesting and attractive, possessing many features rarely to be found in connection with affairs of that kind. The main part is devoted to booths, in which are exposed for sale, and at fair retail prices, fancy [illegible], books, stationery, confectionery, etc. The room is beautifully draped and ornamented, and the presence of numerous cages of singing canaries lends additional charm to the gay scene. There is Jacob's well, where a pair of radiant Rebeccas, en costume, draw up lemonade at ten cents a glass, with sweet smiles and pretty pleasantries thrown in. A telegraph and express office afford facilities for the transfer of ideas and parcels, and the daily paper, the Plymouth Bazaar, supplies an agreeable mixture of news and nonsense, dished up by the corps of young lady editors. The refreshment department is constantly in full blast, and what with the post office, the fortune teller, birds, flowers, music, and pretty girls, there is no lack of ways and means for the enjoyment of a pleasant evening. The picture gallery is especially interesting and attractive, containing a large number of the gems of several private collections, among which are the rare and costly works of the greatest of European and American artists. Here also is displayed Mr. G. W. Ordway's unique and valuable collection of antique books, which are of themselves worth a visit to the fair. To-night the Bazaar Theatre will be thrown open to the public, 'the Spirit of '76 or the Coming woman,' which is to be given with a powerful cast, new properties, scenes, and effects. The library serves as the auditorium, and the pastor's study has been transformed into the stage. Rev. Mr. Bartlett may now be supposed to comprehend the full extent of Shakspeare's meaning when he declared that "All the world's a stage." Tableaux are also to be given, and wonderful preparations are making for a baby show, concerning which more will be announced hereafter. The fair continues all the week, day and evening, and promises to develop into an immense success."

The foregoing report of the fair is from the Chicago Daily Tribune. Further comment is unnecessary.

THE WAR IN EUROPE.

But little progress has been made in war matters during the past few weeks. The French seem determined to hold out to the last extremity. It is said they are eating rats and horses quite freely. It is thought the Prussians will not bombard the city. A crisis in the war events must come soon. The following from a London correspondent shows the direction of the current:—

"The feeling is strong that victory for France is hopeless under the Republic. Private advices from all parts of France indicate a reaction everywhere in favor of the restoration of the Emperor, the people contrasting twenty years' order and prosperity with the present misery and anarchy. The Tours Government have proved incompetent either to conduct the war or negotiate a peace. Napoleon refuses to give his sanction to any schemes for his restoration at present, saying that his part is silent inaction until the republicans either capitulate or are dispersed."

CORRECTIONS.—In the obituary notice of Bro. Warren Allen, last week, for "young companion," read beloved companion.

The article on "Sacramental Wine," in the last Crisis, should have been credited to the Temperance Press, instead of St. Alban's Messenger.

RECEIVED.—"Herald of Health," "Western Home," "Guide to Holiness," "Home Guardian," "Agriculturist," etc., for January.

TIME'S FAREWELL.

We have just published a tract with the above title, written by Bro. O. D. Woodruff. A good, stirring, timely tract; just the thing to scatter everywhere, and should be scattered by the thousands. Price by mail, 10 cents per dozen; 75 cents per hundred; $6.20 per thousand. AG'T.

MUSIC.—New edition, "O, who'll stand up for Jesus?" Single 5 cents, postage 2 cents; 50 cents per dozen, postpaid. AG'T.

OUR POSITION AND WORK.

We stand before the world as a separate people in a religious point of view, with a special work on our hands, whether it is of Divine appointment, or of human origin. Our mission and message is either from heaven or of men. If from men, the sooner we give up the enterprise, the better for ourselves and for others; but if it is from heaven, a great responsibility devolves upon us, and we should be both active and zealous.

We are a distinct people of necessity, as our peculiar faith could not be tolerated to any great extent, nor be made at all conspicuous in any of the different religious organizations of the land. We were under the necessity of smothering our faith, or of stepping out by ourselves where we could proclaim it to the world unrestricted. As we could not withhold the solemn judgment alarm to please men, nor suppress those truths of inspiration which so distinctly clash with current theology, we have been compelled to disconnect ourselves from opposing elements, and unite our forces and consolidate our strength, that we may the more effectually accomplish the great work of proclaiming unpopular truth, and repudiating popular errors, with which the world is flooded.

With the Bible as our detector, we repudiate the wide-spread doctrine of rewards and punishments before the arrival of the great judgment scene. We cannot there read of a reward for saint or sinner previous to that event; hence we cannot suppress this great fact which is detrimental to the theology of the day; and finding that the Bible connects reward with the coming of Christ and the judgment day, we cannot suppress this truth for the sake of peace or popularity. We have not only grasped the truth of the Lord's coming, but, like Enoch, we have learned that he is coming to "execute judgment uponall," and that consequently reward depends upon his coming, and cannot be realized previously.

Furthermore, we have been compelled to believe, by the fulfillment of prophecy, that we are very near the Messiah's advent from heaven, who is to come in Divine grandeur, for the double purpose of obliterating evil and to reign in glory on the renewed earth. And this truth, though not congenial to the relish of the multitudes, must not be suppressed, but be allowed to shine out in unclouded splendor. We must be united in holding up this God-given truth, and in giving it the conspicuous place assigned it by inspiration. After mature investigation, we, as a people, are fully agreed that all the prominent links in the various prophetic chains are now in the past, thus proving a new era in earth's history almost due. And though some have anxiously looked for the crowning event at too early a point of time, that cannot invalidate the great features of prophecy, which unmistakably proclaim our proximity to the glorious morn of redemption to the waiting church of Christ.

In heaven's infallible programme, the different sections of earth's history of sin and mortality are so clearly marked off by the finger of Inspiration, that we know we are in the last section, and near its termination too; and a slight inaccuracy in computing our precise nearness to the termination of this last section, can never invalidate the fact of our nearness to the end of the prophetic programme. And in view of our proximity to the day of final retribution, we should be active and zealous. If we have the truth on these great themes, others are certainly in great darkness; therefore it becomes us to let our light shine in every possible way; by preaching, by scattering appropriate reading matter, and by private conversation, always leaving out the sour, combative spirit and contentious feeling; seeking to enlighten them for their good, and not to triumph over them for our own gratification. If we have the light which this dark world needs, we must not withhold it.

If the last dispensational truth is committed to our trust, we must not smother it, but all our available facilities should be brought into immediate exercise to help spread the heaven-born message to the four winds; and the time is already so far spent that we must be expeditious, for we have but little time left in which to rescue the perishing and enlighten those who are enshrouded in the darkness of tradition.

We have a great work to accomplish. The God of truth has imposed great responsibilities upon us, as the proclaimers of his last dispensational message to a judgment-bound generation. Will we prove true to our trust, and let the glorious light of truth penetrate the chilly regions of theological darkness and fables? Will we faithfully proclaim heaven's system of theology, combining the power of the clergy, the laity, and the press? How great the harvest, and how few the laborers. Idlers abound, but real laborers are not numerous. Ministers lag because members do not fully administer to their temporal wants; and members get drowsy because they lack encouragement. Let the remedy be applied; let ministers get their own hearts more fully baptized with divine love, and infuse new zeal into their members, and in turn let them attend to the temporal wants of the ambassador of Christ, that the work of God be not hindered. We have no time for inactivity or drowsiness.

We see the day of redemption approaching, and yet how faint are our efforts to gather the perishing into the fold of Christ. We believe that the great judgment scene is near, and still how little we are doing to arouse the world. We are looking for the kingdom of God to come soon, and yet how half-hearted we are in importuning men to get ready. Lord, give us more zeal. We not only need to work, but in order to accomplish the most good, we need to work unitedly and harmoniously. In some instances much confusion and distraction have been produced in our ranks by unwise ministers, who have claimed the right to make some side issue the all-absorbing theme, thus diverting attention from our specific message and important work. We must refrain from every experiment of this kind. We have already had experience enough in this direction to understand the ruinous workings of the principle. Let us be united to prepare a people for the coming kingdom, and not divide our strength, nor weaken our power, by giving too much attention to themes wholly disconnected from the great message entrusted to our care.

Let us not put this great prophetic light under a bushel, but let our motto be, "Behold, the Lord cometh . . . . to execute judgment upon all." W. S.

THE QUESTION OF PUNISHMENT.

There is a gradual swerving from the doctrine of endless hell-fire torment, upon the part of many theologians of the present day, and a disposition to adopt in its stead the theory of endless anguish arising from guilty conscience. The following note squints in that direction:—

FUTURE PUNISHMENT.

Let the fairest star be selected, like a beauteous island in the vast and shoreless sea of the azure heavens, as the future home of the criminals from the earth, and let them possess whatever they must love, and all that it is possible for God to bestow; let them be endowed with undying bodies, and with minds which shall forever retain their intellectual powers; let no Savior ever press his claims upon them, no God reveal himself to them, no Sabbath ever dawn upon them, no saint ever live among them, no prayer ever be heard within their borders; but let society exist there forever, smitten only by the leprosy of hatred to God, and with utter selfishness as its all-prevailing and eternal purpose, then, as sure as the law of righteousness exists, on which rests the throne of God, and the government of the universe, a society so constituted must work out for itself a hell of solitary and bitter suffering, to which there is no limit except the capacity of a finite nature! Alas! the spirit that is without love to its God or its neighbor, is already possessed by a power which must at last create for its own self-torment a worm that will never die, and a fire that can never more be quenched!—Dr. Norman Macleod.

If the sinner were really immortal, or destined ever to be immortal, there might be some plausibility to such talk; but the truth is, "The wages of sin is death," and every incorrigible sinner must be "cast into the lake of fire, which is the second death," at the judgment day. W. S.

CHRIST COMING WITH SAINTS.

We are frequently met with the claim that there are disembodied saints in heaven, from the fact that we read that Christ will bring the saints with him at his coming. The term rendered "saints" in these passages signifies "holy ones," and is often translated "holy," and often applied to angels as well as to human beings. "At the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ with all his saints"—hagion, holy ones. 1 Thess. 3: 12. "The Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints"—hagiois, holy ones. Jude 14. We remark:

1. We know of a class of holy ones that are in heaven, often called angels; and we know from scripture testimony that they are to escort Christ from heaven to earth. Doubtless they are referred to in these texts.

2. But if it should be insisted that human saints are referred to, we freely give our opponents the full benefit of the claim, and rob them of their exposition even then, for Paul expressly says he will come "with all his saints"; and that would include the living ones, too, who must be "caught up" to "meet the Lord" before they can come with him; and they are to be caught up "together with" the resurrected saints. 1 Thess. 4: 16, 17. All will have bodies then; so disembodied saints cannot be meant, even if they exist. W. S.

WILL FIRE BURN GHOSTS?

It is claimed that death unsheathes spirit-men, and that the spirit man resembles the material body in which it formerly dwelt, having eyes, tongue, and limbs; that the material arm is the sheath for the spirit-man's arm; the material leg the sheath for the spirit-man's leg, and so on. Then when the material leg is amputated, the spirit-leg is disembodied, of course. Now if we would know whether the disembodied spirit-man can suffer pain by being cast into the fire, let us experiment on this disembodied spirit-leg. If it suffers pain when put into the fire, so will the whole spirit-man when engulphed in fire; but if the disembodied spirit-leg does not suffer pain by coming in contact with fire, neither would the entire spirit-man, when disembodied and cast into the fire, suffer any pain therefrom. The experiment has been made with a person after amputation, so thoroughly that, provided a spirit-limb were protruding in a disembodied state, it is proven that fire cannot give it the least pain. Then let the whole spirit-man be disembodied and put into the fire, and it could suffer no pain therefrom. Then why send ghosts to hell? W. S.

"THE BIBLE BANNER."—The first number of this new monthly is before us. Its general appearance is all that its friends could expect, and it contains valuable articles from several well known writers. Ten thousand copies of the first number are to be scattered over the land. Now is the time to subscribe, and to get others to subscribe; $1.00 per year, and a book free. Address The Bible Banner, 240 Broadway, New York. Send for a sample copy. W. S.

ADDRESS.—Occasionally friends write me at Boston, Mass., and Buchanan, Mich., and on business matters pertaining to both offices. Let it be remembered, (1.) that Brodhead, Wis., is my address; (2.) that business matters should be addressed to the resident Editor, and not to me. W. S.

For the World's Crisis.

REPORT OF CONFERENCES.

Our next meeting was in October, Yellerly school-house, where I labored thirteen years ago. Quite a number were converted to God and his truth, although they have not many privileges for meeting. Since that time some still live to praise God for the light that then shone into their hearts. Some have moved away, others have died, we trust in hope of living when Jesus comes. Our meeting commenced Thursday evening. Brethren Nason, Rines and Rhodes were present to preach the word. Many came from abroad to unite in laboring for the good of others, and were blest themselves in so doing. The brethren and sisters were strengthened, some were reclaimed, and are free in the Lord. The friends in the place opened their houses, where there was plenty of room for all, and many more. The inhabitants of Rome, mostly, are in sympathy with our Advent faith.

Our next meeting was held in Wayne Village, a new place. The Free Baptist house was kindly opened to us (as it was not in use), by request of Brn. Doughty and Brown. Bro. D. has been laboring in the neighborhood of the village a few years past, to good acceptance. A number have been hopefully converted. Meeting commenced Friday P. M. Brn. Bragg and Thomson, on their way west, stopped with us over Sunday. The truth was listened to with deep interest. The preaching was on the coming of Jesus and the Bible hope. Our meeting increased in interest to its close. No discordant notes; all in harmony with the one important theme—Jesus is soon coming, and a preparation for the event. In company with Bro. Doughty, I concluded to spend the following Sunday in the same place. Some said the Bible seemed like a new book, and it was astonishing they never saw it so before. Bro. Doughty has since baptized three, and others are waiting an opportunity to go forward. I was obliged to leave to attend the grove meeting in Robbins' school-house, Rome, Nov. 10th. The weather and traveling were unfavorable, but to our surprise found the house full, and Bro. Rines preaching to them on the final end of the wicked. Only a few brethren from abroad, yet our meeting was of deep interest. Much of the divine Spirit and power rested on the children. Sinners trembled. One young man returned to God and found pardon, confessed the truth, and rejoiced in hope. I was informed by his mother that he backslid by not obeying the call to preach. Thank God, he has something new to say, if he is called now. One lame sister came on foot four miles Sunday morning. Said she had not enjoyed herself so well for forty years, and thanked God for new light. Since our meeting there in June, quite a number have embraced the truth, for which we will thank God and take courage. Elder Tibbetts, of the Christian church, met with us. He is an able man. Has latterly embraced the life and death views. We have reason to thank our dear Father for what he is doing for us, in letting the light shine on us from his word.

Next, went to Buckfield. On our way took Bro. Doughty. Arrived in season for meeting. Met a few faithful ones ready to labor in harmony for the advancement of present truth. Bro. Kimball has been laboring in that place to good acceptance. Some have been redeemed. Our meeting was spiritual. Few out in the place, on account of not understanding the notice. All could say it was good to be there. Some received new light. Brn. Doughty and Haggett were there to help preach the word. One man said he believed the doctrine we preached, and wanted to return, and hoped to find pardon and live a christian. We thanked God for our meeting in Buckfield.

At Wayne the 24th. Held meetings over Sunday. The truth is taking a strong hold in Wayne Village. Many are stirred to search the Scriptures, to see if these things are so. The subject is discussed in the shops and stores. The work is still onward. One man said he ought to speak and confess the truth, for he had listened attentively, and could embrace it as Bible doctrine. Lord, help, is my prayer.

H. B. SEVEY.

☞ Love is life's most beautiful poetry, written upon the heart, and destined to a bright immortality.

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 24th, 1870, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

WM. B. HENNON, Sec'y Adv. Ch. Pub. Soc'y.

Remittances should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass., or they may be enclosed with remittances to the Crisis office.

Donations for the Tract Fund.

Previous acknowledgments	$161.23
Charles Pettibone	2.00
A Friend	1.00
M. A. Hardy	.50

POOR FUND.

(To send the Crisis to the Poor.)

Previous acknowledgments	$20.00
A Friend	.50

YOUNG PILGRIM FUND.

Previous acknowledgments	$5.08

AMER. ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

Donations are earnestly solicited, to enable this Society to send out missionaries, and other means, into the Southern States, and elsewhere, as the Lord may open the door, to proclaim "the glad tidings of the kingdom at hand;" and should be sent, as also payments of pledges made, to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, P. O. Drawer 202, Boston, Mass., who will acknowledge the same in the columns of the Crisis.

Previous acknowledgments	$532.69
P. W. Higgins	5.00
A Friend	.50
Mary A. Hardy	1.00
A Friend	3.00

For the World's Crisis.

A FEW WORDS.

I have just returned from Rutland and Castleton, where I have been preaching the last three Sundays and evenings to good congregations, with good attention.

I visited Bro. and Sister Mathewson, and preached two evenings to his people. They are very prettily situated with a loving people, where he has been for the last seven years. They appreciate his pastoral labor among them, and they, with all classes of the citizens of Castleton, are desirous that he may still stay and labor among them; but he has received an earnest call from Rutland to take the oversight of the Advent church there, and also a call from the Advent church in Worcester, Mass., to become their pastor, which he was considering when I left. Duty seems to demand of him, as he has been so long in Castleton, that he might do more good somewhere else. The church in Rutland need some one to look after their interest, and preach the blessed word of life, and are desirous that Bro. Mathewson come among them immediately. And they expect he will come, but the church in Castleton dislike to give him up. Bro. Mathewson is going through a trial of duty relative to the subject. He leaves (if at all) a harmonious and happy people, who are careful for his welfare. I had a pleasant time with them, and sympathize with them in their expected loss.

In Rutland the cause is prospering. Many have received our faith, especially the young people. It would do your soul good to see them confessing their loyalty to unpopular truth, and rejoicing together with joy unspeakable and full of glory.

Rutland is an important place, and the brethren should be interested and secure consistent preaching among them, as there is still a class that could, I doubt not, be reached and saved by it. The doctrine of the Bible and present truth they hearken to with deep interest, and if Bro. Mathewson decides to go there, the first of April will find him at his work in Rutland.

There are many churches in New England suffering for the need of consistent, faithful, constant preaching among them. Some have too much, and too great a variety, to keep love and harmony in the body. I do hope, considering the importance of the cause we represent, and the soon coming of our absent Lord, that Advent preachers and Advent churches may be zealous for the Lord of hosts, and give no countenance to inconsistent or faithless men to preach among them. We have a pure gospel; then let us have men with clean hands and pure hearts, with christian character above reproach, with even moderate ability, and a strong desire and determination to stand up for Jesus and serve him in spirit and truth, and the cause could but prosper under his administration.

The "signs of the times" should be kept before the people, with its relative doctrine, urging it upon them, not dogmatically, but persuasively, in the language of inspiration—"Knowing the terrors of the Lord, we persuade men."

Truth is mighty. The gospel of Christ is the power of God unto salvation to all who believe. Then let us use the sword of the Spirit, and trust the consequences to Him who can give the increase. L. BOUTELL.

Chelsea, Dec. 28th, 1870.

For the World's Crisis.

BATH CONFERENCE.

Our quarterly conference in Bath proved a precious season. Brn. N. G. Reed, H. D. Reed, C. F. Morse, H. F. Mitchell, Jarre Hill, C. Good, and L. C. Wellcome were in attendance during some part of the session. The brethren and sisters were active in the work of the Lord, and the Spirit of love and union pervaded the meetings. The Lord was with us in power. Sinners and backsliders were awakened, and on Sunday evening nine came out for prayers. Some hard cases.

We felt it our duty to remain and have meetings another week. The interest continued to increase, new cases for prayer came up each evening, some twenty in all, and some ten or more have found peace and hope in the Lord. Many others are deeply convicted. It is a calm, deep, and thorough work of God. Members of other churches came in and confessed the Lord was with us and "bid us God speed." One man came out for prayer, and confessed he had been converted among the Baptists, years ago, run well for a season, became interested in Advent views, obtained some of our books to examine. His minister found it out, and warned him against them, advised him to burn the books. He did so, and lost his faith and hope in Christ. Has traveled over a large part of the world since, the last seven years, without light. The Lord led him into this meeting, and awakened his heart to turn to him. There is an example of blind ministers slaughtering the lambs of the flock.

The work is very encouraging in Bath, and I trust will go on. The truth of Jesus' soon coming is making much progress in that city. [illegible] L. C. WELLCOME, Scribe.

Dec. 25th, 1870.

Correspondence.

From Bro. B. Spaulding.

BRO. GRANT:—I can not go abroad, and can read but little at home on account of weak eyes; but I can remember Bible truths, although my memory of every-day things is very poor indeed. And my mind is mostly occupied with the great truths of Jesus' coming and kingdom, and with the writings of the prophets, where we have a kind of panorama of what is yet to be fulfilled. I happened to cast my eyes on a back number of the Crisis, Sept. 7th, 1870, and two articles which I admired; they did me good, for they related to a subject which I feel greatly interested in. They were by L. T. Cunningham and Frank Burr. Now I do not know either of those brethren, or where they live; if I did, I should like to correspond with them, for I see they are on the advance in relation to prophetic events. I would like to ask them, or any other brother or sister, two or three questions:—

Bro. Cunningham says, The work of destruction in reaping and cleansing the earth is by the Son of man, and takes place after his coming. And it will necessarily require some considerable time to accomplish this work of cleansing the sanctuary. I agree with him, and want to ask; What he understands by the sanctuary which is to be cleansed? and whether we have any clue to that considerable time? and whether Rev. 20 does not afford us just that clue?

Then in relation to Frank Burr's answer to certain questions by Bro. Smith, about the battle of the great day of the Lord, I wish to ask, Will not this day of the Lord be a thousand years, and will not this be the space between the resurrection of the righteous and wicked? I think Bro. Burr is correct, and has fairly proved that the nations will be gathered, and come up to make war against Jerusalem, and against Christ and his saints, according to Joel 3: 2, Zech. 14: 2, and Rev. 16: 14-16.

I praise God with all my heart for the writings of the prophets and apostles. If Bro. Cunningham or Burr will write to me (B. Spaulding, Chelmsford, Mass.), I should esteem it a favor, and answer such questions as I proposed, or throw any more light upon the glorious subject of the sanctuary, the day of the Lord, and the reign of Christ on the earth. My whole soul is alive to these glorious subjects. Though may outward man decays and my powers fail, yet my heart doth rejoice in God and Jesus Christ, and I love to look for, pray for, wait for, and expect his soon coming.

"Fly swifter round, ye wheels of time,
And bring the welcome day."

I remember with gratitude the kindness and hospitality of brethren and sisters all over the country. The Lord bless and reward them. B. SPAULDING.

For the World's Crisis.

A REQUEST.

Dear Brethren and Sisters in Jesus:—I have a special request to ask of you, who love Jesus; and will you not at once comply with my request? Our dear sister, Anna E. McEllister (whose name we have often seen in this paper, one who has written such good poetry and other articles for the paper), is now in an Insane Asylum. My heart is moved with love and pity for her, and God only knows (besides myself) the many tears I have shed and the earnest prayers I have offered in her behalf. And now will you not all engage in earnest, united prayer to God for her restoration to health? She has been an invalid for years, and now she is insane. Is there not faith in the church, so that we can in "Humble prayer,

All our wants to Jesus bear,
And by him be blest?"

I feel deeply for Sister Anna, although I have never seen her; yet for the past seven or eight years we have been like own sisters to each other, having known how to pity and sympathize with each other in sickness, and trials, and sorrows of this life. The Doctor gives but little encouragement as to her recovery, but God is able to restore her. Do, dear ones in Jesus, pray earnestly for her. This is a sad world. From the depths of my sad heart I cry, Come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly! L. B. WEAVER.

Extracts from Letters.

BRO. P. S. W. DEYO writes:—"After residing at Strawberry Point over fifteen years, I now write you from my new home in Charles City, Floyd Co., Iowa, a town of three thousand inhabitants, having two railroads, county buildings, and mill power from the beautiful Cedar river, fine chapels, and a large public school building. From here I can go with my team to eight different churches within a day. I have not left the brethren further east in the State for good, but shall visit them as duty may demand. I have not come here to be idle, nor to sow discord and make divisions. I am engaged and called to three churches, and I mean to keep a part of my time for missionary purposes, to work as in former days. I trust that I shall have the co-operation of all the lovers of truth, that the cause of Christ may prosper in all this region of country.

Eld. Sweeny, of Chicago, Ill., has just closed a debate with a Universalist. He used the same scripture we do for destruction; claimed its punishment was endless, but did not know what it was. Perhaps he has learned something in debating with Bro. Grant. Those wishing my labors will please direct as above."

BRO. S. W. THURBER writes from Omro, Wis.:—"I am in northern Wisconsin. Have been preaching in different towns to good acceptance. People after hearing for themselves become satisfied that we hold the truth in righteousness. Among other places, I visited Plover, by the request of some friends from the east. Gave out an appointment for two evenings. Threw two sixteen-inch shells into the enemy's camp, loaded with love for sinners. They took effect. The devil beat a hasty retreat, and left us to enjoy a glorious revival. The work of God went on with power for three weeks. There are two churches in Plover. Our meeting was held in the Presbyterian house for the most part of the time, in the Methodist the rest. The meeting-house soon overflowed with hearers. The effect of the truth was soon seen on all classes. Much good was done in Jesus' name. To God be all the glory. I found one of the best choir of singers to work in a revival, I ever saw. Their voices, sweetened with the grace of God, made melody in our hearts. I am just as happy as ever, and more so, filled with His love, kept by his power."

A. M. S. BENNETT writes from Hinsdale:—"As time rolls on, the signs spoken of by our Savior seem to thicken, all the jots and tittles are being filled up, and while men's hearts are failing them for fear, the sea and waves roaring, speak in thunder tones earth's doom is near; the saints are lifting up their heads, rejoicing because their redemption is near. It is so with some in this place. We have our prayer meetings on the Sabbath, at the school-house, at half-past ten o'clock, also Wednesday evenings. The Lord is with us. Praise his holy name. We have had six added to our number within the year; still our numbers are few; we seldom have preaching. Within the year we have had the labors of Brn. E. Cotton, W. W. Sutherland, and A. Comings, a few days at a time, which have been times of refreshing to the little flock."

BRO. GEO. THOMSON writes:—"We have just held a very interesting meeting at Fisher Valley, Wis., a new place. Some ten or twelve have started in the service of our Master, and we have taken the initiatory steps for organizing a church of believers in that vicinity. Pray for the lambs of the flock. We were greatly assisted by the labors of Eld. Graves, a true yoke-fellow in Christ."

Obituaries.

HOWLAND. Died, in Topsham, Me., Dec. 22d, 1870, Deacon George Howland, aged seventy-five years.

In the death of Bro. Howland, the community have lost one of its best friends, the poor one of their most benevolent sympathizers, the church of Christ on earth one of its most faithful, active, loving, and liberal members, while his family mourn the loss of an affectionate husband and father. Bro. H. has been a christian many years, and was one of the first to embrace the message of Christ's immediate coming, and for nearly thirty years has been one of its most faithful friends and supporters. He was one of those few men who make it a constant and special business to "devise liberal things" for the poor, and for the publishing of the gospel of the kingdom to the world. Many of the ministry, and others of our brethren, have enjoyed the society, hospitality, and liberality of Bro. H. and his godly wife, who were always glad to see any of the Lord's children, and to help them.

May the Lord comfort and strengthen our afflicted sister and the children, and other kindred, and prepare them all for the society of the redeemed, and the coming of our Redeemer. A large number of kindred, neighbors and friends, attended the funeral on the 24th, to whom the writer preached from 1 Cor. 15: 26. May some seed fall into good ground. I. C. WELLCOME.

CONLEY. Killed, Dec. 14th, 1870, Bro. George W. Conley, son of Eld. R. Conley, M. E. minister of Watertown, Floyd Co., Iowa, aged twenty-seven years, four months, and three days.

We tried to comfort the mourners from the text of his choice, Job 19: 25-26, which they much needed in this hour of trial.

PETER S. W. DEYO.

MORTON. Died, in North Adams, Mass., Dec. 2d, Elisha Morton, aged seventy-two years.

He sleeps in Jesus. Funeral discourse by the writer, from Eccl. 9: 5, 6. E. WARREN.

QUIGGLE. Died, in Merrimack, Wis., Dec. 23d, at the residence of her grandfather, H. M. Jones, of congestion of the lungs, Abbie E., twin daughter of D. M. and Emma J. Quiggle, aged one year, six months, and twenty-six days.

HUMPHRIES. At his residence in New York, of apoplexy, Nov. 16th, 1870, Bro. Robert Humphries, in his fifty-ninth year.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

OPENING OF THE BOMBARDMENT OF PARIS.

LONDON, Dec. 27. The bombardment of Paris was opened this morning at sunrise, and was continued throughout the day. From the Saxon side shells of immense dimensions were thrown from the largest siege mortars into Fort Avron. The fort replied promptly, and kept up a steady fire all day. The city has not been touched as yet, but the bombardment is expected to become general before daylight to-morrow morning, when it will be impossible for the city to escape farther.

Dispatches from Versailles announce great activity among the German troops, and it is generally conceded that the bombardment of the city of Paris has finally begun in earnest.

The Guardian contains the statement that King William and the Princess Royal of Prussia wrote to the Queen that they were opposed to the marriage of Princess Louise with Marquis Lorne. The Queen replied with vehemence, advising them to mind their own business. This incident has materially changed the feelings of the Court toward Germany.

VERSAILLES, Dec. 23. A scheme to assassinate the King, Von Moltke and Bismarck was discovered here a few days since. A number of strangers arrived in the city on Wednesday, when the gates were closed and the citizens ordered to remain in their houses on the pain of death. Patrols then searched every place and arrested 200 persons, of whom 70 were armed with guns and pistols.

INTENSE EXCITEMENT IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, Dec. 26. There is intense excitement in this city consequent on the alarming intelligence that the Prussians have virtually committed an act of belligerency that in former days of English pluck would have been sufficient to provoke war. Six English trading vessels have been sunk in the Seine by the Prussians for the avowed purpose of obstructing the navigation of the river. I can convey you no idea of the effect of this news on this city. Men read it on the newspaper bulletins and then turn away with involuntary closed fists and indignation in their eyes that would be very dangerous to the "peace at any price man" if he should chance to come along at that moment. It is expected that this will awaken a feeling throughout the country that marks the turning point in the promotion of English public opinion when men agree to sink their differences and avenge their insulted honor.

The Times has published an extra, a most unusual course, and endeavors to calm the public sentiment by expressing the hope that the report is exaggerated, and expresses a strong conviction that the Prussians would not commit so suicidal an act. The people will not listen to this, and point to the dispatch with indignation, which further states that the British Vice Consul at Rouen has presented to the Prussian commander at Rouen an indignant and formal protest against this act of spoliation committed upon British subjects. This is regarded here as a confirmation of the truth of the dispatch, and the Standard and other conservative papers have bitter war tone articles calling upon the Government either to resign or to declare itself insulted, and take the needful means for the correction of this outrage upon the British flag.

THE PUBLIC SENTIMENT IN FRANCE.

The Count de Chandowidy, minister delegate for foreign affairs, in an interview at Bordeaux on the 22d, said:

"No Ministry or Constituent Assembly or Government could for a moment treat for peace under the conditions now imposed by the Prussian Government. There is scarcely a man in France but laments the war, yet scarcely one willing to allow the Government to give up territory. I have great hopes that the Prussians will soon be driven out of France. The present Government is not fighting for political motives, but for honorable peace. The Government is obliged to restrain rather than excite patriotism. We need arms and artillery, but we have offers of more than we want from England alone." In regard to the position of England, the Count said: "England has not raised herself in the scale of nations by her recent action on continental matters. She is now committing the same mistake that France committed in '66. In order to have her neighbor chastised, she has allowed her to be humiliated beyond endurance, and even allowed her territory to be violated. There are other means besides drawing the sword by which a great power like England can make her influence felt. Those means she neglected to use, and now finds herself insulted by Russia. The delays in the meeting of the proposed Congress only give Russia time to make her preparations surer in the coming spring. Prompt action would have been England's true policy, and with Austria ready to join her in the moral and material support of England would clear France of invaders in a fortnight, and show the rest of Europe that there is a limit which the most powerful armies must not pass. Such an alliance would be approved by the civilized world, for it would prove that it was not an alliance of conquest. France is now struggling for existence. If she is crushed England will feel the loss more than any country. England cannot dream of the consequence if she should allow France to be exterminated. Russia will then do what she pleases in the East and Prussia in the West. England, without a single ally, will cease to belong to the family of European nations, and will be reduced to a third class power."

BORDEAUX, Dec. 29. The presence of Gambetta has given great impetus to military preparations. Troops are rapidly going forward to the armies in the field. Many were sent hence to-day who just arrived from the south of France. Cannon of a new pattern and small arms, as well as ammunition, have largely been sent to the front.

VERSAILLES, Dec. 29. The Prussian 12th Corps has occupied Mont Avron, after one day's bombardment. The French in their retreat left behind their dead, and many gun carriages and rifles.

LONDON, Dec. 29. The Germans in the Eastern Department are retreating. They have already evacuated Gray in the valley of Saone.

A proclamation has been issued by the Prussian Government placing under blockade all the ports of France now occupied or hereafter captured by the German forces.

The harbor of Kiel is closed by ice.

The Paris press is opposed to the participation of the French in the Congress of the Powers on the Eastern question.

Earl Granville has received a dispatch from the Prussian Government at Berlin, apologizing for the outrage on the English vessels in the Seine, and stating that pecuniary indemnity will be given if demanded, and announcing that the military commander who was guilty of the outrage had been court-martialed and dismissed from the service.

Dec. 30. A correspondent writing from Wilhelmshohe, under date of Dec. 12th, says that the Emperor enjoys health, and daily takes an airing on foot or horseback. He speaks freely on the chances of his restoration. "It would be quite well," he said, "if it were publicly understood that I never intend to remount the throne on the strength of military pronunciamento, by the aid of the soldiery just as little as by that of Prussia. I am the sole sovereign who governs next by the grace of God, by the will of the people, and I shall never be unfaithful to the origin of either. The whole people which has four times approved of my election must recall me by its deliberate votes, else I shall never return to France. The army possesses no more right to place me on the throne than have the lawyers or loafers to push me from it. The French people whose sovereign I am has the sole decision."

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 29. The declaration of the independence of the Danubian Principalities has been announced here, and causes a profound sensation.

LONDON, Dec. 31. The intensely cold weather causes fearful mortality among the German wounded. Nearly all the occupants of fifty-six carriages filled with soldiers wounded at the assault upon Belfort on the 21st of December, were frozen to death before the train reached Chatenois.

BORDEAUX, Jan. 1. A balloon has arrived in this city, bearing dispatches from Paris. The populace are quiet and hopeful, however, notwithstanding the fact that after the exhaustion of the present supply of provisions their next food may be the meat of the dogs, cats and perhaps rats that infest the hovels of the city. The patriotism of the people is irrepressible, and their determination to hold out while life lasts, is more evident now than ever.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 2. A renewal of the differences existing between the Khedive and the Sublime Porte, concerning the subject of an armament, has just taken place.

BERLIN, Jan. 2. The court at Berlin believes that Paris will soon capitulate. Significant interchanges of courtesies are continual between Berlin and Wilhelmshohe. The Emperor is confident of his restoration. The spirits of the Empress are depressed. She spends most of her time in weeping and praying for the return of peace.

LONDON, Jan. 2. Mezieres has been occupied by the Germans.

The French have evacuated their fortified position on the northeast of Paris, and the forts around the city remain silent.

DOMESTIC.

THE SECOND ADVENT AT HAND.—A discourse of a somewhat unusual character was delivered at St. Paul's church on Sunday evening last, in which it was attempted to show that the last Advent is not very far in the distance, and might come any day or any hour, though the day and hour, it was said, no man would know. But it was affirmed that the true church of Christ would not be in darkness, that the day should overtake them as a thief. The faithful had always been forewarned of the approaching judgments of God, as in the days of Noah and Lot, and so it would be at the end of the present dispensation.

According to the best interpreters every consecutive prophecy terminated at just about the present time. In illustration of this, special reference was made to the four monarchies of Daniel, the fifth being the Divine kingdom established only upon the demolition of the others.

The question dividing christian students was as to the nature of the events characterising the new dispensation. Some suppose the world must be converted, but this it was affirmed was not taught in the Scriptures, and was never taught in the church for fifteen hundred years. Reference was also made to the condition of the papacy, and also to the political agitations and tendencies of the times, to the lax faith of the Church, and also to the physical phenomena witnessed in earthquakes, electric storms, &c., which it was affirmed were rapidly multiplying and were, according to the Bible, prophetic omens of the near approach of the dispensation of judgment. It was said the Archbishop of Canterbury and many thousands of clergy were heeding these views. There was present a large congregation, which listened with an attention equal to the unusual character of the discourse to the end.—Des Moines Iowa Register, of Dec. 20th.

THE MOUNT CENIS TUNNEL.—Two great engineering achievements completed were the memorials of the year 1869, viz., the Pacific Railroad and the Suez Canal; the year 1870 has a similar honor in the completion of the Mount Cenis Tunnel—a work of unexampled magnitude as a tunnel through the solid ground. It is in length seven miles and 3773 feet, or three miles longer than the Hoosac Tunnel. It was begun in [illegible], and the progress at first was very slow. In the year 1860 only 1144 feet were bored, in 1865 the distance accomplished was 4079 feet, in 1867 it was 5035 feet, while in 1869 the advancement was no less than 1820 metres, which is somewhat above the same number of English yards. At this time it was estimated that the work would be finished in April, 1871, and the railway through the tunnel would be opened in about six months more. The rate of operation, therefore, has been constantly and unexpectedly on the increase. This is an encouraging fact for our Hoosac Tunnel borers. At the close of the year 1867 the outlay upon the Mount Cenis Tunnel had been about $8,000,000; and it was calculated that the total cost would reach the sum of $12,000,000, or something [illegible] than $1,500,000 a mile. It was intended to hold a Universal Exposition at Turin in 1872, in honor of the completion of this gigantic enterprise. The Franco-Prussian war has for the time suspended the project, although it will probably be revived.—Boston Journal.

ENGLAND AND THE PAPACY.—Mr. Gladstone's note, announcing that the government has taken care to make the provision necessary for the protection of the person of the Pope, and adequate to support his dignity, personal freedom, and the independence of his spiritual functions, excites surprise and criticism. The government, by such a declaration, made at this moment, intends the double purpose of influencing the great Catholic meeting at St. James' Hall, on Friday, and conciliating the feeling in Ireland, where rumors of impending difficulty with America already cause alarm.

THE BIG TREE.—A section of one of the famous big trees of California is now on exhibition in the library-room adjoining Lower Farwell Hall. It is seventy-six feet in circumference, and was taken from a tree measuring 275 feet in height and seventy-eight feet in circumference. The tree is estimated to be over 1,500 years old, and is a genuine specimen of the "Sequoia Gigantea," from the forest of big trees in Mariposa County. The exhibition is well worth a visit.—Chicago paper.

In Brief.

—The Prussians have lost heavily in battles and from sickness in the north and northeast of France. The villages are encumbered with German wounded. Great numbers of German soldiers are suffering from opthalmia. There are 16,000 sick and wounded Germans at Chalons sur Marne.—The French balloons, with a fair wind, go about as fast as the express trains on American railroads.—The French have resolved to defend Cambria at all hazards. There is a force of two thousand Prussians at St. Quentin, twenty-five miles south of Cambria.—The expedition sent to Oran to observe the eclipse was a failure.—The French Vice Consul in the Island of Jersey has ordered all the French refugees to report at the army headquarters for service in France immediately. All who fail to comply with the order are to be considered deserters.—It is officially stated that Paris has provisions to last until the end of March.—Once more the [illegible] comes from every quarter that water is scarcer than ever. Wells are drying up everywhere, factories are stopping for want of power, streams are shrunk to the very lowest water mark, and a general apprehension prevails that the worst is not yet. Should the winter continue severe without rain, the dearth of water will [illegible]

Notices.

☞ Notice.

Our place of worship will be changed, on and after Jan. 1st, 1871, from Library Hall, Chelsea, to Granite Block Hall, corner of Broadway and Fourth streets, up two flights of stairs. Entrance on Fourth street. By order of Committee,
E. G. KIMGSBURY, Chairman.

Mass. State Conference.

The time has almost arrived for the next quarterly session of the Mass. State conference. What church desires to have us meet with them? Let us awake! Let it be known soon. We would do all we can for Jesus. Any church wishing the conference to meet with them, will do us a great pleasure and the cause good by writing to the President or Secretary at once.
GEO. A. STREETER, Sec. of Conf.
North Dana, Mass.

Notice.

If any of the churches in Mass. desire the quarterly conference to hold a session among them in the month of January, let us know it soon, and preparation will be made, and the meeting notified.
L. BOUTELL.

R. I. and East. Conn.

The R. I. and East Ct. Conference will hold its thirteenth annual session with the church at Rocky Brook, R. I., commencing Wednesday, Jan. 4th, at two o'clock P. M. Our preaching brethren are reminded that a resolution was passed at our last session requiring them to report at each annual meeting, either in person, or by letter. It is hoped that all will make a special effort to attend. All our churches are requested to send delegates. Where delegates are not chosen, it becomes the duty of the church clerk to send in a written report. Letters should be mailed the first of the week. Come at the commencement, and remain until the close. C. H. SWEET, Clerk.

Dedication.

The Lord willing, the meeting-house at Newcastle, N. H., will be dedicated to the Lord, Jan. 18th, 1871, services commencing at ten o'clock A. M. Dedication sermon at 2 o'clock P. M.

Also the meeting-house at South Berwick, Me. (Great Works), Jan. 22nd, 1871.

The Lord has been very good in blessing the New Hampshire Tent Mission, and as it has beat its way into those places with the living word, hearts have been made to yield to the economy of grace. These houses are the result. We give a cordial invitation to all the Lord's children to attend. Let prayer go up to God in behalf of these meetings. For the brethren,
D. M. LEAVITT.
G. W. BROWN.
J. C. SHOREY.

Notice.

Preaching brethren wishing to visit the church in Worcester, will please consult one of the following committee, appointed for the year 1871, before sending their appointments:
WM. F. COLLIER.
H. W. BUXTON.
E. G. HIGGINS.

Notice.

A protracted meeting will be held at East Rochester, N. H., commencing Sunday, Jan. 29th, and hold through the week, and over the following Sabbath. Elds. D. M. Leavitt, G. W. Brown, T W Piper, and others, will preach the word. We desire that the brethren who labor with the Lord will be present to add strength to the work.
For the church, J. C. SHOREY.
JAS. QUIMBY.

Notice.

Preachers visiting Lawrence, Mass., to preach, will please stop with Bro. F. FLANDERS, 44 Morton street. By order of the church.

Notice.

There will be a meeting of days in the Dodge school-house, Perkins' Plantation, commencing Friday evening, Jan. 6th, and continue as long as thought best. Brethren and sisters are invited to come and labor for the salvation of sinners. Will our preaching brethren come? Call on Brn. Howland, Searles, Sr. Parlen, and others.
For the Brn., H. B. SEVEY.

Minnesota Conference.

The ninth annual conference of the Advent Christian Church of Minnesota will convene at Winona, Friday morning, January 20th, 1871, at nine o'clock.

Special attention is called to the following, to facilitate the business sessions:

1. The officers of the different quarterly conferences will prepare written reports of business transacted in their respective districts the past year, together with an account of money raised by quarterly and church collections as provided in the constitution.

2. As it is desirable to make up the statistics of the conference at this session, each church is requested to report its present membership and the number added the past year.

3. Each church is entitled to one delegate for every eight members; and as business of special importance will be transacted, every church ought to be represented.

4. In case any of the preaching brethren are not able to be present, they are especially requested to report by letter.

There will be service on Thursday evening previous. Eld. P. Ramer and Bro. A. A. Gilbert will meet friends at the depot, and those coming with teams will call at their houses.
EDWIN T. HIMES, Sec'y.

P. S. Since writing the above, Bro. Ramer informs me that the Advent Christian Church at Winona is so far completed, that it will be ready for the use of the conference. It is built on Broadway, near the corner of Winona Street. He also says he will effect an arrangement with the Winona and St. Peter R. R., so that brethren can come over that road at reduced rates. We can not state positively that the arrangement is now made; but before purchasing tickets on that road, let the friends inquire for excursion tickets to conference at Winona. E. T. H.

Notice.

A protracted meeting will be held at London Ridge, N. H., commencing Thursday, Jan. 12th, and continue over the Sabbath following. Eld. D. M. Leavitt, and others, are expected to be present. All are invited.
For the church, DANIEL L. MOORE.

Notice.

By the grace of God, there will be a protracted meeting held at Lisbon, N. H., commencing Jan. 10th, at 7 P. M., to continue over the following Sabbath. We desire that brethren who labor with the Lord, will be present to add strength to the work. A. DAMON.

Notice.

The next quarterly session of the Conn. A. C. Conference will be held in Yalesville, Conn., commencing Wednesday evening, Jan. 4th, 1871. We hope every church in the State will be represented by their delegates at this conference.
H. H. DICKINSON, President.
B. HITCHCOCK, Secretary.

Notice.

I wish to say to friends in western New York, that I shall not return home till late in the month of January. Letters will reach me if sent to Danbury, Ct., care of V. R. Fenn, till Jan. 7th, and afterward at the different places of appointment in connection with my name. E. S. JENNINGS.

Notice.

I will hold a meeting in West Ossipee, N. H., evenings, Jan. 20th, 27th, and 28th, and Sunday, Jan. 29th. We extend a cordial invitation to the working brethren to meet with us to help in the good work of saving dying souls.
E. S. MOULTON.

Notice.

At the Ohio State Conference, Bro. C. D. Jefferson proposed to furnish a Mission Tent for the State, provided the conference furnish two preachers to go with the tent. The following brethren were appointed to solicit pledges for the above purpose, and report to the president of the conference, on or before the first of Jan., the amount pledged; and if sufficient is pledged, Bro. Jefferson will proceed to furnish the tent, and we shall endeavor to put two good and faithful laborers in the field to labor for the cause of truth: A. B. Benedict, Nevada, O.; J. M. Treadwell, Fairfield; Martin Agner, Rockbridge; S. P. Rodgers, Norwalk; A. Mackey, Seal; Martin Bacon, Bucyrus; P. T. Light, Plymouth; Dr. H. Kester, New London; Bro. Beadly, White House, Lucas Co.; Thos. Boardman, Shiloh; Henry Bast, Stryker; Wm. Seddall, Pioneer; Geo. English, Montpelier; N. R. Chandle, Delta; Geo. H. Terwilliger, Antwerp. Dear brethren, now is the time for action. Will you take hold of this matter at once, and report your success, so that we may know what to do? and the Lord will bless you.
E. McCULLOCH, President of Conf.

P. S. Churches desiring the first quarterly conference held with them, will please notify us [illegible]

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.
T. M. Preble......Sabbath, Jan. 8th
Hiram Munger......Sunday, Jan. 15th

BOSTON, (Branch Chapel), 1735 Washington Street, corner of Madison Street.
Meetings at 10½ A. M., and 3 and 7½ P. M.
JOHN G. HOOK, Sunday, Jan. 8th, and onward every evening except Saturday evening.

CHELSEA, MASS.
Granite Block, Hall No. 11, corner of Broadway and Fourth Streets. Entrance on Fourth Street. (Up two flight of stairs.)
J. Couch......Sunday, Jan. 8th
M. Batchelor......Sunday, Jan. 15th
S. S. Brewer......Sunday, Jan. 22d
H. Munger......Sunday, Jan. 29th

CHARLESTOWN.
Preaching at Charlestown, (Bowling Star Hall, No. 22 Main Street), every Lord's day.
A. Simpson......Sunday, Jan 8th
T. M. Preble......Sabbath, Jan. 15th
John Couch......Sunday, Jan. 22d
J. S. White......Sunday, Jan. 29th

Meetings in South Boston on Wednesday evenings, No. 2 Lowland Street.
Friday evenings, No. 227 E. St. Bay-View horse cars pass by. Come and welcome. C. W. HUNTRESS.
J. N. BERRY.

Rye, N. H......Sunday, Jan. 8th
Natick, Mass......Sunday, Jan. 22d
C. GOODRICH.

Chicopee, Mass......Jan. 12th
Springfield, Mass......Jan. 13th
New Britain, Ct......Sunday, Jan. 15th
Southington, Ct......Jan. 17th
New Haven, Ct......Jan. 18th
New York City (Cooper Institute)......Sun., Jan. 22d
Holden, Mass......February 5th
Wakefield, Mass......February 19th
J. S. WHITE.

Lawrence, Mass......Sunday, Jan. 8th
Portsmouth, N. H......Friday evening, Jan. 20th and over Sunday, the 22d. M. BATCHELOR.

New Bedford, Mass......Sundays, Jan. 8th, 15th, 22d, and 29th. GEO. A. BROWN.

Natick, Mass......Sunday, Jan. 8th
L. T. CUNNINGHAM.
Brn. wishing to hear on the evidences of the Lord's coming, write me. At liberty after the above date.

Hampton, N. H......Sunday, Jan. 8th
Melvin Village, N. H......Sunday, Jan. 15th
Rye, N. H......Sundays, Jan. 22d and 29th
Bro. Willey will probably be with me.
J. H. F. VARNEY.

Portland, Me. (Union Hall)......Sunday, Jan. 8th
L. BOUTELL.

Meredith Neck, N. H......Sabbath, Jan. 8th
Meredith Centre, N. H......Sabbath, Jan. 15th
NOAH GLIDDEN.

Guilford, N. H. (White Oaks)......evening, Jan. 7th and Sunday, Jan. 8th.
Manchester, N. H......Sundays, Jan. 15th and 22d
East Acworth, N. H......Sunday, Jan. 29th
C. H. FLETCHER.

Melvin Village, N. H......Sunday, Jan. 8th
WM. BODGE.

Savoy, Mass. (New State) Jan. 8th, and every other Sunday until further notice. MRS. E. WARREN.

Portsmouth, N. H......Sunday, Jan. 8th
Huntington, Mass......Sunday, Jan. 15th
Southington, Ct......Sunday, Jan. 22d
Lynn, Mass......Sunday, Jan. 29th
E. OWEN.

Providence, R. I......Sunday, Jan. 8th
Webster, Mass......Sunday, Jan. 15th
Seabrook, N. H......Sunday, Jan. 22d
MRS. L. M. STODDARD.

North Dorchester, N. H. (Union school-house) evening, Jan 7th, and over Sunday.
North Haverhill, N. H......Friday evening, Jan. 13th
Campton, N. H. (Bump school-house)......eve., Jan. 21st
Holderness, N. H. (True school-house) Sun., Jan. 22d
DANIEL D. PAGE.

West Groton, Vt. (Ricker school-house) evening, Jan. 14th, and over Sunday. GEO. E. BROWN.
DANIEL D. PAGE.

Bridgewater, Vt......Sunday, Jan. 8th
Claremont, N. H., Saturday evening, Jan. 14th, and over Sunday. Let friends all around rally for one good meeting.
Windsor, Vt......evenings, Jan. 18th and 19th
West Fairlee, Vt......Sunday, Jan. 22d
Rutland, Vt......Sunday, Jan. 29th
H. F. CARPENTER.

Goffstown Village, N. H......Sunday, Jan. 8th
Holderness, N. H. (Brick school-house) Sun., Jan. 15th
Lisbon, N. H., Tuesday evening, Jan. 17th, every evening through the week, and Sunday, Jan. 22d.
North Haverhill, N. H. (Brick Church) eve., Jan. 23d
Warren Village......evening, Jan. 24th
Meredith Village......evening, Jan. 25th
Alton (Stockbridge Corner)......evening, Jan. 26th
Seabrook, N. H......Sunday, Jan. 29th
Deerfield, Old Centre......evening, Feb. 2d
North Sutton (at Bro. Israel Andrews' house) Sunday, Feb. 5th.
Sutton Mills......Tuesday evening, Feb. 7th
Rye, N. H......Sunday, Feb. 12th
North Barrington, N. H. (Felker school-house) Sunday, Feb. 19th. J. PINKHAM.

North Lisbon, N. H......evening, Jan. 5th
East Lyman, N. H. (Pond school-house) eve., Jan. 8th
Swift Water, N. H......Sunday, Jan. 15th
A. A. HOYT.

Keene, N. H......evening, Jan. 12th
North Springfield, Vt......Sunday, Jan. 15th
Dinsmore Hill......evenings, Jan. 17th, 18th and 19th
Bridgewater, Vt......Sundays, Jan. 22d and 29th
GEO. A. COLE.

Lewiston, Me......Sundays, Jan. 22d and 29th
AUSTIN W. TAYLOR.

Woodstock Valley, Ct......Sunday, Jan. 8th
A. MORSE.

Waterbury, Ct......Sunday, Jan. 8th
A. ELLIOTT.

Montgomery, Mass......Sunday, Jan. 15th
GEO. A. STREETER.

Low Hampton, N. Y., 6½ P. M......Jan. 5th, 6th, and 7th and over the Sabbath.
Hoosick, N. Y......Sabbath, Jan. 22d
C. PIKE.

Lowell, Mass......Jan. 11th
East Boston, Mass......evening, Jan. 13th
Lawrence, Mass. (Chapel)......Sunday, Jan. 15th
Nashua, N. H......evening, Jan. 17th
East Canaan......Jan. 19th
North Haverhill (Union House)......Sunday, Jan. 22d
North Benton......Jan. 24th
Dalton, N. H. (John's River school-house) Jan. 26th
Colebrook, N. H. (Kidderville)......Sunday, Jan. 29th
Caswell Borough, P. Q......Sunday, Feb. 5th
U. G. LADD.

Great Falls, N. H......Sunday, Jan. 29th
JOSEPH W. WHITE.

Rutland, Vt......Sunday, Jan. 8th
Poultney, Vt......Sunday, Jan. 15th
Fort Edward, N. Y......Sunday, Jan. 22d
MRS. E. S. JENNINGS.

Webster, Mass......Sabbath, Jan. 8th
Wakefield, Mass......Sabbath, Jan. 22d
H. MUNGER.

Manchester, N. H......Sunday, Jan. 8th
GEO. W. BROWN.

Bradford, N. H. (Bush meeting-house) Sabbaths, Jan. 8th and 15th.
Fisherville, N. H. (Sander's Hall) Sabbath, Jan. 22d
SIMEON HOYT.

Moultonborough Corner, N. H......Sabbath, Jan. 8th
North Haverhill, N. H......Sabbath, Jan. 15th
Lisbon Village, N. H......evenings, Jan. 18th to 21st and over the Sabbath. T. W. PIPER.

Nottingham, N. H. (at the Hall)......Sabbath, Jan. 8th
East Rochester, N. H......Sabbath, Jan. 15th
Great Falls, N. H......Sabbath, Jan. 22d
S. S. MOONEY.

Dover, N. H......Sunday, Jan. 8th
East Rochester......Sunday, Jan. 15th
If any of the above conflict, write me at Great Falls, N. H. J. BICKFORD.

Hampton, N. H......evening, Jan. 5th
Alton Corner, N. H......evening, Jan. 9th
Sandwich, N. H. (Vittum school-house) Sunday, Jan. 15th. (Lord's Supper.)
Melvin Village, N. H......Sunday, Feb. 5th
Manchester, N. H......evening, Feb. 15th
Goffstown, N. H......Sundays, Feb. 12th and 19th
E. S. MOULTON.

Wilbraham, Mass......Sabbaths, Jan. 8th and 15th
Woodstock Valley, Ct......Sabbath, Jan. 22d
Webster, Mass......Sabbath, Jan. 29th
P. S. BUTLER.

North Abington, Mass......Sabbath, Jan. 8th
Plymouth, Mass......evening, Jan. 10th
Lawrence, Mass......evening, Jan. 12th
Exeter, N. H......evening, Jan. 13th
Seabrook, N. H......Sabbath, Jan. 15th
Rye, N. H......evening, Jan. 17th
Dover, N. H......evening, Jan. 18th
Biddeford, Me......Sabbath, Jan. 22d
Lewiston, Me......Sabbath, Jan. 29th
Bath, Me......Sabbaths, Feb. 12th and 19th
C. H. SWEET.

New Britain, Ct......Sunday, Jan. 8th
North [illegible], Ct......Sunday, Jan. 15th
G. L. WHITE.

Seabrook, N. H......Sunday, Jan. 8th
Farmington, N. H......Sunday, Jan. 15th
J. C. SMITH.

East Acworth, N. H......Sabbath, Jan. 8th
Northville, Newport, N. H......Sabbath, Jan. 15th
[illegible]

Epsom, N. H. (Marden's Corner)......Sunday, Jan. 8th
C. R. PARSONS.

Rye, N. H......Sabbath, Jan. 15th
S. JULIA BOSWELL.

Middlesex, Vt......evenings, Jan. 11th and 12th
Stowe, Vt., evenings, Jan. 13th and 14th, Sunday, Jan. 15th, evenings through the week, and Sunday Jan. 22d.
Plymouth, Vt......Sunday, Jan. 29th
Z. T. WOOD.

Springfield, Mass......Sundays, Jan. 8th and 15th
West Meriden, Conn......Sunday, Jan. 22nd
Springfield, Mass......Sundays, Jan. 29th and Feb. 5th
WM. N. PILE.

North Benton......Sunday, Jan. 8th and onward as may be duty. WM. H. SHAW.

Pownal, Vt. (Union Church)......Sunday, Jan. 8th
ELLEN E. TOWSLEE.

Wellsville, Ct......Sunday, Jan. 8th
Roxbury, Ct......Sunday, Jan. 15th
Pawling, N. Y......Sunday, Jan. 22d
Lakeville, Ct......Sunday, Jan. 29th
H. K. WALLING.

Goffstown, N. H......Sunday, Jan. 15th
Biddeford, Me......Sabbath, Jan. 22d and 29th
D. F. LEAVITT.

Philadelphia, Pa......Sunday, Jan. 8th
Camden, N. J., three o'clock P. M......Sunday, Jan. 8th
F. H. BURBANK.

Rochester Plains, N. H......Sunday, Jan. 8th
EDWIN B. WELLS.

Hartford, Ct. (Bliss Hall)......Sabbath, Jan. 8th
Warehouse Point......Tuesday evening, Jan. 10th
Warehousepoint, Ct......Sabbath, Jan. 15th
Danielsonville, Ct......Sabbath, Jan. 22d
J. T. DIXON.

Guilford, Ct......Sunday, Jan. 8th
Madison (Norton Town school-house) eve., Jan. 9th
At Bro. Marvin Foster's......evening, Jan. 10th
Guilford, Ct......evening, Jan. 11th
S. WOODRUFF.

Whitefield, N. H......evening, Jan. 4th
North Haverhill, N. H......evening, Jan. 5th
Warren Summit, N. H......evening, Jan. 6th
East Canaan, N. H......Sunday, Jan. 8th
Meredith, N. H. (Dolloff Hall)......evenings, Jan. 12th and 13th.
Lake Village, N. H......Sunday, Jan. 15th
Pittsfield, N. H......evenings, Jan. 16th and 17th
Northwood Narrows, N. H......evenings, Jan. 18th, 19th and 20th, and over Sunday, the 22d.
Rye, N. H......Sunday, Feb. 5th
Seabrook, N. H......Sunday, Feb. 12th
WM. C. STEWART.

Fort Edward, N. Y., Jan. 9th, through the week, evenings, and over the 15th.
Wallace Station, Steuben Co., 2 P. M., Jan. 21st, and over Sunday, the 22nd, or at Avaca (if so arranged) Sunday evening.
Ward, Tioga Co., Pa. (as Bro. Wm. Fletcher may arrange), evening, Jan. 24th, and over the following Sunday. C. F. SWEET.

Wrightville, Ct......Sunday, Jan. 8th
WM. J. RIPLEY.

Providence, R. I......Sabbath, Jan. 22d
T. M. PREBLE.

New Milford, Ct......Sunday, Jan. 15th
WM. J. RIPLEY.

Dayton......Sunday, Jan. 8th
J. L. CHUTE.

Gardiner, Me. (Booker school-house)......Sun., Jan. 8th
Bowdoinham (Lancaster school-house) Sun., Jan. 15th
L. D. TOTMAN.

Belgrade Depot, Me......Sunday, Jan. 8th
Windsor, Me., (Prebble school-house) Sun., Jan. 15th
Jefferson (where Bro. Somes may appoint)......Jan. 22d
Augusta (Ballad school-house)......Sunday, Jan. 29th
THOMAS HINES.

Piermont, N. H. (Clay meeting-house) Sab., Jan. 8th
West Plymouth, N. H. (Brick school-house near Bro. Nelson's) Sabbath, Jan. 15th. A. H. CLARK.

Waterbury, Ct......Sunday, Jan. 15th and onward for two weeks. H. K. FLAGG.

Lake Village, N. H......Sunday, Jan. 8th
ALLEN DAMON.

There will be a meeting at Warren, Mass., every Sunday hereafter until further notice.
RUFUS BAKER.

North Easton, Mass. (Ripley Hall)......every Sunday
GEO. WATON.

WORCESTER, MASS.
S. S. Brewer......Sunday, March 5th
J. Couch......Sunday, March 12th

LOWELL, MASS.
W. H. Mitchell......Sundays, Jan. 8th, 15th, 22d, 29th

FITCHBURG, MASS.
S. S. Brewer......Sundays, Jan. 15th and 29th

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.
Mrs. L. M. Stoddard..Sundays, Jan. 29th and Feb. 5th

WESTFIELD, MASS.
James Hemenway......Sunday, Jan. 8th

CONCORD, N. H. (Centre Street.)
D. M. Leavitt......Sabbath, Jan. 8th
L. Boutell......Sunday, Jan. 15th
A. Damon......Sabbath, Jan. 22d
C. H. Fletcher......Sabbath, Feb. 5th

CONCORD, N. H., (at the Bethel.)
U. G. Ladd......Sunday, Jan. 8th
A. Simpson......Sunday, Jan. 15th
C. S. Shattuck......Sundays, Jan. 22d and 29th
E. Owen......Sunday, Feb. 5th
E. S. Moulton......Sunday, Feb. 12th

EXETER, N. H.
E. S. Moulton......Sunday, Jan. 8th

COLLINSVILLE, CT.
S. Woodruff......Sabbath, Jan. 15th
H. K. Flagg......Sabbath, Jan. 29th

PLEASANT VALLEY, CT.
Z. Ford......Sunday, Jan. 8th

WINSTED, CT.
H. H. Dickinson......Sunday, Jan. 15th

SOUTH ELLIOT, ME.
M. Harmon......Sunday, Jan. 8th
B. S. Emery......Sunday, Jan. 15th
Wm. C. Stewart......Sunday, Jan. 29th

PORTER VILLAGE, ME.
T. P. S. Hampson......Sunday, Jan. 31st

PORTLAND, ME.
A. Ross......Sundays, Jan. 1st and 8th
John Couch......Sunday, Jan. 15th
Joseph W. White......Sunday, Jan. 22d
Charles Goodrich......Sunday, Jan. 29th

MEETINGS IN PORTLAND, ME. (Union Hall.)
Having vacated Cushman Hall, on Congress Street, meetings hereafter will be held in Union Hall. Entrance on Free Street, nearly opposite the Baptist church. Seats free.
S. K. DYER.
D. F. SCAMMAN.
R. R. YORK.

STAR OF HOPE MISSION, 14 LAURENS STREET, NEW YORK CITY.
Sunday morning, prayer and conference, six o'clock; Sunday School, two o'clock P. M. Love feast, four o'clock P. M. Preaching, seven o'clock P. M.
Monday, (class meeting), seven o'clock P. M.
Wednesday, (preaching), seven o'clock P. M.
Friday, (prayer and conference), seven o'clock P. M.
Come one, come all. A. E. SMITH, Principal.

BOOKS AND TRACTS

FOR SALE AT THE OFFICE OF THE
Advent Christian Publication Society,
No. 167 Hanover Street, Boston.

THE REVISED NEW TESTAMENT. The Common English Version as revised and corrected by the American Bible Union. Prices, by mail, post paid—Family and Pulpit Edition (two. Pica), Plain Cloth, $2.25; Extra Cloth, $2.75. Medium size (16mo Brevier), Plain Cloth, 65c; Extra Cloth, $1.10 Sheep, $1.35; Roan, Colored Edges, $1.60. Miniature Edition, for Children and Sunday schools,—cloth, 25c.; roan, 50c.; gilt, 75c.

THE BIBLE TEXT-BOOK; or the Principal Texts relating to the Persons, Places, and Subjects occurring in the Holy Scriptures. Arranged for the use of Ministers, Teachers, and Students of the Bible. With two Maps, and a variety of useful Tables Price, by mail, 40 cents. Postage 8 cts.

UNIVERSALISM EXPOSED from the Inner Temple, and shown to be, in its results, no better than Infidelity. By John T. Walsh. 5c. single by mail 50c. per dozen.

"THE NEXT DISPENSATION Viewed in the Light of Revelation." By Wm. Sheldon. By mail, 15c single copy; $1.00 per dozen.

THE EMPHATIC DIAGLOTT; containing the original Greek Text of the New Testament according to the Recension of Griesbach, with an Interlineary Word-for-word Translation, etc., etc. Cloth, $4.00 by mail, $4.16. Leather back, $5.00; by mail, $5.16

THE EXISTENCE OF HOLY ANGELS; their Origin, Nature, Rank and Titles, their Ministry and Various Offices in the work of Human Redemption and in the Administration of the Government of God. By Wm. Shepherd. 20c.

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED, and shown to be the work of Demons: An Examination of its Origin, Morals, Doctrines, and Politics. By Miles Grant. Single copy, 15c.; eight copies for $1.00; $10.00 per hundred.

SOME THRUSTS AND HOME THOUGHTS. The Golden Rule in High Life and Low Life. By B. F. Newton. $1.00; by mail, $1.12.

LOUIS NAPOLEON, the Destined Monarch of the World, and Personal Antichrist. By M. Baxter $1.00; by mail, $1.12.

FABLES OF INFIDELITY AND FACTS OF FAITH; the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. In cloth, $1.00 postpaid.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT; a Reply to a work entitled "144 Self-Contradictions of the Bible." By Mrs. H. V. Reed. 60c.

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

☞ We cannot [illegible] or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in PLAIN LETTERS.

☞ "THE BROKEN SEAL" cannot be had in paper. We can furnish in cloth, as usual, at $1.40.

☞ G. E. MERRILL—Munger's Life is out of print.

☞ L. C. McKINSTRY'S P. O. address, for the present, is Addison, Vt.

Letters Received.

C Mendenhall, E B Wells, J. B., S A Ingham, E Quiggle, P N W Deyo, S K Gibson, I C Wellcome, S Hall, E T Himes, G Thomson, L B Weaver, D Coggswell, E Warren, J Hinkle, R N Scott, H Curtis, I K Lombard, H F Wade, M D Avery, D F Newton, L Boutell, E P Sergison, G A Streeter, A N Seymour, M F Chilson, G E Merrill, A F Dugger.

SHELDON'S FOUR NEW TRACTS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

1. LIFE AND DEATH THEOLOGY: or, The Scriptural Doctrine of Eternal Damnation and Everlasting Punishment. Price 8 cts. single, postage 2 cts.; 75 cts. per dozen, postpaid; $5.00 per hundred by express.

This work of forty-eight pages is the clearest and strongest document yet produced by Bro. Sheldon on this topic. It is just the thing to scatter among all classes.

2. IMMATERIALISM: or, The Doctrine of Soul-Immortality Refuted. Price 5 cts. single, postage 2 cts.; 40 cts. per dozen, postpaid; $3.00 per hundred by express.

A tract of thirty-two pages, showing that fifteen cardinal errors spring out of the doctrine of the soul's immortality, and that those errors could not exist independent of that doctrine, thus showing it to be the main root of error. Let it be scattered widely.

3. DEATH AND THE DEAD, 16 pages. Price 3 cts. single, postage 2 cts.; 20 cts. per dozen, postpaid; $1.50 per hundred by express.

Just the thing to scatter everywhere.

4. THE COMING JUDGMENT: Its Necessity and Result. Eight pages. 10 cts. per dozen, postpaid, or 75 cts. per hundred by express.

It will do much good.

THE DOCTRINE OF IMMORTALITY.

ON SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

By Elder James H. Whitmore. Published by the Western Advent Christian Association.

This little volume of three hundred pages is a valuable contribution to the literature of the subject on which it treats, and is worthy of a wide circulation, not only among those who hold to the views advocated therein, but among others who have not given them due thought and investigation.

Price, single copy, postpaid, $1.00. Six copies, by mail, $5.00; by express, $4.20.

NEW TRACTS BY S. S. BREWER.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE SEVEN MESSAGES OF THE APOCALYPSE. Sent by mail for 13 cents. Postage 2 cents. $1.20 per dozen by express.

EVANGELS OF THE COMING ONE. Price by mail, 10 cts. single copy; per dozen, 70 cts.; per hundred by express, $5.00.

THE MYSTERY OF INIQUITY. This is a work on the man of sin, as viewed in the light of historic testimony. Price by mail, single copy, 5 cts.; postage 2 cts.; 50 cts. per dozen; $3.00 per hundred.

THE JUBILEE HARP.

We are now ready to supply friends with the new Hymn and Tune Book, at the following prices:—

Plain cloth, leather backs, colored edges, $1.00 per copy; $9.00 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges, $1.15 per copy; $10.50 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges and covers, $1.25 per copy; $12.00 per dozen.

☞ Postage 16 cts. per copy additional, when sent by mail.

NEW HYMN BOOK.

"Hymns of the Jubilee Harp."

WITHOUT THE MUSIC.

The above work, printed in large, clear type, on beautiful paper, we are ready to all orders for, at the following prices:—

Bound in cloth, with sprinkled edges, 75 cents per copy; $7.00 per dozen; $55.00 per 100.

Bound in leather, gilt edge, $1.00 per copy; $9[illegible] per dozen; $75.00 per hundred; when sent by mail, 16 cts. additional postage

LIST OF ENGLISH BIBLES.

We have received and keep on hand the following English Reference Bibles:

Minion, 8vo., marg. ref., large type, circuit binding, $4.50; postage 28 cts. Do. plain binding, $4.00; postage 28 cts.

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., circuit binding, $3.50; postage 20 cts. (Best size for preachers.)

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., plain, $2.25; postage 20 cts. Do. ref. between verses, $2.25; postage 24 cts.

Pearl, 8 vo., marg. ref., circuit, $3.25; postage 20 cts. Do. plain, $1.75; postage 20 cts.

"ADVENTISM."

We have a supply of this valuable work.
Price in cloth......75 cts., postage 12 cts.
Flexible covers......60 cts., postage 12 cts.
Paper covers......50 cts., postage 6 cts.
In paper covers by the dozen, by express, $4.75.

SPIRITUALISM CONDEMNED

BY THE TESTIMONY OF THE BIBLE AND ITS OWN WITNESSES.

BY M. D. WELLCOME.

Price 10 cents single copy. Twenty copies for $1.00; $3.50 per one hundred copies.

"Historic Echoes of the Voice of God."

AN EXPOSITION OF THE ELEVENTH CHAPTER OF DANIEL.

BY ELDER J. COUCH.

Price 15 cents single copy. $1.50 per dozen. $10.00 per one hundred.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED.
WHAT IS MAN?
THE SOUL—WHAT IS IT?
THE SPIRIT—WHAT IS IT?
THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS.

All the above works in one volume, flexible cloth, in a compact, durable form, for use and preservation, for 35 cents, postpaid.

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

THE POWERS OF THE AIR.

A WORK THAT THOROUGHLY VENTILATES SPIRITUALISM.

276 pages. Price by mail, $1.25.

The above works for sale at this office.

WORKS BY I. C. WELLCOME.

A Treatise on Matt. xxiv. and xxv.

Expository and Historical, showing the accurate fulfilment of Christ's predictions to the present time, and what we should expect next. Fifth edition. 156 pages. 35 cts. by mail.

Christian Baptism—its Object and Duty.

Thoroughly examined, Scripturally and Historically. A valuable work. Fourth edition. 51 pp. 25 cts. by mail.

The Berean's Casket.

A Collection of Scriptures, in various versions, on the most important subjects in the Bible, in sections; to which is added much important History, Statistics, and Tables, making a book of great value to all Bible students and teachers. Cloth, $1.00; leather, $1.50 by mail.

The Plan of Redemption.

BY WELLCOME AND GOUD.

A valuable work on the Creation and Fall of Man, the Covenants, Atonement, Redemption, Regeneration, Faith and Hope, Restitution, Reign of Christ, Millennium, True Israel, &c., &c. This work received great commendation. Third edition. 400 pages. $1.25 by mail.

Israel and the Millennium.

A thorough refutation of Judaism; a valuable exposition of the Abrahamic covenant, and clear statement of the Bible doctrine of the Millennium. 100 pages. 25 cts. by mail.

I. C. WELLCOME, Yarmouth, Me.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

ALSO, The Inquirer. Catholic, or Protestant—Which? A sketch of the great Roman Apostasy, and the dogmas which caused it: the dogmas and practices which are undermining and destroying Protestantism, together with Scriptural hints. 48 pp. 10 cts. by mail.

Church Spectacles. An authentic and thrilling statement of facts on levees, church fairs, gambling, dancing, and [illegible], with some wholesome instruction. 24 pp. [illegible] forty for $1.00, by mail.

I. C. WELLCOME, Yarmouth, Me.

For the World's Crisis.

JESUS PASSES BY.

O sinner, Jesus passes by,
And looks on you with pitying eye;
Behold! he waits, and waits to see
If from your sins you now will flee.

With wonder angels see him wait,
To welcome you to Zion's gate;
And as you hear his voice of love,
Spurn not the heavenly wooing Dove.

O sinner! Jesus passes by,
And still he waits; to him then fly;
Before him bow in humble prayer;
To meet your Judge, oh, now prepare.

O Lord! I come, and now forgive
My sins, and let a rebel live;
For thee, the world I thus forsake,
For thee I'll live, for thee I'll speak.

O Savior mine! thy name I bless
For light and hope in my distress;
O, help me show to sinners round
What heavenly peace in thee is found.

Behold! the Savior passes by,
O, welcome him, to him now cry;
He knocks, he speaks, has knocked before,—
O sinner! open now your door.

Poor trembling soul, he speaks to thee,
And asks once more to make you free;
Ah, hear him plead, and hear him cry,
"O sinner! why, why will you die?"

Peru, Ind. H. H. HALL.

For the World's Crisis.

THE PAPACY.

"LOSS OF THE TEMPORAL DOMINION."

One of the greatest events of the age is the "loss of the temporal dominion" of the Pope. Rev. G. S. Abbot, writing from Rome under date of Sept. 25th, says:—

"It is interesting to the traveler to be in Rome at any time, but more interesting to be in it when one of the famous chapters of its history closes and another begins. . . . Rome has changed guardians. Within a week the curtain has dropped before the temporal power of Pope Pius IX., and it is hoped devoutly that it will never again be lifted. How strange are these things! How sudden the fall of his Majesty the Infallible! . . . The work of the artillery of Victor Emanuel was singularly effective, and the city that for generations had been under the sway of the Pope, passed over to the control of the Italian king."

In the light of history and of prophecy, the destruction of the civil or temporal power of the Pope is a most remarkable event, amid the multitude of stirring events of this wonderful age. In the light of history, it is the ending of that usurped dominion which the popes in their succession have arrogated to themselves, and have exercised over the kings and nations of the earth, and especially of the "western empire" for over a thousand years. And it is also the termination of that despotic and tyrannical rule assumed and enforced to the destruction of thousands, yea, millions of "the saints of the Most High," for the same long, weary, and dreadful period.

This arbitrary "dominion" during its supremacy crushed out the hopes of the world; caused the church of God to wade through the deep, dark waters of tribulation, unsurpassed in her whole militant history; clothed Europe and the world in sackcloth and mourning, and enveloped the nations in the midnight of moral and intellectual darkness. This period in the world's history is justly denominated "the dark ages."

In the light of prophecy, the humbling of the popedom, and the departure of its dominion under the asserted rights of earthly sovereigns, is the signal for the complete and eternal destruction of its pretended ecclesiastical or spiritual sway and jurisdiction over the whole church of God on earth, by the revelation of the Lord Jesus Christ. The kings of the earth "shall take away his dominion, to consume and to destroy it unto the end." Dan. 7: 26. But Christ the Lord shall demand and take away his mitre. "I beheld, then, because of the voice of the great words which the horn spake: I beheld till the beast was slain, and his body destroyed and given to the burning flame." Dan. 7: 11. "He as God sitteth in the temple of God, showing himself that he is God. . . . Whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming." 2 Thess. 2: 4, 8.

The position and adoration of the pope, and his claim to the titles and prerogatives of the Most High, in St. Peter's, the most magnificent church temple on earth, and where he has actually been worshiped as "God on earth," designated the popedom as the subject of divine prophecy, and its spiritual or ecclesiastical power to be soon visited with destruction, following that of the civil domination, and that at the coming of the Son of man with the clouds of heaven, and the ancient of days, and the judgment." Dan. 7: 8–14, 21.

The kings and nations of the world interpret the downfall of the "temporal dominion" simply as a sign of the abolition of "the union of church and state," and the divorce of the secular and ecclesiastical powers forever. The kings of the earth do not recognize the hand of God in this, or that they are the instruments, as was Pharaoh, Nebuchadnezzar, Cyrus, and Alexander of ancient times, in theirs, to fulfill his prophetic words. But so they are. "The ten horns which thou sawest upon the beast, these shall hate the whore, and shall make her desolate and naked, and shall eat her flesh, and burn her with fire. For God hath put in their hearts to fulfill his will, and to agree, and give their kingdom unto the beast, until the words of God shall be fulfilled." Rev. 17: 16, 17.

The church at large, lukewarm in her affections, wedded to the world, and loving not her Lord's appearing, ignoring the study of prophecy, interprets the consumption of the civil dominion, which she has witnessed in her generation, as the evidence of the final triumph of Protestantism; and she boastingly contemplates a "world's convention" at Rome the coming year;—the downfall of all imperial kingly and priestly rule not far distant, to make way for the establishment of republics, after the model of the Greek republic;—the world's conversion by the gospel;—the final dominion of earth under christian and righteous rulers; and this to constitute the kingdom of God on earth!

Slumbering and sleeping, this is the church's dream! Was ever dream more fascinating? Will ever a man wake from a dream of alluring visions so disappointed, as will the church from this to the dread reality of what she will be called to be a witness? Is the kingdom of God, for which the Lord has taught his church to pray—"Thy kingdom come," and for which she has so long prayed, to be resolved and turned into republics, or a republic? Why not then alter the prayer to suit the faith of the petitioners—"Thy republic come!"

Can any one suppose that the history of Romanism is to be repeated in a Protestant dominion of the world? And yet what is the above faith but just this? The church at Rome was once a pure church, uncorrupt in faith. Says Paul—"I thank God, through Jesus Christ, for you all, that your faith is spoken of throughout the whole world." Rom. 1: 8. But what did she become by her worldly ambition and apostasy? And what would the Protestant church be, if her thought and prayers of worldly aggrandizement were answered? The late Dr. Nott, visiting Saratoga in 1833, when interrogated relative to the temporal millenium, remarked, as given in the Atlantic Monthly of Nov. 1867:—"If Christianity, as it now exists, should be propogated over the world, and thus the millennium be introduced, we should need two or three milleniums before the world would be fit to live in it."

The "Augsburg Confession," drawn up by the Reformers, affirms in an article of faith—"We condemn those who circulate the Judaizing notion, that prior to the resurrection of the just the righteous shall have the dominion of the world." This modern faith is to be condemned as unscriptural, and against the faith of true protestantism, as well as the spirit of Christianity.

It is one of the strangest things in the century, that the church and world can see the fulfillment of prophecy in the history of the papacy in the past, and yet cannot discern its clearly predicted end; especially so of the church, to whom the light of divine revelation is particularly given, and "the sure word of prophecy as a light" to shine on her pathway until the eternal day shall dawn. Oh, that the church of God would rid herself of her worldliness, her worldly ambition and aggrandizement, and prepare to meet her God!

The hope of the kings of the earth, and of the nations of the world, that they will rid themselves of the temporal dominion of the popes, and yet escape the future judgments in store for them for their long and criminal alliance, in the slaughter of God's holy saints, is wholly vain. They have unitedly made "war with the saints." Rev. 13: 7. They must have war in return. Rev. 13: 10; 16: 12–21; Dan. 7: 11. In their garments is found "the blood of his saints." Rev. 17 and 18. They must travel the valley of slaughter, and in blood, "even unto the horse bridles." Rev. 14, Jer. 25. They have put the church in "great tribulation." Matt. 24, Rev. 6. They must have "a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation." Dan. 12: 1; Rev. 3: 22; 6: 17.

Has God's "dreadful controversy" already begun? David N. Lord said seventeen years ago—"In those terrible judgments, France is undoubtedly to have a large share. Her princes have been the head, as it were, of the great anti-christian power through every age of its tyrannous career. They have persecuted the people of God for a longer period, and on a greater scale, than any other European monarchy; and a greater number of martyrs lie buried beneath her soil than slumbers within the limits of any other kingdom. As she has thus been distinguished for her crimes, so her punishments are to be eminently great; and the despot to whom she has now surrendered herself, whatever plans he may pursue, is doubtless to be the means of preparing the way to their infliction."

O. R. FASSETT.

For the World's Crisis.

WEST POINT, KY.

Brethren and Sisters:—I know you will all be glad to hear that I am again settled in my "little corner"; and also the good news I have to tell you. My heart is filled with gratitude to witness the change in many, some of them my scholars. A missionary preacher of their own color came during my absence, and labored with them, and I cannot but hope that a genuine work of the Spirit has been felt, and is still in progress. He baptized twenty-seven, and as they marched to the river, two by two, singing as they went, all in perfect order, the white people went out, and as they stood upon the bank witnessing the ceremony, which was performed with the utmost decorum, a white lady told me, it was remarked, "There is the fruit of Mrs. Tuller's labor"; and the sentiment was expressed that the foundation was laid in the school. Be assured, friends, I do not claim any merit; but feel very small indeed. I think God led me, and all who helped by sympathy and means to sustain my work, come in for a full share in any good that has been done. The presentation of this house for worship and school, was a starting point for this poor people, and its blessings cannot be measured by the small sum it cost. I am more than ever convinced that it is right to teach these children, for it is through them that we can reach the parents.

There are two cases of reformation which I think will interest you. Both persons were noted drunkards. One of them lay in the gutter last Christmas, and was robbed of all his money. I felt moved to try and interest them on the subject of Temperance. These two took the pledge, and till I left in July were sober, industrious men. When I returned, the one who was robbed came to me, his face radiant with smiles (he is almost white), and said, "I have been praying for you to come back. You told me if I would stop drinking and sign the pledge, it would be one step towards heaven, and the next would be easier. I have found it so. And now the Lord has made me a changed man. I have no longer the least desire for whiskey," etc. He had deep convictions for sin, and when he found peace, a sister told me his strength left him, and he was helpless as a child. When his strength returned a little, he asked to be raised, and as they helped him to stand, he gave glory to God, and exhortation not soon to be forgotten. The change in his character is noticed by white people, and I think he will be a useful man among his people.

The conversion of the other was not attended by so much emotion, yet the change is decided. He is foremost to advance the interests of the school and religious improvement of the people. There are several other cases of decided change, and I pray and trust a new life has dawned, and that some here will be found ready when Jesus comes.

Great interest is manifested in the school. All seemed so grateful for my return and ready to do all in their power; but most of them are so poor, and their homes so cheerless and destitute of comforts, that I had rather live on half fare than take tuition from them. Last year Government paid me a salary sufficient for the wants of myself and boy. The withdrawal of all help from Government for schools, causes the abandonment of many. I can conscientiously say that I labor with no less ambition. I love this work, and am strong in the belief that, if the Master wishes me to work here, I shall be sustained. During my vacation, I have labored hard with my hands, and sold books, and friends have contributed, so that I have been able to meet my expenses thus far, and get desks made for my school-room. The trials of this work have proved a precious discipline to me, in leaving me to trust in God as a Father. I am greatly desirous of helping to the privileges of school several who live too far distant to walk, and too poor to board. If any brother or sister feel moved to help in this direction, they may be assured it will not be spent for superfluities. My heart and life are devoted to this work and I ask prayers, that I may cultivate my little corner acceptably, so that when he comes I may with you be welcomed to the marriage supper. I shall trust in God and his people, and ask. The Young Pilgrim has been useful here. That sister who sent me a box filled with copies, cannot think how much good they did me; and will friends again supply me with those dear little papers for these children? The Christian is sent here by Bro. Hastings, I suppose, from which I read to the older ones, which seems to gratify them much, and I thank him. Will Bro. G. accept grateful acknowledgments for five dollars to help me in my work?

Please, dear brethren and sisters, write to me. Far from home and friends, I am often lonely, and last year occasional letters from christian friends did much to lighten my labor. Sabbath, day, and night schools, fill my time, so that I find little leisure to write. Your sister in hope,

MRS. CAROLINE TULLER.

West Point, Ky.

For the World's Crisis.

"PERFECT PEACE."

"Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee; because he trusteth in thee."—Isa. 26: 3.

It is our privilege to possess a peace that is steadfast and abiding. This peace rests on perfect faith in God. He never changes, hence the christian whose faith in God cannot be shaken, always has peace. Those who have not this perfect faith, will at times be affected by the love of created things, and their hope will often be disturbed by the disappointments of desire. But the possessor of unwavering faith always has peace. It matters not what his outward circumstances may be, or whether Satan and his emissaries are zealous in their efforts to rob him of his great blessing, these things do not disturb him, as he has obtained that which the world can neither give nor take away.

Sometimes the joy of faith like a flood comes down upon him, and he has heavenly ecstasy. But when this subsides he has no despondency, his peace still flows on. It is like the old Delaware. There it is—it has been flowing on centuries. While old solitude kept watch along its banks during the uninhabited ages, there was the river—flowing on. When nature's red man first paddled his bark canoe upon its waters, there it was—flowing on. When centuries after the white man first pressed his foot upon its pebbly beach, he found it—flowing on. When the majestic steamer ploughed up the stream, its surface was ruffled for a time, but the deep undercurrent was not disturbed—it continued to flow on.

Sometimes the clouds withhold their waters for months, until the land becomes parched, but the lordly river fed by eternal mountain springs, still goes flowing on. Again the clouds open their bosoms and baptize the earth so that every creek, brook, and drain, empties floods into the river, so that its mighty tide sweeps over all its banks; but when the superabundant waters subside, there is the river flowing on.

Thus the peace of perfect faith flows on. If those with whom he may be connected in church fellowship lose their interest in the work of God, and the fountain of life within them seems dried up, it affects not his peace; that still flows on. If all are active and the church are enjoying a refreshing from the Lord, of course he has a freshet on his river; but when the extra influence subsides, his river of peace yet flows on. A perfect faith keeps him in communication with the river of God, which is full of water; and consequently, through evil report and good report, through health and sickness, prosperity and adversity, his peace as a river still flows on. Glory to God! And the fiercest drouth with which Satan's breath ever scorched a church, cannot dry it up. Its source is high up in the throne of God. C. H. SWEET.

Natick, R. I.

For the World's Crisis.

SOLACE.

Sweet in the time of trouble is solace; blessed is he who has it in his power to impart solace to the weary soul. No station more lovely and more exalted, than that of alleviating pain, and soothing to sweet repose the throbbing brow.

There are many ways in which we may cause the sorrowful heart to be glad and look up. Sweet it is the companionship of a friend, when the heart is bowed down with sorrow; it may be sorrow which should not be made public, for there are trials and sorrows in this life which we are compelled to bury within our own bosom, and carry nearly alone; but let him who claims to be a friend, come to this burdened one, and speak kind words of cheer and let them come from the heart, accompanied with the tear of sympathy, and both speaker and hearer shall know solace.

Come to the lone pilgrim mother, weeping in solitude that some precious blossom blooms no more in the garden of her affection. Say to her troubled heart, Be still! "thy children shall come again from the land of the enemy." Tell her, her fading rose shall in the glad day of His coming be transplanted to the garden of God, clad in the habiliments of perennial bloom. Bid her build hopes on high, that she in the day of his transplantation may enter the garden of God, to enjoy the society of her lost blossom forever. See how the dull eye will kindle, the trembling frame be rejuvenated, and both hearts shall be gladdened, accelerated, and exclaim, O how sweet to receive and impart solace!

Stop to look the second time at the little orphan standing at the corner of yon back street, clad in tattered garments, its little feet trembling upon the cold pavement. Its timid eyes are hid, it shuns the gaze of the thoughtless passer-by. Think that this little one has no mother to smooth its pillow at night, or kiss away the fear of darkness; none to whisper words of love and cheer, when its heart is made sad by the petty trials of childhood; and how shall your heart swell with emotion. Then go, fondly to the little one, and with your arm around its shrinking form, tell it that Jesus loves it; that he called the little children to him and blessed them, and said—"Of such is the kingdom of heaven."

Plymouth, N. H. L. SMITH.

Gems.

— All troubles have their commission and instructions from God; what to do, where to go, whom to touch, and whom to pass over.

— Eagles fly alone; and they are but sheep that always flock together.

O glorious day, why long delay,
When sects and feuds shall cease,
When all sectarian creeds and ways
Shall end and bring us peace.

— Charity and pride do both feed the poor; the one to the praise and glory of God, the other to get glory and praise amongst men.

— Wisdom, like a fox, requires not only long hunting, but often also deep digging.

— The often repeating of our faults to ourselves in private, causeth more care in our actions public.

— There is one thing of a great deal more importance to each individual than the conversion of the world, and that is the salvation of his own soul. Christ died not to save the world as such, but to save individual souls.

What is it to cast our care on God?
Is it to keep the heaviest load,
And lay some trifling weight aside,
Still taking thought for every hour,
As if the Lord's providing power
Were still unknown, untried?

— He who can suppress a moment's anger may prevent many days' sorrow.

— It is more commendation for a man to be silent, than to make repetition of his good deeds performed.

— Deeds for others' happiness show the true foundation of our own character.

— Where many words are spoken, truth is held in suspicion.

— The more we help others to bear their burdens, the lighter our own will be.

— Whenever we drink too deep of pleasure, we find a sediment at the bottom which pollutes and embitters what we relish at first.

— He that bites of every weed to search out the nature, may light upon poison; and he that loves to be sifting of every cloud, may be smitten with a thunder-stroke.

To him who lives for God,
Eternal source of love,
His heart and soul will surely feel
The calm that reigns above.

— The surest road to wealth is to bestow where it is most needed.

— Charity is the child of faith, and guide to everlasting felicity.

— Trials being sanctified, increase faith, and faith being increased again is put to the trial.

— Where the foundation is weak, the frame tottereth; and where the root is not deep, the tree falleth.

— The church is God's jewelry—his working house, where his jewels are polished for his palace; and those he especially esteems and means to make most resplendent, he hath oftenest his tools upon them.

Thou precious Savior, by whose life we live,
Lighten our eyes!
Let us not miss the lessons thou dost give,
O make us wise!
Keep us, whilst tempest-driven on life's dark sea,
Close to thy side,
There, anchored safely by sure hope in thee,
Let us abide.

— Standing pools gather filth, and flowing rivers are always sweet.

— The battle of life needs no generals; every man is his own commander.

Live to be useful, be brave, good and true,
Do unto others as you'd have them do to you.

LIFE'S DIFFICULTIES.

Life is full of trials and difficulties; we meet them on every side, from the cradle to the grave. With the first dawn of infantile intelligence, comes some difficulty to be met; some obstacle to be overcome; and in proportion as our course in life assumes importance and responsibility, do these obstacles seem to thicken around us. We, in our frailness, are wont to regard these trials and difficulties as impediments to our mental and moral progress, and to question the wisdom of the Creator of the universe in permitting this state of things—not perceiving, in our weakness, that these very obstacles are designed by an all-wise Creator to give strength and vigor to the mind, and tone to the moral character. They furnish the discipline necessary to a proper development of both mental and moral faculties. "The human mind seems to demand difficulties and opposition to fairly develop its powers." These call out the latent energies in man, and make him what he otherwise could not be. Look over the world; who are our great men? Not those who guided their barks smoothly around every rough place, borne along by the unruffled current, but those who grasped the paddles with a firm hand, determined to outride every billow that opposition could pile up before them.

What discovery was ever made, what invention ever brought to light, what moral reform ever succeeded, that did not fight its way through a storm of persecution and difficulties? We almost pity the man whose pathway through life is strown with flowers without a thorn, whose sky is unclouded by storms of persecution and opposition. Such a one has no aim or purpose in life, he loses half the pleasure of living; his soul is never thrilled with emotions of philanthropy and justice; he knows nothing of the pleasures that ravish the mind of one who has bravely met persecution and difficulties, who has waged war with wrong and oppression, and battled fiercely for the right, until mind and strength are well nigh exhausted, and in an auspicious moment plucks the laurels of victory, and bears them off amid the applause of admiring multitudes.

Such is the christian's life, full of trials, difficulties and temptations. From the time the believer takes his position before the world as a "follower of the meek and lowly Savior," "by putting on the Lord Jesus in baptism," "and being planted together in the likeness of his death," until the end of the present life, there is a constant effort of the "world, the flesh, and the enemy of all righteousness" to draw them away from the truth, and if possible, to cause them to turn back to "the "beggarly elements of the world." We have sometimes heard teachers from the pulpit, in their endeavors to persuade sinners to "turn to God," promise them a happy, thornless life, free from the troubles and vexations peculiar to life; that religion placed an impenetrable barrier between them and temptation. And I have thought such teaching was wrong; for many persons of weak minds and indolent habits, whose only object is present happiness, thinking they see an egress from the petty annoyances and trials of life, and the "twinges of the faithful monitor within," take upon themselves the obligations of a christian life. But after a while, "when persecutions arise because of the word," having no strength of character, and being too indolent to cope with opposition, they "fall from grace," and reproach is brought on the name of Christ.

Our blessed Savior held out no such inducements to his followers. In the early part of his ministry he said to his disciples, "Strive to enter in at the straight gate." Yes, they were to strive—strive for the mastery, but strive lawfully. After they had followed him in his ministry, suffering hardships and persecutions with him, he told them, "In the world ye shall have persecution." "The world hath hated me; it will hate you also." Again, "Ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake." "Whosoever doth not bear his cross and come after me, cannot be my disciple." The apostle Paul exhorts Timothy "to endure hardness as a good soldier." The Savior, with his usual aptitude, gives a reason for all this. He says: "If ye were of the world, the world would love its own. But because ye are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you." We might multiply testimony, but it is unnecessary. Enough has been adduced to prove that opposition and difficulties are necessary to a healthy, well-developed christian character. "The disciple is not above his Lord, or the servant above his Master." It pleased God to make the captain of our salvation perfect through sufferings.

There are many exceeding great and precious promises on record for those who endure hardness as good soldiers of the cross. "If we suffer we shall also reign with him; if we deny him, he will also deny us. Every one that hath forsaken houses or lands, brothers or sisters, father or mother, wife or children, for my name's sake, shall receive an hundred fold, and shall inherit everlasting life." "To them who by a patient continuance in well doing seek for glory, honor and immortality," he will give "eternal life." Again, he says, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne."—Herald of the Coming Kingdom.

For the World's Crisis.

LETTER FROM BRO. A. N. SEYMOUR.

BRO. GRANT:—I am now near Greenville, Mich., holding a series of meetings. We have a good congregation, and a deep interest concerning the coming kingdom is being felt, and already do we hear expressions of sympathy and regard for the truths presented, and I doubt not the Lord will find at his coming a people here loving his appearing. Mrs. L. Palmer, sister to my wife, resides here, and is exerting a good influence over the public mind. For a time past she has been occupying a public station, and is beloved by all. Jasper Palmer, her son, aged twenty-four, stands connected with the Free Methodists, and is taking a noble stand for the truth, and as he is a young man of good abilities, will doubtless be of much use to the precious cause which he and we so much love and admire. He is going in with a hearty good will for the original faith—the faith once delivered to the saints. Immortal-soulism has already lost all charms for him. He is forever spoiled in that direction, and is posting himself for the spreading of the knowledge and wisdom of God as revealed in the face of Jesus Christ. We feel like bidding him God speed.

On Monday last we returned from Stanton, the county seat of Montcalm county, where we delivered five discourses, four in the Baptist church, and one in the Court House, the church being occupied by another. Stanton is well located, a pleasant place, growing fast, situated in the midst of a heavy and beautiful pinery; and the four or five steam mills turn out tens of thousands of shingles daily. The place contains about six hundred inhabitants, who are intelligent, industrious, and prosperous. Everything seems to be thriving here but intemperance and immorality. The people seem to have their feet on the neck of these monsters, and are determined to hold them there. Our congregations while there were large and deeply interested, and many of the most intelligent gave us a very candid hearing; indeed everything we presented to them they grasped with avidity, and seemed to say, Thank God, that's meat in due season; it feeds us, nourishes our starving souls, and gives us a lively good cheer. Immortal-soulism will hardly be served up and fed to them hereafter with as good grace as formerly.

Here we found a class of seventh-day Sabbath-keepers, who love the hope of the Savior's coming, and appear to be a good people. Our second discourse was on the Sabbath question. All were out to hear, as we announced beforehand our subject. We spoke for an hour and forty minutes, and all began to think that there is another side to the question. Some gave it up readily, and others are reviewing with a determination to give it up if it is not binding. They are truly candid men, but misguided, deplorably misguided by the "visions," and their adherents or teachers. How I wish that people might be reformed upon the "Sabbath question," "visions," "sanctuary," "two-horned beast," and "third angel's message"; then our energies could be united in pulling down the stronghold of sin and error that surrounds us in these perilous times. May the Lord deliver all his dear children from that visionary delusion, is my prayer.

While in the place we were most agreeably entertained by our much esteemed friends, William and Nelson Turner, and their families, who are much appreciated by the citizens of the place and all who know them. Our visit, though short in consequence of other engagements, was most delightful and refreshing. Scarcely ever did we enjoy a more blessed sojourn among friends, and scarcely ever did we see a better and stronger interest awakened in so short a time than in Stanton. May the God of all grace preside over that dear people, and prepare them for the great day of the Lord, which is about to be inaugurated by the coming of the great Life-giver. The Lord will, we purpose to see them again this winter, by their request, and put forth another effort to win souls to the dear Redeemer. My love for God, his truth, his people, and for the salvation of precious souls, has no bounds. Praise his holy name.

A. N. SEYMOUR.

GOD'S METHOD OF HELPING.—God did not take up the three Hebrews out of the furnace of fire, but he came down and walked with them in it. He did not remove Daniel from the den of lions; he sent his angels to close the mouths of the beasts. He did not, in answer to the prayer of Paul, remove the thorn in the flesh, but he gave him a sufficiency of grace to sustain him.

☞ The race of mankind would perish, did they cease to help each other. From the time that the mother binds the child's head till the moment that some kind assistant wipes the death-damp from the brow of the dying, we cannot exist without mutual help. All, therefore, that need aid, have a right to ask it of their fellow-mortals.

RESOLUTIONS OF JONATHAN EDWARDS.

Resolved, 1. That I will do whatever I think to be most to the glory of God and my own good, profit and pleasure on the whole, without any consideration of time, whether now or ever so many myriads of ages hence; to do whatever I think to be my duty and most for good and advantage of mankind in general whatever difficulties I meet with, how many and how great soever.

2. To be continually endeavoring to find some new contrivance to promote the forementioned things.

3. Never to be or suffer anything in soul or body, less or more, but what tends to the glory of God.

4. Never to lose a moment of time, but improve it in the most profitable way I possibly can.

5. To live with all my might while I do live

6. Never to do anything which I should be afraid to do if it were the last hour of my life.

7. To think much on all occasions, of my own dying, and of common circumstances which attend death.

8. To be endeavoring to find out fit objects of charity and liberality.

9. Never do anything out of revenge.

10. Never to suffer the least motion of anger to irrational beings.

11. That I will so live as I shall wish I had done when I come to die.

12. To live so at all times, as I think it best in my devout frames, and when I have clearest notions of the gospel and another world.

13. To maintain strict temperance in eating and drinking.

14. Never do anything which if I should see in another I should count a just occasion to despise him for, or to think any way the more meanly of him.

15. Whenever I do any evil action to trace it back till I come to the original cause: and then both carefully endeavor to do so no more, and to fight and pray with all my might against the original of it.

16. To study the Scriptures so steadily, constantly and frequently, as that I may find and plainly perceive myself to grow in the knowledge of the same.

17. To strive to my utmost every week, to be brought higher in religion and to a higher exercise of grace than I was the week before.

18 To be strictly and firmly faithful to my trust that Prov. 20: 6 (A faithful man who can find?) may not be partly fulfilled in me.

10. Always to do what I can towards making, maintaining and establishing peace, when it can be done without an overbalancing detriment in other respects.

20. Never to speak in narrations anything but the pure and simple truth.

21. Never to speak evil of any person except some particular good call for it.

22. To inquire every night as I am going to bed, wherein I have been negligent, what sin I have committed, and wherein I have denied myself; also at the end of every week, month and year.

20. Never to speak anything that is ridiculous or matter of laughter on the Lord's day.

24. Constantly, with the utmost niceness and diligence, and the strictest scrutiny, to be looking into the state of my soul, that I may know whether I have truly an interest in Christ or no, that when I come to die I may not have any negligence respecting this to repent of.

25. Never to act as if I were in any way my own, but entirely and altogether God's.

26. Never to give over nor in the least to slacken my fight with my corruptions, however unsuccessful I may be.

26. When I fear misfortunes and adversities, to examine whether I have done my duty, and resolve to do it, and let it be just as Providence orders it. I will, as far as I can, be concerned about nothing but my duty and my sin.

28. Never to do anything but duty, and then according to Eph. 6: 6.

29. After afflictions to inquire what I am the better for them, what good I have got, and what I might have got by them.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

THE CHILD AT PRAYER.

Into her chamber went
A little child one day,
And by a chair she knelt,
And thus began to pray:
"Jesus, my eyes I close,
Thy form I cannot see;
If thou art near me, Lord,
I pray thee speak to me."
A still small voice she heard within her soul.
"What is it, child? I hear thee; tell me all."

"I pray thee, Lord," she said,
"That thou wilt condescend
To tarry in my heart,
And ever be my friend.
The path of life is dark,
I would not go astray;
O, let me have thy hand
To lead me in the way."
"Fear not, I will not leave thee, child, alone."
She thought she felt a soft hand press her own.

"They tell me, Lord, that all
The living pass away;
The aged soon must die,
And even children may.
O, let my parents live
Till I a woman grow;
For if they die, what can
A little orphan do?"
"Fear not, my child, whatever ills may come,
I'll not forsake thee, and I'll bring thee home."

Her little prayer was said,
And from her chamber now
Forth passed she with the light
Of heaven upon her brow.
"Mother, I've seen the Lord,
His hand in mine I felt;
And oh! I heard him say,
As by my chair I knelt,—
'Fear not, my child, whatever ills may come,
I'll not forsake thee till I bring thee home.'"

—Christian Intelligencer.

PULLING WEEDS.

When I was a boy, I had a Sabbath-school teacher who was always ready to drop a word in season. No matter what we are talking about at first: it seemed to be the easiest thing in the world for her to turn my thoughts Christward. She would find sermons in stones, and in almost everything else,—not long, tiresome sermons, but just a word that would keep me thinking till the next time I met her.

I remember, one vacation, she went away for a few weeks. When she came back, I ran to see her. After a pleasant talk, she said, just as I started for home, "Well, Charley, what have you been doing the past week?"

"Pulling weeds for father," I answered.

"Pulling weeds? That is good business," she said with a smile; "but I hope those you pulled were not all for father. You know you have a garden of your own, that is apt to get full of weeds."

"My garden?" I questioned, not thinking at first what she meant.

"Is here," she said, touching her side with her finger. "For the enemy that sowed them is the Evil One, you know. Have you pulled up the weeds there? It is hard work, Charlie, I know,—harder than pulling for father; but Christ will help you."

Day after day, as I kept about my tasks, I thought sadly of the weeds in the garden of my heart; and I asked Christ to root them out by his gracious power. I think he is doing it.—S. S. Times.

CHILDREN, do not form the habit of making excuses. If you have done wrong, be willing to confess it. Do not try to hide it, or to throw the blame on another. A person who is quick at making excuses is not likely to be good at any thing else, or to be loved and honored. Be honest, be frank, be truthful.

☞ Children should be joyous and happy. If childhood does not blossom, manhood will be likely to bear no fruit.

PRAYING FOR HER ENEMIES.

A little girl in an Italian Sunday-school complained that some of the children had hissed at her.

"Why did you not do your best to defend yourself, or complain to the master?" inquired her mother.

The child hung down her head and was silent.

"What did you do," added the mother, "when they were seeking their pleasure in tormenting you?"

"I remembered what Jesus did for His enemies," replied the child, "I prayed for them." Methodist.

☞ A little boy was urged by an older person to do an act that was wrong. He was told that no one would know it. "Yes, somebody will," said the little fellow, "myself will know it."

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—PAUL.

MENTAL TAXATION A CAUSE OF DYSPEPSIA.

Mental anxiety and pecuniary embarassments, such as the loss of property by fire, by a failure in business, or by bad debts, and also domestic troubles, disappointed affections, and the loss or treachery of friends, will frequently cause dyspepsia; too close, and too active intellectual labor is also a frequent cause. Editors, authors, and literary persons engender dyspepsia in this way.

Much brain labor requires much blood at the brain, and an ever-working intellect uses up so much of both blood and nervous force that there is not enough remaining to do the work of digestion.

On the other hand, deranged digestion is sometimes produced by too little exercise of the brain. Persons are frequently met with who have been in active business life, and, having accumulated enough to satisfy their ambition, have retired from business. Now although the brains and bodies retire from active life, yet the poor stomachs very often have their task increased. If a man has been for a long time accustomed to eating heartily and working hard, either with body or brain, he had better not relax his working habits without at the same time having a corresponding relaxation in his habits of eating. "He who will not work neither shall he eat," is not only a Bible injunction, but a law of the human constitution, the disobedience of which is often attended with such derangements of digestion, and other bodily infirmities, as to render either property or life of little value.

APPLES.

There is scarcely an article of vegetable food more widely useful and more universally liked than the apple. Why every farmer has not an orchard, where the trees will grow at all, is one of the mysteries. Let every housekeeper lay in a good supply of apples, and it will be the most economical investment in the whole range of culinaries. A raw, mellow apple is digested in an hour and a half while boiled cabbage requires five hours. The most healthful desert that can be placed on the table is a baked apple. If eaten frequently at breakfast, with bread and butter, without flesh of any kind, it has an admirable effect on the general system, often removing constipation, correcting acidities and cooling off febrile conditions more effectually than the most approved medicines. If families could be induced to substitute apples—sound and ripe—for pies, cakes and sweetmeats, with which their children are too frequently stuffed, there would be a diminution in the total of doctors' bills in a single year, sufficient to lay in a stock of this delicious fruit for the whole season's use.—Ex.

MUFFLING THE THROAT.—What is the best mode of protecting the throat from colds where a person is very susceptible to them? The common way of protecting the throat is to bundle and wrap it up closely, thus overheating and rendering it tender and sensitive, and more liable to colds and inflammation than before. This practice is all wrong, and results in much evil. Especially is this the case with children, and when in addition to the muffling of the throat the extremities are insufficiently clad, as is often the case, the best possible conditions are presented for the production of sore throats, coughs, croup and all sorts of throat and lung affections.

It is wrong to exclude cold air from the neck, and if it is overheated a portion of the time, when it is exposed some form of disarrangement of the throat will be apt to occur. The rule in regard to clothing the neck should be to keep it as cool as comfort will allow. In doing so you will suffer much less from throat ailments than if you are always fearful of having a little cold air come in contact with the neck. Any one who has been accustomed to have his throat muffled should be careful to leave off gradually, and not all at once.—Herald of Health.

BE REGULAR.—If you would enjoy good health, be regular in all your habits. Have regular times for eating, and eat at no other times. Whatever system you adopt—one, two, or three meals per day—be regular about it. Do not eat two meals one day, and three the next. Better eat three meals every day. Retire and rise at regular hours. Have a regular time for exercise. Arrange your work, whatever it may be, so that it can be attended to during certain hours, and have other regular hours for recreation, study, etc. In short, have a regular time for everything, as far as possible, and let everything be done at the appointed time.

☞ Dr. Draper is one of the opinion that the prevalence of insanity is largely due to the use of tobacco. Insane asylums were established in Europe soon after the introduction of tobacco, and when smoking had become fashionable.

The World's Crisis

AND

SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance....................$2.00 a year.
Five copies six months to one address.......$5.00.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies six months to one address......$10.00.
Same rate for any number over ten.
CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage in the United States on each single copy of the Crisis is 20 cts. a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.

Over all matters not intended for publication write—PRIVATE.

Over all business matters, write—BUSINESS.

Over all articles for the paper, write—For the Crisis.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's NAME, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save much labor.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, please write PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

☞ Put business matters and appointments on separate pieces of paper, or so that they can be detached without interfering with any other communication.

☞ All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the POST OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to

MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,

Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM.

An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS.

PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Single copy, 30 cts. a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.

Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 25 cts. a year for each copy.

Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 20 cts. a year for each copy.

To Canada subscribers at the same rates. We make no charge for American postage.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 794. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 11, 1871. VOL. XXXII.—NO. 16.

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at
160 HANOVER ST., BOSTON, MASS. } CORNER OF SALEM STREET. (☞ Entrance No. 7 Salem St.)

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.
WILLIAM SHELDON, Corresponding Editor.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, L. BOUTELL,
JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
HOMER A. KING, H. V. DAVIS,
L. T. CUNNINGHAM, J. G. HAMBLIN,
H. H. DICKENSON.

GEO. T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ The CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

"IT IS I."

"It is so hard!" I said,
And sat within and told my troubles o'er;
A hand fell softly on my bowed head,
Yet no one passed my door.

"A fancy!" then I said:
"But oh, to feel that touch for evermore!
Methinks, indeed, I could be comforted!"
And sorrowed as before.

"No other heart can know!"
Breaks out my grief again with bitter cry;
"And God is far—so far my faith lets go
Her hold on heaven, to die!"

Then some one stooped low,
His heart full-throbbing, as with tears, close by;
"Lord! is it thou so moved by my woe?"
He answered: "It is I."

For the World's Crisis.

FUTURE PUNISHMENT CONSIDERED.

"The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord."—Rom. 6: 23.

(Concluded.)

By the death of Christ, all men are brought back from the dead to that life that was lost by Adam's sin, and will have back the same life that he had before the fall. Mortality had not come to man then, because he had not sinned, and the sentence of death had not been pronounced upon him. Death had not come into the world; and where there is no death, there is no mortality.

Man was not immortal then (according to the true definition of the term); had he been, he could not have become subject to death. God cannot destroy an immortal being. The very fact that God can destroy it, or simply that it can be destroyed, proves that the being is not immortal. But man was on probation for immortality, or mortality. If he obeyed God, he would have immortality through the "tree of life"; if he disobeyed, the curse comes; then mortality and death. He disobeyed, and thereby plunged himself and posterity into sin, mortality, and death. And as Christ by his death has purchased back the family of man, all mankind will be raised from the dead, to that life which Adam had in the garden of Eden. And this will be done by the power of God, as Paul says in 1 Cor. 6: 14. "And God hath both raised the Lord [Christ], and will also raise us up by his own power"; and Jesus says in John 5: 21—"For as the Father raiseth the dead, and quickeneth them, even so the Son quickeneth whom he will." Here we find that the Father raiseth the dead and quickeneth them, which brings them back to the condition of man before the fall; and as it was necessary for Adam to eat of the tree of life to become immortal, so likewise after God brings man back to the life that Adam had, he must also be quickened by Christ the Son, in order to be immortal. "Even so the Son quickeneth whom he will." And as the blood of Christ was shed to atone for our sins, and he suffered the most intense agony and pain any being could suffer, that he might take the place of the most wrath-deserving and guilty rebel; even so it will be for every one who receives him as his Savior, and has washed away his sins by faith in his blood. In the day of judgment, when the demands of justice must be satisfied, then Christ's sufferings and death will stand in the place of what they without him would suffer; but as they are his by covenant and sacrifice, and his blood has cleansed them from all sin, and they have been living a self-denying life, bearing the cross, without the desire to sin, therefore it will be his pleasure and will to quicken them to immortality and eternal life. And because they have overcome through the blood of the Lamb and the word of their testimony, therefore it will be the Father's good pleasure to open to them the gates of paradise, and bid them welcome to the "tree of life," to the "water of life," and to the kingdom on the "new earth." And it is all the "gift" of God, "through Jesus Christ our Lord."

But another class stand with them at the judgment; a class who have sinned against a just and holy God. We find there some who, in life, boasted of good works, lived on morality, spurning the offers of salvation through Christ as the only way, saying in their self-righteousness, We have no need of him; and others, who are low and degraded in vice and in outbreaking sins; have had the gospel preached to them; have become hardened in crimes; have lived a God-defying, heaven-daring life, ready for any foul, dark work of death. With these two stand all classes and grades of sinners, all of whom have said in their hearts (of Christ), "We will not have this man to reign over us." They have not had their sins washed away by the blood of the Lamb. They have no Christ for their friend, to satisfy the demands of justice against them, by placing his suffering in place of what they now must suffer for their sins. No Savior now to save them from the agony and suffering of the second death, by his own suffering and agony in the garden of Gethsemane, and on the cross. Alas for them! Guilty sinners before God, they must suffer for their own sins; they alone must bear it. The demands of justice must be satisfied. They must stand alone in the judgment for themselves, before that God who has declared in his word that he will render to every man according to his deeds.

Alas! dear sinner, in view of the love, the wondrous love of God, in opening a way to be cleansed from sin, and to receive eternal life through his dear Son; in view of the sufferings of Christ in the garden, up the mountain, on the cross; in view of the precious blood, which was freely shed for you,—and shall I not add, also, in view of the righteous judgments of God, when the demands of justice will be satisfied against you (if unwashed by the blood of Christ), when wrath will be poured out upon you without mercy; in view of all this, dear sinner, make haste! Fly to Christ. Accept of offered mercy now, while Christ is pleading for you to let him be your friend and bear your sins. Soon it will be finished, and your destiny sealed. The judgment is at hand; then mercy is past, the door of hope forever closed, and the sinner will have to bear his own sins. Alas! he then must die.

Dear brethren, let us be faithful, and use every means God has placed within our reach to bring sinners to Christ. Not only should we present the love of God, as an inducement to them, but, also, "knowing the terror of the Lord, we persuade men" to repent. 2 Cor. 5: 11. We should "preach both the goodness and severity of the Lord." Rom. 11: 22. While we may be the means of saving some by declaring unto them God's unbounded love, others we may "save with fear, pulling them out of the fire" (Jude 23)—plucking them "as brands from the burning." Amos 4: 11. "For the wages of sin is death ["the soul that sinneth, it shall die"]; but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord." And if we by any means can be instrumental, under God, of winning souls to Christ, remember that they will be saved from eternal death to eternal life; from sorrow to rejoicing; from suffering, anguish, wrath and pain, to everlasting blessedness, joy and bliss, immortality and eternal glory; and they will be stars in the crown of our rejoicing in the world of glory.

ENOCH MORRILL.

For the World's Crisis.

THE GREAT DAY OF THE LORD IS NEAR.

The days in which we live are fraught with startling and mighty consequences. We shall do well to watch the signs of the times. The burden of the word of the Lord should be upon the watchmen of Zion, to proclaim the last message to a judgment-bound world; they should not fail to preach the whole truth, and to announce the solemn facts that already exist.

The signs of these times warrant a special "cry message" to the church. When we compare Scripture with the fulfillment of the events of our day, one is assured that we are living in the immediate vicinity of the commencement of the "great day of God," in which will be fought the "battle" brought to view in Rev. 19. Under the pouring out of the sixth vial, we have brought to view the work of the three unclean spirits, which are to gather the kings of the earth and of the whole world to the battle of that great day of God Almighty. And in this connection we read—"Behold, I [Christ] come as a thief; blessed is he that watcheth." The work of the three unclean spirits being accomplished, we may look for the battle, the last conflict, in which Christ will come off victorious; for he is King of kings and Lord of lords.

Having passed from the fulfillment of the sixes of Rev., we come to the fulfillment of the sevens—seventh trumpet, seventh vial, seventh seal, etc., which terminate in the subjugation of the nations, and the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth.

Under the sounding of the seventh trumpet (Rev. 11), we have brought to view a mighty work, and a great change. "And the nations were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead that they should be judged, and that thou shouldest give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear thy name, small and great; and shouldest destroy them that destroy the earth." We turn to Rev. 16, and we find a parallel to the seventh trumpet—the pouring out of the seventh vial. "And there came a great voice out of the temple of heaven from the throne, saying, It is done." Under the sounding of the seventh trumpet it also reads (v. 19)—"And the temple of God was open in heaven, and there was seen in his temple the ark of his testament; and there were lightnings, and voices, and thunderings, and an earthquake, and great hail." "And there were voices, and thunders, and lightnings; and there was a great earthquake, such as was not since men were upon the earth, so mighty an earthquake [revolution] and so great." Next, the "cities of the nations fell, and great Babylon came in remembrance before God, to give unto her the cup of the wine of the fierceness of his wrath. And every island fled away, and the mountains [great and small governments] were not found." Remember, John has told you this is the day of God's wrath. Babylon receives the fierceness of the wrath of Almighty God. A parallel passage may be found in Dan. 2: 34—"Thou sawest till a stone was cut out without hands, which smote the image [which represents the four universal kingdoms] upon his feet that were of iron and clay, and brake them to pieces; then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and the gold, broken to pieces together, and became like the chaff of the summer threshing-floors; and the wind [war elements] carried them away, that no place was found for them." The Revelator uses the same language—"were not found." Daniel further says—"And the stone that smote the image became a great mountain [government], and filled the whole earth."

The great shaking, and coming of the Son of man, are brought to view in Luke 21: 26–27—"Men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth; for the powers of heaven [not heaven] shall be shaken. And then shall they see the Son of man coming [personally—the same Jesus] in a cloud, with power and great glory." What a solemn event is at hand!

The nations are ignorant of the distress and perplexity that await them; for the people that shall live when the Son of man cometh will be mostly ignorant of the great event, and it will take them by surprise. It shall be as it was before the flood. "They knew not till the flood came and took them all away." So shall it be "when the Son of man is revealed." It is upon this class that "the day of the Lord will so come as a thief in the night." Rev. 19—The mighty One (here called the Word of God), "Out of his mouth goeth a sharp sword [symbolic language], that with it he should smite the nations; and he shall rule them with a rod of iron." The next John saw was an angel standing in the sun; "and he cried with a loud voice, saying to all the fowls that fly in the midst of heaven, Come and gather yourselves together unto the supper of the great God, that ye may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of captains, and the flesh of mighty men, and the flesh of horses, and of them that sit on them, and the flesh of all men, both free and bond, small and great." And subsequently he saw "the beast [get the right one], and the kings of the earth [Roman earth], and their armies, gathered together against him [who is called the word of God] that sat on the horse [symbol of conquest], and against his army [the saints]; for he shall rule them with a rod of iron."

I verily believe these solemn events are at hand. We are living in the vicinity of lively times. We are living near the closing of the Gentile times, and the commencement of the "great day of the Lord." The rumbling of his chariot wheels is distinctly heard. The clash of arms, fearful sights in the heavens, and the rumbling earthquake, are seen and felt. Darkness broods over the earth. The Spirit of God is taking its everlasting departure from this doomed world. Men and nations are left to commit dreadful crimes. The battle of the great day of God Almighty is at hand—the last mortal conflict of the angry nations, resulting in their everlasting destruction.

In the midst of these things, what may we expect next? The personal, visible appearing of Jesus Christ in the clouds of heaven. The prophet Daniel describes the event in beautiful and sublime language—"I beheld till the thrones were cast down, and the Ancient of days did sit; whose garment was white as snow, and the hair of his head like the pure wool; his throne was like the fiery flame, and his wheels as burning fire. A fiery stream issued and came forth from before him; thousand thousands ministered unto him, and ten thousand times ten thousand stood before him. The judgment was set, and the books were opened." Dan. 7.

The great day of the Lord is near; it hasteth greatly. We are certainly on the eve of a "time of trouble" (Dan. 12, Luke 21), such as was not since there was a nation, or since men were upon the earth. We are warned of these things in the Scriptures; we need not be in ignorance or in darkness concerning them. It is the last time. Our work is about finished: unless we do our duty faithfully, the blood of souls will be found upon our garments. We are to awake to the awful hour. Watchman, what of the night? The great day of the Lord is near. Who believes it? who sees it? who is preaching it with all his might? Mighty day; awful day of God is upon us! My brethren, awake ye to the dreadful situation. We are to obey the divine command to "watch and pray always, lest coming suddenly he find you sleeping." Cling not to this vain world; it will soon pass away. But seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth at the right hand of God. In a few more days we shall behold that dear Savior coming, and the dead arising. O to be left behind among the doomed and the damned, among devils and the lost; how dreadful! Let us live as did Enoch of old—walk and talk with God daily, and living a consecrated life we may be all ready for translation any moment.

J. E. CLARK.

SAFE RULE OF CONDUCT.

A christian man should live by rule. He should not suffer himself to be governed by the fleeting impulse of the hour. If he does not feel as he would, if he is pressed by temptation, and crowded with care, still let him see to it that all his words and actions are right in the sight of God. Satan often makes suggestions to the mind, and then taking advantage of his own acts, tells us that we may as well say a thing as think it. Let us be on our guard. Let us have a fixed rule of conduct to control us when sorely pushed by the adversary of souls.

A safe and comprehensive rule to govern our conduct towards others is given by our Savior. Have you read it? Doubtless you have. Do you act upon it? Is it a settled rule of life with you? It is in these words: "All things whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them." It is sometimes expressed briefly, "Do as you would be done by." If you are at a loss to know what treatment to give others, you have only to imagine yourself in their place and they in yours, and then ask yourself the question, "How would I have them treat me?" Then, when that is settled, you have found out your duty. Go ahead.

The acting upon this rule by professing christians would produce a perfect revolution in the business world. Are you selling an article—a piece of goods, a cow or a horse, and has it defects that you would be glad to be informed of, if you were the purchaser? Then, however much you may desire to effect a sale, or however much it may be against your interest to disclose the bad quality, known perhaps only to yourself, you will not at the peril of your soul withhold the information. Do you like to have others keep their word with you? Then keep your word with them. Let your promise be sacred. No matter how loosely promises are held by those in the same business with yourself, if you dislike to be deceived, then never practice deception upon others.

Let this rule govern you too in all your acts of benevolence. If you volunteer to do an act of kindness for another, do it as well as you would have it done for yourself. Christ is not honored, your friend is not benefitted, and your own soul is not blessed by your doing an act of kindness so poorly that it were better undone. Either bring no sacrifice to the altar of christian benevolence, or bring one that is without spot or blemish.—Free Methodist.

For the World's Crisis.

LINES.

WRITTEN ON THE "TENT" AT 15TH AND COATES STS.

Pass it not by, 'tis hallowed ground,
A spot to many hearts most dear,
'Twas there the wanderer refuge found,
And Jesus dried the mourner's tear.

How precious were the moments spent,
Their memory lingers round us still;
For God was in that humble tent,
To bless those who obeyed his will;

And when the mandate forth shall go,
To call the saints their crowns to wear,
'Tis then, and not till then, we'll know
How many souls were rescued there.

Oh! may this work so well begun,
Although in weakness and much fear,
From street to lane and alley run,
Till scores shall flock the truth to hear.

And when this earth, so full of sin,
Is purified from every stain,
Our heavenly joys will then begin,
And Jesus shall forever reign.

Philadelphia. C. E. ALEXANDER.

PRINCIPLE OF INTERPRETATION.

BY HENRY CONSTABLE.

The principle of interpretation is this, that all language relating to law and jurisprudence, all language descriptive of the sanction of government, all language setting forth the penalties of crime and disobedience, is to be accepted in its primary sense and in no other. Examine the terms of any human law, ask the men whose life study relates to law, whether as legislators or administrators—all will reply that in all documents relating directly or indirectly to law and jurisprudence, no sense but the primary is for a moment allowable. Thus, when death is announced as the penalty of a crime, no controversy would for an instant be admitted as to its meaning. No lawyer, for or against the criminal, would search for dramatic or poetical secondary senses. If the criminal himself were gravely to plead that his physical existence should not be taken from him because he had understood the legal penalty of death in a secondary sense, it is quite possible that he might be saved from the scaffold and the hangman, but it would only be by his being sent to a lunatic asylum as an incurable madman!

Here, then, is a great principle of interpretation to use among all mankind. It is that all documents and terms relating to human conduct, as affected by law, are only to be interpreted in their primary sense. A secondary sense may be more usual and more proper elsewhere, but not here. Poetry and the drama, the literature of passion, imagination, and feeling, may use these terms differently, but their use is not to affect in the smallest degree the interpretation of a law. Here we take our stand. Here we are on sure and steady ground. The terms we have been discussing are the terms of the divine law; the jurisprudence we have been discussing is God's jurisprudence. We only claim that God's penalty for crime against God's law should be interpreted in analogy with all law. It would be an outrage upon human law to interpret its sanction in some figurative and secondary sense; but that God's jurisprudence should be interpreted in this way, his awful penalty of sin explained by the tropes of poetry and the hyperbole of grief, is an outrage of a graver kind, because mixed up with a higher destiny and the great Judge of the universe. On this principle, then, we set aside every secondary sense from the terms relative to future punishment. On this principle we accept their primary as here their only possible sense, and on this principle the theories of Augustine and Origen fall together—the theory that inflicts eternal misery on man, and the theory that brings him back through a death to sin, to holiness and happiness.

If any justification of this principle were required, it is readily found. The primary sense is one unchanging sense, universally understood by every reasonable being at every stage of civilization and every variety of religious belief. The secondary sense is various, changing, differently regarded by different minds. Thus death in its primary sense is always one and the same. Down from its first example and enunciation to the present day, it has preserved this sense unbroken and unchanged, and is understood alike by the savage and the civilized, by the ignorant and the learned, by the degraded and the sensitive mind. But when we come to the secondary sense all this is changed. There are several secondary senses! These secondary senses are ever varying with the opinions and circumstances of men. Some of these secondary senses are absolutely unintelligible to multitudes of minds, as those of children, persons of blunted moral feelings, and savages, who yet were all intended to be affected by the terms used.—Selected.

For the World's Crisis.

ANTI-GOD AND ANTI-CHRIST;

OR,

OTHER GODS.

I have been looking at this subject to meet the defiant forms of Spiritualism.

I find in Gen. 3: 5 there are two kinds of gods presented to Eve. The first God was presented by Adam her husband. See Gen. 2: 16. God gave the information to Eve after she was created, and as there was only one God she knew anything about, Adam dared to leave her alone. In his absence she was made acquainted with the fact through the serpent, the medium for the devil, or fallen angel, that there were other gods, and these other gods had more than one idea. Mark, they know good and evil both, and hearkening to this medium, or serpent, learned to their sorrow what the evil was. Here starts the work of anti-gods, or other gods, who claimed to know double what the first God had revealed. If they knew good or evil, they could do both good and evil.

This principle started very early, and is found in the journey of life. Recommending itself to all classes of the human family as being more wise and liberal, it was received readily by fallen humanity. We see it developed in Cain and his descendants. Anti-god started on a more liberal plan than the one living God, who only gives one lesson at a time, and to a selected or privileged class that are willing to be led by him.

We see this liberal principle of knowing and doing good and evil become popular with the kings of earth, who never come into the position for the virtue they possess, but through a political right, and, as a general thing, soon become low, wicked and ignorant, as there is no stimulant for improvement. They consider their position secured by right, but when disturbances would arise, and with sluggish state of mind they want advisers, they always permit this anti-god class to be the advisers.

See old Pharaoh of Egypt calling on Jannes and Jambres, when trouble arose from one Moses—one who adhered to the idea of one God. The battle was hotly contested, and sometimes Pharaoh would decide one way, and sometimes another, not having mind or decision enough to decide for himself, but depended upon those who could do good or evil; and they were called the wise men of Egypt, because they could divine, and use enchantments; i. e., talk with the dead, or that part which was not dead. (See Clarke and others on "Diviners.")

This is the kind of double wisdom kings have sought or permitted to lead them, and they have always been deceived at last. See Pharaoh and his host led into a trap in the Red Sea and lost. We see earthly kings had this double-god party hanging around them.

I will take only a few instances of the works of this anti-god party, and the warning of God against them. See Deut. 18: 9–12. Here we see the anti-god party had increased their family to eight instead of two, which Pharaoh had. Josh. 24: 15, 16. We see this same class of gods were a curse to God's people, divining against God's plans to bring his people to the promised land. Num. 24: 1. You will see Balaam had got out from under Balak's influence. Num. 22 and 23. The Moabites had their gods, and Balak was chief, and the one-God people stood in the way, as they always do. Then to gain a victory they must convert some one of God's servants to believe in divination, and Balaam was pitched upon as the proper person, as he loved money and reputation. The second rally or trial that Balak's honorable and wise men had, secured the services of Balaam, to go out of his place and position to curse Israel. And God, seeing he had lent an ear to this ungodly influence, told Balaam to go; just as he says to all who have received light and are not satisfied with the one true God, but desire to know the wisdom of the anti-gods. See Balaam and his jackass starting off with the anti-god party. It appears by the account that he was blinded by a trance that the anti-god party had got him into before he would go.

Now for the battle. The angel of God that kept his first estate, on the one side; and the angels that kept not their first estate, but had fallen from it, and Balak, and the wise men, and old Balaam, on the other side. It appears that the jackass had his eyes opened first to see the angel, and stopped; which made the old, blind, backslidden Balaam mad, and he began to whip him; when the jackass run Balaam into the wall at the side of the road, and crushed his foot against the stones. This so enraged the old backslider, he wanted a sword to kill the ass that knew more than he or any other backslider, who spoke out with a man's voice and reasoned with Balaam, which caused him to open his eyes to see the angel, who brought him out of his mesmeric trance (which always has been the power of this anti-god party, from which Balaam had just been reclaimed. Num. 24: 1). He got straight again and refused a house full of silver and gold, rather than continue in the company that had the wisdom of the gods that played on two strings; that is, to do good and to do evil.

But it appears that after Balaam had blessed Israel, he wanted to compensate Balak and his friends, and he gave them a piece of advice; i. e., if they wanted to succeed, to set the young men to marrying into the other family; which worked mischief to Israel, as it always does; and God commanded them to be killed, Balaam and all. Num. 31: 14–16.

But to hasten with the anti-god party still farther. See Isa. 41: 21–24. The one God gives the wise gods a challenge to produce light on things to come; and they could not with all their pretended wisdom from the serpent in the garden. See Ezek. 20: 7–12. See God finding fault with the anti-god party for adhering to the mock wisdom brought out of Egypt, that hung around God's people.

Kitto says that demons, or the anti-god party, were worshiped for bringing men from the dead to the living. Plutarch says that demons envy God's people, and imitate them by way of worship. Here lies the snare for the weak-minded that do not know the difference between the form of godliness and the power of God; and whatever is marvelous they will follow. And the anti-god party are full of this kind of strange distortions and bodily exercises, that captivate some. The greatest evil temporally to God's people is, that the kings of the earth have had this anti-god party on their shoulders, and as head rulers in the kingdom, because they pretended to divine both good and evil things. This class pretended to talk with the dead. See Saul and the witch of Endor. After Saul had backslid, by having sympathy for this class—the Amalekites, God left him, and he went to one of the anti-god party to divine and bring up Samuel, who could do good or evil, raise or or talk with the dead, but who in the devilish affair told three lies, which Saul believed, and lost his life in consequence. See 1 Chron. 10: 13, 14.

This power has long deceived the kings of the earth. See the king of Babylon deceived by his wise men. Dan. 2: 26, 27. Here was another battle between the one-God men and the pretended wise men that used divination, or talked with the dead. Belshazzar also was led astray, as his father was, and both were deceived and lost their kingdom. The Persian kings also had the same class, and were deceived by them. See Xerxes following the advice of his oracles, which made him believe he could subdue the Grecians; and he also was deceived, and lost his money and reputation, and died broken-hearted.

Thus the same power that deceived Eve has deceived nearly all kings, with those who have been in God's work and left it, and have gone to them for wisdom, like Saul and others. The Grecian kings had this same class for advisers. See Rollin's history of the battle between Alexander and Darius; for the government the one God had appointed Alexander. See Dan. 11: 4, 5. And the oracle-party could not get the victory for Darius, as they made him believe, after consulting the soul of dead Cyrus, who subdued the Babylonians and died hundreds of years before. We see these other gods still talking with the dead down through the four divisions of the Grecian kingdom. This same class were in the kings' cabinet, to give counsel. Pompey and Julius Cæsar had their oracles, and the anti-god ruled the world by kings, and deceived them and some of God's children, working mischief, until Christ's time, when it is called antichrist, and can be followed down through the Christian era to our day.

The leading principle is immortal-soulism. See Pagan Rome and also Papal Rome, and her numerous descendants, who have some resemblance to the leading principles that started in the garden of Eden by the serpent, the devil's medium, i. e., immortal-soulism. See the Shakers' moving principle by Ann Lee, and held to now. (For further and a more full account of them, please send to R. E. Hamilton, Thompsonville, Conn., and you can get a full description of the last-day visions caused by a mesmeric power; and I think all pretended visions of these days are from the same source. No matter what people have been or pretended to be. You can get six books for fifty cts.) See the antichrist spirit in the Mormons. Their visions and immortal-soulism are based on this foundation also.

Another and later antichrist wisdom, talking with the dead, etc., is among the spiritists, full of pretended wisdom; but they act and talk just like the devil through the first medium. Also in the oath and moving principle of the Free Masons you will see the immortal-soulism idea developed, and the one God and his laws trampled under foot.

For a perfect development of this devilish antichrist and murderous spirit, just send to the Crisis office, and get one of the books that takes the vail off of Masonry, as Bro. Hamilton's tract does from Shakerism. Prof. Phinney's book costs $1.50; and the "Broken Seal," by Samuel D. Green, who was a member of the same Masonic lodge with Morgan, who was murdered, whose body was recovered and buried from his house, this book can be had for $1.50. Both books contain the death-bed confession of the man who with his own hands pushed Morgan from a board in the centre of Niagara river, with a heavy stone tied to him. This man could not die till he had confessed what the antichrist fraternity, under the name of Free Masons, have denied for over thirty years, and yet wickedly deny. Either of these books carries its own evidence, the authors having the whole facts; they being Masons at the time. Masonry is an underground, anti-christian concern, like having a form of godliness. Just get one of the books, and read for yourself and be posted, that you may use your influence in the right direction after reading the work.

I am staggered at some of our Advent people, and especially preachers, being connected with this unchristian set of popular usurpers of liberty and foolish honors. They claim great antiquity. I think so, even back to the devil. If any preacher belongs to them after reading either of these books, I must count him with Balaam, who, for popularity or money, joined this unchristian class. More anon.

HIRAM MUNGER.

☞ There is directness and there is personality in pulpit address. Hugh Latimer, it is true, did not see the distinction. He made sure of hitting the mark by calling the name.

THE VEIL OF DOUBT REMOVED.

"My Lord and my God!"

Another doubting Thomas has become convinced. I have seen the print of the nails and thrust my hand into the Savior's side. I am convinced that God puts no christian under any necessity to sin. I am confident that each part of the heart, each corner and crevice, can be completely subdued by one great battle and victory. I am confident that no life-long engagement is necessary to knock down and drag out all the giants of the heart. The power of divine grace is sufficient to cause them all to lay down their arms at once. Christ is a full and a present Savior. I was not skeptical on this matter of living without sin because I was young. I had a better cause than this to offer. I have been conscientious in the whole matter.

When I was at Princeton College, about three years ago, a book was placed in my hands by a Methodist minister, for whom I was preaching during vacation, entitled "Perfect love." This book set me thinking, and several weeks thinking set me praying, and several weeks praying without any success, set me doubting. I was conscientious in every doubt I had.

After graduating, I entered the ministry and made the matter a subject of considerable thought and occasional prayer for eighteen months. In these eighteen months I never introduced the subject in my pulpit. I could not speak for it conscientiously and feared to speak against it publicly, until I should become convinced it was a delusion.

I then began to think of the heart as an empire full of little rebels. One was malice, one was envy, one was lust, one was anger, one was deceit, and so on. I then said, Now the christian's work is to make a conquest of these rebels by the aid of God's Spirit. We must first subdue one, and then another, and then another, and so on "unto perfection," laying a terrible emphasis on that word "unto." The conclusion I arrived at was when the last rebel had found his ditch, the christian would be about old enough to die. My conclusion of course was legitimate from my premises. There I had it, I thought. A twin of sermons was born in less than two weeks.

I tried to show my Methodist brethren that our fathers were well meaning people, but they were wonderfully deceived on that matter of sanctification. I tried to demonstrate the absurdity of spiritual sons of Anak, no matter how extensive their pedal extremities were, trying to mount the topmost round of the ladder of christian experience at a single vault. Well, that twin of sermons has died, and will never have a resurrection, I trust. Let them rest in that peace that they never knew anything about while they lived.

Last spring I was sent to take charge of the Cavalry M. E. Church of Orange, N. J., and became associated with an old gentleman, the Haytian Consul to this country, for twenty years the American Consul to Hayti, the fruit of missionary labor on that island. He is an ardent believer in sanctification, and, what is best of all, he lives it unexceptionably. He breathes the sweetest spirit, enjoys the most constant peace, possesses the strongest faith, is not at all obtrusive or mystical gives forth his means as if he believed that a sanctification which can be called "entire" covers the pocket book as well as the heart.

There was more argument in the life of that one man than in all I had read from Jeremy Taylor, John A. Wood, George Peck, John Wesley, or R. S. Foster put together. And this is saying nothing against the good books of these good men.

He "turned on" me one night in class meeting and told me just what I needed. Did I feel angry? Why I could have taken anything that man saw fit to inflict upon me. I looked upon him as I looked upon my mother, a person whose advice and reproof I was bound to take. So much is the influence which a pure consistent life gives to a person's words. I felt that that man suffered more in giving me that advice, than I suffered in receiving it. I went away "sorrowful." I knelt down at my bedside and said, "Here, Lord, I give myself entirely to thee. Perform thy greatest work in me. I lay my whole heart and body upon the altar. Sanctify it."

I rose to my feet feeling a great load had been cast off. I then made a solemn vow that I would never lay up one cent of treasure on earth, but give it forth like the fountain, as it comes, so that those who believed sanctification consisted in a sanctified life, might not find the least thing in me to stumble against.

Some, I suppose, will call me radical and enthusiastic in this. Very well. I do not imagine that such radicalism will stand in the way of any man's salvation. After all, that is the great item.

My peace flows like a river. Religion seems everything to me now. I am ready to go anywhere, and do anything for my full and precious Savior. If I am deceived, may I never be undeceived.—Guide to Holiness.

SILENT WITNESSES.—Until about 580 B. C., the temples of Greece were roofed with terra-cotta tiles, said to have been invented in Cyprus, and are somewhat ornamental. These tiles, in many instances, have stamped upon them the name of the city, the potter, and the year of the emperor's reign in which they were made. Much valuable historical information has been preserved in his incidental manner, of vast value as corroborative testimony to the truth of the sacred Scriptures. Many Bible proofs have been found among the ruins of pagan temples. God's word has myriad witnesses, silent but eloquent, in nature and in art. And these tallying testimonies forever multiply as the past ages are explored and understood.—Workday Christianity.

☞ We cannot wrong others without injuring ourselves. "He that doeth wrong, shall receive for the wrong which he hath done, and there is no respect of persons."

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, January 11, 1871.

☞ Please Remember!

☞ All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the BUSINESS AGENT, GEO. T. ADAMS.

☞ Take Notice!

☞ All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

☞ Money Orders.

☞ Our correspondents should remember that if they send money orders in a letter which contains the name of the sender, and the name of the person to whom the order is payable, there is NO SAFETY for their money. Any person may draw the amount named in the order, if these names are given.

Neither is it safe to send us your names in advance. Somebody may open the letter, get the names, and then wait till the order comes, and get that too.

Send on the order, not writing a word; make it payable to GEO. T. ADAMS, directing it to MILES GRANT, or World's Crisis. Then, in two or three days, write in the usual way, stating that you have sent the order, and what you wish done with the money obtained on the same, and it will be entirely safe. In the second communication be sure to give us your NAME and POST OFFICE ADDRESS. AG'T.

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

Although far away from most of our readers, we desire to wish them all a Happy New Year in the Lord. May this be better to them than any that are past.

THE PAST YEAR.

When we enter a new year, it is wise to review the past, and see where we have made mistakes, and wherein we need to reform. It is well for each one to inquire, am I indulging in any habit that will prevent me from entering into the kingdom of God? Are our deeds, words, and thoughts all right? If not, let us correct them at once. We have no time to lose. It is important that we should live in constant preparation for the coming of Christ. During the past year events have transpired which show very clearly that the present dispensation will soon be ended. None but the pure in heart have any promise of eternal life.

In reviewing the past year, many are compelled to look back upon scenes of deep sadness. Those who wished loved ones a "happy new year" one year ago are now sleeping in the cold grave. Their seats are vacant at the table; their voices are hushed, their eyes are closed, and we can see them no more till Jesus comes. The storms of life are unknown to them; they rest securely, and will soon awake to receive the great reward provided to the faithful.

Others, in reviewing the past, can see where they made missteps, and wandered from the narrow path marked out by our dear Savior. We hope all such will decide most firmly, in the Lord, to wander no more. We are too near the coming of Christ to lead careless lives, if we expect to be ready for his coming. The christian soldier of these days needs to be clad with the whole armor of God, or he may be easily vanquished by the enemy. Perils are multiplying on every hand. The seducer is rallying all his forces for a terrible conflict with the friends of Jesus. So many have turned aside from the path of holiness, and conformed to the spirit of the world, rather than face the arch foe with christian boldness, the number of the true-hearted is now small; and Satan is now making preparations to destroy the remnant of Christ's little flock. This is the time to be brave for the right. Our motto should be, "victory or death." Make no compromise with evil. Stand up for Jesus, if every professed friend turns away, and we are left homeless, penniless, amid the scorn and contempt of a wicked world and a pleasure-loving church.

If time is continued to us another year, let us occupy ground in advance of all positions in our past experience. Let us avoid all unkinds words, all evil imaginations, all dishonest deeds; be long-suffering, kind, gentle, meek; free from hatred, variance, and every thing unbecoming a christian.

CALIFORNIA.

We have only a small space this week for words about California. We arrived here at six o'clock Saturday evening, Dec. 17th, and put up at the "What-cheer House," where one can get meals at all hours, and live cheaper than in Boston. They give a very liberal supply for the money. We remained there over the Sabbath, and was then kindly invited to share the hospitalities of Bro. and Sr. St. John, who love the blessed hope. They formerly lived in New York. They are intelligent christians, and we have reason to thank the Lord for their presence in San Francisco.

The Lord has prepared and opened the way for us in this city in a signal manner. We have already been invited into six churches, three Methodists, two Presbyterian, and one Baptist; but we are satisfied we could do better for the cause we love so dearly, if we had an independent place, where we could preach the whole truth without any restraint. The only thing that prevents this is the expense of the hall. With the present amount in the treasury, we do not feel warranted to pay what a good hall will cost. We are most fully satisfied that a respectable church can be established here in a short time, that would be self-sustaining in a few months, if we could only provide a good place for meetings, where all could be free to speak out the whole truth. Will not some of the liberal-hearted, who love their neighbors as themselves, give a strong lift at this time? Everything looks encouraging thus far, excepting a place for the meetings.

We have found some true men and women in the different churches, who are starving in their present situation, and longing for a higher-toned christianity; who are anxious to hear about the coming of Jesus, the nature of man, the end of the wicked, and the saints' inheritance. The standard of christianity is very low in this city. A distinguished minister remarked to us, that he did not think a healthy revival could be started on this coast. We think otherwise, and expect to see one before we leave. As we have before stated, what we most need is the means to hire a respectable hall, for a month or more, until the work shall be well started, then we think the means would be provided by those interested. The price of halls varies from ten to seventy-five dollars a night. For ten dollars we could get a pretty good hall, that would be quite satisfactory. For the present we have concluded to work in the different churches, as the door may open. We are invited to commence a protracted meeting in one of the Methodist churches. We think the minister, Bro. Bailey, is one of the most devoted preachers in the city. Again we request the prayers of our dear Brn. and Srs. in the East. We are anxious to see a glorious work in this wicked city.

THE A. A. M. SOCIETY.

Bro. Grant is now in the field, doing what he can to preach the word in California. Bro. Sheldon goes out into the Southern field this week. The Society wants funds for the above work. Our friends will notice by our acknowledgments that our receipts are very small. We hope they will respond to the suggestions of Bro. Grant, and see that the Society is not crippled in its work for the lack of funds. All remittances for the Mission work in California, South, or elsewhere, should be sent to the Treasurer of the A. A. Mission Society, Boston, Mass. O. T. A.

DISCUSSION.

We have arranged to hold a discussion in San Francisco, Cal., with Mr. J. S. Loveland, to commence in Dashaway Hall, Monday evening, Jan. 9th, and to be continued six evenings—three evenings a week. Mr. Loveland is a skillful debater, who has been one of the champions of Spiritualism. We have had two discussions with him—one in Willimantic, Ct., and one in Boston, on the merits of Spiritualism. He has recently renounced his belief in Spiritualism, and has lectured against it in this city. His renunciation has caused quite a flutter among the Spiritualists, as he has been one of the most prominent men in their national and State conventions. He still holds on to the belief that man has a conscious entity that lives independent of his physical organism. The subject for discussion is expressed as follows:

Resolved, That reason and the Scriptures teach the future and continuous conscious existence of the human soul after the death of the body."

Much interest is felt in the approaching debate. Many are anxious to hear our views on this subject.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

Our trip to California has been one of special interest. In our last notes, we had just passed the hot springs on the plains among the Humboldt mountains. These springs afford perpetual boiling water. The valley of the Humboldt is one of the richest in the state of Nevada. It has a deep, black loam soil, fifteen to twenty-four inches deep. The valley is some eighty miles long and ten wide. This valley is almost unoccupied. While passing through this wild, unoccupied country, a great variety of scenery may be observed. Hills and valleys, mountains far and near, rise in constant succession, most of them being destitute of trees or shrubs, excepting sage brush, which grows from one to three feet high. Thousands of acres are covered with it. There are two kinds, called the black and white. The black is of no value, while the white is eaten by the cattle. This sage brush resembles the common sage plant.

Semi-occasionally we arrive at R. R. stations, where may be seen a dozen or twenty small houses and shanties, and several tents. Some of the houses are made of adobe; by which is meant a kind of unburnt brick, quite large, made of mud and straw. When the train arrives, there is a general turnout, so that the passengers have a good opportunity to see the people and observe their manners. We saw no signs of schools and churches, and had reason to conclude that the bar-room served for the school and meeting-house. There are some stations on the road to which these remarks would not apply, where one might feel willing to tarry for a season. Such is Humboldt, where we found in front of the hotel and R. R. station, a pleasant fountain, and another in the hotel, sending forth the clearest, coldest mountain water to be found on the whole route. It was delicious. About seven miles northeast from this place is Star Peak, the highest point of the Humboldt range, on which snow remains during the year. There are gold, silver, and sulphur mines in this region, which are considered valuable.

Passing on, we arrived at Boca, the first station in California. Its elevation is five thousand, five hundred and sixty feet. The Truckee mountain scenery in this region, and many miles onward, is wild and grand. As we ascended the mountains, the weather grew cold rapidly, and we found ourselves amidst two or three feet of snow, and riding on the side of mountains, ascending hundreds of feet above us, and descending hundreds below. In order to protect the road from the avalanches of snow that come down the mountain sides, very stout snow-sheds have been erected over the track, costing ten thousand dollars a mile. Passing on, we begin to ascend to the summit of the Sierra Nevada mountains. With two engines we go up, up, puffing, puffing, rising, rising, at the rate of over eighty-eight feet per mile, till we reach the summit, at an elevation of seven thousand and forty-two feet above the level of the sea. At this summit point, we are three thousand two hundred and ninety-four miles from Boston, and two hundred and forty-five from San Francisco. From this elevated position we pass through snow-sheds on the mountain sides some forty-five miles. The snow falls here from sixteen to twenty feet during a wet winter.

After leaving the summit we pass down the mountain some eighty miles without the use of steam, the speed of the train being regulated by the brakes, while the two engines are passive. The road here passes through some of the most sublime scenery on the whole route between Omaha and San Francisco. Heavy pine and cedar trees cover these mountains, which afford an immense quantity of lumber, manufactured in the mills near the railroad. Before the railroad was built over the mountains, these forests were of but little value.

THE CANONS.*

Between the towering mountains may be frequently seen a parting more or less sloping from the top to the very base of the mountain, shaped much like a rail-road cut through a mountain from one thousand five hundred to two thousand feet high. These openings are called canons. The word is Spanish. At the bottom of these canons it is common to find a river. The "Great American Canon" affords a fine specimen of sublime scenery. The river runs between two walls some two thousand feet high, and so nearly perpendicular, that one can stand on the brink of the summit "and look directly down on the foaming waters below." The canon is some two miles long. We next come to which is the grandest sight on the whole route. Winding around among the mountains, where may be seen various troughs to convey water from the mountain springs to the miners in the gold regions below, we come suddenly to a short curve in the road, when, looking upward, may be seen great masses of rock towering towards the clouds; then, if we turn our eyes downward, we behold an awful chasm, said to be two thousand five hundred feet below us. When they began to build the road around this spur of the mountain, it was necessary to suspend the workmen by ropes while they were cutting a groove in its side for the rail-road track. Once seen, the sight will never be forgotten while memory remains. The sight will reward one for a long journey.

CAPE HORN,

At this place, and onward, there was no snow. As we glided down the hill sides, it seemed like departing from the old world into the new. Trees were covered with their green foliage, flowers began to appear, and a most lovely, cloudless morning, with its balmy air, and pleasant sunshine, produced emotions not easily expressed. We thought of paradise as it was, and as it will be, when Eden shall bloom again; and it seemed as if we were drawing near the hallowed place. On, on, we wound our way down the hill-sides, till we reached Colfax, named after the Vice President. It is a pleasant town, two thousand, four hundred and forty-eight feet above the sea. It has some two hundred buildings, three hotels, one church, and about one thousand inhabitants. Leaving Colfax, we passed through the mining region. We were somewhat astonished to see the amount of earth that had been moved by the miners. The gold of this world has much greater charms for the masses than all the glory of the world to come, in connection with the eternal life promised to its inhabitants.

As we neared Sacramento City, the country became more delightful and spring-like. We passed many homes of the miners, which, with the vines, flowers, fruit trees, and pleasant gardens, looked very inviting.

On reaching Sacramento, it seemed as though we had truly reached a "Summer-land." The whole appearance was much like our New England summer, excepting that here the flowers and green grass remind one of spring rather than autumn. The two seasons appear to be blended together in very pleasing harmony. From Sacramento to San Francisco, a distance of one hundred and seventeen miles, we passed through as fine farming land as we ever beheld. It is said there is no better wheat land in the world. The farmers were ploughing and sowing, as we see them in Sept, or May in New England. The soil is very easy to cultivate, and yields an abundant harvest.

When we arrived at San Francisco, and looked back forty-eight hours, we found we had passed through autumn, winter, and had apparently come to spring-time, when flowers begin to bloom, and the grass to look green again, like May-day in Boston. They have no snow in San Francisco, and we seldom see a man wearing an overcoat.

In our next, we purpose to say something about this remarkable city and its surroundings.

* Pronounced as if spelled canyons.

IMPORTANT TO ROME.

A telegram from London, Dec. 24th, makes the following announcement:—

"It is said that Gambetta has announced to the Pope of Rome the desire of France to terminate her Concordat, in order to effect an entire separation of Church and State in France."

Should this proposal be carried into effect, it would be a heavy blow against Catholicism. Such blows may be expected to transpire with increasing weight till that mighty Roman power sinks like a millstone to rise no more for ever.

The Italian Chamber of Deputies has passed a bill to remove the capital from Florence to Rome within six months. The vote stood 197 to 18. There are no favorable omens for the Pope or the cause he represents. An earnest struggle may yet be made in his behalf, but the mene tekel, is written upon his walls, and no earthly power can stay the execution of the sentence.

WORLD'S PEACE CONVENTION.

Some women, noted for their interest in political matters, held a preliminary meeting in New York, Dec. 23d, for the purpose of making arrangements to hold a "World's Peace Congress of Women." Among the more prominent persons present were Julia Ward Howe, Lucretia Mott, Mrs. Blake, Cora Hatch Tappan, Prof. Wilcox, and O. B. Frothingham. Mrs. Howe presided, and presented an address to be adopted as the expression of the meeting. She advocated the idea that universal peace is necessary for the world's progress, and as the men have been making war, the women should endeavor to bring about peace. Letters were read from Bishop Simpson, Amasa Walker, Madam Gasparin, John Stuart Mill, and others. We shall watch this peace movement with some interest.

NEW RELIGIOUS PAPER.—We add with pleasure to our exchanges, a new weekly paper—"The Church"—published in this city by the "News Company." In its "First Words" the publishers say:—

> "While The Church will not be denominational, it will fairly present all matters of discussion in all denominations, and on various sides which have a general bearing and interest, so that its readers may gather the substance of all religious movements, and yet not be troubled with that which is narrow, petty and ephemeral.
>
> The Church will in no sense be a secular or political journal. Believing that the christian public, while more than ever satisfied to work each in his own cherished field and fold, are yet longing for some wider, more general, tolerant and charitable medium of information and bond of union, it will be our care to adapt The Church emphatically to Sunday reading for every christian family, and for all in every family,—secular and political affairs being discussed only when clearly involving questions of morals and religion."

PERSONAL.—We are glad to learn that Bro. Geo. Storrs is improving in health. He says in Herald for Jan. 4th:—

> "I am slowly improving, and hope ere long to communicate with you by mine own hand. My mind has been kept in peace, stayed on the Lord, and my meditations on his word have been sweet; for which I bless his holy name, and that of our Life-giver, Jesus Christ."

SHORT OF PAPERS.—We were short of papers last week (Jan. 4th). Subscribers having read their papers, and can return them to us, will receive our thanks and greatly oblige others.

☞ Your attention is called to Bro. Brown's "Appeal." "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise."

☞ We are indebted to Geo. W. Childs, Publisher, Philadelphia, for the Public Ledger Almanac.

NOW READY.

The Report of the Eleventh Annual Meeting of the Advent Christian Association, held at Chapin's Grove, Springfield, Mass., Aug. 23d, 24th, 1870 together with the Constitutions and By-Laws of the Advent Christian Association, and the Advent Christian Publication Society. Also a Catalogue of Publications, to which is added our recent Tract, "TIME'S FAREWELL."

The whole making a pamphlet of forty-eight pages. Our friends who have not received a copy, can be supplied on application to our office, or by addressing by mail; in which case, they may, if they please, enclose a two cent stamp to pay the postage.

AG'T.

TIME'S FAREWELL.

We have just published a tract with the above title, written by Bro. O. D. Woodruff. A good, stirring, timely tract; just the thing to scatter everywhere, and should be scattered by the thousands. Price by mail, 10 cents per dozen; 75 cents per hundred; $6.20 per thousand. AG'T.

MUSIC.—New edition, "O, who'll stand up for Jesus?" Single 5 cents, postage 2 cents; 50 cents per dozen, postpaid. AG'T.

WHEN ARE SAINTS "BORN OF GOD"?

Two views are entertained upon this question, and both are likewise deficient. One view is that we are represented as being born of God when immortalized at the resurrection. The Scriptures teach both of these views. When a certain class imbibed the spirit of the devil, Jesus said to them, "Ye are of your father the devil," while another class imbibed the holy "spirit of adoption whereby they cry, Abba, Father." The moral change which places us in this holy relationship, is often represented by the figure of birth—an emerging out of one state into another—as in the following text—"Which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God" (John 1: 13), and by virtue of this change we are constituted the "children of God by faith," in a moral sense; but it is also true that a resurrection birth awaits the saints, by which they will be constituted the children of God in a physical sense—"the children of God, being the children of the resurrection."

Those who wish to invalidate the doctrine of a moral birth, and admit only a physical birth at the resurrection, attempt to dispose of the many texts that speak of our being "born of God" in this life, by claiming that the original term gennao, rendered "born," signifies begotten; but this claim not only sets aside that class of texts that speak of being "born" in this life, but also those texts relied upon to prove a resurrection birth; for the same original word, in one of its forms, is used in all these texts; and the rule that will allow it to be rendered "begotten" in the one class of texts, will require the same rendering in the other class, and thus make the Savior talk as follows: "Ye must be begotten again"; "Except a man be begotten again, he cannot see the kingdom of God"; "That which is begotten of the flesh is flesh; and that which is begotten of the spirit is spirit"—not "born," but "begotten," if the claim is valid. Thus this claim no more sets aside a moral birth, than it does a resurrection birth, for it is as fatal to the one as to the other.

Both a moral and a physical birth are taught, and both are in harmony. It would not be wise to conclude, because a man is to experience a physical death for sin at the judgment, that therefore he could not experience a moral death in this life; nor is it wise to conclude, because righteousness will secure a physical resurrection birth to all the holy, that therefore they cannot previously experience a moral birth, for "now are we the sons of God [morally], and it doth not yet appear what we shall be," for a physical change awaits us at the resurrection.

But it is claimed that to be "born again" implies a second birth, and that the second is the next after the first; and the question is raised, on the claim that the first is the natural birth, and that the second is the resurrection birth, How can we locate a moral birth between the first and second? This difficulty is only imaginary, for to be "born again" simply implies the second birth of the same order, and the next after the first of that particular order, but does not preclude an intervening birth of a different order, any more than "the second death," being the next literal death after the first literal death, would preclude a preceding moral death—"dead in trespasses and sins"—as it would make more than two deaths in the count. It is evident to all that there is a first and second death of one particular order of deaths, and another death of another order, and therefore not enumerated in the count of literal deaths; and on the same principle there can be a first and second physical birth, with an intervening moral birth, it being of another order of births, and not enumerated in the count of physical births. It is just as reasonable to include moral death in the count of deaths to be experienced by the sinner, thus making three deaths instead of two, as to include the moral birth of the saint in the count of births to be experienced by him, and then exclaim, "that makes too many," and then try to make out that the saint is only begotten morally, instead of being born morally.

To prove that none are yet born of God, reference is often made to John's statement: "Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin; for his seed remaineth in him, and he cannot sin, because he is born of God."—1 John 3: 9. John assigns the reason for this sinless state—"for his seed remaineth in him" —but when "the wicked one catcheth away the seed that was sown in his heart," he can sin again. Being "children of God by faith only, the losing of that principle changes our relationship to God; and it can be renewed again only by coming in possession of that principle again. But at the resurrection, when "a nation shall be born at once" (Isa. 66: 8), and we become in a physical sense the children of God, we shall be like Christ, immortalized and glorified, possessing the nature of God,—a relationship never to be lost.

W. S.

SOUL-IMMORTALITY.

After due reflection and candid investigation, we deliberately pronounce the popular dogma of soul-immortality both unreasonable and unscriptural. "Come and let us reason together." We here reiterate a few thoughts which we have presented elsewhere on this topic.

As there can be no effect without a cause, and as a stream cannot rise higher than the fountain from which it proceeds, neither can mortality transmit immortality, or corruptibility transmit incorruptibility; hence, if the human soul is immortal, the soul must propagate its species, or God must directly create a soul for every human offspring,—not excepting illegitimates. This last position would be a blasphemous slander against Jehovah!

But if the soul can propagate its species while connected with the body, why not subsequent to its separation, and thus have the "spirit land" filled with soul-infants, or immaterial children? Furthermore, if the soul can propagate its species, why was it ever encumbered with a body, or shut up in a prison-house, and left to raise a boundless generation of immaterial bondmen? The following facts are obvious:—

1st. The material part of man can transmit only materiality; hence, if the soul is immaterial, its origin is distinct from a propagation of the human species, unless souls propagate their species in concert with the body, yet distinct therefrom. Immortality is not the offspring of mortality.

2nd. Unless immortal souls propagate their species, where can we find the origin of such souls? Is God constantly creating such deathless entities to imprison in tenements of clay? Where is the proof that God thus directly helps along the great sin which he has so severely denounced, by manufacturing souls for even illegitimates?

3d. Thus, unless immortality can transmit immortality, and thus propagate its species, or, unless God creates a soul separate from the body, to infuse into each body, man is certainly destitute of an immortal soul. If immortality can transmit immortality, while dwelling in mortality, it can continue to do so when separate from the body, and thus an endless propagation of deathless entities would be the result.

4th. The nature of the human soul is determined by a Bible decision of its origin. "All the souls that came out of the loins of Jacob were seventy souls."—Ex. 1: 5. As the soul is transmitted by material man, it is mortal, as mortality cannot transmit immortality!

But how and when was this doctrine of soul-immortality first introduced into the church? They did not get it from the Jews, else they would have brought along with it that other sentiment—transmigration, and "rewards under the earth"—which the Jews always connected with it; besides, Christ distinctly cautioned his disciples against their doctrines—not only against the doctrine of the Sadducees who repudiated the doctrine of the resurrection, and discarded the existence of angels and satanic spirits, but also against the doctrine of the Pharisees, who, though they held these truths rejected by the Sadducees, nevertheless held errors against which Jesus would caution his disciples. Jesus never taught a future life except by a release from death, or a change to immortality, promising that the believer "may have everlasting life: and I will raise him up at the last day." John 6: 40.

Thus, instead of teaching his disciples the doctrine of an entrance upon an "everlasting life" at death, he taught them that they must first be raised up, even "at the last day." Such was the faith of the church till the ingathering of converts from heathen lands, who in process of time flooded the church with their unabandoned theories of life in death, taught by heathen philosophers; and though the early fathers remonstrated against the spread of this dogma in their ranks, it finally became popular.

But error never was converted into truth by getting into the church, and truth has never been converted into error by being turned out of the church. That which was true when first put into the Bible, is true still. "What is written? How readest thou?" It is written—"None can keep alive his own soul"—"the soul that sinneth it shall die."

W. S.

PETER'S ANGEL.

As drowning men catch at mere straws for support in their extremity, so theologians sometimes, when hard pressed, resort to the following statement to prove that the soul can live without a body: "Then said they, It is his angel." Acts 12: 15. The claim is set up that they supposed it was his soul; but the incorrectness of this position appears from these facts: (1) they did not say so; (2) Peter was alive, and they had been praying for him, which proves that they did not suppose he was dead, for they did not pray for dead men in those days; so they could not have thought that it was Peter's disembodied soul, unless they supposed that souls could leave the body still alive, and go off on journeys without the body; and if the body can get along without a soul for a short time, why not for a long time? and then what use in having a soul at all? (3) They doubtless supposed that it was his guardian angel, for we read, "The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him" (Ps. 34: 7), and that the angels are "ministering spirits, sent forth to minister for them who shall be heirs of salvation." Heb. 1: 14.

Jesus also says concerning living saints: "Their angels do always behold the face of my Father which is in heaven." Matt. 18: 10. This statement refers not to the dead saints, but to living ones. So Peter was supposed to have an angel that might have appeared to his brethren. W. S.

"THE INWARD MAN."

Is the inward man a personality residing in the body? This statement is made by theologians, but the connection in which the apostle uses the expression disproves the assumption, and shows that he used it as a synonym of mind. "I delight in the law of God after the inward man. . . . So then with the mind I myself serve the law of God." Rom. 7: 22, 25. Mind is as much the result of a living organism as instinct is, instead of being a personality independent of the body; for without mind, fear, joy, dread, surprise and sorrow would be impossible; and as it is admitted that all these sensations are traceable to the mind, and could not exist without mind, it cannot be denied that these very sensations exist in the animal creation, and must be the result of a living organism, and not of an entity within; and if these evidences of mind result from the organism in the case of animals, why not in the case of man? The mind dies with the body—"In that very day his thoughts perish." Ps. 146: 4. Mind becomes insane. Is it a spirit personality that is insane?

Paul tells us that "the inward man is renewed day by day." 2 Cor. 4: 16. The mind can be renewed; but this is not possible in the case of an immortal entity. It would be preposterous to talk of renewing the angels of heaven, for they are deathless, and can no more be renewed than Deity himself; and the same would be true of a deathless entity in man; but this inner man needs renewing, proving that it is not an internal personality, but the mental man, or mind of man. W. S.

"THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN IS AT HAND."

What was the meaning of that proclamation?

1. It could not have meant the reign of the Spirit in the hearts of the saints, for if the possession of the Spirit could be called a reign, that reign had long previously been introduced, for "holy men of old spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost."

2. It could not have meant that the Messiah was about to come, as some claim, for John the Baptist was not the only one that made this proclamation; it was made also after the Messiah had come—by Jesus himself, by the twelve, and by the seventy. It would be out of place to proclaim an event at hand after it had occurred.

3. This proclamation related to the predicted kingdom, and was true in a comparative sense—in the same sense in which Peter said, "The end of all things is at hand," the original for "at hand" being the same in both announcements. The remaining time was so short compared with the time that had already elapsed, that it could be said to be "at hand." But we have reached an epoch in the chain of events at which Jesus says we may know that this same kingdom "is nigh at hand." Then let us preach the unpopular message.

W. S.

For the World's Crisis.

AN APPEAL.

SISTER C. B. TURNER.

BRO. GRANT:—I wish to call the attention of our people once more to the case of Sister C. B. Turner, of Syracuse. Several calls at different times have been made through the Crisis, to which our brethren and sisters have nobly responded; but the amount thus raised (though greatly aiding our sister) has not been sufficient to lift the entire burden which has rested so heavily upon her. I now learn from her niece, that she has been in very poor health for a year past, and is unable to do any work. She has been under the doctor's care until recently, who charges for his services nearly $150, but agrees to take off one half. There is still a mortgage on her place of two hundred dollars, beside one year's interest. This mortgage became due on the first of October last; but she has had no means with which to meet the payment.

From the above statement it will be seen that about three hundred dollars is now needed to relieve our sister from her present embarrassment.

Now, brethren, what shall be done to raise this amount without delay? Feeling a deep interest in this matter, and believing it to be a christian duty to bear this sister's burden, and "so fulfill the law of Christ," I make the following proposition:—I will agree to raise one third of the whole amount, by the first of February, on condition that our brethren and sisters raise the other two thirds by the same time. Who will respond to this call? The case is urgent. Will not our ministering brethren take an interest in this matter? And will not each church take up a collection at once for this object? Let us remember the words of the Lord Jesus how that he said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive"; and that "the Lord loveth the cheerful giver"; and "inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of these, . . . ye have done it unto me."

Let there be an immediate response from all the friends of Christ in behalf of this afflicted sister. Send to Miles Grant, Boston, Mass., and the amount will be acknowledged in the Crisis from week to week. Your Bro. in Christ, A. H. BROWN.

Rahway, N. J.

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 24th, 1870, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year, and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

WM. B. HERRON, Sec'y Adv. Chr. Pub. Soc'y.

Remittances should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass., or they may be enclosed with remittances to the Crisis office.

Donations for the Tract Fund.

Previous acknowledgments	$165.13
A Friend	12.00
J. L D.	.50
J. A. Green	.50
Albert A. Haskell	.50
A Friend	2.00
A Friend	5.00

POOR FUND.

(To send the Crisis to the Poor.)

Previous acknowledgments	$20.60
M. E. Gregory	1.25

YOUNG PILGRIM FUND.

Previous acknowledgments	$5 09

AMER. ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

Donations are earnestly solicited, to enable this Society to send out missionaries, and other means, into the Southern States, and elsewhere, as the Lord may open the door, to proclaim "the glad tidings of the kingdom at hand": and should be sent, as also payments of pledges made, to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, P. O. Drawer 202, Boston, Mass., who will acknowledge the same in the columns of the Crisis.

Previous acknowledgments	$542.63
"Little Mary"	1.00

For the World's Crisis.

LETTER FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

TO THE CRISIS:—Eld. Miles Grant arrived here Saturday evening, Dec. 17th. Sunday afternoon following he participated in a discussion at Dashaway Hall, conducted by the officers and members of what is known as the "Lyceum of Self Culture." The vast majority of this Lyceum are infidels or spiritualists. A lady in the audience recognising the Elder, announced his presence, and he was summoned to the stand. His ten minutes' speech startled and electrified the audience. The subject of the debate was "The Atonement." He was invited to open the debate the following Sunday, the subject being "The Merits of Christ."

Last Thursday evening the Elder preached to a large audience in the Hall of the Young Men's Christian Association, and again at the same place on Saturday evening. Yesterday morning he preached in the upper Hall of the Association named.

Yesterday afternoon he opened the discussion at Dashaway Hall, on "The Merits of Christ," in a half-hour speech which, for succinctness and pertinence of statement and fervor of personal testimony, I have never heard excelled. It made an evident, deep impression upon the crowded audience. Then followed several infidels and spiritualists, in speeches breathing contempt and blasphemy, against the Savior of mankind. Two or three christians replied, in alternates; but they did not speak in good taste or to much edification. The audience were anxious to hear from the Elder again, and repeatedly called for him; but the two regular hours of the Lyceum having been consumed, he declined to make further argument. Besides, he could have but five minutes—an altogether insufficient space for "doing justice to the subject," as it then appeared. The Elder left the multitude anxious, thirsty for more of his instructive and nourishing speech. Perhaps on this account—if for no other reason—it was best that he should decline as he did to prolong the debate for the day.

Last evening the Elder preached to a large congregation in Columbia Square (Baptist church), the largest audience ever gathered within the walls of that church since the day of its dedication.

This is a holiday week. Next week is a week of "Prayer for the conversion of the world." During these two weeks it is the Elder's intention to engage in preaching and prayer meetings as occasion opens. Then will commence a regular series of sermons on the prophecies and the dogmas of the true faith respecting man's nature and destiny.

There are thousands here anxious to hear on the prophecies. He came most opportunely, and it may be reasonably expected that he will succeed in establishing a flourishing church in this city. He has been cordially welcomed by the leading daily newspapers, and prominent clergymen of "evangelical" sects have invited him to their prayer meetings. (That is about as far as they can safely go—at present!)

There should be a regularly established agency for the Crisis and for Second Advent publications in this city. Many have inquired of me where, in the city, the Second Advent publications could be had. People will not take the trouble to send for them by mail, unless they have become very much interested in the topics therein discussed. But if they were on sale at a periodical depot, conveniently situated, they would purchase in a liberal way. I think subscriptions could be obtained and books sold here, during the Elder's stay (which I hope will extend to the month of May, at least), sufficient to pay all the Mission expenses on the Coast for the year. And such an agency should be at a book or periodical store, and not at the private dwelling place of a brother. I speak of the profit on sales, etc., as amounting to cost of Mission, to indicate something within the probable receipts; not as an intimation that the cost of the Mission will be in one form or another thrown entirely on the Advent people of the East. For if Elder Grant remains here until the summer, I am confident there will be a larger, richer, more liberal Advent church established here than at present exists in any city of the Union. In this I think I have the spirit of prophecy.

But tracts are needed now to meet inquirers' demands. The Publication Board could make satisfactory arrangements with any one of half a dozen reputable magazine and newspaper dealers in this city, for the sale of books and papers. And the Elder should be supplied with a large invoice, at his rooms. So it seems to me.

I write this of my own notion, and without the knowledge or consent of the Elder; but I believe it would have his sanction, if submitted to him, if it did not seem to press too strongly for present aid and effort from the Eastern brethren; (and he might object to something written above as too commendatory of himself.) So he cannot see it!

You have done a good work in appointing the Elder to this Mission. You have determined more wisely than you knew. Your preacher is now known by name from one end of this great city to the other, and when the regular prophecy-series is commenced, he will have immense audiences. An abundant supply of tracts and papers will contribute greatly to perfect the work.

We are now enjoying that kind of weather which you in New England usually experience in the middle of September. When the Elder wakes up in the morning and looks at his diary-almanac, he sees that it is December. e.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 26th.

Correspondence.

From Sr. S. A. Ingham.

Bro. Grant:—I wish to acknowledge the following letters received last spring:—D. D. Chaffee, Wilbraham, Mass. I. C. Smith, Mattapoisset. S. S. Brewer, Ashburnham Depot. I. C. Wellcome, Yarmouth, Me. Asa Avery, Nashua, N. H. Olivia Buswell, Haverhill, Mass. L. E. Saulpaugh, Goffstown, N. H. M. Grant, Castleton, Vt. R. E. B., Stoneham, Mass.

The friends will please accept my thanks for their kindness in remembering our needs. If the gifts that the dear friends at Wellfleet, Truro, and Lynn, sent to us had come all safe, it would have relieved an anxious mind; but I have no doubt all these trials were needed, for I might have been trusting too much in what I had been asking for, and which I expected so much that I sent my little boy to the office, two miles distant, every mail day, for a long time; then I got almost discouraged, and told him not to go any more. He comforted me, and told me he was sure we would get something, for, said he, "I have got the greatest faith." And finally he brought me a letter from Sister Brittan, containing $2 from her and Sister Moulton, and which I soon after answered. (And here I would suggest, that letters containing money would be much safer if registered.)

Now a word about my invalid husband. He remains about the same as he was two years ago, in bodily health, but is a little better in his mind, for he seems more interested about things than he did. I think if he could be placed under some good medical treatment he might recover. I believe, as a brother said, he had full faith in the Lord's power to heal; yet he thought his power came in to work where man's power ends. The skill of man has not been proved on him. I have done all I can do, and I have about made up my mind that he will remain so until Jesus comes and makes him immortal. I wish He would come, for I am tired and weary of this groaning earth. I hope in his mercy, and therefore I expect he will give me, with his dear and more worthy saints, a home in his kingdom. Oh! what a blessed thought. There all will be peace. The tear be dried, the throbbing heart be hushed, and the long, long rest be given. How beautiful the new earth will be in its serene loveliness. My whole being sometimes longs to breathe its freshness and purity. I must be there, for "The better land no sorrow knows,

There hushed is every sigh;
The Savior's hand in kindness wipes
The tear-drops from each eye."

Your unworthy Sister,
S. A. Ingham.

Bro. C. H. Williams writes:—"We commenced meetings in Lorraine, N. Y. Sunday evening, Dec. 18th, and preached the gospel of the kingdom to good acceptance for one week. Notwithstanding the inclement weather and bad roads, the attendance was good; and, as the result of our efforts, four have started for the kingdom, while the old soldiers are strengthened and encouraged. Praise the Lord."

Sr. N. M. Howard writes:—"I am not a stranger to God, and I hope to soon see the work of the Lord beginning here in Alton, Pa. May his work soon begin, and we hear the name of God proclaimed, instead of curses. I like to read the Crisis very much, and learn more of the Bible through it than I have ever known before."

For the World's Crisis.

NEW YORK CONFERENCE.

MISAPPREHENSION CORRECTED.

The Secretary's report of the Honeoye Conference, and Bro. Fenn's letter, both of which appeared in a recent number of the Crisis, have in some quarters caused needless fears and serious misapprehensions to exist concerning the meaning and scope of the resolution relative to circuit preaching. I therefore hasten to make an explanation which I trust will be satisfactory.

The object of the conference in passing the resolution and in appointing its committee was to do the greatest good to the greatest number; or, in other words, to arrange for regular preaching at as many places as possible. The misapprehension is, that because the term "circuit preaching" was used, that the conference designed to adopt the Methodist form of government so far as the stationing of preachers was concerned. It should be recollected, however, that we have no Bishops, Presiding Elders, or Ecclesiastical Councils; that our form of government—if we have any at all—is not Episcopal, but Congregational; that no attempt has ever been made by our conference to dictate any course of conduct to the people, or to interfere in any manner with their choice of gospel teachers. The New York Conference does not arrogate to itself the right to legislate for the churches and societies which it represents. Measures and plans are devised and recommended by the conference; but so far as they concern the rights of the people represented, they are only advisory and never mandatory. We hope to devise a plan of circuit preaching in this State that will supply the wants of many localities that are now destitute of gospel instruction. The best plan that the ripest experience could devise, however, would be useless and unfruitful unless it received the hearty co-operation of the people, who, in this country, rightfully constitute "the court of final resort."

The members of each society or church will in every case have the undoubted right to choose their own preacher. This right, however, need not operate as a hindrance to circuit preaching. If a single church or society be able to sustain a pastor, and the field be such that he can labor most advantageously in one place or neighborhood, let such church or society engage the services of some proper person to discharge the duties of pastor. I think there are several such places in this State. In other instances, let two or more societies unite their strength and secure the services of some person whom they may choose, and have regular services, weekly, semi-monthly, or monthly, as they can arrange. Such preachers might exchange services occasionally with good effect.

Brethren, do not withhold your confidence, but give both it and your intelligent and hearty co-operation to those who are earnest laborers in the vineyard of the Master.

J. H. Whitmore.

"The Rainbow."—Will you allow me to say, through the Crisis, that I have received one answer to my letter, with subscription for the Rainbow for 1871. If any other brethren desire it, the price is $2.25 per year.

No. Scituate, R. I. W. Kellaway.

Married.

DOWNING—HODGDON. In Portsmouth, N. H., Dec. 4th, 1870, by Elder J. Couch, Mr. John Downing, of Newington, N. H., and Miss Annie Hodgdon, of Portsmouth.

HIGGINS—SARGENT. In Chelsea, Mass., by the same, Jan. 1st, 1871, Mr. Frank W. Higgins, of Worcester, Mass., and Miss Mary F. Sargent, of West Acton, Mass.

HILL—HORN. In Woodstock, N. H., Jan. 3d, 1871, by Elder A. W. Sibley, Mr. Josiah W. Hill and Miss Lizzie L. Horn, both of Alexandria, N. H.

BLANCHARD—BLANCHARD. In Savoy, Mass., Dec. 12th, at the residence of the bride's father, by Elder Z. D. Baird, Mr. Herbert M. Blanchard, of Williamstown, Mass., and Jennie S. Blanchard, of Savoy, Mass.

JACKMAN—LYON. In Hedgesville, Steuben Co., N. Y., Dec. 29th, 1870, by Eld. J. W. Taylor, Mr. C. B. Jackman, of Springwater, N. Y., and Miss Fidelia Lyon, of Woodhull, N. Y.

ROZEE—ROGERS. In Salem, Dec. 25th, 1870, by Elder C. E. Barnes, Mr. James Rozee, of London, Eng., and Miss Maggie Rogers, of Yarmouth, N. S.

Obituaries.

Bartlett. Died, in Salem, Vt., Nov. 12th, 1870, Sr. Hattie E., wife of Bro. John H. Bartlett, aged twenty-seven years, five months, and three days.

Sister Bartlett was a faithful wife, a kind and obliging neighbor, and much beloved by all who knew her. J. H. B.

Strath. Died, in Chicago, Jan. 3rd, of diphtheria, John Strath, only child of John and Elizabeth Strath, aged six months and eleven days.

Words of comfort were spoken by the writer from Rev. 21: 4. J. H. Bullard.

Bennett. Died, in Geneva, Van Buren Co., Mich., Dec. 9th, 1870, Sr. Olive G. Bennett, wife of Guy B. Bennett, and daughter of the late Bro. Lawrence Webster, of Conesus, N. Y.

Words of comfort were spoken by the writer on the funeral occasion, at her old home in Conesus. We buried her to sleep with her father until Jesus comes. Warren J. Hobbs.

Mower. Died, in Lynn, Mass., Nov. 25th, 1870, Edgar Mower, twin son of Edgar L. and Alda M. Felton, aged four months and three days.

Words of comfort were spoken to the bereaved parents by Bro. James Young. H. E. F. S.

Tilton. Died, in Bolton, P. Q., Nov. 19th, 1870, Theophilus Tilton, aged ninety-three years.

Some fifty years since he gave his heart to God and joined the Methodist church, remaining a member until he became interested in the soon coming of our Lord and Master, and lived a devoted christian life till death. He leaves two sons and one daughter to mourn his loss; but they have the blessed consolation that he sleeps in Jesus, and that our Master is soon coming to wake the sleeping dead. A discourse by the writer from St. John 11: 25. John Chapman.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

London, January 4.—A telegram from Basle reports that there was fighting on Sunday on the Swiss frontier, in consequence of which two hundred French troops retreated into Switzerland, where they were disarmed by the Federal soldiers.

Bordeaux, via London, Jan. 5.—During the battle which took place in the vicinity of Bapaume, the ground occupied by the hostile armies was several times lost and retaken. The French troops took six villages during the engagement, storming and capturing every position in which the Prussians endeavored to establish themselves, as slowly but irresistibly they were being driven back by the brilliant and impetuous charges of the French battalions.

The Prussians lost 3,000 troops in the engagement. The decisive victory gained by the French troops on this occasion was mainly attributable to the excellence of their artillery, and the splendid manner in which it was handled. The enemy observed this, and several times during the battle made determined charges with the view of effecting a capture of the batteries and position held by the enemies artillerists, but the efforts proved futile.

Every attempt was met by a tremendous raking cannonade which so thinned their columns that they were forced after several attempts to abandon the project as hopeless. Great excitement prevails at Bordeaux, where the details of the engagement have been just received. The people and troops are wild with exultation over the success of the French

London, Jan. 5. The British Government has ordered 80,000 Roper rifles.

Berlin, Jan. 6. Official dispatches from Versailles announce that the town of Recroi (fifteen miles northwest of Mezieres,) after a severe bombardment surrendered to the Prussians. To-day a large number of prisoners were captured.

London, Jan. 5. Jules Favre has informed Bismark, through the medium of Mr. Washburne, that he knows nothing of the European Conference, and will not leave Paris to attend it.

London, Jan. 9. The Times' special correspondent with Prince Frederick Charles describes the fighting along the Loire in the Forest of Vendome, and at Montone, on the 6th inst., and says: "The French retreated westward. The Prussians are following them, and meet with but little resistance. The Germans captured by the French are sent to the Island of Oberon, on the west coast of France, opposite the mouth of the Charante."

Many Bonapartist agents have been arrested in France.

Versailles, Jan. 9. Little firing is going on along the German investing line to-day. The effects of the late bombardment have been of a most decided character, and the forts are now nearly silent.

The command of Garibaldi is now operating on the Swiss frontier.

New York, Jan. 5.—The New York Herald correspondent at Versailles writes:

It is reported here that King William has summarily dismissed the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg from the command of the right wing of Prince Frederick Charles' army. The reason for this is stated to be the failure of Mecklenburg to keep the French forces at a respectable distance from the investing lines around Paris.

At the present moment it appears probable that the French armies commanded by Gens. Bourbaki and Chanzy will assume the offensive and make a combined attack upon Prince Frederick Charles. It is feared that such an attack will result successfully for the French, who are reported to be in superior numbers.

It is evident here that the German soldiers are growing tired and weary of the struggle, the incessant marching and counter-marching and the repeated battles without decisive results. Outside of the investing line before Paris the Prussian ring is daily contracting, while from inside of Paris the French ring is continually expanding.

The Seine river is now frozen hard, and the ice is solid enough to bear the weight of large numbers of men and artillery. As the French garrison in Paris is quite plucky you may hear of their doing something astonishing shortly.

☞ "Death," says a Sante Fe paper, "with fleshless knuckles, rapped at the door of Mrs. J. N. B——'s soul, and, obedient to the inexorable call, the spirit of that loved woman floated up to its Creator, leaving her husband, children, and friends to mourn over the mortal casket."

DOMESTIC.

A Man Drowned while being Baptized.—One of the most melancholy and heart-rending accidents which it has been our duty as a news-gatherer to chronicle, occurred near this village on Sunday last. The particulars, in brief, are as follows: A few weeks since Dr. A. P. Pownall, of this place, after a brief courtship, was married to Miss Mary J. Wilson, also a resident of this place. Shortly after his marriage, Dr. Pownall united with the Christian Church, and Sunday last was the day appointed for his baptism, he having requested his pastor, Rev J. B. Hough, to perform the rite. At the appointed hour a large number of persons had assembled on the banks of Crooked Creek, the place chosen for the immersion. After singing and prayer, everything being in readiness, the Rev. Hough entered the water, leading the Doctor, and, the descent being very gradual they were obliged to proceed some distance from the shore in order to reach a sufficient depth, but suddenly both were seen to go down, having stepped over a bank concealed by the water; both soon arose to the surface, and the Rev. Hough regained the bank; but the Doctor being unabled to swim, was swept by a current under a flood-gate only a short distance below; every exertion was made to save him, but in vain.

The body was soon after found and brought to shore, amid the most heart-rending screams from his young wife and friends. Everything possible was done to resuscitate the Doctor, but the vital spark was flown. This sad occurrence has cast a gloom over the country for miles around, all joining in extending their sympathy to Mrs. Pownall. As I have remarked, the Dr. had been married but a short time, his marriage being published in the Gazette at the time.—Cor. Cin. Gaz., Dec. 5th.

☞ The religious condition of our legislative Senate and Assemblies is strikingly illustrated by the following incident:

Soon after the opening of the session of the Vermont State Senate, a few members resolved to establish a daily morning prayer meeting. A Bible was needed, and a messenger was sent to the library for one. When inquired for, the astonished clerk said, "A Bible! what do they want of that book? Does any one think they can live religion here? or are they going to study it to make the laws by?" and from all in the room the loud laugh was heard. Again the question, "Where is it wanted?" and at the answer, "In the Military Committee Room," again the laugh went round. When the chaplain of the Senate, Rev. Mr. E——, who had quietly come in, stepped forward and said, "Yes; the soldiers of the Cross are to meet in the Military Committee room for prayer," quiet was suddenly restored. At the first meeting eight persons were present, and one Senator rose and said "the blessed God that by coming there he had found that his seat-mate was a christian man." Each day the numbers increased, until, at the time it was spoken of, some twenty were in attendance, and it was hoped that more might be induced to come.—News.

Religious Items.

—We learn of an extensive revival in Brunswick, Maine, commencing in the Methodist church there. Some twenty, we are informed, came forward one night, when there had been no marked religious interest. Nearly one hundred hopeful conversions are reported already.—It is related of the late Dr. Albert Barnes that his notes on the New Testament, comprising about twenty volumes, were written before nine o'clock in the morning to avoid trespassing upon the daily professional pursuits of the author.—There is quite a revival in progress in Brown's University.—The last [illegible] ecclesiastical parish in the Commonwealth is the West Parish in Andover, established March 3, 1827, and its bounds were thus carefully stated. "Beginning at a stake and stones, thence northerly to a hop-kiln, thence easterly to a white oak tree, thence along the Shawshine, thence along the Merrimac."—Huxley, the English atheist and materialist has recently pronounced very decidedly in favor of the introduction of the Bible as a "reading book" in the common schools. The ground of his advocacy is, that there must be a moral substratum to a child's education to make it valuable; and that there is no other source from which this can be obtained at all comparable with the Bible.—A new Christian Church has been organized in Salem, and services are held every Sunday in Fraternity Hall.—Mayor Selby, of San Francisco, has given his official income for the present year, amounting to $4,200, to the public charities of that city.—The Evangelist says that the controversy about Papal Infallibility is not, and will not be smothered. It would be a grave mistake to suppose that the opposition to the new dogma is dying out. Rather, there is evidence of its growing strength in Germany and Italy. Many who have been reported as having yielded their assent, seem now to be drawing back. Of the forty-five Austro-Hungarian Bishops who maintained a hostile attitude to the dogma at Rome a majority are still consistent, and firm and strong in their opposition. In the German Universities, especially, the numerical preponderance is said to be decidedly against the decree. At least 95 per cent. of the Lay Professors, and 80 per cent. of the Theological Professors, are in distinct opposition, and will not yield.

In Brief.

—The Bordeaux correspondent of the Daily News writes to his paper that the French delegate to the London conference will be instructed to demand the absolute recognition of the French Republic, and if the demand is refused he will decline taking any part in its deliberations.—At the request of Bismarck Austria will accredit a representative to Versailles.—Greenland, which has about seven hundred inhabitants, has in a space of five-eighths of a mile, one hundred and six inhabitants, nine of whose ages combined is seven hundred and thirty-four years, averaging over eighty-one and a half years, being equal to an average of one to twelve over eighty-one years of age.

Notices.

Mass. State Conference.

The time has almost arrived for the next quarterly session of the Mass. State conference. What church desires to have us meet with them? Let us know! Let it be known soon. We would do all we can for Jesus. Any church wishing the conference to meet with them, will do us a great pleasure and the cause good by writing to the President or Secretary at once.

Geo. A. Streeter, Sec. of Conf.

North Dana, Mass.

Notice.

If any of the churches in Mass. desire the quarterly conference to hold a session among them in the month of January, let us know it soon, and preparation will be made, and the meeting notified.

L. Boutell.

Dedication.

The Lord willing, the meeting-house at Newcastle, N. H., will be dedicated to the Lord, Jan. 18th, 1871, services commencing at ten o'clock A. M. Dedication sermon at 2 o'clock P. M.

Also the meeting-house at South Berwick, Me. (Great Works), Jan. 22nd, 1871.

The Lord has been very good in blessing the New Hampshire Tent Mission, and as it has beat its way into those places with the living word, hearts have been made to yield to the economy of grace. These houses are the result. We give a cordial invitation to all the Lord's children to attend. Let prayer go up to God in behalf of these meetings. For the brethren,

D. M. Leavitt.
G. W. Brown.
J. C. Shorey.

Notice.

A protracted meeting will be held at East Rochester, N. H., commencing Sunday, Jan. 29th, and hold through the week, and over the following Sabbath. Elds. D.M. Leavitt, G.W. Brown, T W Piper, and others, will preach the word. We desire that the brethren who labor with the Lord will be present to add strength to the work.

For the church, J. C. Shorey.
Jas. Quimby.

Notice.

A protracted meeting will be held at London Ridge, N. H., commencing Thursday, Jan. 12th, and continue over the Sabbath following. Eld. D. M. Leavitt, and others, are expected to be present. All are invited.

For the church, Daniel L. Moore.

Notice.

By the grace of God, there will be a protracted meeting held at Lisbon, N. H., commencing Jan. 10th, at 7 P. M., to continue over the following Sabbath. We desire that brethren who labor with the Lord, will be present to add strength to the work.

A. Damon.

Notice.

I will hold a meeting in West Ossipee, N. H., evenings, Jan. 20th, 27th, and 28th, and Sunday, Jan. 29th. We extend a cordial invitation to the working brethren to meet with us to help in the good work of saving dying souls.

E. S. Moulton.

Minnesota Conference.

The ninth annual conference of the Advent Christian Church of Minnesota will convene at Winona, Friday morning, January 20th, 1871, at nine o'clock.

Special attention is called to the following, to facilitate the business sessions:

1. The officers of the different quarterly conferences will prepare written reports of business transacted in their respective districts the past year, together with an account of money raised by quarterly and church collections as provided in the constitution.

2. As it is desirable to make up the statistics of the conference at this session, each church is requested to report its present membership and the number added the past year.

3. Each church is entitled to one delegate for every eight members; and as business of special importance will be transacted, every church ought to be represented.

4. In case any of the preaching brethren are not able to be present, they are especially requested to report by letter.

There will be service on Thursday evening previous. Eld. P. Ramer and Bro. A. A. Gilbert will meet friends at the depot, and those coming with teams will call at their houses.

Edwin T. Himes, Sec'y.

P. S. Since writing the above, Bro. Ramer informs me that the Advent Christian Church at Winona is so far completed, that it will be ready for the use of the conference. It is built on Broadway, near the corner of Winona Street. He also says he will effect an arrangement with the Winona and St. Peter R. R., so that brethren can come over that road at reduced rates. We can not state positively that the arrangement is now made; but before purchasing tickets on that road, let the friends inquire for excursion tickets to conference at Winona. E. T. H.

Minnesota.

The fourth quarterly meeting of the Winona District Minn. Conf., will be held in the Advent Christian Chapel (in connection with the Annual Conference), in Winona, Friday morning, Jan. 20th, 1871. Unfinished business of the third quarterly conference will be attended to. There will be service on Thursday evening previous. Persons coming by the Winona and St. Peter railway, will inquire for return or excursion tickets at the stations where they take the cars.

EXCURSION TICKETS.

All persons intending to attend this conference, coming from points on the Winona and St. Peter railroad, as follows: St. Peter, Mankato, Owatona, Utica, etc., stations, are hereby informed that arrangements have been made with the railroad company, and parties will please inquire for "excursion tickets," which will be good from Jan. 19th to 24th inclusive. T. K. Allen.

Philip Ramer, Sec.

Notice.

There will be a quarterly meeting of the Iowa Christian Conference at Boylan's Grove, commencing Jan. 27th, 1871, at early candle light. All are cordially invited to come to this meeting. Come praying that the cause may be furthered on by your coming. May the Lord's blessing attend this meeting.

Alonzo Raymond, Clerk of Conf.

Conference.

There will be a Conference in Cushing, Me., to commence Thursday evening, Feb. 2nd, 1871, and hold over Sunday. A free invitation to all ministers and laymen to work for the good of the cause of Christ.

S. R. Partridge.
J. T. Hemenway.

Notice.

I wish to say to friends in western New York, that I shall not return home till late in the month of January. Letters will reach me if sent to Danbury, Ct., care of V. R. Fenn, till Jan. 7th, and afterward at the different places of appointment in connection with my name. E. S. Jennings.

Notice.

At the Ohio State Conference, Bro. C. D. Jefferson proposed to furnish a Mission Tent for the State, provided the conference furnish two preachers to go with the tent. The following brethren were appointed to solicit pledges for the above purpose, and report to the president of the conference, on or before the first of Jan., the amount pledged; and if sufficient is pledged, Bro. Jefferson will proceed to furnish the tent, and we shall endeavor to put two good and faithful laborers in the field to labor for the cause of truth; A. B. Benedict, Nevada, O.; J. M. Treadwell, Fairfield; Martin Agner, Rockbridge; S. F. Rodgers, Norwalk; A. Mackey, Seal; Martin Bacon, Bucyrus; P. T. Light, Plymouth; Dr. H. Kester, New London; Bro. Beadly, White House, Lucas Co.; Thos. Boardman, Shiloh; Henry Rust, Stryker; Wm. Seddall, Pioneer; Geo. English, Montpelier; N. R. Cheadle, Delta; Geo. B. Terwelligar, Antwerp. Dear brethren, now is the time for action. Will you take hold of this matter at once, and report your success, so that we may know what to do? and the Lord will bless you.

E. McCulloch, President of Conf.

P. S. Churches desiring the first quarterly conference held with them, will please notify us immediately. E. M.

Notice.

Preaching brethren wishing to visit the church in Worcester, will please consult one of the following committee, appointed for the year 1871, before sending their appointments:

H. F. Collier,
H. W. Buxton, or
E. G. Higgins.

Notice.

Preachers visiting Lawrence, Mass., to preach, will please stop with Bro. F. Flanders, 44 Morton street. By order of the church.

Notice.

Preaching brethren wishing to visit the church in Lawrence, will please consult one of the following committee: George Churchill, John T. Merrill, Ephraim Fisk.

☞ Brethren who wish to preach in Clinton, Mass., are requested to publish notice in Crisis.

☞ Will James Locke, who wrote me last Nov. to come to his place without fail, and did not say what town he lived in, inform me of his place of residence? Israel Damman.

Corinna, Me.

Notice.

Putney's Hall, Sutton Mills, N. H. Meetings every Sabbath for the present. This is a new movement on the part of the Advent people of Sutton, and we think it is according to the will of the Lord. Brethren, pray for us.

A. Chesley, }
Frank Nelson, } Committee.
Sam'l Rowell. }

Notice.

The brethren in Bowdoinham Village, Me., have hired Hinkley's Hall for a few months, and invite preaching brethren who can come and break the bread of life, to give notice through the Crisis.

For the brethren, N. G. Reed.

Notice.

The brethren in Honeoye Village, Ontario Co., N. Y., have a neat and commodious hall, and invite preaching brethren, who can come and break the bread of life, to give notice through the Crisis, or correspond with the Secretary,

O. B. Brown.

Notice.

By the permission of the Lord, there will be a conference held at Carr's Corner, Dexter, Me., every third Saturday in each month, at two o'clock, and also meeting on Lord's day following. Preaching brethren coming this way are invited to lend a helping hand. A pilgrim's home may be found at John H. Brown's. O. G. Trundy.

Notice.

The Advent Christian Church in Nashua, N. H. have hired a hall in Beasom's Block, corner of Maine and Factory Streets, up two flights of stairs, well fitted up, where we shall hold meetings three times on the Sabbath, and Thursday and Saturday evenings. For the brethren, Nathaniel Eaton.

Notice.

Bro. W. Kellaway (from England) having received an invitation from the North Scituate Church, R. I., to become their pastor, has engaged to stay (D. V.) till April 1st, 1871. He will be at liberty one Sunday in each month, when he will be pleased to respond to invitations given him to visit other quarters. Meetings at North Scituate Sundays, at 10½ A. M. and 1½ and 6½ P. M. Tuesday evenings at Greenville, 6½ P. M. Wednesday evenings at East Gloucester, 6½ P. M. Thursday evenings at North Scituate, 6½ P. M. Saturday evenings (prayer meetings) at Scituate, 6½ P. M. Brethren in the neighborhood are invited to come in and help.

The Advent church and society at Lewiston, Me., have removed their place of worship to Central Hall, No. 5½ Central Block. Per order of the church, J. A. Jordan.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston, corner of Causeway and Lowell Streets. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

Lowell Street Chapel.

Hiram Munger .... Sunday, Jan. 15th

Boston, (Branch Chapel), 1735 Washington Street, corner of Madison Street.

Meetings at 10½ A. M., and 3 and 7½ P. M.

Nathan Whiting .... Wednesday evening, Jan. 11th
John G. Hook, Sunday, Jan. 15th, and onward every evening, except Saturday evening.

Chelsea, Mass.

Granite Block, Hall No. 1, corner of Broadway and Fourth Streets. Entrance on Fourth Street.
(Up two flight of stairs.)

M. Batchelor .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
S. S. Brewer .... Sunday, Jan. 22d
H. Munger .... Sunday, Jan. 29th

Charlestown.

Preaching at Charlestown, (Evening Star Hall, No. 33 Main Street), every Lord's day.

T. M. Preble .... Sabbath, Jan. 15th
John Couch .... Sunday, Jan. 22d
J. S. White .... Sunday, Jan. 29th

Meetings in South Boston on Wednesday evenings No. 2 Lowland Street.

Friday evenings, No. 227 E. St. Bay-View horse cars pass by. Come and welcome. C. W. Huntress.
J. N. Berry.

Natick, Mass .... Sunday, Jan. 22d
C. Goodrich.

Chicopee, Mass .... Jan. 12th
Springfield, Mass .... Jan. 13th
New Britain, Ct .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
Southington, Ct .... Jan. 17th
New Haven, Ct .... Jan. 18th
New York City (Cooper Institute) .... Sun., Jan. 22d
Holden, Mass .... February 5th
Wakefield, Mass .... February 19th
J. S. White.

New Bedford, Mass .... Sundays, Jan. 15th, 22d, and 29th.
Geo. A. Brown.

Melvin Village, N. H. .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
Rye, N. H. .... Sundays, Jan. 22d and 29th
Bro. Willey will probably be with me.
J. H. F. Varney.

Meredith Centre, N. H. .... Sabbath, Jan. 15th
Noah Glidden.

Manchester, N. H. .... Sundays, Jan. 15th and 22d
East Acworth, N. H. .... Sunday, Jan. 29th
O. H. Fletcher.

Huntington, Mass .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
Southington, Ct .... Sunday, Jan. 22d
Lynn, Mass .... Sunday, Jan. 29th
E. Owen.

Webster, Mass .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
Seabrook, N. H. .... Sunday, Jan. 22d
Mrs. L. M. Stoddard.

North Haverhill, N. H. .... Friday evening, Jan. 13th
Campton, N. H. (Bump school-house) .... eve., Jan. 21st
Holderness, N. H. (True school-house) Sun., Jan. 22d
Daniel D. Page.

West Groton, Vt. (Ricker school-house) evening, Jan. 14th, and over Sunday. Geo. E. Brown.
Daniel D. Page.

Claremont, N. H., Saturday evening, Jan. 14th, and over Sunday. Let friends all around rally for one good meeting.
Windsor, Vt .... evenings, Jan. 18th and 19th
West Fairlee, Vt .... Sunday, Jan. 22d
Rutland, Vt .... Sunday, Jan. 29th
H. F. Carpenter.

Holderness, N. H. (Brick school-house) Sun., Jan. 15th
Lisbon, N. H., Tuesday evening, Jan. 17th, every evening through the week, and Sunday, Jan. 22d.
North Haverhill, N. H. (Brick Church) eve., Jan. 23d
Warren Village .... evening, Jan. 24th
Meredith Village .... evening, Jan. 25th
Alton (Stockbridge Corner) .... evening, Jan. 28th
Seabrook, N. H. .... Sunday, Jan. 29th
Deerfield, Old Centre .... evening, Feb. 2d
North Sutton (at Bro. Israel Andrews' house) Sunday, Feb. 5th.
Sutton Mills .... Tuesday evening, Feb. 7th
Rye, N. H. .... Sunday, Feb. 12th
North Barrington, N. H. (Felker school-house) Sunday, Feb. 19th. J. Pinkham.

Swift Water, N. H. .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
A. A. Hoyt.

Bingham, Potter Co., Pa. (in connection with Bro. A. H. Briggs), Friday evening, Jan. 20th, 1871, to continue over the Sabbath following. J. W. Taylor.

Sutton Mills, N. H. (meeting-house) ... Sun., Jan. 15th
O. W. Kimball, C. W. Sargent.

Chichester, N. H., Pine Ground, (for baptism if desired), Sunday, Jan. 15th. Chas. R. Parsons.

Rochester Plains, N. H. .... Sunday, Jan. 29th
A. S. Williams, Chas. R. Parsons.

Barnstead, N. H. (Clarktown meeting-house) Sunday, Jan. 15th. A. S. Williams.

Farmington Village, N. H. .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
H. M. Bryant.

West Canterbury, N. H. ... Saturday evening, Jan. 21st and over Sunday, Jan. 22d. Enoch Morrill.

Exeter, N. H. .... Sunday, Jan. 22d and 29th
Seabrook, N. H. .... Tuesday evening, Jan. 31st
Sarah K. Taylor.

Rye, N. H. (with Bro. C. H. Willey) Sabbaths, Jan. 22d and 29th. J. H. F. Varney.
The first Sabbath in each month is supplied.

Bradford, N. H. (Bush meeting-house) Sab., Jan. 15th
Fisherville, N. H. (Sander's Hall) Sabbath, Jan. 22d
At Bro. Morgan's .... evening, Jan. 23th
Salisbury, N. H. (Smith's Corner, meeting-house) Sabbath, Jan. 29th.
At Bro. Daniel Vessey's, Saturday evening, Feb. 4th
Meredith, N. H. (Dolloff Hall) .... Sabbath, Feb. 5th
Simeon Rory.

North Haverhill, N. H. (Brick Church) eve, Jan. 23d
Piermont, N. H. (Clay meeting-house), evenings, Jan. 24th and 25th.
Will Bro. Wm. Shaw meet me at Haverhill depot, on arrival of the first train from Lancaster, Jan. 24th?
Warren Summit, N. H. .... evening, Jan. 27th
Meredith, N. H. (Dolloff Hall) evening, Jan. 28th, and over Sunday. Will Bro. Dolloff meet me at the depot on arrival of the down train, Jan. 28th?
Lake Village, N. H. .... evening, Jan. 30th
Concord, N. H. (at the Bethel) .... evening, Jan 31st
Manchester, N. H. .... evening, Feb. 1st
Brentwood .... evening, Feb. 3d
West Kingston, N. H. .... Sunday, Feb. 5th
A. Gordon.

Portsmouth, N. H. .... Friday evening, Jan. 20th, and over Sunday, the 22d.
Lawrence, Mass .... Sunday, Jan. 29th
Lynn, Mass .... Sunday, Feb. 12th
M. Batchelor.

Keene, N. H. .... evening, Jan. 12th
North Springfield, Vt .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
Dinsmore Hill ... evenings, Jan. 17th, 18th and 19th
Bridgewater, Vt .... Sundays, Jan. 22d and 29th
Geo. A. Cole.

Lewiston, Me .... Sundays, Jan. 22d and 29th
Austin W. Taylor.

Montgomery, Mass .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
Geo. A. Streeter.

Hoosick, N. Y. .... Sabbath, Jan. 22d
C. Pike.

East Boston, Mass .... evening, Jan. 13th
Lawrence, Mass. (Chapel) .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
Nashua, N. H. .... evening, Jan. 17th
East Canaan .... Jan. 19th
North Haverhill (Union House) .... Sunday, Jan. 22d
North Benton .... Jan. 24th
Dalton, N. H. (John's River school-house) Jan. 26th
Colebrook, N. H. (Kidderville) .... Sunday, Jan. 29th
Caswell Borough, P. Q. .... Sunday, Feb. 5th
U. G. Lane.

Great Falls, N. H. .... Sunday, Jan. 29th
Joseph W. White.

Poultney, Vt .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
Fort Edward, N. Y. .... Sunday, Jan. 22d
Mrs. E. S. Jennings.

Wakefield, Mass .... Sabbath, Jan. 22d
H. Munger.

North Haverhill, N. H. .... Sabbath, Jan. 15th
Lisbon Village, N. H. .... evenings, Jan. 18th to 21st and over the Sabbath. T. W. Piper.

East Rochester, N. H. .... Sabbath, Jan. 15th
Great Falls, N. H. .... Sabbath, Jan. 22d
S. G. Mooney.

East Rochester .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
If any of the above conflict, write me at Great Falls, N. H. J. Bickford.

Sandwich, N. H. (Vittum school-house) Sunday, Jan. 15th. (Lord's Supper.)
Melvin Village, N. H. .... Sunday, Feb. 5th
Manchester, N. H. .... evening, Feb. 15th
Goffstown, N. H. .... Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
E. S. Moulton.

Wilbraham, Mass .... Sabbath, Jan. 15th
Woodstock Valley, Ct .... Sabbath, Jan. 22d
Webster, Mass .... Sabbath, Jan. 29th
P. S. Butler.

Plymouth, Mass .... evening, Jan. 10th
Lawrence, Mass .... evening, Jan. 12th
Exeter, N. H. .... evening, Jan. 13th
Seabrook, N. H. .... Sabbath, Jan. 15th
Rye, N. H. .... evening, Jan. 18th
Dover, N. H. .... Sabbath, Jan. 22d
Great Falls, N. H. .... evening, Jan. 25th
Kennebunk Depot, Me .... evening, Jan. 26th
Kennebunkport, Me .... evening, Jan. 27th
Biddeford, Me .... Sabbath, Jan. 29th
Lewiston, Me .... Feb. 5th and 12th
Bath, Me .... Sabbaths, Feb. 19th and 26th
C. H. Sweet.

Farmington, N. H. .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
J. G. Smith.

Rye, N. H. .... Sabbath, Jan. 15th
S. Julia Buswell.

Middlesex, Vt .... evenings, Jan. 11th and 12th
Stowe, Vt., evenings, Jan. 13th and 14th, Sunday, Jan. 15th, evenings through the week, and Sunday Jan. 22d.
Plymouth, Vt .... Sunday, Jan. 29th
Z. T. Wood.

Springfield, Mass .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
West Meriden, Conn .... Sunday, Jan. 22nd
Springfield, Mass ... Sundays, Jan. 29th and Feb. 5th
Wm. N. Pile.

Roxbury, Ct .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
Pawling, N. Y. .... Sunday, Jan. 22d
Lakeville, Ct .... Sunday, Jan. 29th
H. K. Walling.

Goffstown, N. H. .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
Biddeford, Me .... Sabbath, Jan. 22d and 29th
D. F. Leavitt.

Camden, N. J., three o'clock P. M. ... Sunday, Jan. 8th
F. H. Burbank.

Warehouse Point .... Tuesday evening, Jan. 10th
Warehousepoint, Ct .... Sabbath, Jan. 15th
Danielsonville, Ct .... Sabbath, Jan. 22d
J. T. Dixon.

Meredith, N. H. (Dolloff Hall) ... evenings, Jan. 12th and 13th.
Lake Village, N. H. .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
Pittsfield, N. H. .... evenings, Jan. 16th and 17th
Northwood Narrows, N. H. .... evenings, Jan. 18th, 19th and 20th, and over Sunday, the 22d.
Seabrook, N. H. .... Sunday, Feb. 12th
Rye, N. H. .... Sunday, Feb. 19th
Wm. C. Stewart.

Wallace Station, Steuben Co, 2 P. M., Jan. 21st, and over Sunday, the 22nd, or at Avoca (if so arranged) Sunday evening.
Ward, Tioga Co., Pa. (as Bro. Wm. Fletcher may arrange), evening, Jan. 24th, and over the following Sunday. C. F. Sweet.

Providence, R. I. .... Sabbath, Jan. 22d
T. M. Preble.

New Milford, Ct .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
Wm. J. Ripley.

Ansonia, Ct .... Saturday evening, Jan. 14th
Waterbury, Ct .... Sunday, Jan. 15th and onward for two weeks.
Savoy, Mass. (New Chapel) ... Tuesday eve., Jan. 31st
Wakefield, Mass .... Sunday, Feb. 5th
H. K. Flagg.

North Somers, Ct .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
Morris, Ct .... Thursday evening, Jan. 19th and over the following Sabbath. G. L. White.

Warehouse Point, Ct .... Sunday, Jan. 29th
Shrewsbury, Mass .... Sunday, Feb. 5th
Great Falls, N. H. .... Sunday, Feb. 12th
Dover, N. H. .... Sunday, Feb. 19th
S. C. Hancock.

Milo, Me .... Sunday, Jan. 22d
Sangerville, Me .... Sunday, Jan. 29th
Israel Damman.

Northville, Newport, N. H. .... Sabbath, Jan. 22d
Frank Nelson.

West Poland, Me. (Free Chapel) ... Sunday, Jan. 15th
Bryant's Pond .... Sunday, Jan. 22d
South Windham .... Sunday, Jan. 29th
J. Albert Libby.

Providence, R. I. .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
M. R. Pettteplace.

Wolcott, N. Y. .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
Alton, N. Y., Jan. 16th, through the week, and over the following Sunday. Will some one meet me at Wolcott?
Honeoye, N. Y., Jan. 23d, through the week, and over the following Sunday.
Brockport, N. Y. .... evening, Jan. 31st
Chas. P. Greenman.

Bowdoinham (Lancaster school-house) Sun., Jan. 15th
L. D. Totman.

Windsor, Me., (Prebble school-house) Sun., Jan. 15th
Jefferson (where Bro. Somes may appoint) ... Jan. 22d
Augusta (Ballad school-house) .... Sunday, Jan. 29th
Thomas Rines.

West Plymouth, N. H. (Brick school-house near Bro. Nelson's) Sabbath, Jan. 15th. A. H. Clark.

There will be a meeting at Warren, Mass., every Sunday hereafter until further notice.
Rufus Baker.

North Easton, Mass. (Ripley Hall) .... every Sunday
Geo. Watson.

Worcester, Mass.

J. Hemenway .... Sunday, Feb. 5th
S. S. Brewer .... Sunday, March 5th
J. Couch .... Sunday, March 12th

Lawrence, Mass.

L. Boutell .... Sunday, Jan. 22d
C. E. Barnes .... Sunday, Jan. 29th
H. Pratt .... Sundays, Feb. 5th and 12th
C. Goodrich .... Sunday, Feb. 19th

Lowell, Mass.

W. H. Mitchell ... Sundays, Jan. 15th, 22d, and 29th

Fitchburg, Mass.

S. S. Brewer .... Sundays, Jan. 15th and 29th

Portsmouth, N. H.

Mrs. L. M. Stoddard .. Sundays, Jan. 29th and Feb. 5th

Concord, N. H. (Centre Street.)

L. Boutell .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
C. H. Fletcher .... Sabbath, Feb. 5th
A. P. Moore .... Sundays, Jan. 22d and 29th
A. Damon .... Sunday, Feb. 12th

Concord, N. H., (at the Bethel.)

A. Simpson .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
C. S. Shattuck .... Sundays, Jan. 22d and 29th
E. Owen .... Sunday, Feb. 5th
E. S. Moulton .... Sunday, Feb. 12th

Collinsville, Ct.

S. Woodruff .... Sabbath, Jan. 15th
H. K. Flagg .... Saturday evening, Jan. 28th and over the following Sabbath, Jan. 29th.

Manchester, N. H.

Geo. W. Brown .... Sunday, Jan. 8th
C. H. Fletcher .... Sundays, Jan. 15th and 22d
Allen Damon .... Sunday, Jan. 29th
C. S. Shattuck .... Sunday, Feb. 5th
W. H. Mitchell .... Sunday, Feb 12th
M. Batchelor .... Sunday, Feb. 19th

Pleasant Valley, Ct.

R. K. Stark .... Sunday, Jan. 22d
Sr. M. L. Durand .... Sunday, Feb. 5th

Southington, Ct.

G. L. Teeple .... Sunday, Jan. 29th
B. Hitchcock .... Sunday, Feb. 12th

Winsted, Ct.

H. H. Dickinson .... Sunday, Jan. 15th

South Elliot, Me.

H. S. Emery .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
Wm. C. Stewart .... Sunday, Jan. 29th

Porter Village, Me.

T. P. S. Hampson .... Sunday, Jan. 31st

Portland, Me.

Charles Goodrich .... Sunday, Jan. 15th
Joseph W. White .... Sunday, Jan. 22d
John Couch .... Sunday, Jan. 29th

Meetings in Portland, Me. (Union Hall)

Having vacated Cushman Hall, on Congress Street, meetings hereafter will be held in Union Hall. Entrance on Free Street, nearly opposite the Baptist church. Seats free.
R. K. Dyer.
D. F. Scamman.
R. R. York.

☞ To Preaching Brethren.

Those wishing to preach — Correspond with in Westfield, Mass .... C. H. Phelps.
Lawrence, Mass .... Geo. Churchill, John T. Merrill, Ephraim Fisk.
Worcester, Mass ..... H. F. Collier, H. W. Buxton, or E G. Higgins.
Savoy, Mass .... Daniel Miller, or A. E. Bliss.
Wakefield, Mass .... O. R. Tyner.
Charlton, Mass .... E. H. Allen, Oxford, Mass.
Worcester, Mass ..... H. M. Blackmar, Willard M. Hall, or Willard G. Ruggles.
Portsmouth, N. H. .... T. E. Wood, Box 1443.
Hampton, N. H. .... Joseph A. Philbrook.
Manchester, N. H. .... J. W. C. Pickering.
Dover, N. H. .... John Vickery.
London Ridge, N. H. .. Daniel L. Moore, Wm. Batchelder, Edward Mudget.
Seabrook, N. H. .... R. S. Johnson, of Hampton, N. H., or Chs. Barton, of Seabrook.
Chichester, N. H. .... F. L. Knowles.
Goshen, N. H. .... O. P. Cain.
Rye, N. H. .. Moses O. Philbrick or Samuel Smart.
Pittsfield, N. H. (Bethel) .... C. S. Emerson.
Portland, Me .... R. R. York, S. K. Dyer, D. F. Scamman.
Lewiston, Me .... Albert Burgess.
South Berwick (Great Works) Me .. Harrison Dow.
Kennebunk Depot, Me .... Rufus Duran.
Hollis Centre, Me .... W. S. Moulton, or S. O. Ramery.
Vernon, Vt .... J. C. Allen.
Bristol, Ct .... B. Hitchcock, Forestville, Ct.
West Gloucester, R. I ..... Geo. A. Hawkins, Putnam, Ct.
New Milford, Ct .... Richard Hascox.
New Haven, Ct .... W. F. Carpenter, 72 State St.
Pleasant Valley, Ct ..... Royal O. White, New Hartford, Ct.
Meriden, Ct .... E. J. Whitehead, West Meriden, Conn., Box 4.
New Britain, Ct .... Chs. M. Burt.
Wrightville, Ct .... D. A. Grant, Torrington, Ct.
Newfield, Ct ..... Wm. Ripley, Pleasant Valley, Ct.
New Milford, Ct .... J. Coggswell
Morris, Ct .... Joseph Curtis.
Rochester N. Y. .... J. R. Cooper, 4 Hickory St.
Hoosick, N. Y. ..... Geo. B. Resch, J. B. White, or Christopher Loveless, Hoosick Falls, N. Y.
Philadelphia, Pa ..... Frank E. Davis, 1715 Markham St., or I. N. Wilfong, 135 No. 22nd St.

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

☞ We cannot discontinue or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in Plain Letters.

☞ SOME ONE sends us $2.00 for the Crisis, from Shaker Village, N. H., signed—"A friend to the gospel in its purity." Who shall we credit the money to? Several friends live there.

☞ C. GOOD—Received.

☞ R. V. LYON—Money received and credited properly.

☞ A. N. SEYMOUR—The Harps are now sent to Bro. W. We were out. Crisis sent the new subscribers. Thank you.

☞ MRS. ABIGAIL TRIPP'S P. O. address is Barrington (Shag Harbor), N. S. She will return to Maine in the Spring.

☞ L. C. McKINSTRY'S P. O. address, for the present, is Addison, Vt.

☞ BRO. BRITTAN'S P. O. address, until further notice, is Petersburg, Va.

Letters Received.

E E Boyden, J F Rathgeber, J H Whitmore, J Treon, H C Willoughby, J T Walsh, F Chapman, J B Cook, J H Bartlett, J H Bullard, N Reed, J W Burroughs, N M Howard, A M Fowler, W J Hobbs, C H Williams, J H Dudmon, A Damon, L M Chaffee, F H Chamberlain, C A Sumner, L M Brittain, H E F Stone, M N Jordan, P E Powers, W A Fenn, G W Stetson, G W Collins, D S Holt, T W Gile, L Boutell, T F Sargent, A Raymond, C E Greenslit, W Kellaway.

Cash Receipts for Books and Tracts.

H L Hastings $16 41, E Morrill $1.00, I H Potter $2.00, G W Smith 35c, J N Spencer $1.00, J L Knapp $1.50, B Barton 25c, C F Churchill 65c, E Harris $4.00, A H Haswell 25c, S S Garmon 50c, I N Thompson 75c, G Downing 50c, E L Harris $1.50, E D White 25c, M A Elliot 45c, S Stearns 35c, W S Armentrout $2.50, J J Heilman $1.50, W H Davis 25c, J Bailey $2.00, J Foster 35c, M Monchouse $1.25, D D Darickson 50c, J V Himes $10.00, T D Bailey 40c, T K Wheeler $1.00, N M Ham 30c, R Porter 25c, L W Spaulding 75c, H Rotherham 50c, G A Pease $1.00, C N Crawford $7.50, W E Hartough 25c, J S Lawver 85c, L C McKinstry 55c, D R Moore $1.50, C H Williams $1.30, N H Reed $1.50, G S Shelton 25c, J F Woods $1.50, S J Buswell 50c, J W Blaisdell 5c, C S Shattuck $10 00, Mrs. C E Stewart (50c. short) $4.10, R L Harrison $10.00, E Urch $4.50, L Storrs $1.00, A A Hoyt $9.00, W Hall $1.40, R Buckley $1.00, J Jeffers 25c, J Hamilton 45c, B F Thorn $1.35, E Fisk 75c, W E McFarland 25c, L Morse $2.00, J W Kenniston (will send soon) 30c, M R Miles $4.67, F A Foster 50c, C W Bixby 50c, H H Warn $1.50, J Bellows $1.00, E Howard 25c, Mrs. F Glidden 45c, G S Goud $3.00, Geo. Loud 35c, H Harris $1.50, M R Steele 25, J A Cleaveland $1.00, J Curtiss $1.50, J Carr $1.50, S Varney $1.15, L Hubbard $1.20, P J Smith 35c, E Meredith $3.28, G Thompson 95c, N Parce 50c, R W Wilson $1.60, C Gumey 25c, J B Elliot 35c, L F Gray 25c.

Books and Tracts Sent.

By Mail—Carrie Bixby, F E Foster, G Goud, Mrs F Glidden, E D White, J V Himes, C Howard, J Hinsley, J Lydia, W E McFarland, D Hayes, P J Smith, S L Hubbard, T M Sheppard, A W Sibley, R W Wilson, N Peare, G Thompson, Mrs. R Hall, J B Elliott, M A Hardy, R Osman, S K Goodwin.
By Express—R R York, I N Wilfong.

SHELDON'S FOUR NEW TRACTS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

1. Life and Death Theology: or, The Scriptural Doctrine of Eternal Damnation and Everlasting Punishment. Price 8 cts. single, postage 2 cts.; 75 cts. per dozen, postpaid; $5.00 per hundred by express.

This work of forty-eight pages is the clearest and strongest document yet produced by Bro. Sheldon on this topic. It is just the thing to scatter among all classes.

2. Immaterialism: or, The Doctrine of Soul-Immortality Refuted. Price 5 cts. single, postage 2 cts.; 40 cts. per dozen, postpaid; $3.00 per hundred by express.

A tract of thirty-two pages, showing that fifteen cardinal errors spring out of the doctrine of the soul's immortality, and that those errors could not exist independent of that doctrine, thus showing it to be the main root of error. Let it be scattered widely.

3. Death and the Dead, 16 pages. Price 3 cts. single, postage 2 cts.; 20 cts. per dozen, postpaid; $1.50 per hundred by express.

Just the thing to scatter everywhere.

4. The Coming Judgment: Its Necessity and Result. Eight pages. $10 cts. per dozen, postpaid, or 75 cts. per hundred by express.

It will do much good.

THE DOCTRINE OF IMMORTALITY.

OR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

By Elder James H. Whitmore. Published by the Western Advent Christian Association.

This little volume of three hundred pages is a valuable contribution to the literature of the subject on which it treats, and is worthy of a wide circulation, not only among those who hold to the views advocated therein, but among others who have not given them due thought and investigation.

Price, single copy, postpaid, $1.00. Six copies, by mail, $5.00; by express, $4.90.

NEW TRACTS BY S. S. BREWER.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

The Seven Messages of the Apocalypse. Sent by mail for 13 cents. Postage 2 cents. $1.20 per dozen by express.

Evangels of the Coming One. Price by mail, 10 cts. single copy; per dozen, 70 cts.; per hundred by express, $5.00.

The Mystery of Iniquity. This is a work on the man of sin, as viewed in the light of historic testimony. Price by mail, single copy, 5 cts.; postage 2 cts.; 50 cts. per dozen; $3.00 per hundred.

THE JUBILEE HARP.

We are now ready to supply friends with the new Hymn and Tune Book, at the following prices:—

Plain cloth, leather backs, colored edges, $1.00 per copy; $9.00 per dozen.
Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges, $1.15 per copy; $10.50 per dozen.
Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges and covers, $1.25 per copy; $12.00 per dozen.

☞ Postage 15 cts. per copy additional, when sent by mail.

NEW HYMN BOOK.

"Hymns of the Jubilee Harp."

WITHOUT THE MUSIC.

The above work, printed in large, clear type, on beautiful paper, we are ready to fill orders for, at the following prices:—

Bound in cloth, with sprinkled edges, 75 cents per copy; $7.00 per dozen; $55.00 per 100.

Bound in leather, gilt edge, $1.00 per copy; $9½ per dozen; $75 00 per hundred; when sent by mail, 10 cts. additional postage

LIST OF ENGLISH BIBLES.

We have received and keep on hand the following English Reference Bibles:

Minion, 8vo., marg. ref., large type, circuit binding, $4.50; postage 28 cts. Do. plain binding, $4.00; postage 28 cts.

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., circuit binding, $3.50; postage 20 cts. (Best size for preachers.)

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., plain, $2.25; postage 20 cts. Do. ref. between verses, $2.25; postage 24 cts.

Pearl, 8 vo., marg. ref., circuit, $3.25; postage 20 cts. Do. plain, $1.75; postage 20 cts.

"ADVENTISM."

We have a supply of this valuable work.

Price in cloth .... 75 cts., postage 12 cts.
Flexible covers .... 60 cts., postage 12 cts.
Paper covers .... 50 cts., postage 6 cts.
In paper covers by the dozen, by express, $4.75.

SPIRITUALISM CONDEMNED

BY THE TESTIMONY OF THE BIBLE AND ITS OWN WITNESSES.

BY M. D. WELLCOME.

Price 10 cents single copy. Twenty copies for $1.00; $3 60 per one hundred copies.

"Historic Echoes of the Voice of God."

AN EXPOSITION OF THE ELEVENTH CHAPTER OF DANIEL.

BY ELDER J. COUCH.

Price 15 cents single copy. $1.50 per dozen. $10.00 per one hundred.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED.
WHAT IS MAN?
THE SOUL—WHAT IS IT?
THE SPIRIT—WHAT IS IT?
THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS.

All the above works in one volume, flexible cloth, in a compact, durable form, for their safe preservation, for 35 cents, postpaid.

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

THE ROYAL ROAD OF DUTY.

Why stand ye gazing up to God?
There are no footprints in the air;
Feet were ordained to walk the sod,
And angels meet us everywhere.

When on our homeward march sublime
We bear the victor's gathered spoil,
'Twill be but things of sense and time—
The daily worship of our toil;

For duty hath no soiling hand,
And labor never leaves a stain,
But purposes divine and grand
Are wrought by human toil and pain.

Sublime ideals meet our eyes,
Bent o'er ascending stairs of hope,
But by successive steps we rise
To beings of immortal scope;

Not when we idly fold our hands—
For muscle only grows with pain;
And evermore the soul expands
With pulses of an aching brain.

How dare we look to heaven in prayer,
Unless we toil along the way,
And through our daily pain and care,
Grow nearer God from day to day!

We only ask to be like Him;
We only hope when life is gone,
To bridge the river dark and dim
With these strong words: Thy will be done.

Yet not in words that will was done,
But Christ, in toil and sweat and blood,
His great eternal kingdom won,
And on the brink of glory stood.

His life began in emptiness,
And struggled on through pain to rise,
O'er boundless heights of love to bless,
The world at last with sacrifice.

His prayers were echoes of his deeds,
Prophetic of their future yield—
God's blessing on the scattered seeds
Of an eternal harvest field,

Whose boundaries stretch thro' earth and time
Beyond the sun-touched hills of prayer,
Far into a serener clime,
Where God's immortal reapers are.*

Ah! broken winged are prayers that rise
Where idle feet the vineyard trod;
Poor stranger-birds in Paradise,
And aliens in the home of God.

* "And the reapers are the angels."
—Christian Standard.

For the World's Crisis.

1870 AND 1871.

1870, with all its cares, sorrows, and trials, with all its joys, hopes, and comforts, is now numbered with the things of the past, never again to return. Its neglected opportunities can never be recalled; wasted time cannot be redeemed; its sins of commission cannot be undone, nor can that be done which has been omitted; too late now to regret that which might have been; yet it should instruct us to improve the present, and to be more circumspect in the future. If all our shortcomings have been repented of, God is free to forgive, and all is well; but we must not sin that grace may abound, seeing we are the servants of righteousness, but rather with the new year consecrate ourselves anew, having all things ready for the Bridegroom.

The wheel of time in one short year has made many changes in all things pertaining to this life. Many have been mowed down by that monster enemy of our race—death—who last New Year's were in health, perhaps little expecting so soon to depart. Some have met with spiritual death, growing cold in their love to Christ and his cause, saying, "Where is the promise of his coming?" Others have been awakened from their indifference in time to fill up their lamps and have them trimmed and burning, and with the faithful, earnest few, are still hopefully looking for his return to make up his jewels.

The past year has been peculiarly marked by almost constantly occurring signs and wonders in the heavens above and the earth beneath, all of which are extremely comforting to the waiting ones; but to the ungodly, and to those who have the form of godliness, denying the power thereof—"all things [seem to] continue as from the beginning." The time has come when men will not endure sound doctrine, but are turned unto fables; "they heap to themselves teachers having itching ears." But we need not be surprised at these things, having the word of God as we do, that this must be so. "But watch thou in all things"; do thy duty, then with Paul we may say, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."

All Europe is raised to a warlike attitude. The Pope has been proclaimed infallible, and by such presumptuousness his fall from temporal power has been the greater; the earth has been shaken by unseen powers in places where such phenomena have hitherto been unknown; yet men becoming scoffers say all this means nothing. "If ye loved me, ye would rejoice." It is plain they do not love him, nor desire him to come; hence they affect blindness, or are given over to a strong delusion, as "lovers of their own selves, covetous." See 1 Tim. 3. Had the apostle been now living, he could not have given a better description of this time and generation. Then, too, other changes common to humanity have been at work; there are those to-day, who perhaps a "twelve month" ago were in possession of wealth and luxury, have now barely a subsistence. Such is the uncertainty of this world's goods, but those who have laid up their treasures above have true riches, which alone are certain and imperishable. Friends too may have forsaken us, because of some slander, or some provocation given in a hasty moment, or from many other circumstances; but the true Friend of all mankind, especially of those that believe, never will forsake us or prove untrue.

With such a friend, and with such a possession as we are to receive through him, how ready and willing we should be to do all we can to spread the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. Let all angry feelings, prejudice, and lukewarmness, and every thing that may retard us, die with the old year; and as the sun rises in all its glorious splendor upon another year of grace, so let that light within us burn brighter and brighter, giving us holy zeal in the work of warning others to flee from the wrath to come.

Not many more New Years shall be ushered upon the pages of this sin-cursed world's history. Time is short. The work is great. Then we must be up and doing. Satan and his workers are ever vigilant to do evil, which must be met with wide-awake wisdom and perseverance, accompanied by constant, fervent prayer. We must fight that great lie of the serpent's—"Thou shalt not surely die," and all its train of errors, which, as a natural consequence, have culminated in one grand tissue of frauds—"spiritualism." The belief in the immortality of the soul is its only hope, support and stronghold; truly this is one of the doctrines of the evil one. Let us do all we can to dispel this dreadful delusion of the seducing spirits. If we put the brethren in remembrance of these things (having God's glory in view), we shall save ourselves and them that hear us.

O, thou only Potentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords! give us abundant grace, that we may keep thy commandments, without spot, unrebukable, unto the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ. May we never speak lies in hypocrisy, saying we are by nature immortal, when Thou only hast immortality, and we are so clothed upon at the resurrection by having trusted Christ.

We see, beloved brethren, there is much to be done in the year opening before us. God alone can give us strength sufficient for these trying times. To him we must go for all that is needed. Let us feel more and more our dependence on Jesus as our Intercessor, for in no other name can we come to the Father. Then shall we be successful in doing something for his honor and glory. "And behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give to every man according as his work shall be." See to it, then, that our faith be coupled with works of righteousness, that we may enter in through the gates into the city prepared for those who love his appearing. "He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son.".

Sinner, wouldst thou come into the fold? come now, while it is called to-day, and enter into this sonship with God, thereby finding the only refuge and hope; for it was for just such sinners as you are Christ died. Will you come? "Wherefore he is able also to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them." Heb. 7: 25. Come, penitent one; he is ever merciful; for he has said of the unrighteous, "Their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more." It remains with you. Will you now choose the "better part"?

"Shall God invite you from above?
Shall Jesus urge his dying love?
Shall troubled conscience give you pain,
And all these pleas invite in vain?"

CYRUS MENDENHALL.

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 1st, 1871.

For the World's Crisis.

THE LAST DAY.

To the thoughtful mind there is something deep and very solemn connected and associated with these words, "the last day." The last day of the year is a time for serious reflection, a time for earnest thought, and sincere repentance; a time to forsake all the ways of sin and folly, to lay aside all enmity, and every feeling and purpose that is not in harmony with the word and the Spirit of God. It is our duty to do all this every day; but if we have neglected duty up to the last day of the year, we should awake, and make an earnest effort to lay hold on eternal life (or a good hope of eternal life), by changing our course of action so as to be wholly conformed to the will of the Lord, and transformed by the renewing of the mind. The Lord is always ready to do his part; and if we do our part, we shall walk in the light, and enjoy the liberty of the sons of God. Then let this be the last day in which we in any way oppose the work and the will of Him who hath bought us with his own precious blood, and redeemed us from the power of sin and death, that we may serve him in newness of life.

Many of the readers of "our paper" have such thoughts as these on this closing day of the year, and many resolve to begin the new year with accounts all settled; and not only begin right, but continue to walk right from this day even to the end of the race. Let us put our hand into the hand of our Father, and be led every step of the way by him, and we shall not go astray. And while we give him our hand, let us give him the heart also, and ask him to make it all right and pure, and cleanse and perfect. Then we shall be able to "love the brethren" "with a pure heart, fervently." Then shall we know the joys of pardon and peace, the joy of liberty and perfect love. Then shall we love, not merely in word or in tongue, but in deed and in truth. And "he that loveth, is born of God, and knoweth God; for God is love."

Let us consider this blessed state of union with God and his people, not only as our privilege to enjoy, but as our imperative duty. We must come up to this standard—or we evidently fail of the grace of God, or receive that grace in vain. Is this a difficult thing? To love the Lord with all our heart, and to love our neighbor as ourself? Yes, it is impossible for the unrenewed heart, or the natural man. But we have the promise of a new heart and a right spirit. Without this new heart we cannot fulfill the requirements of God and the gospel; but we need not be without it. If we give our heart to him, he will not fail to fulfill the promise by giving a new (or renewed) heart, so that we may exercise that love, without which all else is vain.

I was struck with an expression in a late Crisis something like this—"Some people are ever trying to live religion without having any religion to live." And so perhaps some are trying to fulfill the law of love, without having a heart to love. Get the heart first, then the love will follow. Get religion, and then it will be easy to live religion, or to live consistently with the precepts of religion.

The last day of the year is a good time to bury the dead past, and with Paul forget the things that are behind, and reach forth unto those things that are before, and "press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

There is another day coming, and to some who read or hear this it may be very near—the last day of our mortal life. Every day is the last to many thousands; for like falling leaves, our fellow creatures wither, droop and die. Is there any work which we wish to finish before that day? Any preparation of the heart, or setting in order our affairs for the end of life? Then delay not, but "whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might. For there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, in the grave whither thou goest."

But how shall we speak of that day "for which all other days were made," the "great and last day," when the Lord shall come to raise the dead and change the living, and establish his glorious kingdom, which is to remain and stand for ever and ever? We profess to believe that this great day is near, even very near, when "the Lord shall be revealed from heaven in flaming fire," the day of the end of all the pride and vain show of this world of sin, and the beginning of the glorious reign of the King "whose right it is," to whom belongeth "the kingdom and the dominion and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven." Is our conduct consistent with this confession?

Looking for such an event, what manner of persons ought we to be in all holy conversation and godliness! It is high time that we be filled with all the fruits of the Spirit, for the harvest day—"the end of the world"—the great and last day is at hand.

Dec. 31st, 1870. F. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

For the World's Crisis.

JOURNEYINGS-OFT.—No. 1.

During Nov. I visited Bath, Me., and spent one Sunday. Found the little church at work in faith and hope, with good courage, and the Lord is with them. One brother in the Congregational church has obtained light on the blessed hope, and attends the meetings some, giving them help in preaching the word, and testifying to the truth.

Visited Durham, Me., where there are two brothers and one sister. Preached several times to an interested class, who seem very anxious to hear more. Visited an aged sick man who had been awakened to study the Scriptures, and had found the truth on the nature of man, of death, the resurrection, second advent of Christ, and the saints' inheritance; had given himself to Christ, and obtained hope of eternal life. The minister of the place had heard of it and visited him, only to question and abuse him with bad names and sectarian epithets, because he had desired to have an Advent preacher to attend his funeral when he should die. I found the brother patient in hope and peace, and rejoicing that Jesus is soon coming to raise the dead.

Visited Minot, the place of my birth and childhood, from which my parents moved forty-seven years ago, when I was but five years of age. There are but two families of believers in Christ's soon coming in this village. The state of christianity is very low. Sectarians have no interest in hearing the gospel of the kingdom of God. The weather was bad, the hearts of the people cold, and but few came out to hear. I visited all the families in the village; gave them tracts, books, and words of exhortation; preached four times to those who had ears to hear, and enjoyed a pleasant visit with the believers. May the Lord bless the seed sown.

Visited Pownal. Preached two discourses to a class of hearers who listened as though they never heard any thing like it before, but would like to hear more. The sectarians did not come to hear; but as a woman had just died in the place, and had requested that an Advent minister should attend her funeral, I was invited, and the following Tuesday did so, when I had the privilege of preaching on "the destruction of death, the last enemy," to a crowded house of Orthodox and all sects.

Next started for my appointment in Hartford, but finding the mud too deep to arrive in time, I stopped at Southwest Bend, secured the Baptist house, and got out an appointment for Sunday. A good congregation came out and listened attentively to the "great salvation," and the nature of the kingdom of God, the duty of seeking it, and the evidences of its nearness. Some wanted to hear more on these things. Some are interested and embracing the truth, while others mock and deny the word of the Lord. Let us be active in sowing in new fields, as well as in cultivating old ones.

I. C. WELLCOME.

For the World's Crisis.

CONQUERORS.—Though Alexander conquered the world, he was afterwards conquered by intoxicating liquors. Cyrus, though not a conqueror of the world, yet a ruler, could conquer himself, as on one occasion, when wine was presented for him to partake, he refused. When asked why he refused, he said, "That makes men stagger and fall." It is proper to follow great and good men.

T. J. WHITECAR.

For the World's Crisis.

PRESSING FORWARD.—Phil. 3: 13.

I will forget the things behind,
The loves that bound my heart to earth,
The pride, the gaudy glittering show,
The hours of empty, madd'ning mirth.

I'm reaching forth to grasp the gift,
The promise of the pure in heart;
I'm seeking for the lowly grace
Of her who chose the better part;

For I've a holy calling had,
To walk the pathway of the wise;
I've fixed my eye upon the mark,—
The Lord Christ Jesus is the prize.

Through him I shall obtain my crown,
The ransomed's gleaming robe shall wear;
I shall sit down at God's right hand,
And wake my harp of triumph there.

Lynn, Mass. L. M. PROCTER.

For the World's Crisis.

PRAYER-MEETINGS.

What is a prayer-meeting? It is a place for social and religious worship. It is not for preaching. It is a place where Christians meet for prayer, and to "exhort one another, and so much the more as we see the day approaching." How few there are that appreciate and wisely improve this important means of grace.

Doubtless many go to meeting to get blest, but never think of blessing others. They seem to think they can go into the kingdom, as the poet has it—

"On flowery beds of ease,
While others fought to win the prize,
And sailed through bloody seas."

Every christian should feel it his duty to help sustain the prayer-meeting by taking part in its exercises. It may not be duty for all to speak or pray in every meeting; but all should hold themselves in readiness to do what the Master requireth. In so doing we shall have joy and comfort. If there is a willing mind, it is accepted of God. If we stop to confer with flesh and blood, we shall lose the blessing we otherwise might enjoy.

Long prayers and exhortations are detrimental to prayer-meetings. I have known meetings to commence in the Spirit, and give promise of a heavenly time; but some, by not following the drift of the meeting, and by bringing in points of doctrine peculiar to their own notions, have caused the tide to turn, and the meeting to drag slowly, and prove almost a failure.

In order to have a successful prayer-meeting, we must leave these things at home, and go in the spirit of earnest prayer. Go asking—"Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" If all will with one accord join in praising God, the blessing of heaven will descend, and none will have occasion to say that God does not manifest himself in the assembling together of his people. Who goes in for good prayer-meetings? Let all that do, go to them in the spirit of earnest prayer for the salvation of souls, and God will bless us and pour out his Spirit upon us till there will not be room to contain it.

G. E. MERRILL.

Worcester, Mass.

REMEDY FOR CHRONIC CLOSE-FISTEDNESS.—We do not approve of ministers incessantly flagellating their people, whose liberality does not come up to the right standard; but we think that blood-letting would be a good thing occasionally. A writer in the Interior tells of a wealthy land-owner in Iowa, who was earnestly entreated by a home missionary to contribute toward building a church in his neighborhood, which was at that time destitute. Hearing the missionary quote the promises of a blessing which are assured to the giver, he put his hand in his pocket and pulled out a half dollar.

"There," said he, "I don't feel any better for giving." "Oh!" said the missionary, "I can explain that. Yours is a chronic difficulty; no remedy will reach you but a thorough bleeding!"

How many would be better for a "thorough bleeding;" and the Lord often does bless them, providentially, in mercy or in wrath.—Religious Telescope.

For the World's Crisis.

LINES.*

Farewell to eighteen hundred and seventy, farewell!
The last of thy days and the brightest has come;
And who of thy gladness and sorrow can tell?
The first and the last of all earthly to some.

The last day of the week,—how often 'tis here!
The day to make ready for a Sabbath of rest;
'Tis well for frail mortals to spend it in fear,
And haste for the greeting they will have with the blest.

The last day of the month,—but twelve in the year;
'Tis sunshine and shadow, 'tis morning and night;
It smiles for our friends, both absent and near,
And checkers our pathway with darkness and light.

The last of the year,—how solemn the thought!
It may never come round to greet us again;
To many the fullness of joy it has brought,
While some find its cup full of sadness and pain.

The decade has been filled with rumors of war,
With earth's throes of agony, with signs from above;
With good luck and trouble at home and afar,
While hate leads to murder, and kindness to love.

Our Union is severed and patched up again;
The soldiers pass round among the green graves;
And echoes of cannon, o'er mountain and plain,
Speak release to our yeomen, and freedom to slaves.

And Cuba's rich soil is crimsoned with gore;
Both Spaniards and Creoles grapple with death;
Nor is the sad conflict with oppression yet o'er,
The heart-swell of Freedom still stifles its breath.

In old Europe and Asia, round Paris and Rome,
The fever of wrong breaks the slumber of peace;
'Mid clouds, dust and breakers, the war chargers foam,
Buzzards pick the carcasses, and nabobs the fleece.

The last of the years, the "last day" will come,
And then will be settled the wrong and the right;
We'll gird up our loins for the year seventy-one,
And do what we find with good will and our might.

To make even number, three stanzas more,
We'll leave on the record, now sealing up fast,
And speak for the passage to a happier shore,
Where time is unmeasured, and pleasures will last;

Where, when you walk with the good and the blest,
No burglars or long droughts will trouble the way;
Where fire, flood and tempest, disturb not your rest,
And earthquakes are unknown by night or by day.

Come, all ye earth-weary, ye sick and forlorn,
Raise your hope, faith and spirits, the new year to try;
Look for the new, happy, and forthcoming morn,
And bid the old year a cheerful good bye.

Northfield, Dec. 31, 1870. J. PECK.

* The last day of the week, the last of the month, the year, and the decade, suggested a topic for the above lines, which I copy and send to the Crisis. J. P.

For the World's Crisis.

MINISTERIAL SUPPORT.—No. 1.

This is considered a delicate subject. Why? Because the gospel is free, and because many think the ministry ought to preach without pay or support; therefore it is thought to be begging if ministers speak of support.

I lately noticed a brother's article on this subject, in which he said our ministers get only "eight or nine dollars per week, and have their car fares to pay out of that." Surely that is not enough to spoil a minister who has a family to support; but what must we, who travel constantly among small societies, and spend a large part of our time in preaching "in regions beyond," think of such large sums as "eight or nine dollars per week," when we get but four, three, two, one dollars, and much of the time not a farthing per week?

Some of us travel and preach in places where the people never before heard; they think it a great privilege to hear and a great favor to us that they come and hear, without giving us any support. We go often to preach where there is only one brother or sister who believe; they wish the community to hear, and ask for meetings. They feed and care for us while with them, and some give something to help pay our expenses, yet it is seldom one fourth or one eighth enough to pay family expenses. Some do all they can.

This is mission work, and those who do it should be helped from a mission fund raised for the purpose, or by those who have the means to give personal aid. Many of our ministers have spent thousands of dollars of their hard-earned money in preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, and planting the truth in new fields, and in gathering souls to Christ, and establishing churches in Christ, while lay brethren have been laying up thousands for themselves and their children.

We know of one minister who has traveled the few last months, one hundred and seventy-five miles with his team, through deep mud and snow, and on frozen mud, in cold and rain; preached twenty-four times; visited over one hundred and fifty families; scattered seven dollars' worth of tracts, free, and received four dollars, seventeen cents in five weeks,—to pay several tolls, to pay for horse-shoeing, repairs of broken harness, repairs of carriage twice broken, and to support a family at an expense of over one dollar per day. Who pays the balance of these expenses? Ah! that minister must go to work and earn it, and preach also. If he does not preach while working, he will be called a backslidden minister.

I know a minister who has spent over fifteen hundred dollars the last four years, of his own earnings, in preaching and helping the mission, hoping for "a crown of life when the Chief Shepherd shall appear." Some of our lay brethren do much, others with good farms, or good trades and a good property, say they find it hard getting a living. How will the ministers get a living and preach?

I. C. WELLCOME.

☞ The trials to which ministers are exposed are as needful as their triumphs. They do not enter the ministry to achieve brilliant successes, or even mainly to save others, but by approved fidelity, by enduring toil, by patient endeavor, to be drawn themselves into deeper sympathy with the travail of the Redeemer's soul, and ultimately exalt it into higher service and nobler life in his kingdom.

☞ The late Dr. Bethune wrote to his consistory these memorable words: "We can never despair of a church that puts the cause of mercy first and itself second." Again he says: "I would as soon try to cultivate a farm without rain, as a church without benevolence," and, I "hate to be economical with the bread of life."

For the World's Crisis.

CAREFUL SPEAKING.

"Be not rash with thy mouth, and let not thine heart be hasty to utter any thing before God; for God is in heaven, and thou upon earth; therefore let thy words be few."

Men show their ignorance, ofttimes, by speaking about those things of which they have but little knowledge. We shall do well to take heed to the words of the Preacher, and not utter anything hasty before God. If we do not understand all that is written, let us not wrest God's word to our own destruction.

It does not make God unjust because we poor ignorant dust-worms of the earth do not understand all his ways. We must not expect to comprehend the deep things of God while clothed with mortality; but when the time shall come that this mortal shall put on immortality, then shall the mystery of God be finished. Let us be careful, then, how we speak, and not bring ourselves under condemnation; for God's ways and thoughts are higher than ours, and known unto him are all his works, from the beginning of the world.

While we contemplate the vastness of God's power, we are led to exclaim, in the language of the inspired apostle—"O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out. For who hath known the mind of the Lord, or who hath been his counsellor?" God grant that we may take his word for the man of our counsel, live up to its teachings, and reign at last with Jesus in the world to come.

Kennebunk Depot. EDWIN B. WELLS.

THE JEWS.

The Jewish race at this day is perhaps the most striking seal of the truth of the Sacred Oracles.

They have been spread over every part of the habitable globe; they have lived under the regime of every dynasty, they have shared the protection of just laws, and the proscriptions of cruel ones and witnessed the rise and progress of both; they have used every tongue, and lived in every latitude. The snows of Lapland have chilled, the suns of Africa scorched them. They have drunk the Tiber, the Thames, the Jordan, the Mississippi.

In every century, and every degree of latitude and longitude, we find a Jew. It is not so with any other race. Empires the most illustrious have fallen, and buried the men that constructed them; but the Jews have lived among the ruins, a living monument of indestructibility.

There is no possibility of accounting for their perpetual isolation, their depressed but distinct being, on any grounds save those revealed in the records of truth. Their aggregate and individual character is as remarkable as their circumstances.

Meanness the most abject, and pride the most overbearing—the degradation of helots, and yet a conscious and manifest sense of the dignity of a royal priesthood—crouching, cozening, squeezing, grasping on the exchange, in the shop, in the world, with nothing too low for them to do, yet notwithstanding, in the synagogue, looking back along many thousand years to ancestry, beside which that of our peers and princes is but of yesterday, regarding justly Abraham, Isaac and Jacob as their great progenitors, and pressing forward on the wings of faith, and hope, and promise, to a long expected day when they, now kings and princes in disguise, shall become so indeed, by a manifestation the most glorious, and a dispensation the most sublime. The people are a perpetual miracle—a living echo of heaven's holy tones; prolonged from generation to generation.

THE MONK IN SOLITUDE.—I recollect a pleasant story, told by a pious minister, about a monk of former days. He resolved to leave his monastery, on the ground that he there too frequently met with causes of provocation, and was betrayed into anger and other sins. Accordingly he retired into the desert, in the hope that solitude would enable him to serve God with an easier mind. One day his pitcher happened to upset, and, when lifted up, fell a second time, which kindled his anger to such a pitch that he dashed it to the ground and broke it into a thousand pieces. When he came to himself, he said: "I now see that I cannot be at peace, even in solitude, and that the fault lies not in others, but in myself. He then returned to the monastery, and, after many strenuous efforts, succeeded in subduing his passions, not by flight, but by self-denial.—Christian Scrivener.

Gems.

— Thinkers are as scarce as gold; but he whose thoughts embrace all his subject, pursues it uninterruptedly and fearless of consequences, is a diamond of enormous size.

— A noble life is a continual melody. A genuine christian character is a heroic poem.

— The closest walk with God is the sweetest heaven that can be enjoyed on earth.

No selfish heart can e'er conceive
How much of joy is theirs
Who seek by kindness to relieve
Or soothe another's cares.

— No character can be lastingly injured by a fearless discharge of duty. Calumny or prejudice may obscure it for a time, but in the end it will shine all the brighter for the clouds which obscured it.

— Give me the eye which can see God in all; and the hand which can serve God with all; and the heart which can bless him for all.

— Education is the constant confronting of the mind with the objects fitted to stimulate it.

— Good is slow: it climbs. Evil is swift: it descends. Why should we marvel that it makes great progress in a short time?

— Drop a piece of wool on the floor. Do you hear it? No. It is noiseless. How about the snow? Does it make a great shout to tell us it is coming? Certainly not. "He giveth snow like wool." It is noiseless! And this is altogether characteristic of divine operations. The great forces of the universe are mute. The sun never speaks. The atmosphere is mute. Gravitation has no tongue.

Not all can glean amid the corn;
But all who try can find
Some way to cheer a heart forlorn,
Some way of being kind.

— It were well for multitudes to copy the example of the great Reformer, who used some mornings to say to himself: "Luther cannot get through to-day without as much as three hours' praying."

— He who has struck his colors to the power of an evil habit has surrendered himself to the power of an enemy, bound by no articles of faith, and from whom he can expect only the vilest treatment.

— Adversity is a poultice which reduces our vanity and strengthens our virtue.

— Believe but half the ill, and credit twice the good, said of your neighbor.

"Himself hath done it"; yes, also severe
May seem the stroke, and bitter be the cup,
'Tis his own hand that holds it, and I know
He'll give me grace to drink it meekly up.

"I am satisfied that I am on the right path so long as I can see any thing to make me happier, anything to make me love man, and therefore God, the more. God is not far from that heart to which man is near."

— Sorrows are like tempest clouds; when afar off, they look black, but when above us scarcely gray.

— Little local noises deaden the loudest distant ones; and so it is that this world shuts out from the ears of men, as it does, the voice of Almighty God.

— Modesty is a guard to virtue.

NEGRO PIETY.—"Uncle Johnson" was a poverty-stricken negro, who lived to more than one hundred years, and was then bereaved of his wife. "Uncle, don't you feel lonely since Ellen left you?" his minister inquired. "Yes, massa, I feels berry lonesome. But den de blessed Jesus comes round every day, and gives me a few drops of heaven, just as a nus would wid a spoon; den oh! how I wants to get hold ob de whole dish! When I was so sick de oder day, I could see de dust of God's chariot comin' ober de mountains for me! Den he say to me, 'Wait, old Johnson! wait—hold on a leetle longer, and I'll come round d'rectly. Yes, Lord, I will hold on, if de Lord please, for anoder hundred years! Oh! blessed Jesus, only keep de table standin' for me; I'se bound to be dere."

HOW TO READ.—An eminent Biblical scholar and critic of the Netherlands, when his last hour of mortal life was near, gave utterance to his earnest regret that he had read the Scripture so much in the spirit of a critic, and so little in that of the humble, docile learner, sitting at the Master's feet, and receiving there the plain, simple words of eternal life, as they flowed from his blessed lips.

☞ The last prayer of Dr. Arnold, written in his journal an hour or two before his death: "Above all, let me mind my own personal work, keep myself pure, and zealous, and believing,—laboring to do God's work, yet not anxious that it should be done by me rather than by others, if God disapprove my doing it."

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

When temptation shall urge you, my children, to do
What you know to be wicked and wrong,
Though the sin may seem pleasant, and pretty to view
As it floats very gaily along,
Go not after the phantom, but earnestly say,
It is but a bubble that passes away.

PRAYER IN THE MORNING.

While a mother was sitting at her work in her parlor, she overheard her child, whom an older sister was dressing in an adjoining bedroom, say repeatedly, as if in answer to his sister,—"No. I do not want to say my prayers."

"How many believers, in good standing," thought the mother to herself, "often say the same thing in heart, though they conceal, even from themselves the feeling!"

"Mother," said the child, appearing in a minute or two at the parlor door; the tone and the look implied that it was only his morning salutation.

"Good morning, my child."

"I am going to get my breakfast."

"Stop a minute; I want you to come here and see me first."

The mother laid her work down in the next chair, as the boy ran toward her. She took him up. He kneeled in her lap and laid his face down upon her shoulder, his cheek against her ear. The mother rocked her chair backward and forward.

"Are you pretty well this morning?" said she, in a kind, gentle tone.

"Yes, mother, I am very well."

"I am very glad you are well. I am very well, too; and when I awoke up this morning, and found that I was well, I thanked God for taking care of me."

"Did you?" said the boy, in a low tone, half a whisper. He paused after it—conscience was at work.

"Did you ever feel my pulse?" asked his mother, after a minute of silence, at the same time taking the boy down, and setting him in her lap, and placing his fingers on her wrist.

"No, but I have felt mine now; how it goes beating!"

"Yes," said the child.

"If it should stop beating, I should die at once."

"Should you?"

"Yes, I cannot keep it beating."

"Who can?"

A silent pause.

"You have a pulse, too, which beats, in your bosom here, and in your arms and all over you, and I cannot keep it beating, nor can you. Nobody can but God. If he should not take care of you, who could?

"So, when I awoke up this morning, I thought I would ask God to take care of me; I hope he will take care of me and all the rest of us."

"Did you ask him to take care of me?"

"No."

"Why not?"

"Because I thought you would ask him yourself. God likes to have us all ask for ourselves."

A long pause ensued. The deeply thoughtful and the anxious expression of countenance showed that the heart was reached.

"Don't you think you had better ask for yourself?"

"Yes," said the boy, readily.

He kneeled again in his mother's lap, and uttered, in his own simple, broken language, a prayer for the protection and blessing of Heaven.

TOBACCO.

A SPEECH FOR A BOY.

I go against tobacco because it goes against me. I eschew it; I will not chew it. I will tell you why. 1st. I do not like the taste of it. It tastes worse than the bitterest medicine ever put to my lips. It is such sickening stuff. 2d. I don't like the looks of it. In the words of another, when I see the tobacco, I pity the mouth that chews it; and when I see the mouth which chews it, I pity the tobacco. It has not a taking color. It is of a dirty dirt color 3d. I don't like the effect of its use. It makes the teeth yellow and brown, when they should be white; it makes the breath sour and offensive, when it should be sweet; it injures the voice, so that those who chew cannot sing and speak to advantage. The voice breaks, and the chorister croaks like a raven when he should sing like a bobolink; the orator merely barks, and tobacco bark is very disagreeable. 4th. The habit of chewing is a filthy habit. Look at the carpets, the stairways, the sitting rooms, where the chewers gather together and roll the quid like a sweet morsel under the tongue. Every boy that chews ought to wear a hat shaped like a spittoon, and use it as such wherever he goes; indeed, he ought to wear it when he sleeps; such a night-cap may save the pillow cases from stains. 5th. I fear tobacco creates an appetite for liquor. It lights the fire in the throats which water may not put out.—Youth's Temperance Banner.

THE FIRST SUNDAY SCHOOL.—Dr. Guthrie dates the Sunday school prior to Robert Raikes. He says that Mr. Blair, one of the ministers of Brechin, an old cathedral town in Forfarshire, a staunch, faithful man, and an adherent of the House of Hanover, was beset while preaching on Sunday by an armed squad of Prince Charles' men and ordered to stop. He paid no attention to the order, though pistols were flourished, and his brother-in-law, the acting provost, joined in the order. 'No," said he, "I would'nt stop, though the devil and all his angels were here." Nor did he stop. The heroic preacher was left in quiet possession of the field. On the tablet to his memory in the old cathedral are inscribed these words: "Mr. Blair, about the year 1760, instituted a Sabbath evening school; the first, it is believed, that was opened in Scotland." This was some twenty years before Raikes's first school was organised.

☞ Useful children are worth a great deal, though they may be very little.

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—PAUL.

THE HAIR.

DR. JACKSON, in Laws of Life for January, says some good things about the care of the hair, which we give below:—

"Never, as you prize the beauty of your hair, or what is much more valuable, the health of your brain, and the good health of your body at large, wear a waterfall, a jute, nor a switch. These contrivances are deadly, not only as regards the hair, but also the health of those who wear them. Much is said in the papers against wearing switches, or jutes, or chignons, because they breed pestiferous vermin, whose life is fed by their drain on the small blood-vessels of the scalp, which they pierce and suck that they thus may thrive and grow; but all such objections to these monstrosities fly away and become as nothing, compared with the objection which arises from the congested condition of the blood vessels of the back brain by reason of their use. Who wears a switch or chignon, wears a substance which within itself is a great non-conductor of animal heat. As the back-head has a great deal of blood, and a great deal of blood has a great deal of heat in it, the surplusage of this heat should be permitted to pass off outwardly. To wear one of these appliances is to keep the heat in, and as the part thus dressed is made hotter than it ought to be, or would be if the dressing was not applied, disease takes place in a little while, and the whole bodily structure becomes affected. In woman there is such an intimate connection between the back brain and the reproductive structure, that when the former becomes enfeebled the latter inevitably takes on morbid conditions.

Do not scratch your scalp with a fine tooth comb, but use a moderately stiff brush, with a coarse comb to straighten out any tangling of the hair. If your head becomes dirty, wash it with a fine sponge, with water and soap, of which the carbolic toilet soap is in my present judgment the best made, and then wipe the hair with soft linen, shaking it out and letting it hang until dry, when straighten it from entanglement by brushing carefully.

If you want to keep your hair neat and beautiful, keep good health. Live simply; insure to yourself plenty of exercise in the open air; keep your lungs expanded, your blood well aerated, your processes of excretion ample; eat plenty of good food; sleep abundantly, and as your body at large maintains its vigor and freshness of appearance, will your hair preserve its healthfulness and thus add greatly to your personal beauty, as it is designed and of right should do."

WARM CLOTHES.

In choosing a warm dress get it as light as you can. Think how light animals, which have to endure great cold, are clothed. What is lighter than feathers and fur? A bear can thus teach us a lesson of civilized science, and a goose can impart wisdom. . . . .

If you want to be warm, choose a material that is not only thick, but light, and when you wish to be protected from wind as well as cold, wear under or over a woolen or furry fabric, the thinnest impervious texture you can get. Then you have an arrangement similar to that with which the animals of cold climates are provided, namely; thin skin and thick feathers or hair.—Ex.

☞ HE who would have good health, be free from dyspepsia, being able to eat healthful food and enjoy it, be not distracted, disturbed, or made to suffer by diseases which are sure to follow great derangement of the stomach or other digestive organs, will do well to let all alcoholic stimulants alone: and if he will heed fair warning, he will also see that in letting them alone he does not substitute other stimulating drinks or medicines for them, but will live on nutrient food and drinks, and thus secure to himself health, happiness, and long life.—Laws of Life.

IN BUYING beef, select that which is of a clear cherry-red color, after a fresh cut has been a few minutes exposed to the air. The fat should be of a light straw color, and the meat marbled throughout with fat. Such meat is by far the most economical for general use, for it is all eaten with relish, while those parts naturally gristly and tough make most delicious soup.—Ex.

WATER.

To the days of the aged it addeth length;
To the might of the strong it addeth strength;
It freshens the heart, it brightens the sight;
'Tis like quaffing a goblet of morning light."

AIR AND EXERCISE.—The consumption of a large amount of out-door air, and the employment of a large amount of muscular activities in this out-door air, are the great highways to a vigorous appetite, a good digestion, high health, and exemption from disease, as well as to the cure of half the ordinary maladies of humanity.

—"Health by Good Living." For sale at this office.

THE POTATO is best when put into boiling water and kept boiling till cooked, never allowing them to break while boiling, removing the water as soon as soft, where they should remain long enough to allow the steam to pass off. They necessarily become heavy and watery if allowed to remain in the water after they are softened through.

☞ Pure air in the house, pure air in the hall, pure air in the workshop, pure air in the church, this is the prime necessity, and, without this, upholstery and painted glass, and labor saving inventions, and the prayers of the man of God, are all mockery.

☞ "Those men who destroy a healthful constitution of body by intemperance, and an irregular life, do as manifestly kill themselves, as those who hang, or poison, or drown themselves."

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.
TERMS:
If paid in advance....................$2.50 a year.
Five copies six months to one address.......$5.60.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies six months to one address......$10.00.
Same rate for any number over ten.
CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.
POSTAGE.—The postage in the United States on each single copy of the Crisis is 20 cts. a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.
Over all matters not intended for publication write—PRIVATE.
Over all business matters, write—BUSINESS.
Over all articles for the paper, write—For the Crisis.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's NAME, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of NEW subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save much labor.
PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, please write PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.
☞ Put business matters and appointments on separate pieces of paper, or so that they can be detached without interfering with any other communication.
☞ All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the POST OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to
MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly,
THE YOUNG PILGRIM.
An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.
TERMS.
PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.
Single copy, 40 cts. a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.
Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 40 cts. a year for each copy.
Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 35 cts. a year for each copy.
To Canada subscribers at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 795. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 18, 1871. VOL. XXXII.—NO. 17.

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at
160 HANOVER ST., BOSTON, Mass. { Corner of Salem Street. (☞ Entrance No. 7 Salem St.)

MILES GRANT, Editor.
William Sheldon, Corresponding Editor.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, L. BOUTELL, JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
HOMER A. KING, H. V. DAVIS, L. T. CUNNINGHAM, J. G. HAMBLIN, H. H. DICKENSON.

GEO. T. ADAMS,
Treasurer and Business Agent.

☞ The Crisis is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

There's a happy home, not far away;
There's a crown of life and an endless day;
There's a peaceful rest to the weary one
In that happy, peaceful, eternal home,—
The kingdom of God.

The river of life will ever flow,
The graceful trees of Eden grow,
The beautiful flowers forever bloom
In that happy, peaceful, eternal home,—
The kingdom of God.

Death ne'er can enter that city fair,
For all are immortal who enter there;
And sickness and pain shall never come
In that happy, peaceful, eternal home,—
The kingdom of God.

Let us press onward to that bright land,
And with our happy loved ones stand,
And sing sweet songs around God's throne,
In that happy, peaceful, eternal home,—
The kingdom of God.

Millville, Mass. Ella E. Boyden.

NAPOLEON.

The following extracts are taken from an article on Napoleon, in the Prophetic Times for January:—

The coming of the Lord is near. Yea, more, we insist that it is imminent. And amid a dense cloud of unbelief respecting it, we have raised, and shall, if God permit, continue to raise our feeble voices, to do what we can to help to prepare a people for the Lord.

There are certain points in sacred chronology which are absolutely fixed by the sacred word itself, and there are others respecting which we cannot speak positively. The wisdom of God has ordered it thus. We do not believe that it is at present in the power of the keenest research to fix with absolute certainty the end of six thousand years since the creation; but on the other hand it is not the part of good sense to disregard the proof that we have reached the approximate termination. Therefore, the exhortation to the church to watch for her Lord was never more urgent than at the present time; and this is the great truth which has called into being, and up to this time sustained, our little periodical.

As is elsewhere pointed out, the Lord, when he visibly appears, brings all his saints with him. Therefore, the church is taken to him before that time; and, as we have proved from Scripture, not all are removed at once, but in proportion to the degree of their faith and preparedness. And we see passing before our eyes occurrences pointing in the direction of the consummation pictured by the word of prophecy, we should be recreant to our high trust did we not insist that at any moment that great event may transpire which shall be the occasion of the going forth of the church to the Bridegroom.

The disasters that have recently befallen Napoleon have, as was to be expected, given rise to a torrent of open sarcasm, or ill-concealed complacent sneers, at students of prophecy. But what is the chaff to the wheat? saith the Lord. If we are moved by them, we are not yet grounded in the study of the prophetic word.

For what is it that we see, when we calmly contemplate the matter? A number of earnest students of prophecy have, for a number of years past, expressed their conviction that Louis Napoleon would ultimately be developed into the predicted antichrist. There is nothing intrinsically absurd in this view. Or if there is, where is the absurdity? The antichrist is to be a man, just like any other, and he is to be developed out of just such materials, however wonderfully the supernatural and infernal may, and will, come into [illegible] in connection with his person. When the flood came, the course of things was proceeding as usual. And our Lord tells us that so it will be again.

These opinions respecting the French Emperor are also based on strong prophetic probabilities, which we have from time to time placed before our readers. Many years ago, Faber, on prophetic grounds, conjectured the restoration of the Empire, while the Bonapartist dynasty had apparently sunk into hopeless oblivion. And the writer of this article remembers that, as far back as 1850, a brother in the ministry suggested to him the probability of a wonderful career in store for Louis Napoleon, and pointed him out as the lawless one. Subsequently he, as Emperor, reached the pinnacle of greatness, power, and fame. That he is an utterly unprincipled man, and lives only for himself, no one has attempted to deny. But a fool he is not. His descents at Strasbourg and Boulogne with the eagle are no longer counted the crazy acts of a madman. He has displayed, throughout his career, the most consummate ability, as the nations have abundantly admitted. But now he is a prisoner. The political prints, with consistent want of penetration—for they are generally mistaken—join in the hue and cry against the fallen emperor, who has, all at once, it seems, lost his wits. The beasts kick the dead lion with impunity; and now none so poor as to do him reverence.

But what if our political wiseacres should be again mistaken? What if there should be another, and still more astounding revulsion? What if the overthrow of France should prove but temporary, and a necessary preparation for her part in the concluding drama of our age? What if, as in the last decade of the former century, the giant should be only rejuvenated by his prostration to his mother earth? What if Napoleon should be reseated on the throne more firmly than ever? What if, ere long, France with a mighty rebound, should overflow her borders, and absorb the whole left bank of the Rhine? The deposition of Napoleon is part of the shame that has covered the French arms. And to regain and restore completely their military prestige and glory, may not the French people insist on conquering under the same imperial head that bit the dust?

These things may be, or others as strange. It is now quite certain that the declaration of war was as much the act of the nation as of the Emperor. It had just before, by an overwhelming vote, declared its confidence in Napoleon. The mass of the people are with him still, and the priests are all on his side. Napoleon and the Pope fell together; and they may again rise together. And as for the papacy, its restoration to more than its former power, under, or just before, the coming ten-king confederation, is pretty certain from the divine word (Rev. 17,) though we may be unable, as yet, to say precisely what shape things will take.

Therefore, even as regards this specific expectation respecting Napoleon, it may be prudent not to be too confident that its fallacy is demonstrated. It is well not to shout until we are out of the wood. Even now, already, the possibility, or probability, of Napoleon's restoration is beginning to be discussed in those same newspapers, which, whether right or wrong, do but reflect the fleeting notions of the day.

The king of Prussia, from the nature of the case, is, doubtless ready to replace the fallen monarch. A republic in France—what that bodes for other nations, Europe well knows. But Napoleon can hardly venture to receive back his crown from such hands. He ruled by the consent of the people: the doctrine of the nationalities was one of his main positions. Therefore, it is more likely that from the people he will receive back the power, and thus the iron and the clay be again mingled.

Much has been merrily and triumphantly said about the Emperor's speech to certain Americans or Englishmen, viz: "Gentlemen, when you return home, will you be so good as to inform your countrymen that I am not the antichrist?" Well, it may be so, indeed. But his assertion does not prove it; no more than Hazael's exclamation of old, when he heard the prophet say what he would become: "Is thy servant a dog, that he should do this great thing?" It only shows that he was not that character at the time, and did not expect to become so. . . . .

In considering the possibilities of this subject, there are two things which are generally overlooked. The first is, that no one has asserted that Napoleon is the Antichrist now, but only that he may, probably, be thus developed. The revelation of the Antichrist is not until the removal of the church; and, even then, not immediately; for it is only during the final three and a half years preceding the epiphany of the Lord that he reaches the pinnacle of his power and greatness. That he will be the greatest of monarchs is positively stated. If the time is near, why may he not be already on the stage; and why may not his antecedents be preparing him, perhaps unconsciously to himself, for the role he is to play? And in the second place, the objectors seem not to know, or to have forgotten, that in the time of antichrist the miraculous element comes into play, both on the part of God and Satan, in a manner unprecedented in the previous history of our race. It is natural that it should. That will be the winding up of the present act of the great drama. At that time Satan will have been cast out from his present abode in space, and be confined to the earth: and he will have great wrath; because, understanding prophecy better than some of our superficial censors, he will know that he hath but a short time. He will give to Antichrist his power, and seat, and great authority. Have the objectors—the sensible part of them—forgotten that God will judicially send on men strong delusion, that they shall believe a lie? That the Lord has foretold that false Christs, and false prophets shall arise, doing great signs and wonders, so that they shall deceive, if it were possible, the very elect? Of the lamb-like beast, at that time, it is written: "He doeth great miracles." The coming of the Lawless One is to be with all power, and signs, and lying wonders, and with all deceivableness of unrighteousness in them that perish. Who does not tremble at such a prospect? At that time, emphatically, all things shall not continue as they were from the beginning of the creation. . . . .

Napoleon may, possibly, have no connection with any of the characters that are yet to appear in the predicted drama of the future. But it is not at all certain yet that he will not. It is not a whit less likely that it was one year ago: on the contrary, it is rather more probable.

P. S.—Who knows but the Lord may call his Eagle saints next month,—if, indeed, we have arrived at the year? I can hardly think this great consummation can be delayed more than two or three years longer, at any rate. But the most prayerful and keen observers will, from the nature of the case, be held in suspense; inasmuch as we yet walk by faith alone, keeping a steady eye on that light that shineth in a dark place.

— Religion is not a mere sentiment. It is a vital experience of the heart, a resolute exercise of the will, a heroic service of the life.

"A PEEP BEHIND THE SCENES."

Bro. Grant:—I send you some extracts from an article with the above heading, by Samuel Hopkins, taken from Scribner's Magazine for December, 1870.

L. M. Chaffee.

So. Wilbraham, Mass., Jan. 1st, 1871.

"Recent events, grave and dark, have followed each other with a rapidity almost bewildering. Startling as they are, the world at large only talks political babble over events which are far more than political; at least, as we view them. It does not dream that the dire marvels and throes of the last decade of years have all been rushing toward a common issue, and that that issue is more momentous than battle-strife or dynasty.

"Maximilian went to Mexico. His expedition was a miserable failure. He lost his life, and Carlotta her reason. And this is all his history, as written by the wise-acres of the day. The principalities of northern Germany . . . were woven into a unit. Austria, jealous and touchy, shook herself to chastise and humble the new-born confederacy. In a few swift days . . . she was glad to make peace with the hosts who were thundering at the gates of Vienna. In all this, the watchmen of the nations saw only the dash, the flash, the unmatched exploit of a meteoric campaign, and the deadly prowess of the needle-gun.

Isabella of Spain eloped to France, crownless—scared by the waking manhood and womanhood of her people. The worldly wise saw only that a crown was lost; that a nation was disenthralled . . . But had nothing else happened?

The Pope convened his counsellors from the four quarters of the earth. He counselled them what they should counsel, and even so they counselled. He proclaimed his infallibility. The world laughed, relapsed into mortal sin and murmured—'foolish old man!' The murmur was true enough. But was that the whole truth?

Hardly had this decree gone forth from Rome when another thunder-clap startled the nations. The Gallican cock crowed, ruffled his feathers, and assaulted the Prussian eagle. The nephew of his uncle, with his soldiers, stepped out to mow the veterans who had so signally humbled the power of Vienna. Backward, confused, demoralized, with stripe upon stripe, falling heaps upon heaps . . . thus they recoiled! And now, in a few short weeks, the Emperor is imprisoned and his capital besieged! In all this, nothing is seen by myriads, the world over, but the game of battle and the tug of war. . . . But has the strife no moral aspect? Is all this bloodshed only to wet the ground? only for 'Louis and I?'

Now mark! Each event emanated from a common source; and to that source each has been rolled back—a scalding, devouring surge.

The Mexican expedition was not merely for military glory. . . . From the very first Napoleon III. was a devoted son of the Pope. He stood between the Holy Father and a revolution. French troops guarded the Vatican. . . . At home and at Rome the priest-power was his. . . . Still the throne was shaky in Mexico. Troops were sent, and Maximilian, to establish there the domination of the Pope. It was a miserable failure. For Napoleon? True. But also it . . . took another empire from the grasp of Pius IX. Papists are yet in Mexico, to be sure. But their power in the State is broken. . . . That war was a war of religion. The strategy of the Pope recoiled terribly upon himself.

It cannot be proven that the House of St. Peter (?) instigated the House of Hapsburgh to the conflict so sharply ended at Sadowa. But a moral conviction that it was so can hardly be resisted. Not only was Prussia Protestant, but she had suddenly become too big a Protestant and too muscular. Austria was Catholic. So was Spain. But Spain was impotent. France, too, was Catholic. But, just then, 'the Empire was Peace.' Austria was the only secular power in Europe which was free, able to strike blows, and in sympathy with Romish Catholicism . . . Such were the facts when the saint couched lance against the heretic. Austria was worsted . . . and Rome wounded. The wounds were more than flesh wounds—the weapons other than needle-guns.

For centuries the brain of Spain had been weakened. . . . But George Borrow with 'the Bible in Spain' infused a redemptive leaven. The people, recalling the traditions of Castilian greatness, and tracing their degradation to the [illegible] profligate on the throne, scared her into exile and abdication. First of all, they redeemed their State from the church. . . . Another secular arm lopped off from Rome! Was not this something more than a civil revolution?

In proclaiming the dogma of Papal Infallibility, Pius IX. was indeed foolish, for the world would not fall on its knees. But this is not the whole truth. The remaining and the greater truth is this: what he projected for his greater power has swiftly wrought his greater weakness. The last hope of reclaiming heretics has been bartered for a straw . . .

Close on the heels of the Papal faux pas was the attack of Papal France upon Protestant Prussia. . . . In its catastrophe—not yet completed—the status of the Romish hierarchy is deplorably involved. The troops of Napoleon withdrawn from Rome; the troops of Emmanuel in possession! To all human seeming, secular Papacy is well-nigh Popeless. . . . Close upon the proclamation of the new dogma came the doom of judgment. The Pope was discrowned. . . . The last remnant of his temporal power—long time waning—was taken utterly away.

There has been a most remarkable conspiracy; yet no conspiracy at all. . . . Actors without concert have wrought one result; . . . they have poured pitiless blasts upon one devoted head. All along the sad and blighting centuries of her domination the Romish church has never met with reverses so signal and so peculiar. . . . Curses have been gathering upon him who arrogates the monopoly of cursing. His own anathemas have come home to roost, until his temporal power is clean gone; not a prince about him bids him 'God speed,' or asks his will; not an acre is left him of 'the patrimony of St. Peter. . . . The concentration of events; the rapidity of their succession; the oneness of their bane; the identity of their victim,—surely all this is new, strange, significant! . . . We know that others are thinking only of the clash of arms, of the rocking of nations. But we are thinking only of this: that so many and so diverse agencies have pestered and rifled that one Head. One after another the princes have been loosed. This is the great and glorious fact which, to our vision, overtops and overrides, with the force and the voice of many waters, all the thunder of war and all the tearful 'sorrows of a poor old man.' For the moment, at least, nor decree nor minion of the Pope can sway decree or minion, council or army, of any potentate under heaven! 'For the moment, at least.' To-morrow may change the posture of affairs. But to-day—for once, after so long a time—the princes of Europe are free!

Not a single actor in all these scenes knew what he was about. Each had his own scheme. . . . Had Napoleon or Maximilian any thought that they were drawing up a bill of divorce to rupture Church and State in Mexico? Not they. And yet they did it. . . . Austria meant to be filial. . . . She meant to strengthen the Pope. She weakened him sorely. What she intended to do, she did not. What she did not intend to do, that she did. . . . Isabella of Spain degraded her people for the Pope's sake. . . . Too much popish piety ate up her queenly power. Queen-mother of heresy! God-mother to the Bible! What she meant to do, she failed to do. What would she not have done, for the boon of the whole world, that very thing he has done. Napoleon aimed his shaft at the vitals of Protestantism, in behoof of Papacy. It glanced. It struck deep in Rome. . . . The very reverse of what the nephew willed has come to pass.

The actors, contrary to their purpose, brought about this common result. They did it; yet they did not do it. Paradoxical, but true. Then who did it? No one? If the Supreme mind did not create the unity of result out of the incongruous and disloyal material—did not speed and guide against Rome what was intended for Rome—who did? Common sense . . . answers—No one, and instinctively and joyously recognizes that better mind, making prince and subject, despot and vassal, priest and prophet, general and soldier—tributary to his own Schema, and working out his own loving-kindnesses."

For the World's Crisis.

PRAYER.

"O that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men! Let them exalt him also in the congregation of the people, and praise him in the assembly of the elders."—Ps. 107: 31, 32.

"Exalt him!" That is it! Let the name of the Lord be exalted. Let it be honored above all other names; because the excellency of his name is great, and his loving-kindness endureth forever. O! ye ministers of his, who proclaim his word, is this the desire of your hearts? Do you set the name of the Lord on high? Do you honor him before the people, by acknowledging his care and protection? by craving his blessing upon yourselves and upon them? Do you exalt him? Do you praise him for his mercies? Do you pray in the congregation of the people, because you love, and would exalt his name? or, that you may be heard of men? Look to your motives, lest your consciences condemn you, and you be found not faultless in the day of the Lord Jesus.

The minister's prayer! What power it has! How sweet its influence! We cannot dispense with it. But let it have its proper place. Let it be short and forcible. Let its words be words of entreaty and grateful thanksgiving. Let it be simple and childlike, so that the hearts of the people may be lifted up with that of the minister, to adore the Creator and Preserver of them all.

God honors those who honor him. We must all pray. We must all enter our closets at stated times, and commune with God. Our spiritual life depends upon our doing this, and doing it continually. We may have blessings for the asking, and we dishonor God if we refuse to ask. We may pray for certain objects, and expect that our prayers will be granted. The little girl took her umbrella to meeting, because she expected God would answer the prayer of faith. We must act just as consistently. If we go to pray for rain, we must carry our umbrellas under our arms. The child asks for bread, and he gets it. The earthly parent may be evil, but he gives good gifts to his children. And does not God care for his children? Does he not exercise special care over them? Would it be any more miraculous for him to supply the wants of his needy children, than for an earthly parent to give bread to his child? His arm has the power, and inexhaustible stores are in his hand. The silver and the gold are his, and the cattle upon a thousand hills.

The praying mother trusts God, and she does not trust him in vain. She prays on, and on, even after the wicked child threatens to kill her, because of her prayers for him. "I will not give thee up," she says. He runs away from home; he will not be troubled by her supplications now. But her letters follow him; her prayers and her teachings are in them. The boy reforms, and becomes a mighty instrument in the hands of God for saving men. He goes out into the highways and hedges; among the poor, the outcasts of London. Would you know his name? It is Richard Weaver!

And shall we give up because we are not heard the first time? because we are not answered for weeks, months, and it may be for years? Like the importunate widow before the unjust judge, we must continue to present our cause until the answer comes. God will never grow weary. He is Judge of all the earth; just and compassionate, and his ears are open to our cry.

Oh! the worth, the power of prayer! the fervor, the mercy, the blessing, the confidence, the assurance of protection and guidance given to those who wrestle much in prayer; who seek God in the closet, and in the night-watches; who lean upon his arm in affliction, and who offer at all times and in all places the glory due to his holy name. "Not unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but unto thy name give glory, for thy mercy and for thy truth's sake. All ye that fear the Lord, praise the name of the Lord!" S. Roxana Wince.

For the World's Crisis.

PAUL'S DESIRE TO DEPART.

"For, to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain; but if I live in the flesh, this is the fruit of my labor: yet what I shall choose I wot [know] not; for I am in a strait betwixt two; having a desire to depart and be with Christ, which is far better."—Phil. 21: 23.

It is claimed that in the use of the above language, the apostle Paul expressed a desire to die, that he might be with Christ. That this idea is incorrect, we are prepared to prove most conclusively. If Paul had believed such a doctrine, he would have preached it, or taught it, for he says—"I kept back nothing that was profitable unto you." If that doctrine were true, it was certainly profitable. Where did he teach it? He was evidently meditating on his condition. His life was one of suffering, because he had espoused an unpopular cause. Yet he loved that cause, and only desired to live for Christ and it. But he knew that death would release him from his persecutors, and his rest would be sweet in the grave—"where the wicked cease from troubling, and the weary are at rest"—because he would sleep in Jesus; and this was his hope—"For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him." Therefore, as far as his personal experience was concerned, death to him would be gain. But he did not see anything desirable in either, hence his hesitancy and perplexity.

But there was no reluctance manifested by him in the choice of a third thing. Hear him—"Having an earnest desire for the loosing again, and with Anointed to be." This is said to be the literal rendering of the text. The word analusai, rendered "depart" in the common version, but literally a "loosing again," is also found in Luke 12: 36, and there rendered "return." Now an earnest desire is not compatible with a reluctance of choice; hence, it could not be for either life or death. But he did express an earnest desire for this "loosing again." What did he mean? We are told that he expressed a desire to die, that he might thus be with Christ. If he did, then he wanted to die again. Did Paul ever die before? This is the inevitable conclusion, if he meant die, because he had an earnest desire for a repetition of something, for the loosing again.

Paul is still in harmony with himself. His Lord had once come from heaven, had returned thither, but had promised to come again, that his disciples might be with him; and Paul was consistent with his teachings when he expressed an "earnest desire" for the Lord's "loosing again" from heaven, that he might reward his servants.

Geo. Thomson.

For the World's Crisis.

POLITICAL CHRISTIANS.

In speaking of the faults of professors of religion, it is not unusual to designate those who are given to a certain habit or inclination of doubtful propriety, by a title corresponding to the name of their fault. Hence we often use for convenience the term "covetous christians,"—"fashionable christians," "quarrelsome christians,"—"swearing christians," etc., intending by this association of their habitual fault with their profession to show an evident impropriety in their conduct. In harmony with this usage I speak of political christians as those professors of religion who are given to politics.

As it occasions no particular surprise to ordinary observers to see those in high standing in the church given to covetousness, pride, and worldliness generally, in violation of the plainest teachings of the New Testament, so it is found to be no matter of surprise that such worldly christians are as warm and zealous in politics as they are barren and lifeless in holy things. Indeed, I think I never saw a covetous, worldly professor of religion who was not a politician, so far as his natural inclinations would lead him in that direction. The exceptions to this political interest among professors of religion are the more humble, prayerful, faithful few who weep between the porch and the altar and raise their warning voice against these things, but whose tears and pleadings seem unavailing with the popular mass of professors.

Ministers seem as much carried away with this political zeal as any others. I heard one while in the West apologizing to his congregation for preaching on the prophecies, saying that he would never again preach on the prophecies on Sunday, nor on his regular appointments at any time. Interrupting him I asked, "Do you really feel it your duty to apologize for preaching on the prophecies?" He answered, "Yes, I do," and added, "They can never lead a man to Christ." At the same time that this man felt constrained to apologize thus for preaching on the prophecies on Sunday, as though it disgraced the day, he could preach politics from his pulpit every Sunday without apology or seeming scruple.

This disposition to bring politics into the pulpit, and keep the prophecies out, is characteristic of a large class of the ministers of our land. If they do sometimes preach on the prophecies it is too often, as was the case with this man, an endeavor to throw dust in the eyes of his hearers lest they shall understand them, rather than to help them to a correct knowledge of the truths contained in them. If a member seems indifferent about going to vote he is stirred up immediately; if he expresses his scruples about the propriety of christians engaging in politics, he is set down at once as "stupid," if not "fanatical." But should he indulge a zeal for studying the prophecies instead of politics, he is quite sure to be discouraged by his minister as troubling himself with that which does not concern him; and if he persists in his interest he will soon be warned, very likely, that he is going to make himself a "crazy Millerite." It is a somewhat remarkable fact, and quite significant, too, that whoever indulges a zeal for the prophecies is set down as an Adventist, or destined to become one, as though Adventists (shall I say "infidels"?) are the only people in the land who are interested in the prophecies. It is certainly true that many preachers who call us infidels are afraid to preach the prophecies lest they be called Adventists.

But why should we engage in politics? They certainly have been no spiritual advantage to them. They have grown more cold and barren spiritually with an increase of their political zeal. And is not this zeal a fruitful cause of such barrenness? When we hear of a minister that he is a politician, do we not from that one fact look for coldness and spiritual leanness in the character of his ministerial labors?

When the political preacher came to Gen. Jackson, immediately after his election, pleading for an office, on the ground that he had done more for his election than many on whom he had bestowed an office, Jackson says:

"You are a clergyman, I judge?"

"Yes," says the minister, "that is my calling; but I have spent six days of the week endeavoring to effect your election, preaching only on Sundays the while."

"Well," says Jackson, "a man that will cheat God will cheat his country. I will have nothing to do with you, nor any of your class."

Let us refer to certain declarations of Scripture bearing on the subject. Christ says—"They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world." John 17: 16. Paul—"Our citizenship [most all translations] is in heaven." Phil. 3: 20. Peter—"I beseech you as strangers and pilgrims." 1 Pet. 2: 11. John—"If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him." 1 John 2: 15. James—"The friendship of the world is enmity with God." James 4: 4. When christians indulge a zeal for politics, it is in direct violation of these passages, and a large mass of scripture of similar import.

But how can a man be a politician, which implies an earnest interest in sustaining and advancing the governments of this world, and still be a "pilgrim and stranger" here? How can he do so and not be "of the world"? How, and still have his "citizenship in heaven"? How, and not "love the world"? How, and not have the "friendship of the world"?

But, says the objector, "What if all should refuse to vote, as you do? Well, if all should refuse to vote for the same reasons that I do, the world would be none the worse, I am sure. For I recognize God's law as my only rule of life, and such need no other law. Human law is ordained of God for the government of those who will not bear to his law. I think it strange that professors of religion should seem so generally to overlook the fact that their profession requires them to regulate their lives so completely by the law of God that human law, so far as their conduct is concerned, is needless, and hence is for the world.

It is objected to this, however—"What! you would not have the wicked make and administer the laws for the world, would you?" Either the church, the world, or both combined, must do it. If both the church and the world can unite on political measures and candidates, then their politics do not differ so but the church can leave politics to the world. If they cannot thus unite, then all christians should vote on the side of the christian measures and candidates. If they cannot carry the election, it is no use to vote. If they do, then these christian measures become a law of the State, and those who refuse to obey them will be punished as rebels to the State. Such a triumph of the church would constitute another union of Church and State; and although Protestant, it would soon appear as bold and reckless as were the Catholics of past ages in a similar position of power.

I would say, then, I would rather see the world make and administer their own laws, than see the church engage in a strife with them for the mastery. And if such a strife should come, I would think it a great disgrace to the church to engage in it, and a greater misfortune to succeed in it.

But it will be asked—"What will become of the liberties of worship, if the world are to make the laws of the land? Let God look after that. I must not hesitate to do right for fear of such consequences. We are admonished to fear God rather than man. He assures us that "all things work together for good with those that love him." We have only to inquire the will of God concerning us, and, if faithful to our calling, have no need to fear the consequences. The faithful are hedged about with a thousand promises of God's protection. And in reference to this particular danger he has said that "the Most High God ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will, and setteth up over it the basest of men." Dan. 4: 17. Now if "the Most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will," he does not need my vote; and if he in his wisdom sometimes sets up over it the 'basest of men,'" I think he would in such cases fail to get my vote. But he would have his way, it seems, whether my vote hit right or not. Then of what account is all this voting for the best man? I am content for God to rule the world as he will. I do not think he especially needs my help in the matter.

I desire to know how to rule one wayward heart according to right and justice, and would not presume that I am qualified to rule others till I can have complete mastery over that. The jealousies, strifes, bickerings, recriminations, wire-pullings, and cheats of various kinds in politics, show that that is not the place for me to go for help to govern my heart according to the principles of the gospel, and I need not go there to protect my rights while Father is at the helm. So God helping me, I will refrain from becoming a political christian. I. K. Lombard.

Machiasport, Me., Dec. 30th, 1870.

For the World's Crisis.

THE STOLEN SOD.

Dear Crisis:—Somebody's description, in your columns, of "Prayer-meeting Killers," reminds me of an incident as related to me by Mr. Beecher, of Boston, while riding with him on the cars.

He said that an old Baptist Elder, of Rhode Island, some fifty years ago, was in the habit of making an annual missionary trip from Rhode Island through Mass. and into Canada, and from thence through northeastern and eastern New York and Connecticut back into Rhode Island. During one of these trips, on a bright spring morning, he overtook, as he journeyed, a man with a one-horse wagon and a load of sod, when the following colloquy ensued.

Elder. "Good morning! neighbor; how is it with thee and thine? and how is it with thy soul?"

Sod. "Good morning! to thee, in return, my brother; and, bless the Lord, it is well with me and mine; and it is all well with my soul."

E. "Then you have good hope of anchoring safe within the harbor of heavenly rest, when the stormy tempests, shoals, and reefs of the boisterous sea of life are past; and you are, I trust, endeavoring to make some little progress, some headway, in the divine life?"

Sod. "Well, I do not know how stormy, rough and tempestuous it may be to others, nor how many breakers there may be ahead to them, nor any thing about the shoals and reefs that they may find in this heavenly voyage, for to me it is an open and a smooth sea, fair sailing, and a good wind; sails all set, the harbor in full view, the gates of glory are standing wide open; and as for me, I am bound to make a clear run, and a sure entrance, right straight into the celestial city."

After a little further converse, the Elder bade Sod No. 1 good bye, and rode on, overtaking directly Sod No. 2, and extending to him the same salutations and inquiries as made to No. 1, but with unlike results.

Sod 2. "Yes, neighbor pilgrim, it is a good morning, and a beautiful world we live in, and it is a wonder to me that our kind, heavenly Father permits us to enjoy so many rich blessings in this life; and when I think how little we have merited these. Sometimes my heart almost fails me, when I consider how incomparably above these, are the heavenly gifts in reservation for those who endure to the end; and though I have been some forty years in the way, I find it is still amid foes without, fears and strivings within, that I am permitted to keep in the way; and if I shall be permitted at last some humble place inside my heavenly Father's mansion, I feel that it will all be of his divine compassion, his unspeakable gift, quite undeserved, and I, a poor lost sinner, saved by grace, grace, rich grace in Christ.

E. "Now, my good old brother, I want to know how this is. Here you have been striving to overcome and get the victory, for forty long years, and I find you still engaged in a desperate conflict, a persistent warfare, having no confidence in yourself; the voyage across the sea of life set thick with perils, trusting only in the Pilot from the other shore to bring you safely into harbor; and just back here, a little way behind us, I left a man with a load of sod like yourself, to whom it is all smooth work, the portals of glory wide open, and he making a clear, clean run home to heaven. Tell me, I want to know how this is?"

"Well, my brother, since you call me so, I cannot tell, for I do not know. But one thing I do know. I know I paid for my sod, and he stole his. G. W. S.

Moral. "Let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall."—Paul.

For the World's Crisis.

DESPISE NOT THE LITTLE ONES.

Bro. Grant:—What does Christ mean in Matt. 18: 10—"Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones; for I say unto you, that in heaven their angels do always behold the face of my Father which is in heaven"?

An advocate of the immortality of the soul has from this text tried to prove that heaven is the abode of the righteous, from the fact that their angels (spirits he called them) are in heaven beholding the face of God. I do not believe that there is any part of man that lives after he is dead; neither do I believe that heaven is to be the abode of the righteous. I believe the tenor of the Scriptures is, that man is mortal, and in order to have life he must be raised from the dead; and that the Bible teaches that this earth will be the future dwelling-place of the saints.

I believe the above text means what it says, and says what it means, no more and no less; and that the angels referred to by Jesus are guardian angels, and not any part of those "little ones." Am I not right?

Worcester, Mass. G. E. Merrill.

[We agree with you, most certainly.—Ed.

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, January 18, 1871.

☞ Please Remember!

☞ All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the Business Agent, GEO. T. ADAMS.

☞ Take Notice!

☞ All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

☞ Money Orders.

☞ Our correspondents should remember that if they send money orders in a letter which contains the name of the sender, and the name of the person to whom the order is payable, there is no SAFETY for their money. Any person may draw the amount named in the order, if these names are given. Neither is it safe to send us your names in advance. Somebody may open the letter, get the names, and then wait till the order comes, and get that too. Send on the order, not writing a word; make it payable to GEO. T. ADAMS, directing it to MILES GRANT, or World's Crisis. Then, in two or three days, write in the usual way, stating that you have sent the order, and what you wish done with the money obtained on the same, and it will be entirely safe. In the second communication be sure to give us your NAME and POST OFFICE ADDRESS. AG'T.

TRIP TO CALIFORNIA.

(The following notes were mislaid, and did not appear in their place.)

Monday evening, Dec. 5th, at nine P. M., we bid adieu to Boston, and left on the express train for Albany and Rochester, and arrived at the latter place Tuesday evening, for a meeting. Bro. N. McCullock was at the depot to give a most hearty greeting. Our meetings Tuesday and Wednesday evenings were seasons of interest and profit. We found some true and noble-hearted christians, who are anxiously waiting for the coming King. The church in R. has passed bravely through some deep trials; the last one was the burning of their pleasant hall. They now meet in the "Flour City Hall," Maine St. We found many anxious to hear about the coming of Christ. The interest is increasing among good people in all denominations. A greedy attention was given to the evidence presented in favor of the speedy coming of our dear Redeemer. Many who felt unprepared for the event, arose and requested prayers. The prospect in R. is encouraging.

While in R. we met Bro. Wm. Ingmire of Brockport, N. Y., and Bro. Wm. Fenn, of Rochester, with whom we had pleasant conversation. They are earnestly at work in the vineyard of the Lord, and their labors have been blest in bringing the people to see the light.

Wednesday evening, Dec. 7th, at 10 o'clock, P. M., we left R. for Nevada, O., where we arrived Thursday afternoon, and had an interesting meeting in the evening. We found the church in this place prospering under the faithful pastoral labors of Bro. Eusebius McCullock. During the year the church has built a very neat and commodious chapel forty feet wide, and seventy feet long, which was dedicated Oct. 9th. It occupies a central position, and has a prominent support by the people in the village, who are much interested in the doctrine preached. Other denominations are friendly, and manifest respect for those who are looking for the coming of Christ. The church numbers about one hundred members.

Friday evening, Dec. 9th, we had another interesting meeting, and then left for Chicago, where we arrived at 7.20 Saturday morning.

OUR NEW FIELD OF LABOR.

We left Chicago at 10.45 A. M., Monday, Dec. 12th, and arrived in San Francisco at six o'clock, Saturday evening, Dec. 17th. Our trip was made in good time, and was full of very interesting scenery, to some of which we have given a brief reference. We will now say something of

SAN FRANCISCO.

The city has sprung up within twenty-one years, and now contains some one hundred and fifty thousand inhabitants. Quite a portion of it is built on hills overlooking the San Francisco bay, which affords a most excellent harbor. The houses are mostly built of wood, with much taste, and the city presents a very elegant and inviting appearance. Some of the dwellings on the hill-sides and tops are very pleasant. In no other city have we ever seen so many handsome cedar cones. They are kept very nicely trimmed, in shape like a top, some of them being twenty-five or thirty feet in height. They are looking very green and thriving. The Plaza has the most beautiful collection of them, in connection with other handsome trees, that we ever beheld. There are some very fine business blocks, built with superior taste. As a general rule, the buildings are not as high in other cities of the same size, but built in better taste, and with more ornamental work. A large United States mint is now being built of granite, which will be one of the most substantial edifices on the Pacific coast. There are some fine churches; among these is the Jewish synagogue, on Sutter street. The Mercantile Library building is one of the best of the kind in the United States.

THE PEOPLE.

Of the one hundred and fifty thousand people here, forty thousand are Germans, and twenty thousand Chinese. We have seen more tall men than in any other city. There is a large number of "sharp" business men, whose hearts may be said to be full of covetousness. They caught the "gold fever" years ago, and it has taken such full possession of their mental and physical powers, that there is but little prospect they will ever be healed of that soul-destroying disease, by the healing balm from the great Physician. A large amount of tobacco and intoxicating drinks is used, and many faces speak of the sad results upon those who indulge in their use. Red faces, noses, eyes, and haggard countenances are constantly saying, We are on the road to perdition. Self-denial is not a common thing in this city; but voluptuousness prevails to an alarming extent. Gold and pleasure are the principal objects sought. A man's standing and influence here depend largely on the length of his purse. Folly, fashion, display, light reading, and sensual gratification, hold sway, rather than real worth and solid literature, of high-toned moral and intellectual character. Theaters have large patronage; and many of the professed followers of Christ are often among the attendants. The people are generous-hearted, and look well after the poor. The selfishness vein is smaller than is common in the eastern cities. They have obtained money easily and rapidly, and part with it more freely than those who have secured their little homes by the most earnest labors and rigid economy.

THE RELIGIOUS STANDARD

is very low. Fairs and festivals, picnics and bazaars, concerts and excursions, seem to occupy the chief attention of many who wear a religious cloak to hide their moral rags. We could learn of but two revivals on this coast; one by the labors of Eld. Knapp, the other by Mr. Earle. The impression seems to be that it is of no use to make an extra effort for the salvation of the people. There is but little faith and works that bear the marks of a pure christianity. An intelligent christian remarked to us, that he did not think there were in all the churches in the city more than one hundred living christians. The forms and ceremonies are kept up, but the power of godliness is most sadly wanting. We have found some in the different churches, and some who have withdrawn on account of the corruptions they see, who manifest the true christian spirit, and with whom we have held sweet communion.

THE CHINESE.

The Chinese men have come in here like the frogs of Egypt. In some streets of the city about every house, store, market, and shop, from cellar to attic, is occupied by these eastern idolaters, who have no respect for christianity. They follow their own customs, socially and religiously, with much tenacity. They are truly a peculiar people. The men make very good house servants, and are as common here as Irish women in Boston. There are but few China-women in San Francisco; but it is said of those who are here that not a virtuous one can be found among them. Some of them are very good looking, and might be said to have beautiful faces and forms. They appear on the streets very neatly, but quite fantastically, dressed. The Chinamen have but little respect for their women and girls. When one dies, they sometimes throw their bodies into the streets to be treated like the carcass of a dog or cat. At their funerals for the men, the dead body is boiled, the bones taken out and sent to China.

The men have no beards, but shave their foreheads, and braid their hair into a cue behind, which very commonly hangs down their backs half way between the knees and feet. The longer the cue, the more fashionable, or honorable. When at work, this long braid is coiled about the head. They wear a loose, sack-like coat, rather long, with sleeves so long that their hands are entirely out of sight. Their shoes have wooden soles, though some few have adopted the common boot; and many are wearing the American soft hats. They are quick to learn how to do the various kinds of housework, or any thing else they undertake. They work very faithfully, but, generally speaking, are not considered remarkably trusty, when the employer is out of sight. They are remarkable for carrying heavy burdens. This is done in two baskets, holding one or two bushels each, suspended from the ends of a springy pole, some six or seven feet long, which they lay on their shoulders. They work Sundays just as much as on Monday, or any other day. They do a large amount of washing and ironing in rooms which they have prepared for such work. As a general rule, they are a peaceable people, and economical, living largely on rice and fruits. We think a great mistake has been made by the Californians in introducing these Chinese men into the State in such numbers.

OUR MEETINGS.

We have only time to say now that a most gracious revival has begun; and christian men who have been here twenty years say that the meetings are the best they have ever enjoyed since they came to California. The Spirit of the Lord is with us in power. Pray for us.

THE WORK IN SAN FRANCISCO.—From a private letter we give the latest intelligence from the Editor:—

* * * * * "A gracious revival has commenced, and the prospect for a great work is very encouraging. I am holding meetings in the Minna St. Methodist church. The pastor, Bro. Bailey, has given me the full control of the meetings, and requested me to do all the preaching. . . . The Lord is giving me much favor with the people. * * * * Our meetings are increasing in interest every day. . . . Infidels are trembling. Daily new ones start in the service of the Lord. We have meetings at 2 P. M., prayer meetings at 6.45 to 7.30, then preaching.

The pastor, Bro. Bailey, is a real christian, though he belongs to the Southern Methodist Conference, and this is a Southern Methodist church. . . Doors are opening in all directions, there being earnest requests that I should visit the principal cities in the State and in Nevada."

RATHER SPICY.

In the San Francisco weekly News Letter, Dec. 31st, 1870, we find the following spicy article:—

"Eld. Miles Grant preached a sermon upon 'patience.' He will have need of a great deal before we get done with him. We will lay a small wager with Satan—our soul, or some trifle of that kind—that we shall make that Second Adventist blaspheme fearfully before he goes away from here. It will be remembered that Father Eagan once preached a sermon upon the News Letter, and used such strong language that he was rebuked by his Bishop; and that Elder Knapp called us the 'infernalist new dodge of the devil.' We have received divers pretty compliments from the clergy, and we mean to wring one from Elder Miles Grant, if we have to wrestle with him until Gabriel shall straddle the sea-shore and proclaim that he won't give any more time on small purchases."

We think Mr. Marriott, the publisher of the News Letter, will have need of "patience" before he gets through wrestling.

Perhaps we ought to say that the leading daily papers of San Francisco have given nearly every day respectful and favorable notices of our meetings; and we shall expect to "wring" the same from the "News Letter."

MORTAL MAN.

We purpose to present some Scriptures to to show that the being made "of the dust of the ground" is the one who sins, and is to be judged, condemned or rewarded; and that if there is another personality in man, that remains conscious after the death of the physical organism, it is to be neither judged nor rewarded; consequently it possesses neither moral or intellectual powers.

After mankind became very wicked, "the Lord said, My Spirit shall not always strive with man." Gen. 6: 3. Then it follows that man is the one with whom the Spirit strives. In Gen. 6: 5, we read:—"And God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth." Let it be observed that man the one "made of the dust of the ground," is the one who is said to be wicked. Then he is the one to be punished or rewarded. Please keep these points in mind, while we examine other Scriptures: "And the Lord said, I will destroy man, whom I have created, from the face of the earth; both man, and beast, and the creeping thing, and the fowls of the air." Gen. 6: 7. This verse leaves no room to doubt that the term man represents the sinner. In Gen. 7: 21–23, we find the following:—"And all flesh died that moved upon the earth, both of fowl, and of cattle, and of beast, and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth, and every man; all in whose nostrils was the breath of life, of all that was in the dry land, died. And every living substance was destroyed which was upon the face of the ground, both man, and cattle, and the creeping things, and the fowl of the heaven; and they were destroyed from the earth; and Noah only remained alive, and they that were with him in the ark." This Scripture shows that the men died in the flood as truly, and literally as did the fowls, the cattle, the beasts, and the creeping things. To say that the flood did not destroy the men, as well as the animals, would be to contradict the record, which positively affirms that "Noah only remained alive, and they they that were with him in the ark." Why did Noah and his family, with the variety of animals, go into the ark? See Gen. 6: 19:—"And of every living thing of all flesh, two of every sort, shalt thou bring into the ark, to keep them alive with thee."

Could we say that not an animal, nor a single accountable being was destroyed by the flood, and still believe the Bible? Would it be reasonable to affirm that the flood only destroyed the bodies in which the men lived, while the real men did not die? Then the sinner was not destroyed, and the Scripture record is not true, which declares that all those wicked men died. Is it well to adhere to a theory that requires us to reject such plain Scripture? In Job 4: 17, we read—"Shall mortal man be more just than God?" The term "mortal" applies to all that is expressed by the term "man." But the word "man" represented the accountable being, made of the dust of the ground, placed in the garden of Eden, who received the commandment of his Creator, was driven from the tree of life, lest he should eat and live for ever; and finally died, aged nine hundred and thirty years.

The foregoing Scriptures show that it is impossible to have a man without the personal organism; for that is what constitutes him a human being. In other words, a man without a body is nobody. When the human organism is dead, the man is dead; the one to be judged, rewarded, or punished. In harmony with this we read, "The sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them; and they were judged, every man according to their works." Rev. 20: 13. Here we learn that the accountable men, who are to be judged, may be dead in the sea, or in hell (hades—the grave.) If it should be asserted that the man whom God made "of the dust of the ground" was not the intelligent, moral and accountable person, who is to be judged for his deeds, rewarded or punished, but that it is the soul or spirit of the man; then it would follow that the soul or spirit was dead in the sea, or in hades, the grave; for the one to be judged is there. It would be absurd to say that the soul of accountable man was at the same time dead in the sea, and alive in another place. Jesus said:

"Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation." John 5: 28, 29.

Here we are again taught that those who have done good or evil are in the graves; and the time is coming when they will all be raised to life, to be acquitted or condemned.

According to the teaching of Jesus, whoever has done the good, or the evil, whether it be the man, the soul, the spirit, the body, or all combined, that is the one who is dead in the grave, and is to be raised to life at the time appointed.

Thus we find a most beautiful harmony throughout the entire Bible; when we admit that all its doctrine is expressed in simple, literal language, adapted to the capacity of the common people. We do not believe it is possible to [illegible] harmony in the Scriptures, until we are ready to admit they teach that the man who was created, who sinned, who is to be judged, is a mortal being, and dependent on Christ for the gift of eternal life, which is to commence at the resurrection of the dead, when this corruptible shall put on incorruption, and this mortal, immortality. According to the Scriptures, till that time no man can become immortal.

JUST PUBLISHED.

By the Advent Christian Publication Society, a new Tract, entitled, "The Judgment Impending: Prophecy and Chronology converging to one Grand Culmination." By Bro. L. T. Cunningham. 52 pp. Price, 8 cents per copy. Postage, 2 cts. 75 cts. per dozen. $5.00 per one hundred. AG'T.

"TALKS ABOUT PEOPLE'S STOMACHS,"

Is the title of a new work just issued by Dr. Dio Lewis, of Boston.

"Like all of his works, it is brimful of common sense. We do not know of another writer on matters pertaining to health, who says so many good things as Dr. Lewis."—Crisis of Dec. 7th.

"HEALTH BY GOOD LIVING."

A VALUABLE WORK, BY W. W. HALL, M. D.

These two works are for sale at this office, and will be sent by mail, on receipt of publisher's price. $1.50 each. AG'T.

NOW READY.

The Report of the Eleventh Annual Meeting of the Advent Christian Association, held at Chapin's Grove, Springfield, Mass., Aug. 23d, 24th, 1870; together with the Constitutions and By-Laws of the Advent Christian Association, and the Advent Christian Publication Society. Also a Catalogue of Publications, to which is added our recent Tract, "TIME'S FAREWELL."

The whole making a pamphlet of forty-eight pages. Our friends who have not received a copy, can be supplied on application to our office, or by addressing by mail; in which case, they may, if they please, enclose a two cent stamp to pay the postage. AG'T.

MUSIC.—New edition, "O, who'll stand up for Jesus?" Single 5 cents, postage 2 cents; 50 cents per dozen, postpaid. AG'T.

RECEIVED.—For January, "Manufacturer and Builder," Scribner's "Monthly," "Prophetic Key," "Prophetic Times," "School-day Visitor," "Nathaniel," McDonald's "Illustrated Annual," etc., etc.

THE DAVIDIC DYNASTY.

It was the purpose of Jehovah to establish a line of kings on the throne of David, provided they would be obedient to the Lord, to continue till the immortal heir of David should be elevated to the throne, to occupy it to all eternity. Concerning this great heir or "seed" of David, Jehovah says—"I have made a covenant with my chosen, I have sworn unto David my servant, Thy seed will I establish for ever, and build up thy throne to all generations." Ps. 89: 3.

This covenant and oath of Jehovah relates to the endless perpetuity of David's throne when occupied by David's great heir,—the promised "seed." Not only does God promise unconditionally to elevate a certain "seed" of David to the throne, to hold an eternal possession of it when thus elevated, but he also makes a conditional promise to his descendants, or "children," which, if the conditions had been complied with, would have constituted an unbroken Davidic dynasty, by (1) giving a line of rulers in a mortal state reaching to the elevation of the immortal heir, and (2) by his perpetual reign after taking the throne. "The Lord hath sworn in truth unto David; he will not turn from it: Of the fruit of thy body will I sit upon thy throne. If thy children [David's children] will keep my covenant and my testimony that I shall teach them, their children shall also sit upon thy throne forevermore." Ps. 132: 11, 12.

Here we learn (1) that God has sworn in truth that he will place an heir of David on the throne, and "will not turn from it," let men do as they may; and (2) on conditions of obedience, David's children might occupy the throne till the promised "seed" should come, and thus it might have been occupied forevermore by a line of David's posterity. But what if they would not obey the Lord? "His seed also [David's seed] will I make to endure for ever, and his throne as the days of heaven. If his children [David's children] forsake my law, and walk not in my judgments; if they break my statutes, and keep not my commandments; then will I visit their transgressions with the rod, and their iniquity with stripes. Nevertheless my loving kindness will I not utterly take from him [from David], nor suffer my faithfulness to fail. My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that is gone out of my lips. Once more have I sworn by my holiness that I will not lie unto David. His seed shall endure for ever, and his throne as the sun before me."—Ps. 89: 29–36.

Here we learn (1) that David's great heir, or "seed," should possess David's throne "for ever," or as long as the days of heaven should endure, when once seated upon it; and (2) that if David's posterity while ruling on the throne should be disobedient to the Lord, the "rod" and "stripes" awaited them, which would exterminate their dynasty for a time; and (3) that notwithstanding their wickedness and overthrow, God would "not break" his covenant to David, "nor alter the thing," and would "not lie unto David," and repeats—"His seed shall endure for ever." Peter quotes the oath and promise of a seed to be raised unto David, and applies it to Christ. "Let me freely speak unto you of the patriarch David. . . . being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn by an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne; he seeing this before spake of the resurrection of Christ." Acts 2: 29–31. So the "seed" that God promised David was Christ. He must ultimately occupy David's throne, and reign thereon as long "as the days of heaven" endure.

After David's death, one of his sons came to the throne, then another, and another, till that line of rulers became corrupt and disobedient to the Lord, when the following mandate saluted the ears of Zedekiah: "And thou profane, wicked prince of Israel, whose day is come, when iniquity shall have an end; Thus saith the Lord God: Remove the diadem, and take off the crown; this shall not be the same: exalt him that is low, and abase him that is high. I will overturn, overturn, overturn it; and it shall be no more, until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him." Ezek. 21: 25–27. There the Davidic dynasty ended, or rather was suspended, and Israel's crown, and throne, and kingdom, are still in ruins. But the personage "whose right it is" will finally be elevated to the throne of David.

But who is the rightful claimant? Gabriel, in speaking of Christ, affirms—"The Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David: and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end." Luke 1: 32, 33. Thus the angel affirms that Christ is destined to reign on David's throne, agreeing with Peter's affirmation that Christ is the promised "seed" of David, designated in the oath of God, who is to occupy the throne of David while "the days of heaven" continue, when he is established upon it. So far the matter is plain.

But has that reign commenced? or is it to begin hereafter? We insist that it is yet future, for Christ can have but one endless reign, and this reign on David's throne is to have "no end," and it is certain that one endless reign of Christ is to begin in the future; so that must be his reign on David's throne. Among the many evidences that the reign of Christ is yet future, we find the following:

1. It is to begin under the sounding of the seventh trumpet. "And the seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever." Rev. 11: 15. That the sounding of this trumpet is yet future, and that this kingdom is not introduced by the preaching of the gospel, as some claim, but is to be literal, is evident from what transpires under the same trumpet; for it is said: "Thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged, and that thou shouldest give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear thy name, small and great; and shouldest destroy them that destroy the earth." Rev. 11: 18.

All this is under the seventh trumpet. Then comes God's "wrath"; and wrath is not used to convert men, but mercy; hence, the introduction of Christ's kingdom under this trumpet cannot be the result of the gospel in evangelising the kingdoms of earth. Then comes "the time of the dead that they should be judged"; but when will they be judged? Paul informs us that Christ "shall judge the quick and dead at his appearing" (2 Tim. 4: 1), so Christ appears under this trumpet, and when he appears, instead of coming to convert the world, he "shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ; who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord" (2 Thess. 1: 7–9); so the kingdom here mentioned, under the seventh trumpet, is introduced at the time of the Lord's coming to judge the dead. And then comes the time when God shall "give reward unto his servants the prophets"; and Jesus tells us that the reward is due at the resurrection. "Thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just" (Luke 14: 14); so this kingdom under the seventh trumpet is due at the resurrection. And then comes the time when sinners are to be destroyed.

Then this reign is (1) after the arrival of the day of "wrath"; (2) after the coming of Christ; (3) after the resurrection; (4) and after sinners are destroyed; then Christ shall "reign for ever and ever." There the Davidic dynasty, now suspended, will be restored under an immortal King, the great heir of David; and then "the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end." The King being immortal, the subjects will also be immortalized, for at his coming he "shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body." As "of his kingdom there shall be no end," this "reign over the house of Jacob" cannot signify mortal Jacob, else mortality and death would have "no end," and a propagation of the species be necessary to prevent the kingdom from becoming extinct, and that, too, in an age of which Jesus affirms, they "neither marry, nor are given in marriage; neither can they die any more." Luke 20: 35, 36. When Christ comes, the resurrection will come, for then "the Lord himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God, and the dead in Christ shall rise first"; and Gabriel informed Daniel that at the resurrection "thy people shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book. And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life" (Dan. 12: 1, 2); and the Revelator, in speaking of the same time when "the books were opened," and "another book was opened which is the book of life," and the dead were "delivered up," says—"And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire." Rev. 20: 15. This settles the question that "every one" found written in the book will be "delivered" from mortality at the resurrection, by a "redemption of the body," or by having mortality "swallowed up of life"; while at the same time "whosoever" is not found written there will be cast into the lake of fire, leaving no mortals after this epoch for Christ to reign over—only immortals being left as subjects.

2. The reign of Christ must be yet future from the fact Paul couples his kingdom with his appearing and the judgment,—future events. "I charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom." 2 Tim. 4: 1. Thus his kingdom is not to precede his "appearing"; and when "He comes whose right it is" to reign, the now obsolete Davidic dynasty will be restored in the person of Christ the Son of David, of "whose kingdom there shall be no end."

3. Christ connects his kingdom with his coming. "When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory: . . . then shall the King say unto them upon his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." Matt. 25: 31–34. As he is to sit on David's throne "to all generations," or as long "as the days of heaven" continue, and as he cannot reign upon two thrones at the same time, "the throne of his glory" will be the throne of David restored. His kingdom comes when he comes "in his glory" (not before); hence, it is yet in the future.

4. Christ is represented as the divine Nobleman, destined to become a King hereafter, having gone into "a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return," who, at his return, "having received for himself a kingdom," issues this decree: "Those mine enemies, which would not that I should reign over them, bring hither, and slay them before me." Luke 19: 12, 15, 27. The very kingdom to be conferred upon him is now filled with enemies, which are to be exterminated at his coming, preparatory to his reign. This has not yet been accomplished; hence, his reign is yet future.

5. Instead of reigning now upon the promised "throne of David," he is simply seated at the right hand of his Father for a limited time, in obedience to his Father's request—"Sit thou at my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footstool" (Ps. 110: 1); but when he sits upon the throne of David, there will be no limitation to the occupancy of the throne, for there shall be "no end" to his kingdom, and no enemies to be exterminated when he leaves the throne, as is the case when he vacates the Father's throne; indeed, David's throne will never be vacated again when restored to the "seed" of David; Christ will never desert the throne of David when once enthroned upon it, but occupy it "as the days of heaven" roll on, while he is destined to leave the throne which he now occupies.

6. David's throne was never in heaven, but on earth, and if Christ were now reigning there, it could not fill the contract which Jehovah gave David under oath. The throne which Christ now occupies in heaven has never been "overturned," nor extinct, nor destitute of an occupant, which was to be the case with the throne which the seed of David should occupy. That throne is now in ruins, and "shall be no more till He come whose right it is, and [says God] I will give it him." This kingdom will be restored to Israel under an immortal King, who will impart his own deathless nature to all his subjects, and destroy all his enemies.

7. Christ is now "Mediator," or "High Priest"; but as he is to officiate as "Judge" before commencing his reign, and as mediatorship and judgeship cannot be exercised at the same time, his mediatorship must close before he becomes Judge, and he must be Judge before he reigns as King. As his judgeship is yet future, his reign has not yet commenced.

8. The territory of his kingdom must be dispossessed of its unholy occupants before he begins his reign. "As therefore the tares are gathered and burned in the fire; so shall it be in the end of this world. The Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity; and shall cast them into a furnace of fire: there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth. Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father." Matt. 13: 40–43. This work is not to be done till the "end of this world"; hence, his reign is still future.

9. The judgment must precede the reign of Christ, else he must reign over unjudged men; and the judgment is not due till Christ shall appear, "who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing."

These are some of our reasons for believing that the predicted reign of David's great heir is yet future, whose kingdom shall have "no end." Great kings have reigned on earth, but the greatest King is yet to take the reins of government, and forever banish death from earth, and reign over immortalized and glorified humanity. All the saints who have lived and died during the past sixty centuries, will be awakened from their slumbers to share in the glories of this eternal kingdom, when "the tabernacle of God shall be with men," when "the former things are passed away," and an era of glory shall dawn on earth, never to close. W. S.

"BATTLE OF THAT GREAT DAY."

Being often inquired of whether it is probable that "the battle of that great day" is already inaugurated in the Eastern struggle, we answer negatively, for the good reason that we have not yet reached "that great day," and in order for a battle to be "the battle of that great day," it must be fought in "that great day," just as really as it is necessary for the battle of 1870 to be fought in 1870 in order to constitute it the battle of 1870; for as it could not be the battle of 1870, if really fought in 1869, so neither can a battle preceding "that great day" be recognized as the "battle of that great day." But these pent up fires of military rage, which seem ready to envelope Europe and the world in a blaze of war, and which will ultimately culminate in the battle of the great day, when it shall come, may yet astonish the world with a wonderful outburst of revolution, or events may possibly comparatively smother the flames till the great day shall dawn.

Be this as it may, this war-like element, and the corresponding preparation for war on a mighty scale, hitherto unknown in the history of nations, is a fulfillment of prophecy, and betokens our proximity to the end. "Prepare war, wake up the mighty men," is a mandate that was to be obeyed when "the day of the Lord is near," and already the prediction is realized, and already there are unmistakable symptoms of national hydrophobia. W. S.

PROPHETIC TRUTH.

In the great system of truth, we have practical truths and doctrinal truths adapted to all ages of the world; but in addition to these, we also have prophetic truths adapted only to certain periods of time; and whenever those prophetic truths are due, they always develope a corresponding prophetic people—a people called out by these truths to take a new stand before the world. As for instance, the predicted message in the wilderness of Judea was due at a specific point of time, and when that message was delivered, it called out a class of people corresponding with the prophetic proclamation given by John the Baptist,—a people that took a new stand before the world.

So it has ever been; whenever prophetic truth has been due, it has always developed a corresponding prophetic people. So with the proclamation of Messiah's future coming. A people have been called out to sympathise with the proclamation, and to spread the message far and wide. As it is an unwelcome message to unconsecrated men, it is an unpopular announcement, but none the less truthful. We have really reached the time when the prophetic programme demands the immediate advent of the Messiah to fill the last mould of prophecy; and we are the people to hold up this truth to the world; and we cannot be excused, as we see the sword of wrath coming, if we neglect to give the warning faithfully. Prophetic truth has here developed a prophetic people, and there is no concealing the fact that we are the people.

Let us feel the responsibility, and go to work for God as we ought to do in view of our proximity to the judgment of the great day. We are the people who are specially called upon to make this truth prominent; and shall we not nobly do our whole duty? Shall we allow this truth to suffer in our hands? We have a work to do, and we should be active and earnest. Darkness covers the land, and we have the light that is needed, and ought not to withhold it. In various ways we can help spread it. Let us have a will to help on the message, and we can easily find a way. Let ministers and people do more to spread prophetic truth all around the land. W. S.

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 24th, 1870, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

WM. B. HERSON, Sec'y Adv. Chr. Pub. Soc'y.

Remittances should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass., or they may be enclosed with remittances to the Crisis office.

Donations for the Tract Fund.

Previous acknowledgments	$185 73
"Steward"	100 00
A Friend	5 00
A Friend	2 00
Dr. Walker	5 00

POOR FUND.

(To send the Crisis to the Poor.)

Previous acknowledgments	$21.75
A. Ogsburg	2.50

YOUNG PILGRIM FUND.

Previous acknowledgments	$5 08

AMER. ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

Donations are earnestly solicited, to enable this Society to send out missionaries, and other means, into the Southern States, and elsewhere, as the Lord may open the door, to proclaim "the glad tidings of the kingdom at hand"; and should be sent, as also payments of pledges made, to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, P. O. Drawer 302, Boston, Mass., who will acknowledge the same in the columns of the Crisis.

Previous acknowledgments	$643 69
"Steward"	100 00
Emily M. Davis	5.00
Sarissa Bidwill (for Tracts)	1.00
"A Lender"	10.00
S. P. Clark	30.00

SPIRITUALISM.

A correspondent from Missouri writes as follows:—

"I think you do not suffer so much annoyance from the demoniacal delusion (called Spiritualism) in the Eastern States, as we do in the West. They are truly invading every branch of society. No class seems to be exempt, not even the preachers of the gospel; for some, who were once considered able ministers of the New Testament, have become ensnared by the delusion. I have the writings of different authors on this subject, and a number have done very well in showing it to be the work of demons; but all that I have hitherto seen come far short of meeting it so fully as the pamphlet called 'Spiritualism Unveiled.'

My object in writing at this time is to say to the readers of the Crisis and the Times, that the time has come when this pamphlet should, by some means, be put into every family in the country. By this means, some may be yet saved, who will otherwise be led captive at the will of the devil, and their end will be destruction. Ye saints of the most high God, will you remain idle, and see your fellow men led captive at the will of Satan, and not put forth one mighty effort to save them? Remember that God will hold us responsible for the improvement we make of what we possess. There are many who have not yet come in contact with this baneful influence of demons, as some of us have. Such cannot fully realize its disastrous influences upon society, as those who have witnessed its saddening wiles. Had I means, I would have published and thrown into every family one of the above pamphlets.

Brethren, in the name of the Lord, I ask you to rally to the rescue of your fellow men. There is no work that we have published, that I think will do more good at this time than the pamphlet above named. It seems to be especially adapted to counteract Satan's great and, we think, his last device."

AN OLD WAR-HORSE.

Among those who took part in the love-feast of the recent Illinois Conference was the venerable Peter Cartwright, who stated that this was the sixty-sixth conference he had attended. "Father Cartwright" was one of those sturdy and fearless pioneers of the olden time, who preached the gospel on the frontiers—and was not afraid to make the back-woods re-echo with the voice of one crying in the wilderness. Some idea of the veteran may be gathered from his remarks at the Conference.

He said, in reviewing his ministry, that "he had never had but one appointment that he complained of. Bishop Ashbury had sent him to a place, where the people couldn't stand shouting." "At a village occupied by Yankees, an old deacon had begged him to preach lower. On the lower part of the circuit he had a long distance to travel through a wilderness country, where he could sing, and holler, and preach without making any headache. While on this lonely way, singing and shouting, he came suddenly upon the deacon. He pulled him off his horse, made him get down, and [illegible] and pray for mercy. * * The Congregational preacher tried to stop him. He told him God would kill him if he didn't mind." Perhaps the doughty evangelist was of the same mind as another of that ilk, who, like Cooper's Leather-stocking, had a mania to be rid of the clearings." He wanted, he said, to get somewhere where he could preach the marrow and fat of the gospel, hell-fire and damnation."

It was Father Cartwright we remember, who, on visiting Baltimore, to attend a Conference, many years ago, in the good old slavery days, was invited to occupy one of the pulpits of the city, with many a friendly injunction (according to the fashion of the time) not to say anything on the exciting questions, just beginning to be mooted. The honest gospeler promised to try his best; but a glance at the damsels of various shades of color, who occupied the gallery, tricked out in the finery, which could not have come to them legitimately, revealed a state of things which entered into his very soul. He succeeded in restraining himself until the middle of his sermon, but then he broke down under the pressure of his righteous indignation. Suddenly abandoning the topic of his discourse, he burst upon the thunder-stricken audience with a tremendous denunciation of that peculiar sin, the tokens and the fruits of which he did not hesitate to point out in the galleries, and which he defined in language altogether too explicit for these columns. And it might have been Father Cartwright (though we are not sure that it was) who volunteered to ride circuit over a road that ran through a defile in some of the Western mountains, where stood the forge of an infidel blacksmith, who had premulgated far and near the promise of a "licking" to any Methodist minister who should dare to pass that way. The end was that the smith himself received a sound thrashing, which was intermitted only on his promise to attend the next prayer meeting and become converted, and this he fulfilled to the very letter. The rumor of this achievement of militant missions went widely abroad, and the hero of the story being asked about its truth, is said to have replied, Well, I believe I did maul the grace of God into him!" A notion of the nature of conversion, which is certainly not open to the charge of being too Calvinistic.—Christian Union.

For the World's Crisis.

THE MAINE MISSION TENT.

I find friends of the Mission in all parts where I go, and others writing to me, asking "Why the tent was not in the field last season?" "Why nothing appeared in the Crisis about its meetings and its success?" "Why the appointments for it were not given out?" etc., etc. To save further inquiry, and the time in answering more letters, and to inform those who wish to help the Mission if there is a Mission, I will say—Bro. and Sister A. W. Taylor, and K. P. Taylor, traveled about two months with the tent, and held meetings in Salisbury, Kennebunk, Limington, Boxton, and Bowdoinham. The tent was also at Pittsfield and Mechanic Falls campmeetings. We are told that the work was good and profitable to the cause of Christ. Why not reported for the benefit of the friends of the Mission, and to stimulate them to contribute of their means to help pay the debt before incurred, and to aid it in the future, we do not know.

I. C. WELLCOME.

For the World's Crisis.

MY DIARY.

On looking over my "Diary" of 1870, I find many interesting incidents, one of which I venture to notice.

While at Fremont, with the N. Y. State tent, last summer, in one of our Sunday morning love-feasts, we noted the following proceedings of one hour's time: Forty-nine old professors spoke for Christ; nine wanderers returned and confessed; eleven young converts spoke for the first time in a public meeting, and fourteen rose for prayers.

This same day we baptized sixteen, and have baptized thirty-three in Fremont, as the fruit of tent meetings.

Who will withhold their means from supporting tent enterprises in the cause of Christ, while they are productive of so much good?

I will just say, in conclusion, that I have baptized fifty-four this last summer, in connection with tent meetings, and several others have been baptized by other brethren as the fruit of them. I hope the coming season (if Jesus does not come) we shall see glorious results following the meetings, in every State where it is possible to operate with a tent.

WM. A. FENN.

P. S.—Brethren responding to the committee on "circuit" preaching, will be patient till we hear from all; then our arrangements to visit you will appear in the Crisis. W. A. F.

Correspondence.

From Sr. C. Hill.

BRO. GRANT:—I wish to second the request of Sr. L. B. Weaver, in Crisis of Jan. 4th, with regard to A. E. McEllister. Worse far than a death-knell fell the sad, sad news upon my ear—"Sr. Anna is insane." I believe this to be no common case, and wish earnestly to request that the sympathizing, believing ones bear it in earnest, all-prevailing prayer before the great Healer, whose child she is, and whom she trusted for all things, being an orphan, without means or health. That she may be restored to her right mind, and find a quiet resting-place henceforth in some home of peace and plenty, where the soothing ministrations of kindness and love shall bless her ever, is the earnest prayer of the writer. This I say, not to reflect in any way upon her immediate friends, whom I know she held very dear to her, but because I know her peculiar necessities. Yours waiting, and praying for the Healer,

CARRIE HILL.

Delevan, Wis., Jan. 8th, 1871.

Extracts from Letters.

BRO. E. R. WILLIAMS writes from Drywood, Mo.:—"Dear brethren and sisters in the Lord, myself and wife are made happy in reading your letters in the beloved Crisis. Write on, preach on, pray on, and toil on a little longer, and then we shall see each other, and you may see the fruit of your labors, which you never will know until the judgment is over.

O how I love Jesus for giving you the power to unveil God's truth, so long hid from the masses of the people by the traditions of men. It was the arguments adduced in the Crisis that convinced me and my wife that man has not yet received his immortal nature. When I embraced it, the light grew so fast that it almost dazzled my vision; but in the midst of my joy, there was grief; for at first my wife opposed me bitterly, and neighbors too. They all said I was a fool to let an old newspaper set me crazy about Christ's coming. I would tell them of the signs. They would say these things had always been, and were no sign; and if Jesus was to come, I would not be any more ready than they were, and such like; but, thank the Lord, I still believe that Jesus is soon coming to relieve me of my troubles, and give me a home in the kingdom. Now my joy is greatly increased, for my wife thinks so too. She has embraced the truth, and loves the Crisis. It is all the preaching we get. We read and cry, and cry and read, for joy. O glory! how happy it makes us."

BRO. B. P. MANNING writes:—"I have got through the last of my labors out in the field for the present, and do not know but forever. The Lord has been with me, and has blessed me and the children where I have been. I am laid up for the time being. I have lain on my bed the most of the time. If I am ever any better, it will be in answer to the prayers of the elders of the church. I long to be out in the field again. Pray for me. I thank you all for helping me on my way after a godly sort, and give God all the glory. My means are about all gone. I cannot live to go to the county-house. But I shall go into the grave soon. But may God provide for me till Jesus comes."

BRO. J. W. BURROUGHS writes:—"I have endeavored to spend the past year wholly in the service of my heavenly Father. I have traveled over three thousand three hundred miles, and preached one hundred and ninety-seven discourses, besides holding a discussion of sixteen speeches each on the 'life and death' question with good results. By the help of the Lord, I have raised up and organized three churches, one of fifty-one members, one of twenty-three, and another of twenty members, which are all doing well. I have baptized or buried fifty-eight happy souls in the likeness of our blessed Savior's death, burial and resurrection. God's word shines brighter and brighter on my path. I have every reason to believe that we are very near the end of this age, when Jesus will make his second personal advent to this earth. Though it is an unpopular truth, and I meet with much opposition, nevertheless I get a good hearing; and I can say like the apostles, so far I have lacked nothing. The Lord has verified his promise with me—"Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end" I am striving to do what I can for the cause of my Master. I expect to spend this present year as I have the past, having charge of the churches that I have already organized, and working in new places as the way opens. I will try to fill the many calls from brethren as fast as I can. May the good Lord bless and keep us from temptation, and save us all in his everlasting kingdom when Jesus comes."

BRO. GEO. A. STREETER writes of "A pilgrim's work in 1870":—"I would render thanks to the God of heaven for all his kindness to me and mine. I have traveled with my horse over fifteen hundred miles; preached one hundred and fifty-six sermons, besides attending two conferences, two tent meetings of ten days each, one protracted meeting of one week; and have traveled many hundred miles on the cars. . . . Have been tried and tempted sore, but I intend to reach that heavenly shore; and amid the darkest hours of trials, both temporal and spiritual, I have ever found the promise sure. Thus I have been able to endure all the hardships and strifes of this mortal life, and am encouraged to begin another year with more confidence in Jesus."

BRO. J. W. THOMAS writes:—"I have been suddenly prostrated with hemorrhage from the right lung. . . . It is evident that I must go down to the grave, unless the Lord raises me up. Will you not remember me in earnest prayer, that I may be restored to the presence of my loved ones, who are three hundred miles away, and that I may yet preach the glorious gospel to perishing men? O that God may spare me a little longer, if it can be his will; if not, I trust all is well."

Cabot, Vt., Jan. 11th, 1871.

Married.

STORER—YORK. In Portland, Me., Jan. 10th, by R. R. York, GEORGE A. STORER, of Brunswick, and SARAH C. YORK, of Portland.

SENIOR—DAME. At the bride's father's, in Dover, N. H., Dec. 31st, by Eld. T. W. Piper, Mr. LEVI SENIOR, of Newburyport, Mass., and Miss ADRIANA DAME, of Dover.

HAINES—WEBSTER. In Saco, Me., Jan. 14th, 1871, by Elder J. Boothby, Mr. GEORGE F. HAINES, of Biddeford, Me., and Miss SARAH H. WEBSTER, of Belmont, N. H.

HENDERSON—MILES. In Wolcott, N. Y., Jan. 11th, 1871, by Rev. L. P. Judson, Mr. LE ROY HENDERSON, of Butler, N. Y., and Miss GETTIE MILES, of Wolcott.

Obituaries.

WATSON. Fell asleep in Jesus, Dec. 29th, 1870, William Watson, of Northwood Narrows, aged fifty-seven years and eight months.

Bro. Watson embraced Christ as his Savior in early life. In 1842 he became interested in the Advent doctrine, and was a firm believer in the '43 and '44 movements, and having made a covenant with God by sacrifice, was prepared for the blessing of the '54 movement, with all the light that shone in connection therewith; but his cup being not yet full, in 1863 he was made to rejoice in the glorious gospel of life only through connection with Christ, which seemed to him to be the crowning truth, and remained precious to him until the last.

Besides a large circle of more distant relatives, he leaves to mourn his loss the widowed companion of his youth, and eight children. But they mourn not as those that have no hope, for they "believe that Jesus died and rose again," and that all those who sleep in Jesus God will bring with him.

D. S. H.

BLAISDELL. Died, of typhoid fever, Aug. 18th, 1870, John S. Blaisdell, of Moultonborough, N. H., aged fifty-eight years, nine months, and seven days.

He was converted in Oct., 1843, into the coming of the Lord and its kindred doctrines, and continued a firm believer in its precious truths. He leaves a wife and two sons to mourn his loss. May the same blessed hope comfort the hearts of the sorrowing ones. An appropriate discourse by T. E. Lang, Jr.

A. W.

WATERHOUSE. Died, in Poland, Me., Oct. 29th, 1870, Bro. John Waterhouse, aged sixty-seven years.

In 1836 Bro. W. was convinced Christ was the only Savior of mankind, and gave his heart unreservedly to the Lord, under the labors of Thomas Greenlough, an eminent divine of the M. E. church. He united with that order, where he remained until the last few years of his history, living a consistent christian.

Bro. W. became acquainted with the Bible truth that man sleeps in death, and that the righteous will awake in the likeness of Christ in the first resurrection, which was a great source of comfort in his last sickness, which he bore with christian fortitude and patience. He leaves a wife and five children, also a large circle of friends, who mourn his loss deeply. May God sanctify the bereavement to the good of the family and friends. A very comforting discourse was delivered by Elder Joseph Hutchinson, from 2 Sam. 14: 14.

JARED WHITMAN.

ELY. Died, in Campville, Ct., Nov. 29th, 1870, of lung fever, Huldah Ely, aged eighty-two years.

A christian mother and friend has fallen asleep in Jesus.

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep."

B. HITCHCOCK.

STOWE. Fell asleep in Stow, Mass., Jan. 12th, Sister E. Stowe, aged seventy-one years.

She has been a firm believer for many years in the second coming of Jesus to awake the sleeping dead and give life eternal to the saints. This blessed hope sustained her to the last; so she rests in hope through the resurrection from the dead. The funeral was attended by the writer on Saturday the 14th.

L. BOUTELL.

HODGDON. Died, in Freedom, N. H., Nov. 23d, 1870, Sister Ruth Hodgdon, wife of Mr. Nathan Hodgdon, aged forty-eight years.

Our sister had been a firm and ardent lover of the "blessed hope" for quite a number of years; and although her privileges of meeting with those of "like precious faith" were few and far between, yet she never lost her confidence in the precious truths of his word. In a little while we expect to meet her again in that land where the inhabitants shall never sicken and die.

C. W. HURD.

SECOND ADVENT MISSION.—Minna-street church was densely crowded last night, and a large number of people, who found on their arrival that they were unable to obtain seats, or even standing room, in the front portion of the church, were obliged to retire. Provision will be made for seating, on to-morrow night, one hundred or two hundred and fifty more persons than were accommodated with seats last night. The lecture by Elder Grant was listened to with profound attention. He commenced and proceeded with the interpretation of Nebuchadnezzar's dream—bringing the literal fulfillment of Daniel's explanation down to the Grecian Empire. The lecture was illustrated by charts, maps and images—a painting and a model—and by chronological tables. The next lecture of the series will be delivered Thursday evening. If the interest manifested to [illegible] the Elder last night, continues or increases, he will have to seek a larger church or hall in which to complete his series of discourses on the prophecies. He stated last evening that over three thousand ministers of the established and dissenting churches, in England, have recently announced their belief in the Second Advent views which he presents. On to-morrow night, Friday night and Sunday night, consecutive lectures will be given on the prophecies, by the [illegible] Californian, of Jan. 4th.

☞ Are you willing to be made like your Lord, of no reputation among the men of this world, and take upon yourselves the characters of servants, and become inured to toil, to suffering and death, if need be, for the sake of Jesus? If this be so, you may claim your heirship to the kingdom.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—A great mass meeting was held in St. James's Hotel this evening, for the purpose of expressing sympathy for France in her present struggle. It was attended by an immense concourse of people. Resolutions were adopted condemning Gladstone for his refusal to recognise the French Republic, stigmatizing Prussia as the foe of liberty and progress, and calling upon the neutral powers to resist by every possible means the dismemberment of France or the absorption of any part of her territory by Prussia.

It is reported here in well-informed circles that the Queen has decided upon opening the coming session of the Parliament in person.

VERSAILLES, Jan. 12.—A terrible conflagration is now raging inside the walls of Paris, believed to be near the centre of the city. The bombardment still goes on. On Tuesday night it became general and all the forts were attacked by the Prussian artillery. Yesterday, the fire became still more deadly, many of the Prussian batteries having occupied better positions and new and larger ordnance having been also used in the cannonading. Above 2000 balls were fired into the city yesterday. Many women and children have been killed and wounded. That part of the city situated in the neighborhood of the Pantheon seems to have suffered severely. Numbers of houses and large buildings having been laid in ruins, the Hospital de Pitie has also been struck and greatly damaged. The magnificent dome of the Hotel des Invalides has been shattered to fragments by a Prussian bomb which crashed through, carrying havoc and destruction to the interior of the building.

Despatches just received at headquarters confirm the announcement of the capitulation of Peronne. [illegible],000 prisoners were taken by the German troops.

LONDON, Jan. 11. From information received here, it has been ascertained that the forts surrounding Paris have suffered much less from effects of bombardment than at first supposed. The forts on the eastern side which had been thought to have been completely silenced, opened a furious fire on Sunday.

LONDON, Jan. 11. An explosion occurred in Renshawt Colliery, near Sheffield, to-day, by which twenty-six persons were killed and nine injured.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—A Vienna dispatch of the 12th says that Austria will initiate peace, and that proposals for a conference are welcomed by Bernstorff.

The preliminaries are that France shall surrender twenty war ships, one thousand million thalers, a strip of land four miles broad on the left bank of the Rhine, and destroy all forts within twenty miles of the Rhine. Prussia is to guaranty two-million rations to Paris daily.

Henry Alford, D. D., Dean of Canterbury, died suddenly to-day, in the 61st year of his age.

The Grand Duke of Mecklenburg telegraphs to the Duchess as follows:

After crossing the river of Harme on Tuesday, we fought on the next day a hot but victorious battle at Lawfron and La Chapelle, taking nearly ten thousand prisoners. Our loss is inconsiderable. We are advancing on Le Mans.

VERSAILLES, Jan. 12. The bombardment was heavy up to this afternoon. Several fires were seen within the French lines. The Prussians crowding in front of Clamart and Meudon, a picket of Bavarians were surprised near Clamart by a sortie. The French have erected new batteries on the East.

LONDON, Jan 13. The army under Chanzy was completely defeated near Le Mans by the second German army, commanded by Prince Frederick Charles and the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg. The Germans have occupied Le Mans, capturing large quantities of supplies and war material. The French are being pursued.

LONDON, Jan. 14. Advices have been received in this city from French sources in which the French acknowledge a loss of 1600 killed in the battle near Le Mans, on Tuesday last, between the army under Gen. Chanzy and the forces commanded by the Grand Duke of Mechlenburg. Gen. Chanzy is reported as being seriously ill at his headquarters.

Telegrams from Versailles state the bombardment of Paris continues steadily, and with telling effect. Information from within the walls of the city represents the inhabitants as being furious against Gen Trochu for his apparent inactivity. Numerous demonstrations have been made, which but for the prompt interference of the troops, would have resulted seriously. The people demand that a sortie in force be at once ordered. Symptoms of preparation are observed, which seem to indicate that a grand assault on the German lines will shortly be made from the northerly side of the city, probably in the neighborhood of St. Denis. It is the opinion of many German officers of prominence that Paris will be able to withstand the siege for several weeks at least.

It has been officially announced that the conference of the Great Powers to revise the treaty of Paris will shortly assemble in this city, and it is expected that its first session will be held on or about the first of February next.

DOMESTIC.

UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD.—The following dispatch was received on Tuesday. It is gratifying that obstacles of such magnitude have been overcome, and that the time table across the Rocky Mountains is almost as correct as between the cities of New England:

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 9, 1871.

We have not missed a connection, either at Omaha or Ogden, this winter, from any cause. There have been eleven snow storms on the mountains this season, some of them very severe, but our snow fences and sheds protect the track effectually. The transfer of passengers at Omaha is made in one hour and a half, without their exposure to the weather. (Signed) F. E. SICKLES.

THE PROT. MONKS.—The "Cowley Fathers" who came to this city from England a few weeks since, designing to institute here an order of Episcopal monks, have not received a license from Bishop Eastburn to prosecute their mission, and they remain, therefore, under the hard necessity of holding their peace. It is said that the Bishop will not even so much as notice them.

Bishop Potter, of New-York, although an inflexible High Churchman, does not smile on the embassy of English "fathers." Bishop Doane, of Albany, is thought to be favorable, but that city is regarded much inferior to New York or Boston, as a theatre for their enterprise. The latest rumor is that they commence operations in New York, despite Bishop Potter's hostility.

In Brief.

The Berlin correspondent of the London Times writes that the idea of the general occupation of France by the German forces has been abandoned. Portions, only, of the French territory will be held.—The latest accounts from the seat of war, though not especially favorable to France, indicate that the people are fighting with a courage, tenacity, and a resolution evinced at no previous stage in the conflict.—The hog cholera is raging with fearful effect in Polk and neighboring counties of Iowa, and hundreds of hogs have died.—Henri Rochefort has disappeared from Paris altogether. No one knows what has become of him, and it is rumored that he has been assassinated.—Versailles advices say that overwhelming proofs of the recent conspiracy to assassinate King William and Bismarck have been discovered.—Doctor Livingstone, the great African traveler, who possesses the most extraordinary faculty of being roasted by the savage natives, is said, by a cable telegram, to have arrived at Mozambique, waiting a vessel bound for England.—The cold weather in the South has killed thousands of orange trees in Florida and Georgia.—The drouth has compelled the iron mills to stop work. Nearly 2500 men are thus thrown out of employment.—Intelligence from Paris confirms the report of bread riots. A collision between the mob and the military has taken place.—The pigeon mail from Paris suggests the fulfillment of the Scripture prophecy: "For a bird of the air shall carry the voice, and that which hath wings shall tell the matter."

☞ The only way to have a quiet conscience and not to be distracted with the fear and dread of God's judgments, is to have true and unfeigned love in us toward one another. For fear cometh out of the conscience of sin, from which we shall be free; if we have such love in us, we shall not sin against the degree, the life, the chastity, the goods, or the good name of our brother, which kinds of sin are usually the original of inward trouble and fear in the mind.

—— Genuine, neighborly love knows no distinction of person. It is like the sun, which does not ask on what it shall shine, or what it shall warm; but shines and warms by the very laws of its own being. So there is nothing hidden from its light and heat.

— If we carry not the beautiful within us, we may travel over the wide world in vain in search of it.

Notices.

Notice.

A protracted meeting will commence in Concord, N. H. (Centre St. Chapel,) February 5th, to continue through the week and over the following Sunday, and longer, if the Lord wills. Elders D. M. Leavitt, C. H. Fletcher, and others, will be present to preach the word, which is the power of God unto salvation to him that believeth. We cordially invite all who love the Lord and the salvation of the perishing to unite with us in this effort. Come, brethren, from the neighboring towns; come in and lend us a helping hand in this all-important work. In behalf of the church.

URI BAKER.

Notice.

There will be a conference in China (Weeks' Mills), Me., commencing Thursday evening, Feb. 9th, and continue over the following Sunday. Brethren and sisters are invited to come and labor for the salvation of sinners. Provision will be made for all. For the Brn., H. B. SEVEY.

Vermont Conference.

The first Quarterly Conference of Vermont will be held with the church at East Warren, commencing Tuesday, Jan. 24th, at 6½ o'clock P. M., and closing Jan. 26th. Whosoever will, let him come.

H. F. CARPENTER.

Ordination.

Elder J. L. Wood, of New Milford, Ct., was duly ordained to the work of the ministry on the 4th inst., at the church 138 West 24th St., N. Y., by Elders H. A. King, H. C. Smith, of Harlem, and the writer.

Let us still pray the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers into his harvest. THOS. J. COX.

Times, please copy.

Conference.

The second quarterly session of the N. H. Conference will be held, the Lord will, with the church at Hampton, N. H., commencing Thursday evening, Feb. 9th, to hold over the Sabbath. It is hoped that all who can, especially our preaching brethren, will come up to the feast, to labor for the Lord, and the salvation of the perishing. Let prayer be offered, that God may greatly bless.

T. W. PIPER,
A. W. SIBLEY, } Committee.
C. H. FLETCHER.

Notice.

A protracted meeting will be held at East Rochester, N. H., commencing Sunday, Jan. 29th, and hold through the week, and over the following Sabbath. Elds. D. M. Leavitt, G. W. Brown, T W Piper, and others, will preach the word. We desire that the brethren who labor with the Lord will be present to add strength to the work.

For the church,
J. O. SHOREY.
JAS. QUIMBY.

Notice.

I will hold a meeting in West Ossipee, N. H., evenings, Jan. 20th, 27th, and 28th, and Sunday, Jan. 29th. We extend a cordial invitation to the working brethren to meet with us to help in the good work of saving dying souls.

E. S. MOULTON.

Notice.

There will be a quarterly meeting of the Iowa Christian Conference at Boylan's Grove, commencing Jan. 27th, 1871, at early candle light. All are cordially invited to come to this meeting. Come praying that the cause may be furthered on by your coming. May the Lord's blessing attend this meeting.

ALONZO RAYMOND, Clerk of Conf.

Conference.

There will be a Conference in Cushing, Me., to commence Thursday evening, Feb. 2nd, 1871, and hold over Sunday. A free invitation to all ministers and laymen to work for the good of the cause of Christ.

S. K. PARTRIDGE.
J. T. HEMENWAY.

Notice.

The brethren at Bonny Eagle, Me., having built them a chapel for the advancement of the gospel of the kingdom, desire worthy ministers to come among them, and labor for the promotion of the cause of Christ. Brethren can correspond with Bro. T. J. Rumery, Bonny Eagle, Maine. A stage for Bonny Eagle leaves Biddeford daily at 12.30. M. For the brethren, B. S. EMERY.

Notice.

The next quarterly meeting with the church at Wilmot Settlement, Broom Co., N. Y., will commence Thursday evening, Jan. 26th, and hold over the Sabbath following. J. W. TAYLOR.

Notice.

Preaching brethren who feel that the Lord wants them to preach in Richmond, Me., can give notice in the Crisis, or forward the same to L. D. TOTMAN.

Notice.

By the permission of the Lord, there will be a conference held at Carr's Corner, Dexter, Me., every third Saturday in each month, at two o'clock, and also meeting on Lord's day following. Preaching brethren coming this way are invited to lend a helping hand. A pilgrim's home may be found at John H. Brown's. O. G. TRUNDY.

Notice.

Putney's Hall, Sutton Mills, N. H. Meetings every Sabbath for the present. This is a new movement on the part of the Advent people of Sutton, and we think it is according to the will of the Lord. Brethren, pray for us.

A. CRESSEY,
FRANK NELSON, } Committee.
SAM'L ROWELL,

Notice.

There will be a meeting at my house in West Abington, Mass., every Sunday, at 10½ A. M. and 1½ P. M. All christians are invited.

J. J. DAMON.

German Tracts.

Bro. Reimer has a good supply. Send your orders to L. REIMER, 1006 Chesnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

☞ A short poem, "The Blissful Vision," may be had for 30 cts. per dozen, of the author, J. Albert Libby, West Poland, Me.

☞ To Preaching Brethren.

Those wishing to preach	Correspond with
in Westfield, Mass.	C. H. Phelps.
Lawrence, Mass.	Geo. Churchill, John T. Merrill, Ephraim Fish.
Worcester, Mass.	H. F. Colber, H. W. Buxton, or E. G. Higgins.
Savoy, Mass.	Daniel Miller, or A. B. Bliss.
Wakefield, Mass.	G. R. Tyzzer.
Charlton, Mass.	E. H. Allen, Oxford, Mass.
Worcester, Mass.	H. M. Blackmer, Willard M. Hall, or Willard G. Ruggles.
Portsmouth, N. H.	T. E. Wood, Box 1445.
Hampton, N. H.	Joseph A. Philbrook.
Manchester, N. H.	J. W. C. Pickering.
Dover, N. H.	John Vickery.
London Ridge, N. H.	Daniel L. Moore, Wm. Batchelder, Edward Mudget.
Seabrook, N. H.	R. S. Johnson, of Hampton, N. H., or Chs. Barton, of Seabrook.
Chichester, N. H.	F. L. Knowles.
Goshen, N. H.	O. F. Cain.
Rye, N. H.	Moses O. Philbrick or Samuel Smart.
Pittsfield, N. H. (Bethel)	O. S. Emerson.
Stowe, Vt.	H. W. Sargent, or S. Whitney.
Portland, Me.	R. R. York, S. K. Dyer, D. F. Seamman.
Lewiston, Me.	Albert Burgess.
South Berwick (Great Works) Me.	Harrison Dow.
Kennebunk Depot, Me.	Rufus Duran.
Hollis Centre, Me.	W. S. Moulton, or S. G. Rumery.
Vernon, Vt.	J. C. Allen.
Bristol, Ct.	B. Hitchcock, Forestville, Ct.
West Gloucester, R. I.	Geo. A. Hoskins, Putnam, Ct.
New Milford, Ct.	Richard Hencox.
New Haven, Ct.	W. F. Carpenter, 73 State St.
Pleasant Valley, Ct.	Basel O. White, New Hartford, Ct.
Meriden, Ct.	E. J. Whitehead, West Meriden, Conn., Box 4.
New Britain, Ct.	Chs. M. Bart.
Wrightville, Ct.	D. A. Grant, Torrington, Ct.
Newfield, Ct.	Wm. Bigley, Pleasant Valley, Ct.
New Milford, Ct.	J. Coggshall
Morris, Ct.	Joseph Curtis.
South Butler, N. Y.	R. C. Brown.
Rochester, N. Y.	J. R. Cooper, 4 Hickory St.
Hoosick, N. Y.	Geo. R. Keach, J. B. White, or Christopher Lawton, Hoosick Falls, N. Y.
Philadelphia, Pa.	Frank E. Davis, 1715 Markham St., or I. N. Wilfong, 126 No. 22nd St.

MEETINGS IN PORTLAND, ME. (Union Hall.)

Having vacated Cushman Hall, on Congress Street, meetings hereafter will be held in Union Hall. Entrance on Free Street, nearly opposite the Baptist church. Seats free.

S. K. DYER.
D. F. SEAMMAN.
R. R. YORK.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.

A. Ross ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
L. Boutell ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
M. Batchelor ....Sunday, Feb. 5th
T. M. Preble ....Sabbath, Feb. 12th

BOSTON, (Branch Chapel), 1735 Washington Street, corner of Madison Street.

Meetings at 10½ A. M., and 3 and 7½ P. M.

JOHN G. HOOK, Sunday, Jan. 22d, and onward every evening, except Saturday evening.

CHELSEA, MASS.

Granite Block, Hall No. 11, corner of Broadway and Fourth Streets. Entrance on Fourth Street. (Up two flight of stairs.)

S. S. Brewer ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
H. Munger ....Sunday, Jan. 29th

CHARLESTOWN.

Preaching at Charlestown, (Evening Star Hall, No. 31 Main Street), every Lord's day.

John Couch ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
J. S. White ....Sunday, Jan. 29th

EAST BOSTON, MASS.

(Second Advent Hall, 154 Meridian Street.)

Meetings every Sunday, at the usual hours, also prayer and conference meetings Wednesday and Friday evenings, at 7½ o'clock P. M.

John G. Hook ....Thursday evening, Jan. 19th
Z. Ford ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
John G. Hook ....Thursday evening, Jan. 26th

Meetings in South Boston on Wednesday evenings, No. 2 Lowland Street.

Friday evenings, No. 227 E. St. Bay-View horse cars pass by. Come and welcome. C. W. HUNTRESS.
J. N. BERRY.

Natick, Mass. ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
C. GOODRICH.

Stoneham, Mass. ......Wednesday evening, Jan. 25th
JOHN G. HOOK.

New York City (Cooper Institute) ......Sun., Jan. 22d
Holden, Mass ....February 5th
Wakefield, Mass. ....February 19th
J. S. WHITE.

New Bedford, Mass. ......Sundays, Jan. 22d and 29th
GEO. A. BROWN.

Rye, N. H ....Sundays, Jan. 22d and 29th
Bro. Willey will probably be with me.
J. H. F. VARNEY.

Manchester, N. H. ....Sundays, Jan. 15th and 22d
East Acworth, N. H. ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
C. H. FLETCHER.

Southington, Ct. ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
Lynn, Mass ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
E. OWEN.

Seabrook, N. H. ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
MRS. L. M. STODDARD.

Campton, N. H. (Bump school-house) ....eve., Jan. 21st
Holderness, N. H. (True school-house) Sun., Jan. 22d
DANIEL D. PAGE.

Windsor, Vt. ....evenings, Jan. 18th and 19th
West Fairlee, Vt. ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
Rutland, Vt. ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
North Springfield, Vt. ....Sunday, Feb. 5th
Bridgewater, Vt. ....Sunday, Feb. 12th
West Fairlee, Vt. ....Sundays, Feb. 19th and 20th
H. F. CARPENTER.

Hyde Park, Mass. (Methodist Church) Sun., Jan. 22d
Keene, N. H. ....Sundays, Jan. 29th and Feb. 5th
Vernon, Vt. ....Sunday, Feb. 12th
Chicopee Falls, Mass. ....evenings, Feb. 16th and 17th
A. SIMPSON.

Hampton, N. H. ....Sundays, Jan. 22d and 29th
WM. W. SUTHERLAND.

Freedom, N. H. (Advent Chapel)....Sunday, Jan. 29th and evenings through the week.
G. H. WALLACE.

Rochester Plains, N. H. (Town House) Sun., Jan. 22d
EDWIN B. WELLS.

Colebrook, N. H., Feb. 5th, and as long as the Lord will. The meetings will be held in the Methodist or Town Hall.
D M LEAVITT.
J. SHOREY.

New Rye (where Bro. Jesse Smith may appoint) Sunday, Jan. 22d.
East Concord (Gale school-house)....Sunday, Feb. 5th
C. R. PARSONS.
A. S. WILLIAMS.

Epsom, N. H. (Marden's Corner) baptism....Sunday, Jan. 29th.
Chichester (as S. Saltmarsh may appoint) evening, Feb. 3d.
East Concord (at Bro. Potter's) ....evening, Feb. 4th
☞ NO NAME.

Strafford, N. H. (Roberts' school-house) ......Jan. 22d
WM. BODGE.

Meredith, N. H. (Dolloff Hall) ......Sunday, Jan. 22d
New Hampton (where Bro. Pike may appoint) Tuesday evening, Jan. 24th.
Holderness, N. H. (True school-house) Sun., Jan. 29th and evenings through the week.
Campton, N. H. (Bump school-house) Sun., Feb. 5th
North Dorchester, N. H. ....Sunday, Feb. 12th
J. B. BROWN.

Haverhill, Mass. ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
J. G. SMITH.

Haverhill, Mass. ....Saturday evening, Jan. 21st and over Sunday.
Berwick, Me. (Beaver Dam meeting-house) Sunday, Jan. 29th.
J. BICKFORD.

Montgomery, Mass. ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
Wolcottville, Ct. ....Sunday, Feb. 5th
B. HITCHCOCK.

Lisbon, N. H ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
North Haverhill, N. H. (Brick Church) eve., Jan. 23d
Warren Village ....evening, Jan. 24th
Meredith Village ....evening, Jan. 25th
Alton (Stockbridge Corner) ....evening, Jan. 26th
Seabrook, N. H. ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
Deerfield, Old Centre ....evening, Feb. 2d
North Sutton (at Bro. Israel Andrews' house) Sunday, Feb. 5th.
Sutton Mills ....Tuesday evening, Feb. 7th
Rye, N. H. ....Sunday, Feb. 12th
North Barrington, N. H. (Felker school-house) Sunday, Feb. 19th.
J. PINKHAM.

Bingham, Potter Co., Pa. (in connection with Bro. A. H. Briggs), Friday evening, Jan. 20th, 1871, to continue over the Sabbath following. J. W. TAYLOR.

Rochester Plains, N. H. ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
A. S. WILLIAMS, CHAS. R. PARSONS.

West Canterbury, N. H. ..Saturday evening, Jan. 21st and over Sunday, Jan. 22d. ENOCH MORRILL.

Exeter, N. H. ....Sunday, Jan. 22d and 29th
Seabrook, N. H. ....Tuesday evening, Jan. 31st
SARAH K. TAYLOR.

Rye, N. H. (with Bro. C. H. Willey) Sabbaths, Jan. 22d and 29th. J. H. F. VARNEY.
The first Sabbath in each month is supplied.

Fisherville, N. H. (Sander's Hall) Sabbath, Jan. 22d
At Bro. Morgan's ....evening, Jan. 25th
Salisbury, N. H. (Smith's Corner, meeting-house) Sabbath, Jan. 29th.
At Bro. Daniel Veasey's. Saturday evening, Feb. 4th
Meredith, N. H. (Dolloff Hall) ......Sabbath, Feb. 5th
SIMEON HOBY.

North Haverhill, N. H. (Brick Church) eve., Jan. 23d
Piermont, N. H. (Clay meeting-house), evenings, Jan. 24th and 25th.
Will Bro. Wm. Shaw meet me at Haverhill depot, on arrival of the first train from Lancaster, Jan. 24th?
Warren Summit, N. H. ....evening, Jan. 27th
Meredith, N. H. (Dolloff Hall) evening, Jan. 28th, and over Sunday. Will Bro. Dolloff meet me at the depot on arrival of the down train, Jan. 28th?
Lake Village, N. H. ....evening, Jan. 30th
Concord, N. H. (at the Bethel) ....evening, Jan. 31st
Manchester, N. H. ....evening, Feb. 1st
Brentwood ....evening, Feb. 2d
West Kingston, N. H. ....Sunday, Feb. 5th
A. GORDON.

Portsmouth, N. H. ....Friday evening, Jan. 20th and over Sunday, the 22d.
Lawrence, Mass. ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
Lynn, Mass. ....Sunday, Feb. 12th
M. BATCHELOR.

Bridgewater, Vt. ....Sundays, Jan. 22d and 29th
GEO. A. COLE.

Hoosick, N. Y. ....Sabbath, Jan. 22d
C. PIKE.

North Haverhill (Union House) .....Sunday, Jan 22d
North Benton ....Jan. 24th
Dalton, N. H. (John's River school-house) Jan. 26th
Colebrook, N. H. (Kiddersville) ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
Carswell Borough, P. Q. ....Sunday, Feb. 5th
U. G. LADD.

Great Falls, N. H. ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
JOSEPH W. WHITE.

Wakefield, Mass. ....Sabbath, Jan. 22d
H. MUNGER.

Lisbon Village, N. H. .....evenings, Jan. 18th to 21st and over the Sabbath. T. W. PIPER.

Great Falls, N. H. ....Sabbath, Jan. 22d
S. S. MOONEY.

Malvin Village, N. H. ....Sunday, Feb. 5th
Manchester, N. H. ....evening, Feb. 15th
Goffstown, N. H. ......Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
E. S. MOULTON.

Rye, N. H ....evening, Jan. 18th
Dover, N. H. ....Sabbath, Jan. 22d
Great Falls, N. H. ....evening, Jan. 24th
Kennebunk Depot, Me. ....evening, Jan. 26th
Kennebunkport, Me. ....evening, Jan. 27th
Biddeford, Me. ....Sabbath, Jan. 29th
Bryant's Pond, Me. (if desired) ....evening, Feb. 1st
Lewiston, Me. ....Feb. 5th and 12th
Bath, Me. ....Sabbaths, Feb. 19th and 26th
C. H. SWEET.

West Meriden, Conn. ....Sunday, Jan. 22nd
Springfield, Mass. ....Sundays, Jan. 29th and Feb. 5th
WM. N. PILE.

Pawling, N. Y. ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
Lakeville, Ct. ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
H. K. WALLING.

Biddeford, Me. ....Sabbath, Jan. 22d and 29th
D. F. LEAVITT.

Danielsonville, Ct. ....Sabbath, Jan. 22d
J. T. DIXON.

Northwood Narrows, N. H. ......evenings, Jan. 18th, 19th and 20th, and over Sunday, the 22d.
Seabrook, N. H. ....Sunday, Feb. 12th
Rye, N. H. ....Sunday, Feb. 19th
WM. C. STEWART.

Wallace Station, Steuben Co., 2 P. M., Jan. 21st, and over Sunday, the 22nd, or at Avaca (if so arranged) Sunday evening.
Ward, Tioga Co., Pa. (as Bro. Wm. Fletcher may arrange), evening, Jan. 24th, and over the following Sunday.
Canton, Bradford Co. (as Brn. S. Benedict and T. Fassett may arrange), Jan. 31st and Feb. 1st.
East Troy, Conard Hollow, or Troy (as Bro. John Salisbury, Sen., may arrange), Feb. 2d and 3d.
South Creek, Pa. (as Bro. J. Moon arranges), Feb. 4th and 5th.
Jackson, Tioga Co., Pa. (if circumstances permit) Feb. 6th and 7th.
Wilmot Settlement (as brethren may arrange) Feb. 9th, and over the 12th.
Hawleyton, (as Bro. H. Bull may arrange) Feb. 14th, 15th and 16th.
Cohocton, N. Y. (as Deacon T. C. Armstrong may appoint), Feb. 18th and 19th.
Honeoye Flats, N. Y. ....Feb. 26th
At Conference, March 2d, and over the 5th.
All evening appointments to commence at 7 P. M.
C. F. SWEET.

Middlesex, Vt. ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
Braintree, Vt. ....evening, 6½ P. M., Jan. 31st
Bethel, Vt. ....evening, 6½ P. M., Feb. 1st
Plymouth, Vt. ....Sunday, Feb. 5th
Z. T. WOOD.

Providence, R. I. ....Sabbath, Jan. 22d
Athol, Mass ....Sabbath, Feb. 5th
T. M. PREBLE.

Savoy, Mass. (New Chapel)...Tuesday eve., Jan. 31st
Wakefield, Mass ....Sunday, Feb. 5th
H. K. FLAGG.

Morris, Ct. ....Thursday evening, Jan. 19th and over the following Sabbath.
Collinsville, Ct. ....Sunday, Feb. 12th
G. L. WHITE.

Lewiston, Me. ....Sundays, Jan. 22d and 29th
AUSTIN W. TAYLOR.

North Dana, Mass. ....Sundays, Jan. 22d and 29th
North Adams, Mass. ....Sunday, Feb. 5th
North Pownal, Vt. ....evenings, Feb. 6th and 7th
Pownal, Vt. (as Bro. Towslee may arrange) evenings, Feb. 8th, 9th and 10th. Will Bro. T. meet me at North Pownal?
Hoosick, N. Y., Feb. 11th and 12th. Will some one meet me at the Falls on the arrival of the first P. M. train from Adams?
North Dana, Mass. ....Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
Wakefield, Mass. ....Sunday, March 5th
GEO. A. STREETER.

Fort Edward, N. Y. ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
Sandy Hill, N. Y. ....Jan. 24th and over the following Sabbath.
MRS. E. S. JENNINGS.

Concord, N. H. (Snaptown) ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
East Buckfield, Me. (Federal meeting-house) Friday evening, Jan. 27th, and over Sunday.
Hartford (Mountain school-house) Tuesday evening, Jan. 31st.
South Livermore (where Bro. Dening may appoint) evenings, Feb. 1st and 2d.
Dixfield Center, Me. ....evening, Feb. 4th and over Sunday.
Peru, Me. (Walt school-house) ....evening, Feb. 6th
ORRILL W. KIMBALL.

Kennebunk Depot, Me. ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
B. S. EMERY.

Richmond, Me. (Thomas school-house) Sun., Jan. 22d
Bath, Me. ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
Bristol, Me. (Erskine school-house) evening, Feb. 1st
Cushing (conference) ....Feb. 2d, 3d, 4th and 5th
H. S. MITCHELL.

Woodstock Valley, Ct. ....Sabbath, Jan. 22d
Webster, Mass. ....Sabbath, Jan. 29th
Square Pond, Ct. ....Sabbath, Feb. 5th
Putnam, Ct. ....Sabbath, Feb. 12th
Webster, Mass. ....Sabbath, Feb. 19th
Woodstock Valley, Ct. ....Sabbath, Feb. 26th
P. S. BUTLER.

Warehouse Point, Ct. ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
Shrewsbury, Mass. ....Sunday, Feb. 5th
Great Falls, N. H. ....Sunday, Feb. 12th
Dover, N. H. ....Sunday, Feb. 19th
S. C. HANCOCK.

Milo, Me. ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
Sangerville, Me. ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
ISRAEL DAMMAN.

Northville, Newport, N. H. ....Sabbath, Jan. 22d
FRANK NELSON.

Freedom, N. H. (Chapel) ....Sabbath, Feb. 5th
Conference, at one o'clock P. M., Saturday, Feb. 4th
Porter Village, Me. ....Sabbath, Feb. 12th
MARK STEVENS.

Danbury, N. H. (at the Knowlton school-house) Sabbath, Jan. 22d. D. EASTMAN.

Dorchester, N. H. (Union school-house) Sab. Jan. 22d
Campton, N. H. (Bump school-house) evening, Jan. 28th, and over Sunday. JOHN H. EVANS.

Great Falls, N. H. ....Sabbath, Feb. 5th
N. C. TWOMBLY.

West Gardiner, Me. (Spear's Corner) Sunday, Jan. 22d
L. D. TOTMAN.

Bryant's Pond ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
South Windham ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
J. ALBERT LIBBY.

Honeoye, N. Y., Jan. 23d, through the week, and over the following Sunday.
Brockport, N. Y. ....evening, Jan. 31st
CHAS. P. GREENMAN.

Jefferson (where Bro. Somes may appoint)...Jan. 22d
Augusta (Ballad school-house) .....Sunday, Jan. 29th
THOMAS HINES.

There will be a meeting at Warren, Mass., every Sunday hereafter until further notice.
RUFUS BAKER.

North Easton, Mass. (Ripley Hall) .....every Sunday
GEO. WATON.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

Dr. Chas. C. Barker ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
Wm. N. Pile ....Sundays, Jan. 29th and Feb. 5th
S. S. Brewer ....Sunday, Feb. 12th
Geo. W. Brown ....Sunday, Feb. 19th
Wm. N. Pile ....Sundays, Jan. 26th and March 2d
S. S. Brewer ....Sunday, March 9th

WORCESTER, MASS.

J. Hemenway ....Sunday, Feb. 5th
R. K. Stark ....Sunday, Feb. 12th
A. Simpson ....Sunday, Feb. 19th
S. S. Brewer ....Sunday, March 5th
J. Couch ....Sunday, March 12th

LAWRENCE, MASS.

L. Boutell ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
C. E. Barnes ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
H. Pratt ....Sundays, Feb. 5th and 12th
C. Goodrich ....Sunday, Feb. 19th

LOWELL, MASS.

W. H. Mitchell ....Sundays, Jan. 22d and 29th

FITCHBURG, MASS.

S. S. Brewer ....Sunday, Jan. 29th

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

Mrs. L. M. Stoddard..Sundays, Jan. 29th and Feb. 5th

CONCORD, N. H. (Centre Street.)

C. H. Fletcher ....Sabbath, Feb. 5th
A. P. Moore ....Sundays, Jan. 22d and 29th

CONCORD, N. H., (at the Bethel.)

C. S. Shattuck ....Sundays, Jan. 22d and 29th
E. Owen ....Sunday, Feb. 5th
E. S. Moulton ....Sunday, Feb. 12th

MANCHESTER, N. H.

C. H. Fletcher ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
Allen Damon ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
C. S. Shattuck ....Sunday, Feb. 5th
W. H. Mitchell ....Sunday, Feb. 12th
M. Batchelor ....Sunday, Feb. 19th

WINSTED, CT.

R. K. Stark ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
H. H. Dickinson ....Sunday, Feb. 12th
Mrs. M. L. Durand ....Sunday, Feb. 26th

NEW BRITAIN, CT.

Henry Pratt ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
Chas. E. Barker ....Sunday, Feb. 5th
M. L. Durand ....Sunday, Feb. 12th
A. M. Higgins ....Sunday, Feb. 19th

BRISTOL, CT.

B. Hitchcock ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
A. M. Higgins ....Sunday, Feb. 12th

PLEASANT VALLEY, CT.

R. K. Stark ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
Sr. M. L. Durand ....Sunday, Feb. 5th

COLLINSVILLE, CT.

H. K. Flagg ....Saturday evening, Jan. 28th and over the following Sabbath, Jan. 29th.

SOUTHINGTON, CT.

G. L. Teeple ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
B. Hitchcock ....Sunday, Feb. 12th

SOUTH ELLIOT, ME.

Wm. C. Stewart ....Sunday, Jan. 29th

BONNY EAGLE, ME.

Jeremiah Hill ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
Peter Libby ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
B. S. Emery ....Sunday, Feb. 5th

PORTER VILLAGE, ME.

T. P. S. Hampson ....Sunday, Jan. 21st

PORTLAND, ME.

Joseph W. White ....Sunday, Jan. 22d
John Couch ....Sunday, Jan. 29th

Morris, Ct. ....Sunday, Jan. 29th
Wrightville, Ct. ....Sunday, Feb. 5th
Waterbury, Ct. ....Sunday, Feb. 12th
WM. J. RIPLEY.

Hartford, Me. (Stetson school-house)...Sab., Jan. 22d
E. M. HAGGETT.

Pownal Center, Vt. ....6½ o'clock P. M. Jan. 24th and every evening during the week.
Low Hampton, N. Y. ...11 A. M. and 6½ P. M., Feb. 19th
C. PIKE.

Philadelphia, Pa. (S. E. Corner Ninth and Spring Garden Streets) Sunday, Jan. 22d.
W. S. CAMPBELL.

ROCHESTER, N. H.

There will be preaching in the chapel, near the brick school-house, in Rochester, N. H., on the first Lord's day in each month. Others can appoint so as not to conflict.

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

☞ We cannot discontinue or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in PLAIN LETTERS.

☞ I. C. WELLCOME—The notice being incorrect, has occasioned the delay.

☞ SOME ONE writes from Lewiston, Me., that they have sent money order for five new subscribers NOT RECEIVED.

☞ MRS. ABIGAIL TRIPP'S P. O. address is Barrington (Shag Harbor), N. S. She will return to Maine in the Spring.

☞ BRO. BRITTAN'S P. O. address, until further notice, is Petersburg, Va.

☞ O. W. KIMBALL'S address is Concord, N. H., P. O. Box 492.

☞ J. W. ELLIOT'S P. O. address is Ulman's Ridge, Miller Co., Mo.

Letters Received.

Z T Wood, C Hill, J A Cleveland, B P Manning L F Cole, S P Howland, J E Clark, J W Thomas, B Hitchcock, D D Reed, E F Sergison, E O Wells, G Thomson, G W Howard, O Bandixon, W Kellaway, A. W., B Knepper, D F Newton, S Cordell, C H Hurd, G A Streeter, F Reynolds, A M Tripp, J C Day, A M Brown, N F Nason, B P Stevens, A Clark, G E Lee, J E Clark, A L Adams, B Perham, F H Chamberlain.

Cash Receipts for Books and Tracts.

I B Potter $1.82, S E Goodwin 50c, M. W. Corliss $9.50, S Taylor 25c, J Tracy 25c, C B Litchfield 25c, T D Barnes $1.50, W D Mason 75c, S M Mosher $1.00, A Trethewey 25c, J D Emery 25c, R L Harrison $1.00, L D Brett $1.50, N Shumway 25c, G W Collins $1.50, S S Searles $1.45, B P Thorp 35c, A J Flaherty $1.60, Mrs J Richardson 25c, E S Gage $2.00, C H Williams $1.80, J F Rathgeber 35c, D D Reed $15.00, J C Hitchcock 56c, P Barnes $1.50, W N Glenn $1.50, F Reddington $1.15, J Whipple $1.50, W E Brown $6.15, B Knepper $1.10.

Books and Tracts Sent.

By Mail—S. Canklin, S. Varney, H. Harris, M. R. Steele, A B Reynolds, S. Morrell, J. Curtiss, A D Fletcher, S Taylor, R S Johnson, J Tracy, S F Rogers, C H Williams (2), S M Mosher, W. D. Mason, D L Brett, J E Thompson, F D Barnes, N Shumway, A Trethewey, J W Collins, F S Ainsworth, Nellie M Ham, S D Avery, A J Flaherty (2), M Flory, O D Woodruff, L J Mansfield, B F Torpe, S S Searls, L Morse, E S Gage, J S Lawver, G A Brown, E Morrell, D D Reed (4), J H Rathgeber, F Glidden, J Tracy, J C Hitchcock, H H Warm, P Barnes, J Whipple, F Reddington, A W Griggs, W N Glenn, Lock Box 165, B Knepper, J Beal, J Earle, M W Potter, J B Potter, J Baker, G P Adams, J N Quimby, N Warner, M E Stone, F A Denton, C A Sumner (2), D C Andrews, J H Brown, Mrs P T Wright, F O Hush, R Annis, F H Chamberlain, Mary Garnin, M Grover.

By Express—D Weaver, I C Wellcome, R L Harrison, J A Parker, T Smith, H A King, S L Manley, H D Reed, Enoch Burpee.

SHELDON'S FOUR NEW TRACTS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

1. LIFE AND DEATH THEOLOGY: or, The Scriptural Doctrine of Eternal Damnation and Everlasting Punishment. Price 8 cts. single, postage 2 cts.; 75 cts. per dozen, postpaid; $5.00 per hundred by express.

This work of forty-eight pages is the clearest and strongest document yet produced by Bro. Sheldon on this topic. It is just the thing to scatter among all classes.

2. IMMATERIALISM: or, The Doctrine of Soul-Immortality Refuted. Price 5 cts. single, postage 2 cts.; 40 cts. per dozen, postpaid; $3.00 per hundred by express.

A tract of thirty-two pages, showing that fifteen cardinal errors spring out of the doctrine of the soul's immortality, and that those errors could not exist independent of that doctrine, thus showing it to be the main root of error. Let it be scattered widely.

3. DEATH AND THE DEAD, 16 pages. Price 3 cts. single, postage 2 cts.; 20 cts. per dozen, postpaid; $1.50 per hundred by express.

Just the thing to scatter everywhere.

4. THE COMING JUDGMENT: Its Necessity and Result. Eight pages. 10 cts. per dozen, postpaid, or 75 cts. per hundred by express.

It will do much good.

THE DOCTRINE OF IMMORTALITY.

OR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

By Elder James H. Whitmore. Published by the Western Advent Christian Association.

This little volume of three hundred pages is a valuable contribution to the literature of the subject on which it treats, and is worthy of a wide circulation, not only among those who hold to the views advocated therein, but among others who have not given them due thought and investigation.

Price, single copy, postpaid, $1.00. Six copies, by mail, $5.00; by express, $4.20.

NEW TRACTS BY S. S. BREWER.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE SEVEN MESSAGES OF THE APOCALYPSE. Sent by mail for 13 cents. Postage 2 cents. $1.20 per dozen by express.

EVANGELS OF THE COMING ONE. Price by mail, 10 cts. single copy; per dozen, 70 cts.; per hundred by express, $5.00.

THE MYSTERY OF INIQUITY. This is a work on the man of sin, as viewed in the light of historic testimony. Price by mail, single copy, 5 cts.; postage 2 cts.; 50 cts. per dozen; $3.00 per hundred.

THE JUBILEE HARP.

We are now ready to supply friends with the new Hymn and Tune Book, at the following prices:—

Plain cloth, leather backs, colored edges, $1.00 per copy; $9.00 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges, $1.15 per copy; $10.50 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges and covers, $1.25 per copy; $12.00 per dozen.

☞ Postage 15 cts. per copy additional, when sent by mail.

NEW HYMN BOOK.

"Hymns of the Jubilee Harp."

WITHOUT THE MUSIC.

The above work, printed in large, clear type, on beautiful paper, we are ready to fill orders for, at the following prices:—

Bound in cloth, with sprinkled edges, 75 cents per copy; $7.00 per dozen; $55.00 per 100.

Bound in leather, gilt edge, $1.00 per copy; $9½ per dozen; $75.00 per hundred; when sent by mail, 16 cts. additional postage.

LIST OF ENGLISH BIBLES.

We have received and keep on hand the following English Reference Bibles:

Minion, 8vo., marg. ref., large type, circuit binding, $4.50; postage 28 cts. Do. plain binding, $4.00; postage 28 cts.

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., circuit binding, $3.50; postage 20 cts. (Best size for preachers.)

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., plain, $2.25; postage 20 cts. Do. ref. between verses, $3.25; postage 24 cts.

Pearl, 8 vo., marg. ref., circuit, $2.25; postage 20 cts. Do. plain, $1.75; postage 20 cts.

"ADVENTISM."

We have a supply of this valuable work.

Price in cloth..........75 cts., postage 12 cts.
Flexible covers..........60 cts., postage 12 cts.
Paper covers..........50 cts., postage 6 cts.
In paper covers by the dozen, by express, $4.75.

SPIRITUALISM CONDEMNED

BY THE TESTIMONY OF THE BIBLE AND ITS OWN WITNESSES.

BY M. D. WELLCOME.

Price 16 cents single copy. Twenty copies for $1.00; [illegible] per one hundred copies.

"Historic Echoes of the Voice of God."

AN EXPOSITION OF THE ELEVENTH CHAPTER OF DANIEL.

BY ELDER J. COUCH.

Price 15 cents single copy. $1.50 per dozen. $10.00 per one hundred.

For the World's Crisis.

"I HAVE PRAYED FOR THEE."

"And the Lord said, Simon, Simon, behold Satan hath desired to have you, that he may sift you as wheat; but I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not."

Though tears mark thy pathway, as day after day
The enemy besieges in battle array,
I suffer it now, but he shall not prevail—
I have prayed for thee that thy faith may not fail.

Though clouds draped in darkness obscure the bright light,
And hide the enemy's snares from thy sight;
Though thou canst not see through the dark gloomy vale,
I have prayed for thee that thy faith may not fail.

If the anvil be brought and thou laid thereon,
And fitted the temple of God to adorn,
The fire and the hammer may cause thee to quail,
But I've prayed for thee that thy faith may not fail.

Though with feet torn and bleeding thou treadest the way,
Through which the path to the kingdom doth lay;
Though fierce the temptations that may thee assail,
I have prayed for thee that thy faith may not fail.

Yes, Jesus has prayed for us; O, be not dismayed,
Though from us shall flee all our earthly aid;
But let us remember, whatever our lot,
The Savior has prayed that our faith fail not.

Lawrence, Mass. A. M. FOWLER.

For the World's Crisis.

STAND: HAVING DONE ALL, STAND.

"Stand fast in the faith is the mandate of God,
Once uttered in heaven, once written in blood;
From the cross of our Lord, from his throne in the sky,
It was breathed over earth, it was uttered on high."

Go with you, friend? No, we can't—shan't, unless you go with Jesus the Lamb slain, the holy One. If you keep back part of the price, heal slightly, bow to popular views, confer with flesh and blood, advocate the doctrine of worldly expediency, cry "Peace, peace," when there is no peace, how can we walk in your steps, sit under your preaching? It's more grating to our ears than "the crackling of thorns under a pot"! It's death—double death,—it's damnation! What said Christ to those who loved the praise of men more than the praise of God; who tithed mint, anise and cummin, and omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgment, mercy and faith; who received honor one of another, and sought not the honor which cometh from God only?

They were a hissing, a stench, a by-word! Are not those at the present day far more guilty who shun to declare God's full counsel, from a man-fearing spirit, a time-serving policy, than the whited sepulchres to whom the Savior said, "Ye serpents, ye generation of vipers, how can ye escape the damnation of hell"?

"Who is the honest man?
He that doth still and strongly good pursue;
To God, his neighbor, and himself most true;
Whom neither force nor fawning can
Unpin, or wrench from giving all their due."

Any minister or editor, who will be cramped in his public or private ministrations by a conservative, time-serving church; who will not be free, outspoken against all sin, in the name of God, is unworthy a place in the pulpit or editorial chair. If you would have persons unite with you in doing God service, spreading divine light, break bread with you at the Lord's table, speak out in love manfully, with holy boldness; cry out against popular sins that are cursing the land, the iniquities which God knoweth staring you full in the face; keep back no part of the price, come life, come death;' imitate Christ himself, the holy prophets and apostles, in rebuking all sin, in high places and in low,—then, and not till then, we go with you, heart, soul and life. By your time-serving, man-fearing policy, bowing and scraping to popular views, you keep out the gold and take in the dross, keep out the wheat and receive the chaff. You will have hearers in abundance, communists a plenty of your stamp, who heap to themselves teachers having itching ears, who will not endure sound doctrine. 2 Tim. 4: 1–4.

No one will sit long under the sound of your voice from the sacred desk, who has any desire to honor God, grow in grace, and fight the good fight of faith. As soon sit down on a seat of nettles, thorns and thistles. Run—run! escape for your life! Run!

Bid you God speed, conservative man in the pulpit or editorial chair, who are more concerned for the fleece than the flock—a popularity seeker? How can we, when God is not in you, nor with you? God forbids us, not only not to bid you God speed, but, furthermore, not to admit such into our houses. 2 John 1: 10. "For they that are such serve not our Lord Jesus Christ, but their own belly; and by good words and fair speeches deceive the hearts of the simple." Rom. 16: 18.

This sickly charity is "death in the pot," overspreading the land, eating as doth a canker. It covers not only a multitude of sins, but sins of the deepest dye, scarlet-colored, heaven-daring. The world is full of it, in the church and out of it. Why this looseness and slackness in family and church discipline? Why are children wayward, disobedient, headstrong, selfish, self-willed? Why do they live as they list, say what they please, go where they please, do what they please? Is not false tenderness or a sickly charity the root, the branch, the fruit of all this—meanwhile repudiating the word and the life? Why is the pruning-knife almost wholly abandoned or laid aside in church order and discipline? Why this neglecting to suspend or excommunicate disorderly members—rum-sellers, tobacco-mongers, covetous men, who are idolaters, theatre-goers, opera-dancers, card-players, novel-readers, Sabbath-desecrators, church gamblers, time-servers, "lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God"? Is not a false or spurious charity at the bottom of all this—a disregarding the word and the testimony? "Oh," says the temporizer, "we must have charity; for charity covereth a multitude of sins!" Alas! what sin does it not cover? Uncharitable are we? Who says so? Time-servers, men-pleasers, heaven-daring, soul-destroying.

When and where has there ever been a true, faithful, outspoken Bible reformer, denouncing sin as God does, who has not been accused, sooner or later, of being uncharitable, of a harsh or bitter spirit? Even the wicked Ahab had the impudence to say to Elijah, "Art thou he that troubleth Israel?" Doubtless Elymas the sorcerer accused Paul of lacking charity, or of indulging in a very bad spirit, when Paul said to him, "O full of all mischief, thou child of the devil, thou enemy of all righteousness, wilt thou not cease to pervert the right ways of the Lord?" Acts 13: 10. Demetrius and his associate shrine-makers likely drew the same conclusion. "Woe unto you, scribes, pharisees, hypocrites! for ye compass sea and land to make one proselyte, and when he is made ye make him two-fold more the child of hell than yourselves." Matt. 23: 15.

"Stand firm. Oh, 'tis a high command,
From which no christian man should turn;
If Satan presses hand to hand,
[illegible] within should burn.
[illegible] the champions of the Lord,
Contending for his purest word."

D. F. NEWTON.

For the World's Crisis.

JOURNEYINGS OFT.—No. 2.

Dec. Visited Wayne Village, Me., where I had been invited to preach, the F. W. Baptists having given consent to a brother to let the Adventists preach in their house. I preached four discourses to full and attentive audiences. Several meetings had been held previously, and the attention of the people awakened. They gave an excellent hearing, and are searching their Bibles to see "whether these things are so." Some are seeking the Lord. A wide and effectual door is open there for the gospel of the kingdom of God, and much good may be done if properly occupied. At Lewiston, found the church had removed to Central Hall. Bro. Jere Hill was holding a protracted meeting with good results. Several had been reclaimed. Here I met Bro. Jesse Gay, who had come to fill his appointment. We stopped over Sunday and helped what we could. It was a precious season. The Lord was at work. Some were converted, others were reclaimed. Five were received into the church by the right hand of fellowship, and at the close of service a goodly company came to the table of the Lord to commemorate the dying of our blessed Savior. The brethren are much encouraged, and hope for the blessing of the Lord and peace in his work. May the Lord prosper them, and give them wholesome food and health.

Visited Bath Conference, and remained over the next week. Enjoyed a precious season with the brethren, and saw the work of the Lord in the conversion of sinners and reclaiming of wanderers, which we have reported elsewhere. Visited the family of our beloved brother, Geo. Howland, in Topsham, Me. Found him sick unto death. He felt that all was well. Jesus was his hope and trust. As I told him I was about to pray, he said—"Do not pray for my recovery, but that I may have an easy passage down to death." He was in great pain, but it was short, then subsided, and he died as the good man dies—in peace and in hope. I attended his funeral, and deeply sympathized with his beloved family, and the many friends who will greatly miss this faithful christian friend.

Visited Brunswick, and preached several times in the "yellow school-house" to the few who came out, and enjoyed the society of the old friends and believers, who still keep up the public worship of God there. They have been revived and strengthened of late.

In all these places I find the brethren and sisters, who are waiting for the Lord, much interested in the present signs of his immediate coming, as indicated in the movements of the nations, the condition of the Papacy, and morals of society. Surely we should watch and be ready, and work while we can gather souls to Christ. I. C. WELLCOME.

For the World's Crisis.

YEARLY REPORT OF LABORS.

To "brethren scattered abroad":—It is now three and a half years since I conceived the plan of giving out pamphlets to spread truth, and asking donations to pay for them, on the same principle that we and other denominations have long practised in giving out tracts. Being a new religious sect, and being much opposed for our distinctive doctrines, I have felt that we not only needed tracts spread broadcast to let our views be known, but also larger works as generally spread, to more fully prove them to be founded on the Bible. Tracts have been liberally spread, but in getting books as largely spread, there are difficulties which I fear have not been sufficiently considered. The main one is, that christians and the world will not buy our works as they will those of the popular sects. They are warned by ministers to beware of poison. I should not have got the "Six Sermons" twenty-two years ago, if charged fifteen cents for them, and should have remained in the dark, God only knows how long. A Sister Dunlap, who gave them to me, sleeps in Jesus, but the fruit of her liberality remains, to the unspeakable joy of one heart at least.

Again. Book-stores will not keep our books, were we able to supply them. How, then, could we expect a rapid spread of our doctrines among many millions without resorting to some extra means to effect the work? These difficulties I saw and felt deeply, and for over three years have been using the best extra means I could think of; and many liberal friends to our cause have held up my hands, thus showing they approved of the plan. I have not done as much as I wished and hoped to do, but have used the best efforts in my power. Finding I could not live and let pamphlets go entirely free, I have the past year put them at cost, or less than half price; and the result was that I dealt out three hundred of "Death not Life" at Springfield and Conn. campmeetings, and three hundred and fifty at public meetings West. But not two hundred could have been spread had the usual price been asked. Most of our brethren have them, but if they can buy so cheap, they readily buy to lend and give to friends. Ministers find it a burden to carry larger works than tracts, and if they do they have to give away many, and so lose by it, and the result is, they will carry but few even into new fields where they could be easily disposed of. But they take them readily at so low a price, for they can give some and yet sell so as not to be losers. For some years before changing my plan, I could only sell two or three hundred per year, while since last spring I have parted with one thousand three hundred and fifty of the fifteen hundred I had printed.

Out of many good results of having works to give and lend, which have come to my knowledge, I will name but one. At our last campmeeting at Springfield, three young men, own brothers, were ordained, who had studied at a Methodist College, and had commenced preaching among that order. They told me that an Advent brother (giving his name) lent them "Death not Life"; the result was, they are now preaching our views instead of opposing them. The brother who lent that work sees much fruit from a little seed. So it has been with many hundreds of works lent and given. O, it will be joyful to meet those in the kingdom whom we have thus comforted and saved from a sad error.

In three and a half years I have been able to send out eight thousand of "Death not Life," two thousand of "Pauline Theology," and eight thousand of my six tracts. Much has been done to spread our works, but any one who travels much knows that only a small part of the families in our land have them, especially the larger ones. If possible, I shall continue the work of scattering pamphlets at cost, or free; but as times have been hard the past year, donations have been few and small, and I am left ninety dollars in debt for printing fifteen hundred of my work last spring. I shal soon need more printed, as I have but one hundred and fifty on hand, but dare not print until I can pay up. Calls for my work, as for others, increase as our field of labor enlarges.

Signs strongly indicate that we shall soon end our work of "laying up treasures in heaven," and shall not need what we have on our sin-cursed earth. We should call to mind the fact that the prospect of a clean universe when Jesus comes has given us great comfort, and show our gratitude to God by giving to send the light and joy to others—continue to "give cups of cold water." As age and health will not allow me to travel winters to call on brethren, I [illegible] hope that those who judge this to be a wise course to root up the horrible torment doctrine, will send me aid by mail. Direct to Buffalo, N. Y. My health is better than last year, and I hope to travel another year, if time lasts. J. BLAIN.

Buffalo N. Y., Nov. 30th, 1870.

For the World's Crisis.

IOWA CONFERENCE REPORT.

SPECIAL MEETING.

Conference met at New Hartford, Dec. 29th, according to appointment, Job Gildersleve in the chair. A good number present.

Voted, that visiting brethren be invited to take part with us in our deliberations, and to accept the appointment of the Conference Board—Alonzo Raymond, Sec., and W. H. Peck, to fill vacancy caused by R. B. Dutton and D. A. Dickerson, resigned.

The following preamble and resolution was presented and unanimously adopted:

Whereas, the Iowa Christian Conference, organized Oct. 10th, A. D. 1857, has been conducted in a christian manner since that time, having annual conferences, and also holding its intermediate quarterly meetings regularly, and also maintaining the following principles—Christian character the only test of fellowship and the Bible the rule of faith and practise; believing and teaching in harmony with the above principles the speedy appearing of Christ in his kingdom, man unconscious in death, a literal resurrection of the dead and judgment to come; and, Whereas, God has blessed us as an organization, as will be shown by the following statistics: In 1857 the conference consisted of three ministers and twenty-five members; from this time onward until 1862, when Minnesota and Wisconsin were mutually set off as conferences, there was a constant increase both of ministers and membership, ministers numbering at this time twenty-six; members four hundred and twenty-[illegible]; in 1863, the Iowa Christian Conference [illegible] starting from this time alone as a State conference, consisted of fifteen ministers, seven [illegible] churches, and one hundred and ninety members; from this time onward (until the agitation of the name question), under the system [illegible] evangelist preaching and the co-operation [illegible] the brethren, God blessed the work by an increase of sixty members, twelve churches, and nine ministers; and we were signally blessed in the year ending 1868 by an increase of four hundred and sixteen members; showing that the conference was an instrument in God's hand of doing good, notwithstanding what may have been said to the contrary; and

Whereas, some of our brethren having become dissatisfied (their dissatisfaction being groundless), and also having taken exceptions to our not inserting the word "Advent" in our Constitution, they therefore have organized an Advent Christian Conference in opposition to the Iowa Christian Conference, thereby destroying the unity of the brethren and the churches [illegible] therefore,

Resolved, that we consider the above conduct no excuse for us to cease our labor of love, or to forsake those means whereby we may maintain a permanent organization for usefulness; and we cordially invite and earnestly entreat all lovers of Christian unity to sympathize with us in our endeavors to build up the cause of Christ, to promote Christian love throughout the land, thereby maintaining the unity of the spirit and the bond of peace.

We elected Bro. P. S. W. Deyo as Evangelist, to act for the balance of the conference year; and we [illegible] him our entire confidence for the past and the present. Voted, to accept the invitation of the Christian Mission Campmeeting Board to hold our next annual meeting in connection with their coming campmeeting, which will commence, the Lord willing, June 17th, 1871.

Our meeting was one of great interest. The Lord was with us. The meeting was characterized by a consecration to God seldom seen [illegible] [illegible] by those who were present, all present feeling a necessity to cling closer to God than ever before; for, because iniquity abounds, the love of many waxes cold. May the Lord help us to take a higher stand.

JOB GILDERSLEVE, Pres.
ALONZO RAYMOND, Clerk.

For the World's Crisis.

THE CAUSE.

At Providence, R. I., the brethren at Lester Hall maintain a consistent Advent meeting. I was with them the first Sunday in the month, and left them in cheerful prosperity, looking for and hasting unto the coming of the day of glory. I enjoyed the day with them, and could but hope and pray the pleasure of the Lord might prosper them in holding fast the word of life. I was pleased with their steadfastness and determination to support an Advent meeting, where the blessed sound of the good news and practical religion, with the truthful doctrine of the sleep of the dead and destruction of the wicked from the presence of the Lord, can be preached and heard by all that choose to come.

Saturday, by cars, I made my way to Portland, Me. I soon found the home of Bro. York and family, and was made welcome by them. Had a good time in talking over the signs and indications of our soon finding the better country. It is blessed to look to the future and see glory, honor, immortality and eternal life so near, and then to have an assurance that it will by grace be ours.

Sunday we went to their new place of worship, and found it easy of access, up one flight of stairs, a pleasant hall, and easy to speak in. They had a good congregation, especially in afternoon and evening. I wish our city brethren and friends would get out in the morning, for it is frequently we then get the best meeting. Let us show the world we are interested in the great salvation. It does not tell well for God and truth to lose the forenoon. Time is short. Let us improve it all to the glory of God.

I enjoyed the day with them in rehearsing the signs of this time, and practical duties consequent, with the prospective rest in the kingdom of glory; and their countenances and responses told plainly that I was among a people that saw the "joyful sound." They have had an addition to their number of converts recently, and they seem to be in working order, hopeful and happy. The coming of Jesus is a pleasing theme to this people. I left them with my best wishes for their prosperity. L. BOUTELL.

Chelsea, Jan. 9th, 1871.

AGED MINISTERS.

"God bless our aged ministers. They have been of incalculable value to the church. They are still an inestimable blessing among us. They have done what many ministers of to-day would not do. They have done what many could not do. God raised them up for a work. Their day was of his own ordering. Their work was his work. If we speak against them, we speak against him. And still we need these aged men among us. Their moderation may temper our haste; their piety rebuke our levity; their humility our vanity. Let the aged ministers attend our public gatherings; let them preach; let them often introduce and lead the social meetings. Their services often give special solemnity to communion services. Keep not back the aged ministers. Bring them forward. They have loved the work, and still they love it; they have served us well, and still they will serve us. The special duties of young ministers and of the laity to these honored veterans—that is the question. Think of it. It can be thought out and acted out better than we can write it."

We give place to the above [extract from Herald of Gospel Liberty.—Ed. "Crisis,"] for the purpose of calling attention to those worthy veterans with whom, perhaps, many of us are acquainted. They are apt to be overlooked and passed heedlessly by, especially at large gatherings. They should not be forgotten; many are not able to leave their homes and preach as they used to; their wants should be fully supplied: on no account allow them to suffer.—Woman and her Work."

PROVERBS OF THE PEOPLE.

"A short life, and a merry one."

Dr. A. L. Stone, formerly pastor of the Park Street Church, Boston, now of the First Congregational Church, San Francisco, Cal., delivered a lecture in the Mechanics' Pavilion, San Francisco, on the evening of Dec. 18th, from which we make the following extract from the report published in the Daily Evening Bulletin, of Dec. 19th:—ED.

"When I see a man laying plans only for enjoyment, providing only for the gratification of sensual desires, destroying his taste for pure and rational pleasures, I cannot help feeling and expressing concern for him. He is going downward, with all the freight of hope and wealth of being which he carries in his nature.

'A short life, and a merry one,' you say. This does not mean that he is using his energies to their best advantage. It is your plea for excess, for long dining's out, for the deep draught of the wine cup. You say it to justify you in courses of free and fast living, as if it carried with it a kind of gospel. It is not a plea for recreation. I believe in recreation. It is not a plea for relaxation. He who carries its spirit into his walks of life, will soon find himsel, turned out to grass, if not under the grass. 'The more haste, the less speed.'—

This applies just as forcibly to excess of any kind. Give me a man who works seven days in a week, and I will write his epitaph for him before he is forty. I do not care whether a man is an eight-hour man or a ten-hour man, or how long he works, or how short he works, he owes something to his nature. Every man is in duty bound to provide for the symmetry of his own body, mind and soul.

But this proverb does not plead for recreation. It does not propose to overwork. It is not on any journey. It does not spend its time on the road, but in the wayside inns. It does not ask for an evening with the poets, but with the sirens; not in the lecture room, but in the dance cellar; not to listen to the ovations of the Creation, but to the ballads sung in the low melodeons.

The whole spirit of the proverb mistakes as to the drift of the true life. It asks: is the road pleasant? no matter where it leads. If one path is steep and the other level, no matter if it be a dead level, he takes the latter one.

Look at the endowments which he brings into the world. What does he want with a big brain or a brawny arm, or a warm, loving heart, or a resolute will, if he be only to lounge in his easy-chair, or in the drinking saloon, or to frequent the harlot's chamber. From such a man you may take away all his brain without robbing him. It is of no use to him. For him to waste his energies in such a manner is like discharging a broadside from a seventy-four to kill a butterfly, or setting a forest on fire to destroy an insect.

Do you know a great many fine fellows who live a life of this kind of pleasure and of whom everybody speaks pleasing words? Are the pleasant things said of their vices, or in spite of their vices? Sweep them clear of indulgence and they would be a hundred-fold the men they are. This is the wrong idea of life. The right idea is not to enjoy, but to do, good; not to feel happy, but to live happy.

The speaker here narrated the circumstance of his riding in a car and overhearing a man behind him say, 'I go in for having a good time.' He drew a vivid picture of the unkempt appearance of the man, and said he wished he could have him up on the platform on a pivot, so that he could turn him round and round, and let his hearers see how little the 'good time' did for its seeker.

He said: A man dependent on the senses for enjoyment, with his senses worn out by indulgence without restraint, is a most pitiable mortal. He calls on nature for fresh contributions, but nature is exhausted; he draws on his bank of enjoyment, but it is empty; he has drank off the wine, and only the bitter lees remain. Yes, 'a short life and a merry one.'

Not only is his enjoyment short, but his life is apt to be short also. It is not work that kills a man. It is dissipation and abuse of his powers. Work, both mental and physical, is healthy. You see a child go to the fruit tree and eagerly gather the first unripe fruit which fails. You examine the fruit and you find there is a worm at the core. So it is with the fruit he gathers.

Such a life is beneath the dignity of manhood. It warps as well as strains the soul. If you follow it you will look back upon it with great sorrow upon the verge of your departure from this life. It is life wasted. Do not follow the proverb. Do write a wiser sentence: say 'an earnest life, long or short;' say 'a life of action and of duty.' You will find that duty a delight."

CONDENSED ADVICE.—At the installation of a Baptist minister in Lower Canada, the following advice was given the congregation: "Dear brethren, I suggest that you pray for your minister daily; guard his reputation carefully; hear him preach weekly; listen to the word wakefully; treasure it up joyfully; practice it faithfully; labor with him sympathetically, both individually and collectively; attend the prayer and conference meeting constantly; support the Sabbath school heartily; subscribe for him liberally; pay him promptly; give him a bit of meat and a ball of butter occasionally; call on him frequently, but tarry briefly; greet him cordially, but not rudely—and may the God of all grace bless you abundantly, and add unto you daily such as shall be saved eternally."

MANY WAYS OF DENYING CHRIST.—Bishop Heber said: It is a fatal mistake to suppose that there can be no apostasy from Christ where we are not absolutely called on to deny his name or to burn incense to an idol. We deny our Lord whenever, like that Demas, we, through love of this present world, forsake the course of duty which Christ has plainly pointed out to us. We deny our Lord whenever we lend the sanction of our countenance, our praise, or even our silence, to measures or opinions which may be popular or fashionable, but which we ourselves believe to be sinful in themselves or tending to sin. We deny our Lord whenever we forsake a good man in affliction, and refuse to give countenance, encouragement and support to those who, for God's sake and for the faithful discharge of their duty, are exposed to persecution and slander.

DOOLITTLE HENS.—Here is a fair illustration of "quick temper." A person in a passion very frequently jumps at conclusions so suddenly as to jerk his own head off, as they say:—

"I say, neighbor Snobs, if you don't keep your hens out of my garden, I will shoot them."

"Very well, Doolittle, shoot away; only if you kill any of my hens, throw them into my yard."

Crack went the fowling-piece, morning after morning, and the large, fat hens were pitched into neighbor Snobs' yard. They cooked well. After a fortnight or more, Doolittle discovered Snobs never had any hens, and that he had been shooting his own, they having broken out of his own coop.

Gems.

— Truth withheld is sometimes a worse deception than a direct mis-statement.

— If you have been tempted to evil, fly from it; it is not falling into the water, but lying in it, that drowns.

Be gentle, forgiving, and ready to lend
A kind, helping hand to each other,—
To bury in silence the fault of a friend,
And counsel a sister or brother.

— No man, whether rich or poor, can make or retain a good, useful position in life, without the two valuable habits of punctuality and temperance.

— Take care of the shillings, and the pounds will take care of themselves. Take care of the hours, and the years will take care of themselves.

— He censures God who quarrels with the imperfections of men.

— A happy life is made up of happy thoughts, and man should be a very miser in hoarding conscientiously every mill of the true coin.

Life hath its days of darkness,
When thick the storm clouds lower—
When waves dash fiercely round us,
And threaten to devour;
But still we need not falter,
There's One forever nigh,
Who speaks above the tempest,—
"Fear not, for it is I."

— As it respects general habits, a parent can scarcely teach a child a more valuable art than dispatch without bustle; nor can any one that values his time, cultivate a more valuable one for himself.

— It is our own vanity that makes the vanities of others intolerable to us.

— The imperfect christian is governed by the law of justice. The perfect christian is governed by the law of love, which fulfills the law of justice with delight.

— Were it not for the scorching drought we should not appreciate the refreshing shower. With less conflict, we would have less victories; with less trial, less joy.

Hours are golden links, God's token,
Reaching heaven; but one by one
Take them, lest the chain be broken,
Ere the pilgrimage be done.

— Winter, which strips the leaves from around us, makes us see the distant regions they formerly concealed; so does old age rob us of our enjoyments, only to enlarge the prospect of the eternity before us.

— The shadows of the mind are like those of the body. In the morning of life, they lie behind us; at noon, we trample them under our foot; and in the evening they stretch long and deepening before us.

What tho' long cherished hopes, like autumn leaves,
All scattered lie:
Knowing His love divine, this scarcely grieves,
For spring is nigh;
New hopes, God-given, shall then arise and bloom
In beauty bright,
Therefore, in hope rejoicing, 'mid the gloom
We wait for light.

— Better in God's sight are the broken but heartfelt utterances of a child than the high-flown utterances of some who think themselves wonderful in prayer.

— The joy of the young convert may be full and ecstatic; but that of the mature christian is fuller of glory and more solid and constant.

— Some men make a great flourish about always doing what they believe to be right, but always manage to believe that is right which is for their own interest.

— It is wise and well to look on the cloud of sorrow as though we expected it to turn into a rainbow.

DEAD RIVER GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

SHORTEST ROUTE AND QUICKEST TIME.

BROAD GUAGE AIR LINE.

RUM POLICY, President.
S. U. R. E. DEATH, Superintendent.

LEAVE Sobriety, at 6.30. Rumsellerville, 6.45. Morning Dram, 6.53. Sneakville, 7.20. Loafersburg, 7.35. Tipsyville, 7.45. Guzzler's Glory, 8.00. Drunkardstown, 8.30. Guttersburg, 10.20.

From Guttersburg there is an express train, which arrives at Sulphurdom in advance of any other line. Carsington Liarsville, Thieves Gulley, Arson Crossing, Gambler's Causeway—Express.

FLAG STATIONS. Reformationburg, Temperancetown, Robbertown, Murderer's Gulch, Crippleville, Pauperton, Orphantown, Snakesburg, Rioter's Hollow, Poison Switch, Delirium Falls, Suicide's Cave, Sulphurdom (Hell Gate)—Express.

☞ Through Tickets are sold by all Sample Rooms and Rum Holes, they being our only authorised agents.

☞ The rates of fare are higher by this than any other route, but the speed with which the journey is accomplished more than compensates for the difference in fare.

☞ All trains are through trains, and passengers by this route were never known to fail in making connections.

☞ All trains will stop at Reformationburg or Temperancetown, if passengers desire to leave at either of these stations. But all persons so stopping will forfeit their through ticket to Sulphurdom.

☞ Sleeping cars are provided for through passengers, who will be awakened frequently, that an opportunity for alcoholic refreshments may be given.

☞ The conductor of the morning Jersey Lightning Express is Satan Devil, Esq., well known to the traveling public who patronise our line, and popular at the principal stations on the Dead River Line.

☞ Baggage or clothing taken as security for passage; a pawn-broker accompanying every train. Any passenger discovered on board without money, ticket, or security, will be immediately thrown off without stopping the train.

☞ At Snakesburg a stage route leads direct to Insanetown, running also to Idiotville.

☞ At Poison Switch a short branch road leads to Perdition Camp, and at Suicide's Tunnel a junction is made with the Destruction River Railway.

☞ Special trains will be dispatched at any time, on application made to the Superintendent, for political conventions, pic-nic parties, and all associations owing allegiance to King Gambrinus or King Alcohol.

☞ This Railway Company will not hold itself responsible for any property that may find its way into their conveyances.

☞ Stages from Tobaccoland connect with all the trains.

STATEMENT OF THE BUSINESS OF THE DEAD RIVER RAILROAD.

1. From an accurate estimate, it appears that this road is carrying 600,000 passengers per year, mostly young men, down to the condition of Common Drunkards.

2. It is carrying toward destruction multitudes of the brave and noble young men in our army.

3. It has carried down to disgrace, poverty and destruction, many of the most talented men of the country, from the Bar, the Bench, the Pulpit, and the Halls of Congress.

4. It carries more than 1,500,000,000 of dollars to Destruction. A distinguished observer of facts says: "All the crimes on earth do not destroy so many of the human race, nor alienate so much property as Drunkenness."

5. If the families of Drunkards average five persons, it carries untold misery and wretchedness directly to more than 1,500,000 people, a large proportion of whom are women and children. It sends 200,000 to the Almshouse.

6. 120,000 places are licensed to sell spirituous liquors in the United States and territories. 300,000 persons are employed in these grog shops. If we add to them the number employed in distilleries and wholesale liquor shops, we shall have at least 570,000 persons employed in sending their fellow mortals to premature graves.

7. In the National Beer Congress, at their ninth annual session at Newark, N. J., in June, 1869, the president presented statistics showing the total amount of capital employed directly and indirectly in the manufacture of beer, to be $106,000,000, giving employment to 56,863 men.

8. Crime is mostly caused by drunkenness. Criminals cost the United States $40,000,000 per year.

9. The liquor traffic annually sends to prison 100,000 persons, reduces 200,000 children to a state worse than orphanage, sends 60,000 annually to drunkard's graves, and makes 600,000 drunkards.

10. The people of the United States, according to the report of Commissioner Wells, swallowed from the counters of retail grog shops in one year, poison liquor to the value of [illegible]

11. This terrible business against the laws of God and man is rapidly increasing.

—McDonald's Illustrated Annual.

THE LAW OF KINDNESS;

OR,

The Old Women's Railway Signal.

BY ELIHU BURRITT.

The most effective working force in the world in which we live is the law of kindness. For it is the only moral force that operates with the same effect upon mankind, beastkind, and birdkind. . . . . Kindness is the spontaneous music of good-will to men and beasts. And both listen to it with their hearts instead of their ears; and the hearts of both are affected by it in the same way, if not to the same degree. Volumes might be written filled with beautiful illustrations of its effects upon both. . .

Some time ago we read of an incident that will serve as an illustration of this beautiful law. It was substantially to this effect: A poor, coarse-featured old woman lived on the line of the Baltimore and Ohio railway, where it passes through a wild, unpeopled district of Western Virginia. She was a widow, with only one daughter, living with her in a log hut, near a deep, precipitous gorge, crossed by the railway bridge. Here she contrived to support themselves by raising and selling poultry and eggs, adding berries in their season, and other little articles for the market. She had to make a long, weary walk of many miles to a town where she could sell her basket of produce.

The railway passed by her cabin to this town, but the ride would cost too much of the profits of her small sales, so she trudged on generally to the market on foot. The conductor came finally to notice her walking by the side of the line or between the rails; and, being a good-natured, benevolent man, he would often give her a ride to and fro without charge. The engine-men and brakemen were also good to the old woman, and felt they were not wronging the interests of the railway company by giving her these free rides. And soon an accident occurred that proved that they were quite right in this view of the matter.

In the wild month of March, the rain descended and the mountains sent down their rolling, roaring torrents of melted snow and ice into this gorge near the old woman's hut. The flood arose with the darkness of the night, until she heard the crash of the railway bridge, as it was swept from its butments, and dashed its broken timbers against the craggy sides of the precipice on either side. It was nearly midnight. The rain fell in a flood, and the darkness was deep and howling went the storm. In another half-hour the express train would be due. What could she do to warn it against the awful destruction it was approaching? She had hardly a whole tallow-candle in her house; and no light she could make of tallow or oil, if she had it, would live a moment in that tempest of wind and rain.

Not a moment was to be lost; and her thought was equal to the moment. She cut the cord of her only bedstead, and shouldered the dry posts, side-pieces, and head-piece. Her daughter followed her with their two wooden chairs. Up the steep embankment they climbed, and piled all their household furniture upon the line a few rods before the black, awful chasm, gurgling with the roaring flood. The distant rumbling of the train came upon them just as they had fired the well-dried combustibles. The pile blazed up into the night, throwing its red, swaling, booming light a long way up the track. In fifteen minutes it would begin to wane, and she could not revive it with green, wet wood. The thunder of the train grew louder. It was within five miles of the fire. Would they see it in time? They might not put on the brakes soon enough. Awful thought! She tore her red flannel gown from her in a moment, and, tying it to the end of a stick, ran up the track, waving it in both hands, while her daughter swung round her head a blazing chair-post a little before. The lives of a hundred unconscious passengers hung on the issue of the next minute. The ground trembled at the old woman's feet. The great, red eye of the engine burst upon her as it came round a curve. Like as a huge, sharp-sighted lion coming suddenly upon a fire, it sent forth a thrilling roar, that filled all the wild heights and ravines around. The train was at full speed: but the brakemen wrestled at their leverage with all the strength of desperation. The wheels ground along on the heated rails slower and slower, until the engine stopped at the decaying fire. It still blazed enough to show them the beetling edge of the black abyss into which the train and all its passengers would have plunged, and into a death and destruction too horrible to think of, had it not been for the old woman's signal.

They did not stop to thank her first for the deliverance. The conductor knelt down by the side of the engine: the engine-driver and the brakeman came and knelt down by him; all the passengers came and knelt down by them; and there, in the expiring light of the burnt-out pile, in the rain and the wind, they thanked God for the salvation of their lives. All in a line the kneelers and prayers sent up into the dark heavens such a midnight voice of thanksgiving as seldom, if ever, ascended from the earth to Him who seeth in darkness as well as in secret.

Kindness is the music of good-will to men; and on this harp the smallest fingers may play heaven's sweetest tunes on earth.—Manufacturer and Builder.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

THE METEOR AND THE NORTH POLE STAR.

A fiery meteor was once upon a time so puffed up by a sense of his own importance, and so anxious to display himself to the inhabitants of earth in his full glory, dressed in his ever-changing robes of colored light, that he challenged the Pole Star, as the best known of all the stars, to appear upon a certain night, at a certain time, that the people of the world might decide which of them was the brightest and best.

The Pole Star, that had always kept his proper place since the world began, replied by saying that he was a star of peace, that he disliked strife and rivalry, that he had his work to do, that he knew the seamen on the deep would be lost if he left his post, but at the same time he declared that the meteor knew where to find him, and that he (the Pole Star,) would give him welcome if he made his appearance.

Upon receiving this message, the meteor became still further elated, inasmuch as he could not appreciate or believe in the motives of the Pole Star; he ascribed the answer which he had received to cowardice, and determined more obstinately than before that the trial should take place.

At the time of night appointed, he sallied out in a gorgeous display of dazzling color. He came from the direction of the sea, in order that he might arrive in full force by the time he reached the destined spot above the land. As he hurried over the waters, he received very small encouragement from the captains and sailors of the vessels which he passed, because they knew that the Pole Star was their friend, and that the meteor was apt to be a mischief-maker and a dangerous enemy. The meteor, however, cared little for that, but hurried on swift as a cannon ball and his mind filled with the vision of the commotion that his presence would create among the inhabitants of the towns of the country over which he was now to pass. At length he reached the destined spot, but, alas for his exalted and ambitious hopes! a dense mass of clouds obscured the sky, and after spending his radiance in the atmosphere without an inhabitant of the earth to witness it, he exploded with a loud crash, and was extinguished forevermore, without even a grave or a resting-place. In another hour the clouds parted, and when the Pole Star looked out once more, the seamen and the landsmen blessed his face. He still shines, as useful as in former years. Strive to be great, rather than to appear great, and to be useful in your day and generation, rather than to dazzle for the moment, and excite a fleeting wonder and admiration. So will you be happy and be blessed.—Little Corporal.

"I'LL TAKE WHAT FATHER TAKES."—"What will you take to drink?" asked a waiter of a young lad, who, for the first time accompanied his father to a public dinner. Uncertain what to say, and feeling sure that he could not be wrong if he followed his father's example, he replied, "I'll take what Father takes."

The answer reached the father's ear, and instantly the full responsibility of his position flashed upon him. And the father shuddered as the history of several young men, once as promising as his own bright lad, and ruined by drink, started up in solemn warning before him. Should his hopes be blasted, and that open-faced lad become a burden? But for strong drink they would have been active, earnest, prosperous men; and if it could work such ruin upon them, was his own son safe? Quicker than lightning these thoughts passed through his mind, and in a moment the decision was made. "If the boy falls he will not have me to blame;" and then in tones tremulous with emotion, and to the astonishment of those who knew him, he said, "Waiter, I'll take water;" and from that day to this, strong drink has been banished from that man's home.

THE PRAYER IN THE NIGHT.—One dark, stormy night, mother woke up. Hark, who is talking? The wind is blowing? It is not that. Who is talking? Mother did not speak; she kept still to hear what her little girl said. Alice was not fretting; she was not worrying. She was not afraid of the dark or the wind. How do you know? I will tell you what she was saying—saying all to herself in her snug little bed by mother's bed: "God, take care papa, mamma, I. Good God, take care papa, mamma, I. Dear, grand God, take care papa, mamma, I. God, take care birdies. Dear God up in the sky, I love you, I do, do;" and with that her little voice died away, and she fell asleep again.

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—PAUL.

"EATING DOES ME NO GOOD."

This arises from the fact, that although there is a plenty of food in the stomach, there is no power to get nourishment out of it; but nourishment is the thing which is wanted, the system feels itself almost perishing for want of it, and cries in louder and louder tones, just like a hungry baby. This is the false appetite of the dyspeptic, and is one of his chief tormentors. He is always hungry, always craving, yet never satisfied. He gets so hungry sometimes, about an hour before the regular meals, that he feels as if it was impossible to wait till that interminable time of an hour should pass along. Just at this point almost all dyspeptics will eat, and thus aggravate the disease, and make it more incurable; they eat a little "to stay the stomach," as they express it, to quiet the painful gnawings within; but by so doing they only increase the burden, for before this can be digested, the regular meal comes on, the digestion of the "snack" is arrested, and is kept thereby so long in the stomach that it decomposes, sours, aggravates all the symptoms, and aids to perpetuate the disease. In the case above, it is more nutriment that the system is crying for, rather than more food; and nutriment must be given by taking more exercise rather than more food, for exercise prepares more gastric juice.

The severe gnawing in dyspepsia, experienced before the regular hour for eating arrives, should be heroically resisted; for to eat a little to appease it, is but to parley with your worst enemy, to aid in fixing the malady so deep into the constitution as to defy all human means of extirpation.

—"Health by Good Living."

SUBSTANCES IN THE THROAT.—A fish-bone, or pin, being lodged in the throat, may sometimes be got rid of by exciting vomiting by tickling the back part of the throat. Another mode is to make the patient swallow a mouthful of bread-crumbs. Another expedient is to introduce a large goose-quill down the throat, and then twirl it round, for by this means the substance may be disgorged, and so pass down into the stomach. A plentiful draft of water will sometimes be sufficient, when the substance is merely engaged in the folds of the gullet. We would, however, particularly recommend in this case the white of an egg, and, if necessary, a second.

☞ WHEN intermittents prevail, sleep with all the outer windows and doors closed from half an hour before sundown until half an hour after sunrise; get your breakfast before sunrise, and your supper before sunset, eating them both by a blazing fire, not going outside the door in the morning until after breakfast. These precautions will counteract fever and ague in all localities.—Dr. Hall.

THE NOSE.—The nose, acts like a custom-house officer to the system. It is highly sensitive to the odor of the most poisonous substances. . . . To be led by the nose has hitherto been used as a phrase of reproach; but to have a good nose, and to follow its guidance, is one of the safest and shortest ways to the enjoyment of health.—Ex.

☞ IF we would only eat bran—Graham bread—a doctor of considerable skill asserts that in two or three generations the men would be taller, and the women have better teeth.

The World's Crisis

AND

SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance........................$2.50 a year.
Five copies six months to one address.......$5.60.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies six months to one address......$10.00.
Same rate for any number over ten.
CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage on the Crisis in the United States on each single copy of the Crisis is 20 cts. a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.

Over all matters not intended for publication write—PRIVATE.
Over all business matters, write—BUSINESS.
Over all articles for the paper, write—For the Crisis.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's NAME, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of NEW subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save much labor.
PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, please write PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.
☞ Put business matters and appointments on separate pieces of paper, or so that they can be detached without interfering with any other communication.
☞ All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the POST OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to
MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM.
An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.
TERMS.
PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Single copy, 30 cts. a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.
Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 25 cts. a year for each copy.
Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 20 cts. a year for each copy.
To Canada, [illegible] at the same rates. No extra charge for [illegible] postage.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 796. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 25, 1871. VOL. XXXII.—NO. 18.

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at
160 HANOVER ST., } CORNER OF SALEM STREET.
BOSTON, MASS. } (☞ Entrance No. 7 Salem St.)

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.
WILLIAM SHELDON, Corresponding Editor.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, L. BOUTELL,
JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
HOMER A. KING, H. V. DAVIS,
L. T. CUNNINGHAM, J. G. HAMBLIN,
H. H. DICKENSON.

GEO. T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ The CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

HOW LONG, O LORD?

How long this night of weeping, Lord?
How long shall grief prevail?
How long shall evil, all-abhorred,
With fearful strength assail?

How long shall these frail hearts betray
The trusts thy grace bestowed?
How long in weakness shall we stray
From thee, our Shepherd God?

How long in deepest grief be laid
Our heads, for grieving thee?
How long defiled by e'en sin's shade,
Our blood-washed garments be?

How long shall these sad hearts be torn,
By anguish deep be riven,
For loved ones wand'ring all forlorn,
From God, and life, and heaven?

How long the foes of God and man
With subtlest skill and care,
By deep Satanic thought and plan,
The unwary soul ensnare?

How long shall nature weep her woes,
And earth bow down in pain?
All eloquent, creation's throes
Beseech thy grace again.

How long shall sickness bow the soul,
The spirit deep distress?
Shall dire diseases hold control,
And demons dark oppress?

How long our great arch-foe malign,
World-wide his terrors spread,
Bear hence our treasures, and consign
Our life joys to the dead?

Life-giver gracious! who wert dead,
Who lives hence evermore,
Who art our only hope, our Head,
When shall Death's reign be o'er?

To bring with joy, to clothe with life,
Thy jewels, Lord, how long,
Ere thou shalt close the mortal strife,
And give the victor's song?

This night of weeping, Lord, how long?
How long shall grief prevail?
How long shall each unhallowed wrong
With fearful power assail?

Delavan, Wis., Jan. 1871. CARRIE HILL.

For the World's Crisis.

THE NEW DOCTRINE.

It would seem remarkably strange, if it were true that the Bible for eighteen centuries had deceived the whole christian church with regard to the resurrection of the unjust. So clearly and explicitly does it declare their coming again to life, and their destiny is so often and in such a variety of ways referred to, in language that involves their resurrection, that during all this period of time it has been the uniform faith of the church. Of course there has always been, and is now, a multitude who, setting aside the christian system, have rejected the doctrine of the resurrection altogether; but among those who have believed in the resurrection of the just, hardly one has doubted that of the unjust.

Since the time of the apostles, according to Abbott's catalogue, some two hundred authors have written upon the resurrection, and two or three thousand have variously presented the subject of man's nature and destiny, but it does not appear (if we except a pamphlet published in 1704, against some who denied the resurrection of the impious; who or what they were I do not know,—not written in English) that the coming forth of the wicked to meet their destiny, whatever it might be, has ever been controverted. But it is now ascertained beyond doubt, it is claimed, that they are not to be raised; that the church have all been wrong in their belief, having been led into a delusion, we must conclude, by receiving the plain and literal declarations of the Scriptures as true.

But why, since this is a subject that is purely doctrinal and not prophetical, may it not have been as correctly understood in the past centuries as in our time? Would not a claim to the contrary appear doubtful and suspicious? And is there any evidence that the Bible in presenting its doctrines makes this an exception to its usual method, so that the real truth is exactly contrary to what its plain language imports? Would not the Bible seem to be at fault if it had by its plain and literal statements always misled the church? Would it have sustained its reputation for "making wise the simple," and guiding the meek into all truth? And who now from reading it, would not surely understand it to teach just what the church in the past have, that all men would be raised from the dead? It is true that very many christians have entertained erroneous views upon other subjects, particularly upon the nature of man, but this was because they had regard to heathen traditions instead of the Bible. It cannot be said they were deceived by declarations of Scripture; they were not led to adopt such views by the plain testimony of inspired writers, for not one has been found to have said or intimated that man was immortal, but quite the contrary.

But upon the subject of the resurrection they have adhered to the inspired testimony, instead of tradition; hence the uniformity of their faith. How, then, is it so clearly discovered that the unjust are not to be raised? For this "new light," which some think shines with such brilliancy, it appears we are altogether indebted to those brethren who, by their faithful and persevering efforts to "advance in knowledge, and by the exercise of their skill and ingenuity in "making every thing clear," have (in a manner which is to them on the whole satisfactory, though not without its difficulties, they say) "brought out this great truth;"—though I marvel that the one who was chiefly instrumental in bringing it out so soon abandoned it, and now teaches the immortality of the soul.

But the methods by which they have obtained such "light," or reached such a conclusion, are very surprising, and if I thought they were correct, I should be greatly perplexed. I could have very little respect for or faith in the Bible. And if it is allowable to take such liberties in the disposition of the sacred oracles that refer to the wicked, why not the same when they refer to the righteous? And then what becomes of our hope? As Bro. Storrs upon this same subject once said, "The method of interpreting Scripture on which this theory depends, unsettles all faith in the Bible, and saps the foundation of christianity." And according to this method, I am certain that the Bible would be of very little use to me. For in that case, we have all been grossly deceived. And what can with certainty be relied upon? For I understand that the foundation on which our hope of future life rests, is God's faithfulness in carrying out or perfecting his whole revealed purpose, and if the resurrection of the entire race is not involved in that, I do not know of any thing that is; and if there should be a failure here, of course I could have no assurance of the rest being accomplished.

But I am well persuaded that our well meaning brethren have not obtained a correct view of the subject, and that the truth, after all, is just what the Bible in plain language affirms, and what all christians have ever believed, and that no part of God's doctrinal truth has been revealed in such a way as to have led every body into error.

Hartford, Ct. S. HALL.

For the World's Crisis.

THE DEGENERACY OF THE RACE SINCE THE FLOOD.

In Genesis 8 : 13, we read of Noah that he removed the covering of the ark, and looked, and behold the face of the ground was dry; when God commanded him to go forth of the ark, with his wife, and sons, and sons' wives, and every living thing, that they might breed abundantly in the earth, and be fruitful and multiply therein. Noah did as God commanded, and He blessed him, as we read—"And God blessed Noah and his sons, and said unto them, Be fruitful and multiply, and replenish the earth." The sons of Noah were Shem, Ham, and Japheth. We read that unto them sons were born there; names we shall not attempt to present in this article, except Nimrod, who became the first monarch. See Gen. 10 : 8–10. "He was a mighty hunter before the Lord, and the beginning of his kingdom was Babel." Babel was the beginning of Babylon. Tytler says that Nimrod built Babylon about one hundred and fifty years after the deluge. See his History, p. 17. Beside building Babylon, we notice in Gen. 10 : 10, that he founded Erech, Accad, and Calneh. Out of that land, we read, went forth Asshur, or Assur, who built Nineveh, which became the capital of the Assyrian empire. It will also be noticed, from Gen. 10 : 10–12, that other cities were founded by Asshur. And we have here also brought to view the generations of Noah and the names of his sons. "These are the sons of Shem, after their families, after their tongue, in their lands, after their nations, . . . after their generation in their nations, and by these were the nations divided in the earth after the flood." "And the whole earth was of one language and of one speech; and it came to pass as they journeyed from the east, that they found a plain in the land of Shinar, and they dwelt there."

In reading from the first and second verses, it will be seen that they concluded to build a city, and a tower whose top should reach unto heaven; the enterprise being for the purpose of saving themselves from being scattered abroad in the earth. But God in his wisdom thought best to confound their language. In the ninth verse we read—"Therefore is the name of it called Babel, because the Lord did there confound the language of all the earth; and from thence did the Lord scatter them abroad upon the face of all the earth." Their scattering resulted, says Weber, in the colonization of the three oldest divisions of the Globe—Asia, Africa, and Europe, forming themselves into different peoples and nations according to the varieties of their language. As men thus scattered, they ceased to worship the only true God, and substituted for their worship the sun and moon. As men dispersed themselves over the earth, the original belief in the one true God (monotheism) was lost, and fell into the worship of many deities (polytheism), adoring the visible works of creation (more particularly the sun and the stars of heaven), instead of their Creator; or else reverencing the operative powers of nature as divine beings.—Weber.

The heathen religion became that of the nations. Ps. 96 : 5—"For all the gods of the nations are idols." The priests, who conducted their religious ceremonies, pretended to have power given them by the gods to interpret dreams, and explain the extraordinary phenomena of nature. See Robbins' "History of the Chaldeans." The Chaldeans, properly so-called, were both the priests and the literati of the country. They were devoted to the business of religion, and pretended to skill in the prediction of future events. They dealt in charms, incantations, and explanations of dreams, and of the extraordinary phenom[illegible]a of nature. p. 159. The priests were off[illegible] called upon by the kings for information [illegible]ich they could not otherwise obtain. Nebuch[illegible]nezzar, king of Babylon, called upon the Cha[illegible]eans to explain to him a dream that he had [illegible]orgotten. Dan. 2. Philip, king of Macedo[illegible] desired to know of the gods of his future s[illegible]cess, and the priest replied. Philip did not [illegible]ose sight of the conquest of Asia. Full of [illegible]he mighty project he revolved, he consulte[illegible]he gods to know what would be the event of [illegible]t. The priest replied, "The victim is alread[illegible] crowned, his end draws nigh, and he will [illegible]oon be sacrificed." Philip, hearing this, did [illegible]ot hesitate a moment, but interpreted the [illegible]acle in his own favor.—Rollin, vol. 4, pp. 5[illegible]–5.

Alexa[illegible]der the Great wished to know of the priests a[illegible] to whether Jupiter had allotted to him the [illegible]npire of the world. He being come into the [illegible]mple, the senior priest declared him to be the [illegible]on of Jupiter, and assured him that the god h[illegible]mself bestowed this name upon him. Alexande[illegible], accepted it with joy, and acknowledged J[illegible]ter as his father. He afterward asked th[illegible] priest whether his father Jupiter had not [illegible]otted him the empire of the whole world. [illegible]he priest replied that he should be monarch [illegible]f the universe.—Rollin, vol. 5, p. 159.

The al[illegible]ve extracts prove David correct in his state[illegible]ent—"For all the gods of the nations are [illegible]ols."

Havin[illegible] shown from history how the race for [illegible] degenerated from the worship of the true [illegible]od, I wish to present the cause. Paul say[illegible] in his letter to the Romans (1 : 21), "Becaus[illegible] that when they knew God they glorified [illegible]im not as God, neither were they thankful, but became vain in their imagination, and their foolish hearts were darkened."

Who [illegible]re the authors of idol-worshiping? "It was [illegible]he universal sentiment, both of the church a[illegible]d of heretics, that the demons were the auth[illegible]rs, the patrons, and the objects of idolatry. Those rebellious spirits who had been deg[illegible]aded from the rank of angels, and cast dow[illegible] into the infernal pit, were still permitted t[illegible] roam upon earth, to torment the bodies a[illegible]l to seduce the minds of sinful men. The dem[illegible]s soon discovered and abused the natural [illegible]ropensity of the human heart towards dev[illegible]tion, and, artfully withdrawing the adoratio[illegible] of mankind from their Creator, they usurped [illegible]e place and honors of the Supreme Deity. [illegible]y the success of their malicious contrivances [illegible]they at once gratified their own vanity and [illegible]venge, and obtained the only comfort of w[illegible]ich they were yet susceptible,—the hope of [illegible]volving the human species in the participa[illegible]on of their guilt and misery. It was con[illegible]sed, or at least it was imagined, that the[illegible] had distributed among themselves the most [illegible]mportant characters of polytheism, one dem[illegible] assuming the name and attributes of Jupit[illegible], another of Esculapius, a third of Venus, a[illegible]l a fourth of Apollo; and that, by the adv[illegible]tage of their long experience and aerial n[illegible]ure, they were enabled to execute, with su[illegible]cient skill and dignity, the parts which th[illegible] had undertaken. They lurked in the temp[illegible]s, instituted festivals and sacrifices, invented [illegible]ables, pronounced oracles, and were frequent[illegible] allowed to perform miracles. The Christia[illegible], who, by the interposition of evil spirits, c[illegible]ld so readily explain every preternatural [illegible]ppearance, were disposed and even desirous [illegible] admit the most extravagant fictions of the [illegible]gan mythology. But the belief of the Chri[illegible]ian was accompanied with horror. The mos[illegible] trifling mark of respect to the national w[illegible]ship he considered as a direct homage yield[illegible]d to the demon, and as an act of rebellion a[illegible]ainst the majesty of God."—Gibbon, vol. 1, p [illegible]523.

Beside[illegible] the sentiments of the primitives and heretics, [illegible]et us notice what Paul has to say of the [illegible]ntiles who worship idols—"But I say, that [illegible]he things which the Gentiles sacrifice, they [illegible]acrifice to devils, and not to God; and I w[illegible]ld not that ye should have fellowship with [illegible] devils. Ye cannot drink the cup of the L[illegible]d, and the cup of devils; ye cannot be parta[illegible]ers of the Lord's table, and of the table of [illegible]evils." 1 Cor. 10 : 20, 21.

What [illegible]ffect had the first advent of the Savior upon [illegible]devil-worshiping? Let us notice the extent of it. The historian says, "An evil one was [illegible]upposed naturally to reside in every person, who was the author and source of all the corr[illegible]pt dispositions and unrighteous actions of that person. The driving out of this demon was therefore an essential property of baptism.' If every one, then, possessed a demon, and that demon must of necessity be cast out before being baptized, we must conclude, then, that in one day three thousand were cast out; for we read (Acts 2 : 4) that "they that gladly received the word were baptised," and the same day three thousand were added to them. The revival did not end there. It contin[illegible]d; and "the Lord added to the church d[illegible] such as should be saved." How many em[illegible]aced the Christian religion from the day o[illegible] Pentecost and onward through the apostolic [illegible]e? Many must have embraced it, as the gospel was propagated into every part of th[illegible] then known world. See Col. 1 : 23—"If [illegible] continue in the faith, grounded and settle[illegible] and be not moved away from the hope of th[illegible] gospel, which ye have heard, and which wa[illegible] preached to every creature which is under [illegible]aven, whereof I Paul am made a minister." Thus Paul says that he was made a ministe[illegible] of that gospel which was preached to every [illegible]eature which is under heaven. Those wh[illegible] believed the gospel, abolished their idols. R[illegible]d 1 Thess. 1 : 9—"For themselves show of [illegible] what manner of entering in we had unto you, and how ye turned to God from idols to serve the living and the true God." T[illegible] the Thessalonians, on hearing the gosp[illegible] abolished idols, and from thence forward [illegible]ved the living and true God, and went on [illegible] "wait for his Son from heaven, whom h[illegible]aised from the dead, even Jesus."

Thus [illegible] advent of the Savior resulted in the cast[illegible]out of many demons. But not all received th[illegible] gospel; for, says John (1 Ep. 5 : 19)—"A[illegible] we know that we are of God, and the whole world lieth in wickedness." The Savior did not say—Go ye into all the world, and preach my gospel, and that all would believe it; but, that those who believe and are baptized shall be saved. Paul never looked for a better condition of things prior to the setting up of the kingdom of God in the earth, than existed in his day. Looking down the stream of time to about when Jesus might be looked for to return from heaven, he wrote the following to Timothy: "Now the Spirit speaketh expressly that in the latter times some should depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils." 1 Tim. 4 : 1. Here he predicted a revival of the same demonism which existed in his day. This prediction does not allude to heathendom, but to Christendom; as he says they shall fall away from the faith. Who can fall away from the faith? Certainly those who are in the faith. Has this revival begun yet? Yes, in Spiritualism. It began in 1847, in the following way:

The spirits commenced their manifestations in this country by knocking on the door of a house occupied by Mr. Michael Weekman, in Hydesville, Acadia, Wayne county, N. Y., in 1847. Mr. Weekman says that one evening, about the time of retiring, he heard a rapping on the outside door. On opening it he found no one there. He went in for the purpose of retiring, and just before getting into bed heard the rapping repeated. He quickly opened the door, went out and looked around, but found no one. It being frequently repeated, he took hold of the door-latch, and as soon as the knocking was repeated, he sprang out, went round the house, but no one could be found.

One night, a little girl about eight years old was heard to scream; the family ran to her, and as soon as she was able to relate facts, she said she felt something like a hand on the bed and all over her, but was not alarmed till it touched her face. It felt cold. It was some days before she recovered her equanimity. The next family who resided in the house was that of Mr. J. D. Fox. Both Mr. and Mrs. Fox were members of the M. E. church, well known, and of unimpeachable character. They moved into the house where Mr. Weekman had lived, in Dec., 1847, and in March, 1848, first heard the noise. The knocking was so strong as to jar the floor. It was first heard one night, just after the family (except Mr. Fox) were in bed. It continued till they went to sleep, and they were unable to detect the cause. From that time it was continued each night. The 31st of March, the family retired early, and soon heard the knocking. A little girl, twelve years old, endeavored to imitate it, by snapping her fingers, and a response was given by knocking as many times as she snapped. When she stopped the sound ceased. Another girl said, "Now do as I do," and began to strike one hand with the other; the knocks were repeated as before.

When intelligence was thus manifested, Mrs. Fox requested it to count ten. It did so, by rapping ten times. It also, by request, counted the ages of the children correctly. Mrs. Fox questioned it as to its identity. When asked if it was a human being, it was silent.

"Are you a spirit?"

Two raps were given.

"Are you an injured spirit?"

Two raps as before were given. It was finally ascertained that it purported to be the spirit of a pedlar, who had been murdered in that house for money—five hundred dollars—at the age of thirty-one; and that he had left a wife and five children, and his wife had been dead about two years. The neighbors were then, by consent of the spirit, called in, and the questions continued. From this family the manifestations have spread all over the United States and Canadas.—Daniels' Spiritualism, pp. 13–15.

The rapid growth of spiritualism is without a parallel. The following statistics show the number of its adherents, and their books, periodicals, etc., prior to 1863:

There are now in America five hundred public mediums who receive visitors; more than fifty thousand mediums who are reliable in select circles, but are not before the public; about one hundred periodicals; more than five hundred books and pamphlets; five hundred speakers who are considered special public advocates; more than one thousand are regarded as only occasional; nearly two thousand places are opened for public circles, conferences, or lectures, and in many places there are flourishing Sunday Schools. The decisive believers number about two millions; the nominal, five millions; on the eastern continent their number may be reckoned as one million. See Plain Guide to Spiritualism.

But the numbers thus given are but a handful compared with their numbers at present. Many even good persons are falling in with the great satanic delusion.

Spiritualism is again brought to view in Rev. 16 : 13, 14—"And I saw three unclean spirits, like frogs, come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet. For they are the spirits of devils, working miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty." This accords with Paul's statement—"Giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils." These spirits are said to work miracles. Does spiritualism work miracles? Yes. I might cite the reader to many extracts, if necessary, but one will suffice, taken from an English work, entitled "Spiritualism and Signs of the Times."

"A lady living a few miles out of Bridgeton is asserting not only her power with the spirits in common with all spiritualists, but asserts that she can and does pass out of the body and go to Scotland and elsewhere, leaving her body at home. She says that she or her spirit passes through walls, doors, etc., without the slightest difficulty, and she ascends to the spirit world above, and has close communion with Jesus Christ and those who are gone there. She professes to call at her bidding any with whom she wishes intercourse. She and a few other bodies of the same class can tell you that they take the Sacrament together at all stated times. When this lady or her friends meet to take the Sacrament, they affirm that the Lord Jesus himself in person sits by them. Jesus then bringing grapes and placing on the table around which they are sitting, they all partake of the grapes together."

Spiritualism, or devilism fully developed, is brought to view in Rev. 13 : 11–15. It is symbolized by a two-horned beast. "And I beheld another beast coming up out of the earth, and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spake as a dragon. And he exerciseth all the power of the first beast before him, and causeth the earth and them that dwell therein to worship the first beast, whose deadly wound was healed. And he doeth great wonders, so that he maketh fire come down from heaven on the earth in the sight of men, and deceiveth them that dwell on the earth, that they should make an image to the beast which had the wound by the sword, and did live. And he had power to give life unto the image of the beast, that the image of the beast should both speak, and cause that as many as would not worship the image of the beast should be killed."

In the fifteenth verse we notice that it had power to give life unto the image of the beast. The beast here spoken was before the two-horned beast, and the image should speak and cause that as many as would not worship the image should be killed. The two-horned beast thus symbolizes the development of spiritism, or devilism.

Paul in his epistle to Timothy informs him that spiritism, or devilism, should arise in the last days. Has it arisen? If so, then we can say emphatically that we are living in the last days. THOMAS J. WHITECAR.

HIS SECOND COMING.

"Could christians watch ten thousand years,
Before their Lord himself appears,
Yet as he then shall come at last,
'Twere wise, through all the ages past,
To have watched, and waited, and have borne
The scoffer's jest, the worldling's scorn;
But those who watch not in the day,
Will surely sleep the night away.
Lord, make me at all times awake,
And, self-denied, thy cross to take,
Robed for thy nuptial feast in white,
With lamp in hand, and burning bright,
Nor lack of precious oil be mine,
When the loud cry, 'Arise and shine,'
Proclaims thee come in bridal state,
And when preparing is too late."

For the World's Crisis.

MENE, TEKEL.

The angel promised to tell John the mystery of the woman, and of the beast that carried her, which had the seven heads and the ten horns. The seventeenth chapter of Revelation is divided thus: 1. The introduction. 2. The version. 3. The interpretation as given by the angel.

In the interpretation the angel informs John that the woman here brought to view is that great city which reigneth over the kings of the earth. The woman then in this case represents an apostate church, and is said to be the mother of harlots, and abominations of the earth, and she is said to be drunken with the blood of the saints, and of the blood of the martyrs of Jesus, her golden cup full, etc. I think there is no doubt as to what this woman represents—the "Roman Catholic church," a corrupt ecclesiastical body, "with whom the kings of the earth have committed fornication, and the inhabitants of the earth have been made drunk with the wine of her fornication." In the first verse of this chapter the woman is said to sit upon many waters. But in the third verse we are told she sits upon the beast. How is this apparent discrepancy to be reconciled?

I view, that during her judgment period, she sits upon the many waters, which are said by the angel to represent peoples, and multitudes, and nations, and tongues, and this period of judgment is the same as brought to view in Daniel 7 : 26, "To consume and to destroy it unto the end." I view this judgment commenced at the time the woman lost her civil power, between A. D. 1792 and 1809. And from that time onward her position has been that of sitting upon the many waters.

This corrupt woman has been weighed in the balances and found wanting. The handwriting has been distinctly written. The kingdom has been numbered and finished, and the intoxicated mass of this vile institution await the hour of execution, when she shall be utterly destroyed in a lake of fire burning with brimstone.

This woman, then, represents an apostate church. The centre of her operations is at Rome, a city in Italy; about her (on the old Roman earth) are located the kingdoms that have aided and supported her during her days of cruel persecution. It is upon this same territory we may look for the visitations of God's last judgments upon these cruel despotic powers, and also upon the apostate church. This is the place where the beast and the kings of the earth (old Roman earth) are said to gather themselves together for battle against the Lamb.

In connection with the woman, there is brought to view a scarlet-colored beast, with seven heads and ten horns, upon which the woman is said to be seated. What beast is this? Though this beast has some points of resemblance with the seven-headed beast of Rev. 13, yet it is sufficiently distinct. The leopard beast has crowns on his horns. The scarlet-colored beast has no crowns at all, and is therefore a distinct beast; and it occupies in its main features an entirely distinct period in prophetic time, though found on the same territory. This beast ascends from the bottomless pit (abyss), and is to go into perdition—be destroyed. It is "full of names of blasphemy." "It was," "is not" for a time, and then "is" fully developed under the seventh vial. Rev. 16. They that dwell on the earth will wonder, think it a marvellous affair, and that great things are to be accomplished by it for good to the world,—except those whose names are in the book of life; these will understand, because watching the part this beast is to act, and its end. Rev. 19 : 20.

This beast "is the eighth" government, in a certain line, and yet "is of the seven" that constitutes the whole line of government. It is said of the ten horns upon this beast, that they had received no kingdom as yet, but received power as kings one hour (same hour) with the beast. These have one mind, and shall give their power and strength unto the beast. These shall make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb shall overcome them.

This locates the chronology of this event we have brought to view in Rev. 19 : 19, 20. The beast and the kings of the earth (Roman earth) and their armies gathered together to make war against him (the Lamb) that sat on the horse, and against his army. And while they are thus arrayed, the beast is taken, together with the false prophet. These both are cast alive into a lake of fire (destroyed.) There will be at the end a live beast, a beast in existence.

The beast, and the two kings brought to view in Rev. 17, I view to be the same as spoken of in Rev. 19 : 19. Their works are the same, and the end of the beast is perdition in both places. The several different beasts brought to view in Rev., represent a civil government. In relation to this, one writer says—"There was one great, formidable power, having essentially the same origin, though manifested under somewhat different modifications; to one and all of which might in their different manifestations be given the name beast. I understand by the term earth, "kings of the earth," the old Roman empire, otherwise, "Catholic Europe," those powers which have committed fornication with the harlot woman. These will be destroyed, but they will be the means, first, of her destruction. Rev. 17 : 16. Burn her with fire.

The same that was once written upon the wall of the king's palace, just before the destruction, or fall, of old Babylon, is now written concerning Babylon the great; otherwise, mystical Babylon—Mene—"God hath numbered thy kingdom and finished it." Tekel—"Thou art weighed in the balances, and art found wanting" (and thy kingdom is to be given to another).

Time will develope some things that we do not now fully understand. But if we watch, and have on pure garments, we shall know all in due time. We may look for a wonderful manifestation shortly; but if we watch, we shall not be terrified, our names being written in the book of life from the foundation of the world.

There is more we would like to say about this beast of Rev. 17, but we think it best to wait till things are more fully developed in "Catholic Europe." I view there is but one more development, and this is at hand, in the midst of which the Lord will personally and visibly appear to gather his elect. I view this is a most solemn time in which we live. Who is there that will be found awake when the Savior appears in his glory, and loving his appearing? J. E. CLARK.

For the World's Crisis.

REDEMPTION.

"And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh."—LUKE 21 : 28.

We have reason to rejoice that we are not left to grope our way in darkness amid the perils of these last days, while cold-hearted, worldly-minded professors of religion are joining hand in hand with the world, eating and drinking with the drunken, and denying the coming of the Lord. But when we turn our attention to the word of God, we see that these things must needs be, that every jot and tittle of his word may be fulfilled. We may well lift up our heads and rejoice, for we are living in the last moments of time. Jesus says (Luke 21 : 28)—"And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh." To what things did Jesus have reference? To the signs in the sun, moon and stars; to the distress of nations, and roaring of sea and waves. Have any of these signs transpired? Yes, every one, as every candid person knows. We are therefore compassed about with a great cloud of witnesses, proving the coming of Jesus is close at hand.

The sun, moon and stars are witnesses of his coming. The distress of nations with perplexity, and the sea and the waves roaring, witness to that event. The clarion of war, the waking up of mighty men, and the deadly carnage and strife, all witness to the near approach of the Son of God. All who are scoffing and saying "where is the promise of his coming?" are witnesses against their own souls that this world will soon be wrapped in flames, and the enemies of the Lord be consumed.

But there are other witnesses, unlike these, who have filled and trimmed their lamps, and with loins girt with truth have gone forth to meet the Bridegroom. These are "not in darkness, that that day should overtake them as a thief;" they love their Lord's appearing, and are rejoicing in the blessed hope.

God speed you on your journey. I hope to be gathered with you in the kingdom when Jesus comes. I love his appearing; I am tired of earth's wickedness; but, blessed be God, he is not slack concerning his promises, and although wicked men put far away the evil day, yet we will trust in God's word. Yes, Jesus is coming, robed in glory, with all his angels, in kingly majesty, to bring redemption to his people. Then the graves will be robbed, the dead live and the "children" be free.

Then come, O Mighty One! Sweep away the refuge of lies. Restore earth to its Eden beauty. Let the earth be filled with thy glory. Then shall the children rejoice and praise thee eternally.

Beloved, looking for Jesus, take courage. The prize is ahead, the victory is ours. Onward! soldiers of Jesus. Army of the living God, shout victory over death, hell and the grave! Press forward in the name of Jesus, and be saved when he comes.

Soon the trumpet shall sound and the dead shall awake,
For the Bridegroom is coming again;
Then the saints of the kingdom possession shall take,
And with Jesus eternally reign.

GEO. W. HOWARD.

For the World's Crisis.

TEST QUESTIONS,

FOR THOSE WHO BELIEVE IN THE IMMORTALITY OF THE SOUL.

1. Where is the chapter and verse in the Bible that speaks of an immortal soul, spirit, or entity in man?

2. Where is the chapter and verse that gives us the plain record of the creation or organization of an immortal soul, spirit, or entity?

3. Where is there any proof that God created an immortal soul, spirit, or entity, and when created, created it in his now immortal and incorruptible image?

4. If such a creation exists, and in God's own image, can such an immortal creation die a moral or literal death? Can God, Christ, angels, and saints made immortal at Christ's coming, die either of these deaths?

5. When God created the man Adam of the dust of the ground, did he breathe an immortal soul, spirit, or entity, possessed of consciousness and all the attributes of reason and intelligence, into his nostrils?

6. Must the creature man, or the human organization, have an immortal soul, spirit, or entity, in order to run this human, earthly machinery, causing it to develop thought, reason, judgment, and intelligence?

7. If such an immortal soul or spirit exists, where is the proof that it is ever called a being, man, person, or creature?

8. If such an immortal soul, spirit, or entity exists, as some suppose, did it commence its history with the new-born infant body, without knowledge?

9. If such an immortal, immaterial soul or spirit exists, does it grow and magnify itself, as the infant body grows; or is it perfectly compos mentis when created?

10. Can such an immaterial, spiritual existence ever forget any event, circumstance, or knowledge, which it has gained by strict application to the study of the various sciences extant?

11. Can immortal souls or immaterial entities, as are supposed to exist, ever become insane, or raving maniacs?

12. Can these souls, spirits, or entities, be seen or perceived by any of the five senses with which God has endowed man? If so, which? or, in other words, are they material, or immaterial? and do they occupy space?

13. How many millions of such souls must be congregated into one compact body, in order to be seen by the most powerful microscope ever invented by man?

14. How many varieties of immaterial entities are there? There seems to be almost an endless variety of imperfect minds in the world; a gradation from the king on the throne to men of small minds, or no minds at all.

15. Where is the proof that God placed such entities on probation for the development of character and for reward and punishment?

16. Why do the Scriptures of truth talk so freely and so much about mortal man, corruptible man, earthly or fleshly man, dying man, man born of a woman, and yet in no instance mentions an immortal soul or superadded entity?

17. Where does God by sending his Son into the world to redeem a race of mortals, ever make any arrangement or atonement to redeem immortal or immaterial souls, or spirits, said to be contaminated by sin?

18. Can immortal souls or spirits be diseased, contaminated, destroyed, die, or suffer pain? If so, what safeguard have we, when all of God's saints at the resurrection of the just are made immortal, against suffering the same misfortunes?

19. While the terms soul and spirit occur hundreds of times in the Scriptures, where do you ever find the word "immortal" connected with either of these?

20. If the soul is immortal and deathless, why do the Scriptures invariably represent the soul of man as being subject to death and destruction?

21. If the soul or spirit of man is an immortal thing and a part of God, as many claim, does that govern or control the human organism? If so, is the man formed of the dust guilty of any crime under heaven? Does not this view make God the originator and propelling force of all the errors, sins, and blasphemy in the world?

22. If the doctrine of endless misery be true, and the question which precedes this one be orthodox theology, will God torture millions of parts of himself in a furnace of fire, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth?

23. Does not the doctrine of immortal-soulism produce more skepticism, errors, and delusions, and multiply more infidels, than all other doctrines combined?

24. Is not the preaching of the doctrine of the immortality of the soul, by its adherents, doing more in this our day to overthrow the Bible and christianity, than all the Tom Paines, Voltaires, and Bolinbrokes on the face of the earth? I heard Warren Chase, of Boston, state in Bryan Hall, Chicago, Ill., that there were tens of thousands of spiritualists in the various denominations in our land, that are "ready to leave their churches and flock to our standard, so soon as we [spiritualists] are an organised people." How came tens of thousands of spiritualists in all these churches? Judge ye. A word to the wise is sufficient. A. N. SEYMOUR.

— Good actions avail nothing, if the soul be unrenewed. You may stick figs, or hang clusters of grapes upon a thorn bush; but they cannot grow upon it.

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, January 25, 1871.

THE WORLD'S CRISIS.

LIBERAL OFFERS FOR 1871.

VALUABLE PRESENTS!

The Best Sewing Machine,
The Best Illustrated Dictionary,
The Best Books, and the Best S. S. Paper.
GIVEN AWAY!
FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS,
TILL THE FIRST OF JUNE.

The World's Crisis, a copy of which, dear reader, you hold in your hand, and which, for so many years, has been the leading and most widely circulated herald of the Coming King, is to-day, we trust, a welcome visitor in more than nine thousand homes, and is doubtless read every week by not less than forty thousand readers.

But do you not, dear reader, loving as you do the precious truths for which this paper has so long and so successfully fought, do you not think that this number is far below what it ought to be, and very much less than it might be, if but a little effort were faithfully and earnestly made by every one who now takes it? Do you not feel, in these last moments of time, when the Judgment of the Great Day is so near, and thousands are perishing for lack of knowledge, that it ought to be more than doubled; and that, if it were only in your power, you would, at once, and to-day, multiply its circulation and usefulness a hundred-fold? No doubt this is your feeling, and you would gladly do it, if you could. But suppose that you, and every one else of its nine thousand subscribers, or of its forty thousand readers, should take hold at once, faithfully and in earnest, and do all that you can towards that end, during the next four months, and as much longer as you may; what do you think would be the result? Would not its circulation, and the good it might do, be more than doubled in that time by your faithful efforts and the help of God? Is there any doubt of it?

The skies are full of omens of coming judgment, and men are looking fearfully for the things that are coming on the earth. They are waiting for you to speak to them. Will you? Hundreds of your brethren, too, who are waiting, as you are, for "the Hope of Israel," are without the strengthening, cheering visits of this many-tongued messenger of the Coming King. You will do them, and others through them, good, by introducing it to their hearts and homes.

We know that you will gladly do this, and all that you can, for the love that you bear to Christ and his cause, as you have, many of you, so nobly and so well, in time past; and if, again, you will give your time and labor to this work, the Lord will surely reward you when he comes. But, in advance of that, as a token of our appreciation of your kind efforts, we trust you will be pleased to receive from us YOUR CHOICE OF ANY ONE OF THE FOLLOWING PRESENTS for the new subscribers which you shall have obtained for The World's Crisis and Second Advent Messenger before the 1st of June.

PREMIUMS FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

For 2 New Subscribers, with $5,
A $1 PREMIUM.

1. Hymns of Jubilee Harp, cloth; and Pilgrim Praises.
2. Fables of Infidelity, and Facts of Faith.
3. Stories for Young Pilgrims, vols. I. and II.
4. Two copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
5. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
6. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and Bible Text-Book.

For 3 New Subscribers, with $7.50,
A $1.50 PREMIUM.

1. Jubilee Harp, full gilt, extra cloth, leather back.
2. Immortality, by James H. Whitmore; and Tracts.
3. Health by Good Living, by W. W. Hall, M.D.
4. Plan of Redemption; and Nature of Man.
5. The Broken Seal; an Exposure of Freemasonry.
6. Talks about People's Stomachs, by Dr. Dio Lewis.
7. Three copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
8. Two copies "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
9. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and any $1 premium.

For 4 New Subscribers, with $10,
A $2 PREMIUM.

1. Dictionary of the Holy Bible, with 5 Maps and 250 Engravings; and Grant's "Nature of Man."
2. Cruden's Condensed Concordance, and Sheldon's "Futurity."
3. Berean's Casket and Repository; Scriptures classified by Subjects.
4. Muller's Life of Trust; Effects of Prayer and Faith.
5. Four copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
6. Three copies "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
7. Two copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1 premium.
8. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and any $1.50 premium.

For 5 New Subscribers, with $12.50,
A $2.50 PREMIUM.

1. Synchronology; or, the Principal Events in Sacred and Profane History, from the Creation of Man to the Present Time.
2. Credibility of the Scriptures, in two volumes; a recast of the former work, by J. H. McCulloh; and Bible Text-Book.
3. English Reference Bible.
4. Five copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
5. Four copies "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
6. Three copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1 premium.
7. Two copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1.50 premium.
8. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and any $2 premium.

For 10 New Subscribers, with $25,
A $6 PREMIUM.

1. Webster's National Pictorial Dictionary, 1,040 pages, octavo, and 600 Engravings, price, $6; or, the "Unabridged" (below) for $6 extra.
2. Fifteen copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
3. Seven copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $2.50 premium.

For 15 New Subscribers, with $37.50,
A $12 PREMIUM.

1. Webster's Illustrated Unabridged Dictionary, 1,840 pages, quarto, and 3,000 Engravings, price, $12. The best dictionary extant.
2. Thirty copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
3. Webster's Pictorial Dictionary ($6), and fifteen copies "Young Pilgrim."

For 40 New Subscribers, with $100,
A $[illegible] PREMIUM.

A Grover and Baker Sewing Machine, first class in every respect, with hemmer and attachments; one of the best, if not the very best, in the market. These machines make "the Grover and Baker stitch," which is considered the best for family use, and "the shuttle-stitch." Please state which is wanted.

Things to be Remembered.

In making your list—the names may be obtained from as many different places as you please, and the papers will be mailed by us to each separate address.

Subscriptions may be taken for the year, with $2.50 each; or double the number for six months, with $1.25 each; or any number for both periods, which, with $1.25 and $2.50 each, shall make up the requisite amount.

Keep a list yourself of all names and monies obtained by you and forwarded to us, with the date when sent.

In sending to us—put the list always on a sheet by itself. If, at the same time, you write on other matters, or remit for old subscribers, put that on a separate sheet.

Write each name plainly, with its post-office, county, and state, and amount paid, all on one line by itself, in that order; and, at the bottom, give the whole amount of premium monies sent, with your own name and full address.

Names sent "for a premium," should, in all cases, be so marked when sent. No name should be sent without the money.

All names and monies can be forwarded at once, or from week to week, as fast as you get them, until the 1st of June.

Any one aiming for a higher premium, and failing to get the full number of names and amount, can pay the balance in cash, and so get the premium; or he can order some other premium on the list corresponding to the amount obtained.

When you have got all the names you can, and want your premium, send us a full list of all the names, addresses, and monies you have sent, so that we may compare them with our books; then we will send you whatever premium you may select from the catalogue,—the Sewing Machines and Webster's Dictionaries by express, at the expense of the receiver, and the other books by mail, postpaid.

Monies, if under $5.00, may be sent by letter at our risk. If a larger sum, and under $25, send a Post-Office Money Order, or Registered Letter. If $25 or more, send a Bank Draft, or Money Order, payable to the order of GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass. All sums of $5.00 and over, sent in any other way than above directed, will be at the sender's risk.

All letters and remittances for premiums should be addressed to the Business Agent, undersigned, or, if more convenient, they may be enclosed in letters to the Editor, Miles Grant, Boston, Mass.

And now, dear brethren and sisters everywhere, from Maine to California, and from the Lakes to the Gulf, put your hearts and hands to the good work, and a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull all together! and the blessing of the Lord be with you!

GEO. T. ADAMS, Business Agent,
Advent Chris. Publication Society.

MATERIAL AND IMMATERIAL.

Every thing that has a name is either material or immaterial; either an entity, or a property of an entity; a personality, or an attribute of a personality. By entity, we mean a "real being or existence." By property, we mean some peculiar quality of the entity, which exists because of the existence of the entity. By attribute, we mean the same thing, though perhaps more properly applied to living, intelligent beings. Property and attribute are used as synonymous terms. When we speak of an apple as being sweet or sour; of a body as soft or hard, heavy or light, dense or porus, tough or brittle; these are properties of the bodies named. Love, mercy and justice, are attributes which can exist only in living, intelligent agents, entities, or personalities. These properties, or attributes, do not exist after the entity, or personality, is destroyed.

Pain, sorrow, hatred, thought, life, desire, sympathy, etc., are properties of certain living entities; but when the personality is destroyed, these peculiar properties perish at the same time. No property can exist any longer than the material organism of which it is an attribute. Attraction, caloric, weight, elasticity, density, etc., are properties of bodies; but they never exist independently of material organisms. In other words, all properties, or attributes, of entities are immaterial, and never exist any longer than the bodies to which they belong. For instance, if a being feels pain, sorrow, or joy; love or hatred; all those attributes cease when that personality is no more. No attribute, or property, ever can exist by itself; any more than we can have a shadow without a substance, or a hole in a body after the body is entirely destroyed.

No amount of immaterial properties, or attributes, can make a material, personal entity. Hence, love, thought, desire, life, patience, meekness, mercy, justice, etc., have no existence, but in name, without a real, personal entity. In the case of our Creator, mind and personality are co-eternal; as in man mind and personality are co-extensive. They begin together, and the mental properties never extend, or exist, beyond the life of the physical constitution.

All personalities are organized bodies. All immaterial things are but properties of material bodies, and cease with them. The mind of man is not an entity, but a collection of attributes, or properties, peculiar to that wonderful organ called the brain; hence when that is deranged or destroyed, the mind is also deranged or destroyed. It is as impossible for man to think without an active brain, as to live without breathing.

No attribute of an object is an entity; neither is it a component part of that with which it is connected. The weight of water is not water; the motion of a watch is not a watch; the soul of a man is not a man. In these cases, "weight," "motion," and "soul," are only attributes of the bodies. When we speak of the soul of a man, we mean either his life, or a state of feeling; and either of these are immaterial properties, which exist no longer than his personal organism. When we say man is a soul, then the word soul stands for man as a personal entity. This is a common use of the word in the Scriptures.

No property, or attribute, is organized, and, therefore, cannot be an entity. No entity can ever become a property. No collection of properties can make a personal entity; hence the mind, which is a collection of mental properties, such as memory, love, hatred, reason, desire, etc., resulting from the action of a material organ, can never make an entity; or a personal, intellectual, moral agent. No attribute has an independent, conscious existence.

RECEIVED.—"Earnest Christian," "Advent Christian Quarterly," "Our Young Folks," "Arthur's Home Magazine," "Children's Hour," Peters' "Musical Monthly," etc., etc.

☞ The promises in the Bible are not made to one act, but to the continued habit of prayer. It evinces more depravity not to repent of a sin, than it does to commit it at first. A good man may be hurried away by temptation to commit a sin, but he will invariably repent of it afterward. To deny, as Peter did, is bad; but not to weep bitterly, as he did, when we have denied, is worse.

CALIFORNIA MEETINGS.

Our meetings in San Francisco are now (Jan. 10th) most deeply interesting. A very great interest is awakened, and new ones are starting every day. We have meetings every afternoon and evening. The people are astonished at what the Lord is doing.

The following are the reports in the Alta California of the meetings for the last two evenings. The Alta occupies a very high standing in California. When speaking of the meeting Sabbath evening, the reporter of the Alta says:

Every foot of sitting and standing room, both on the floor and in the gallery of the Minna-street church, was occupied last night, and hundreds of persons who came to hear the preacher were unable to obtain admission. The channel railing and the pulpit steps were appropriated by the audience, and even the platform itself was so far occupied that the speaker had barely sufficient space in which to move from the centre of the desk to the wall on which the prophetic chart was suspended. An acquaintance and reliable gentleman remarked to our reporter that he remembered when Elder Grant commenced preaching in Montreal, Canada, to an audience of less than fifty persons. At the close of his mission he held discussions and revival meetings in the largest hall in the city, capable of holding fully four thousand persons, which was densely crowded.

The Elder delivered the last of his first series of discourses on Bible prophecy. He briefly recapitulated the interpretations more fully presented in preceding lectures; declaring that the golden head of the image seen in the dream of the King of Babylon, which Daniel explained symbolized the Babylonish Kingdom: that the breast and arms of silver represented the Medo-Persian Kingdom; that the belly and thighs of brass represented the Kingdom of Greece; and that the legs of iron and clay, represented to demonstrate that the four beasts described in the seventh chapter of Daniel also represented the four great Kingdoms or Powers symbolized by the image of gold and silver and brass and iron and clay. He then proceeded to connect John's Revelation and prophecies of Daniel. This he did by showing the identity of description respecting the little horn that grew upon the head of the fourth beast, and the seven-headed dragon and the seven-headed beast seen and spoken of by John. The main topic of the lecture was the Scarlet Woman whom John saw sitting upon a beast having seven heads and ten horns. This woman, the Elder contended, represented the ecclesiastical power of Rome. He declared and argued that the bloody dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, represented the Roman power in Pagan times. He stated that Pagan Rome put to death over three millions of Christians. He argued that, according to the 17th and 18th verses of the 17th chapter of the Revelation, the woman represented the ecclesiastical power in the seven-hilled city of Rome. Referring to the intervening verses he argued a literal fulfillment in the division of Italy into ten kingdoms. In the symbolic imagery of the Bible, a beast always signified a civil power, while a church was frequently represented by a woman. To prove this, the Elder quoted several passages of Scripture. The churches of Samaria and Jerusalem were both represented by two women—in the prophecy of Ezeckiel. A pure church was represented by a virgin. Paul's declaration of espousal was quoted. Christ declared himself the Bridegroom; the church, the bride. Italy was divided into exactly ten kingdoms or provinces after Austria was driven out of Italy by Napoleon III. These were represented, the Elder contended, by the ten horns spoken of in the sixteenth verse of the book and chapter above named. They were to hate the woman clothed in scarlet, and were to make her desolate and naked. The Elder then recited and dwelt upon recent events in history, which he believed corresponded with prophecy in Rev. 52. Daniel said that the horn that grew up in place of the three horns plucked from the head of the beast representing the fourth Kingdom spake "great things." The Elder referred to the decree of Papal Infallibility as in his view supporting the assertion that the ecclesiastical power of Rome was meant by that horn. And, quoting the latter part of the seventh verse of the 18th chapter of John's Revelation, he referred to the exultation at Rome on the announcement of the dogma. He spoke of and gave some details concerning the riches of the Church of Rome up to the time when her temporal power was taken away altogether by Victor Emmanuel. Her great wealth, he argued, made her correspondence to prophecy still more plain and indisputable. His conclusion was that after the temporal power of the Roman Church was absolutely and entirely taken away, the prophecy in regard to the ten kingdoms signified in Revelation. Chap. 22: 12, being first fulfilled, the "Marriage Supper of the Lamb" was near at hand. He quoted: "For true and just are his judgments, who hath judged the great harlot. . . . Let us be glad, and rejoice, and give glory to Him, for the marriage of the Lamb is come. . . . Blessed are they who are called to the marriage supper of the Lamb." The woman in scarlet is to be made desolate and naked and her flesh is to be eaten by the ten Kingdoms of her homestead that hate her. Then, according to Danial shall come "the end of the world;" then, according to John, shall come the first resurrection. We are now in the very last days of the world. So reasoned the Elder. He said that there was nothing in prophecy now remaining for fulfillment before the Kingdom of Christ should be set up on earth, except what further of "desolation" God purposed should be wrought in time against the woman described in the 17th chapter of the book of the Revelation.

The Elder announced that he should preach at the same place to-morrow evening; the subject being, "The signs of the times—as foretold in Scripture; indicative of the nearness of the Second Advent." Friday evening next he will deliver a discourse on the scarlet colored beast on which the woman is described as sitting; showing its prophetical significance. He also announced that he would this evening and next Wednesday and Thursday evenings, engage in discussion at Dashaway Hall on the nature of man;—whether he is by nature possessed of immortality, and whether the dead are conscious. Mr. H. J. Loveland will assume the affirmative. The discussion will commence precisely at seven o'clock and close at nine, and the speakers will occupy, alternately, twenty minutes. The admission will be free, but a collection will be taken up to defray the expense consequent upon the holding of the debate in a public hall.

At the close of the preaching and announcements, members of the congregation were invited to remain after the benediction, and join in a conference and prayer meeting. The pastor of the church, Rev. Mr. Bailey, stated that a revival had begun during the week; that many had risen for prayers, at the social meetings that had been held, and of these some had found peace in believing. He had invited Elder Grant to preach in the church at two o'clock Monday (this) afternoon, and had obtained his agreement to do so.

Last evening, we were obliged to move to Dashaway Hall, to accommodate the crowd. The Alta California reporter says this morning, Jan. 10th:—

Dashaway Hall was densely crowded last evening, to hear the announced discussion between Elder Miles Grant, of Boston, and J. S. Loveland, of this city, on the subject named above. In the absence of Rev. O. P. Fitzgerald, who had agreed to act as Chairman, Mr. A. L. Fitzgerald was called upon and consented to preside. It was announced that the speakers would occupy twenty minutes alternately, and the audience were requested to refrain from demonstrations of applause. Elder Grant offered a prayer.

The discussion was opened in the affirmative by Mr. Loveland. He congratulated himself on occupying the affirmative of the question, as in such a position he recognised in the audience before him not merely a mass of mortal humanity, whose entire existence or death was snuffed out like a candle, but intelligence that would live forever. He presented the proposition that man was a composite unity—composed of a soul or spirit and a material, physical body. His first proof was drawn from human language. The literature of all languages furnishes words expressing the idea of a soul and body, constituting the man. Science recognizes the visible and invisible: and it talks of matter and force. It recognizes a force and principle and life as inherent somewhere, which is in itself distinct from inert matter, which cannot move itself. It is invisible. All potential agents are invisible. They are in the dead substances which they move. In its classification into species, genus, orders, etc., it recognises a principle—an invisible principle or force, which is the basis of the classification. Religion also recognizes this duplexity in humanity as a composite unit. And, as the Jewish and Christian Religions were typical of all others, he would refer to them on this point.

"In Genesis 2: 7, would be found the statement that man was formed from the dust of the earth, and that God breathed into his nostrils the breath of life. Given in common genuine English form, it would read that God breathed into Adam a living spirit. In the first chapter this man—or humanity—is said to have been created in the image or likeness of Deity. Does this "image," or likeness, have reference to the physical, or to the invisible, spiritual, soul part of man? Does it include his intellectual and moral nature? He asked his opponent to bear this in mind: Does the declaration that man was made in God's image, mean a physical or spiritual likeness, or both? God is said to be a spirit, in John 4: 24. From this, it is warrantable to assume that it was a spiritual part of man that was created in his image. If otherwise, the inference must be that Deity is a physical being. In Genesis 35: 18, Rachel's soul is described as "departing." Mr. Loveland proceeded to quote a large number of texts in support of his position. Among them, we note Psalms, xlix. 8: xxvi. 9; lxvi. 9; Micah, vi. 7; Matthew, x. 23; 1 Thessalonians, v. 23; Job, xxxii. 8; Luke, xxiv. 37–9.

Elder Grant read the verse: "God formed man out of the dust of the earth." If an entity was breathed into him, then there were two personalities. Then he could not be a composite unit. He believed man really was a composite unit; but argued that Mr. Loveland's theory was inconsistent with such a belief. If man has in him a soul which is a conscious entity after death, was it a conscious entity before he came into the world? To the statement that matter could not move itself, the elder made reply: Suppose a watch or music-box is wound up, by what is it moved until it runs down? The Elder argued that God the Father had a personality, occupied a local habitation and a place; was omniscient and omnipresent by his Holy Spirit. He showed that the same words, in the original, that were translated "breath of lives," in Genesis 1: 7, were used when speaking of the animal creation. The real question was whether it was really man who was made out of the dust of the earth, or whether there was a house made out of the dust in which the man lived. The words in Genesis rendered "living soul" (nephesh chaiyah) were first applied in Genesis as follows: "And God said, Let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creatures that hath life (nephesh chaiyah.) The margin read "living soul." So all the animals in the water are "living souls." The same words were applied to beasts in Gen. 7: 22. The simple idea was that this breath of life was common to all living creatures, and hence, was properly called "the breath of lives." What is man? inquired the Elder. He answered: A living man is an organised being, made out "of the dust of the ground," having the breath of life." A dead man is the same being without the breath of life. The Scriptures showed that it was no more proper to call man a "living soul" than any other creature. He laid down and argued the proposition that that which is immaterial cannot exist independent of material organism, unless we except "nothing." Attraction, music, love, were immaterial; but they had no existence independent of a material organization. The Elder quoted from Herodotus to prove that the dogma of the immortality of the soul was derived from the Egyptians—as follows: "The Egyptians say that Ceres and Bacchus hold the chief sway of the infernal regions: and the Egyptians, also, were the first who asserted the doctrine that the soul of man is immortal."

The doctrine of a conscious entity in man, immortal, never dying, was the foundation for Bodhism, Brahminism, Purgatory, Spiritualism, the eternal torment of the impenitent wicked in hell, and other monstrous doctrines. Martin Luther stigmatized the doctrine as one of "the dung-hill decretals of the Pope." Kitto, in his Cyclopædia of Biblical literature renders Genesis 2: 7, as follows: "And Jehovah God formed the man dust from the ground, and blew into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living animal;" and remarks on the passage, "We should be acting unfaithfully if we were to affirm that an immortal spirit is contained or implied in this passage." Doctor Clarke says when commenting on Genesis 1, 24: "Nephesh chaiyah (living soul) is a general term to express all creatures endued with animal life, in any of its infinitely varied gradations." McCulluch, in his celebrated work on the "Credibility of the Scriptures," says that there is no word in the Hebrew language that signifies either soul or spirit, in the technical sense in which we use the terms, as implying something distinct from the body." The Elder, in his first and subsequent speeches, quoted a large number of texts, and claimed that from them directly, or by comparing the one with the other, he proved that "the soul" nowhere represents in the Bible a conscious part of man, existing as such when the physical organism is sleeping in death. He contended that the popular theology of the day, on this point, is sustained neither by facts, true philosophy, common sense, nor the Bible.

In following remarks, Mr. Loveland, in a very able manner, supported the current theological belief.

The audience paid the most profound attention throughout the discussion.

☞ I shall never forget the feelings I had once when climbing one of earth's great pyramids in Egypt. When half way up, my strength failing, I feared I should never be able to ascend to the summit or get back again, and I well remember the help given, even by Arab hands, to draw me on further, and the step I could not quite make myself, because too great for my wearied frame. The little help given me—sometimes more and sometimes less—enabled me to go up, step by step, step by step, until at last I reached the summit, and breathed the pure air, and had a grand lookout from that lofty eminence. And so in life's journey, we are climbing, we are ascending. We are feeble. Every one of us, now and then, needs a little help, and if we have risen a step higher than some other one, let us from that eminence reach down for the brother's or the sister's hand, and help another to stand beside us; and thus, joined hand in hand, we shall go on conquering, step by step, until the glorious eminence shall be gained.—Bishop Simpson.

"TALKS ABOUT PEOPLE'S STOMACHS,"

Is the title of a new work just issued by Dr. Dio Lewis, of Boston.

"Like all of his works, it is brimful of common sense. We do not know of another writer on matters pertaining to health, who says so many good things as Dr. Lewis."—Crisis of Dec. 7th.

"HEALTH BY GOOD LIVING."

A VALUABLE WORK, BY W. W. HALL, M. D.

These two works are for sale at this office, and will be sent by mail, on receipt of publisher's price. $1.50 each. AD'T.

JUST PUBLISHED.

By the Advent Christian Publication Society, a new Tract, entitled, "The Judgment Impending: Prophecy and Chronology converging to one Grand Culmination." By Bro. L. T. Cunningham. 52 pp. Price, 8 cents per copy. Postage, 2 cts. 75 cts. per dozen. $5.00 per one hundred. AD'T.

NOW READY.

The Report of the Eleventh Annual Meeting of the Advent Christian Association, held at Chapin's Grove, Springfield, Mass., Aug. 23d, 24th, 1870; together with the Constitutions and By-Laws of the Advent Christian Association, and the Advent Christian Publication Society. Also a Catalogue of Publications, to which is added our recent Tract, "TIME'S FAREWELL."

The whole making a pamphlet of forty-eight pages. Our friends who have not received a copy, can be supplied on application to our office, or by addressing by mail; in which case, they may, if they please, enclose a two cent stamp to pay the postage. AD'T.

For the World's Crisis.

BOOK NOTICE.

"SYNCHRONOLOGY OF ANCIENT AND MODERN HISTORY." By S. Hawes.

This is a book which all ministers, historians, editors, writers, and literary men, will have when they can obtain it. It gives "the principal events in Sacred and Profane History, from the creation of man to the present time," with the dates of their occurrence, from what is believed the most reliable evidences. It supplies a place in the department of history not before filled. Whatever king, patriarch, governor, ruler, prophet, priest, pope, race, revolution, war, battle, or chief event in church or state, is found in books, is here packed in one book, with their dates. It contains about 3000 names of chief actors in the world's history, and an indefinite number of great events, with their times. When you see the book you will wish to possess it and obtain it. It is to be regretted that the author follows the exploded chronology of Archbishop Usher in the work, yet as that is the generally received standard, the book is not susceptible of the criticism it would be subjected to if the later and better chronology had been adopted.

The author shows wonderful reverence for infant geology, in a single remark. Here it is:—"It must be observed that by creation of the world, nothing more can be understood now than the introduction of the human race into it; the science of geology having demonstrated that it is utterly impossible to assign a date to its creation." But this does not harm the book. Price, $2.50.

I. C. WELLCOME.

The above work has passed into new publishers' hands, and the revised and improved edition is for sale at this office, and will be sent by mail, postpaid, on the reception of published price—$2.50.

This work is on our premium list. See first column on this page. AD'T.

WILL THE HEATHEN BE SAVED?

There is no escape from the conclusion that if the heathen were in a salvable state before the gospel was introduced into their midst, that instead of proving a blessing to them, it has proved a great detriment; for the majority of them reject it, and thereby deprive themselves of salvation—a result they would not have been exposed to had it not have been for introducing the gospel among them, from this premise. While it is true that those who are acquainted with the Divine law "shall be judged by the law . . . in the day when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ" (Rom. 2: 12, 16), it is also true that in the absence of a knowledge of the Divine law, they were "a law unto themselves, . . . their conscience also bearing witness, and their thoughts the mean while accusing or else excusing one another" (Rom. 2: 14, 15); and the only chance we can see for salvation on this principle, is for them to retain their infantile standing, never transgressing even the imperfect law of conscience; but how many would thus pass the test, it is hard to tell—probably not many—but this is certain, they had no true sense of pardon after having transgressed the only law that they had any knowledge of; hence, it is affirmed: "As many as have sinned without law, shall also perish without law" (Rom. 2: 12), which principle would doubtless debar the masses, at least, from entering the kingdom; so the gospel is a blessing, offering pardon. W. S.

SUPERIORITY OF THE ANIMAL ORGANISM.

It would be a difficult task to find a class of men who would seriously set up the claim that the human organism is inferior to the organism of the animal creation, and yet popular theology thus makes man inferior to the beast, when pressed from premise to conclusion; for it attributes all the intellect possessed by man, not to the physical man, but to an internal entity—a personality existing within, independent of the human organism—thus entirely depriving the physical organism of intellect, making it only the house of the thinker, and not the thinker itself; while at the same time it is admitted that, although animals do not possess internal entities to think for them, they exercise will, caution, fear, love, and hatred, which cannot exist independent of a degree of intellect. From this premise, it follows that if all these proofs of intellect exist in the animal organism, without an internal entity to originate them, or to do the thinking, and if none of these proofs of intellect exist in the human organism independent of an internal entity to originate them, the animal organism is made superior to man's, if being an organism that can think for itself, while man's organism is totally dependent on an internal entity to do all its thinking. If the premise is good, the conclusion is unavoidable. But if the animal organism produces an inferior degree of intellect without the aid of an inward entity, and if man's organism is really superior to that of animals, why may it not produce a greater quantity and better quality of intellect without an inward entity to originate it? Why will not thinking men look at this matter in the light of reason? W. S.

"LAND OF THE ENEMY."

That death is an "enemy," and that the children slaughtered under Herod's reign are reposing in the "land of the enemy," there is no reason to doubt; but do adults, at death, also go to the "land of the enemy"? Why not? When man receives the pardon for sin, he occupies in the mind of God the very place he did before he ever sinned—a sinless state; for conversion does not place man beyond the power of temptation, nor remove from this organism those propensities that may be developed to his detriment unless he makes the required exertion to keep his body under; and a sinless man, as really as a sinless child, falls under the cold hand of the enemy, and why not enter the same land? Indeed, the enemy has but one land for the dead, and that is a "land of darkness, as darkness itself"—the abode of all the dead, regardless of character; but while some there "sleep in Jesus," others only sleep in Adam; and "if we believe that Jesus died and rose again [to an immortal state], even so them also that sleep in Jesus will God bring with him" (with Christ), just as he "brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus Christ." Heb. 14: 20. "They shall come again from the land of the enemy," saints as well as children. W. S

For the World's Crisis.

UNION.

The principles of the gospel show the children of faith one, because baptized by the one Spirit, into the one body. This is well-pleasing to Jesus, as seen by his praying "that they all might be one, as he and the Father are one." Now this oneness looks well in theory, but much more blessed to see its practical working.

In union there is strength. A body of believers with one mind and one will, completely united in effort, with determination, can but be strong, be they few or many. On the other hand, where there is alienation of interest, each striving to have his own way, nothing need be expected but anarchy and distraction. So the apostle identifies this wicked work by saying—"Mark those that cause divisions among you, contrary to the doctrine ye have learned, and avoid them." This refers to a division in Christ's body, or in the true church.

All can see how very careful and jealous for the interest and harmony of the body we should be, that the world may know that this body is the result of a divine organism. Thus when you see christians separating and setting up a meeting because of difference of opinion, or of some local difficulty, or desirous to have things their way; if not, will not be subject to the body, but will go their own way contrary to the golden rule, and regardless of consequences,—this class, individually and collectively, are to be marked, and their course disapproved, for the simple reason that they are very evidently the ones Paul had his eye upon; and if he were here he would mark them.

Jesus says, "Blessed are the peacemakers; for they shall be called the children of God." They that contend for the faith seek for the peace of the body, and strive for the unity of the Spirit, and do all they can to consolidate and build up, by the vitality of the gospel, which has power to bind together all the living branches of the true vine,—they must be the ones that will hear it said, "Well done!"

Then, brethren, let it be our untiring labor to keep ourselves full of love to God and the brethren, and when anything comes along that does not suit us, or any are found in fault, let it be our first work to "restore in the spirit of meekness, considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted."

The old adversary seeks division and distraction among us, and if he can get our help he is pleased, and gains a double victory. So let us in these perilous times give earnest "heed to ourselves and the flock of God, over whom the Holy Ghost hath made us overseers," and do all we can by kindness and the prayer of faith for the unity of the church, the strengthening of the weak, the correcting of the wrong, the forgiving of one another, and love for our enemies. The Lord fill us with this love, so we may love one another with pure hearts fervently. Let love prompt every act of life, and joy will be ours.

L. BOUTELL.

For the World's Crisis.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

The Conn. A. C. Quarterly Conference met according to appointment at Yalesville, Ct., Jan. 5th. President in the chair. Prayer by Bro. Rockwell. Minutes of the last conference read and approved. There was a good delegation from the various churches, whose reports were heart-cheering. They spoke of the work of God being revived in the various churches they represented. Sinners had been converted and backsliders reclaimed, and some added to the church, such as we hope will be saved. Some of the churches are about to build them chapels.

The ministers gave a good report of their labors for the salvation of precious souls. They felt unwearied in their work in presenting to the world the great truth which distinguishes us a peculiar people; the near coming of our Lord and the judgment of the great day pressed with solemn weight upon their hearts.

The church in Yalesville was greatly strengthened. They felt like taking hold of the work of God with more zeal and courage. A debt of five hundred dollars on their chapel was nearly all raised, and in a short time the debt will be canceled and the chapel free. It was good to see what Bible benevolence would do for people.

This was one of our best conferences. We separated in harmony and love, to meet again at the call of the Pres. and Sec.

B. HITCHCOCK, Sec.

SR. C. B. TURNER.—Our Savior said, "The poor ye have always with you, and when ye will, ye may do them good." Mark 14: 7. Let us not forget our beloved Sister Turner in this time of need, but respond at once to her present necessities, and God will bless the act. "Whoso hath this world's good, and seeth his brother [or sister] have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion, . . . how dwelleth the love of God in him?" 1 John 3: 17. "Let us not love in word, neither in tongue, but in deed and in truth."

A. H. BROWN.

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 24th, 1870, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

WM. B. HERRON, Sec'y Adv. Chr. Pub. Soc'y.

Remittances should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass., or they may be enclosed with remittances to the Crisis office.

Donations for the Tract Fund.

Previous acknowledgments	$185.73
J. F. B.	30.00
S. Andrews	2.50
S. E. Teeple	1.25
Jane Glosson	.50

POOR FUND.

(To send the Crisis to the Poor.)

Previous acknowledgments	$21.73
J. F. B.	10.00
S. M. W. M.	.50

YOUNG PILGRIM FUND.

Previous acknowledgments	$5.08
J. F. B.	10.00
Mrs. E. S. Barber	2.00

AMER. ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

Donations are earnestly solicited, to enable this Society to send out missionaries, and other means, into the Southern States, and elsewhere, as the Lord may open the door, to proclaim "the glad tidings of the kingdom at hand"; and should be sent, as also payments of pledges made, to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, P. O. Drawer 202, Boston, Mass., who will acknowledge the same in the columns of the Crisis.

Previous acknowledgments	$643.69
Lucinda Jones	1.00
"H. D."	5.00
A Sister in Philadelphia (for Halls)	50.00
Amos French "	20.00
" " (Tracts)	5.00
Chas. S. Hall "	6.00
"An Unworthy Servant"	.50
J. Porter	10.00
J. F. B	50.00
Z. J. Seymour	1.35
H. Bailey	10.00
Isaac Glossen	.50
Divine Pratt	2.00
E. Latham	2.00
S. H. Shippee and Wife	4.00
A Friend	2.00
J. Couch	10.00

For the World's Crisis.

THE ADVENT MISSION.

Since I was given the great privilege to understand the great and grand truth of man's entire mortality, and the necessity of the Lord's return on our earth to give immortality to all his chosen children, and thereby conceiving something of the glorious plan of the creation, the fall and redemption of man, I have felt and understood the necessity of the Mission work. By looking around, meditating and reflecting upon the state of the church and the world, I can appreciate the love and mercy of being one of those who among scorn and reviling shall be accounted worthy to proclaim the last grand and glorious truth of our Savior's speedy coming to reward his saints with life eternal. Now if this is indeed so, what is our duty? what ought we to do? The answer is short: spread this truth everywhere.

The next question is, How is this to be done? I think there are two answers to this question: by the living word, and by tracts. I have often with admiration read the noble sacrifice that some of our brethren have made for the spread of our great cause. But let me say another thing, and please bear with me, for it is the burden of my heart. I have often wondered the sacrifice for the foreign Mission was so small. It seems to me, almost, that the church or the Mission Board had no other fellow beings but those who speak the English language. There may be some one that will say, "If we only had some able and competent man among the foreigners, we would do more." But, friend, do you need much ability and competence to go around and spread tracts, and warn sinners, and to tell of the love of Jesus? No! but to do that you need very much of God's grace within, and without this means all our preaching (it may be as able and competent as it may) will not avail much. This is my sad experience both here and elsewhere. How often we charge a minister with incompetence, inability, and lack of executive powers, when we do not meet with such successes as others, without considering the many disadvantages he may be subject to.

Now, dear brethren and sisters of the Advent church, I once more lay our case before you, and make the last appeal to you, if this is in vain. We are two nations in America who speak the same language. Here in Chicago alone are about forty-five thousand of them, and we have not one single tract to spread among them. Every preacher among them is working against us with all their might, and warning the people from going to listen, as eternal damnation is a sure consequence if they do. Now bear in mind that most of our people are brought up in the National church, believing just as much what their ministers say as the Roman Catholics do, and more so.

And now, dear friends, in conclusion, I ask you to take us into consideration. Are we not your brethren, although we are not Americans? I believe I can say, that I am doing all in my power every day to spread the good news of the soon coming Jesus, but I feel that I shall soon have to give it up, if nothing can be done to help us onward. Dear brethren and sisters, help to spread the truth among your Scandinavian brethren, that you may meet many of them around the throne, is the earnest prayer of your unworthy brother in Christ,

O. BENDIXON.

14 Hunt St., Chicago, Ill.

P. S.—Please receive our humblest thanks, dear saints, as we so kindly remembered us. May the Lord abundantly recompense you both in this life and in the one to come.

O. B.

From Bro. J. Porter.

BRO. GRANT:—With deep interest I have read of your arrival in California. You know that I am growing old, and that for the last twenty years all the fingers that I own, are the last three upon the right hand, and can have no more until the Lord comes. I will go hungry to bed without supper rather than that the full tale of God's last [illegible] should not be told to the last generation of this dispensation. And I will be one of twenty-eight who shall furnish you with a Hall for one month, at ten dollars a night.

I have not forgotten, brethren, the Elder's campaign in Montreal, and the heavy draft upon the [illegible].

J. PORTER.

Danville, P. Q., Jan. 16th, 1871.

☞ Nothing so truly shows a spiritual man as the manner of his dealing with another man's sin. The more grace, the more sympathy for the erring.

Correspondence.

From Bro. A. French.

DEAR BRO. :—In reading over Bro. Grant's communications from California, it reminds me of scenes of former days. In 1850 I walked the streets of the young city, San Francisco, and wrapped myself in my blanket, and retired upon a pile of boards for the night, where the great city Sacramento now stands. Bro. Grant says :—

"The Lord has prepared and opened the way for us in this city in a signal manner. We have already been invited into six churches, . . . but we are satisfied we could do better for the cause we love so dearly, if we had an independent place, where we could preach the whole truth without any restraint. The only thing that prevents this is the expense of the hall. . . . As we have before stated, what we most need is the means to hire a respectable hall, for a month or more, until the work shall be well started, then we think the means would be provided by those interested. . . For ten dollars [a night] we could get a pretty good hall, that would be quite satisfactory."

I fully concur in the above statement of Bro. G. Now, brethren, let us raise three hundred dollars at once to hire a hall for a month, that the work may go on unhindered. Enclosed please find twenty dollars towards the three hundred to hire a hall.

In this same Crisis, Jan. 11th, is a letter from San Francisco, by "C.," in which the writer says :—"There should be a regularly established agency for the Crisis and for Second Advent publications in this city. . . . I think subscriptions could be obtained and books sold here during the Elder's stay, . . . sufficient to pay all the Mission expense on the coast for the year. And such an agency should be at a book or periodical store, and not at the private dwelling-place of a brother. But tracts are needed now to meet inquirers' demands. . . . And the Elder should be supplied with a large invoice at his rooms. . . . When the regular prophecy-series is commenced, he will have immense audiences. An abundant supply of tracts and papers will contribute greatly to perfect the work."

So it seems to me. Inclosed you will find five dollars for the Tract fund.

Truly yours, A. FRENCH.

Lowell, Mass.

From Sr. S. Condell.

BRO. GRANT :—I saw in the Crisis when you left for the far-off regions. Like the fishermen of Galilee, you left all to follow Christ. Your reward like theirs is sure, at the resurrection of the just. You are gone to publish the great salvation offered freely to the perishing sons and daughters of Adam, as also striving in the strength of the Lord to pull down the strong holds of sin and Satan in that great metropolis. How great is your work. You may say, like the apostle—"Who is sufficient for these things?" "Who is weak and I am not weak?" In the midst of all discouragements, dear brother, you have in store the exceeding great and precious promises to comfort you at all times, so that your peace may flow as a river, as you say it does.

I have read with much pleasure a most interesting account of your travels towards California; hope to hear a good deal more before long. We may hope to hear, as of old, sinners coming and crying out, "What shall we do?" O that your hands may be strengthened and your arms made strong through the mighty God of Jacob, as saith the prophet; and when the Chief Shepherd shall appear, he will give you a crown of life, and unto all who love his appearing. May the Lord, whose you are, and whom you serve, keep you from all evil. Yours in the Lord,

SARAH CONDELL.

P. S.—By urgent request, we in Ventnor have been highly favored by a visit of ten days from our worthy brother, Elder J. Porter. He came in the fulness of the gospel of Christ. He visited from house to house, instructing us in the things pertaining to the kingdom of God, and preached almost every evening during his stay. It was a feast long to be remembered. S. C.

Extracts from Letters.

BRO. D. D. REED writes :—"In my last communication I was at Napa City. Had called on the Methodist and Baptist ministers, in order to get into their church, if possible. Had some conversation with the Baptist. He inquired what persuasion I was of? I answered—Second Advent. He then said I could not preach in his house. I replied he could not stop or prevent this truth being preached, no more than he could prevent powder exploding confined in a rock with fire attached to it. It would break out somewhere. I then secured the Court House hall for Sunday afternoon, and advertised through the papers that I would preach on the kingdom of God and reign of Messiah. Scattered tracts at the close. A sister came to us at the close, saying she thanked God for the privilege of hearing the gospel once more, as she had not heard it before since she had been in this country.

I attended four meetings at the African church, and we had a [illegible] shout, mingled with songs and tears. This was one of our old-fashioned times, such as we used to have forty or fifty years ago among the Methodists.

From there to Petaluma, thirty miles by stage and steamboat, through Sonoma Valley, one of the richest grape-growing vallies in the State. One man had fourteen hundred acres of vineyards, and another eighty tons of grapes ungathered, Dec. 1st. In Petaluma met a colored man, who invited me to preach in their chapel. Had a good free time there. At the close a white brother arose, and said what he had heard was Bible truth, and he had a home for all such preachers. We went with him, and found truly it was the house of Obed-edom, where the blessing of God rested forevermore. He with a few others owned a small chapel, where meetings had formerly been held. We spoke three times in it the following Sunday, and the Lord blest greatly. As one sister said—'It rained salvation all day.' Some embraced the truth, and were made exceeding happy in the Lord."

BRO. J. A. CLEVELAND writes :—"We were at North Troy last week, and commenced a series of meetings in the Baptist house, Dec. 29th, and continued evenings through the week and over the following Sabbath. The meetings from their commencement increased in interest. Some were reclaimed, others rose for prayers. The old pilgrims were very much comforted and blessed, and all felt like starting anew with the year for the kingdom. There is quite a large number of strong brethren in Troy, but they are scattered.

As we have commenced a new year, let us make our mark, and do something to benefit the perishing around us. If there ever was a time when those who have the light on the soon coming of the Savior should work, it is now. Stay up the hands of the servants of the Lord who come to you. Do we believe Jesus is soon coming? If so, let us act it out. Work with a will, and then stand still and see the salvation of the Lord. Laborers are few. The work we are about is a great one, and but a little time to do it in. We shall all want a place in the kingdom, but how can we expect to get it, if we are ever excusing ourselves from labor?

Jesus is soon coming to take his people home. I am glad we have got most through. We can all do something. If we cannot all preach, we can scatter tracts, and help those who can preach. We can certainly do something."

SR. E. L. STREETER writes :—"I thank my blessed Savior for this privilege of penning a few lines for our much beloved paper, the Crisis. It does my heart good every week to read such excellent pieces from those of 'like precious faith.' I feel that I am one of 'Father's family,' and am trying to live near to the Savior, and follow in his footsteps. I believe that Jesus is soon coming, to take his waiting ones home; and I long to hear Jesus say—

> 'Child, your Father calls,
> Come home!'

In this world we meet with persecution, and are tried and tempted, but Jesus never allows us to be tempted or tried above what we are able to bear. I am perfectly willing to suffer any thing for Christ's sake, and am determined to be a christian, and believe the word of God, any way, let it cost what it will. I care not what the world may say about me, for I know Jesus is my loving Savior, and that soon he is coming, and then all our trials will have an end."

BRO. J. CARR writes :—"Brn. and Srs. :—Accept my sincere thanks for the pecuniary aid which you have sent me in my time of trial; also for your kind words of sympathy, which have encouraged me to still trust in the Lord for all things. May we all live so near the good Shepherd, that we may always know and do his will here, and meet in his soon coming kingdom, where sickness and sorrow will never come."

BRO. A. OGSBURY writes :—"I am living near the crossing of the Central and Alton R. R. in the town of Normal, Ill., near the University. The place contains about three thousand inhabitants. It is connected with Bloomington by a 'dummy,' which runs three times an hour to and from Bloomington. Would be glad to have any traveling this way stop and see us. We remain as ever in hope of eternal life through the Son, at the appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ."

SR. M. E. STREETER writes :—"The Lord has been exceeding good to me, in sparing my life to the present time, for which I will praise his dear name. . . . I long for the time to come when all the faithful ones will meet to part no more. For I can say in the language of the poet—

> 'O, where shall rest be found,
> Rest for the weary soul?'

Who does not want to see Jesus, and be made like him? . . . By the grace of God I will try to be ready to meet my Lord in peace when he comes, and I would desire the prayers of all God's children. It is sweet to know that we are remembered at the throne of grace by those who love the same Jesus."

Married.

SMITH—LINCOLN—In Warwick, R. I., Jan. 10th, by Eld. B. Roberts, Mr. DANIEL B. SMITH, of Sandwich, Mass., and Miss EMMA JANE LINCOLN, of Warwick, R. I.

KENNISON—WALKER. In Fairfield, Grundy Co., Iowa, Dec. 25th, 1870, by Eld. C. O. Ramsey, Mr. CHARLES KENNISON and Miss AMERICA WALKER, both of Fairfield.

Obituaries.

ROBINSON. Died, August 25th, 1870, Edward B. Robinson, of Concord, N. H., aged thirty-seven years.

Bro. Robinson was employed as baggage master on the railroad from Concord to Lawrence and Boston, and died in the discharge of the duties of his station. His train had just left Lawrence for Boston, when, as he endeavored to move a heavy trunk by grasping the ends with his extended hands, his hands slipped, and falling backward, his head struck upon the corner of another trunk, inflicting a mortal contusion at the base of the brain. He did not speak or move. A gentleman came to his aid, but nothing could be done, and in a few moments life was extinct. Ten minutes before he was in vigorous health and unusually good spirits, and now he was dead. The shock to his family—a wife, son, and daughter, must be imagined. In one day their home was desolate. The Bethel church at Concord, of which he had been for years an acceptable member, and also the many friends to whom he had become endeared by many kindly acts, mourned for him with deep but not with hopeless sorrow. Bro. Robinson was a believer in the Lord Jesus Christ, and confessed him as his Lord and King; and we trust he sleeps in Jesus and rests in hope.

The occasion of his burial was improved by the writer in an address founded upon Eccl. 9: 12. The lessons of such an event should incline us to faithfulness and vigilance, to present obedience in all things, and a constant readiness to leave our work, and to ever have our account all ready to be sealed up to the judgment of the great day.

H. L. H.

WALTON. Died, at Seabrook, N. H., January 13th, 1871, Wm. Walton, aged thirty-two years.

He retired in apparent good health. During the night the family were aroused by some unusual sounds, and hastened to his room only to find him in the struggles of death. Upon the occasion of the funeral a large concourse of people were addressed by the writer from John 11: 24, 25.

C. H. SWEET.

TINDALL. Died, in Sodus, N. Y., Nov. 19th, 1870, Bro. Alonzo H. Tindall, in good hope of a resurrection unto eternal life, aged thirty-seven years.

This brother came to the knowledge of the blessed hope by the reading of the Bible, having never heard an Advent sermon. Services by the writer. Text, Job 14: 10.

B. P. STEVENS.

HARTFORD. Died, in Liberty, Me., Sr. Betsey Hartford, aged ninety years and nine months.

She left two brothers and one sister, the youngest over eighty years. She professed religion when about eighteen years old, and united with the Free-will Baptist church. Upwards of seventy years she lived in faith. Her hope was that Christ her life would appear, and she longed for the day. Funeral sermon from Matt. 22: 32.

N. F. NASON.

CHENEY. Died, in Bradford, Jan. 10th, Bro. Martin Cheney.

He rests until the last trump shall sound, when he will put on immortality.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

LONDON, Jan. 18. [Special to the New York Herald.] The ultra Reds declare their determination to use the invention against the Germans should they enter Paris. On the other hand, some of the shopkeepers rub their hands complacently and congratulate themselves on having articles that may tempt the German Princes when they enter the capital. Yet I firmly believe, nevertheless, that the resistance will be unequaled in the annals of war. The bombardment has enraged the population, and all are eager to go out and fight. Every man swears to have revenge, even if he has to wait a generation for its accomplishment. Peace is only looked upon as a means for resuscitating the army and country previous to invading Germany at a future day.

LONDON, Jan. 18. King William has issued the following proclamation at Versailles, on the occasion of his assumption of the Imperial crown. He says:

"In consequence of the appeal of the German Princes and free towns for us to restore the German Empire after a lapse of sixty years, we announce that we consider it our duty to Fatherland to accept the Imperial dignity. Henceforth we and our successors will bring to the title of Emperor of Germany the hope that God will vouchsafe a blissful future to Fatherland, and that under our auspices its ancient splendor may be restored. We partake of the dignity, conscious of our duty to preserve with German fidelity the rights of the Empire, and of its [illegible] to maintain peace, and to support and [illegible] the independence of Germany in the hope that the German people will reap in lasting peace within our boundaries the fruits of their bloody battles, and be safe against a renewal of French attacks. God grant that we and our successors may protect the Empire, not by warlike conquests, but by works of peace, freedom and civilization."

A Versailles dispatch states that King William has given up the idea of making a triumphal entry into Paris on its capitulation. He will content himself by strongly garrisoning the forts of the capital, provisioning them for two years. Orleans and other towns not in the territory to be annexed will be evacuated, the German troops withdrawing to Alsace and Lorraine, both to be strongly occupied, as also a strip serving as a line of communication with Paris. The surrender must be unconditional, but after its consummation arms will be given to the Garde Nationale, to be made answerable for order. The Corps Legislatif will be reassembled.

LONDON, Jan. 21. A dispatch from St. Quentin says the railway station was stormed by the 19th Prussian regiment, and that the town was afterwards occupied. Ten thousand French troops were taken prisoners, of whom 2000 had been wounded. Six guns were among the trophies of the victorious Germans.

Despatches of later date positively assert that the French army was utterly defeated, the route being complete, and that Von Gouben is in hot pursuit of the French, who are retreating upon Amiens in a confused and demoralized condition.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—Despatches received in this city assert that on Thursday morning the forts defending Paris opened a vigorous cannonade on the German lines, under cover of which a large body of troops emerged from the city, and a severe engagement ensued, resulting in a complete repulse for the French, with great loss.

It has been finally settled that France will be represented at the conference, at the reassembling of the representatives on Tuesday. The completion of the representative at the conference gives great hope of a speedy termination of the war.

DOMESTIC.

SUBTERRANEOUS FIRES.—The late earthquakes call attention to facts, touching fire in the coal mines. When rarely ignited, and all communication with the external air is not entirely cut off (and some imperceptible fissures are quite sufficient to prevent this,) then the devouring element pursues its course without interruption.

Near Mauch Chunk, Penn., is a burning coal mine, which has been on fire for many years. At Brule, near St. Etienne, there is a coal mine which has been on fire from time immemorial. Other burning coal mines are cited in France, for example, those of Decazeville, in Aveyron, and of Commentry, in the Department of Alier.

In the carboniferous basins of the Saarbruck and Silesia, there are likewise coal mines which have been on fire for a long time. In Belgium, between Namur and Charleroi, at a place called Falisolle, the fire has been alight for many years.

In the environs of Dudley, England, there was formerly a coal mine on fire. The snow melted in the gardens as soon as it touched the ground. They gathered three crops a year. Even tropical plants were cultivated; and as in the island of Calypso, an eternal spring prevailed. In another, Staffordshire colliery, the firing of which dates years back, and which is called by the inhabitants "Burning Hill," it was noticed as at Dudley, that the snow melted on reaching the ground, and that the grass in the meadows was always green.—Facts about Fires.

ANOTHER PORK SCARE.——The Pottsdam, N. Y., Courier and Freeman says that on slaughtering a sow of 400 pounds, fattened by Mr. H. D. French of that town, a dark colored streak was noticed extending under the back bone through the loin, in the lard, which on close examination proved to contain dark brown worms, from three-eighths to nearly one inch in length, with heads about the size of a pin's head, with slim tapering bodies. Nothing of the kind was perceptible in the lean meat, but they were found in clean looking parts of the lard. The hog was purchased last spring from a drove of western pigs.

In Brief.

——Henry Ward Beecher has accepted $20,000 as his salary per year.——Watts composed 697 hymns, and Wesley 600.——The Pantheon at Rome, it is said, will be given by the Italian government for Protestant worship. This is the most ancient church in the Eternal city, and was dedicated in heathen days to Jupiter, the Avenger, and all gods. The pavement is said to rest on two hundred wagon loads of martyrs' bones, put there by order of Pope Boniface IV., in order to conquer the repugnance of the superstitious populace to entering it for christian worship. It has since been called the Church of Holy Mary and the Martyrs.——There are about 11,000 cigar factories in the United States.——It is said that the ostrich only drinks once in five days.——The number of siege guns of all calibres now in front of Paris is 1,500.——In one building in Berlin there are 600 American sewing machines, at work on clothing for the Prussian army.——Espionage is a special study of the Prussians. Their corps of spies is organized in the same way as their corps of artillery.——There are 3,642 languages spoken, and 1,000 different religions.——A plum tree in the garden belonging to Mrs. Richard Kelley, of Edinburgh, Ind., blossomed three times this season.——Out of forty-seven Sisters of Charity, attending in the small-pox hospital at Paris, eleven have died.——An adjournment of the Conference on the Eastern question until the 24th is confirmed.——The beautiful cathedral of St. Denis, near Paris, is destroyed by the artillery of the invaders in order to give the Parisians a foretaste of what they may expect if they do not surrender.——The first daily newspaper printed in Virginia was printed in 1780, and the subscription price was fifty dollars per annum.——Modern warfare—To open fire upon a city containing half a million women and children, without previous notice and without permitting them an opportunity to escape.——Of Webster's Speller, more than 50,000 copies have been sold. The present rate of production is 1,000,000 annually. Dr. Webster received one cent upon every copy.——The people of the United States pay one hundred and twenty-five million dollars yearly for physicians' services and for medicines. They spend a good deal more than that for liquors and other things to make them sick.——It is stated as a proof of the effects of the war upon Germany that of nearly thirteen hundred students who were attending the University of Munich last summer, there are at present only about six hundred.——A Scotchman's definition of metaphysics: "When the folks wha listen dinna ken the meaning o' what they hear, and when the mon who speaks dinna ken what he means his ain sel'—that's metafissicks.——All railroad tickets are good until used, the condition "good for this day only" being of no value, according to judicial decisions.——Rev. Washington Gladden of North Adams has accepted an offer to become the religious editor of the New York Independent.——On the memorable battle-fields of Wissembourg and Woerth there is little left to remind one of the fearful slaughters. A few houses, parts of the walls and gates, and the Chateau on the Geissenburg side, show signs of deadly strife, and a number of mounds which cover thousands of the fallen—all in heaps of so many hundred each—is all that remains.——The South Bend (Ind.) Union says: "We have in our office a lady compositor who cannot be excelled in the State for rapid 'composition' and 'clean proof.' Her name is Miss Augusta A. Miner, and her home is in Angola. She learned to set type in her father's office when only thirteen years of age, and a proof taken the other day of nine thousand ems, had but two typographical errors.——The Grand Trunk Railroad is to be laid with steel rails its entire length.——The Prussians have imposed a requisition of 40,000 francs upon the people of Yvetot and Havre as a punishment for the sympathy displayed by them for the French cause.——Large droves of oxen, intended for Paris, have passed Rheims, and are ready for the advance of Gen. Chanzy, who is receiving reinforcements.——The French have established a line of cruisers between Gibraltar and the English channel. Nine vessels have been appointed to the service, six of which are iron-clads.

Religious Items.

Just sixty-eight years ago, Mary Edwards started a female prayer meeting in a private house in Binghamton, N. Y., and continued regularly for fifty years, and in so doing founded the second largest society of Presbyterians now in the United States.——Rev. Albert Barnes said that for thirty-seven years he had never had a divided vote in the session of his church.——The superstitious ignorance of the Spanish population was well exhibited in Southwell, Italy, when the late auroral display was witnessed. The people took it as a sign of God's anger at the dethronement of the Pope, women ran about the streets saying ave marias and pater nostres, and a mob attacked the house of a Protestant evangelist.——The French have abrogated the Concordat with Rome, sundering another tie between the Papacy and civil power.——Rev. Mr. Knapp of the Baptist church in Madrid, Spain, is working very successfully there. He proposes soon to publish a semi-monthly paper.——Rev. A. B. Earle of Newton, the Evangelist, who has been absent several months, was reported at Wilmington, N. C., Dec. 30, preaching with great power and to united congregations of three thousand persons, with many conversions. He goes from city to city.——St. Paul's church in Springfield has voted against the use of alcoholic wine for sacramental purposes, and the unfermented juice of the grape is now used at the communion service.——Rev. Dr. Bent, of Baltimore, reports that when in Boston he went to church, where he "heard music that made him wonder how he got in without a ticket."

Notices.

Notice.

A protracted meeting will commence in Concord, N. H. (Centre St. Chapel,) February 5th, to continue through the week and over the following Sunday, and longer, if the Lord wills. Elders D. M. Leavitt, C. H. Fletcher, and others, will be present to preach the word, which is the power of God unto salvation to him that believeth. We cordially invite all who love the Lord and the salvation of the perishing to unite with us in this effort. Come, brethren, from the neighboring towns; come in and lend us a helping hand in this all-important work. In behalf of the church. URI BAKER.

Conference.

The second quarterly session of the N. H. Conference will be held, the Lord will, with the church at Hampton, N. H., commencing Thursday evening, Feb. 9th, to hold over the Sabbath. It is hoped that all who can, especially our preaching brethren, will come up to the feast, to labor for the Lord, and the salvation of the perishing. Let prayer be offered, that God may greatly bless.

T. W. PIPER,
A. W. SIBLEY, } Committee.
C. H. FLETCHER. }

Notice.

A protracted meeting will be held at East Rochester, N. H., commencing Sunday, Jan. 29th, and hold through the week, and over the following Sabbath. Elds. D. M. Leavitt, G. W. Brown, T W Piper, and others, will preach the word. We desire that the brethren who labor with the Lord will be present to add strength to the work.

For the church,
J. C. SHOREY.
JAS. QUIMBY.

Notice.

We will commence a series of meetings at So. Troy, Vt., Thursday, Feb. 9th, to hold evenings through the week, over the following Sabbath, and as much longer as the interest may demand. Come, brethren, to this meeting. Troy needs help. May God bless the effort.

J. A. CLEAVELAND.

Notice.

I will hold a meeting in West Ossipee, N. H., evenings, Jan. 20th, 27th, and 28th, and Sunday, Jan. 29th. We extend a cordial invitation to the working brethren to meet with us to help in the good work of saving dying souls.

E. S. MOULTON.

Notice.

There will be a quarterly meeting of the Iowa Christian Conference at Boylan's Grove, commencing Jan. 27th, 1871, at early candle light. All are cordially invited to come to this meeting. Come praying that the cause may be furthered on by your coming. May the Lord's blessing attend this meeting.

ALONZO RAYMOND, Clerk of Conf.

Conference.

There will be a Conference in Cushing, Me., to commence Thursday evening, Feb. 2nd, 1871, and hold over Sunday. A free invitation to all ministers and laymen to work for the good of the cause of Christ.

S. K. PARTRIDGE.
J. T. HEMENWAY.

Notice.

The brethren at Bonny Eagle, Me., having built them a chapel for the advancement of the gospel of the kingdom, desire worthy ministers to come among them, and labor for the promotion of the cause of Christ. Brethren can correspond with Bro. T. J. Rumery, Bonny Eagle, Maine. A stage for Bonny Eagle leaves Biddeford daily at 12 30. M. For the brethren, B. S. EMERY.

Notice.

The next quarterly meeting with the church at Wilmot Settlement, Broom Co., N. Y., will commence Thursday evening, Jan. 26th, and hold over the Sabbath following. J. W. TAYLOR.

Notice.

By the permission of the Lord, there will be a conference held at Carr's Corner, Dexter, Me., every third Saturday in each month, at two o'clock, and also meeting on Lord's day following. Preaching brethren coming this way are invited to lend a helping hand. A pilgrim's home may be found at John H. Brown's. O. G. TRUNDY.

Notice.

Putney's Hall, Sutton Mills, N. H. Meetings every Sabbath for the present. This is a new movement on the part of the Advent people of Sutton, and we think it is according to the will of the Lord. Brethren, pray for us.

A. CRESSEY, }
FRANK NELSON, } Committee.
SAM'L ROWELL, }

Notice.

There will be a meeting at my house in West Abington, Mass., every Sunday, at 10½ A. M. and 1½ P. M. All christians are invited.

J. J. DAMON.

☞ Brethren who wish to preach in Clinton, Mass., are requested to publish notice in Crisis.

German Tracts.

Bro. Reimer has a good supply. Send your orders to L. REIMER, 1006 Chesnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

☞ A short poem, "The Blissful Vision," may be had for 30 cts. per dozen, of the author, J. Albert Libby, West Poland, Me.

☞ To Preaching Brethren.

Those wishing to preach in	Correspond with
Westfield, Mass.	C. H. Phelps.
Lawrence, Mass.	Geo. Churchill, John T. Merrill, Ephraim Fish.
Worcester, Mass.	H. F. Collier, H. W. Buxton, or E. G. Higgins.
Savoy, Mass	Daniel Miller, or A. B. Bliss.
Wakefield, Mass.	G. B. Tyzer.
Charlton, Mass.	E. H. Allen, Oxford, Mass.
Worcester, Mass.	H. M. Blackmer, Willard M. Hall, or Willard G. Ruggles.
Portsmouth, N. H.	T. B. Wood, Box 1445.
Hampton, N. H.	Joseph A. Philbrook.
Manchester, N. H.	J. W. C. Pickering.
Dover, N. H.	John Vickery.
Loudon Ridge, N. H.	Daniel L. Moore, Wm. Batchelder, Edward Mudget.
Seabrook, N. H.	R. S. Johnson, of Hampton, N. H., or Chs. Barton, of Seabrook.
Chichester, N. H.	F. L. Knowles.
Goshen, N. H.	O. F. Cain.
Rye, N. H.	Moses O. Philbrick or Samuel Smart.
Pittsfield, N. H. (Bethel)	O. S. Emerson.
Stowe, Vt.	H. W. Sargent, or S. Whitney.
Portland, Me.	R. R. York, S. K. Dyer, D. F. Scamman.
Lewiston, Me.	Albert Burgess.
South Berwick (Great Works) Me.	Harrison Dow.
Kennebunk Depot, Me.	Rufus Duran.
Hollis Centre, Me.	W. S. Moulton, or S. G. Rumery.
Vernon, Vt.	J. O. Allen.
Bristol, Ct.	B. Hitchcock, Forestville, Ct.
West Gloucester, R. I.	Geo. A. Hawkins, Putnam, Ct.
New Milford, Ct.	Richard Hencon.
New Haven, Ct.	W. F. Carpenter, 73 State St.
Pleasant Valley, Ct.	Rossel O. White, New Hartford, Ct.
Meriden, Ct.	E. J. Whitehead, West Meriden, Conn., Box 4.
New Britain, Ct.	Chs. M. Burt.
Wrightville, Ct.	D. A. Grant, Torrington, Ct.
Newfield, Ct.	Wm. Ripley, Pleasant Valley, Ct.
New Milford, Ct.	J. Coggswell
Morris, Ct.	Joseph Curtis.
South Butler, N. Y.	B. C. Brown.
Rochester, N. Y.	J. R. Cooper, 4 Hickory St.
Hoosick, N. Y.	Geo. B. Keach, J. B. White, or Christopher Lawton, Hoosick Falls, N. Y.
Philadelphia, Pa.	Frank B. Davis, 1716 Markham st., or I. N. Wilfong, 135 No. 22nd St.

STAR OF HOPE MISSION, 14 LAURENS STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

Sunday morning, prayer and conference, six o'clock, Sunday School, two o'clock P. M. Love feast, four o'clock P. M. Preaching, seven o'clock P. M. Monday, (class meeting), seven o'clock P. M. Wednesday, (preaching), seven o'clock P. M. Friday, (prayer and conference), seven o'clock P. M. Come one, come all. A. K. SMITH, Principal.

NEW YORK CITY.

The Advent Church formerly meeting at Grand and Allen Streets, have removed to 405 Grand Street, one door above Clinton. Preaching every Sunday for the present. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening, at the house of J. K. Kellogg, 19 Orchard Street.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.

L. Boutell..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
M. Batchelor..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
T. M. Preble..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th

BOSTON, (Branch Chapel), 1735 Washington Street, corner of Madison Street.

Meetings at 10½ A. M., and 3 and 7½ P. M.

JOHN G. HOOK, Sunday, Jan. 29th, and onward every evening, except Saturday evening.

CHELSEA, MASS.

Granite Block, Hall No. 11, corner of Broadway and Fourth Streets. Entrance on Fourth Street. (Up two flights of stairs.)

H. Munger..........Sunday, Jan. 29th

CHARLESTOWN.

Preaching at Charlestown, (Evening Star Hall, No. 32 Main Street), every Lord's day.

J. S. White..........Sunday, Jan. 29th

EAST BOSTON, MASS.

(Second Advent Hall, 131 Meridian Street.)

Meetings every Sunday, at the usual hours, also prayer and conference meetings Wednesday and Friday evenings, at 7½ o'clock P. M.

John G. Hook..........Thursday evening, Jan. 26th and Thursday evening, Feb. 2d.
A. P. Moore..........Sunday, Feb. 5th

Salem, Mass..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
Pittsfield, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Hampton, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
C. GOODRICH.

Stoneham, Mass..........Wednesday evening, Jan. 25th
Cambridgeport, Mass..........Sunday evening, Jan. 29th
Stoneham, Mass..........Wednesday evening, Feb. 1st
JOHN G. HOOK.

Holden, Mass..........February 5th
Wakefield, Mass..........February 19th
J. S. WHITE.

New Bedford, Mass..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
GEO. A. BROWN.

Rye, N. H..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
Bro. Willey will probably be with me.
J. H. F. VARNEY.

East Acworth, N. H..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
C. H. FLETCHER.

Lynn, Mass..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
E. OWEN.

Rutland, Vt..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
North Springfield, Vt..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Bridgewater, Vt..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
West Fairlee, Vt..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
H. F. CARPENTER.

Keene, N. H..........Sundays, Jan. 29th and Feb. 5th
Vernon, Vt..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Chicopee Falls, Mass..........evenings, Feb. 16th and 17th
A. SIMPSON.

Hampton, N. H..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
WM. W. SUTHERLAND.

East Stoneham, Me..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
Turner, Me. (Cushing school-house) Friday evening, Feb. 3d, over the following Sunday, and longer if thought best.
J. T. JORDAN.

Bath, Me..........Sundays, March 5th and 19th
C. H. LEVERTON.

Holden, Mass..........Sabbath, Jan. 29th
Brimfield, Mass..........Sabbath, Feb. 5th
SAMUEL NICHOLS.

Brimfield, Mass..........Sabbath, Jan. 29th
Holden, Mass..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
DAMON NICHOLS.

Portland, Me. (Second Advent Hall) Sunday, Jan. 29th
B. S. EMERY.

Lee, N. H..........Sabbath, Jan. 29th
Exeter, N. H..........Sabbath, Feb. 5th
O. S. EMERSON.

Providence, R. I..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Rutland, Vt..........Sundays, Feb. 12th, 19th and 26th
L. BOUTELL.

North Troy, Vt..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
J. A. CLEAVELAND.

Friendship, Me..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
Surry Conference..........Feb. 2d to 5th
I. C. WELLCOME.

Westfield, Mass..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
Montgomery, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Keene, N. H..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
L. B. POTTER.

Piermont, N. H. (Clay meeting-house) Sun., Feb. 5th
West Plymouth, N. H. (Brick school-house, near Bro. Nelson's), Sunday, Feb. 12th.
A. H. CLARK.

Fort Edward, N. Y., evening, Jan. 27th, over Sunday, the 29th, and onward, as the Lord may direct. Others East wishing my labors will write me there.
B. P. STEVENS.

Northville, in the town of Newport, N. H., Sunday, Jan. 29th.
E. COLTON.

Roxbury, Ct. (as Bro. L. R. Teeple may arrange) Sunday, Jan. 29th.
J. L. WOOD.

Frankfort, Me..........seven o'clock, P. M., Jan. 27th and over the following Sabbath.
South Sebec (as brethren may arrange) seven o'clock P. M., and over the following Sabbath.
F. A. BAKER.

Waterbury, Ct..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
A. ELLIOTT.

Haverhill, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Goffstown, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
GEO. W. BROWN, So. Eliot.

Vernon, Vt..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
S. COOK.

West Deerfield, N. H..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
Northwood Narrows, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Fitchburg, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Nashua, N. H..........Tuesday evening, Feb. 14th
Sutton Mills, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Lynn, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
C. W. SARGENT.

Freedom, N. H. (Advent Chapel)...Sunday, Jan. 29th and evenings through the week.
G. H. WALLACE.

Colebrook, N. H., Feb. 5th, and as long as the Lord will. The meetings will be held in the Methodist or Town Hall.
D M LEAVITT.
J. SHOREY.

East Concord (Gale school-house)...Sunday, Feb. 5th
C. R. PARSONS.
A. S. WILLIAMS.

Epsom, N. H. (Marden's Corner) baptism....Sunday, Jan. 29th.
Chichester (as S. Saltmarsh may appoint) evening, Feb. 3d.
East Concord (at Bro. Potter's)......evening, Feb. 4th
☞ NO NAME.

Holderness, N. H. (True school-house) Sun., Jan. 29th and evenings through the week.
Campton, N. H. (Bump school-house) Sun., Feb. 5th
North Dorchester, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
J. B. BROWN.

Haverhill, Mass..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
J. G. SMITH.

Berwick, Me. (Beaver Dam meeting-house) Sunday, Jan. 29th.
J. BICKFORD.

Montgomery, Mass..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
Wolcottville, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
B. HITCHCOCK.

Seabrook, N. H..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
J. PINKHAM.

Rochester Plains, N. H..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
A. S. WILLIAMS, CHAS. R. PARSONS.

Exeter, N. H..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
Seabrook, N. H..........Tuesday evening, Jan. 31st
SARAH K. TAYLOR.

Rye, N. H. (with Bro. G. H. Willey) Sabbaths, Jan. 22d and 29th.
J. H. F. VARNEY.
The first Sabbath in each month is supplied.

Salisbury, N. H. (Smith's Corner, meeting-house) Sabbath, Jan. 29th.
At Bro. Daniel Vesey's, Saturday evening, Feb. 4th
Meredith, N. H. (Dolloff Hall)..........Sabbath, Feb. 5th
Bradford, N. H. (Bush meeting-house) Sabbaths, Feb. 12th and 19th.
Boscawen, N. H. (Gulf school-house)...eve., Feb. 7th and Sabbath, Feb. 26th.
SIMEON HOYT.

Lake Village, N. H..........evening, Jan. 30th
Concord, N. H. (at the Bethel)..........evening, Jan. 31st
Manchester, N. H..........evening, Feb. 1st
Brentwood..........evening, Feb. 3d
West Kingston, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
A. GORDON.

Lawrence, Mass..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
Lynn, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
M. BATCHELOR.

Bridgewater, Vt..........Sundays, Jan. 22d and 29th
GEO. A. COLE.

Colebrook, N. H. (Kidderville)..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
Caswell Borough, P. Q..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
U. G. LADD.

Great Falls, N. H..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
JOSEPH W. WHITE.

Melvin Village, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Manchester, N. H..........evening, Feb. 16th
Goffstown, N. H..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
E. S. MOULTON.

Biddeford, Me..........Sabbath, Jan. 29th
Bryant's Pond, Me. (if desired)..........evening, Feb. 1st
Lewiston, Me..........Feb. 5th and 12th
Bath, Me..........Sabbaths, Feb. 19th and 26th
C. H. SWEET.

Biddeford Me..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
If these conflict, write me at Loudon Ridge, N. H. I could not meet my last appointment at Biddeford on account of sickness. D. F. LEAVITT.

Springfield, Mass....Sundays, Jan. 29th and Feb. 5th
WM. N. PILE.

Lakeville, Ct..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
H. K. WALLING.

Seabrook, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Rye, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
WM. C. STEWART.

Canton, Bradford Co. (as Brn. S. Benedict and T. Fassett may arrange), Jan. 31st and Feb. 1st.
East Troy, Conard Hollow, or Troy (as Bro. John Salisbury, Sen., may arrange), Feb. 2d and 3d
South Creek, Pa. (as Bro. J. Moon arranges), Feb. 4th and 5th
Jackson, Tioga Co., Pa. (if circumstances permit) Feb. 6th and 7th.
Wilmot Settlement (as brethren may arrange) Feb. 9th, and over the 12th.
Hawleyton (as Bro. H. Bull may arrange) Feb. 14th, 15th and 16th.
Cohocton, N. Y. (as Deacon T. C. Armstrong may appoint). Feb. 18th and 19th.
Honeoye Flats, N. Y..........Feb. 26th
At Conference, March 2d, and over the 5th.
All evening appointments to commence at 7 P. M.
C. F. SWEET.

Morris, Ct..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
Wrightsville, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Waterbury, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
WM. J. RIPLEY.

Low Hampton, N. Y...11 A. M. and 6½ P. M., Feb. 19th
C. PIKE.

Braintree, Vt..........evening, 6½ P. M., Jan. 31st
Bethel, Vt..........evening, 6½ P. M., Feb. 1st
Plymouth, Vt..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Z. T. WOOD.

Athol, Mass..........Sabbath, Feb. 5th
T. M. PREBLE.

Savoy, Mass. (New Chapel)...Tuesday eve., Jan. 31st
Wakefield, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
H. K. FLAGG.

Collinsville, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
G. L. WHITE.

Lewiston, Me..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
AUSTIN W. TAYLOR.

North Dana, Mass..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
North Adams, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
North Pownal, Vt..........evenings, Feb. 6th and 7th
Pownal, Vt. (as Bro. Towsley may arrange) evenings, Feb. 8th, 9th and 10th. Will Bro. T. meet me at North Pownal?
Hoosick, N. Y., Feb. 11th and 12th. Will some one meet me at the Falls on the arrival of the first P. M. train from Adams?
North Dana, Mass..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
Wakefield, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
GEO. A. STREETER.

Concord, N. H. (Snaptown)..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
Waterloo, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Deerfield, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
ORRILL W. KIMBALL.

Bath, Me..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
Bristol, Me. (Erskine school-house) evening, Feb. 1st
Cushing (conference)..........Feb. 2d, 3d, 4th and 5th
H. S. MITCHELL.

Webster, Mass..........Sabbath, Jan. 29th
Square Pond, Ct..........Sabbath, Feb. 5th
Putnam, Ct..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
Webster, Mass..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
Woodstock Valley, Ct..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
P. S. BUTLER.

Warehouse Point, Ct..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
Shrewsbury, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Great Falls, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Dover, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
S. C. HANCOCK.

Sangerville, Me..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
ISRAEL DAMMAN.

Freedom, N. H. (Chapel)..........Sabbath, Feb. 5th
Conference, at one o'clock P. M., Saturday, Feb. 4th
Porter Village, Me..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
MARK STEVENS.

Craig's Mills, Oxford, Me..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Hebron, Me. (Sodom school-house) Sunday, Feb. 12th
Lewiston, Me..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
JARED WHITMAN.

Fisherville, N. H..........Sabbath, Feb. 5th
Salisbury, N. H..........evening, Feb. 8th and over the following Sabbath. S. S. MOONEY.

Campton, N. H. (Bump school-house) evening, Jan. 28th, and over Sunday. JOHN H. EVANS.

Great Falls, N. H..........Sabbath, Feb. 5th
N. G. TWOMBLY.

Brockport, N. Y..........evening, Jan. 31st
CHAS. P. GREENMAN.

Augusta (Ballad school-house)..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
THOMAS HINES.

There will be a meeting at Warren, Mass., every Sunday hereafter until further notice.
RUFUS BAKER.

North Easton, Mass. (Ripley Hall)......every Sunday
GEO. WATCH.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

Wm. N. Pile..........Sundays, Jan. 29th and Feb. 5th
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Geo. W. Brown..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Wm. N. Pile..........Sundays, Jan. 26th and March 2d
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, March 9th

WORCESTER, MASS.

C. E. Barnes..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
J. Hemenway..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
R. K. Stark..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
A. Simpson..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, March 5th
J. Couch..........Sunday, March 12th

LAWRENCE, MASS.

M. Batchelor..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
H. Pratt..........Sundays, Feb. 5th and 12th
C. Goodrich..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

LOWELL, MASS.

W. H. Mitchell..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
D. F. Leavitt..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
W. H. Mitchell..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th

FITCHBURG, MASS.

S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, Jan. 29th

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

Mrs. L. M. Stoddard..Sundays, Jan. 29th and Feb. 5th

CONCORD, N. H. (Centre Street.)

A. P. Moore..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
C. H. Fletcher..........Sabbath, Feb. 5th

CONCORD, N. H., (at the Bethel.)

C. S. Shattuck..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
E. Owen..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
E. S. Moulton..........Sunday, Feb. 12th

LOUDON RIDGE, N. H.

Wm. C. Stewart..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Joseph Harvey..........Sunday, Feb. 26th

MANCHESTER, N. H.

Allen Damon..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
C. S. Shattuck..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
W. H. Mitchell..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
M. Batchelor..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

WINSTED, CT.

R. K. Stark..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
H. H. Dickinson..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Mrs. M. L. Durand..........Sunday, Feb. 26th

NEW BRITAIN, CT.

Henry Pratt..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
Chas. E. Barker..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
M. L. Durand..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
A. M. Higgins..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

BRISTOL, CT.

A. M. Higgins..........Sunday, Feb. 12th

PUTNAM, CT.

A. Durfee..........Sabbath, Jan. 29th
P. S. Butler..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
Mrs. L. M. Stoddard..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th

PLEASANT VALLEY, CT.

Sr. M. L. Durand..........Sunday, Feb. 5th

COLLINSVILLE, CT.

H. K. Flagg..........Saturday evening, Jan. 28th and over the following Sabbath, Jan. 29th.

SOUTHINGTON, CT.

G. L. Teeple..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
B. Hitchcock..........Sunday, Feb. 12th

SOUTH ELLIOT, ME.

Wm. C. Stewart..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
L. E. Saulpaugh..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
W. M. Harmon..........Sunday, Feb. 12th

BONNY EAGLE, ME.

Peter Libby..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
B. S. Emery..........Sunday, Feb. 5th

PORTER VILLAGE, ME.

T. P. S. Hampson..........Sunday, Jan. 31st

PORTLAND, ME.

John Couch..........Sunday, Jan. 29th

Meetings in South Boston on Wednesday evenings, No. 2 Lowland Street.
Friday evenings, No. 227 E. St. Bay-View horse cars pass by. Come and welcome. G. W. HUNTRESS. J. N. BERRY.

ADVENT CHRISTIAN CHURCH, SALEM.

Meetings are held every Sabbath, at the Chapel, Sewall Street. Prayer meeting Monday evening, at the Ward Room, North Salem. Tuesday and Friday evenings at private houses. C. E. BARNES, Pastor.

☞ MINISTERS visiting Shrewsbury to preach, can have a home with LIZZIE C. HODGEKINS.

MEETINGS IN PORTLAND, ME. (Union Hall.)

Having vacated Cushman Hall, on Congress Street, meetings hereafter will be held in Union Hall. Entrance on Free Street, nearly opposite the Baptist church. Seats free.
S. K. DYER.
D. F. SCAMMAN.
H. H. YORK.

ROCHESTER, N. H.

There will be preaching in the chapel, near the brick school-house, in Rochester, N. H., on the first Lord's day in each month. Others can appoint so as not to conflict.

Prospect, Ct..........Sunday, Jan. 29th and onward as the Lord may direct.
Barkhampstead (school-house near Bro. Harry Moses') Sunday, Feb. 5th, and evenings, 6th, 7th, and 8th.
North Canton..........evenings, Feb. 9th and 10th
Bro. G. L. White is to be with me during the week.
Hartland (Town Hall or school-house) Sun., Feb. 12th
L. WOODRUFF.

Deerfield Center, N. H..........Sabbath, Jan. 29th
Bradford, N. H. (as brethren may arrange) Tuesday evening, Jan. 31st.
Sutton, N. H. (as brethren may appoint) Wednesday and Thursday evenings, Feb. 1st and 2nd.
A. ROSS.

Alleghany City, Pa., the last and first Sundays in each month until April 1st.
Rouseville, Pa., the third Sunday in Jan., Feb., and March.
Buckling Corners, Chaut. Co., N. Y., commence meetings evening, Feb. 9th, and over Sunday. On Sunday at two o'clock, P. M., and in the evening. Bro. Burdick will be with me. JOHN T. CROLEY.

North Dorchester, N. H..Saturday evening, Jan. 28th and over Sunday, Jan. 29th.
East Canaan, N. H..........evening, Feb. 4th and over Sunday, Feb. 5th.
Warren Summit, N. H..........evening, Feb. 9th
North Haverhill..........evening, Feb. 10th
DANIEL D. PAGE.

West Groton, Vt. (Ricker school-house) evening, Feb. 11th, over Sunday, the 12th, and on as the Lord directs.
East Landaff, N. H. (Bungay school-house) evening, Feb. 18th, and over Sunday.
GEO. W. BROWN, D. D. PAGE.

Providence, R. I..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
New York (Cooper Institute)..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
GEO. W. BROWN.

South Windham..........Sunday, Jan. 29th
South Livermore, Me..........Saturday evening, Feb. 4th and over Sunday, the 5th.
Carthage, Me..........Tuesday evening, Feb. 7th and Sunday, the 12th.
Byron, Me..........evenings, Feb. 9th and 10th
J. ALBERT LIBBY.

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

☞ We cannot discontinue or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in PLAIN LETTERS.

☞ C. H. FITZGERALD—Have sent for "Laws of Life" for you.

☞ E. L. BURNAP—The "Broken Seal" in paper covers cannot be had.

☞ J. H. F. VARNEY'S P. O. address is Rochester, N. H.

Letters Received.

L Boutell, C D Nichols, J W Taylor, L C McKinstry, O R Fassett, W F Fairbrooks, S Clemons, I C Wellcome, E F Sargison, N H Shippee, A F Dixon, C Mendenhall, J Pike, A Ogsbury, M E Streeter, G H Sweet, E L Streeter, G H Wallace, J Porter, O D Snow, A French, H L H, J Carr, E T F, N Hitchcock, F M Drake, N B McMurphy, A J Schoonover.

SHELDON'S FOUR NEW TRACTS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

1. LIFE AND DEATH THEOLOGY: or, The Scriptural Doctrine of Eternal Damnation and Everlasting Punishment. Price 8 cts. single, postage 2 cts.; 75 cts. per dozen, postpaid; $5.00 per hundred by express.

This work of forty-eight pages is the clearest and strongest document yet produced by Bro. Sheldon on this topic. It is just the thing to scatter among all classes.

2. IMMATERIALISM: or, The Doctrine of Soul-Immortality Refuted. Price 5 cts. single, postage 2 cts.; 40 cts. per dozen, postpaid; $3.00 per hundred by express.

A tract of thirty-two pages, showing that fifteen cardinal errors spring out of the doctrine of the soul's immortality, and that those errors could not exist independent of that doctrine, thus showing it to be the main root of error. Let it be scattered widely.

3. DEATH AND THE DEAD, 16 pages. Price 3 cts. single, postage 2 cts.; 20 cts. per dozen, postpaid; $1.50 per hundred by express.

Just the thing to scatter everywhere.

4. THE COMING JUDGMENT: Its Necessity and Result. Eight pages. 10 cts. per dozen, postpaid, or 75 cts. per hundred by express.

It will do much good.

THE DOCTRINE OF IMMORTALITY.

ON SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

By Elder James H. Whitmore. Published by the Western Advent Christian Association.

This little volume of three hundred pages is a valuable contribution to the literature of the subject on which it treats, and is worthy of a wide circulation, not only among those who hold to the views advocated therein, but among others who have not given them due thought and investigation.

Price, single copy, postpaid, $1.00. Six copies, by mail, $5.00; by express, $4.20.

NEW TRACTS BY S. S. BREWER.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE SEVEN MESSAGES OF THE APOCALYPSE. Sent by mail for 13 cents. Postage 2 cents. $1.20 per dozen by express.

EVANGELS OF THE COMING ONE. Price by mail, 10 cts. single copy; per dozen, 70 cts.; per hundred by express, $5.00.

THE MYSTERY OF INIQUITY. This is a work on the man of sin, as viewed in the light of historic testimony. Price by mail, single copy, 5 cts.; postage 2 cts.; 50 cts. per dozen; $3.00 per hundred.

THE JUBILEE HARP.

We are now ready to supply friends with the new Hymn and Tune Book, at the following prices:—

Plain cloth, leather backs, colored edges, $1.00 per copy; $9.00 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges, $1.15 per copy; $10.50 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges and covers, $1.25 per copy; $12.00 per dozen.

☞ Postage 15 cts. per copy additional, when sent by mail.

NEW HYMN BOOK.

"Hymns of the Jubilee Harp."

WITHOUT THE MUSIC.

The above work, printed in large, clear type, on beautiful paper, we are ready to fill orders for, at the following prices:—

Bound in cloth, with sprinkled edges, 75 cents per copy; $7.00 per dozen; $55.00 per 100.

Bound in leather, gilt edges, $1.00 per copy, $9 per dozen; $75.00 per hundred; when sent by mail, 16 cts. additional postage.

LIST OF ENGLISH BIBLES.

We have received and keep on hand the following English Reference Bibles:

Minion, 8vo., marg. ref., large type, circuit binding, $4.50; postage 28 cts. Do. plain binding, $4.00; postage 28 cts.

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., circuit binding, $2.50; postage 20 cts. (Best size for preachers.)

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., plain, $2.25; postage 20 cts. Do. ref. between verses, $2.25; postage 24 cts.

Pearl, 8 vo., marg. ref., circuit, $2.25; postage 20 cts. Do. plain, $1.75; postage 20 cts.

WORKS BY I. C. WELLCOME.

A Treatise on Matt. xxiv. and xxv.

Expository and Historical, showing the accurate fulfillment of Christ's predictions to the present time, and what we should expect next. Fifth edition. 180 pages. 25 cts. by mail.

Christian Baptism—its Object and Duty.

Thoroughly examined, Scripturally and Historically. A valuable work. Fourth edition. 31 pp. 10 cts. by mail.

The Berean's Casket.

A Collection of Scriptures, in various versions, on the most important subjects in the Bible, in sections; to which is added most important History, Statistics, and Tables, making a book of great value to all Bible students and teachers. Cloth, $2.00; leather, $2.50 by mail.

The Plan of Redemption.

BY WELLCOME AND GOOD.

A valuable work on the Creation and Fall of Man, the Covenants, Atonement, Resurrection, Immortality, Faith and Hope, Restitution, Reign of Christ, Millennium, True Israel, &c., &c. This work has received great commendation. Third edition. 490 pages. $1.25 by mail.

Israel and the Millennium.

A thorough refutation of Judaism; a valuable exposition of the Scriptures, and clear statement of the Bible doctrine of the Millennium. 162 pages. 25 cts. by mail.

I. C. WELLCOME, Yarmouth, Me.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

ALSO, The Inquirer. Catholic, or Protestant—Which? A sketch of the great Roman Apostasy, and the dogmas which caused it; the dogmas and practices which are undermining and destroying Protestantism, together with Scriptural hints. 48 pp. 10 cts. by mail.

Church Spectacles. An authentic and thrilling statement of facts on levees, church fairs, gambling, dancing, and lotteries, with some wholesome instruction. 24 pp. 5 cts.; one dozen, 50 cts.; forty for $1.00, by mail.

I. C. WELLCOME, Yarmouth, Me.

For the World's Crisis.

ALMOST BEREFT.

Last eve, the moon in silvery radiance rose;
And as she cast her beams o'er hill and vale,
Methought a lovelier scene ne'er met my eye.
The wind had fall'n asleep, and bright the stars
Were glistering in the clear, cold sky, and o'er
The earth, snow-clad, a bridal loveliness
Had spread.
I wondered if this scene would be
Surpassed by that we love to read about
In that old tome so flowing full of truth.
Wild fancy was about to take her wings
And revel in the clime of future bliss,
When, low my mother's voice fell on my ear,
Requesting me to take the watcher's part
Once more, beside the bed of him, my sire,
Once hale and hearty, but now stricken down
By fell disease, and vain the skill of man
Hath tried to bring the health-flush to his cheek;
In vain for months we've hoped against all hope,
[illegible] love life and cling to it,—
And now the shadows deepen in his path,
And death seems sometimes very near.
Would'st know
How he doth view the darksome waves that roll
With threatening murmurs almost at his feet?
Oh, 'tis with christian love and fortitude
Who well becomes a soldier of the cross,
That long hath borne a part in holy strife,
And knows that he hath overcome the world;
And often from his heart come welling up
Sweet words of comfort and of lasting peace,
To us who may a little while remain.

Oh! blessed hope, that can in death's dark hour
Bring cheer to weary, waiting hearts of hope,
And as the moonbeams yester-eve could shed
A calm and heavenly radiance on the earth,
Despite the cold and cheerless shroud it wore;
So, reflect from the Sun of Righteousness
Faith lights our pathway through the frigid clime,
To realms of everlasting joy beyond.
So hope we on, so soon to be bereft,
And bow beneath bereavement, when the stroke
Is heavy, with the grace we bear the rod
When lightly laid.
Full soon the parted skies
Reveal the Royal Majesty at hand;
Then farewell, sorrow, sighing, pain and death,
God is our God. He will be all in all.

L. F. Cole.

W. Stewartstown, N. H., Jan. 8th, 1871.

For the World's Crisis.

ARE YOU RELIGIOUS?

Beloved reader! will you give thought to the question I now propose to you—Are you religious?

My question is not—Do you attend at the house of prayer in your town, or village? Nor is it—Are you of the Catholic or Protestant persuasion? Nor—Are you a Baptist, Methodist, Congregationalist, Adventist, Lutheran, Episcopalian, or Presbyterian? It is not even—Do you profess to be religious? Nay, nay; it is more pointed; it is more important than these all. In short, it is this: Are you religious? Yes, or no? which is it? Now, dear friend, no preliminary or introductory answers; take simply—Are you religious? Do you believe yourself to be so? Have you a deep persuasion that you have the "pure religion and undefiled" that the apostle James speaks of? Is there a conviction now in your heart prompting an affirmative answer? Have you the evidences in your life that you are religious?

Do you wish to know what it is to be religious? Says James—"Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this: to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world." Here are the two ingredients of "pure religion." Have you this kind of religion?—I mean the "pure religion"? How are you to know? In this way: You knew Widow So-and So was poor, had a large family depending on her—poor weakly soul! and did you "visit" her? Did her eye ever see you cross her threshold with a nice bundle of warm clothing to keep the cold from stinging herself and children in winter? And did your arms ever ache with the weight of "food for the hungry," and rest only inside the humble cot of the forgotten and forsaken of all but God? And did your purse-band ever relent its clutch at your good will, and open and gladden the eyes of her who could join with Peter and John and say, "Silver and gold have I none"? And did you ever wait, and say, "Now are you sure you are quite supplied? Can't I do something more for you?" And have you taken the Bible under your arm, and its comfort in your heart, and read to the bereaved and the fatherless words of cheer, and the consolations of God? Have you taught and exhorted and besecched the ignorant, with flowing soul, to embrace the promises of God and Christ therein, and wait for "the kingdom of God" and "his Son from heaven"? Speak, or be speechless with condemnation! Answer. You know your life. Are you religious so far? Yes, or No?

Then the next part of religion is for a man to "keep himself unspotted from the world." That is, from the inordinate love of it as a possession; the love of its rebel-company, and of its sins, which is its lawlessness; yea, all that is in the world—the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life? Do you keep yourself from its pride and self-sufficiency, through living by faith on the Son of God, and depending on him for all? Do you "keep" yourself from its lawlessness by learning the will of God and doing it through imparted Divine purpose and the power of the Spirit? Do you "keep" yourself from its company by being a lover of good men, and "not forsaking the assembling of yourselves together" with them, as the God-pleasing manner of some is? Do you cleanse yourself from secret sins—private besetments—even to the thoughts of your heart; and begin the keeping of yourself by "keeping the heart with all diligence"? Do you do all this by the Spirit and the Blood? If so, if you do this—and you know if you do—you have the "pure religion."

There are other kinds of religion about; and I charge you, reader, be not deceived. Some men think they have religion; but they deceive their own hearts. I have been telling you of "pure and undefiled religion before God." That is genuine in God's sight: he delights to behold it. But there is religion before man, which is everything but "pure and undefiled." O how I am grieved to see so much of it about. This is man's religion. Wear a good exterior. Be very moral and upright. Secret sins are infirmities from which there is no deliverance. Be as good as you know how. Strive to enter the kingdom by the "strait gate" of your own good works. Give a good round sum to chapel building; and as much and more than you have a mind to, for "keeping up" the ministry in good style. You may send a dollar to the pope occasionally; but it would lower a respectable person to go into a poor home; besides, your nice silk dresses may pick up some dirt and be soiled there. You are allowed to dress gay, and you need not when you "visit" go into the homes of poverty and crime; you may "visit" the grandees of society; "visit" the store which keeps the latest Parisian fashions. At night "visit" the theatre, or social entertainment, or public readings, or levees, or church fair, or bazaar, or dance hall; in short, there is scarcely any restriction as long as you know the way to behave yourself when there, conduct yourself properly, and keep up your "reputation" as a "respectable" christian. You must, however, make your will, and put down $1000 to be divided among deserving objects, $999 of which go to the missionary and other societies; and the one left, not knowing what to do with it, to poor Widow —— (I leave you to supply the name). This is religion before man; and I have not put in the blacker shades.

Do you think you have got the "pure" religion? Would it not be well to look and see? The examination can do you no harm any way; and—God bless you!—it may save you from being fatally self-deceived.

No. Scituate, R. I. W. Kellaway.

For the World's Crisis.

BE ON YOUR GUARD.

There is a great necessity for watchfulness on the part of God's saints in these last days. It is the policy of Satan to distract and divide the people of God. He resorts to various means in order to accomplish his purposes. He will cause misunderstandings to occur between brethren, and most generally of a very insignificant nature in the outset, which he will magnify to unusual proportions, that will sometimes involve a whole church in partisan strife. If we were only sufficiently on the alert, we might detect the designs of Satan and subvert them. Those difficulties are frequently of a nature that touch our personal interests; then the old enemy puts us on our dignity, and whispers—"You are right, stick to it!" when an investigation is sure to reveal the fact that there is wrong on both sides, and a very little mutual yielding would set the matter all right.

Be on your guard! "Behold, how great a matter a little fire kindleth." Cheat Satan of a victory. Do not sacrifice your peace. That is one inevitable result of such difficulties. O! what a loss to lose our sweet peace. Just think of it. Can a few dollars, or a little dignity, recompense us for the loss of christian peace? Never!

Another result is, the loss of influence. When we get mixed up in Satan's dirty work, our friends lose confidence in us; it makes them feel bad. Worldly people lose confidence in you. They are watching closely, and are usually the first to detect any inconsistency. In all such cases it will take a long time to regain lost influence.

And then, again, there are mostly some who are ready to charge all such difficulties to the account of Christianity, and thus the cause of Christ suffers. Our dear Savior is wounded in the house of his friends. The very thought of this result should cause us to pause and reflect before we consent to play into the hands of Satan. Be on your guard. It frequently happens, also, that one or both parties in such difficulties ultimately backslide; just what Satan aims at; and then, unless they repent, they lose eternal life. Only think of it! to barter away eternal life for a little self-will and dignity. "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" (or eternal life.) Let us place a higher estimate upon eternal things, and then we shall not so easily relinquish them, and "when the enemy cometh in as a flood, the Lord will lift up a standard against him."

A dear brother, who had recently started in the way of life and salvation, had a slanderous report circulated about him, which made him feel very bad; and Satan suggested that he follow it up, and trace it out. But he wisely concluded, first, to seek the advice of his pastor, who cautioned him against the wiles of Satan, and advised him to take no notice whatever of the matter. He acted in accordance with the advice given. The result was, he retained his peace, his religion, and his hope; and, furthermore, in a little while the originator of the slander came to him, confessed, asked and received forgiveness, and Satan was cheated. Be on your guard! Geo. Thomson.

For the World's Crisis.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

The thirteenth annual gathering of the R. I. and Eastern Ct. Conference was held as appointed with the Church at Rocky Brook, R. I. Jan. 4–6, 1871. Wednesday, P. M. a profitable social meeting. In the evening preaching by the clerk from Matt. 16: 3. Thursday, nine and a half A. M. Met for business. As our Moderator had not arrived, Bro. E Bellows was called to the chair. After prayer by Bro. Card, the minutes of our last meeting and the Treasurer's report were read and accepted as correct.

Reports of Churches.

Churches were then reported as follows: Bristol.—Have gained in spirituality and numbers during the past year. Much prejudice has been removed from the minds of the people. Have a new house of worship, which will seat about two hundred and fifty persons. Also a good Sabbath school. Exeter.—Some are trying to split the church with the seventh-day wedge, but have hopes that they will not succeed. Have some good meetings yet. North Scituate.—Soon after last conference Brn. Kellaway and Cotton held a protracted meeting with them. Had ten hopeful conversions. Since then have been prospering under the labors of Bro. Kelleway. A week or two since five more arose for prayers. East Gloucester.—Not satisfied with their present condition. Some have wandered, but think they can be reclaimed. Desire more preaching. Rocky Brook.—Some improvement since last conference Still suffering for lack of gospel order, and from other causes. Need a good pastor. West Gloucester.—All remain firm, and continue to advance. Wyoming.—No marked change. Danielsonville.—Two have manifested a desire to become christians during the last quarter. River Point.—Are having spirited and interesting meetings. Some members of other churches are getting interested in the truths we love. Rockland.—Prospect more encouraging than for a long time in the past. Preaching every Sabbath. Pascoag.—In a very low state. West Greenwich.—Enjoying a season of refreshing. Some ten or more conversions. Warwick Plains.—A new church has been recently organized, which seems to be prospered of the Lord. Lafayette.—Still in a good spiritual condition.

Preachers' Reports.

The following preachers' reported. The first ten in person, the other's by letter: E. Bellows, J. S. Collins, E. B. Card, R. R. Perry, B, Roberts, C. H. Sweet, A. Durfee, Wm. Kellaway, Peter Noka, Sister Crumb, H. F. Carpenter, A. Morse E. R. Wood, and D. V. Corey. These reports were full of cheer. All felt that it was sweet to work for Jesus. Some spoke of the last year as being the best of their ministry. They had seen more conversions, enjoyed more peace, etc., than during any previous year. Each wanted more humility and consecration; more earnestness, perseverance, and devotion, and desired through the coming year to show themselves workmen approved of God.

It will be seen that some of our members did not report. We do not like to attribute their neglect to lack of interest in the conference, but trust that they either overlooked the by-law which requires them to report to each annual meeting; or that circumstances over which they had no control prevented their reporting. It is hoped that all such will report at our next quarterly meeting. In the afternoon a timely discourse by Bro. Roberts on the subject of prayer. Bro. E. B Card spoke in the evening from Eph. 4: 30.

Friday, 9 A. M. Met for business. Bro. Durfee in the chair. Bro. Bellows gave a report of his visit to the Rocky Brook church. Report accepted, and committee discharged. The Clerk presented a request from the North Scituate church for the ordination of Bro. Kellaway.

Voted, To grant their request, and ordain Bro. Kellaway during this session of the conference.

Moved, That we have a campmeeting the coming season, under the jurisdiction of this conference. After considerable discussion it was voted to lay the motion on the table until the next conference.

Moved, That we appoint a committee to consult the churches, and learn their minds with regard to having a campmeeting. Carried. The clerk was chosen that committee. Moved, That we amend the seventh article of the Constitution by striking out these words, "In tracts and distribute them at each quarterly meeting to preachers and others." Carried. The article as amended reads thus: "This conference shall be in its operations a Home Missionary Society, and invites the churches to aid them in the work by such contributions as they are able. And there shall be a contribution taken up at each quarterly conference for this object. The Treasurer shall expend these contributions of money as the conference may direct."

After re-electing A. Durfee Moderator, and C. H. Sweet Clerk and Treasurer, the conference adjourned to meet with the church at North Scituate, R. I., the first Wednesday in April next.

In the afternoon Bro Peter Noka gave us one of his characteristic discourses from—"Have faith in God." In the evening began with a prayer-meeting, at the close of which a poor distressed soul arose without being invited, and in language broken with sobs requests prayers for herself and another. Then came the ordination of Bro. Wm. Kellaway, recently from England, who during the past four months has been laboring among us to good acceptance. The sermon was by Bro. Durfee. Text, 1 Tim. 4: 16. It was pronounced a "sound" sermon. Charge by Bro. Durfee. Prayer and right hand of fellowship, by Bro. E. Bellows.

Taken as a whole, this meeting was a good one. No one, as far as we know, has any reason to be dissatisfied. Some enjoyed it exceedingly. C. H. Sweet, Clerk.

For the World's Crisis.

PECULIAR PEOPLE.

There seems to be a class of people at the present day, who are considered by many as beings "very peculiar," "fanatical,"—those who are "continually prying into the secrets of the Almighty," and who are often met with the remark, "If you would only give up this miserable doctrine, you might be somebody in the world." But possibly those who are willing to believe God's simple truth, and to obey its teachings, may be "somebody," after all; for we read that it is the "poor of this world that are rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom." And all those who are willing to deny themselves for Christ's sake, forsaking all to follow him, shall in this life receive a hundred-fold and in the world to come life everlasting. Then "they that endure unto the end, shall inherit all things." And is not this better than to seek the honor and praise of men, while we seek to enjoy the pleasures of this world for a little season, and that lose the promised inheritance at last?

Is it not best to examine, study, and "search the Scriptures," and find out fully what this "miserable doctrine" is, and what the promises are to those who are not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, before we so hastily speak of a subject that we have not given a thorough investigation? We very well know that sinners cannot enter into the kingdom of heaven; for those who continue in sin, and will not accept of the "gift of God" on the terms which are offered, will not receive "eternal life," but rather, the "wages of sin," which is "death." Rom. 6: 23.

Since, then, we are to choose between life and death, we naturally inquire first, on what conditions may we obtain life, for that is what we all desire to have. We read in Romans 2: 7, that it is "to them who by patient continuance in well-doing, seek for glory, honor, and immortality," he will render "eternal life." And this life is to be in a kingdom free from all sorrow, pain, and death, forevermore. "The inhabitants shall not say, I am sick; the people that dwell therein shall be forgiven their iniquity." Isa. 33: 24. Who does not want to be of that people, and feel willing to suffer and endure with them while here, the scoffs and frowns of the world, although they may be called "peculiar," and deemed unworthy of worldly honors, if they may but receive the smiles and approbation of their heavenly Master, when he shall come to gather together his jewels, and welcome them into those bright "mansions," which he has prepared for them? God has told us that he would "purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works." Titus 2: 14.

And knowing this, it is well for us that we be classed among that people, for all such as are "pure in heart" have the promise that they shall see him, and not only see him, but be made like him, and dwell forever in his presence.

Brimfield, Mass. Geo. E. Lee.

Recognition on Earth.—The following is suggestive of an evil which exists in certain city churches:

"A Boston minister says he once preached on the 'Recognition of Friends in the Future,' and was told after service by a hearer that it would be more to the point to preach about the recognition of friends here, as he had been in the church twenty years, and didn't know any of its members."—Ex.

For the World's Crisis.

THE BURDEN-BEARER.

"Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and he shall sustain thee."—Ps. 55: 22.

There are many kinds of burdens, and but few feel themselves free from a burden of some kind. Some bear their burdens cheerfully, and some seem ready to sink under their load. Peter exhorts us to cast all our care upon Him, for he careth for us. How shall we do this? How shall we cast our care and our burden upon the Lord? The answer comes in the words of one of our most familiar hymns—

"Take it to the Lord in prayer."

"Enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly." Matt. 6: 6.

Bro. or sister, have you a burden? Are you perplexed with the business and the cares of this life? Have you trials that may not be told to those who are around you? You may go and tell Jesus. Cast your care and your burden upon him, and he will sustain you.

How much anxious care, how many painful forebodings, are now bearing down and almost crushing the weary, heavy-laden ones, when they might be cast upon the Lord, to the great relief and unspeakable joy of the burdened heart. "The heart knoweth its own bitterness," and each individual knows his own burden. And if you have a burden that seems too heavy for you, just try this plan, and go and tell Jesus.

I have tried it, and have always found the promise verified, "He shall sustain thee." Even if the source or cause of grief be not wholly removed, you will at least find this assurance, "My grace is sufficient for thee." Mourning pilgrim, there is consolation for you, and it is within your reach. There is nothing too hard for the Lord. If your grief is like a mountain, it shall be removed in answer to prayer. When you have tried it, then you will praise the Lord, and be ready to tell what he hath done for you.

F. H. Chamberlain.

Gems.

— Doubt is consuming; faith fire-proof—a garment of asbestos, which will stand fire when worlds on worlds melt to dross and tinder in the flames of the final judgment.

— A sound soul correcteth the naughtiness of the body.

— One of the most important rules of the science of manners is an almost absolute silence in regard to yourself.

Up! 'tis no dreaming time! Awake! awake!
For He who sits on the high Judge's seat,
Doth in his record mark each wasted hour,
Each idle word.

— If the stars should appear but one night in a thousand years, how would men believe and adore, and preserve for many generations the remembrance of the city of God which had been shown! But every night come out these envoys of beauty, and light the universe with their admonishing smile.

— He that lendeth to another in time of prosperity, shall never want help himself in the time of adversity.

— Many kings make their subjects beggars, but Christ makes his subjects kings.

— A man who is going to do good with his money when he shall get a great deal of it, makes a bargain with the devil; and the devil outwaits him.

— It is more praise-worthy to relieve one neighbor, than to kill many enemies.

Strange, we never prize the music
Till the sweet-voiced bird has flown!
Strange, that we should slight the violets
Till the lovely flowers are gone!
Strange, that summer skies and sunshine
Never seem one half so fair
As when winter's snowy pinions
Shake the white down in the air!

— Virtue is the health of the soul; it gives relish to the smallest leaves of life.

— The eye can never offend, if the mind would rule the eye.

— The brook Cherith dried up when most wanted. So with all earthly comforts—we lose them when we most need them; but there is a river which never runs dry, a well of water springing up into everlasting life.

— Better it is to be careful to live well, than desirous to live long.

— Actions, looks, words, steps, form the alphabet by which you may spell character.

Preach the gospel to the needy;
Preach it to the princely heir;
Preach it to the miser, greedy;
Preach it freely everywhere.

— There is no man suddenly excellently good or extremely evil; but grows either as he holds himself up in virtue, or lets himself slide to vice.

— The righteous are apt to be like well-fed children—too wanton, if God should not appoint them some fasting days.

— Every vice hath a cloak, and creepeth in under the name of virtue.

— The christian should carry religion into the world, but keep the world out of religion.

For unity the Savior prayed,
That saints might all be one;
So as in heaven his will's obeyed,
May it on earth be done.

— The gravest events often come with no more noise than the morning star makes in rising.

— What is once spotted with infamy, can hardly be worn out with time.

— Some men drop out of life and leave no vacancy. They were mere nothings,—so negative and unsubstantial as to really fill no place.

— Be kind to those around you.

— Only he who respects the liberties of others is worthy of liberty.

— Pride and folly cost many persons more than their necessities.

— There is nothing in domestic matters that tells more favorably than order.

For the World's Crisis.

WEST PARSONSFIELD, ME.

A good interest has been awakened and is prevailing in this community, within several weeks past, in the cause of religion, and still the work is onward, we believe; for while some have decided to be for Christ, there are others laboring under deep conviction, and it really seems that they will yield to the influence of the Spirit and join the praying band, and the work of the Lord abound to the saving of many more in the place. Up to this time, fourteen have acknowledged their intention of serving Christ; the most part of whom were wanderers from the Lord. A few weeks ago some of our brethren, living near by, established a prayer-meeting in the place, which is an old, neglected and run-down field of labor, formerly occupied by the Free-will Baptists and others; and the Lord has prospered the effort. Bro. Mark Stevens has labored to a considerable extent in the place, earnestly, faithfully, and effectively; also Brn. H. M. Bryant and A. Stillings have labored some, and to good acceptance. Large congregations for a country place attend the meetings, and give the best of attention to hearing the word. It seems that, with good cultivation and care, fruit may be had in the place to the glory of God and the Lamb.

Chas. H. Hurd.

Freedom, N. H., Jan. 12th, 1871.

How to Spell.—Often, in writing, a simple word is required, of the orthography of which the writer is not sure. The dictionary may be referred to—but is not always convenient. An easy mode is to write the word on a bit of waste paper, in the two or three ways of which you are in doubt. Nine times in ten the mode which looks right is right. Spelling—particularly English spelling—is so completely a work of the eye, that the eye alone should be trusted. There is no reason why "receive" and "believe" should be spelt differently, yet sounded alike in their second syllables. Yet write them "receive" and "believe," and the eye shows you the mistake at once. The best way for young people, and indeed people of any age, to learn to spell, is to practice writing. Cobbett, the famous English radical, taught his children grammar by requiring that they should copy their lessons two or three times. These lessons he himself gave them in the form of letters; and his French and English grammars are two of the most amusing books in the English language. Of course "learning to spell" came in incidentally.

A PRAYER.

"Thy will be done," e'er though it be
To suffer, Lord, awhile for thee;
In deepest agony, to feel
That Jesus doeth all things well."

Then welcome sorrow, toil, and pain,
My losses here prove greater gain;
Blessed Redeemer, help me bear
A few more days this load of care.

Give strength, that I may ne'er complain,
Nor cast a backward glance again;
Give courage, that I ever dare,
Amid reproach thy cross to bear.

Grant faith beneath the cross to see
The star-gemmed crown that waits for me—
To wait,—"unto the end endure,"
Because thy "promises are sure."

—Free Methodist.

☞ There is a beautiful legend illustrating the blessedness of performing our duty at whatever cost to our own inclinations. A beautiful vision of our Savior had appeared to a monk, and, in silent bliss, he was gazing on it. The hour arrived at which he was to feed the poor of the convent. He lingered not in his cell to enjoy the vision, but he left to perform his humble duty. When he returned he found the blessed vision still waiting for him, and uttering these words: "Hadst thou staid I must have fled."

☞ I have heard some persons, when leaving a place of worship, admiring the minister, and exclaiming, "what splendid language! what beautiful metaphors! what original illustrations!" May they rather say, after hearing me, "what sinners we are! what a glorious Christ we have! what a blessed salvation!"—Rowland Hill.

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—Paul.

"CATCHING COLD," OR "CATCHING HEAT"?

The season during which the complaints commonly called "colds" prevail most extensively is now upon us. . . . There is a general misapprehension of the true nature of these affections, and of their causes, the very phrases cold and catching cold being often misnomers, and we propose to show that in many cases the trouble is caused by catching heat rather than catching cold.

The parts usually affected by colds, are the lining membranes of the nose, throat and lungs, or, more properly, of the bronchial tubes; for when the lung substance is attacked, the affection is of a very different and more severe character than a common cold. . . . . Every one knows that in going from a hot room to a cold one, or to the outside air in cold weather, they are liable to get cold, but very few know that they incur the same danger in going from a cold atmosphere into a warmer one. . . . .

As before stated, the mucous membrane of the air-passages are the parts affected in colds, and are supplied freely with blood-vessels and mucous follicles, which in health pour out sufficient mucus to keep the membrane moist and healthy; when a cold is contracted, the increase of this mucus is one of the most prominent symptoms, and is caused in this way: you probably know that when cold is applied to the skin in any way it drives the blood from it by constricting the vessels, and that as soon as the column of blood regains its force, the fluid returns to the skin in increased quantity; this fact is well illustrated by plunging the hand into hot water after it has been benumbed with cold; the redness of the skin, and the painful tingling produced, give pretty good evidence of the force with which the blood returns. Now this is just what happens in the mucous membrane of the air-passages; the cold air, passing over the membrane, drives the blood from it temporarily, but when it returns it comes with greater force and in larger quantity than is natural, distending the blood-vessels, and forcing a greater amount of the fluid to the mucous surface, exciting them to increased activity, and they then pour out a larger amount of the mucous secretion than is discharged in health, in order to relieve the congested state of the mucous membrane. . . .

How can we avoid them, you ask, if both cold and heat give us colds. We cannot reduce the temperature of our rooms below a comfortable degree, nor elevate that of the outside air; very true; but you can very often avoid going immediately from a cold room into a hot one, and vice versa. After coming in from very cold outside air, linger for a minute or two in the hall, or on the staircase, before entering the heated rooms—which, by the way, are much too hot generally—and on leaving the house observe the same rule. Many will consider these needless precautions, useless trouble, etc., but some people are exceedingly susceptible to colds without knowing why they contract them, when, as they suppose, they have not been exposed to any exciting cause, and it is to those who are so exceedingly susceptible that these precautions are particularly recommended; at first, perhaps their observance will be a little troublesome, but after following them for a short time, and experiencing their benefit, those who have been sufferers from almost continuous colds during the winter season, will feel well repaid for their attention, by the unusual freedom from these troublesome complaints which they will experience. —Good Health.

— I am deeply convinced that the evils of intemperance can never cease, till the virtuous in society shall unite in pronouncing the man who attempts to accumulate wealth by dealing out poison and death to his neighbor, as infamous.—John Pierpont.

— The custom of shaving is said to have come into use during the reign of Louis 13th and 14th of France; both of whom took the throne without a beard.

— A prattling physician is another disease to a sick man.

— Great variety of medicines do no good at all to a weak stomach.

— Some have compared those which use often to take physic, to them which drive the burgesses out of the city, to place strangers in their room.

— Those who devote their lives to the prolongation of that of others, die the soonest.

— Married men live longer than single ones.

— Good for rest,—Honest work done in a cheerful spirit.

— If compelled to face a bitter cold wind, throw a silk handkerchief over the face; its agency is wonderful in modifying the cold.

— Sunshine, heat, air, water, food, and exercise, are the chief necessaries of life.

BATHING.

Regular bathing, so far as the people of this country are concerned, is certainly a habit of pure modern adoption. The fathers and mothers, and grandfathers and grandmothers of those who have reached middle life, seldom or never bathed except in the warm months of summer. Their dwellings afforded no conveniences for the act, if they felt the need of performing it. As a general thing, the health was unaffected by this omission. Why was this? Because of their occupations and methods of living. They were active workers, they wore but a small amount of clothing, they lived much in the open air, and their dwellings were without stove and furnace heat. . . . Dry friction over the whole surface of the body, once a day or more in two days, is often of more service than the application of water. The reply of the centenarian to the inquiry, to what habit of life he attributed his good health, and extreme longevity, that he believed it due to "rubbing himself all over with a cob every night, is significant of an important truth."

If invalids and persons of low vitality would use dry friction and Dr. Franklin's "air-bath" every day for a considerable period, we are confident they would often be greatly benefited. Cleanliness is next to godliness, no doubt, and a proper and judicious use of water is to be commended; but human beings are not amphibious. Nature indicates that the functions of the skin should be kept in order mainly by muscular exercise, by exciting natural perspiration by labor; and delicious as is the bath, and healthful under proper regulations, it is no substitute for that exercise of the body, without which all the functions become abnormal.—Journal of Chemistry.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

For the "Children's Corner."

LITTLE FOLKS NEAT, TIDY, GENTEEL.

"Oh! the light from their glad faces
Makes a little heaven below;
So we have named them fireside angels,
Yes, their love from heaven doth flow."

Little folks neat and clean, pink-like, rosy-like? Certainly, neat as a pink, sweet and heavenly as the morning rose; cheerful as the singing birds, happy all day long in doing what is pleasing to the Lord.

Little friends, fix yourselves up neatly, genteelly, especially when you rise in the morning, come to the table, to family prayers, or attend the house of God. You'll feel better, hear better, pray better, do everything better. No slovenly person feels as he ought. Make this a matter of conscience. See that your bodies are fit temples for the Holy Spirit.

With what care and attention do the feathered race wash themselves, and put their plumage in order, and how perfectly neat, clean, and elegant do they appear. Among the beasts of the field we find that those which are the most cleanly are generally the most gay and cheerful, or are distinguished by a certain air of tranquillity and contentment; and singing birds are always remarkable for the neatness of their plumage. So great is the effect of cleanliness upon man, that it extends even to his moral character. Virtue never dwelt long with filth.

Some little boys and girls, we are sorry to say, remind us of the peacock and butterfly, who take pride in dress; tip off gaily in fine things, gew-gaws and artificials, and think more of a pretty face, a new dress, a new coat, bonnet or hat, than of the improvement of the mind and heart, the blessed Bible, and of the Lord Jesus Christ.

We never see a person proud of his dress but we think, well, he has only cast-off clothes, after all; he has the jacket of the lamb, and the old great coat of the sheep; from head to foot he is dressed in what the trees or the animals have used before him. His shoes are made of hides, his stockings of the cotton-shrub, his shirt of the flax-plant, his handkerchief is spun by the caterpillar, and his gloves are the waistcoat of the angola. Why not say,

"Then will I set my heart to find
Inward adorning of the mind;
Knowledge and virtue, truth and grace,
These are the robes of richest dress."

Want you to look pretty? Certainly we do, young friends, pretty as pretty can be; beautiful as the morning rose, as the lilies of the field. But what is beauty, and what will make you beautiful? Heaven in your souls, Jesus, the Lamb of God! Meanwhile adorning yourselves in modest apparel, with shamefacedness and sobriety; not with broidered hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array, but (which becometh women professing godliness,) "with good works"—"with the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price." Such a spectacle of the morally sublime is the admiration of angels.

"Look to the garden of your heart,
For weeds are growing there;
With faithful prayer act well your part,
It needs a constant care."

In advocating gospel simplicity in costume, the entire avoidance of display or worldly conformity, the adorning of gold, pearls, or costly array, we should be careful not to fall into an opposite extreme, and neglect our exterior deportment. The neglect of the outward appearance indicates either a little mind, or a disregard to the opinions of our neighbors. One should always be neat and clean in person and dress, because this is an evidence of respectability and the fear of God. No lady, who has any regard for herself, or any respect for the society in which she moves, will be slovenly in her appearance, or careless in her attire. To dress simply, and without ostentation, is not only a mark of modesty, but of gospel simplicity and purity.

"Modesty, like diamonds, shine most fair,
More worth than pearls or rubies are;
More rich than gold or silver coin,
O may it always on us shine."

Behold the daughter of innocence! How beautiful is the mildness of her countenance; how lovely is the diffidence of her looks! Her cheek is dyed with the deep crimson of the rose; her eye is placid and serene, and the gentleness of her speech is as the melting softness of the flute. Her smiles are as the enlivening rays of the sun; the beauty of her presence, as the silver light of the moon. Her attire is simple; her feet tread with caution, and she feareth to give offence.

"I almost think the angels,
Who tend life's garden fair,
Drop down the sweet wild blossoms
That bloom around us here."

D. F. N., Author of "Apples of Gold."

Idle Words.—Idle words have done much mischief, and may still do more. Harmless as they seem, and innocently as they may be uttered, their effects are often baneful in the extreme. Be careful with regard to what you say while in conversation with those you love.

— Youth, the bud of hope, with care, may have a rich fruition, but by neglect, a fearful blight.

P. O. Address of Preaching Brethren.

Massachusetts.

C. Goodrich—No. 167 Hanover Street, Boston.
Enoch Merrill—Crisis Office, Boston.
J. S. White—11 Saratoga Street, East Boston.
J. Couch—Chelsea.
L. Boswell—Chelsea.
S. W. Thurber—Chelsea.
T. M. Preble—No. Cambridge.
H. Munger—Chicopee Falls.
D. Churchill—Lowell.
Matthew Batchelor—New Bedford.
S. S. Brewer—Ashburnham Depot.
H. Pratt—Springfield, 57 Cedar Street.
S. Ford—Box 52, Branch P. O., Springfield.
W. N. Pile—Springfield.
P. S. Butler—Collins Depot.
Geo. A. Streeter—North Dana.
J. W. Thomas—Lowell, 16 Rock Street.
J. R. Boynton—Box 224 Plymouth.
Benj. Finney—Wakefield.
Elam Burnham—Hamilton.
S. S. Brasee—Cold Spring.
W. B. Hathaway—North Carver.
Rufus Baker—Warren.
J. W. Brittan—Westboro.
Dr. A. M. Higgins—Palmer.
H. K. Flagg—Savoy.
E. Owen—Westfield, Lock Box 616.

Maine.

S. K. Partridge—North Whitefield.
I. C. Wellcome—Yarmouth.
H. D. Reed—Richmond.
H. S. Mitchell—Richmond.
J. Carr—South Albion.
Israel Damman—Corinna.
C. H. Leverton—Surry, Me.
N. F. Nason—Weeks Mills.
C. Goud—Topsham.
Jesse Gay—Norway.
Thomas Smith—Bangor.
Thomas Rhynes—Augusta.
R. R. York—Portland.
I. K. Lombard—Machiasport.
M. S. Patterson—Richmond.
J. Albert Libby—West Poland.
J. T. Jordan—West Poland.
E. M. Haggett—Livermore.
F. A. Baker—Levant.
Jared Whitman—Mechanic Falls.
H. B. Savey—Mt. Vernon.
M. W. Carlisle—Milltown.
N. G. Reed—Bath.
Wm. H. Mitchell—Kennebunk.
Austin W. Taylor—Biddeford.

New Hampshire.

L. O. & M. McKinstry—Lake Village.
A. W. Sibley—West Thornton.
A. Simpson—Concord.
D. N. Chadsey—Whitefield.
Caleb Richardson—Salem Depot.
N. C. Twombly—Strafford Centre.
E. Cotton—Newport.
Daniel Eastman—East Canaan.
J. B. Brown—Laconia.
A. A. Hoyt—North Haverhill.
T. E. Lang, Jr.—Meredith Village.
E. S. Moulton—Whitefield.
Wm. C. Stewart—Exeter, Box 227.
John H. Evans—Holderness.
Levi Allen—Lake Village.
Allen Damon—Lake Village.
O. D. Eastman—Landaff.
Joseph Kimball—Unity.
Joseph Pinkham—Dover.
N. B. McMurphy—Gilmanton.
A. Ross—Amherst.
C. H. Fletcher—Newport.
T. L. Hall—Keene.
Wm. W. Sutherland—Newport.
S. S. Mooney—Pittsfield.
N. Wheeler—Sugar Hill.
C. W. Sargent—Box 426, Concord.
Simeon Roby—Warner.
D. F. Leavitt—London Ridge.
T. W. Piper—Melvin Village.
D. M. Leavitt—Holderness.
N. Hartshorn—Laconia.
J. G. Smith—Farmington.
Joseph W. Warre—Portsmouth.
N. Glidden—Meredith Center.
John B. Deering—Lower Bartlett.
L. F. Cole—West Stewartstown.

Vermont.

H. P. Carpenter—North Springfield.
Z. T. Wood—Springfield.
J. A. Cleaveland—North Hydepark.
A. Gordon—Canaan.
E. G. Chadsey—Richford.
C. P. Dow—Derby Line.

Rhode Island.

M. R. Phetteplace—West Gloucester.
D. O. Hopkins—North Foster.
W. Kelleway—North Scituate.
B. Roberts—Knightsville.
A. Durfee—Westerly, Box 534.
E. S. Straight—Watchemoket.
J. T. Dixon—Rocky Brook.
C. H. Sweet—Natick.
Geo. A. Cole—317 No. Main St., Providence.
Edwin R. Wood—Exeter.

Connecticut.

William J. Ripley—Pleasant Valley.
H. H. Dickenson—Hartford.
P. S. Butler—West Woodstock.
W. S. Campbell—New Britain.
H. Rockwell—West Winsted.
Wm. A. Durand—Cheshire.
S. Woodruff—Unionville.
B. St. John—Wolcottville.
J. L. Wood—New Milford.
Dr. Samuel Wallis Treat—Middlebury.
Geo. L. Teeple—New Haven, 189 Orchard Street.
S. C. Hancock—Forestville.
I. B. Potter—West Stafford.
E. Bellows—South Killingly.
B. Hitchcock—Forestville
Levi R. Teeple—Hotchkissville.

New York.

Anna E. Smith—Star of Hope Mission, New York City, 14 Laurens Street, above Canal.
E. S. Jennings—Knowlesville, Orleans Co.
J. B. Cook—Brooklyn.
Wm. Ingmire—Lincklaen, Chenango Co.
Jacob Blain—Buffalo, 79 Division Street.
Chas. P. Greenman—Rapids, Niagara Co.
H. A. King—240 Broadway.
R. V. Lyon—Suspension Bridge.
Wm. A. Penn—Rochester.
Phineas A. Smith—Rochester.
Z. Dubois Fisher—Greenwich, Washington Co.
G. Pike—Hebron, Washington Co.
J. H. Whitmore—East Shelby, Orleans Co.
C. F. Sweet—Albion, Orleans Co.
Warren J. Hobbs—Honeoye Falls.
C. W. Low—Fredonia.
M. R. Miles—Wolcott, Wayne Co.
J. Wilbur—West Hoosick, Rensselaer Co.
A. C. Newell—Darien City.
C. H. Williams—West Martinsburg.
E. P. Stevens—South Butler.
D. Cogswell—Danville.
Herbert H. Brown—Honeoye, Ontario Co.

New Jersey.

S. P. Babcock—Malaga.
D. S. Clark—Amboy.
Geo. A. Brown—Hackensack.

Pennsylvania.

J. W. Taylor—Little Marsh, Tioga Co.
John T. Ongley—Lincolnville, Crawford Co.
Jonas Wendell—Edenboro, Erie Co.
Wm. Stuart—1814 Vineyard Street, Philadelphia.

Ohio.

G. W. Stetson—Olena.
R. McCulloch—Nevada.

Tennessee.

Dr. I. L. Leslie—Box 631, Memphis.

Kentucky.

John B. Wadsworth—160 No. 2nd St., Louisville.

Indiana.

R. H. Scott—Scottsville, Floyd Co.
David Standiford—West Lebanon.
B. C. Andrus—Big Indian P. O.
Dr. N. Field—Jeffersonville.
S. A. Chaplin—Pierceton.
Edward Cordray—Lakeville.
Dr. C. H. Case—Holton.
Dr. J. W. Warman—Muddy Fork P. O.
Dr. Case—Nebraska.
G. W. Green—Box 16, Memphis, Clark Co.

Illinois.

George W. Foster—Victoria, Knox Co.
O. D. Gibson—Clayton.
J. W. Burroughs—Neponset.
H. G. McCulloch—[illegible]
F. Burr—DeKalb.
Wm. McCulloch—New Rutland.

Michigan.

J. R. Preston—Wallaceville, Wayne Co.
J. M. Reed—Romeo.
A. N. Seymour—Reading.
George Wright, Jr.—Lexington.

Iowa.

Peter S. W. Dove—Strawberry Point, Clayton Co.
A. F. Duggar—Simpson.
Ambrose H. Egleston—Parkersburg.
Dr. M. Chandler—Maquoketa, Jackson Co.

Wisconsin.

Wm. Sheldon—Brodhead, Green Co.
N. A. Hitchcock—Dayton, Green Co.
George Thompson—Albion, Green Co.
P. W. Hough—[illegible], La Crosse Co.

Minnesota.

Edwin T. Himes—St. Paul, Box 258.
Wm. Sweatt—[illegible]
Phillip Rasser—Winona.
Thos. E. Allen—Box 241, Winona.
Ruth M. Bewell—Winona, Box 631.
O. R. Fassett—Minneapolis.

Nova Scotia.

Wm. M. Ingham—Clementsport.
D. D. Reed—Santa Clara, Cal.
U. G. Ladd—Coaticook, P. Q.

The World's Crisis

AND

SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance.........$2.50 a Year.
Five copies six months to one address.........$6.50.
Same rate for any larger number over ten.
Ten copies six months to one address.........$10.00.
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage to the United States on each single copy of the Crisis is 20 cts. a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,

Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM.

An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS.

PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Single copy, 30 cts. a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten. Ten copies, or any larger number sent to one address, [illegible] Fifty copies, and upwards, [illegible] to one address, [illegible] To Canada subscribers [illegible]

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 79 . BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1871. VOL. XXXII.—NO. 19.

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, by the
ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY,
At No. 160 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass.
GEO. T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.
WILLIAM SHELDON, Corresponding Editor.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, L. BOUTELL,
JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
HOMER A. KING, H. V. DAVIS,
L. T. CUNNINGHAM, J. G. HAMBLIN,
H. H. DICKENSON.

☞ The CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

WHAT NEXT?

When earth with deep convulsion is quaking to her poles,
The wave of dissolution like pealing thunder rolls;
When men, intent, are looking for things in Scripture told,—
In clouds of glory coming, the Lord you'll soon behold.

When wonders in the heavens and on the earth appear,
Distress among the nations, perplexity and fear;
When sun and moon are darkened, and stars shall fall, untold,
In clouds of glory coming, the Lord you'll soon behold,

When mighty waves are surging, and roaring o'er the sea;
Men's hearts, from fear, are failing, as startling signs they see;
When wicked men are scoffing—seducers waxing bold,
In clouds of glory coming, the Lord you'll soon behold.

When from the faith departing, you hear men speaking lies;
From spirits most seducing, receiving false replies;
When men themselves are loving, and sell themselves for gold,
In clouds of glory coming, the Lord you'll soon behold.

When war-clouds, dark and lowering, are bursting o'er the world;
Despotic thrones are crumbling, as shot and shell are hurled;
When angry nations, fighting, bring troublous times foretold,
In clouds of glory coming, the Lord you'll soon behold.

When Babylon is mourning, all stripped in one sad hour,
And kings with fear are trembling, lest they should lose their power,
God's saints are all rejoicing at signs they thus behold,
That Christ so soon is coming, to give them crowns of gold.

Peru, Ind. H. H. HALL.

For the World's Crisis.

OUR EARTHLY HOUSE OF THIS TABERNACLE.

The heading of this article is taken from the words of Paul, as recorded in 2 Cor. 5: 1. To find what it means, we must examine the connection. The two preceding verses read thus—"For our light affliction, which is but for a moment, shall work out for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory; while we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen: for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal." From this we infer that man's being is mortal; for if it was not, it would not be temporal; for temporal means that which is transient, and is placed in opposition to that which is eternal. But if the human soul was immortal, it would be eternal, and not temporal; whereas, the apostle says the things which are seen are temporal, and the soul, or life of man, is one of the things that are seen. Hence it is written, "For what is your life? It is even a vapor, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away." Jas. 4: 14. A vapor vanisheth away by being dissipated, or dissolved; so the life of man, being dissolved in death, cannot live again until the being is re-organized by a resurrection. And this mortal life clothes the body; for it surrounds and permeates the bodily structure, and may be compared to a house of a tabernacle. Hence the apostle says in continuation, after speaking of the things which are temporal—"For we know that, if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal, in the heavens."

It is clear from this quotation that the house spoken of is not the body, for, in that case, it would amount to asserting that we have another body, besides the present one, in heaven—"We have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal, in the heavens." But understand the "house" to designate the life principle, and all is clear; and then we shall know that if this life were dissolved we have an immortal life in Christ, to be clothed with in the resurrection, at Christ's appearing; as Paul had previously taught in his first epistle to the Corinthians. And that the "house" spoken of is the soul, and the "tabernacle" the body, will appear by reading the three following verses of the connection—"For in this we groan, earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven; if so be that being clothed we shall not be found naked. For we that are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened; not for that we would be unclothed, but clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life."

Here life is put in opposition to "mortality," proving the life spoken of to be immortality. And since this is said to swallow up the mortal, by way of explanation of what is meant by being "clothed upon," and this being a reference to being "clothed upon with our house which is from heaven," it proves the house spoken of to be the immortal life. And this being contrasted with "our earthly house," proves this to be our present mortal life which now clothes or animates our body, or "tabernacle." Hence when Paul says, "Not for that we would be unclothed," it is a clear proof that he did not desire death, when the body would be divested of its house, or clothing of life, but earnestly desired to put on immortality; which he had previously taught the Corinthians (chap. 15) would be put on at the resurrection of the just, who are to inherit the kingdom of God. Hence we are not to put on immortality separately, at death, but collectively, and "in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed. For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality." 1 Cor. 15: 52, 53.

Having seen that the "earthly house" is the present life of the body, or "tabernacle," it is a clear proof that it does not survive the death of the body, but is "dissolved" in death. So when Paul says "this mortal must put on immortality, and this corruptible must put on incorruption," mortality is predicated of the soul, the living principle, which must put on immortality; and corruptibility is predicated of the body, which must put on incorruptibility. For these are distinct qualities, immortality pertaining to the conscious life, and incorruptibility, to the matter of which the resurrected body will be composed. And these two distinct qualities are essential in order to inherit the kingdom of God. But if man possessed either of these qualities now, he could not put them both on in the resurrection of the just. With this understanding we may now consider

PAUL'S DESIRE TO DEPART.

In Phil. 1: 21–22, Paul says—"For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain. But if I live in the flesh, this is the fruit of my labor; yet what I should choose I wot not. For I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart and be with Christ, which is far better. Nevertheless, to abide in the flesh is more needful for you."

Now this desire to "depart" cannot relate to death, since he could not be in a strait between life and death, if he had a desire for death as something far better than to live. Hence that which he did desire was something far better than this mortal life, or death either. Adam Clarke, the learned commentator, quotes the Greek phrase which Paul uses to express this desire, and comments on it as follows:—"It appears to be a metaphor, taken from the commander of a vessel in a foreign port, who feels a strong desire (analusai) to set sail, and to get to his own country and family; but this desire is counterbalanced by a conviction that the general interests of the voyage may be best answered by a longer stay in the port where he now rides; for he is not in dock, he is not aground, but rides at anchor in the port, and may at any hour weigh and be gone."

We conclude, then, that Paul desired to unloose from this mortal condition to which he was anchored (which can only be done when this mortal shall put on immortality), and this desire was so very much better than either life or death, that it diverted his mind from a choice between life and death, so that he did not know which to choose of the two, or more literally, he was "besieged out of the two." The question then comes up, When could he unloose from this mortal condition to which he was anchored, and be with Christ? Not till Christ comes back from where he is now; for he said to his disciples, "Whither I go ye cannot come." And then he said again, "If I go away I will come again, and receive you unto myself, that where I am, there ye may be also." Whence it is apparent that if they cannot go where he is now, they will be here to be received when he shall come; which could not be, if they were gone from here there; for then they would not be here to be received.

Those who interpret this desire of death, make Paul contradict himself, where he says, "Not for that we would be unclothed"; for if he desired to die and be with Christ in death, that would make him to desire to be unclothed. So, as the desire cannot relate to death, it must relate to something far better than life or death, and so can only relate to the desire for a departure from this mortal condition, to which he was anchored, and to be with Christ in the resurrection life. So, if he continued to live in the flesh, his desire was to depart therefrom by a change from mortality to immortality; or if he died, the desire led him to look beyond the grave to the resurrection morn, when he could be with Christ. So although it was as he said, "To me to live is Christ, and to die is gain," yet as the third thing desired was so much better than the other two, he did not know which to choose of the two, but concluded that to abide in the flesh was better for their interests; while to die would be gain, because it would end his state of trial and probation, and let him sleep the sleep of death, to awake therefrom to put on immortality and be with the Lord when he comes. "To abide in the flesh" stands in opposition, therefore, to that death which was gain, and to that third thing which he desired as something far better than the mortal life, or death at the end of it.

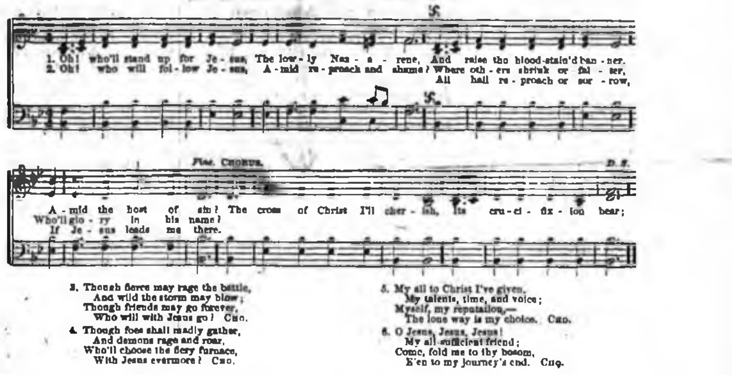
If Paul had thought of being with Christ after death, and before the resurrection, he could not have said, If the dead rise not, they that are fallen asleep in Christ are perished; for if they existed in a conscious disembodied condition, they could neither be asleep nor perish, if the dead rise not, as they would exist independent of the resurrection. He taught the Thessalonian brethren not to be ignorant concerning them that are asleep, and comforted them with the gospel hope that when the Lord should come, they should awake to die no more; whereas, if they were existing with Christ in a disembodied state, he should have comforted them with the idea that they were not asleep, but had awaked in death to a more intense life than ever. But instead of this he said—"But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others that have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him. For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent them which are asleep. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord. Wherefore comfort one another with these words." 2 Thess. 4: 13–18.

Now if they were not actually dead, or asleep (as Paul uses these terms interchangeably), then why did he keep them in ignorance of it, by teaching them that the dead in Christ were asleep? Why did he not say that their sleep was only a sham, while they were in reality more awake than ever? for if that was the fact, and he would not have them ignorant concerning them that are asleep, he should have told them so. But he did not shun to declare the whole counsel of God, and so we may be assured that when he spoke of "them that sleep in Jesus," and "the dead in Christ," that he actually meant what those terms signify, and that we must comfort ourselves with the fact that the voice of Jesus will awake those silent sleepers in the dust of the earth, to die no more. "Thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." Amen.

WM. HOBBS.

WHO'LL STAND UP FOR JESUS?

ARR. BY GEO. E. LEE.



1. Oh! who'll stand up for Je-sus, The low-ly Naz-a-rene, And raise the blood-stain'd ban-ner, A-mid the host of sin?
2. Oh! who will fol-low Je-sus, A-mid re-proach and shame? Where oth-ers shrink or fal-ter, Who'll glo-ry in his name?
All hail re-proach or sor-row, If Je-sus leads me there.
Fine. CHORUS.
The cross of Christ I'll cher-ish, Its cru-ci-fix-ion bear;
D.S.

3. Though fierce may rage the battle,
And wild the storm may blow;
Though friends may go forever,
Who will with Jesus go? CHO.

4. Though foes shall madly gather,
And demons rage and roar,
Who'll choose the fiery furnace,
With Jesus evermore? CHO.

5. My all to Christ I've given,
My talents, time, and voice;
Myself, my reputation,—
The lone way is my choice. CHO.

6. O Jesus, Jesus, Jesus!
My all-sufficient friend;
Come, fold me to thy bosom,
E'en to my journey's end. CHO.

For the World's Crisis.

ALMOST HOME.

This is a solemn and an important time in which we live, deeply interesting to all true believers in the Lord; for it is a time when we may look for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ. Angels are interested in these things; and shall mortal man stand with indifference and question the great and all-important truths of revelation? "Can ye not discern the signs of these times?" Does prophecy show clearly our whereabouts in the world's history? Never in the history of our world did the signs of the times show the end more clearly than they do at this present time.

The great and wicked dynasties of earth are to pass away, and are to be succeeded by the everlasting kingdom of God. The great work of subjugation may have commenced. Rev. 19: 15. The long voyage over the great ocean of time, from Paradise lost to Paradise restored, is about finished, and the anxious hearts of the weary saints can but exclaim, We are almost home! And as we draw near the celestial port, our hearts are filled with admiration. We can but rejoice and lift up our heads. Darkness broods over this world, and the fearful sights are but omens of its sudden destruction. War, pestilence and famine await its bloated population; they having sinned away the day of grace are left to the destroyer, and to damnation.

The last solemn events of earth are being fulfilled. "Behold! [saith the Judge], I come quickly." We may reasonably expect the revelation of Him who is to rule the nations with a rod of iron—the Messiah, any day. We are to watch and pray always, and be ready for the great event. We live in a time of great changes and fearful sights. Men may laugh at these things now, but the solemn hour of retribution awaits them.

Fair Haven, Ct. J. E. CLARK.

For the World's Crisis.

"TIME ENOUGH."

Do you think you have a plenty of time to attend to everything of a worldly nature; time to provide abundantly for the "lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye, and the pride of life," and after all that do you mean to repent and be converted, and thus secure eternal life? Are you saying to yourself, "Soul, take thine ease, eat, drink and be merry; for thou hast much goods laid up for many years?" It may be that you will be cut off suddenly, and then there will be no time to enjoy the good things of this life, and no time to repent and seek salvation.

You are on dangerous ground, standing, as it were, "on slippery places," and with all your seeming security you may fall suddenly. "He that, being often reproved, hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy." Prov. 29: 1. You have known of others being cut off without warning, and this may be your own lot. Then do not delay the great work of preparation for the last day, the day of examination, the day of judgment. To his own people the Lord says—"Watch and pray . . . watch, . . . lest, coming suddenly, he find you sleeping." To those who are not, and never have been, in his service, the great day will come "as a thief," and "as a snare," and then it will be too late to seek for pardon. Jesus calls to-day—"To-day, if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts."

Webster, Mass. F. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

For the World's Crisis.

ALMOST A CHRISTIAN.

"Almost thou persuadest me to be a christian."

This language was uttered by king Agrippa to the apostle Paul, who was vindicating his course of life, after embracing the Christian religion.

It is well known that Paul was a zealous persecutor of the Christian church previous to his conversion; also a strong supporter of the Jewish religion. He was learned in the arts and sciences of his time, and understood the prophetical writings in reference to Christ and his everlasting kingdom. While he was referring to the prophets in his defence of the christian religion, king Aggrippa uses this language: "Almost thou persuadest me to be a christian."

This language evidently came from a sincere heart. He felt the force of Paul's argument. He was satisfied concerning the truthfulness of Paul's defence, and that the doctrine of Christ as portrayed by the apostle, was a living reality. The Spirit of God was at work upon his heart. His understanding was enlightened, so that he beheld the beauties of the christian religion as exemplified in the life of Paul. He was satisfied that it was his duty to embrace the gospel; but he was unwilling to make the necessary sacrifice. Perhaps he did not wish to give up the honors, wealth, and pleasures of this vain world, for that which is to come.

How foolish his choice, and his condition how dangerous, while resisting the operations of the Divine Spirit, which was able to make him wise unto salvation. There is reason to fear that he grieved away the Spirit of God and was finally lost. How many at the present time like king Agrippa have been almost persuaded to become a christian, and are yet clinging to this world, preferring its honors, wealth and pleasures to the religion of Christ, not thinking, perhaps, that all things earthly shall pass away; but the time is coming when those who have embraced Christ, and have lived lives of obedience to his divine requirements, will receive a glorious reward in his kingdom; while those who reject him will be lost, forever lost.

What a contrast is here presented! Saved or lost. This is our probationary existence, and the time to decide this momentous question. Be wise and secure that rest that remaineth for the people of God. T. W. O.

Haverhill, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

ALONE WITH FATHER.

"By all means, use sometimes to be alone;
Salute thyself; see what thy soul doth wear.
Dare to look in thy chest; for 'tis thine own;
And tumble up and down what thou findest there."
—George Herbert.

Oh, how often does my heart utter the sweetly expressive plaint of Cowper,—

"Oh for a closer walk with God!"

Yes, I want his hand to clasp tightly mine; then I feel safe—bold as a child when his earthly father is by his side. You who have not been alone with your heavenly Father, know not how sweet it is; how it quickens the soul into active christian life, and humbles pride. Alone with God is better than to be present with all the world beside. To be alone with Father is to enjoy a rich feast of spiritual blessings, and "to grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

Our Father desires his children to be alone with him often, that he may encourage and strengthen them. The language of Holy Writ is,—"Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you." James 4: 8. When with those we love best we enjoy most. The christian poet sings,—

"Nearer, my God, to thee;
Nearer to thee."

Such is the language of every humble, penitent disciple of the cross. An impenitent sinner can never be alone with God, and if he could, how miserable would he be. How often the sinner hastens, as he travels the broad way to overtake his companions; he has a dread of being left alone. If there is any more satisfactory enjoyment for the child than to be alone with Father, I know not what it is. Communion with God is the shield of his followers.

Jesus has opened the way from earth to heaven, from man to God. It is a safe way. It is a narrow way. It is not the way of the multitude, yet it is a pleasant way, for Jesus carries the load. In the broad way every one must bear his own burden, and it is often very heavy. Jesus, when on earth, often retired to some secluded spot to hold converse with the Father. If you hunger and thirst after righteousness, if you would enjoy a rich feast, attend daily secret prayer. Let no pressure of business prevent you from putting away worldly thoughts for an hour each day, and talking with Father through the Bible and prayer. Read the Bible much. Meditate seriously. Pray often. Thus best can you grow in grace and a knowledge of the truth. Closet prayer is a good key to mooted scriptural questions; it is a better key to an exemplary christian life; it is the best key to heaven.

When our hearts are drawn out to God in loving obedience, how little do we think of forms, creeds, and denominations. I believe true religion is not found as often in public as in private life. It does not pray on street corners, to be seen and heard of men. The christian's life is hid with Christ in God.

Dear christian friends, spend all the time you can alone with God. Time is short. We must improve it while it is day, for soon the night will come—the perfect day, I hope. There is great danger of spending too little time with Father. We cannot spend too much.

Yours in faith, hope and charity,

Buckingham, Ct. A. L. ADAMS.

For the World's Crisis.

HIS PROMISE.

"I will come again, and receive you unto myself."

Who is there among us, who has not parted from some dear one? The sorrows would be well-nigh unbearable were it not for the hope of meeting again. Those who have experienced such feelings, can have at least a faint appreciation of the heaviness which weighed upon the disciples when their loved one, their light, their guide, their all was to go from them. But they were not without hope, for He assured them he would come again. This has been the christian's great expectation, through all the changing scenes of so many centuries, and now it is brighter than ever, for there is scarcely a doubt but that some of this generation will see the blessed hope consummated in his coming in great power and glory, without sin, unto salvation.

"Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven;"—with words so plain why should men err? We are not to go to him at death, for he has said . . . "where I am thither ye cannot come; but in the fullness of time, which we know (by heeding the signs and wonders of to-day) is not far distant, he will return to restore that which was forfeited by Adam's transgression. "Watch ye, therefore," lest "coming suddenly" we shall not be in a state of preparation for this grand and awful era. We must of necessity, if we believe the Book of books, ever be looking for him with joyous emotions, for he says, "If ye loved me, ye would rejoice."

Surely, beloved, it is or should be a source of constant enjoyment to every child of grace to know that these things shall come to pass. Thus saith the Lord . . . "I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice, and your joy no man taketh from you." Believing in God, we also believe in Christ, and are able to claim a share of the "many mansions" which we are told are in the Father's house. O! give us grace to ever faithful be, then we shall be received unto Christ, that where he is we may be also. We know the way, let us then strive to lead others to the strait and narrow path of truth, and the only entrance into immortality which is found in Christ Jesus the Son of God, that they too may rejoice that this world of sorrows shall be changed to one of endless bliss, and become our permanent abiding place. Then shall that great city not built with hands, which our Lord has been preparing for us, descend from heaven to the renewed earth as its capital.

Dear reader, do not be deceived; Christ as yet has not come the second time; but he must come literally, personally, gloriously, and with great majesty, attended with all his holy angels. Are you ready for eternal life? or will utter destruction, eternal annihilation, justly be your doom? Shall you be shut out from the presence of the Lord forever? Utter darkness, the second death, will be the sentence of those who do wickedly; then choose now, death and darkness, or never-ending life and light. Keep his commandments, then you shall be raised from the dead in immortality. Christ says through our brother Paul, "that if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart, that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved." Rom. 10: 9. O, then, call upon him now while he will hear, for soon, even if death (man's great enemy) does not come, Christ may; then you will become as chaff under the feet of the righteous. Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord, shall be saved. Now is the day of grace. Believe his word, then the judgment to come will have no terror for you. Remember all this must be attended to before the great day of accounts, when all must individually answer; but all will be well for those who have accepted Christ as their atonement. Will you be one of that number?

Let us be careful how we walk, making our foundation sure, that we may be found with those who are to be heirs with our Savior when he comes as King.

"Soon may the last glad song arise
Through all the millions of the skies,
That song of triumph which records
That all the earth is now the Lord's."

"He which testifieth these things saith, behold, I come quickly. Amen. Even so, come, Lord Jesus." CYRUS MENDENHALL.

Wilmington, Del.

THE KIND OF PREACHING NEEDED.

Christ's gospel must be preached in Christ's own way. We neither can improve upon the matter nor the manner. That there is a want felt and acknowledged among us, in modern sermonizing, no one can deny. What we blame in others, let us be on our guard lest we fall under the same. "The truth as it is in Jesus" is what we want; and what the world, and every age of the world, wants. It is just as much needed to-day, as in the era of its first proclamation. The world has not outgrown it. It must be constantly preached, as it was preached by Peter and Paul, as "the word of life"—"the word of God," "the word of salvation." Everything else will grow old and become effete—but this, never. It always has on it the dew of its youth. It is the regenerating word "that lives forever."

The name of Jesus must rest upon and give sanction to all we preach, or it is not what he requires at our hand. The truth, and not our conceptions of the truth, must be preached. "The truth as it is in Jesus," and not as it is in Calvin or Wesley, in Strauss or Renan, must be preached. The truth in its simplicity and purity must be preached. Not the truth as Hugh Miller, or Mansell, or Sir William Hamilton teaches it. We do not need scientific or phrenologic truth in the pulpit. The public lecture, the book and the periodical, devoted to these matters, discuss them better and more fully than the people. We do not want a gospel adapted to the learned few, but we must have, or we shall perish, the gospel adapted to the wise and the unwise—to parents and children, to day-laborers and servants—to the great multitude.

The working days of the week are saturated to fullness with secularism; and with all that the world gives or can give. When we meet together in the house of God, we want food for the soul—life-giving, life-sustaining food. The church is cursed to-day with half truths which are no truths; with sermons about the truth instead of the truth itself. The truth is becoming more and more a sensational institution—a rostrum for the sale of patent nostrums, a place for the rendition of the romance of the gospel. Anything but God's own word is now preached. "The broad gauge church,"—"Liberal Christianity,"—"The church of the future," indicate what the pulpit is catering for. We want plain, simple, earnest, faithful preaching and teaching of the word. We want expository lessons from the Bible, and every part of the Bible; not the pretty, sensational and rhetorical conceits of fleshly-minded men, who take their lessons from Beecher or Robertson.

O the hope of Israel, the Savior thereof in time of trouble, why shouldest thou be as a stranger in the land, and as a wayfaring man that turneth aside to tarry for a night. Alas! we have made him a stranger and a wayfaring man when he should be in all our churches and in every sermon.—Standard.

For the World's Crisis.

"REJOICE EVERMORE."

There are many dear brethren and sisters who sincerely desire to do the will of their heavenly Father, and I love them for it. But it is possible they may not have noticed that it is a part of the Father's will they should rejoice. Here it is: "Rejoice evermore, for this is the will of God concerning you in Christ Jesus." It is therefore as much our duty and privilege to rejoice, as it is to believe, watch, and pray. And may I, at the beginning of this new year, press home that fact upon the attention of my brethren in Christ? And shall I have the pleasure of knowing that these words are not in vain in the Lord?

"Rejoice evermore," that is, continuously. Not rejoice to-day, and lament to-morrow; not rejoice in fits and starts; not sometimes rejoice, and at others be miserable; but with even-flowing time let joy run in a constant, placid stream. "Rejoice evermore" as day succeeds day, and night follows night. Rejoice in the Lord always; yea, I say, rejoice. Always, at all times, in all places, under all circumstances, rejoice! What! in seasons of poverty, trial, and disappointment? Yes, and even in worse than these. In prisons, if ever by the grace of God you should get there. There let the song of joy be heard, as the apostles voices were heard "praising God." Do you think it looks strange to say, "If ever by the grace of God you should get there"? And is it not free favor that should account us worthy to suffer for God? Sorrowful though at times you may be, [illegible] and be "always rejoicing."

"Rejoice evermore," that is, increase in joy every day, until you enter into the presence of God where there is "fulness of joy," and stand at his right hand where there are pleasures for evermore." How can I show that this command teaches us to increase in joy daily? Divide the word "evermore," and you get ever and more. So "rejoice ever more." As you are getting nearer the end of your pilgrimage, may your gladness increase.

"Rejoice evermore" is an apostolic command. Shall it be willingly, cheerfully, and at once, obeyed by the dear readers of the Crisis? There is joy in obedience. What pleasure flows from regarding the will of our dear Father. What delights spring from Him. O how happy are they who listen to the Divine voice, and think on the command of the Lord to obey it. To them life is a time of hallowed enjoyment; yea, "all is well!"

Methinks there must be some dear child of the Father that wants to obey this command. But the difficulty is to know how they can do it. Brethren! listen whilst I speak simply and affectionately. There is only one way of rejoicing. It is through upright, simple, full acceptation and appropriation of Jesus and his words. Referring to his teachings, and especially to the promise of the Holy Spirit, and his own coming again, he says: "These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full." Yes, the words of Jesus, as in the gospel (which embraces the things of the kingdom and the Christ), are the true cause of joy everlasting. A happy brother, whom I have become acquainted with since my arrival in this country, says, the English of that "remain" is, to stay there; and, if our joy be "full," even then we can have more; for our hearts may be enlarged daily, and, of course, the more capacity we have for joy, the happier we can be.

We shall be strong if we are filled with the joy of the Lord; for says the prophet, "The joy of the Lord is your strength." And who would not be strong "in the Lord, and in the power of his might?" Surely we need strength in this world, and who shall be able to seduce us, if we have such joy as the Lord gives? "Rejoice evermore," but not in self, not in your own good works; but in the grace of God which has appeared in Jesus on earth, now appears in Him in heaven, and will be manifested in all the ages to come.

No. Scituate, R. I. W. KELLAWAY.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRISTIAN COURTESY.

Much has been written which has tended to awaken the church to the importance of preserving a quiet and courteous bearing at all times, and under all circumstances; yet we sometimes seem to forget that the christian is watched, his every act scrutinized, and conclusions unfavorable to him and through him to the cause he has espoused are drawn, if an opportunity is afforded. Frequently an earnest, softened heart has been chilled and all confidence in christians and religion itself has been nearly destroyed, by a thoughtless neglect, or an unkind word or act. From the many examples which might be cited I select the following:

A young man of a religious turn of mind went to a New England city where he was a a stranger. Desiring an acquaintance with virtuous people, he sought it through the Young Men's Christian Association at one of their social gatherings, where during the evening he proved to his sorrow that rules may be made and not acted upon, that a stranger may be passed by unnoticed where he would most certainly look for sympathy and cordiality.

In the same city, and at nearly the same time, death visited a family who were comparative strangers in the city, and, as far as church connections were concerned, entire strangers. Their infant had been taken from them and its lifeless form was to be consigned to the tomb on the morning of the 25th. On the afternoon of the 24th, the parents requested a lady who lived in the same house, and who was known to be a church member, to procure a clergyman to officiate on the occason. The church to which she belonged had no resident clergyman, so she proceeded to the house of one in whom she had much confidence as a christian minister, about a half a mile distant.

When she arrived at her destination, the rain was already falling in a heavy shower, and her umbrella was not sufficient protection against it; and she looked for a cordial welcome from its inclemency to the fireside. Her ring at the bell was answered by the minister in person, who, on recognising her, stepped outside and closed the door.

After listening to her message, he told her he would attend the funeral, remarked that we were having a hard shower, bade her good evening, re-entered the house, and closed the door, while the lady turned in a troubled state of mind to retrace her steps.

Let the reader consider that this lady had been for a long time in very delicate health, and was now wearied with watching by the sick bed. Judge of the disappointment she must feel, acting as she was from motives of kindness and sympathy. Enfeebled in body, and consequently more susceptible of strong mental impressions, she could but feel slighted and unfavorably impressed toward the clergyman.

She had not far retraced her steps, when the open door of a shoe shop seemed to invite her to take shelter within. She availed herself of its protection and contrasted the conduct of the occupant with that of the minister.

"Charity covereth a multitude of sins." Let us beware how we cause any to stumble.

—Communicated.

— Do to-day thy nearest duty.

THE WORLD'S CRISIS.

LIBERAL OFFERS FOR 1871.

VALUABLE PRESENTS!

The Best Sewing Machine,
The Best Illustrated Dictionary,
The Best Books, and
The Best S. S. Paper.

GIVEN AWAY!

FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS,
TILL THE FIRST OF JUNE.

The World's Crisis, a copy of which, dear reader, you hold in your hand, and which, for so many years, has been the leading and most widely circulated herald of the Coming King, is to-day, we trust, a welcome visitor in more than nine thousand homes, and is doubtless read every week by not less than forty thousand readers.

But do you not, dear reader, loving as you do the precious truths for which this paper has so long and so successfully fought, do you not think that this number is far below what it ought to be, and very much less than it might be, if but a little effort were faithfully and earnestly made by every one who now takes it? Do you not feel, in these last moments of time, when the Judgment of the Great Day is so near, and thousands are perishing for lack of knowledge, that it ought to be more than doubled; and that, if it were only in your power, you would, at once, and to-day, multiply its circulation and usefulness a hundred-fold? No doubt this is your feeling, and you would gladly do it, if you could. But suppose that you, and every one else of its nine thousand subscribers, or of its forty thousand readers, should take hold at once, faithfully and in earnest, and do all that you can towards that end, during the next four months, and as much longer as you may; what do you think would be the result? Would not its circulation, and the good it might do, be more than doubled in that time by your faithful efforts and the help of God? Is there any doubt of it?

The skies are full of omens of coming judgment, and men are looking fearfully for the things that are coming on the earth. They are waiting for you to speak to them. Will you? Hundreds of your brethren, too, who are waiting, as you are, for "the Hope of Israel," are without the strengthening, cheering visits of this many-tongued messenger of the Coming King. You will do them, and others through them, good, by introducing it to their hearts and homes.

We know that you will gladly do this, and all that you can, for the love that you bear to Christ and his cause, as you have, many of you, so nobly and so well, in time past; and if, again, you will give your time and labor to this work, the Lord will surely reward you when he comes. But, in advance of that, as a token of our appreciation of your kind efforts, we trust you will be pleased to receive from us YOUR CHOICE OF ANY ONE OF THE FOLLOWING PRESENTS for the new subscribers which you shall obtain for The World's Crisis and Second Advent Messenger before the 1st of June.

PREMIUMS FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

For 2 New Subscribers, with $5,
A $1 PREMIUM.

1. Hymns of Jubilee Harp. cloth; and Pilgrim Praises.
2. Fables of Infidelity, and Facts of Faith.
3. Stories for Young Pilgrims, vols. I. and II.
4. Two copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
5. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
6. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and Bible Text-Book.

For 3 New Subscribers, with $7.50,
A $1.50 PREMIUM.

1. Jubilee Harp, full gilt, extra cloth, leather back.
2. Immortality, by James H. Whitmore; and Tracts.
3. Health by Good Living, by W. W. Hall, M.D.
4. Plan of Redemption; and Nature of Man.
5. The Broken Seal; an Exposure of Freemasonry.
6. Talks about People's Stomachs, by Dr. Dio Lewis.
7. Three copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
8. Two copies "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
9. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and any $1 premium.

For 4 New Subscribers, with $10,
A $2 PREMIUM.

1. Dictionary of the Holy Bible, with 5 Maps and 250 Engravings; and Grant's "Nature of Man."
2. Cruden's Condensed Concordance, and Sheldon's "Futurity."
3. Berean's Casket and Repository; Scriptures classified by Subjects.
4. Muller's Life of Trust; Effects of Prayer and Faith.
5. Four copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
6. Three copies "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
7. Two copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1 premium.
8. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and any $1.50 premium.

For 5 New Subscribers, with $12.50,
A $2.50 PREMIUM.

1. Synchronology; or, the Principal Events in Sacred and Profane History, from the Creation of Man to the Present Time.
2. Credibility of the Scriptures, in two volumes; a recast of the former work, by J. H. McCulloh; and Bible Text-Book.
3. English Reference Bible.
4. Five copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
5. Four copies "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
6. Three copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1 premium.
7. Two copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1.50 premium.
8. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and any $2 premium.

For 10 New Subscribers, with $25,
A $6 PREMIUM.

1. Webster's National Pictorial Dictionary, 1,040 pages, octavo, and 600 Engravings, price, $6; or, the "Unabridged" (below) for $4 extra.
2. Fifteen copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
3. Seven copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $2.50 premium.

For 15 New Subscribers, with $37.50,
A $12 PREMIUM.

1. Webster's Illustrated Unabridged Dictionary, 1,840 pages, quarto, and 3,000 Engravings, price, $12. The best dictionary extant.
2. Thirty copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
3. Webster's Pictorial Dictionary ($6), and fifteen copies "Young Pilgrim."

For 40 New Subscribers, with $100,
A $55 PREMIUM.

A Grover and Baker Sewing Machine, first class in every respect, with hemmer and attachments; one of the best, if not the very best, in the market. These machines make "the Grover and Baker stitch," which is considered the best for family use, and "the shuttle-stitch." Please state which is wanted.

Things to be Remembered.

In raising your list—the names may be obtained from as many different places as you please, and the papers will be mailed by us to each separate address.

Subscriptions may be taken for the year, with $2.50 each; or double the number for six months, with $1.25 each; or any number for both periods, with $1.25 and $2.50 each, shall make up the requisite amount.

Keep a list yourself of all names and monies obtained by you and forwarded to us, with the date when sent.

In sending to us—put the list always on a sheet by itself. If, at the same time, you write on other matters, or remit for old subscribers, put that on a separate sheet.

Write each name plainly, with its post-office, county, and state, and amount paid, all on one line by itself, in that order; and, at the bottom, give the whole amount of premium monies sent, with your own name and full address.

Names sent "for a premium," should, in all cases, be so marked when sent. No name should be sent without the money.

All names and monies can be forwarded at once, or from week to week, as fast as you get them, until the 1st of June.

Any one aiming for a higher premium, and failing to get the full number of names and amount, can pay the balance in cash, and so get the premium; or he can order some other premium on the list corresponding to the amount obtained.

When you have got all the names you can, and want your premium, send us a full list of all the names, addresses, and monies you have sent, so that we may compare them with our books; then we will send you whatever premium you may select from the catalogue, —the Sewing Machines and Webster's Dictionaries by express, at the expense of the receiver, and the other books by mail, postpaid.

Monies, if under $5.00, may be sent by letter at our risk. If a larger sum, and under $25, send a Post-Office Money Order, or Registered Letter. If $25 or more, send a Bank Draft, or Money Order, payable to the order of GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass. All sums of $5.00 and over, sent in any other way than above directed, will be at the sender's risk.

All letters and remittances for premiums should be addressed to the Business Agent, undersigned, or, if more convenient, they may be enclosed in letters to the Editor, Miles Grant, Boston, Mass.

And now, dear brethren and sisters everywhere, from Maine to California, and from the Lakes to the Gulf, put your hearts and hands to the good work, and a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull all together! and the blessing of the Lord be with you!

GEO. T. ADAMS, Business Agent,
Advent Chris. Publication Society.

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, February 1, 1871.

☞ Please Remember!

☞ All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the BUSINESS AGENT, GEO. T. ADAMS.

☞ Take Notice!

☞ All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

INTERVIEW WITH A REPORTER.

Instead of our accustomed editorial, we give our readers the following, from the "San Francisco Daily Chronicle." We would simply say, there is a great stir in this city about your editor, and his preaching. The Lord is doing a wonderful work in our meetings, which astonishes the beholders. People who have been here from the early settlement of this country, say there has been no such interesting meetings before as those now in progress. New ones are starting every day in the service of the Lord; and apparently this is but the beginning of what we shall see. We have been invited into nine churches in this city. The people are anxious to hear about the coming of Christ.

We are also now (Jan. 16th) engaged in a most interesting discussion with Mr. J. S. Loveland. We are debating the following resolution:—

> "Resolved, That the Bible and reason teach that man, as an intelligent, moral being, is a composite unity, made of the dust of the ground, in the likeness of his Creator; and is mortal, remaining entirely unconscious between death and the resurrection."

The discussion has been held three evenings, and is to be continued some five more.

During all our labors in the ministry, we have never been in a more interesting field than San Francisco. Dear brethren, continue to pray for us.

The following is the "interview" to which we have referred:—

ELDER MILES GRANT.

Interview with a "Chronicle" Reporter.

The Tenets of the Sect called "Second Adventists."

CHRIST'S "APPEARING" EXPECTED BEFORE 1875.

The "Order" of Events in the Advent.

The Millenium—The Saints' Home to be on this Planet—The Origin of the "Mission" to this Coast—The Elder has a Sign from God, bidding him come to San Francisco.

In view of the great and growing interest manifested in the lectures and discussions of Elder Miles Grant, Chief Apostle in the Second Advent faith, and the consequent curiosity evinced by many of our people to learn something in regard to the personal history of the man, we concluded to dispatch one of our interviewing reporters on the grand errand of inquiry, and ascertain if the Elder was willing to satisfy, through our columns, the natural, popular desire to which we have referred. The member of our staff selected to perform the delicate task fully comprehended the nature of the case, and on Thursday evening at his usual late hour of retiring from the reporter's room, bade his comrades a remarkably tender "good night." His voice was tremulous as he uttered the parting words, as though he was apprehensive that some severe calamity might befall him in his attempt to brave with questionings of a personal character, the man renowned as most familiar with that prophet who bearded the lions in their den. Cheered, however, and apparently reassured by the hearty hand-shaking and encouraging exclamations of his associates, our Interviewer wrapped his cloak about him, and strode from the sanctum of the Chronicle office with a firm and manly step. It was evident that he intended to lie down that night in his martial cloak, nor ever again to retire to his sheeted couch until his mission was fulfilled. We felt confident from the moment his last footstep on the outer threshold was heard that he would be successful in his bravely accepted and undertaken work; and accordingly we were not surprised when at high noon yesterday, Saturday 14th day of January, 1871, he returned to the sanctum of the Chronicle, pale and exhausted, but with the bright gleam of triumph in his eye, and laid upon the editor's desk a manuscript which read as follows:

TO THE CHIEF OF THE CHRONICLE INTERVIEWING DEPARTMENT.

In obedience to your just commands and royal pleasure of selection, I have visited, examined and cross examined Elder Miles Grant, of Boston, the Second Advent Evangelist, who is now holding forth in this city, and herewith submit a full report of his preliminary responses and answers, embracing entities of faith and doctrine which are not immaterial. I received the authority and order for this work without objection or murmur, and I humbly trust that the service will be approved as faithful and satisfactory, and on next Monday I shall be duly notified at the cashier's desk that my salary has been raised. Yours, etc.

INTERVIEW OBTAINED AND SUBJECT INSPECTED.

Ascertaining that the Elder lodged and boarded with a private family whose residence is situated in the outer portion of the city, and thinking it would be inconvenient for him to receive strangers unawares (that is to say, unannounced) at the house of his entertainer, and recognizing the fact that it would be very inconvenient for myself to make an excursion to the residence referred to at the, to me, unseasonable hour when he was said to be most at leisure, I cast about to find some friend or acquaintance of the Elder's who had an office in town, and who could so arrange an appointment for himself that I might drop in at an opportune moment, secure an introduction and commence operations. I felt that the time was short for maneuvering, and I accordingly labored in the direction indicated with great diligence. Fortune favored me. On the fifth application in the circle of those reputed to sustain intimate relations with the Evangelist, I found an accomodating gentleman, who had known the party of the first part many years ago in the State from which he now hails; and at nine o'clock Friday morning, January 13th, I found myself in the presence I desired —introduced, and afforded full opportunity to attempt a genuine revival of the "reviewing" business. My experience has taught me that, in a difficult case—or one presumed to bear that character—procrastination and hesitation are terrible demoralizers. The best way is to "out with it" at once, and definitely determine the better or worse prospects of an interesting revelation. And yet I could not but pause a moment, after salutations had been given, ere I opened the elementary catechism. For it forthwith occurred to me that I had mistaken and magnified the embarrassments of my mission.

THE ELDER'S APPEARANCE.

The Elder has a remarkably contrasting appearance off the stage from that which he bears when on the high platform at Dashaway Hall he is engaged in smashing theological crockery, or on the lower dais is reasoning earnestly with free-thinkers and Spiritualists concerning Christ and his merits. There he is a "potency," or "force-centre," of admitted physical and electrical largeness (whatever that may be); now I had sitting before me a man under the middle size, apparently about thirty-five or forty years of age, whose blue eyes flashed not with magnetizing sharpness, but beamed with a gentle and loving radiance (whatever this may be), and whose voice, instead of rolling forth in stentorian notes, bade me a kindly welcome in tones as low and soft as the most excellent conversational music of some women. "Here," said I mentally, "I have been nerving myself for repulse, reorganization of assailing forces, resumption of hostilities under difficulties, when my victim is the mildest-mannered man that ever cut a Gordian knot of religious dogmatism with the sword of the Spirit, or scuttled an old creed hulk with the broad-axe of truth." Yet some attribute or property of my material organism admonished me that I must open with prudence and proceed with circumspection.

PRELIMINARY.

Reporter.—Elder, I am very glad to have met you this morning; indeed, all things considered, I do not think I could have appointed a time for an introduction and conversation that would have been more agreeable to me.

Elder.—I am always pleased to form new acquaintances, and converse with them on the subject of personal religion.

Reporter.—To be quite candid with you, Elder, I cannot say that such an object was in my mind when I came to the conclusion that I would like to see and speak with you in private. I have a particular object and purpose in view in improving an accidental [ahem] opportunity to communicate with you directly, face to face, and my disposition and instructions are to be frank with you in declaring my office and business. I am a reporter for the most enterprising and widely circulated daily in this city—the daily Chronicle. It has been the practice of that paper to send out its representatives and "interview" prominent citizens, and strangers of distinction who come into our midst, in order to elicit and publish such items of personal history and opinion as might be interesting to its many thousands of readers. I suppose you will at once understand from this the benefits I propose to derive from this meeting, on behalf of the proprietors and readers of the San Francisco Chronicle.

Elder.—I have heard about this practice of "interviewing" as it is called; and I believe that to a certain extent, on two or three occasions, I have been a subject for such a personal examination—not wittingly on my part, however. I am not here to seek for notoriety. I came here to preach Jesus, and the speedy coming of his kingdom, and the Bible truths in regard to the nature and destiny of man. I profess to be doing my Master's work, as he has commanded me, and unless I can see that any communications such as I understand you desire will tend to the salvation of men and the glory of God, I must refrain from making them.

Reporter.—You can readily believe, Elder, that there is a widespread desire among the people of this city to learn something definitely concerning your antecedents, and to obtain in some comprehensive form, a statement of your points of religious faith wherein you differ from what are known as the orthodox churches. It is reported that you subscribe to many doctrines which are apparently inconsistent with those you have already formally announced in discourses delivered in this city. And I respectfully submit that it would be not only to your advantage personally, but would be of benefit to your mission generally, if you would dictate to the reporter of the paper that reaches the largest number of readers in this city, exactly what you do believe and contend for as, in your opinion, essential or leading articles of Christian faith. As to inquiries and replies concerning your life and service, I submit that no harm can arise from such a statement of your personal history and will only embrace the dates and record of acts usually given in biographical dictionaries. Under the circumstances, I can assure you, no sensible person will accuse you of seeking notoriety by making the revelations called for. Besides, you will certainly by the proposed publication be relieved from a thousand questionings that will otherwise unnecessarily consume your time, and perhaps tax your patience.

Elder.—I am not certain about that. [Catching up my last suggestion with great quickness.] If the people here are like our New England folks, if you tell them the day you were born, they will insist on knowing what sort of a house it was in which you were born. But [turning upon me with a pleased expression of countenance] I like your candor. I am disposed to answer such questions as you may think proper to ask, and trust to your judgment and conscience to publish my replies correctly, and with such explanations as will prevent my being placed in a false light before the community. There is force in your suggestion about a comprehensive statement of the doctrines I hold and preach. I intend to speak of all the grand Bible truths which our people advocate as a Christian Church, before I leave the city; but it may be well to prevent misapprehension in advance by a concise declaration of my conviction and faith founded on the Word.....

Reporter.—Now, Elder, let me ask when you were converted?

THE ELDER RECOUNTS HIS CONVERSION.

Elder.—It was in the month of December, 1842. I never went into a prayer meeting in my life until the night I was converted.

Reporter.—That was in the Methodist church, I suppose?

Elder.—Yes. But I was converted by the preaching of the prophecies. In 1842, a man by the name of Henry A. Chittenden came to Winsted and expounded the prophecies. Mr. Chittenden was a merchant in Hartford, Ct., where he heard and acknowledged the truths of prophecy, and felt a call to go out and spread the truth concerning the near approach of the Second Advent. He was then in a very prosperous business, and owned what was known as the "Tall Store" in Hartford. Many of your readers will remember him, and many more will recollect the building to which I refer. His brother, H. B. Chittenden of New York, is one of the leading merchants of that city, and they are now associated together.

Reporter.—Does he still hold to the Second Advent faith?

Elder.—O, yes; as firmly as ever. The light of prophecy is growing brighter every day. I was going to say that before I heard Mr. Chittenden,

I WAS AN INFIDEL.

An examination of the prophecies convinced me of the truth of the Bible, and in the very first prayer meeting I ever attended I asked God to forgive my sins, and I obtained the blessing, and I've been on the Lord's side ever since—praise God!

Reporter.—Did you formally join the Methodist church?

Elder.—I did; but I did not join the Conference. I kept on teaching. I would go out occasionally and preach, but my profession was that of a teacher until after I went to Jonesville Academy. There I felt fully called to the ministry.

Reporter.—Then you were licensed to preach in the Methodist church?

Elder.—I was offered a license.

Reporter.—No objection raised in that church to your Second Advent views?

Elder.—Well, there was some objection made; but the Presiding Elder of the district, Seymour Landon, who resided at Winsted, said that he hoped the Lord would come quickly, and that I should have full freedom to preach my views on that subject.

Reporter.—When did you adopt your present views on what is known as the

LIFE AND DEATH QUESTION?

Elder.—Shortly after my conversion I heard of the doctrines to which you refer. I thought they amounted to rank infidelity. Now I am as certain that they are true as that Jesus is my Savior. Every time I look at them they grow stronger. I began to search the Bible with reference to them, and the light began to break in upon me. My friends came to me and inquired of me in regard to the matter. From some remarks which I let fall they commenced asking if I believed so and so. I told them I was looking at the subject. I didn't want to say "yes;" and for some time after I was convinced of the truth on the life and death question, I did not tell anybody of my radical change of views. I found, however, that I was grieving the Lord by hiding the truth, and so I spoke out freely. As I told you, I was at Jonesville Academy when I first became entirely satisfied that I was called to the ministry as the business of my life. Then I went out and commenced the work of the ministry, and have been so engaged ever since. That was in 1851.

Reporter.—I understand that you have been

A GREAT TRAVELER

since you commenced your ministry.

Elder.—I have traveled, on an average, from twelve to fifteen thousand miles a year—probably over two hundred and fifty thousand miles in all.

Reporter.—Through what sections of the country?

Elder.—Through the New England and Middle and Western States and the Canadas. I have preached also at Washington, and in some of what are known as the Border States.

DISCUSSIONS.

Reporter.—You have held many discussions of the character of that in which you are now engaged at Dashaway Hall?

Elder.—I have held in the neighborhood of fifty discussions with leading Spiritualists, Universalists, and with Orthodox ministers. My special object in all these discussions has been to battle against Spiritualism. That is the great delusion of the age. The true doctrines of the Bible in regard to the life and death theme leave it no stone to stand upon; and they sweep away the monstrous doctrine of the eternal torment of the impenitent wicked.

THE SPREAD OF ADVENT AND THE NEW "LIFE AND DEATH" DOCTRINE.

Reporter.—How many preachers are there now in this country who hold to what is known as the "Second Advent" doctrines?

Elder.—The belief in regard to the near approach of the Second Advent is very widely extended, and in some form, and to a greater or less degree of conviction, may be said to exist among members of all denominations. It is said upon good authority that of the thirty thousand ministers in England, fully one third believe and preach that the Lord is coming soon to judge the world.

Reporter.—I refer more particularly to the preachers of the entire schedule of faith which you proclaim.

Elder.—Ten years ago we ascertained that there were six hundred ministers in this country who preached that the Second Advent was close at hand, and that the real man is by nature mortal, and that the wicked are destroyed, while the righteous only receive the gift of immortal life. I think that there are now at least one thousand preachers specially engaged in this country in spreading abroad these doctrines. In New England, especially, these doctrines have been pretty thoroughly disseminated. Indeed, I have heard more immortal-soul preaching since I have been in San Francisco than I have heard for years in New England. In England these Bible truths on the nature and destiny of man are spreading with great rapidity. Dr. Leask, the editor of the Rainbow, a monthly published in London, writes us that if the ministers in that great city, who really believe these truths, would "speak out," it would create a theological revolution there at once. Henry Constable and others who are among the ablest scholars and writers in London, are advocating these truths and with great power. Mr. Wyckoff, the Secretary of the American Bible Union, believes in the utter destruction of the wicked. . . .

Reporter.—How many

PUBLICATIONS

have you in this country in which the views you announce are advocated?

Elder.—I think we have perhaps twelve regular publications—weeklies and monthlies. The Crisis, the weekly published at Boston, of which I have been the editor since '55, has a circulation of over nine thousand copies.

Reporter.—When did the views you advocate on the Life and Death question

FIRST COME INTO PROMINENCE

in this country?

Elder.—They have been held by some, of course, since the time of the Apostles and the Apostolic Fathers of the Church. They preached no other doctrine. One hundred and fifty years before Christ the Pharisees embraced the immortal-soul dogma of their heathen neighbors. But Jesus and his apostles have told us to beware of the doctrine of the Pharisees. Christ never said a word about an "immortal soul;" nor the apostles, nor the apostolic Fathers. Pope Clement V. decreed the soul was immortal. Hence arose Prayers to Saints, Purgatory, and similar doctrines generally believed in the church at the time of the Reformation; when Luther said that the Pope "makes such decrees as that the soul is immortal, and all those monstrous opinions found in the dunghill of the Roman decretals." William Tyndall, who gave us the first printed edition of the English Bible, believed the Life and Death doctrines we advocate, and died a martyr to his faith. Against George Wishart, another martyr, one of the charges read: "Thou false heretic, thou hast said that the soul sleeps until doomsday." Bishop Newton proclaimed the doctrine of the destruction of the wicked. Archbishop Whately, of Dublin, whose works are standards in all Episcopal churches, wrote a book which perhaps you have seen, in which he advocated the sleep of the dead. Eminent men in all times have believed this truth. In 1839 a man in New York, named George French, published a pamphlet setting forth these truths. In 1842, Geo. Storrs, who had been led by French's pamphlet to examine the subject, published his famous six sermons. Since that time the truths he proclaimed have spread with continually increasing rapidity.

Reporter.—What is the character of the CHURCH ORGANIZATION

of the Second Adventists?

Elder.—We have Elders and Deacons; and we have conference meetings. But we have not, strictly speaking, any sect organization. Our ministers are called "Elders." We repudiate the name of "Reverend" as a title which belongs alone to the Creator. Our preachers are ordained by the laying on of hands; the ordination ceremonies being conducted by those already in the ministry. We have no creed but the Bible.

COMMUNION.

We celebrate the Lord's Supper whenever and as often as the officiating Elder or the majority of those to whom he ministers deem it profitable—no stated seasons. We celebrate it by sitting at one table and eating unleavened bread and drinking of the pure, unfermented juice of the grape; singing hymns and giving God thanks.

BAPTISM.

Reporter.—I understand you believe in immersion?

Elder.—We do; think that is the scriptural mode. But it is not a test of fellowship with us. At our communion we invite all who love the Lord Jesus to partake with us.

Reporter.—It is said that you do not believe in the baptism or salvation of infants?

Elder.—We do not believe in infant baptism; but all infants will be saved. "Of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

Reporter.—I understand you do not believe in the ultimate

CONVERSION OF THE WORLD?

Elder.—Not at all. There is no warrant in Scripture for any such belief. On the contrary, it is expressly stated otherwise in the Bible.

Reporter.—I understand you do not believe in the doctrine of

THE TRINITY?

Elder.—We do not believe that the Son is the Father, nor the Father the Son. We believe that Christ is the Son of God, according to the Scriptures; as in John 20: 31. We believe Christ is the divine Son of God; believe in the Divinity of Christ most absolutely. We believe that the Holy Spirit proceedeth from the Father; is the emanation from God by means of which he is with all his children at once; dwelling in the hearts of Christians; causing them to love God and to love one another. It is the divine nature which Christians possess, and without which no man can become a Christian or continue a Christian.

Reporter.—You believe in a literal

RESURRECTION AND "KINGDOM?"

Elder.—I do, most fully. As Paul says in 1 Cor. 15: 12-18; also, in Rev. 11: 15-18. If there is no literal resurrection, then are we all perished. I shall preach on the "Kingdom" next Sunday evening, at the Minna-street church. Come and hear.

Reporter.—What are your views on the ATONEMENT?

Elder.—A proper reply to that question requires the fulness of a sermon. I intend to preach on that subject soon. The truth in regard to the nature and destiny of man throws great light upon that subject. It makes it a new and more glorious theme.

WHEN WILL THE END BE?

Reporter.—Do you fix any date for the second coming of Christ?

Elder.—I preach that he is to come soon—very soon. I am sure of that. The day and the hour no man knoweth. I think he will not delay his coming beyond the year 1875. I believe the last jots and tittles of prophecy concerning events preceding his coming have nearly all been fulfilled. If you desire, I can give you my belief as to the general from this time until His coming, and until His dominion is set up under the whole heavens.

ORDER OF EVENTS

Reporter.—I should be glad to have you do so.

Elder.—I believe that this world's inhabitants will grow worse, as a whole, from now to the end, in harmony with Paul's saying that "evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse." I believe that Spiritualism will increase, and spread in power and influence. But the real christians in all the churches will see the truth of the Lord's coming, as an event at the doors. All intelligent men in all civilized nations may be said to be impressed already with the conviction that some wonderfully great and dreadful event is at hand. I believe that true christians in all churches will see this truth, believe it, and more and more associate together in fellowship of this faith—forming one church in word and spirit. Not that they will all agree precisely in matters of doctrine; but the great, prime truths of the Bible, including the entire mortality of man, will be accepted by them. But the mass will grow worse. In other words, there will be no conversion of the world. There will be a union of the anti-Christian element against Christ, the Bible and the churches. All true christians will separate themselves more fully from the world, seeing the evidence of His coming. But, as it was in the days of Noah and Lot, so shall it be when the Son of man cometh. Then Christ will come, in the glory of his Father, in the New Jerusalem. He will come in the Metropolitan City, the Crystal Palace, the Capital of the new earth. But this city will not come immediately to the earth. It will remain in the heavens above, where all can see it. The living wicked will then be calling on the rocks and mountains to hide them from the wrath of the Lamb. Then Christ will raise the righteous dead. (First Thessalonians 4: 16.) The righteous dead rise, and they, with the righteous living, are "caught up" to the New Jerusalem—caught up in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air. So says the Scripture. Then the living wicked are cut off by judgments. (Second Thess. 1: 7). The next step is to cleanse the "Sanctuary." The Sanctuary is the land promised to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, first mentioned in Exodus, 15: 17; then in Psalms, 78: 54; then referred to in Daniel, 8: 13. While the saints are up in the air, in this New Jerusalem, this cleansing is going on; the Sanctuary, the original Paradise, restored—the second Eden. "He has chosen Mount Zion; beautiful for situation; the joy of the whole earth. And I will make the place of my feet glorious." Then the New Jerusalem comes down to the earth, and in it Christ, with his saints, reigns for a thousand years. This is the millenium. Satan has been bound.

Reporter.—Excuse me, Elder, but it is objected sometimes to the belief that the saints' home will be on earth, that there will not be room sufficient to hold the multitude.

Elder.—Well, you make sure of getting there, and you will find plenty of room. The City will be at least three hundred and seventy five miles square—that is, according to the measurement given by the Revelator. Now as to space, facts: allowing that there were 800,000,000 of people at the beginning of the race, instead of two individuals, allowing thirty years for a generation, the population to be kept even all the time, making no allowance for the flood, when our race was reduced to eight persons, two hundred generations for the six thousand years, and they might all stand in the State of New York, and have nearly a square yard to stand upon. But the New Jerusalem would cover Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, and nearly half of Pennsylvania. The Promised Land embraced, you must remember, much more than Palestine, which was the land of the Philistines. This New Jerusalem is but the capital of the kingdom. Christ having reigned with his saints a thousand years, we come in Scripture to Rev. 20: 4-6. According to the Scriptures the wicked dead are then raised, and Satan is loosed. And they come up together and compass the camp of the saints, and fire comes down from Heaven and devours them. Then the rest of the earth goes through the fiery, cleansing baptism described by 1 Peter 3: 7 and 10, as also expressed in Rev. 20: 7-9. Then the whole earth is made anew, and filled with the glory of God as when it was first made—surpassing it, indeed, in beauty. Then there will be no wicked living anywhere in the universe. Then, as Obadiah says, "The wicked shall be as though they had not been." Illustrated by the parable of the tares. Then Christ shall deliver up the kingdom to the Father. (1 Cor. 15: 24-18. See Rev. 21.) And in that city and in this new earth the righteous shall dwell with Christ forever. There we shall see the Father as he is; for the pure in heart shall see God.

THE ELDER'S DIET AND SANITARY HABITS.

As we were about retiring, we remarked to the Elder that he was a remarkably well-preserved man.

Elder.—I have been a vegetarian for eighteen years, and for ten years I have eaten but two meals a day. I eat no seasoning on my food, and live principally upon unleavened Graham bread, and plain pudding made of oat meal. I always sleep with my window open, go to bed as near nine o'clock as I can, and sleep or remain in bed as near seven hours each night as I can. I take a full bath every morning, immediately on rising. I can preach fifteen times a week, do my editorial and all other writing work I have to perform, and am as fresh and vigorous every morning as I can conceive it possible to be.

WHY THE ELDER CAME TO CALIFORNIA.

Reporter.—I had almost forgotten to ask you, Elder, how it was that you came to California this season? If it is not an impertinent question?

Elder.—I will tell you with pleasure. We have received during the past year letters from persons residing in this State, strongly urging our Board of Missions to send one of our preaching brethren to this city. At the last meeting of the Board it was decided that some one should be despatched in response to the call from California. The Board desired me to go. I told them I would ask the Lord about it; if he did not wish to have me go, they had not money enough to send me. So I retired to my closet, and asked for a sign which the Lord gives me when I ask him for a yea or nay direction, and I received the sign bidding me come among you. And I am glad I was ordered to come. I never had sweeter peace than I have had in San Francisco. I have been most cordially received by the people I have met; and the public press has been very kind and helpful in behalf of the Mission. The door has been opened wide for me as a minister of God. I have met one of the best men I ever knew—Bro. Bailey, of the Minna-street church, and we have already seen the good work of a revival commenced.

DISCUSSION WITH MR. LOVELAND.

We send our readers the report of our discussion with Mr. Loveland, as given in the San Francisco Daily Chronicle, Jan. 12th. This is the report of the debate on the second evening.

A Theological Duel.

ELD. MILES GRANT VS. REV. J. S. LOVELAND.

The condition of the soul after death discussed—Subtle arguments and ingenious sophistries.

The interest in the debate between Elder Miles Grant and Rev. Mr. Loveland, is decidedly on the increase, and last night Dashaway Hall was crowded to excess by an audience eager to catch every word that fell from the lips of the debaters. As we noticed yesterday, the disputants were allowed to make speeches only of twenty minutes' duration. Rev. O. P. Fitzgerald officiated as time-keeper, and did his best, with but poor success, to infuse a comic element into the proceedings. As we have before stated, the subject of debate was whether the soul is an entity, that is, distinct in itself as relates to the body, and whether the dead are conscious. Elder Grant maintained the negative. Mr. Loveland the affirmative. The contest was exceedingly interesting. . . . To give the whole of the arguments would, of course, occupy too much space. Its character, however, may be gathered from the following selections:

FIRST ROUND.

Mr. Loveland opened the discussion by reviewing the course of the argument up to that time. This occupied most of his twenty minutes.

Mr. Grant next pointed out that the same Hebrew word translated "soul" in the Bible, was also translated in many other ways; as, "life," "mind," desire," etc., and was the same as the Greek word psyche, used in the New Testament.

ROUND SECOND.

Mr. Loveland admitted that the word translated "soul" was used in many other significations: He admitted also that the word "soul" was used in the sense of "me," "his," etc.—"my soul," meaning myself. But it must be remembered that while he admitted the possibility of "losing" the soul, the soul could not be "killed."

When the term "destroy the soul" was used in Scripture, it did not mean that it was annihilated; it only meant that it might be lost.

He held that the soul is not immaterial, but non-material; it was a spiritual substance.

At this many in the audience visibly blinked, while others, who knew less about it, nodded their heads in full assent to Mr. Loveland's lucid definition.

He went on to say that he admitted that attributes could not exist separate from the body of which they were attributes, but it rested with Mr. Grant to prove his assertion that the soul was an attribute of the body. Life, an attribute or property of a living thing, and not an entity? How did Elder Grant know it was? What would a living thing be without that attribute? It would cease to be a living thing. The soul was an entity (Mr. Loveland said), and so retained its personality after leaving the body.

In support of this he quoted that passage in Revelations, where the souls of martyrs are represented as under the altar, crying, "How long, Lord?" Also, Paul's statement of his visit to the third heaven, "whether in the body or out of the body I know not." Also, his expression, "Absent from the body, present with the Lord;" the appearance of Moses and Elias to Jesus at the "Transfiguration;" Paul's assertion that a "cloud of witnesses" were watching the movements of human beings, and other appropriate Scriptural passages. He also touched on other points of the main argument, but as they were not discussed during the evening, we may reserve notice of them until they are—probably this evening.

A PLEASANT RECESS.

Here Mr. Fitzgerald called "time," and announced a "pleasant recess"—to be occupied by the taking up of a collection. Certain favored gentlemen then passed round with other people's hats, and received the contributions. Mr. Fitzgerald urged the people to be liberal, in order that expenses might be paid. "If there is an excess," he said, "we may prevail upon the two brethren to accept it." At this, Mr. Loveland smiled a smile, but Mr. Grant preserved a stern and uncompromising front. When the contributions were emptied out on the table, Mr. Fitzgerald was surprised into saying that he had never known there were so many dimes in California. Then the audience had their laugh, and, amidst the greatest hilarity, came up to the scratch. If we are irreverent in this connection, we only follow the Rev. O. P. F.'s lead.

GRANT

Mr. Grant said, first, there was no expression in the whole Bible qualifying the word soul or spirit with any adjective signifying immortal or everlasting.

Mr. Loveland had admitted that the word "soul" meant life. He (Mr. Grant) would say that life was a property, not an entity, and, if only a property or attribute, it was not accountable for its actions. Nowhere is life held out as an entity. Whether a lamb is killed or a child is killed, they die in the same way. They breathe out their last. We are "all of one breath." The Hebrew word nephesh, or the Greek psyche, was sometimes used in the sense of "desire." Desire was the attribute or a property of a living being, and Mr. Loveland admitted that no attribute could exist without the body. Desire could not exist without the body. As to the text in Genesis—"As Rachel's soul was departing" (for she died), one thing is certain, that the soul was not Rachel. If it was, it died; for Rachel died and was buried. What, then, did the soul mean there? Might it not mean life? As in one hundred and twenty other places in the Old Testament, thus: "And it came to pass as her life was departing." He would also maintain that the dead are judged. If the soul was something that never died, then it would never be judged.

Another passage in the Old Testament—the restoration to life by Elijah of the widow's son—"the soul of the child came back to him"; that also meant life, and could be read in that way with good sense. It was the child's life simply that went, not the soul. "The sickness was so sore that there was no breath left in him." What did he want back? Why, his breath, of course—the same breath that God "breathed into the nostrils" of Adam, which made him become "a living soul."

As to the "souls under the altar," what did "souls" there mean? It could not mean life, or St. John in his vision could not have "seen" it. Neither did it mean desire, for the same reason. It meant persons, for they had been, the Revelations say, "beheaded," and neither life nor desire could be beheaded. John saw what was to be—the martyrs of the middle ages. They were not born when he saw the vision. Then they are represented further on as "coming to life." These "beheaded" souls came to life and praised the Lord—without organs of speech?

Another passage—"Fear not them that kill the body, but fear rather Him who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell." On this point Elder Grant argued that men could kill the body, and of course, according to his theory, what is called the soul, at the same time. But that at the last judgment only God would have the power to inflict upon mankind the second and final death. "Time."

THIRD ROUND.

Mr. Loveland said Mr. Grant had asserted that in the text referring to Rachel, "soul" meant life. What was life? Mr. Grant had said it was an attribute, and that an attribute could not exist apart from that body of which it was an attribute. How, then, could Rachel's soul depart, and where did it go? How could an attribute depart?

As to the raising of the widow's son. The "attribute," as Mr. Grant called it, went away out of the lad's body and came back again; and yet Mr. Grant said "the life went away and came back again." The common-sense view of the matter was that Rachel's soul departed and went; the boy's soul went; his breath, of course, failed also. When the soul returned, the breath did also.

As to the "souls under the altar," he (Mr. L.) would admit that they were persons. On this point Mr Loveland made no real answer to Mr. Grant's argument.

As to the text about "killing" the soul. The soul could not be killed. If the soul was not used as a person, then it must be used as an attribute. Mr. Grant said that they can't be separated. If, then, the body were killed, would not the soul be killed also? The ability to kill the body meant also the ability to kill the soul. Here, then, in the text it meant something that could exist after the body had been killed.

The word "destroy" in the text, did not mean kill or annihilate; it only meant "banish," and in that sense the same word was used in the text, "the lost sheep of the house of Israel," and in other texts. "Time."

ELDER GRANT

followed next. He said he would still maintain that life was an attribute, although it could "come" and "go." How could hate go? Was it necessarily an entity because it could come and go?

Life, he (Mr. G.) said, was the result of an organization. The breath of life was an entity, and its combination with the organism of our bodies resulted in what was called life. Motion, for instance, was the result of the organized machinery of a watch. Stop the watch, the motion was "gone." The same with life. "The breath left him." That was, the power of passing the heart in and out had been lost. Mr. Grant here illustrated, by turning out a jet of gas, how light, for instance, could "go" without going anywhere, and could "come back."

As to "He that loseth his life shall find it." That meant that the life taken away by man would be restored by God. "Ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God."

As to the argument that the case of the "thief on the cross" is in evidence of the separate and intelligent existence of the soul, Mr. Grant argued that in the first place the thief said, "Lord, remember me when thou comest," not goest "into thy kingdom," and that Jesus answered, "Verily, I say unto thee to-day, thou shalt be with me in Paradise," producing the authority of good commentators for his statement, that the comma was misplaced in the common version of the New Testament, viz., "Verily, I say unto thee to-day thou shalt be with me in Paradise." Mr. Grant also argued that Jesus did not go to Paradise that day but went into "hades;" also, that when he met his disciples, after the resurrection, he told them he had not yet "ascended" to his Father. The thief, too, according to the Hebrew reckoning of time, did not die on the same day as Jesus. The text, "absent from the body," Mr. Grant construed as figurative, meaning "the body" of the church. "Ye are all of one body."

Here at twenty minutes past nine Mr. Firzgerald closed the debate briefly, but elegantly, by announcing that there would be "no more tongue" that night.

The debate will be resumed, and probably concluded this evening, beginning at seven o'clock.

PERSONAL.—We are glad to learn that Bro. J. W. Thomas is much better. He feels that prayer has been answered in his behalf.

CORRECTION.—In article, "Mene, Tekel," of last week, sixth line from top, for "version," read vision. Further on, for "two kings," read ten kings.

SOUTHERN NOTES.

Occasional hints from the South may not be out of place; so, although I do not intend to write a regular journal, I will drop a few brief notes.

Left Brodhead, Wis., Jan. 14, and preached in Chicago on Sunday the 15th. Being blocked in there by the greatest snow storm of the season, I did not leave for the South till Tuesday, the 17th. Though Chicago was well snowed under, only twelve hours' ride brought me out of sight of snow; and twelve hours more brought me where they were busily engaged in plowing.

Reached Macon, Georgia, in due time, but found no chance for an opening at present; but may try again soon. So many come from the North, and take imprudent steps, that a northern man is looked upon with great suspicion. It will require much time to rise above it. "Yankees" is a name held in poor repute here. But I think there are noble men in the South, when they find us to be their friends. I am to preach in Irwinton, Ga., in the Presbyterian meeting-house, to-morrow night (Jan. 21st), and over Sunday, and then go either to Macon, or to Brunswick, Ga., to try to make an opening. Why I do not remain here longer, and why I go to one of the other points, I will explain in due time.

Let the friends all understand, that the A. A. M. Society furnished the means for me to get to this field, and at once fill up the treasury. W. S.

"Caught up."—I am inquired of, by a correspondent, whether Paul's statement that we shall be "caught up," may not mean being raised up from the grave, instead of rising up into the atmosphere? We answer, No, because,

1. The statement includes those who have never been in their graves, having never died. "The dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them [with the resurrected saints] in the clouds." 1 Thess. 4: 16, 17. As the living saints, who are not to be raised from the dead, are to be "caught up" with the resurrected saints, and also as the resurrected saints are to be "caught up" after being raised from the dead, it is certain that this being "caught up" is not identical with the resurrection.

2. The expression "in the clouds" cannot signify a resurrection, nor can it be reduced to a figure without also making the resurrection a figure.

3. In being "caught up" we are "to meet the Lord in the air." In order to "meet," the Lord must be coming toward us, and we be going toward the Lord. But where will the Lord come from? From heaven. Then we must "meet" somewhere between earth and heaven—Paul says "in the air"—and if Christ's descent is literal, our ascent must be as literal if we literally "meet." W. S.

Sow the seed of Truth.—It is a good time to instil principles of truth into the minds of people. There is now, to a great extent, a willingness to examine the merits of our faith. Shall we not give them an opportunity? Every one can do something in this direction; if not by preaching or talking, they can do it by scattering publications, where they will be read, such as papers, books, and tracts.

It is sometimes said, "I do not believe in wasting so much in scattering reading matter"; but I always find penuriousness at the bottom of this excuse. In many cases a little money expended in tracts or papers, and sent to a distant friend by mail, will bring him into the light. A few months ago I mailed one of my works to a friend that I had not seen for eighteen years, and recently I received a letter from him showing that his theology was thereby revolutionized, and he is now rejoicing in the whole truth. Let others try it. A friend is pretty sure to read what you take pains to send by mail. W. S.

"Preach the Word."—In thus preaching, the principle of "rightly dividing the word of truth" should not be overlooked, remembering that "the form of sound words" is no detriment to our message; and though human wisdom should not supplant the wisdom that is from above, it can be used to the glory of God when not perverted. It has been wisely said that the "foolishness of preaching" does not consist in preaching foolishness, nor in foolish preaching. "Preach the word"—not speculations, nor traditions. God's word is as true to-day as when first put into the Bible. It was dictated by heavenly wisdom. There is such a thing as "handling the word of God deceitfully," and also such a thing as handling it foolishly. Let us make a wise use of it to counteract the fables of these last days, and by it "prove all things," or test the theories of men. W. S.

Correspondence.

From Bro. H. C. Willoughby.

Dear Brn.:—We as a people profess to believe that Christ is coming very soon; and the apostle declares in Hebrews 11: 1, that "faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Now if we have the evidence that amounts in substance to the Lord's coming very soon, shall we not as consistent christians show our faith by our works in all things? for we read that "faith without works is dead, being alone."

When we see the worldling laying up treasure on the earth; building houses with costly foundations of granite; setting out young trees that cannot come to maturity for many years, we conclude that he is calculating that he or his will live to need them. But can we, believing as we do that Christ is so soon coming, be found doing as the worldling, and at the same time show our faith by our works?

We do not advocate that men should idle away their time because they believe the Lord is coming soon, but should be diligent in business, not slothful, "fervent in spirit, serving the Lord." Yet it would seem that there are ways enough for a man to labor, agreeable to his faith. By our actions we shall we able to preach to the world louder than by any other way. We think that living out our faith and teaching men so to do, is not bad doctrine, neither do we believe (although it will bring reproach) that it will prevent sensible people from embracing it.

Let us be valiant for the truth, fight manfully the battles of the Lord, show to the world that we believe what we preach, and be faithful in all things, that when Jesus comes we may receive a crown of life.

H. C. Willoughby.

From Sr. P. A. Walker.

Brn. and Srs.:—We have truly fallen into the perilous times which the apostle Paul, looking with prophetic eye down through the long vista of years, foretold would come in the last days; when men should be "lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, despisers of those that are good, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God, having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof." The selfishness and money-loving of this age are proverbial, as well as the pride and pleasure-seeking. But how painfully true is the form of godliness without the power. It seems to me that the fulfillment of the whole catalogue must be apparent to any thinking, observing person; and even few years and short experience cannot fail to reveal the fact that the professed church has grown worldly and pleasure-loving, is becoming more and more destitute of the power of godliness, and is to-day being lulled to sleep in fancied security under the "peace and safety" cry—the conversion of the world. How sad the thought, that the professed disciples of Jesus are content to dream on, not watching or waiting for the return of the Master, but must at last, when it is too late, find themselves shut out. Yet it is not marvelous that it is so, for they cry, "Watchman, what of the night?" and he tells them the world is to be converted.

Not long since I heard a learned minister of the gospel, standing high in the denomination of which he was a member, say from the pulpit—"There is a class of people calling themselves Christians, who preach that the world is worse than formerly, and will continue to grow worse and worse until God will have to destroy it, and create a new world for the future abode of his people. But I tell you this is not so; it is a libel upon our institutions of learning and missionary effort, to say that the world is growing worse. I tell you it is growing better and better, and will continue to do so until the nations become christianized, and peace shall reign from sea to sea."

With such teachers, an intelligent hearer sees the second coming of Christ far in the future, for there is not yet one town thoroughly christianized, and accordingly seeks pleasure, and forgets God.

Brethren and sisters, while we see these things, and through their fulfillment the soon coming of the Son of man, let us watch and pray, lest we partake of their spirit. We must not love the world, for the love of the Father is not in such. We must not love ourselves, for he that findeth his life shall lose it. We must not be covetous, for that is idolatry, and our God is a jealous God. We must not boast, for we know not of to-morrow. We must not be proud, for God resisteth such, "but giveth grace to the humble." We must not love pleasure, for he that loveth pleasure is dead while he liveth. We must have the power as well as the form of godliness, deny ourselves, and take up our cross daily, and follow the Master a little while, only a little while; for the night of tears, of cross-bearing, of self-denying, of want and pinching poverty, of darkness, doubts and fears, is almost over. Soon Jesus will come and say to the faithful, Come home! where former sufferings will not be remembered or come into mind; nothing but peace and joy forevermore.

Dear sinner, with me judgment-bound, come to Christ! Delay not! He is at the door. Hasten! lest you be too late. He loves you, is pleading with you. Come!

Wolcott, Vt. P. A. Walker.

From Bro. C. C. Ramsay.

Dear Brn.:—I am at present laboring in a protracted meeting at this place. I commenced preaching the first day of the year, and continued for several days without any signs of special interest, except to hear the word. There were plenty of hearers, therefore no fault could be found in regard to numbers. The house, which is neat and commodious, holds all that come on ordinary occasions without crowding, but during time of special interest additional seats are placed in the aisles and space in front of the desk, which are filled to overflowing, and some are obliged to stand, especially on Sunday. The people are very attentive, and listen with apparent interest. One unacquainted with this people and their surroundings would be astonished if he could suddenly be transferred to the Prairie church, and find himself surrounded with at least one hundred sleighs, each drawn by two horses, and loaded with from two to fourteen persons, of all sizes and age. Mothers with infants, from a few weeks to a few months of age, come constantly, some of them riding five miles in an open sleigh. Some of these teams come eight and even ten miles to attend these meetings. Some men have walked a long distance; one man walked eleven miles to hear the gospel of the kingdom.

This township is settled by farmers, who average about five families to a square mile; but people come to meeting from the adjoining towns, and the country is represented for more than one hundred square miles, in times of special interest. The church in this place owes its prosperity largely to the labors of Elder P. S. W. Deyo, and others who have preached the good news of the kingdom in this place.

I have preached twenty successive discourses in seventeen days. The Lord has blessed his word, backsliders have been reclaimed, and sinners have come to Christ; about twenty have arisen for prayers, and six have pledged for baptism. Others are expected to do so.

The meeting will be continued as long as the interest demands. It is encouraging now, although for the first few days it seemed as though nothing could move the people; but when the church got thawed out, and began to work with the preacher, then the ice broke up, and the stream began to run clear; now the prospect is good for a glorious work. May God bless his word, and bring many to believe it and obey it also. Pray for us.

Yours in hope of immortality,

C. C. Ramsay.

Fairfield, Iowa, Jan. 17th.

Extracts from Letters.

Sr. S. A. Cummings writes:—"I have been much interested in reading about your journey to Cal., and thank the Lord that you were permitted to arrive in safety, and that he has opened a way by which you may preach to them the truth. May the Lord give you all needed strength to labor for the salvation of souls, and may many be truly converted to God. O that there were more 'laborers' in the vineyard; more that were preaching the glad tidings that Jesus is coming again to set up his kingdom, and take his loved ones home to dwell with him forevermore. Praise God for the hope he has given me, a sinner saved by Jesus' blood, of having a home on the new earth. Though laughed at and called a fool for being a believer in the Second Advent, I care not. God helping me, I will still press steadfastly onward in the path of duty, and though I have daily to meet with temptation and trials from foes within, yet I believe the Lord will give me needed help to resist them all unto the end. To those who from week to week cheer my spirit through the ever-welcome Crisis, pray for me, that I may be faithful, and that we may soon see the King in his beauty."

Bro. Z. T. Wood writes:—"I wish to say a few words about the Vermont Tent, in behalf of Bro. Stetson. He has borrowed the money five times to pay for the tent, and there are about seventy dollars behind now, which he has got to borrow again, or sell the tent, if the brethren do not pay it. I hope that brethren who have received money and held it in their hands over four months, will pay over what belongs to him, and others that have the means will send it to him immediately and release him from this burden."

A Sister from Catt. Co., N. Y., writes:—"I have tried to get subscribers for the Crisis, but it has nearly proved a failure; but I will stand to my promise, to be responsible for —— paper. We are both widows, but I have got more hens than she has, so I will send what money I have (60 cts). Please place it to her credit."

Bro. [illegible] Urch writes:—"We, the brethren of Newcastle, under many storms of adversity, have succeeded in erecting a small Chapel; and as there is an ear to hear, we hope to be remembered by the watchmen. Any wishing to visit us can correspond with Ephraim Urch, Newcastle, N. H."

Bro. J. Pinkham writes:—"The reason for withdrawing my appointments is, I am told by a skilful physician, that I must cease to labor in the gospel field for a few weeks, or rest in the grave. Pray for me."

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 24th, 1870, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonitions to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

W. B. Hennon, Sec'y Adv. Chr. Pub. Soc'y.

Remittances should be sent to the Treasurer, Geo. T. Adams, Boston, Mass., or they may be enclosed with remittances to the Crisis office.

Donations for the Tract Fund.

Previous acknowledgments	$335 48
A Friend	2.00
Stephen Scammon	2.50

POOR FUND.

(To send the Crisis to the Poor.)

Previous acknowledgments	$36.75
"A Pilgrim"	.50

YOUNG PILGRIM FUND.

Previous acknowledgments	$17.08

AMER. ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

Donations are earnestly solicited, to enable this Society to send out missionaries, and other means, into the Southern States, and elsewhere, as the Lord may open the door, to proclaim "the glad tidings of the kingdom at hand"; and should be sent, as also payments of pledges made, to the Treasurer, Geo. T. Adams, P. O. Drawer 202, Boston, Mass., who will acknowledge the same in the columns of the Crisis.

Previous acknowledgments	$968.04
G. Parsons	2.90
J. Myers	2.00

SPRINGFIELD NATIONAL ADVENT CAMPMEETING.

[illegible] W. Powell (pledge paid)	$5.00
P. W. Higgins (on pledge)	5.00

For the World's Crisis.

MISSIONS.

We are rejoiced to see the hearty reception of Bro. M. Grant in San Francisco, Cal., and that his mission promises to be a success. The Lord has opened the way for truth to have a wide circulation in all that region. Providence, with the editors and reporters of papers, and the people, seem to be combined to [illegible] Bro. Grant give publicity to the all-important message—the soon coming of Jesus, with its harmonizing attendant doctrines. The discussion, also, will be the means of showing up the satanic deceptions and delusion of spiritualism, which are calculated to take from man the gospel hope, and destroy him in perdition and destruction. So we hail with delight the present prospect, and pray the Lord to prosper our mission there.

Bro. Wm. Sheldon, as will be seen, has arrived at the South, looking for an opening to lift the standard and sound the alarm; and it is to be hoped that by the direction of the Lord he will be successful in getting this gospel of the kingdom and soon coming of our blessed Lord before the people, so as to arouse them to action and readiness for the good time coming. Others are in the field, and many more ought to be.

The good news should be trumpeted everywhere where an opening can be found. There are places, many of them, and among us, even, that never have heard the Bible argument relative to the nearness of the Lord's coming, and these are as really within the sphere of the Mission Society as California and the South.

So let all be awake to the cause of God and the Mission. Let the cry, "Come over and help us," be made, and let there be cheerful response,—Lord, send me. Only let the work be entered into with the spirit and a good will, and the means will not be wanting.

The cheerful giver has been casting his mite into the treasury, and some of them in abundance. Others are ready, only waiting to know duty, and see where good can be most successfully done.

Let us, dear Brn., extend and expand our operations, so that none may have the excuse they have not heard the solemn sound—"Behold, the Bridegroom cometh!" "Prepare to meet thy God!" L. Boutell.

Married.

Johnson—Glazier. In Haverhill, Mass., Jan. 21st, 1871, by Elder J. Bickford, Mr. William V. Johnson, of Haverhill, Mass., and Miss Lizzie M. Glazier, of North Haverhill, N. H.

Obituaries.

Parlow. Died, in Middleboro, Mass., Nov. 30th, 1870, after a short sickness, Bro. Charles F. Parlow, aged thirty-two years.

Bro. P. became a follower of Christ a number of years ago. About two years since he became deeply interested in the coming of Christ at hand, and the resurrection to life; which interest increased to the time of his death. There being no Advent church in M., he continued his relation with the Methodist church; but as often as practicable met with the Advent people in other places. During the last two or three months of his life he manifested a deeper interest than ever in spiritual things, and consecrated himself anew to God. His disease was typhoid fever, resulting in congestion of the heart. His last prayer was, "To thee, O Lord, forever do I give myself and all that I have." After bidding his wife, child and mother farewell, he calmly fell asleep in Christ, in a firm hope of a resurrection when he comes.

Weep not, ye stricken ones;
Lift up the eye of faith;
Although the night be darker now,
Remember what He saith:
"The morning cometh, and this night
Shall end in everlasting light."

The parting time has been;
The meeting time will be;
And then no more farewells we'll hear,
Nor weeping eyes we'll see—
Upon the new earth's brighter shore
They ne'er will come forevermore.

I. I. Leslie.

Tuttle. Died, in Pownal, Me., of consumption, Nov. 17th, 1870, Mrs. Olive Tuttle, wife of Jacob Tuttle, aged fifty-nine years.

We do not know her life and faith, only that she became interested in the soon coming of Christ and resurrection of the dead, and requested that an Advent preacher should minister at her funeral. The writer was invited to do so, and addressed a large audience of kindred and friends of the deceased, mostly of the Orthodox church, from 1 Cor. 15: 26. I. C. Wellcome.

Richardson. Died, in New Market, N. H., Jan. 17th, 1871, Moses D. Richardson, aged sixty-nine years and six months.

Bro. R. began the service of God over forty years ago, and to look for the Lord in 1843, and although disappointed then, he continued to serve the Lord and wait for his Son from heaven. His last sickness was of seven months' duration, which he bore with much patience, and died in hope of a glorious resurrection at the last day. By his request, Bro. Brown, of Elliot, Me., preached his funeral sermon. Text, Rev. 14: 20. W. M. B.

Smithee. Died, in Biddeford, Me., Jan. 2d, William Smithee, aged forty-one years.

Bro. S. was patient and trusting through months of extreme suffering. He had a strong desire to live to see the last sign given by the Master fulfilled, but submitted to sleep a little while. He embraced the blessed hope of life only in Christ, and was baptized and joined the church three years since, and fell with the armor on. Words of comfort were spoken by the writer, from Job 14: 14. J. Hill.

Sanborn. Died, in Biddeford, Me., Dec. 22d, Frankie A., only child of Nelson E. and Sarah Sanborn, aged two months. J. Hill.

Twombly. Fell asleep in Jesus, Jan. 18th, in Great Falls, N. H., after a lingering illness, Sr. Eliza K. Twombly, aged fifty-four years and ten months.

Sr. Twombly experienced a christian hope when quite young, among the Free Baptists, and always maintained a christian character. Her last desire was to live to see Jesus come, although believing the resurrection so near, she could rest in hope. Words of comfort to the mourning friends by the writer, from 1 Cor. 15: 21. J. B.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

London, Jan. 24. Bismarck has been appointed Chancellor of the German Empire.

Dr. Livingstone Safe.

London, Jan. 25. Sir Roderick Murchison has received a letter from Africa, giving positive intelligence of the safety of Dr. Livingstone.

London, Jan. 25. A special telegram to the Daily Telegraph, from Versailles, says that there is solid ground for believing that Paris will surrender to-day.

A dispatch has just been received here announcing the capitulation to-day of the Fortress of Longwy, on the Belgian border, which has been besieged for a long time by the Germans. Four thousand prisoners of war and two hundred guns fell into the hands of the victors.

Bismarck Threatens to restore Napoleon.

The Times says if Favre refuses an unconditional surrender and will not end the war on the German terms, Bismarck, who has in his possession the full acceptance of these terms by the French Emperor and Empress, will threaten to restore Napoleon.

The Swiss Frontier picketed by the French.

Since the 23d inst. French pickets have been posted along the frontier, preventing egress from France into Switzerland, and imprisoning strangers. There are many Franc-Tireurs near the Swiss boundary and their pickets are in the vicinity of Villare. The German patrols extend to Abbevilliers.

Storming of Grayroche.

The Germans have stormed Grayroche and repulsed the French in an attack upon Villars.

London, Jan. 25.—A despatch dated Rome, January 24th, states that the ambassadors of Austria and the North German Confederation in compliance with instructions received from their respective governments, inquire of Cardinal Antonnelli what guarantee the Pope would regard as sufficient on the part of the Italian government to remove the distrust at present existing between the civil and religious authorities. The reply by order of the Pope intimated that the Court of Rome wished no guarantee other than pure and simple retribution (?) of territories of the church, from Neapolitan frontiers to the Po, and would accept of no arrangement not based on these conditions.

Capitulation of Paris.

London, Jan. 29. The Emperor has sent the following to Empress Augusta:

Versailles, Sunday—2 P. M. Last night an armistice for three weeks was signed. The regulars and mobiles are to be kept in Paris as prisoners of war. The national guard will undertake the maintenance of order. We occupy all the forts. Paris remains invested, but will be allowed to revictual as soon as the arms are surrendered. The national assembly is to be summoned to meet at Bordeaux in a fortnight. All the armies in the field will retain their respective positions. The ground between the opposing lines will be neutral. This is the reward of patriotism, heroism and great sacrifices. Thank God for this fresh mercy. May peace soon follow.

(Signed) William.

Versailles, Jan. 29. The German troops occupied the forts around Paris at ten o'clock this morning. The entire garrison of Paris, except the national guard, surrender their arms. The armistice expires on the 10th of February.

London, Jan. 28. The Times publishes, by request from Chiselhurst, the denial of its statement of the intrigues going on between Bismark and the Bonapartists for the restoration of the latter.

London, Jan. 30. The contribution imposed upon Paris by the articles of capitulation is fifty-three million (53,000,000) francs.

Pere Hyacinthe writes to La Liberte denying the validity of the Pope's Encyclical and Syllabus, and denouncing generally the hierarchical pretensions of the See of Rome.

Bourbaki's army is surrounded by the German troops in the neighborhood of Besancon. The German headquarters are at Roulems L'Englise. The report is prevalent that Bourbaki has shot himself, and that he now lies in a precarious condition.

London, Jan. 26. Vinoy has accepted the command in place of Trochu, on condition that stern measures be adopted to repress disturbances. The Radical Clubs have been closed, the Reveil de Combat is suppressed, and numerous arrests have been made. The deaths in Paris were 4465.

A Tribune special dispatch of the 23d from Paris, says a detachment of three hundred National Guards attacked Hotel de Ville. The Mobiles defended it, and were firm. The affair lasted a quarter of an hour. An official report gives five killed and eighteen wounded. The attempt created a reaction, and was completely suppressed.

A letter from Guizot to Gladstone is published to-day, in which the former argues at length the question of proper conditions of peace between France and Prussia. He urges England to at least protest in favor of peace, and expresses the belief that such action on her part would not be in vain.

DOMESTIC.

Boston, Jan. 26th. We have the important intelligence that England intends to form at Kingston a great military and naval station. This action is, no doubt, in view of the possible annexation of St. Domingo to the United States.

Kingston, Ja., Jan. 23. We have important intelligence that the British government has telegraphed the Governor of Jamaica to-day that the Island is at once to be placed in a state of complete defence, or, in other words, it is to be made the great military and naval station of the Caribbean Sea. It is the possibility of the annexation of St. Domingo to the United States that has doubtless caused this action on the part of the British Government. It fears the extended influence of the United States by getting a foothold among the West India Islands, and it deems it best to be ready for any emergency that may arise.

Suffering in New York.

New York, Jan. 27. The Superintendents of the poor report that the applicants for relief now are thirty per cent. greater than at the same time last year.

Since the Californian library lottery, similar "enterprises" are springing into poisonous blossom all over the country. If matters go on as they are now progressing, we shall soon be, in regard to lotteries, on a level with Lisbon and Havana—not to speak of Sodom and Gomorrah, which doubtless patronized "Grand Gift Schemes." The people of Yokohama, Japan, says an exchange, "had a little excitement over a proposition to pay for a church organ by making the organ the capital of a lottery scheme. But public sentiment revolted against the idea of serving the interests of religion by gambling, and the government prohibited the enterprise." The Japan Mail says: "The easy virtue of the christian, thus publicly rebuked by the paternal care of the Pagan government, is a slur we shall not easily forget, and a reprimand by which we may well be stung."

The Boston Daily News says:—The condition of Romanists is certainly interesting. The Temporal Power is suddenly swept away by the sudden and wonderful striking down of one of the greatest powers of the world. The Italian Government knows not what to do with the Pope, not seeming able to comprehend the only possible safe course, that of placing Papal Catholicism on a simple level with other christian denominations. At the same time, the Romanists on the Continent were never more alive than now in efforts to propagate the faith and polity. In the December (1870) number of the 'Annals of the Propagation of the Faith,' eight pages are occupied with statements of the departure from Europe of "missioners," "nuns," "sisters," etc., for different fields of labor, most of them during the last five months of the year 1868."

Business.

Letters Received.

C A Sumner, J. B. W., D Cogswell, G E Lee, F H Chamberlain, J W Thomas, I M Plummer, J B Wadsworth, J Pinkham, H Munger, J Blain, S J Bushnell, J Bickford, I I Leslie, P A Walker, H S Woods, Z T Wood, E Urch, W Hebbs, J Taylor, S S Brewer, I C Wellcome, H W Sargent, S A Cummings, L M Proctor, C C Ramsay, J Hill, M D Avery, W Kellaway.

Cash Receipts for Books and Tracts.

E E Church $1.20, P W Jones $6.75, M W Potter $1.00, J R Potter $1.50, J Baker $2.00, G P Adams $1.15, C A Sumner $1.00, Mrs. C Warner 25c, M E Stone 25c, M Grover 50c, C A Sumner $2.00, F A Denton 50c, J H Brown 75c, D C Andrus 50c, Mary Garvan $1.00, Mrs. P T Wright $1.20, E D Huson 60c, J Earl $1.50, H H Weld 40c, J C Ashley 55c, B W Remington 35c, M E Lowd 50c, J W Austin $1.00, S Harper 75c, C A Sumner $1.00, H O Potter 35c, J P Hazard $1.50, J B T Nichols 50c, H G Hopkins $1.50.

Books and Tracts Sent.

By Mail—E W Huson, S J Ball, J Earle, H H Weld, J W White, J C Ashley, C E Marshall, B W Remington, M E Lowd, S Harper, C M Morrison, J S Lawyer, C A Sumner, M E Lord, H G Hopkins, J M Quimby, J Glosson, H C Potter, P J Smith, J P Hazard, J B T Nichols, H Dickie, Mrs. C Newell, R E Snow, S P Remick, W Baker, D E Moore, J F Leighton, C W Perry, W I Mann, R Hindley, B Perham, J E Linch, J H Brown, E Barrows, C Hosmer, J M Prince, E L Bornap, J Ward, B Burlingham, M Whitaker, E S Hooker, J M Treadwell, J F Sykes, L B Commins, H Rawson, A H Clark, M H Brown, J Lewis, Dr. W S Hoaste, Z H Chase, W F Fahnestock (2), Mrs H E Berry, J Barnes, N B McMurphy, Mrs. F Reed, A Kelsey, S J Buswell, S D Edes, J W Fredricks, S I Bushnell, F D Fifield, L Mills, E B Pillsbury, O B Town, D J Prince, W Orton, Mrs E M Davis, G E Talbut, T Fitzsimons, A J Hunt, J Thorp, M H Helmer, A L Barber, M Flory, W H Ford, L R Lawrence, H Davis, E H Mann, J Taylor, E Clark.

By Express—J Earle, A J Mayhew, C S Hall, M Potter, S Roby, A Damon, A Veeder, J Bickford, H N Read, M G Wise, E Urch.

Notices.

Notice.

A protracted meeting will commence in Concord, N. H. (Centre St. Chapel,) February 5th, to continue through the week and over the following Sunday, and longer, if the Lord wills. Elders D. M. Leavitt, C. H. Fletcher, and others, will be present to preach the word, which is the power of God unto salvation to him that believeth. We cordially invite all who love the Lord and the salvation of the perishing to unite with us in this effort. Come, brethren, from the neighboring towns; come in and lend us a helping hand in this all-important work. In behalf of the church. Uri Baker.

Conference.

The second quarterly session of the N. H. Conference will be held, the Lord will, with the church at Hampton, N. H., commencing Thursday evening, Feb. 9th, to hold over the Sabbath. It is hoped that all who can, especially our preaching brethren, will come up to the feast, to labor for the Lord, and the salvation of the perishing. Let prayer be offered, that God may greatly bless.

T. W. Piper,
A. W. Sibley, } Committee.
C. H. Fletcher.

Notice.

We will commence a series of meetings at So. Troy, Vt., Thursday, Feb. 9th, to hold evenings through the week, over the following Sabbath, and as much longer as the interest may demand. Come, brethren, to this meeting. Troy needs help. May God bless the effort.

J. A. Cleaveland.

Conference.

There will be a Conference in Cushing, Me., to commence Thursday evening, Feb. 2nd, 1871, and hold over Sunday. A free invitation to all ministers and laymen to work for the good of the cause of Christ.

S. K. Partridge.
J. T. Hemenway.

Massachusetts A. C. Conference.

QUARTERLY SESSION.

The Mass. A. C. Conference will hold its quarterly session in Westboro, Mass., at the Chapel, commencing Tuesday evening, Feb. 7th. Meetings to hold over the following Sunday. Let there be a general gathering in the name of the Lord.

L. Boutell,
H. Munger, } Conf. Com.
C. Goodrich,

Correction.—Bro. J. B. Wadsworth, Memphis, Tenn., wishes to say, that he will send the picture of "Daniel in the lions' den," in the sheet, in good order, with his book, for 50 cts., or twelve for $4.00, if sent to one address.

Notice.

The second quarterly meeting of the Woman's Christian Association will be held in Goffstown, N. H., commencing Wednesday evening, March 8th, 1871. A full attendance is desired and expected.

E. S. Jennings, President.
R. E. Childs, Secretary.

Notice.

The brethren at Bonny Eagle, Me., having built them a chapel for the advancement of the gospel of the kingdom, desire worthy ministers to come among them, and labor for the promotion of the cause of Christ. Brethren can correspond with Bro. T. J. Rumery, Bonny Eagle, Maine. A stage for Bonny Eagle leaves Biddeford daily at 12.30. M. For the brethren, B. S. Emery.

Notice.

Will not some one of our preaching brethren come here and preach? Will not some one answer this notice? We have had no meetings here since last summer. I feel that much good might be done. L. B. Cummings, Francestown, N. H.

Notice.

By the permission of the Lord, there will be a conference held at Carr's Corner, Dexter, Me., every third Saturday in each month, at two o'clock, and also meeting on Lord's day following. Preaching brethren coming this way are invited to lend a helping hand. A pilgrim's home may be found at John H. Brown's. O. G. Trundy.

Notice.

Putney's Hall, Sutton Mills, N. H. Meetings every Sabbath for the present. This is a new movement on the part of the Advent people of Sutton, and we think it is according to the will of the Lord. Brethren, pray for us.

A. Cressey,
Frank Nelson, } Committee.
Sam'l Rowell,

Notice.

There will be a meeting at my house in West Abington, Mass., every Sunday, at 10½ A. M. and 1½ P. M. All christians are invited.

J. J. Damon.

Advent Christian Church, Salem.

Meetings are held every Sabbath, at the Chapel, Sewall Street. Prayer meeting Monday evening, at the Ward Room, North Salem. Tuesday and Friday evenings at private houses. C. E. Barnes, Pastor.

☞ Ministers visiting Shrewsbury to preach, can have a home with Lizzie C. Hodgkins.

Meetings in Portland, Me. (Union Hall.)

Having vacated Cushman Hall on Congress Street, meetings hereafter will be held in Union Hall. Entrance on Free Street, nearly opposite the Baptist church. Seats free.

S. K. Dyer.
D. F. Scamman.
R. K. York.

Rochester, N. H.

There will be preaching in the chapel, near the brick school-house, in Rochester, N. H., on the first Lord's day in each month. Others can appoint so as not to conflict.

Star of Hope Mission, 14 Laurens Street, New York City.

Sunday morning, prayer and conference, six o'clock, Sunday School, two o'clock P. M. Love feast, four o'clock P. M. Preaching, seven o'clock P. M. Monday, (class meeting,) seven o'clock P. M. Wednesday, (preaching,) seven o'clock P. M. Friday, (prayer and conference), seven o'clock P. M. Come one, come all. A. E. Smith, Principal.

New York City.

The Advent Church formerly meeting at Grand and Allen Streets, have removed to 406 Grand Street, one door above Clinton. Preaching every Sunday for the present. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening, at the house of J. K. Bellows, 19 Orchard Street.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston, corner of Causeway and Lowell Streets. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

Lowell Street Chapel.

M. Batchelor..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
T. M. Preble..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th

Boston, (Branch Chapel), 1735 Washington Street, corner of Madison Street.

Meetings at 10½ A. M., and 3 and 7½ P. M.

H. Munger........A. M. and P. M., Sunday, Feb. 5th
John G. Hook........(Communion) evening, Feb. 5th

Meetings every evening. Prayer and Temperance meeting Saturday evening. Seats free.

Cambridgeport (Washington Hall, Main Street.)

John G. Hook......A. M. and P. M., Sunday, Feb. 5th
H. Munger..........Sunday evening, Feb. 5th

Chelsea, Mass.

Granite Block, Hall No. 11, corner of Broadway and Fourth Streets. Entrance on Fourth Street. (Up two flight of stairs.)

A. Ross..........Sundays, Feb. 5th and 18th
J. Couch..........Sunday, Feb. 26th

Charlestown.

Preaching at Charlestown, (Evening Star Hall, No. 32 Main Street), every Lord's day.

Rufus Wendell..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
H. M. Bryant..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
T. M. Preble..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
W. S. Campbell..........Sunday, March 5th
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, March 12th

East Boston, Mass.

(Second Advent Hall, 154 Meridian Street.)

Meetings every Sunday, at the usual hours, also prayer and conference meetings Wednesday and Friday evenings, at 7½ o'clock P. M.

A. P. Moore..........Sunday, Feb. 5th

Meetings in South Boston on Wednesday evenings, No. 2 Lowland Street.

Friday evenings, No. 227 E. St. Bay-View horse cars pass by. Come and welcome.

C. W. Huntress.
J. N. Berry.

South Boston (where Bro. Berry appoints) Thursday evening, Feb. 2d. John Couch.

Pittsfield, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Rye, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
C. Goodrich.

Stoneham, Mass.......Wednesday evening, Feb. 1st
John G. Hook.

Holden, Mass..........February 5th
Wakefield, Mass..........February 19th
J. S. White.

North Springfield, Vt..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Bridgewater, Vt..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
West Fairlee, Vt..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
H. F. Carpenter.

Goffstown, N. H..........evenings, Feb. 4th and 5th
Manchester, N. H..........evening, Feb. 7th
Exeter, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
D. N. Chadsey.

Hartford, Ct. (Talcott & Post's Hall) Sun., Feb. 19th
Wm. N. Pile.

Tamworth, N. H. (Birch Intervale).....Sab., Feb. 5th
Albany, N. H. (Bell school-house)..Sabbath, Feb. 12th
Bartlett, N. H..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
G. H. Wallace.

Brookfield, N. H. (Town House)...Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. Bickford.

Seabrook, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
B. Finney.

North Somers, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
A. Morse.

Meredith Neck, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
N. Glidden.

Seabrook, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
A. P. Moore.

Chicopee Falls, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Scitico, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
A. M. Higgins.

Scitico, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
The rest of Feb. not engaged. H. Munger.

Bath, Me..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
H. D. Reed.

West Rumney, N. H. (Plain school-house) evening, Feb. 15th.
Orford, N. H. (Indian Pond) evenings, Feb. 16th, 17th, and 18th.
Piermont, N. H. (Clay meeting-house) Sab., Feb. 19th and a few evenings.
Haverhill, N. H (Brick Church)...Sabbath, Feb. 26th
West Rumney, N. H. (Plain school-house) evening, Feb. 28th.
Campton, N. H. (Bump school-house) Sab., March 5th
Belmont, N. H. (where Bro. Kidder may appoint) evening, March 9th.
Loudon Ridge, N. H. (at Bro. Batchelder's) evening, March 10th.
Gilmanton, N. H. (school-house at Merrill's Corner) evening, March 11th.
Sabbath, March 12th, where Bro. Maney may appoint.
C. W. Nelson.

Putnam, Ct..........Sabbath, Feb. 5th
J. T. Dixon.

Southington, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
G. L. White.

Dover, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Melvin Village, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Manchester, N. H. (where Bro. Samuel Morse may appoint) Sunday, Feb. 26th.
Lynn, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
Wm. Dodge.

Roxbury, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Yalesville, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
S. W. Treat.

West Parsonsfield, Me. (school-house) Sun., Feb. 5th
H. M. Bryant.

East Stoneham, Me..........Sabbath, Feb. 5th
Greenwood City (Union meeting-house) Sab., Feb. 12th
Jesse Gay.

North Haverhill, N. H. (Brick Church) Sun., Feb. 5th
East Canaan, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Holderness, N. H. (Carr school-house) eve., Feb. 14th and onward as may be duty.
Wm. H. Shaw.

Keene, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Vernon, Vt..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Chicopee Falls, Mass.....evenings, Feb. 16th and 17th
A. Simpson.

Bath, Me..........Sundays, March 5th and 19th
C. H. Leverton.

Brimfield, Mass..........Sabbath, Feb. 5th
Samuel Nichols.

Holden, Mass..........Sabbath, Feb 19th
Damon Nichols.

Exeter, N. H..........Sabbath, Feb. 5th
C. S. Emerson.

Providence, R. I..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Rutland, Vt.......Sundays, Feb. 12th, 19th and 26th
L. Boutell.

Surry Conference..........Feb. 2d to 5th
I. C. Wellcome.

Montgomery, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Keene, N. H..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
I. B. Potter.

Piermont, N. H. (Clay meeting-house) Sun., Feb. 5th
West Plymouth, N. H. (Brick school-house, near Bro. Nelson's), Sunday, Feb. 12th. A. H. Clark.

Haverhill, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Goffstown, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Geo. W. Brown, So. Elliot.

Northwood Narrows, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Fitchburg, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Nashua, N. H..........Tuesday evening, Feb. 14th
Sutton Mills, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Lynn, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
C. W. Sargent.

Colebrook, N. H., Feb. 22d, and as long as the Lord will. The meetings will be held in the Methodist or Town Hall.
D M Leavitt.
J. Shorey.

East Concord (Gale school-house)...Sunday, Feb. 5th
C. R. Parsons.
A. S. Williams.

Chichester (as S. Saltmarsh may appoint) evening, Feb. 3d.
East Concord (at Bro. Potter's)......evening, Feb. 4th
☞ No Name.

Campton, N. H. (Bump school-house) Sun., Feb. 5th
North Dorchester, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
J. B. Brown.

Wolcottville, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
B. Hitchcock.

At Bro. Daniel Veasey's, Saturday evening, Feb. 4th
Meredith, N. H. (Dolloff Hall)..........Sabbath, Feb. 5th
Bradford, N. H. (Bush meeting-house) Sabbaths, Feb. 12th and 19th.
Boscawen, N. H. (Gulf school-house)...eve., Feb. 7th and Sabbath, Feb. 26th. Simeon Roby.

Brentwood..........evening, Feb. 3d
West Kingston, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
A. Gordon.

Lynn, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
M. Batchelor.

Caswell Borough, P. Q..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
U. G. Ladd.

Melvin Village, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Manchester, N. H..........evening, Feb. 15th
Goffstown, N. H..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
E. S. Moulton.

Lewiston, Me..........Feb. 5th and 12th
Mechanic Falls, Me......evenings, Feb. 14th and 16th
Bath, Me..........Sabbaths, Feb. 19th and 26th
C. H. Sweet.

Biddeford, Me..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
If these conflict, write me at Loudon Ridge, N. H. I could not meet my last appointment at Biddeford on account of sickness. D. F. Leavitt.

Barkhamstead (school-house near Bro. Harry Moses) Sunday, Feb. 5th, and evenings, 6th, 7th, and 8th.
North Canton..........evenings, Feb. 9th and 10th
Bro. G. L. White is to be with me during the week.
Hartland (Town Hall or school-house) Sun., Feb. 12th
I. Woodruff.

Sutton, N. H. (as brethren may appoint) Wednesday and Thursday evenings, Feb. 1st and 2nd.
Portland (Union Hall)...Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
A. Ross.

Alleghany City, Pa., the last and first Sundays in each month until April 1st.
Houseville, Pa., the third Sunday in Jan., Feb., and March.
Bucklins Corners, Chaut. Co., N. Y., commence meetings evening, Feb. 9th, and over Sunday. On Sunday at two o'clock P. M., and in the evening. Bro. Burdick will be with me. John T. Owcley.

East Canaan, N. H..........evening, Feb. 4th and over Sunday, Feb. 5th.
Warren Summit, N. H..........evening, Feb. 9th
North Haverhill..........evening, Feb. 10th
Daniel D. Page.

West Groton, Vt. (Ricker school-house) evening, Feb. 11th, over Sunday, the 12th, and on as the Lord directs.
East Landaff, N. H. (Bungay school-house) evening, Feb. 18th, and over Sunday.
Geo. E. Brown, D. D. Page.

New York (Cooper Institute)..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Geo. W. Brown.

South Livermore, Me.....Saturday evening, Feb. 4th and over Sunday, the 5th.
Carthage, Me..........Tuesday evening, Feb. 7th and Sunday, the 12th.
Byron, Me..........evenings, Feb. 9th and 10th
J. Albert Libby.

Seabrook, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Rye, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Wm. C. Stewart.

East Troy, Conard Hollow, or Troy (as Bro. John Salisbury, Sen., may arrange), Feb. 2d and 3d.
South Creek, Pa. (as Bro. J. Moon arranges), Feb. 4th and 5th.
Jackson, Tioga Co., Pa. (if circumstances permit) Feb. 6th and 7th.
Wilmot Settlement (as brethren may arrange) Feb. 9th, and over the 12th.
Hawleyton, (as Bro. H. Bull may arrange) Feb. 14th, 15th and 16th.
Cohocton, N. Y. (as Deacon T. C. Armstrong may appoint), Feb. 18th and 19th.
Honeoye Flats, N. Y..........Feb. 26th
At Conference, March 2d, and over the 5th.
All evening appointments to commence at 7 P. M.
C. F. Sweet.

Wrightville, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Waterbury, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Wm. J. Ripley.

Low Hampton, N. Y...11 A. M. and 6½ P. M., Feb. 19th
C. Pike.

Plymouth, Vt..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Rawsonville, Vt..........Sundays, Feb. 12th and 19th
Z. T. Wood.

Athol, Mass..........Sabbath, Feb. 5th
Providence, R. I..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
T. M. Preble.

Wakefield, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
H. K. Flagg.

Collinsville, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
G. L. White.

North Adams, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
North Pownal, Vt..........evenings, Feb. 6th and 7th
Pownal, Vt. (as Bro. Towslee may arrange) evenings, Feb. 8th, 9th and 10th. Will Bro. T. meet me at North Pownal?
Hoosick, N. Y., Feb. 11th and 12th. Will some one meet me at the Falls on the arrival of the first P. M. train from Adams?
North Dana, Mass.......Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
Wakefield, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
Geo. A. Stebbins.

Dorchester, N. H. (Town House) evening, Feb. 14th
West Canaan, (at the new school-house) eve., Feb. 16th, and onward as the Lord may direct.
D. Eastman.
J. H. Evans.

South Butler, N. Y., evening, Feb. 9th, and onward in Wayne Co. (as Bro. Wm. E. Brown may arrange) until Feb. 23d.
Will Bro. Brown meet me at Savannah Depot, Wednesday, P. M., Feb. 8th?
Brethren in western New York wishing my services before returning home, will write me at South Butler, N. Y. C. H. Williams.

Turner, Me. (Cushing school-house) Friday evening, Feb. 3d, over the following Sunday, and longer if thought best.
Stoneham, Me..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
On account of sickness, was unable to fill my appointment of the 29th. J. T. Jordan.

South Sebec, Wednesday, Feb. 1st, at seven P. M., and over the following Sabbath as brethren may arrange. F. A. Baker.

W. H. Point, Ct., on prophecy......Sunday, Feb. 12th and two following evenings.
Springfield, Mass......Wednesday evening, Feb. 15th
Collinsville, Ct., Thursday evening, Feb. 16th, and onward for one week, including Sun., Feb. 19th.
New York (as Bro. Cox shall arrange) on Revelations of John, Sunday, Feb. 26th.
West Haven, Ct., four evenings, commencing Tuesday, Feb. 28th. H. K. Flagg.

Waterloo, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Deerfield, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Orrill W. Kimball.

Cushing (conference)........Feb. 2d, 3d, 4th and 5th
H. S. Mitchell.

Square Pond, Ct..........Sabbath, Feb. 5th
Putnam, Ct..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
Webster, Mass..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
Woodstock Valley, Ct..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
P. S. Butler.

Shrewsbury, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Great Falls, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Dover, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
S. C. Hancock.

Freedom, N. H. (Chapel)..........Sabbath, Feb. 5th
Conference, at one o'clock P. M., Saturday, Feb. 4th
Porter Village, Me..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
Mark Stevens.

Craig's Mills, Oxford, Me..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Hebron, Me. (Sodom school-house) Sunday, Feb. 12th
Lewiston, Me..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Jared Whitman.

Fisherville, N. H..........Sabbath, Feb. 5th
Salisbury, N. H..........evening, Feb. 8th and over the following Sabbath. S. S. Mooney.

Great Falls, N. H..........Sabbath, Feb. 5th
N. C. Twombly.

There will be a meeting at Warren, Mass., every Sunday hereafter until further notice.
Rufus Baker.

Springfield, Mass.

Wm. N. Pile..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Geo. W. Brown..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Wm. N. Pile......Sundays, Feb. 26th and March 5th
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, March 9th

Worcester, Mass.

J. Hemenway..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
R. K. Stark..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
A. Simpson..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. S. White..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, March 5th
J. Couch..........Sunday, March 12th

Lawrence, Mass.

H. Pratt..........Sundays, Feb. 5th and 12th
C. Goodrich..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

Lowell, Mass.

D. F. Leavitt..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
W. H. Mitchell..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th

Portsmouth, N. H.

Mrs. L. M. Stoddard..Sundays, Jan. 29th and Feb. 5th

Concord, N. H. (Centre Street.)

C. H. Fletcher..........Sabbath, Feb. 5th

Concord, N. H., (at the Bethel.)

E. Owen..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
E. S. Moulton..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
T. W. Piper..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

Loudon Ridge, N. H.

Wm. C. Stewart..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Joseph Harvey..........Sunday, Feb. 26th

Manchester, N. H.

C. S. Shattuck..........Sunday, Feb 5th
W. H. Mitchell..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
M. Batchelor..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

Winsted, Ct.

H. H. Dickinson..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Mrs. M. L. Durand..........Sunday, Feb. 26th

New Britain, Ct.

Chas. E. Barker..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
M. L. Durand..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
A. M. Higgins..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

Bristol, Ct.

G. L. White..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
A. M. Higgins..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Seth Woodruff..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

New Haven, Ct.

G. L. Teeple..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
Anna E. Smith..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
evenings through the week, and over Sun., the 19th
B. Hitchcock..........Sunday, Feb. 26th

Putnam, Ct.

P. S. Butler..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
Mrs. L. M. Stoddard..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th

Pleasant Valley, Ct.

Sr. M. L. Durand..........Sunday, Feb. 5th

Southington, Ct.

B. Hitchcock..........Sunday, Feb. 12th

South Elliot, Me.

L. E. Saulpaugh..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
W. M. Harmon..........Sunday, Feb. 12th

Bonny Eagle, Me.

B. S. Emery..........Sunday, Feb. 5th

Portland, Me.

Sec. Adv. Hall, Cushman's Block, 322 Congress St.
Caleb Richardson..........Sunday, Feb. 5th
B. S. Emery..........Sundays, Feb. 12th and 26th

"JESUS KNOWS!"

She is standing by her watch—
Faith, the meek-eyed child of day;
With an ear attuned to catch
What the far-off echoes say—
O'er her feet the surges breaking
Of the restless sea of life,
Thrones and empires round her shaking
In a world's tumultuous strife.
Not one silver streak of morning
Lifts the sombre veil of night—
Yet she watcheth for the dawning,
Yet she waiteth for the light.
Will it never come—the glory—
Streaming o'er that gloomy sky?
Will it never cease—the story
Of a world-wide misery?
On her lips the answer glows—
"Jesus knows!"

Art thou standing on thy tower,
Pilgrim-soldier of the King!
There to "watch one little hour,"
Till His advent-bells shall ring?
Faint not, though thy breast be heaving
With the sob of mortal woe;
He to whom thy soul is cleaving,
Told thee that it must be so,
Told thee that through tribulation,
Baptism of tears and blood,
Lay the path of consecration,
Lay the highway back to God.
Blessed be the foot that findeth
That ascending track of gold,
Brightening ever, as it windeth
Through the desert to the fold,
Whose beginning and whose close
Jesus knows!

Hast thou found Him, O my soul—
Him, the new, the living way?
Art thou speeding towards the goal,
Out of darkness into day?
Lord, thou knowest the poor measure
I have yielded back to thee,
In return for all the treasure
Thy rich love hath been to me;
Yet my heart-strings twine about thee,
Day by day, with closer cling;
All the world were blank without thee,
Life itself a blighted thing.
Here am I—'tis love's surrender;
"To thy garden come, and reap,"
'Neath the wing of her Defender,
"Give thou thy beloved sleep."
Here, for aye, would she repose—
Jesus knows!

—British Messenger.

For the World's Crisis.

THE TRIUMPHS OF GRACE.

DEATH OF ADELIA F. SAGE.

Adelia F. Sage, wife of Eugene K. Sage, of Lewiston, N. Y., and daughter of Joel and Eliza Tryon, of Youngstown, N. Y., departed this life in this city (Minneapolis, Minn.), Jan. 12th, 1871, aged twenty-eight years. An obituary interests usually only a few surviving relatives and friends of the deceased, and a lengthy one is not desired; but by the indulgence of the Editor I bespeak a place for this, where it will meet the eye of the thousand of readers of the paper, who can but be benefited by its perusal, and especially the young women of our congregations.

Adelia was married last October, and was apparently in blooming health; yet within four months of that happy bridal hour she was called to lie in the embrace of death! Her disease was that dreaded, flattering and fatal one—consumption; and a sister had preceded her but a few months to the grave with the same fatal malady.

Hoping to save her life and lengthen her days by a change of climate, her husband and mother accompanied her to this distant State, the last of Nov.; but it was apparent that her disease was too far advanced to give much hope of her recovery.

Adelia professed religion some six years since. Her convictions of the Advent truths were the means of her conversion to God. She at first despised them in her proud and worldly heart; but after a hostile opposition, and a terrible struggle under conviction, followed by submission to Christ, she embraced both her Savior and them, and at once became a bold and undaunted promulgator and defender of the faith in public and in private; and she retained her views and hope, and the profession of her faith until the day of her death. I have been a witness of her experience in her last days, and had the blessed privilege of administering to her the comforts of religion, and of hope, by the reading of the Scriptures, by prayer and singing. While doing so, I have felt that had this been the only duty I had been called to perform for my fellow mortals in my Master's service, during these days of her stay with us, this ministering to this child of God was enough. And I have asked myself, Was it the Lord who sent her all this way that I might have this privilege? Certainly it has been granted me. There are, no doubt, other reasons, inscrutable to us, and known only to the Lord, why she was brought here to die. One thing we know she has done. She has honored her Savior before many living witnesses in this city, members of various churches, and those who never belonged to a church, whose affections she won, while their sympathies were drawn out to relieve her in her sufferings of body.

Never have I witnessed in a young person such calmness and resignation, such unflinching faith, and rejoicing in hope, as in Adelia's case in the prospect of dying. And her mind all the while was as clear as an unclouded sky; which is a remarkable feature of the disease with which she died.

I must transcribe some of her beautiful sayings, of which there were many. She remarked:—

"No one ever pictured a brighter future, or desired life more than I; yet I have given all up, and am fully resigned to the will of the Lord."

As she drew near the very "gates of death," and "the shadows" of the "valley" increased and enveloped her, she said: "I would not exchange places with any living."

Think of a young woman, in the prime of her days, possessed of more than ordinary beauty, intelligence, and accomplishments, having just entered upon the married life, in every respect satisfactory and happy to her, while the tears were flooding the cheeks of her devoted husband, and by her side stood the affectionate mother, attentive to her every want; from the stand-point of death, looking at life's brightest picture, the world's most brilliant charms, uttering words like these! And how could she say this? There were the comforts of hope in the deep tribulation, and there were other enrapturing visions before her. Life's labors were done, and she was soon to fall sweetly "asleep in Jesus," to be laid to rest by the side of kindred dust until the morning break, when she should awake to the purer and more substantial joys of the heavenly world.

Her husband, on the morning of the day in which she expired, observing her thinking intensely, asked her, "What are you thinking about?"

She answered: "I am thinking of death!"

"Do you fear to die?" he inquired.

"Oh, no!" she replied emphatically. And soon after broke out in the following beautiful sentence, "There is no love so great, no love so pure, no love so sweet, no love so true, as our Savior's." Words worthy to be published to the ends of the earth. Let them go and preach from the lips of this dying christian.

After comforting her husband and mother, she said: "It is hard to part with friends, but I believe I shall soon meet them in my Father's kingdom, to part no more."

Playfully and cheerfully she remarked again to her husband: "In the morning of the resurrection I shall first look for Jesus, and then for you;" soon after adding to her mother, "and for you, and for father;" and after enumerating other dear relatives, concluded, "and all the dear ones;" referring to the redeemed of earth. Yes, first look for Jesus, then for husband and friends. How appropriate. May she not look in vain for the latter; and as for Jesus, he no doubt will appear to her joy.

Shall I add to fill this picture, already so beautiful, another fact? A celestial attendant, in the last days of her sufferings, was at times so visible to her, and yet never showing the face, that she wondered her husband and mother could not see it. This ministering angel sympathized with her in her sufferings, and with it she would at times converse. She inquired of her mother who she thought it could be? Her mother replied, seeing that she was so rational about it:

"Adelia, it is no doubt the Angel of the Lord that 'encampeth round about them that fear him,' and he is sent to comfort you." As "angels ministered" unto Jesus in his sufferings, did he not send one of these ministering spirits, sent forth to minister for them who shall be heirs of salvation" (Heb. 1: 14), to be this dear child's attendant in her last pains?

"Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints." A "jewel" is laid away "in the dust of the earth" for "the better resurrection."

O. R. Fassett.

For the World's Crisis.

MINISTERIAL SUPPORT.—No. 2.

Can our ministers be kept in the field? Yes; if those who profess to believe the truth will make sacrifices equal with the ministry. Will they do this? You profess to believe Jesus is coming soon to judge the world and destroy all mortal things. Is it better to lay up your money in banks, railroad stock, shipping, lands and houses, bonds and stocks, than to use your earnings (above your support) in sustaining gospel ministers to publish the word of life, to save perishing sinners, and to scatter books and tracts? We do not ask you to leave off work, nor trade, or any honest business by which you can earn money while you live christian lives; but we do ask you to consider the duty of being "rich toward God"; of aiding the poor and perishing, and of sustaining the last message of mercy to a perishing world.

There are those who have but little means, yet do much for the cause of our soon coming Lord. There are those who have much, and are constantly adding to it, while they do little or nothing for the cause. To the last-named we speak. We believe the Lord wants your liberality to abound to your account. You give little of your abundance. Are you living out christianity? Does God accept your offerings? Can you be justified while keeping your abundance and adding to it, and allowing Christ's faithful ministers to labor in poverty, self-sacrifice, want, care, perplexity and anxiety about the supply of their families, and, to meet expenses, often leaving preaching to earn the means of subsistence? Can you sit and listen complacently to the faithful preaching of a man who travels with his team (to preach to you), for which you would ask ten dollars, and allow him to go away with only two or three dollars? Can you enjoy the blessed hope of eternal life, while doing little or nothing to spread the good news of salvation? You often wish a minister would come and preach in your place, and sometimes ask one to come, and wonder they do not come more frequently. Would you be willing to go to his place and spend the same amount of time with him that he must with you, for the same amount you think to give him?

Some of you have much property, which could be put into the Lord's treasury and do a great amount of good in gathering souls to Christ, which is now of no real benefit to any body. You give a little of the increase, perhaps, and if you die before the Lord comes, your heirs may quarrel over it, or squander it upon their lusts. Had you not better put it into the treasury of the Lord, and deal it out in spreading the truth for the salvation of souls, and lay a good foundation for life in the world to come?

I. C. Wellcome.

For the World's Crisis.

MEETINGS IN COLUMBUS, KANSAS.

Editor Crisis:—"Behold, I bring you glad tidings." Truth is mighty and will prevail. Eld. J. V. Himes, of Buchanan, Mich., closed a series of meetings here on Wednesday evening last; the result of which must not only be gratifying to himself, but give cause for rejoicing with Him who takes pleasure in the delight of his saints.

The doctrine which Elder H. advocated was entirely new to many of us, yet so full of interest that the little chapel was filled every evening. The prophecies occupied the first of the series of lectures, and caused no little stir in this community, and formed the general topic of conversation.

Last Monday evening four persons expressed a desire publicly of forming an Advent Christian church. On the following day, about four P. M., a little party might have been seen wending their way silently out upon the prairie, to a suitable spot upon which to administer the sacred rite of baptism. The sun cast his rays of warmth and light upon the little assembly as it stood beside the water, glistening in the rays of the sun like a sea of glass, and sang—

"Jesus, I my cross have taken,"

and—

"O, happy day, that fixed my choice."

It seemed as though everything present would lead the mind to think of higher things than those that are deemed of earth, earthy. The impressions of that hour we can never forget.

In the evening the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered according to the apostolic custom, which from its impressiveness and solemnity carried an influence that few will ever forget. The empty chair at the head of the table, though a novel sight to many, was more eloquent than words; for since the late war who is there that does not fully realize the significance of the vacant chair? but to those who live in hope of His speedy coming, how impressive, how symbolical, how glorious it seems. Yes, He is coming to fill the chair at the head of the table, and reign forever.

After the services of the sacrament had been concluded, the church organization was fully completed by the ordaining of Amos Sanford as Elder, and C. D. Nichols as Deacon, who were informed that, as this was the first church organized in this State, and that they were the first ordained officers, much responsibility rested upon them.

The next day, two other candidates having expressed a desire to receive the rite of baptism, the party again wended their way to the water's edge, and performed the ceremony expressive of the death and burial of Christ.

This little organization of eleven members are fully bound to go on, live by the creed God has revealed unto us, and to stand ready any time to meet Him at his second coming who has said, "Come unto me, . . . and I will give you rest."

C. D. Nichols.

Columbus, Kansas, Jan. 15th.

For the World's Crisis.

KIND WORDS.

There seems to be such a rush of all other words in our days, that it seems no more than justice to give kind words a chance among them. It is sad to admit but few care to deal in them. They can trade and traffic, sit and gossip, joke and slander, backbite and scoff, without once calling into use kind words. They seem to forget their existence; or, if not forget, they certainly do not properly estimate their worth. There are empty words, and boisterous words, and warlike words, and vain words, and spiteful words, and silly words, and hasty words, and idle words, and bitter words, and each bear more or less the stamp of sin.

Kind words also reflect the source from which they flow; and who would not trace their source to God, the fountain-head of all good? Kind words make other people good-natured in spite of themselves, sometimes. A morose disposition will expand and sweeten beneath the sunlight of kind words. Cold words freeze people, and when there are cold hearts, cold words and cold looks, the atmosphere around them is chilly indeed. Hot words scorch the soul, and nearly destroy the good that might have been gained by kind words. Bitter words make the hearer feel like fighting somebody. Wrathful words serve as fuel to kindle lasting fires.

Kind words cost but little, yet they accomplish much. They help one's own good will and good nature, and one lives a deeper life while using them. They never blister the tongue, nor pain the heart, and they never give rise to bad tendencies.

Kind words are sadly, sadly neglected. Who will improve the first opportunity to use one of the neglected kind words? If you cannot think of a kind word, why use one the nearest to it that you can think of, and say it in a softer tone; and by degrees you will get your memory strengthened, and real kind words will flow into your heart and from your lips. If it is more of a task to use kind words, some may think they lose by it. Not so; for experience has taught us that we need say but little, if those words are kind. Let us invest more time and talent in kind words.

Sophia Clemons.

For the World's Crisis.

THE BIBLE IN PUBLIC SERVICES.

God's word was given us for general use, and designed, therefore, to be generally known and understood; hence, not for a few favored persons; neither is it to be expatiated from ("from" is just the word, as few interpret out of it) in a hortatory style, in a flowery, grandiloquent sermon, moral oration, or nicely worded essay, which has in it more human language than scriptural quotation. It is to be preached just as Ezra the scribe preached it when he "stood upon a pulpit of wood"; for he "read in the book of the law of the Lord distinctly, gave the sense, and caused the people to understand the reasoning." But this sort of preaching, alas! is not common in our day, when the word is read, and the people caused to understand the reading.

The simple reading of the Bible is neglected in the public congregations, even by those who think they have all the truth; but however much truth may be preached, we make a special plea here for the reading of the Bible as a special part of divine service; plainly, solemnly, forcibly; not rattling it off, parrot-like, but as though it were indeed the word of God.

My brethren, read the plain, literal word of God. The text is always the best part of any man's sermon, unless he happens to make other scriptural quotations; and a connected reading of text and context often conveys more to the minds of the hearers than an attempt at sermonizing can, or even the best of human reasoning, although God has given us the word in just such shape as to make preaching of the right sort necessary and instructive.

The people, by this means, can better know how the word reads than they otherwise could do, if they will listen to its testimony; but of that part the preacher has no responsibility. They cannot then dispute what they know is in the book. We have been privileged to read the Bible in assisting in public services with ministers of other denominations, when and where comment of ours would not answer; when we have selected the thirty-seventh Psalm, or other passages, and made the plain word strongly emphatic, and let it leave its own impression.

We do not recommend always just the reading of a chapter, for often a chapter divides the sense; but let the word be so read as to give correctly the sense intended by the Spirit of God. Read a connected account of events that transpired, an apostolic argument, a parable, or some other lesson from the lips of Jesus. It often aids one much to read the chapter or connection from which the text is taken.

Many persons are present often on the Lord's day, who never or rarely ever read the Bible themselves; and though they often have it in their houses, are wofully ignorant of its teachings; and here they may hear and get interested by seeing the real excellence of a book they thought was dull and dry. Dr. Daniel Wise, of the M. E. church, calls the Bible a literary Eden, which one enters to behold the beauties that surround him—the fruit, the flowers, and the running streams; and ere he is aware he finds himself tasting the fruit and drinking the limpid waters (we do not give his words precisely, but the thought is his). Hence when a minister reads the Bible properly, he introduces people into the garden, where they learn to pluck the golden fruit.

These are the reasons why we urge our preaching brethren to read some selection of the word of God before the sermon, at least once every Sabbath. It is as much a means of grace as prayer, and should no more be neglected. Let us remember that by this word we have a knowledge of the truth. We confess to have somewhat neglected this, but have recently been impressed with the importance of the duty, and intend to give more attention to the matter in future.

L. C. McKinstry.

For the World's Crisis.

TRUST IN JESUS.

I was kneeling by my bedside,
While my heart with grief was torn,
And it seemed to me my anguish
Was more than could be borne;
Then I prayed unto the Father,
As my Savior did of yore—
"Father, let this cup pass from me,"
For my heart is wounded sore.
And I said, O, heavenly Father,
Wilt thou tell me what to do?
O, such glorious light from heaven
As then came before my view.
Then a gentle voice spoke to me,
And it whispered low and sweet,
And it said to me three words,
Which here I will repeat:
"Trust in Jesus."

O, what comfort, peace and joy,
Those words did give to me,
And I felt that I from sorrow
And anguish now was free;
For my heart was filled with joy,
In the place of grief and pain,
And I promised my dear Savior
That I ne'er would doubt again;
But that when dark clouds came o'er me,
And sorrow filled my breast,
I would look to him for comfort,
And I knew he'd give me rest.
For that sweet voice which I heard,
Was full of pitying love,
As it spoke to me, and said,
From the holy courts above,
"Trust in Jesus."

So. Elliot, Me. A. F. Dixon.

STRONG TESTIMONY.

A correspondent sends the following, clipped from the New Haven Palladium, and says, "Are there not some in other denominations who would bear the same internal testimony?"

In the Congregational churches, the spirit of religious worship appears to be on the decline. The reason of this doubtless is, that the principal part of our church service is the sermon; and, as a general rule, the less there is of the gospel in it, the greater satisfaction it gives. The "old fogies," who had some taste for religious instruction from the pulpit, are rapidly dying out; the people are thought to be more generally instructed; and so the "congregation of the period" demands two orations every Sabbath, which shall be as innocent as possible of the common teachings of the New Testament. If the singing is performed by a quartette or a single female, if a female solo can be found to do it, time so employed is not grudged, but otherwise the praises and the prayers are expected to be short and swift.

Our popular ministers have a reputation for eloquence and originality, not in presenting the claims of the gospel, but in discussing the exciting and absorbing topics of the day, on some question of modern science or philosophy, falsely so-called, in reference to which they cram for the occasion. If the preacher has a touch of the harlequin, and a graceful facility at a quip or a joke, he will draw the largest crowd, but at the same time bring no vital increase to the church. Ministers of this class, who attract great numbers of curious hearers, have seriously demoralized the Congregational churches and ministry, and done an immense injury to the religious sentiment of the people. They are most popular lecturers, whose performances are at best a substitute for "Sunday theatricals."

The evident tendency in our churches is to a decline of the worship of God, and a more earnest worship of the sermon and the minister. So, if the sermon ceases to be entertaining or exciting, or if it treat of repentance, faith, love to God and man; or if the minister is independent in his relations to his congregation, the "leading men" of the parish,—those Diotrephesian prefects of modern Congregationalism,—pronounce "his usefulness at an end," and proceed to cast down the god they have set up. Many, not finding the sermon sufficiently original or outrageous, abandon the place designed for the worship of God, and seek to satisfy the unnatural cravings of their moral nature on the garbage of religious newspapers, or the moral romances of the "Plymouth pulpit," or the gassy, serio-comic platitudes of "lecture room talks."

RULES TO PROMOTE HARMONY AMONG CHURCH MEMBERS.

1. To remember that we are all subject to failings and infirmities of one kind or another.

2. To bear with, and not magnify each other's infirmities. Gal. 6: 12.

3. To pray for one another in our social meetings, and particularly in private. James 5: 16.

4. Always to turn a deaf ear to any slanderous report, and to lay no charge brought against any person till well founded.

5. If a member be in fault, to tell him of it in private before it is mentioned to others.

6. To watch against a shyness of each other, and put the best construction on any action that has the appearance of opposition or resentment.

7. To observe the just rule of Solomon, that is, to leave off contention before it is meddled with. Prov. 27: 14.

8. If a member has offended, to consider how glorious, how God-like it is to forgive, and how unlike a christian it is to revenge. Eph. 4: 2.

9. Remember that it is always a grand artifice of the devil to promote distrust and animosity among members of churches, and we should therefore watch against every thing that furthers this end.

10. To consider how much more good we can do in the world at large, and in the church in particular, when we are all united in love, than we should do when acting alone, and indulging a contrary spirit.

11. Lastly, to consider the express injunction of Scripture and the beautiful example of Christ as to these important things.

12. Above all, remember to love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and thy neighbor as thyself.—Christian Observer.

SPIRITUAL COLDNESS IN CHURCHES.

When we examine the surface indications about us, we are astonished at the little interest church members have in each other, as such. In many cases, those who enter a Christian church are left to struggle into acquaintanceship as best they may—left to battle with their embarrassments without a cheering word. And if members are tempted astray, no one feels under any obligations to call or to lead them back to the fold again. Not a few will stand ready to say, rather complacently than christianly: "Just as I expected! I told you so. Couldn't hold out!" All the while, the truth is this: They were frozen out. And as long as criticism, censure, judgment, exaction as a tax, devotion dunned out as the toll, are permitted to chill the church, just so long will young and tender communicants be killed by the frost. There is too much spiritual November in our churches.

If there were no youthful and inexperienced disciples, no timid, trembling followers of Jesus—if religion were a something to lounge in, or promenade through, in mere luxury and show—if going to heaven were nothing more than a torch-light procession—then persons might choose their comrades and adopt their regalia and mottos according to tastes and times.—Rev. Alexander Clark.

"WHAT SHALL WE DO?"—Lk. 3: 12. "PRAY."—Matt. 9: 38.

It is sometimes found in the experience of persons whose character of earnest piety and deep devotedness would be questioned by few, that there are times and seasons when they are so shut up and hemmed in by circumstances, or the providence of God, that the rendering of any service, either immediate or remote to the interests of the cause they hold dear above all others, seems well nigh impossible. They want to serve God. They inquire in all sincerity, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" They feel confident that no one possessed of a willing mind and obedient heart need remain long without proper employment, or make complaint, saying, "No man hath hired us." And yet they almost fear that if the Lord and Master of the vineyard were to appear, his first interrogation would be, "Why stand ye here all the day idle?" Whatever the talent committed to them, they have no desire to bury it, and thus dishonor the giver, but for lack of opportunity they have not improved it as they would. Their hearts grow sad, and in their real distress they present their case again before the Lord, and find comfort in patiently waiting for him.

A recent experience similar to this led me to pour out my heart in prayer for all the "laborers" in the Lord's vineyard, and especially for "those women" laboring in the gospel, and for our editor, who, having as she thought no call to preach, has found a work of no less magnitude and importance, ready fitted to her hand. God bless her!

And as I prayed thus, and added a petition unto the Lord of the harvest, that he would "send forth laborers into the harvest," I remembered that Jesus himself commanded his disciples thus to pray, and my heart was comforted by the thought that therefore even this was a service acceptable unto God. The Spirit "helpeth our infirmities," making intercessions for us. Then as I thought of that other petition, "Thy kingdom come," my soul was filled with gratitude, because the dear Master knew there would be some of his little ones who could not do anything but pray, and so he appointed this. Praise God, we can all and always do something. We never need despair at the thought of our own littleness or our secluded position. When no other way is open, every avenue of usefulness seems closed against our efforts and wishes, we will still "pray the Lord of the vineyard, that he would send forth laborers into his harvest." And until faith is lost in sight, and life is changed to glad fruition, we will not cease to pray, "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven."—Woman and her Work.

Gems.

— Religion is a personal business; and if all the rest of the world were to forsake Christ, it would be our duty to follow him.

— The sweetest salve for misery is patience, and the only medicine for want is content.

— Looking to others for our standard of happiness is the sure way to be miserable. Our business is with our own hearts and our own motives.

Abide with me! Fast falls the eventide;
The darkness deepens. Lord, with me abide;
When other helpers fail, and comforts flee,
Help of the helpless, oh, abide with me.

— He that loves God most will lay out most for God. More than once in the Scriptures do we read of "the labor of love." Love resteth in its labor, and then resteth most when it laboreth most. Nothing labors more or thinks its labor less.

— It is a pleasant tarrying that stayeth from evil doing.

— Religion is a likeness to God, according to our ability.

— A great man is always willing to be little.

— It is good to forbear to talk of things needless to be spoken; but it is much better to conceal things dangerous to be told.

'Tis not for man to trifle. Life is brief,
And sin is here;
Our age is but the falling of a leaf—
A dropping tear.
We have no time to sport away the hours;
All must be earnest in a world like ours.

— The common sort do take revenge for their credit; but noble minds forgive for their virtue.

— The christian is commanded to "pray without ceasing." He cannot always be engaged in the positive act, but he should have what I call a holy aptitude for prayer. The bird is not always on the wing, but he is ready to fly in an instant; so the believer is not always on the wing of prayer, but he has such a gracious aptitude for this exercise, that he is prepared in a moment, when in need or danger, to fly for refuge to his God.

Live to be honored, trusted, and loved,
Earnestly seeking strength from above.

— He that is ignorant in the truth, and led about with opinions, must needs err.

— Fine gold fears not the fire, nor solid stone the water.

— Patience and perseverance are two proper notes whereby God's children are truly known from hypocrites, counterfeits, and dissemblers.

— A guilty conscience is like a whirlpool, drawing in all to itself which would otherwise pass by.

— Down below all the crust of human conceptions, of human ideas, Christ sank an artesian well into a source of happiness so pure and blessed that even yet the world does not believe in it.

The sorrows that to us seem so perplexing,
Are mercies kindly sent,
To guard our wayward souls from sadder vexing,
And greater ills prevent.

— Nature not manured with knowledge, bringeth forth nothing but thistles and brambles.

— The first step to virtue, is to love virtue in another man.

— Angels, wheresoever they are sent, do always behold the face of God.

The richest boon beneath the skies,
In which the heart alone can share,
Is christian love—this never dies;
Oh, that its power was everywhere.

— Endeavor thyself to do so well, that others may rather envy at thy knowledge, than laugh at thy ignorance.

— At one of the stations on a certain railway recently, an anxious inquirer came up to the door of the baggage-car and said: "Is there any thing for me?" After some search among the baggage and trunks, the baggage-man rolled out a keg of whiskey. "Anything more?" asked the wet grocer. "Yes," answered the baggage-man, "there's a grave-stone goes with that liquor."

Christian perfection is the perfection of love, of desire, of effort—not the climax of attainment. A man can never be too righteous to grow, not until a cedar can be too healthy and strong to grow—too full of sap to put forth a new bud, expand a new leaf, start out a new bough, fashion a new cone, and enlarge its own trunk.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

WHY JOHNNY LIKED THE MINISTER.

"Oh! wasn't that a good minister we had to-day?" said Johnny.

"Yes, very good. Which sermon did you like best?" said his teacher.

"Oh! I don't know. It wasn't the sermons altogether that I mean."

"What then?"

"Why he prayed for Sunday schools and boys so good; I never heard any one pray so much for boys. Most of them do not. That is why I liked him."

"Do you not like to be prayed for?"

"Why, yes, of course I do."

"The minister prayed to-day that all the boys might be Christ's boys. Did you not like that?"

"Yes, and I prayed as hard as I could that I might be. When we hear people praying for us it makes us think it is about time to be praying for ourselves. If children don't like to say much about good things, I guess they all like to have the minister remember them. I always watch and see if they pray for young folks; if they don't, I think they won't have much in their sermon either. Then of course I don't listen as well as I should if I thought there was something for me."

For the "Children's Corner."

LINES.

HATTIE STONE.*

Hattie was a "bud of promise,"
Gentle, cheerful, playful, kind;
All admired her, e'en to fondness—
Round her were all hearts entwined.

Loved ones miss thee, darling Hattie;
Parents' eyes oft fill with tears;
Even sister don't forget thee,
Though she lacks maturer years.

When we gather round the table,
Then a painful void appears;
If we listen for thy prattle,
Loving eyes are filled with tears.

Every night a crib stands empty;
Every day a chair is void;
Every room seems sadly vacant,
Wanting one which we enjoyed.

Little clothes hang on the ceiling;
Little toys are lying near;
These recall the painful feelings,
That our Hattie is not here.

Earth without thee seems so dreary,
For thy presence gave us cheer,
That of life we're almost weary,
Feeling we've no treasure here.

But we've heard there's life for Hattie
When the resurrection comes,—
Life, eternal life, and glory;
O for grace to hail that morn!

I. K. Lombard.

* Hattie, daughter of Joseph and Elvira Stone, died in Compton, P. Q., the past summer, aged two years.

A PLEASANT INCIDENT.

A correspondent of "The Sunday-School Workman," writing from Philadelphia, tells how a little boy seven years old helped a minister. It is a pleasant incident. He says:

"Rev. Dr. B., who was supplying a vacant pulpit in our city, on his way to the church, being a little early, stopped at my residence. As he entered I said, 'Good-morning, Dr. B. I am really glad to see you.' My little boy, in his seventh year, being present (and who, by-the-by, was a favorite of the doctor,) ran toward him to greet him with a kiss. I said: 'My boy, repeat the little verse which you have just learned to the doctor.' He did so, and said:

"Never give up when trials come;
Never look sad or blue;
Never sit down with a tear or a frown,
But paddle your own canoe."

The doctor, being perplexed and troubled in his mind (of which we had no knowledge,) was struck with the fitness in his case of the remarks of the little orator. Catching the boy up in his arms and kissing him, he said: 'God bless you, my child! You have comforted me! I have been in much distress of mind, and the Lord has directed my feet hither, and this child has been to me as an angel of light.' Tears filling his eyes, he exclaimed: 'Oh! you do not know how much good those simple lines have done me!'

"The wise man says, 'The spider taketh hold with her hands and is in kings' palaces.' And a little child in His hands is made the instructor and comforter of one of God's most useful children, who, in his turn, has given instruction and consolation to thousands."—Children's Hour.

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—Paul.

For the Hygienic Column.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

I would recommend the use of Wilson's "Compound" for consumptives, as the most safe and sure remedy. I have used it with entire success, as have some of my friends. I think it might be a benefit to Bro. J. W. Thomas, if taken in season. In ordering, direct to Rev. Edward A. Wilson, Williamsburg, Kings Co., N. Y. By sending $3.00, you will get a package with full directions.

Gilmanton, N. H. N. B. McMurphy.

NEGLECTING OUR BODIES.

"Ah," says one, "there is little danger of our doing that in this fashionable era." We are neglecting our bodies in more ways than one. The wheels of truth move more slowly on toward conquest. Among the most common of these ways are—neglecting to clothe and feed our bodies properly, and denying them nature's (the most effective antidotes against disease) pure air and pure water.

Most of us wear clothing enough, but somehow we do not succeed in making our bodies comfortable. A tight waist, or a tight shoe impedes the free circulation of the blood, and so tortures us for the time, besides working all the while at nature's fortifications until some point is sufficiently weakened to be easily captured and forever after held a prisoner by disease. If fashion so decrees, we expose our bodies to imminent danger and innumerable evils by wearing too much or too little clothing, and even if we avoid extremes and try to dress sensibly, or as conscience requires, we do not dress as health and comfort demand. With regard to eating, we are just as guilty, or ignorant, as the case may be. We turn away from simple, healthy food, to gorge ourselves with unwholesome mixtures, invented by those who do not understand nature's laws, or the evils resulting from transgression; and then if our intellects are weak, our dispositions unpleasant, we lay the blame at nature's door, and attribute our bodily suffering to Providence, instead of to the irritating, unhealthy food with which we are crowding our stomachs.

We spend money for something to quench our thirst, and that something, if nothing worse than tea or coffee, is an injury to us, when pure, cold water, the beverage God intended us to use, is, or might be, within the reach of all. Only those who use it freely and wisely know how to prize its invigorating, health-giving qualities.

We spend money, too, some of us a great many dollars, in fitting-up our homes, and we consider them comfortable only when we have succeeded in shutting out one of God's choicest blessings—pure, fresh air. We shut ourselves up night after night in poorly ventilated rooms, and when morning comes, we do not allow our lungs to throw out the foul and drink in the pure air, and then we wonder why we feel so dull, so weak, and we see that we are growing old very fast, and somehow the world looks so dark, so full of trouble that we feel discouraged, and we cannot help looking sober, and the young say, "Well, if christians have reason for looking so gloomy, I don't want to be one."

I tell you, friends, we are putting a great stumbling-block in the way of sinners just by neglecting to care for our bodies properly. Who does not know that a healthy, happy christian will do more good than a gloomy, sickly one?

Can we expect to reach the heights and depths of christian joy and peace, unless we keep our bodies, the Holy Spirit's temple, as pure as God intended them to be?

By-and-by there will come a time when we shall see what we might have been, what we might have done, if we had only taken better care of our bodies. We shall see how many more souls we might have been instrumental in saving, how many more stars we might have won for our crown, but then it will be too late.

It is not too late now. There is time to work, time to get more wisdom. Shall we not improve it?—Earnest Christian.

CHILDRENS' DRESS.

We find the following sensible hints in "Talks to my Patients," by Mrs. Gleason:—

Such is the style of dress for both sexes during their early years, that there is an unhealthful exposure of the lower limbs. The skirts are short and full, standing out from the person, so as to afford little protection below the hips; and the limbs incased in but one thickness of cotton, that fine and thin, reaching but little below the knee; and from thence to the ankle only a stocking, that often of fine texture. A man or woman who should go abroad in midwinter dressed thus, would be thought to "dare death." When fashion sanctions such a suit, even for those who are still in their tender years, can it be borne with impunity? Does not the fearful mortality among children show that there is "something wrong somewhere," and may not the fault in part lie here? Colds, coughs, croup, and inflammation of the lungs are frightfully frequent during childhood. These diseases do not come from want of clothing about the chest, for enough and more than enough is usually worn there, but from the extremities not being well clothed. Fashion furnishes to boys a firmer fabric for their limbs much earlier than to girls; they have no alternative till their entrance into "teens" demands the long skirts.

Children should be clad with drawers, as well as dresses, of a material suitable for the season. But I seem to hear one and another say, that our little misses would all look like young squaws clad thus. Well, be it so; they had much better, in cold weather, wear flannel than muslin; for of wool, it may in truth be said, "No matter if it is cold and wet, it is always warm and dry." Of this material we have now such a variety of goods of different textures, shades, and colors, that it would seem that something might be selected suitable to clothe the lower limbs of young girls and little children every way better than the "thin stuff" they now wear.

We might as well send our girls forth in the winds of winter clad in thin dresses as thin drawers. If those of muslin are desired, then drawers of woolen or cotton flannel should be worn under, coming down inside the stockings.

To prevent pressure of blood to the head, congestion of the throat and lungs or other internal organs, the inferior extremities must be kept warm.

Consistency in clothing is a jewel, most precious because of its rarity as well as real worth.

DRY BEDS AND DAMP BEDS.

It is not sufficiently known that almost all substances have the property of absorbing moisture from the atmosphere. Linen is remarkable for this property; the same may be said of feathers, and in a less degree of wool; hence the difficulty of keeping a bed dry, unless it is constantly used or exposed to warmth from a fire. Merely covering a bed up with blankets and counterpane will no more keep it dry than a pane of glass will keep out light: the atmospheric moisture will pass through every woven fabric. Damp beds, unfortunately, are generally found in the spare or visitor's room; hence the persons often most welcome in a house suffer from this terrible evil. Spare beds should never have anything but a slight coverlet to keep them clean, and it should be put upon them when not in actual use. People often fancy that damp is only in the sheets, but it is in all the other clothes. A bed will be much dryer by itself than with blankets and counterpane upon it. Every spare room that is at all likely to be used by visitors, should have a good fire in it at least every third or fourth day during the winter, and the bed should be well turned in the interval. Blankets and counterpane should be dried and folded up hot, and put away till wanted; if they are left open upon a bed they quickly absorb damp, which cannot be quickly dried out. It is cruel and ungenerous to put a visitor friend to sleep in a fireless cold room, with damp clothes to cover him, when a little coal would have made all healthy and comfortable. It is a good and simple plan, to keep beds dry, to change them from one room to another every week, so that all may be more or less in use.—Arthur's Magazine.

Fatigue.—In order to understand the influence of an irregular expenditure of force, we need only to remember that when greatly fatigued we lose our appetite, and that when the stomach is full of activity, the limbs are indisposed for performing hard work. Insufficient nourishment and fatiguing work, during the period of growth, stop the corporeal development of the individual.—Liebig.

— Bishop Ames, of the Methodist church, declared in a conference held at Alexandria, Va., that "tobacco is doing more harm to the church than whisky."

The World's Crisis

AND

SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance.....................$2.50 a year.
Five copies six months to one address.......$5.00.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies six months to one address......$10.00.
Same rate for any number over ten.
CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Postage.—The postage in the United States on each single copy of the Crisis is 20 cts. a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.

Over all matters not intended for publication write—Private.
Over all business matters, write—Business.
Over all articles for the paper, write—For the Crisis.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's Name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save much labor.
Private Letters.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, please write Private on the outside of the envelope.
☞ Put business matters and appointments on separate pieces of paper, or so that they can be detached without interfering with any other communication.
☞ All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the POST OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

Issued Semi-monthly by the
ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY.
At No. 160 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass.
GEO. T. ADAMS,
Treasurer and Business Agent.

TERMS.

PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Single copy, 50 cts. a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.
Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 40 cts. a year for each copy.
Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 35 cts. a year for each copy.
To Canada subscribers at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 798. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1871. VOL. XXXII.—NO. 20.

The World's Crisis,
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, by the
ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY,
At No. 160 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass.
GEO. T. ADAMS,
Treasurer and Business Agent.

MILES GRANT, Editor.
William Sheldon, Corresponding Editor.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, L. BOUTELL,
JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
HOMER A. KING, H. V. DAVIS,
L. T. CUNNINGHAM, J. G. HAMBLIN,
H. H. DICKENSON.

☞ The Crisis is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

"GO WORK IN MY VINEYARD."

Entered the vineyard, but not to work,
To unceasingly toil through heat and cold,
To bear the burden the whole day long,
And gain for the Master an hundred fold.

Entered the vineyard, but not to work;
Is this the promise I made my Lord,
When he rolled from my conscience its load of guilt,
And bade me to hope for the righteous reward?

No! I bowed me low at my Savior's feet,
And said, Jesus, henceforth I will work for thee;
But give me a place in thy vineyard to-day,
Though the least of thy servants I there shall be.

With the opening leaves of the smiling spring,
I will sow the seed and plant the vine,
And carefully watch o'er the tender grapes,
'Mid the glowing beauties of summer time.

And when by the autumn's gorgeous tints,
I know that the harvest is drawing near,
May I gather rich clusters of purple hue,
To present to thee, Master, when thou shalt appear.

L. M. Proctor.

For the World's Crisis.

THE HEAVENLY CALLING.

When there is set before us any real, temporal good, of which we greatly stand in need, and which can be honorably and honestly obtained, do we not make effort to secure it? How much more should we endeavor to lay hold of those eternal and priceless treasures in Christ Jesus. What are all the vain and paltry things of time, in comparison with the inestimable blessings of "the world to come"? Says Paul—"Holy brethren, partakers of the heavenly calling, . . . we are made partakers of Christ, if we hold the beginning of our confidence steadfast unto the end."—Heb. 3 : 1, 14.

Holiness is purity of heart, uprightness and integrity of character; a sanctification of the disposition, passions, desires, and affections. And those possessing these qualities in a greater or less degree in this fallen world, with "the righteousness of faith" added, so that Christ makes up for all deficiency, may be regarded as the "holy brethren." 1 Cor. 1 : 30. The apostle says—"Holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord." Heb. 12 : 14. And among the benedictions of the blessed life, Christ says—"Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God." Matt. 5 : 8.

Holiness is not a mere profession, or outward garb, or kind of Sabbath-day religion, that can be put on or off at pleasure, as we do our vestments; but a heart work, the outward deportment attesting the inward Spirit's influence on the heart. And what manner of persons ought we "to be in all holy conversation and godliness?" 2 Pet. 3 : 11.

The "holy brethren" are "partakers of the heavenly calling." "The gifts and calling of God are without repentance" to our world. Rom. 11 : 29. "For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men" (Titus 2 : 11), irrespective of character. But those who are "partakers of the heavenly calling" are those who believe, obey, and receive the gospel, "denying ungodliness and worldly lusts"; who "live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world; looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ." Titus 2 : 11–14. "Every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure." 1 John 3 : 2, 3.

The apostle defines "the heavenly calling" in two of his epistles thus—"called to be saints." Rom. 1 : 2; 1 Cor. 1 : 2. And in another describes it as "the holy calling"; and in another, "the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." And, truly, "called to be saints" is such. What higher or holier calling can there be? Those "called to be saints" should be saints, not sinners! saint-like, Christ-like, God-like, possessing a life and character which is a complete transcript of the Holy One. "The heavenly calling" is a calling heavenward in character, and heavenward in our earthly pilgrimage, ending in the heavenly society of the redeemed, and in the heavenly country, the saints' eternal abode.

DUTIES OF THE HEAVENLY CALLING.

There are duties connected with this holy calling. It is the "work of faith."—1 Thess. 1 : 3. "Then said they unto him, What shall we do, that we might work the works of God? Jesus answered, This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent." John 6 : 28, 29. Nothing can supersede this work. Nothing will be taken in lieu of it. Therefore "we are made partakers of Christ, if we hold the beginning of our confidence steadfast unto the end." Confidence is faith. Hence, "Take heed, brethren, lest there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief, in departing from the living God." Heb. 3 : 12.

Unbelief is the fatal, the condemning sin of our race. Unbelief leads to a departure from God, and incurs the divine displeasure. "To whom sware he that they should not enter into his rest, but to them that believed not? So we see that they could not enter in because of unbelief." Heb. 3 : 18, 19. "If we hold the beginning of our confidence." "If" is a small word, but of vast import. See how it stands in this connection—"Well; because of unbelief they [unbelieving Jews] were broken off, and thou [believing Gentiles] standest by faith. Be not high-minded, but fear. Behold, therefore, the goodness and severity of God: on them which fell, severity; but toward thee goodness, IF thou continue in his goodness: otherwise, thou also shalt be cut off." Rom. 11 : 20–22.

What is to be believed? What is our faith to apprehend?

1. This—"Believe God." "He that cometh to God must believe that He is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." Heb. 11 : 6. God must be apprehended in the faith of the believer as a personal Being; not as a mere "principle," or "idea," but that God in actuality exists, and that he is a God of truth and righteousness, and will reward men for their faith in him and for virtuous deeds.

2. We must believe in his Son, as he says, —"Ye believe in God; believe also in Me." John 14 : 1. Furthermore, in his word of promise—"In my Father's house are many mansions. . . . . I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." John 14 : 2, 3.

First, Christ must be believed in as the Divine Savior. Second, that though he has gone away, he will "come again." Third, that on his return he will "receive" his disciples to himself. Fourth, that then they shall be where he is. Fifth, and that in the "place" he is by his mediation (Luke 19 : 11–15; Ps. 2, and 110) to prepare for his people. This is the faith of which the apostle speaks when he exhorts—"Cast not away, therefore, your confidence, which hath great recompense of reward." "For yet a little while, and he that shall come will come, and will not tarry." Heb. 10 : 35–39. Included in this promise is that of "rest" in the inheritance typified by the earthly Canaan and its city, Jerusalem (Heb. 4), into which our Joshua or Jehovah-Savior will bring his people. See Heb. 11.

This faith is to be professed, as a duty of "the heavenly calling," or confessed, and its confession maintained unflinchingly. "Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering; for he is faithful that promised." Heb. 10 : 23. "Let us hold fast our profession." Heb. 4 : 14. And the confidence in the faith, and the profession of it, must be maintained in all the fidelity, zeal and love as at the "beginning" of our experience. "If we hold the beginning of our confidence steadfast unto the end."

How is it with you, holy brethren, beloved of the Lord? Does your faith waver? Does your confession and profession continue with unabated ardor as at the beginning? "Call to remembrance the former days, after ye were illuminated," and compare your present experience and position with those days, and take reckoning therefrom. Alas! how many, like Israel of old, have fallen out of the ranks, and we see them not nor hear them any more. Where are they? Their places are filled by others, but they are missing! Sad thought! Have they fallen through unbelief?

And, again, we are to "hold fast the confidence and the rejoicing of the hope firm unto the end." Heb. 3 : 6. Do you, holy brethren, retain the joys of hope? O, how happy has been your heart, how joyful your countenance, in view of the realization of your hope. What are your experiences now?

Brethren, if your confidence wavers, and if your rejoicing is giving way to murmuring and complaints, you have reason to fear you will come short of this "rest." There may be a reason for this. Is this the reason? You neglect to "exhort one another," and you have become "hardened through the deceitfulness of sin." Heb. 3 : 13. Do you forsake the assembly of those who "exhort one another, and so much the more as they see the day approaching"? Heb. 10 : 25. If this is the reason, return to your former duty and faithfulness; repent, and live.

THE REWARD OF THE HEAVENLY CALLING.

"Made partakers of Christ." In a sense, christian believers are now "partakers of Christ." "As ye have received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him." Col. 2 : 6. "Put on Christ." Gal. 3 : 27. "Christ formed in you." "Christ in you." "Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his." Rom. 8 : 9, 10. "Jesus Christ is in you, except ye be reprobates." 2 Cor. 13 : 5. But while these scriptures speak of our present relation to him, there is still in promise the reward of being "partakers of Christ, if we hold the beginning of our confidence steadfast unto the end." Heb. 3 : 14.

In beautiful symbol the promise is thus set forth—"I will give him that overcometh the Morning Star." Rev. 2 : 28. And Jesus says in explanation—"I am the bright and Morning Star." Rev. 22 : 16. Thus he promises himself to the conqueror through grace. As the Bridegroom gives himself to the bride, with all he possesses, so does the heavenly Bridegroom give himself to the Church. Possessing him, we possess "all things"; for he is "heir of all things"; and the saints are to be "joint-heirs with Christ." Rom. 8. This is included in that beautiful and eloquent prayer—"Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory, which thou hast given me." John 17 : 24.

Oh! to be with Him"; to "ever be with the Lord"; to "be with him in glory," and to "behold his glory," and be a partaker and sharer of him and "his glory." It is enough! What more can be added to fill the cup of joy? The rapture of the hour of its possession who can conceive? The eternal and unalloyed felicity what mind has begun to contemplate? It is measureless and unfathomable. If now we can sing so heartily—

"Oh Jesus, my Savior, with thee I am blest!
My life and salvation, my joy and my rest!"

What songs of adoration and praise shall make up the surpassing melodies of the heavenly world, when the "partakers of the heavenly calling" have reached the blissful Eden and Paradise of God, and find themselves in possession of the supreme object of their love —the great Redeemer—and all the "joys at his right hand." May we be there.

O. R. Fassett.

For the World's Crisis.

THE DAILY SACRIFICE OF DANIEL 8: 11, 12.

Under the law the Jews were required to sacrifice a lamb morning and evening continually. Exod. 29 : 38, 39. This could, therefore, by way of abbreviation, be called "the continual." The translators having so understood the phrase, used by Daniel in chap. 8 : 11, 12, they rendered it the daily sacrifice. But some think they should not have supplied the word sacrifice, as they have done, but rendered it "the daily," or, more literally, "the continual." Some of these think "the daily," and the "abomination of desolation," are two abominations thus distinguished apart. But the propriety of such a distinction is questionable. If the abomination of desolation was of an intermittent character, another might be distinguished from it as the daily. But this not being the case, it is rightly understood of the daily sacrifice in its literal import; but being used symbolically in the vision of chap. 8, it would symbolize something analogous thereto. For instance, if a phrase denoting the daily sacrifice under the Mosaic dispensation, is used to symbolize a service under the Christian dispensation, it would be that which has a scriptural resemblance thereto. What this is, the words of the apostle Peter seem to indicate, where he says—"Ye also, as lively stones, are built up a spiritual house, a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God through Jesus Christ." 1 Pet. 2 : 5.

In the eleventh chapter of Daniel the Romans are represented as sailing out of Chittim, and compelling Antiochus to retire from his last attempt to conquer Egypt. And Sir Isaac Newton, as quoted and endorsed by Bishop Newton, says,

"In the same year that Antiochus by the command of the Romans retired out of Egypt, and set up the worship of the Greeks in Judea, the Romans conquered Macedon, the fundamental kingdom of the empire of the Greeks, and reduced it to a Roman province; and thereby began to put an end to the reign of Daniel's third beast. This is thus expressed by Daniel: And after him arms, that is, the Romans, shall stand up. As the Hebrew text signifies, after the king (Dan. 11 : 8 :) so it may signify after him. Arms are everywhere in this prophecy of Daniel put for the military power of a kingdom; and they stand up when they conquer and grow powerful. Hitherto Daniel described the actions of the kings of the north and south; but upon the conquest of Macedon by the Romans, he left off describing the actions of the Greeks, and began to describe those of the Romans in Greece."

According to this argument of Newton, chap. 11 : 31 should be rendered—"After him arms shall stand up, and they shall pollute the sanctuary of strength, and shall take away the daily sacrifice, and they shall place the abomination that maketh desolate." This is represented as being done by the little horn, which grew out of one of the four horns of the goat of Daniel's vision (chap. 8); and since these horns are meant the four divisions of the Grecian empire, and the kingdom of Antiochus being described as the king of the north, and one of the four, it could not be the one represented by the little horn, for that came out of one of the four, and so a fifth kingdom which took away the daily sacrifice.

This and other evidences justify Newton's translation of verse 31, as relating to the Roman arms. Their polluting the sanctuary of strength might cover all that time after Antiochus till the present time, for they began to exercise a controlling influence in religious affairs soon after that, and have kept it up ever since. They took away the daily sacrifice of the spiritual worshipers when they prohibited the exercise of any other than the Catholic creed; for that prohibited the worship of the one God by one Mediator, as well as all other forms of opposite worship.

But the decrees issued by Justinian could not go into full effect till after the conquest of the Arians; for while they maintained civil power, pure christianity was tolerated, but after their conquest, and the Pope was established in Rome in 538, Christianity was no longer tolerated, but a miserable counterfeit was substituted in its place, scripturally denominated the spirit of antichrist, or "the abomination of desolation."

Paul, in 2 Thess. 2 : 3–7, describes the origin of this system, and its development in the man of sin, and uses language identical with that of Dan. 11 : 36–37, proving the identity of the man of sin with the king that was to do according to his will. Paul said, "That day shall not come, except there come a falling away first, and that man of sin be revealed, the Son of perdition; who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshiped; so that he as God sitteth in the temple of God, showing himself that he is God. Remember ye not that while I was yet with you I told you these things? And now ye know what withholdeth, that he should be revealed in his time."

Here are several points to be noticed.

1. No man could exalt himself above all that is called God, unless he acknowledged the existence of the Divine Being.

2. It is common to represent in the Scriptures a whole class of men in the singular, taking one as a type or sample of the rest. Even John declares that many deceivers had entered into the world, who confess not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, and says of them, this is "the deceiver and the antichrist." Christ is the Son of God, but papacy teaches that he is one God with the Father, and thereby denies the Father and Son. And as they thereby confound the being of the Son, as not distinct in his being from the Father, the real Christ is ignored, and a fictitious one put in his place, they do not confess that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh. Their confession is a cheat, a sham.

3. Paul says, after speaking of the apostasy that should first come and develop that man of sin, "And now ye know what withholdeth, that he should be revealed in his time," indicating that he had already told them what was withheld. And what was that but the apostasy which was first to come? And so when he afterward says in the same connection, "For the mystery of that lawless doth already work," under this description he identifies the apostasy as already begun. And so when he says, in continuation, only he withholdeth until now, he evidently refers to the man of sin holding back from development for lack of sufficient apostate strength to develop in his day. And so the additional words, heos ek mesou genetai, refer to the development of this man out of the midst of this apostasy from the faith of Christ; for the word heos means until; ek, out; mesou, midst; genetai, to come, or happen.

The man of sin was to be developed by an apostasy, and that had not then become strong enough, and so he withheld, as Paul said. The idea that Pagan Rome was what withheld is not justified by the facts in the case, for the apostasy had but just begun to work in Paul's day, and had not begun to attain popularity enough to support the election of the man of sin in his exaltation above all the potentates of earth. The man of sin withheld, or kept back from development, on this account, and for no other. The rendering of the translators, "until he be taken out of the way," is forced and unnatural; for heos ek mesou genetai has only two of its words properly represented in such a rendering. Mesou, which has no other meaning than midst, is not represented at all, and genetai has no such significance as "taken away" given to it in the Lexicon.

The passage when properly understood does not countenance the idea that it was paganism that withheld papacy, but that the latter was withheld or kept back, because the system that developed him was then only in its infancy. So the idea that paganism was the daily sacrifice, does not find any legitimate support from this passage. And if not from this, then from no other; for in all the passages in Daniel no countenance is given that it is an abomination, but rather that is symbolical of that which is good.

Wm. Hobbs.

For the World's Crisis.

THE SECOND ADVENT.

Discourses of unusual character are taking place all over the States, and not only in this country, but also in Europe, on the above subject. Such is the present state of fulfilled prophecy, that it demands and commands the attention of all classes, including infidels. (See Bro. Grant's tour in Cal.) All the discourses that are being given attempt to show that the second coming of Christ is but a short way in the future, or may take place at any moment; and that the true church of Christ would not be left in darkness as to about the time of the advent. They come to this conclusion from the signs of the times; such as the great increase of crime, the laxity of faith in the church, the many earthquakes, and, especially, by the present condition of the papacy, which is the closing scene of Daniel's great image in the second and seventh chapters. The God of heaven shall set up a kingdom which shall be given to the saints of the Most High, for an everlasting kingdom, when Christ shall reign as king forever. He has acted as Prophet in his pilgrimage on earth; he is now acting as our High Priest; but when he comes he will act as King; thus being prophet, priest and king, according to the Scriptures.

The present condition of the Papal power is causing people to investigate the Scriptures more than they ever did before. They have read the prophecy concerning the great words which the "horn" spake, as equaling itself with the Godhead. They have also seen in history that this power has arrogated such titles to itself. See fourth Council, held about the year 503, by order of Theodoric. The four deputies of Bitonti were admitted to an audience by Pope Leo X., and who, after kneeling three times before the Pope, had to address him in these words—"Lamb of God, who taketh away the sins of the world, have mercy upon us." He has been called thus in our day. At the consecration of the present Pope, Pius IX., he was carried on the shoulders of the cardinals and placed on the high altar, called the seat of God; at that very time the choristers instantly sang the Te Deum. And as the procession was just about entering St. Peter's, the choristers at the head of the procession chanted the words, "Open the gates, and let the King of Glory in." The choristers inside replied—"Who is the King of Glory?" The doors at that time were thrown open, and the Pope enters. See Harper's for Feb. 12th, 1870.

Any blasphemy higher than that? Yes, one equal to it, of last year, when he was proclaimed "infallible" at that very time. No wonder that the very elements were in commotion; that thunderings were heard, and that lightnings flashed as never before, when another God was added to the catalogue by man.

People have read the prophecy that she should say—"I sit a queen, and am no widow, and shall see no sorrow." The Pope said, a few years ago—"In a few years [three or four] I shall be higher in the world than ever before." But where is she now? Is she not laid low in the dust? Is she not a widow now? Where is the first power that supports her now? Is not her very house, with its furniture, taken from her? Is not her temporal power all gone? Even so it appears. Instance the following from the Boston Journal of Jan. 19th, 1871: "At the great meeting on Italian union, held in New York last week, the [illegible]tism of one thousand years falls at a touch, in noiseless rottenness. The people of Rome, fifty to one, cast their ballots of condemnation like so many shovels-full of earth upon its grave.' Charles Sumner, in his letter to the meeting, said—'The Pope now remains without temporal power. . . . Rome is the national head of Italy, and is now at last joined with the body, to which it belongs, never again to be separated.'"

Its days have been numbered and finished. The prophetic cry has gone forth—"Babylon is fallen, is fallen." The word is repeated, to make it more emphatic. Why has she fallen? Because God hath a controversy with her, for her iniquity. God is now remembering her guilt; for "in her was found the blood of saints that were slain." It is said that fifty millions of the dear saints of God were slain by this harlot power, which assumed the prerogative of God.

Subsequent events connected with its present fall cause the universal inquiry—"What of the night?" Before citing opinions, let us hear a word or two from the Scriptures. We find in Dan. 2, this fall is followed by the setting up of God's everlasting kingdom; and in Dan. 7, by this kingdom being given to the saints of the Most High (Rev. 11), when the kingdoms of this world become the kingdom of Christ (Dan. 12) at the resurrection of the dead, when the saints of every clime, color and denomination shall shine as the stars forever and ever; when the harvest of the earth is ripe; which harvest Christ explains to be the end of the world, not its conversion; for here the wheat and tares grow together. It is the time for the gathering in of the wheat (every one knows that is done at harvest time), with the destruction of the tares from the presence of the Lord forever. The destruction of Babylon is followed by "salvation and glory." Rev. 19.

In Dec. last, the 9th and onward, Rev. Mr. Dunn, of Beach St. church (Boston), was continuing a course of lectures on the signs of the times and coming of Christ. The following are some of his expressions: "A great crisis is approaching. Events are rushing with lightning speed. The wisest of statesmen are at a loss to know the results of events. . . . . Men who study prophecy are called fanatics; such was Noah considered . . . . Why should men be called or considered fanatics, when all Scripture is given by God for instruction? . . . We know that there are difficulties in the study of prophecy. Should we give it up? Because the astronomers and geologists cannot explain all things, must they cease to study? . . . . Ask commentators the meaning of the twenty-ninth and thirtieth verses of Matt. 24. They say this refers to Jerusalem. Some say, to Christ's coming, spiritually; some say, also, that Christ comes at death. Christ has come spiritually. He does not come at death. Christ is certainly to come literally. The certainty of his coming has always been taught by all in every age. It is in all Christian beliefs."

After quoting many of the Scriptures in reference to his literal coming, he said—"Christ means just what he says. We can say, 'Come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly.' . . . . One sign of Christ's coming was the great increase of iniquity. Can you go anywhere, from pole to pole, without being convinced of the fact, also in the churches? Almost all churches are baptized in infidelity, or baptized infidels. Tell me if there is a nation on the globe to-day but what is gravitating to hell? . . . Men in public places proclaim the Bible a fable. . . . Revolutions shall occur when Christ comes. Is it not so all over the world to-day? . . . . All nations and men shall quake. . . . . The most astute are trembling for fear. Another sign of his coming is, 'Many shall run to and fro.' Can anything be more expressive at the present day? The church says, 'It is after a thousand years.' But Christ says—'Watch!' Christ comes suddenly. Christ means just what he says. We can say in our hearts, 'Come quickly.' 'Come, Lord Jesus.' Then with Job—'I know that my Redeemer liveth.' When Christ comes, the earth shall be renewed, and made as in the days of the first Adam. People say, 'Why say such things? it makes people nervous.' The Bible says, 'Rejoice,' in view of it. Why should the heart-aches make you to desire to stay here? The christian that does not long for, or is troubled at, the coming of Christ, shows that he is not prepared for his coming. Every hearthstone hath a vacant chair here. My heart longs for the coming of Christ. . . .

The time is set in the Bible for the coming of Christ. See Noah's time of one hundred and twenty years; the captivity of Babylon of seventy; of Moses of four hundred and ninety. All epochs have been preceded by signs. Why not that of the greatest event of all; viz., the coming of Christ? Christ says when we see certain signs (See Matt. 24 : 29) then we are to know that the hour of his coming is at hand. It has been the universal belief that the world would last six thousand years. A day is always a year. . . . . All commentators or great writers are agreed that a few years hence the prophetic periods all close.

Another proof of the end at hand, is the prophetic fulfillment of the fall of the pope, or papacy."

Mr. Dunn spoke in a fearless way. His sermons were to the point. He said that he felt it his duty as a minister of Christ to speak as he had done, according to the signs of the times, whether all liked it or not. His sermons were pure Advent sermons.

It rejoices me to think that there are some popular men, who have the independence to preach Bible.

Here is evidence from a Catholic standpoint. Last Nov. and Dec., some Catholic Jesuits, or missionaries, from Europe, were at East Boston before the Catholic church, mornings and evenings. In the mornings they preached at half-past four or five o'clock, and the churches were crowded at that early hour, to hear the priests preach on the judgment at hand. They said that the judgment was just at hand; that the signs of the times indicated it; that the sun would soon be dark[illegible] the stars would soon fall from heaven; then the ocean waves would rise to the steeples of our churches, making a strange noise; then Christ would come as the next event.

Some spoke to me the next morning about his sayings, and asked me if the waves he spoke about would not answer to the tidal waves that had taken place. It seems a little singular that they should think that all these signs were to be fulfilled in the future, when they have been fulfilled to the very letter; and if so, then, as the next event, Christ may come. The crowds of Catholics who attended these lectures, I suppose, could not be induced to hear the same truths from any other source. Perhaps it is well that they hear it from their own side; they may be induced to believe, to the saving of their souls.

John Taylor.

New Sharon, Me.

For the World's Crisis.

THE CONQUEROR'S SONG.

O, sweet will be our portion,
When, through this vale of tears,
We reach that heavenly kingdom,
Secure from doubts and fears.

Our eyes shall then with rapture
The Savior's face behold,
For we shall see his glory,
And walk the streets of gold.

O, then we'll greet our loved ones,
Whom death has sundered here,
And with them all united
A conqueror's crown shall wear.

We then shall see our Jesus,
For whom we've waited long,
And dwell with him forever,
And sing the victor's song.

Chelsea, Mass. Addie M. Getchell.

For the World's Crisis.

PAUL'S "FAR BETTER."—Phil. 1: 21-24.

Bro. Grant:—With your permission, I would like to make a few remarks on this passage.

Whether the passage should be changed from "having a desire to depart," to having a desire for the loosing again, would make but little difference with it, as I understand it; but I prefer to have it remain as it is; because I think the desire that Paul had was, to be translated; which, to him, would be "far better" than to die (which would be gain on account of persecutions), or, "to abide in the [mortal] flesh," which would still be persecutions.

Enoch and Elijah were translated without tasting death, and this was the best thing that Paul could desire for himself; better even than to live till Jesus should come at the appointed time to raise the dead and change the living. This would be our desire to-day, if our circumstances were such that we could well be spared; especially is this true of those who are sick and afflicted, downcast, or persecuted.

That this was Paul's desire, is shown from the context; namely, "Nevertheless, to abide in the flesh is more needful for you." We think it was not more needful for the Philippian brethren to have Paul abide with them in the flesh, than it was to have Jesus come again to give them "glory, and honor, and immortality." But Paul evidently thought that this departure (or "loosing again") would separate him from his brethren, and that he would go to be with Christ without tasting death, while they remained in the (mortal) flesh. This would not be the case if the "departure" had reference to Christ's coming; because they would be translated with Paul.

If it is urged that the word "again" implies a second departure, or loosing, we admit it in this case. Please turn to and read 2 Cor. 12 : 2–7. Paul was speaking of himself when he said, "I knew a man in Christ above fourteen years ago (whether in the body, I cannot tell; or whether out of the body, I cannot tell, God knoweth); such an one caught up to the third heaven. . . . And heard unspeakable words, which it is not lawful for a man to utter. . . . And lest I should be exalted above measure through the abundance of the revelations, there was given to me a thorn in the flesh, the messenger of Satan to buffet me, lest I should be exalted above measure."

Paul once having been translated in vision and caught up to the third heaven, saw its glories and heard unspeakable words, which it is not lawful for a man to utter; it would be very natural for him to desire a repetition of this translation, save that it should be a permanent reality. Having this in view, he could well say—"Having a desire to depart and be with Christ, which is far better."

Jesus said—"Verily I say unto you, There be some standing here, which shall not taste of death, till they see the Son of man coming in his kingdom. And after six days, Jesus taketh Peter, James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into a high mountain apart, and was transfigured before them; and his face did shine as the sun, and his raiment was white as the light. And behold there appeared unto them Moses and Elias talking with him." Matt. 16 : 28; 17 : 1–3. From this it will be seen that Peter, James and John, have seen the Son of man coming in his kingdom once, although it was a vision; and when "the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise," these apostles will see him again, coming in his kingdom. So with Paul; he departed once, in vision, and went to Paradise; and if he could have had his desire granted when he was in a "strait," he would have departed again and gone to be with Christ, which is, indeed, far better.

D. D. Lathrop.

New Milford, Susq. Co., Pa.

For the World's Crisis.

KNOW THE TRUTH.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 32, 33.

Jesus thus spoke to those who believed on him. By knowing the truth of the matter, in regard to circumstances concerning us, we are kept from being led to act unadvisedly, from being misled. The greater the interests involved, the more needful it is to be rightly informed upon all essential points. To fix this in the mind, we will introduce an anecdote by way of illustration.

A man receives a letter, stating that his father is very sick, and can probably live but a short time; and if he ever wishes to see him alive, he must hasten home without delay. In the haste and excitement of the moment this information is received and acted upon. Suspicion of forgery is not awakened. Immediate preparation is made for a long and expensive journey, in order that he may stand by the bedside of his dying parent, or at least be present at his funeral. Arriving at the place of his destination after a sleepless night of intense anxiety, spent in traveling in the most rapid manner of modern times, he enters the house with trembling steps and beating pulse, expecting, or at least fearing, the worst, when to his astonishment he finds his father in excellent health, as well if not better than at any time within ten years!

Here is the result of not knowing the truth in this case. The letter was a forgery, and the statements therein contained were utterly false, without a shadow of truth for a foundation. The good man left his family and his business, and had rushed in haste some hundreds of miles to visit (as he supposed) his dying father, when if he could have known the truth of the matter, all this trouble and expense would have been avoided.

If it is ever of any consequence or importance for us to know the truth in things pertaining to this life, it is of vastly greater importance to know the truth in regard to things which belong to our future and eternal well being. And the Lord himself has promised that we shall know the truth, if we believe on him, and continue in his word. If we "follow on to know the Lord" then he will teach us of his ways, and we "shall know the truth, and by the truth be made free."

I have before me a printed card, in which is set forth the belief of one who says he is not a christian, and has no faith in the Bible, and no belief in a God "that can hear and answer prayer." And he says, "My belief makes me happy." And he asks for a reason for a different belief, and states his willingness to give his reasons for his (un-) belief.

Well, I believe the Bible, and in the God of the Bible, and in the Lord Jesus Christ our Savior, whose name is the "only name under heaven given among men" whereby we can be saved. I believe "the record that God has given of his Son." That he was "God manifest in the flesh," and that in him dwelt all the fullness of God. All power in heaven and on earth was given to Jesus. All the angels worshiped him, and demons acknowledged his power with great fear. My reason for this belief may not satisfy you, but since you ask, I will do my best to answer your request.

The chief ground of my belief is beyond your range of observation, for it is internal. You may call it an intuition if you please. I call it an inward conviction of the truth. God is revealed to me as he is not revealed to you, or to the world of unbelievers. This is according to the promise—"If a man love me, he will keep my words; and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him." The internal evidence is of vastly more weight to me than all external evidence, yet this cannot convince you.

The evidence which you could receive, if you were a reasonable man, is, first, the written record of the works which Jesus did. Many witnesses testified to having seen him do works which no other man ever did, except they were done by his followers and in his name. All manner of sickness and disease was cured, and those born blind had their eyes opened so that they saw plainly, and the dead were raised and restored to life. If you would receive this testimony of "many witnesses," you would also admit his claim to be the Son of God, as well as the expected Messiah of the Jews, and the Savior of the world, but especially the Savior of those that believe. I claim that those who follow your views, or believe as you do, are "choosing darkness rather than light."

I believe there is a God who can and does hear and answer prayer; yet we must not ask for things forbidden, or things not according to his will to bestow. The words—"Thy will be done" should accompany every prayer. And if we ask any thing according to his will, he heareth us, and we have our request granted. It is his will that we should "know the truth," and it is for our interest to know the truth, and if we ask aright, he will surely reveal the truth unto us. We contend that the God of nature is the God of the Bible; the only living and true God. And he sent his Son into the world, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life. "He that believeth not the Son, shall not see life, but the wrath of God abideth on him."

Jesus has been once to this earth, to suffer and to die, that we might live. He has promised to come again, to raise the dead; to judge both the living and the dead; to establish his kingdom "under the whole heaven," "and to reign King of kings evermore.

F. H. Chamberlain.

THE WORLD'S CRISIS.

LIBERAL OFFERS FOR 1871.

VALUABLE PRESENTS!

The Best Sewing Machine,
The Best Illustrated Dictionary,
The Best Books, and
The Best S. S. Paper,
GIVEN AWAY!
FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS,
TILL THE FIRST OF JUNE.

We would, if possible, double our present circulation during the current year. It can be done, if every one will help, and do all they can. To encourage our friends everywhere to make an earnest and persistent effort, we offer the following valuable presents to all who shall obtain new subscribers for The World's Crisis till the 1st of June.

Here is a good opportunity for every one to secure a desirable gift for nothing but a little effort in your own neighborhood or field of labor.

A PRESENT FOR ALL.

For every wife, mother, daughter, or widow, a superior SEWING MACHINE, saving many hours of weary toil in the family, and adding to the means of livelihood.

For every minister, Bible student, or general reader, the best ILLUSTRATED DICTIONARY, BIBLE DICTIONARY, CONCORDANCE, HYMN BOOK, or other valuable religious, theological, or hygienic work.

For the children of our Sunday Schools and churches, any number of copies of THE YOUNG PILGRIM for one year, to cheer them in their pilgrimage, and help them on their way to the kingdom of heaven.

Look over the list, dear friends, and see what you want. Then go out among your neighbors, friends, kindred, acquaintances and strangers, and try what you can do. When you have done all that you can, then order from us your choice of any one of the following

PREMIUMS FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

For 2 New Subscribers, with $5,
A $1 PREMIUM.

1. Hymns of Jubilee Harp, cloth; and Pilgrim Psalms.
2. Fables of Infidelity, and Facts of Faith.
3. Stories for Young Pilgrims, vols. I. and II.
4. Two copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
5. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
6. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and Bible Text-Book.

For 3 New Subscribers, with $7.50,
A $1.50 PREMIUM.

1. Jubilee Harp, full gilt, extra cloth, leather back.
2. Immortality, by James H. Whitmore; and Tracts.
3. Health by Good Living, by W. W. Hall, M.D.
4. Plan of Redemption; and Nature of Man.
5. The Broken Seal; an Exposure of Freemasonry.
6. Talks about People's Stomachs, by Dr. Dio Lewis.
7. Three copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
8. Two copies "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
9. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and any $1 premium.

For 4 New Subscribers, with $10,
A $2 PREMIUM.

1. Dictionary of the Holy Bible, with 5 Maps and 250 Engravings; and Grant's "Nature of Man."
2. Cruden's Condensed Concordance, and Sheldon's "Futurity."
3. Bersen's Casket and Repository; Scriptures classified by Subjects.
4. Müller's Life of Trust; Effects of Prayer and Faith.
5. Four copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
6. Three copies "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
7. Two copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1 premium.
8. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and any $1.50 premium.

For 5 New Subscribers, with $12.50,
A $2.50 PREMIUM.

1. Synchronology; or, the Principal Events in Sacred and Profane History, from the Creation of Man to the Present Time.
2. Credibility of the Scriptures, in two volumes; a resumé of the former work, by J. H. McCulloh; and Bible Text-Book.
3. English Reference Bible.
4. Five copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
5. Four copies "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
6. Three copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1 premium.
7. Two copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1.50 premium.
8. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and any $2 premium.

For 10 New Subscribers, with $25,
A $6 PREMIUM.

1. Webster's National Pictorial Dictionary, 1,040 pages, octavo, and 600 Engravings, price, $6; or, the "Unabridged" (below) for $4 extra.
2. Fifteen copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
3. Seven copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $2.50 premium.

For 15 New Subscribers, with $37.50,
A $12 PREMIUM.

1. Webster's Illustrated Unabridged Dictionary, 1,840 pages, quarto, and 3,000 Engravings, price, $12. The best dictionary extant.
2. Thirty copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
3. Webster's Pictorial Dictionary ($6), and fifteen copies "Young Pilgrim."

For 40 New Subscribers, with $100,
A $55 PREMIUM.

A Grover and Baker Sewing Machine, first class in every respect, with hemmer and attachments; one of the best, if not the very best, in the market. These machines make "the Grover and Baker stitch," which is considered the best for family use, and "the shuttle-stitch." Please state which is wanted.

Things to be Remembered.

In raising your list—the names may be obtained from as many different places as you please, and the papers will be mailed by us to each separate address.

Subscriptions may be taken for the year, with $2.50 each; or double the number for six months, with $1.25 each; or any number for both periods, which, with $1.25 and $2.50 each, shall make up the requisite amount.

Keep a list yourself of all names and monies obtained by you and forwarded to us, with the data when sent.

In sending to us—put the list always on a sheet by itself. If, at the same time, you write on other matters, or remit for old subscribers, put that on a separate sheet.

Write each name plainly, with its Post-office, County, and State, and amount paid, all on one line by itself, in that order; and, at the bottom, give the whole amount of premium monies sent, with your own name and full address.

Names sent "for a premium," should, in all cases, be so marked when sent. No name should be sent without the money.

All names and monies can be forwarded at once, or from week to week, as fast as you get them, until the 1st of June.

Any one aiming for a higher premium, and failing to get the full number of names and amount, can pay the balance in cash, and so get the premium; or he can order some other premium on the list corresponding to the amount obtained.

When you have got all the names you can, and want your premium, send us a full list of all the names, addresses, and monies you have sent, so that we may compare them with our books; then we will send you whatever premium you may select from the catalogue—the Sewing Machines and Webster's Dictionaries by express, at the expense of the receiver, and the other books by mail, postpaid.

Monies, if under $4.00, may be sent by letter at our risk. If a larger sum, and under $25, send a Post-Office Money Order, or Registered Letter. If $25 or more, send a Bank Draft, or money Order, payable to the order of GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass. All sums of $5.00 and over, sent in any other way than above directed, will be at the sender's risk.

All letters and remittances for premiums should be addressed to the Business Agent, undersigned, or, if more convenient, they may be enclosed in letters to the Editor, MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

And now, dear brethren and sisters everywhere, from Maine to California, and from the Lakes to the Gulf, put your hearts and hands to the good work, and a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull all together! and the blessing of the Lord be with you!

GEO. T. ADAMS, Business Agent,
Advent Chris. Publication Society.

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.
Boston, Wednesday, February 8, 1871.

☞ Please Remember!

☞ All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the BUSINESS AGENT, GEO. T. ADAMS.

☞ Take Notice!

☞ All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

CALIFORNIA MISSION.

We have the best of reasons to believe it was the Lord's will that we should visit the Pacific coast, and declare the glad tidings of the coming kingdom. We have never seen the guiding hand of Providence more clearly manifested, than in the events connected with this mission. From the first thoughts on the subject to the present moment (Saturday, Jan. 21st), there has been a train of circumstances and blessings, which satisfies us most fully that in coming here we acted in harmony with the will of our dear Savior.

Our peace has been perfect—just like a flowing river—every day and hour since we left home. Not a cloud has appeared to darken our bright hopes of the future. The sun of righteousness has shone constantly upon our pathway. Thus far, this year has been the most heavenly of our pilgrimage. We never felt more determined to do all to the glory of God, or a more perfect submission to his will.

We found the religious standard very low in this city. Pleasure, fashion, and covetousness seemed to hold sway over the majority of the professors of religion. Human policy appeared to be the leading principle. Will this or that please the people, and make us popular, was the leading inquiry, if we can tell anything by outward appearances. Vital godliness was scarce; yet we found some who truly loved Jesus, and were sighing over the low standard among ministers and people. Many came here as professors of religion, who soon partook of the worldly spirit around them, and have been living in a low, backslidden state for years. The habits of society are directly opposed to the pure religion of Jesus. Revivals had been unknown here, excepting during the visits of Mr. Knapp and Mr. Earle. We do not learn that there has ever been a revival through the labors of any minister in this city. No doubt some individuals may have been led to Christ by their efforts; but there has not been a religious interest sufficient to attract attention for twenty-one years, or since the commencement of the mining operations.

With this state of things before us we commenced our work with the firm expectation of seeing sinners converted, and backsliders reclaimed; and have not been disappointed in our anticipations. We arrived here Saturday evening, Dec. 17th, and Sabbath morning we tried to find some sympathizers with the blessed hope, but failed. At 11 o'clock, we went to hear Dr. A. L. Stone, formerly pastor of Park street church, Boston. His sermon, on the parable of the "ten virgins," was interesting. At noon, we looked over the papers, and saw a notice of a meeting at two o'clock in Dashaway Hall, where the subject of the atonement of Christ was to be discussed; and also that in the evening, Bro. D. D. Reed would speak on the coming of the Lord, in Zion's chapel. This was the first intimation we had seen of Bro. Reed's presence in San Francisco. We went down to Dashaway Hall at two o'clock, and was called out to "stand up for Jesus." This opened the way to form an acquaintance with several christian friends, who invited us to call on them; and afterwards to attend their meetings in the various churches.

In the evening we went to Zion's chapel, to see Bro. and Sr. Reed, where we also met Sr. Burdick, (formerly the wife of Bro. John Howell) and her husband, who reside in this city. Our meeting was a blessed one, and caused much rejoicing among the saints. The pastor of the church, Bro. Hillery, gave us a hearty welcome, and a standing invitation to come and preach in his house.

We found Bro. and Sr. Reed in good spirits. Their labors have been much blest in this state. This was the first meeting they had held in San Francisco. They left early in the week for other fields of labor. He is now intending to sail for the Sandwich islands next week, and tell the people there about the coming of Jesus. His heart is in the work.

Monday evening, some friends from the Second Baptist church called on us, at Bro. St. John's, to express their sympathy with us in relation to our mission work. Through the efforts of Bro. and Sr. Burdick, they had become interested in the blessed hope, and were anxious to hear on the subject. Wednesday evening we attended a prayer meeting in their church. Thursday and Saturday evenings, I hired the hall in the building of the Young Men's Christian Association, and had interesting meetings. Several took a part; but we did not feel any great liberty. The curiosity of the people eclipsed their devotional feelings. Friday evening, by request, we attended a prayer-meeting in the Calvary street (Presbyterian) church, as we could not find a hall for our meeting. On Saturday evening, Bro. A. M. Bailey, pastor of the Minna street Methodist church, was present in our meeting, and spoke just like a true christian, and invited us to call on him at his study, which we did, and found in him a kindred spirit in Christ. We soon made arrangements to commence meetings in his meeting-house, on Minna street, between Fourth and Fifth streets. We held our first meeting Friday evening, Dec. 30th. Saturday evening, we had an interesting watch-meeting. Since then, we have had meetings at the same place, which have continued to increase in interest and power up to the present date (Jan. 24th). Most of the time we have had two meetings a day. Great good has already been accomplished. A goodly number have been converted; and many backsliders have been brought again near to Jesus. The Spirit of the Lord rests upon us in all our meetings.

Bro. Bailey, the pastor of the church, is a true christian man. We have rarely found a minister with whom we could labor so easily and pleasantly, as with him. Our hearts are knit together in love. On all occasions he has manifested the spirit of an humble follower of Jesus.

SAN FRANCISCO MEETINGS.

Our meetings in San Francisco are excellent,—very much like those we had in Rutland, Vt., last spring. They are heavenly feasts. Our last was the best. The following is from "The Spectator," a Methodist paper, published in San Francisco. Bro. Bailey, the writer, is the pastor of the church where we are holding the meetings. He says:—

"DEAR SPECTATOR:—The revival at Minna street church, in this city, continues with increasing power. The meetings have been held twice every day since Friday before the new year, and will continue over next Sunday. When it closes, I will give you a detailed account of the work of God among us. At present allow me to say, that all who have attended these meetings so as to imbibe the spirit of them, agree in pronouncing it one of the deepest and most powerful revivals of religion that has ever taken place on the coast. Christians seem to rise above denominational distinctions, and enjoy the pure life of Christian fellowship. Sinners are powerfully converted, and believers are established in the faith. A. M. BAILEY."

CALIFORNIA WEATHER.

The weather here in San Francisco at the present time, Jan. 24th, is quite like the fore part of May in New England. The grass is green as we see it on Boston Common the first week of May. There is nothing here to remind one of winter. The weather changes very suddenly from sunshine to rain; and back to sunshine. We have seen no ice since we arrived Dec. 17th, nor a flake of snow. It is a delightful place to spend the winter. The Lord is giving us great peace.

OUR DISCUSSION.

The following is the report of our discussion with Mr. Loveland, on the third evening, as given in the San Francisco Chronicle:—

THE THEOLOGICAL DUEL.

Continuation of the Grant-Loveland Discussion.

The Future State of the Soul still in uncertainty—Curious Arguments and Marvelous Hair Splitting.

Dashaway Hall was densely crowded last night again, on the occasion of the continuation of the argument between Miles Grant and Rev. J. S. Loveland, upon the conscious and future state of the soul after death. Rev. O. P. Fitzgerald was in the chair, as on previous occasions. We were pleased to observe that Elder Miles Grant, among his array of Bibles and books of theological reference, had also yesterday's Chronicle upon his table.

FIRST ROUND.

Mr. Loveland opened the discussion. The course of his argument may be traced by the answers returned by his opponent. Mr. Loveland met in detail the arguments used by Mr. Grant on the previous evening. As regarded the ground taken by the Elder upon the matter of the "thief on the cross," he found fault with the assumption of Mr. Grant that the "paradise" promised by Jesus to the thief was the future paradise described in Revelations. His answer to Mr. Grant's statement that the thief did not die on the same day as Jesus, was that doubtless Jesus knew when he was going to die! He denied that the displacement of the comma in "Verily I say unto thee, to-day shalt thou be with me in Paradise," was sanctioned by the eminent Greek scholars referred to by Mr. Grant—Griesbach, among others. Besides he (Mr. L.) thought it would be wonderful if such an important doctrine was allowed to rest on a mere punctuation mark.

As to Jesus not having "ascended" to his Father, the Jewish belief was that the future intermediate place of the dead was in Hades, which Hades they believed to be in the middle of the earth. One portion of it being "Paradise" and the other "Gehenna:" It was where they believed the patriarchs to be. Hence, when Jesus said he had not "ascended," he did not mean to convey the idea that he had not been in Paradise. He had been there, and the thief had gone with him. "Paradise," said Mr. Loveland, "is a place where the blessed dead prepare for a higher ascension." As to

"OUR EARTHLY TABERNACLE,"

Which Paul said we were to "lay off," that means our bodies. When Paul said he was "in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to be with Christ, which is far better," could he mean that he doubted which he would like best—to live on earth in a sphere of usefulness serving his Master, or to die, as Mr. Grant would have it, and lie for thousands of years unconscious and doing nothing?

ELDER GRANT

Now took up the argument. He still further pressed the argument upon the meaning of the word "soul," as used in the Bible. He contended that when the soul of Jonathan was mentioned as being "knit" with that of David, it meant his feelings were. "With my soul have I desired thee," meant the same—feelings.

GOD'S SOUL.

God, he said, spoke of his soul—"in whom my soul delighted." If God were a soul, as Mr. Loveland had said, his soul was the soul of a soul. Mr. Grant quoted, in support of his view of the unconscious state of the soul after death, the following from Ecclesiastes: "There is neither work nor knowledge nor wisdom in the grave whither thou goest."

SECOND ROUND.

Mr. Loveland still contended that the "cloud of witnesses" were living personalities, else how could they "witness anything?

WHAT IS "ENTITY?"

Mr. Loveland contended that an entity was "something that is;" that it did not mean a personality. Said he: "If love is not an entity, what, in God's name, is it?

If Mr. Loveland was so unfortunate as not to know, he was still more unfortunate in having nobody in the audience who cared to tell him.

God was said to be "Love." If he was, then, according to Mr. Grant, God was an entity.

ASPIRATIONS.

Mr. Loveland having met with more or less success some other of the many and various points in discussion, proceeded to follow up the main line of his argument, deducting from rationalities his reason for a belief in the future immortality of every soul. He argued that the soul never aspired for that which it was unable to attain. The very fact of an aspiration was an index of the awakening power of attainment, and he cited as instances the innate aspirations of the painter and the sculptor. From this he drew the conclusion that as the soul aspired for immortality it would be certain to find itself in the end possessed of it.

On the expiration of the time allotted to Mr. Loveland, Mr. Fitzgerald announced another "pleasant recess," and another collection was taken up. It was also stated that should the necessary expense be guaranteed by gentlemen interested in the debate, the scene of the discussion would be removed to Platt's Hall, Dashaway Hall having proved too small to accommodate the throng of would-be auditors.

ELDER GRANT AGAIN

Came to the front after this, and argued that the word translated "spirit" in the Bible was synonymous with the breath of life, which man, in common with all animals, has in his nostrils; and he argued that man depended for his life upon this breath and nothing else. It was that which God breathed into the first man when he is represented as breathing "into him the breath of life."

SOMETHING TO ANSWER.

He laid down for Mr. Loveland's consideration the following proposition: That he (Mr. G.) was unable to find in the whole Bible that any spirit left man in death other than the breath of life in his nostrils. When Stephen said, as he was being stoned, "Lord, receive my spirit!" he merely asked God to take away his life and relieve him from further suffering. He (Mr. G.) also cited the expression, "he fell asleep" in the same connection. He cited, also, the case of the "little maid" restored to life by Jesus, "her spirit came again and she arose," meaning simply her breath came again.

RATHER WEAK.

He wanted to know how the "spirit" could get out supposing a man were "enclosed in a glass coffin ten feet thick," and there allowed to die from suffocation. He likened the breath and its effect on the human organism to steam and its effect on the machinery; and quoted many texts from the Bible in which he claimed that "spirit was synonymous with feeling and desire"

THIRD ROUND.

Mr. Loveland rose in his turn and scouted the idea that God had "breathed the breath of life into man's nostrils" in the sense of breathing atmospheric air. He said, "Does God breathe atmospheric air? Is God an air breathing animal? If he is not, then he could not have breathed breath into man's nostrils. If He does breathe air, where does he get it?"

Echo answered, "Where?" and Mr. Loveland proceeded. He said that the original had it "lives." God breathed into man the "breath of lives;" that was, two lives, the present one and the future.

If, as Mr. Grant had said, "spirit" meant breath, "God is a spirit;" then God is breath. Breath is atmospheric air; then God is atmospheric air! Did Mr. Grant say that breath was the "spirit" that Stephen "committed" to God, and that Jesus, in dying, "committed" into his Father's hands? It was not then a breath of life; it was breath of death—a NASTY PUFF OF CARBONIC ACID GAS.

Could we believe that Jesus and Stephen went through the sublime farce of committing to God a puff of vitiated air? He was astonished at such an argument.

As to the little maid restored to life by Jesus, Mr. Grant had said that her breath "come back to her." It did not come back. The breath after her restoration to life was not the same breath which she had breathed out before her death. It was entirely a fresh portion of air. Mr. Grant's argument of the glass coffin went for nothing. The spirit was more ethereal than either light or magnetism, and both of these might penetrate glass.

Mr. Loveland ended by following up still further his argument on Aspirations.

ELDER GRANT ONCE MORE

rose in his turn. He said as to aspirations, that a man might aspire very much to wealth and never attain it. The very fact of his aspiring proved he hadn't got it. The Bible commanded to "seek for glory, honor, immortality." Many aspired for honor and never attained it; if glory were innate, why "seek" for what it has? Why, in order to gain it, must the soul have "patience in well-doing?"

Mr. Grant contended, in answer to an argument of Mr. Loveland, that the "unclean spirits" which were "cast out," and which "went into" the swine, were not entities, but merely a sort of mesmeric influences, which Jesus interrupted and diverted to the swine. But we did not hear Mr. Grant explain where said evil mesmeric influences came from originally.

NON-MATERIAL.

He then turned his attention to Mr. Loveland's definition of the soul as non-material. He (Mr. G.) said that nothing immaterial could exist without connection with a material organism. Thought is immaterial and never exists apart from an organism. Mr. Loveland had said that God was a "life force," but force is an attribute; force is only the name of a power. It is like sound—a result of action or motion. Mr. Loveland, he said, had not proved yet that the soul retained consciousness after the death of the body. Mr. Grant then proceeded to demolish the theory of the immateriality of the soul by ridiculing the idea of something that was too short to have any thickness, etc.; and also the idea of a being without length, breadth, thickness, height, or organs of sense, looking over the battlements of heaven at the funeral procession of its own body.

The above is necessarily but a sketch of the more prominent features of the night's debate. It will be resumed, most probably, in Platt's Hall, at an early day; of which due notice will be given.

THE SPIRIT OF SPIRITUALISM.

As we have frequently remarked, we say again, we believe that Spiritualism is the worst enemy against Christianity now in the field. While it professes to be good, it is only evil. It leads no one to Christ, the Bible, or the God of the Bible. It seeks to take away our Savior, the holy Scriptures, and every cardinal doctrine they advocate.

We clip the following from the "Banner of Light," Feb. 26th, 1870:—

THE WORLD'S CRISIS.

It is so rarely that the readers of the Banner see any part of the silly nonsense that is weekly sent out by this herald of an old religion, and a near era expected but never to come, that we are inclined to give them the following slip as a specimen:

"At the different places in Canada, where we held meetings, we found the people increasingly anxious to hear about the coming of our Savior, and the necessary preparations for the event. We met Bro. J. Porter, pastor of the Danville church, who informed us that the meetings there had been more interesting and better attended than usual. The people seem to be well convinced that some great event is at hand; and they are anxious to have an understanding of the matter. We met Bro. and Sr. W. Cooper, from England, who are deeply interested in a pure christianity. He is a preacher of the gospel, and spoke fondly of the coming of Christ. In all places we find those who truly love Jesus, are interested in his coming, and expect him soon. The evidences keep increasing which show that the last days have truly come. Those who intend to be at the marriage supper of the Lamb, should now keep unspotted from the world."

We suppose the great expected event is the "marriage supper of the Lamb." If this is not silly nonsense, we do not know what is. In other places, they talk of the Lamb slain for the sins of the world. A Lamb married, or a Lamb slain, for a sacrifice to God, and all such nonsense, may impose upon the credulity of ignorant people, of which the Adventists certainly have a full share; but all who know that the Lamb they talk so much about is none other, in its historic origin, than the sign of the Ram in the Zodiac, will only laugh at them; and those who know their Christ, for whom they are looking for so earnestly, is none other than the eight times incarnated Chrishna of India, whom they have again incarnated in Jesus, will only laugh at their ignorance and folly in looking for him again so soon.

Here we find some of the blessed truths, revealed by our Lord, called "silly and nonsense;" and Christ nothing more "than the eight times incarnated Chrishna of India." Such is the fruit of Spiritualism. These are the teachings received from what is called the "spirit-world," of which we hear so much, and of which the Bible does not say one word.

We learn that Spiritualism is spreading among the first class of people in Europe, and in all the civilized world. Their sentiments are poisoning the whole world, and neutralizing the power of truth and righteousness. Every friend of Jesus should be armed with the sword of the Spirit, and stand up boldly against this great enemy of God and man.

THE WAR IN EUROPE.

The Franco-Prussian war is progressing slowly, but surely, in favor of the Prussians, who have conducted it with great skill and energy. The French are being gradually subdued and humbled, and there is very little probability that success will attend the republican government, that has arisen in opposition to Napoleon. There is increasing evidence in favor of his return to the throne of France, before many months are passed. He is said to be looking finely.

It is evident that some important changes must soon take place in the political affairs of Europe. The signs of the times indicate very clearly that Jesus is soon coming.

☞ We have received from the publishers, Vol. II. of THE APOCALYPSE, by J. A. Seiss, D. D., being a series of Lectures on the Revelations, with revised text, making a pamphlet of 122 pp., and can be had by addressing Prophetic Times, P. O. Box 2245, Philadelphia, Pa., at 50 cts. a copy, postage 4 cents.

RECEIVED.—"Good Health," "Little Corporal," "Phrenological Journal," "Laws of Life," "Christian at Work," "Home Guardian," "Gospel Visitor," "The Health Reformer," "Herald of Health," "Guide to Holiness," "Manufacturer and Builder."

WE ACKNOWLEDGE the receipt of the following for Sister C. B. Turner:—

D. Cogswell, Dansville, N. Y., $2. Benj. Luther, Berkley, Mass., $1. Mrs. Abbott and R. A. Staples, Monroe, Ct., each $1. D. Palmer, Warehousepoint, Ct., $1. Joseph E. Smith, Mattapoisett, Mass., $1. C. J. Brown, Cheshire, Mass., $1. "Minos," Rochester, N. H., $5. "Minos," $1. Jno. Hutchins, Rutland, Vt., $1. C. S. Hall, Worcester, Mass., $3. "A Friend," Clinton, Mass., $2. J. H. Brown, Littleton Common, 75 cts. Alex. Ogsbury, Normal, Ill., $1. L. M. Durnam, Minneapolis, Minn., $2. M. D., Darien, N. Y., $1. Anon., 50 cts. S. E., Kittery, Me., $1. Mrs. L. J. Staples, Welchville, Me., 50 cts. "A Friend," $1. "Unworthy Servant," 50 cts. W. Ingalls, $2.

G. T. A.

"THIS HOPE."

John thus refers to Christ's coming, and its attendant results: "It doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is. And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure." 1 John 3: 2, 3. As the Bible does not advocate a variety of conflicting hopes, the hope here introduced must be in harmony with the hope presented all through the Bible, for there is but "one hope" in the plan of Heaven. Hope, being composed of desire and expectation, always looks forward; and a genuine hope differs from a spurious hope in this respect—it is based upon the immutable word of God: so in order to determine whether a hope is genuine or spurious, we must examine its foundation; if founded on the positive word of God, no matter how unpopular it may be, it is surely genuine; but if founded on a perversion of that word, no matter how pleasing it may be, it is spurious. And it is possible to entertain a hope that is partly genuine, and partly spurious; a hope that contains some scriptural features, and yet is either defective or deficient, and perhaps both defective and deficient; defective, from the fact it contains some features of theology that it ought not to contain; and deficient, from the fact it leaves out some features of truth that it ought to contain; as for example, the popular hope is thus expressed: "We hope Christ will receive us unto himself when we die."

There is something good about this hope—the thought that Christ will receive us unto himself; but upon examination, it is discovered to be founded partly on the word of God, and partly on a perversion of it; for while it is true that Jesus said, "I will receive you unto myself," it is not true that he promised to do it at death, but rather at his coming. "I will come again, and will receive you unto myself." A hope that leads men to expect Christ will receive them at death, is a defective hope, because it includes a time for the reception of the saints that is out of harmony with the Savior's promise; and a hope that does not include the return of Christ as the time at which he will receive the saints, is a deficient hope, because it leaves out an event that it ought to include; and by this rule, the hope referred to is found both defective and deficient. Rather let me have a perfect hope, though it may be unpopular.

The particular hope mentioned by Peter, contemplates a change that shall make its possessor physically deathless, like Christ at his coming, who having been "raised from the dead, dieth no more," agreeing with Paul's statement—"Our conversation is in heaven; from whence also we look for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ; who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body." Phil. 3: 20, 21. Then we shall be like Christ, possessing immortalized and glorified bodies. Then we shall experience the "redemption of our body" (Rom. 8: 23), being "clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life" (2 Cor. 5: 4); for "this mortal must put on immortality." Then will David's hope be realized: "I shall be satisfied, when I awake with thy likeness." Ps. 17: 15.

Job's hope also grasped the same event. "I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth; and though after my skin, worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God: whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another." Job 19: 25–27. This was a hope of seeing God after death's long reign should close, not in a disembodied state, but in reanimated flesh, at the "latter day," when "the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first."

The same hope finds support in this statement of the Savior: "But they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, . . . neither can they die any more: for they are equal unto the angels, and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection." Luke 20: 35, 36. Saints once bound by the chains of death, will not only be unbound, but become as deathless as the angelic hosts. And at the same epoch of time will the great promise of Jesus be verified—"I will come again, and receive you unto myself, that where I am, there ye may be also." John 14: 3. Well might Paul speak of such a hope as a "blessed hope," while Peter denominates it a "lively hope." This hope looks to the appearing of Christ as the time when the saints are to be received by him, be immortalized, and placed in possession of the heavenly kingdom. "This hope" lifts its possessor above the charms of earth, and enables him to repel the spirit of this world. It gives us a glimpse of coming glory, which causes earth's glory to dwindle into insignificance in the contrast; and as that change is attainable only by, and that kingdom accessible only to, holy ones, "this hope" implanted in our affections leads us to purity of life and heart. Have we "this hope" in us, or only the theory of it?

W. S.

IS THE JUDGMENT DAY YET FUTURE?

Very extensively the truth of the futurity of the judgment is conceded by theologians, without dreaming what is involved in that concession; while others insist that the judgment day spans the history of man, reaching back to the death of the first man, and forward to the close of human history. Let us briefly notice the result of the first position, and the fallacy of the latter.

1. The admission that the judgment day is yet future, is fearfully at war with current theology, and there is no escape from the conclusion when carried out; for the last features in judgment are, the judgment decision, and the judgment execution—either for or against man; and no man can be saved in the heavenly kingdom previous to a decision from the divine Judge executed in his favor; and no man can be damned previous to a decision against him from the great Judge, executed by Divine power; for no man has either the disposition or the power to inflict the wrath of God on himself; and as truly as the judgment day is yet future, all this preaching about going to a celestial kingdom at death, or entering a hell of punishment at death, is untrue, for men can neither be saved unjudged, nor be damned unjudged, and therefore cannot be saved or damned before the judgment; hence, if the judgment is yet future, none have yet been saved in the promised kingdom, and none yet consigned to the hell of damnation. The doctrine of a future judgment is utterly subversive of the doctrine of rewards at death.

2. The claim that the judgment is constantly in session, is antagonistic to the word of God, which locates the judgment "in the last day" (John 12: 48), at Christ's "appearing" (2 Tim. 4: 1), or at the sounding of the seventh trumpet, at which time it is said, "Thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead that they should be judged; and that thou shouldest give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and the saints" (Rev. 11: 18); from which we learn that the dead will remain both unjudged and unrewarded till this epoch; agreeing with the following testimony: "And I saw a great white throne, and Him that sat on it, from whose face the earth and the heaven fled away; and there was found no place for them. And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; and the books were opened: and another book was opened, which is the book of life; and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books." Rev. 20: 11, 12. From this statement, we learn that the dead remain unjudged till the coming of "the great white throne" and its occupant; not till then will the books be opened, after which we are to be "judged out of the things written in the books"—an event yet future.

W. S.

THE GOLD DOLLAR.

A Wisconsin sister sets a good example of sacrifice and self-denial in sending me a gold dollar to be used in the cause of the Lord, accompanied with these words:

"Nine years ago I worked out by the week, and of my earnings I saved one gold dollar for a wet day, or a time of need. Now I want to give that gold dollar to the Lord, that it may be in the Bank of heaven," etc.

I know just how to spend that dollar to the glory of God, and a thousand more just like it, if I could have them to thus use. I know of many better able to give one hundred dollars than this sister was to give this dollar. But something whispers in their ears, let somebody else give—save your money; but the time is coming when the rust of their hoarded wealth will "be a witness against" them. It would tend to their future welfare to invest something in the "Bank of heaven." "The Lord hath need of it."

The "gospel of the kingdom" must be carried into new and destitute fields, both by the living ministry, and by the spread of suitable publications; and it will take some of the Lord's money to help do this work; and somebody has got it on hand, and ought to help. How much would you take for your precious hope, Bro. A. or Bro. B., and be put back into the mists of tradition? Would it not take hundreds of dollars? Then how much would the same hope be worth to others now enveloped in the fogs of mysticism, if they could be enlightened? And how much are you willing to do to help enlighten them?

W. S.

QUESTION.—A Vermont correspondent inquires—"Who was Melchisedec?" He is first mentioned in Gen. 14: 18, and styled "king of Salem," and Paul also affirms that he was "king of Salem." When Abraham returned from a battle against his enemies, "Melchizedec, king of Salem, brought forth bread and wine; and he was the priest of the most high God." He was a king that lived cotemporary with Abraham, and reigned in Salem.

There was nothing singular about him, viewed in the capacity of a "man" or a "king"; but the peculiar feature is in the fact that he was recognized as "priest" long before the Aaronic priesthood was instituted, of a different order, without predecessor or successor in that office. To be a legal priest under the Jewish arrangement, both the father and mother must be found entered in the Levitical genealogies which were kept with scrupulous care by the Jews; but in this respect Melchisedec was said to be "without father, without mother"; and as the regulations concerning the Aaronic priesthood required a record of the pedigree, the time of birth, and time of death, Paul refers to the dissimilarity of Melchisedec's priesthood, in these words: "Without descent, having neither beginning of days, nor end of life"—that is, in the Jewish record; or, according to Wakefield,—"Of whose father, mother, pedigree, birth, and death, we have no account."

Christ could not have been a priest after the Aaronic order, having neither father, mother, nor birth in that record, being of another tribe; but he did have father and mother and birth, as a person, and so did Melchisedec; so Christ was "made a priest after the order of Melchisedec." But it is never said that he was made king after the order of Melchisedec; and the inference that Christ must be both king and priest at the same time, because Melchisedec was, is illegitimate, for Paul was simply arguing Christ's priesthood, and not his kingship. One does not involve the other, being distinct offices.

W. S.

"CAN YE NOT DISCERN THE SIGNS OF THE TIMES?"—To shut our eyes to significant signs already given, and demand some astounding proof of coming judgment, is to act on the same principle that actuated the Pharisees at the time of the first advent. They ought to have known by the fulfillments of prophecy, which constituted signs, that the time had arrived for the manifestation of the Messiah; but shutting their eyes to all these prophetic surroundings, they clamored for a "sign"—for something overwhelmingly and irresistibly convincing. But when men will close their eyes to all which God sees fit to give, and call for such signs as he never promised to give, they only receive a divine reprimand. They should have understood "the voice of one crying in the wilderness," and other signs, such as the miracles being wrought by the Savior, that Christ was the predicted Messiah, for these things were matters of prophecy, the fulfillment of which constituted a cluster of signs, which were then "the signs of the times."

We blame the Jews for overlooking those signs, and consequently rejecting Jesus. But how much more do professors of the present day merit the withering rebuke which Jesus administered to the blind Pharisees, seeing they overlook signs more conspicuous and more numerous, bespeaking the second mission of the Messiah to the earth!—"Can ye not discern the signs of the times?" Omens thicken around us, and loom up like mountains on either hand, indicating that we are in the last hours of the last days. And yet to the very end, prophetic blindness will lead men to inquire, "Where is the promise of his coming?" which is still another sign of the advent near.

W. S.

For the World's Crisis.

PREACHERS AND POSTAGE STAMPS.

A correspondent, under the above caption, makes the following pertinent suggestions:—

"Being at the house of an Advent preacher, and seeing the number of letters he received, all to be answered, suggested some thoughts concerning postage stamps.

The preacher, after being gone from home a week or more, comes back and finds in the post-office ten or twelve letters, all, or nearly all, of which request an immediate answer. He sits down and writes (perhaps it takes him half a day to answer them all); and when he gets through, he seals them, and looks for stamps. In one or two he finds stamps for return postage, and may be heard to say, 'Thank God, that some do remember postage costs something'; and the remainder he has to send at a cost of thirty cents or more for postage, to say nothing of the cost of ink, paper, and envelopes. All this in a year would amount to enough to buy the preacher's family some of the comforts of life, which he would be under the necessity of going without, were he to pay it out for postage.

"Now if those who write to preachers, either women or men, would send stamps for return, it would be but a trifle for them, and would amount to considerable to those who have so many letters to answer, and such a small income as that of Second Advent preachers."

Woman and her Work, please copy.

For the World's Crisis.

OMINOUS.

LONDON, Jan. 25. A semi-official declaration has been received from Constantinople, that henceforth Turkey will rely on herself for protection, and not on the interests and jealousies of European powers.—Herald.

This is what we have long expected. It seems that this is the power that is to "plant the tabernacle of his palace between the seas in the glorious holy mountain. . . . Yet he shall come to his end, and none shall help him." Beloved, lift up your heads. Redemption is near. Watch for the events of the next few months. If Russia attacks Turkey the coming spring, as she talks, we shall expect to see the prophecy fulfilled, the Sultan driven into Palestine, and there come to his end, and none to help him. When he comes to his end thus, our Lord and Redeemer will be here.

Let us be ready. Watch and pray. Keep unspotted from the world. Be pure in heart. None but the pure in heart will enter the glorious kingdom. Hallelujah! Nothing but purity there. Be ready. A. P. MOORE.

— It is an old saying that charity begins at home; but this is no reason that it should not go abroad; a man should live with the world as a citizen of the world; he may have a preference for the particular quarter, or square, or even alley, in which he lives, but he should have a generous feeling for the welfare of the whole.

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 26th, 1870, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.
WM. B. HERRON, Sec'y Adv. Chr. Pub. Soc'y.

Remittances should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass., or they may be enclosed with remittances to the Crisis office.

Donations for the Tract Fund.

Previous acknowledgments	$339.98
M. Henry	1.00
D. D. Reed	1.16

POOR FUND.

(To send the Crisis to the Poor.)

Previous acknowledgments	$37.25
D. H. Hatch	.50

YOUNG PILGRIM FUND.

Previous acknowledgments	$17.58

AMER. ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

Donations are earnestly solicited, to enable this Society to send out missionaries, and other means, into the Southern States, and elsewhere, as the Lord may open the door, to proclaim "the glad tidings of the kingdom at hand"; and should be sent, as also payments of pledges made, to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, P. O. Drawer 202, Boston, Mass., who will acknowledge the same in the columns of the Crisis.

Previous acknowledgments	$992.94
A Sister in Conn	7.00
John Clothy	2.00
A Friend (Cal. Mission)	4.00
Sarissa Bidwell	1.00

☞ "SOUTHERN NOTES," from our corresponding Editor, came too late for insertion this week.

☞ We understand that Theodore Tilton, late of the Independent, will hereafter confine his editorial labors to the Golden Age, to be published in New York, weekly; a paper to be devoted to the "free discussion of all living questions in Church, State, Society, Literature, Art, and Moral Reform."

Extracts from Letters.

BRO. C. S. HALL writes:—"I feel as though the Mission society had taken the right step in sending men out into the mission field, and money spent in sustaining them will not be thrown away, but will tell for the Lord's cause. Ever since the appeal made by the Mission Board, I have thought that I would do something, but have kept neglecting it, in the midst of many other duties, and have been waiting also to see some response to Bro. Cunningham's liberal proposal by other brethren. We read in one place of provoking 'one another unto love and good works.' I suppose this is one thing that I have been waiting for; but when I stop to think the matter over, I find that it is just as much my duty to lead off in these good works, as it is my brother's. I wish there might be more attention given to these things by the Advent people. I have not done all that I could, and if I could see the Adventists all in earnest, and every one doing something, I should feel like doing my utmost; but when there are so few, comparatively, it seems as though what little I could do would not amount to anything by itself; but if there were a great many mites, even, to add to it, the whole would make a nice sum, and we should all see some fruit of our labors. I feel powerless myself to do anything to change this state of things, but I wish something might be written or done to stir up the brethren and call forth unanimous and concerted action. What is done, must be done quickly. May the Lord help us all to know our duty, and then to do it."

BRO. D. D. REED writes:—"We spent last Christmas and New Year's at San Jose, laboring in a colored church. The Lord is with us, and the truth is doing its last great work. It is about thirty years since I embraced this great truth, but I never felt drawn right up to the judgment as of late. As I look at the 'man of sin,' the downfall of Babylon, and the hour of temptation which I think has commenced, my very soul is stirred to do all I can to warn a doomed world. And Christ will soon rise up and swear that time shall be no longer. I am not a fanatic, but I believe the sure word of prophecy.

A church member in San Francisco told me of a minister in that city, a godly man, who said he felt like giving up trying to do anything more. When the evenings for conference and class meetings came round, the members were off to balls and theatres, and seats were empty. 'Lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God.' Another evidence of Christ's soon coming. My dear Advent brethren, gird up the loins of your mind, and be stir yourselves for God and his cause, whilst it is day; for soon the night cometh when no man can work.

We shall sail in a few days for San Diego, four hundred miles down the Coast, to the south part of the State, where we shall preach the speedy coming of Christ; a new field; then work up the Coast by land, through town, city, and village, as the Lord directs. Pray for us, brethren and sisters. We need much wisdom, grace, and the spirit and power of God, to preach the word with effect in these last hours of peril. God help you all to stand true and endure to the end, for soon the Master cometh. Glory to God! we are almost home."

BRO. C. C. RAMSAY writes from Charles City, Iowa:—"I have just closed one of the most interesting meetings I ever attended. The next day after writing my last communication, Bro. P. S. W. Deyo arrived and assisted in the management of the meeting, while the preaching devolved on me. He staid until four days before its close, and rendered efficient service by his powerful exhortations and skillful management. He also gave us two good discourses, but was obliged to leave to attend the Quarterly Conference at Boylan's Grove. We closed up the meeting after twenty-nine days' session, with the following results: I preached thirty-one discourses, and buried fifteen souls with Christ by baptism into his death. Thirty-two were reclaimed, and eighteen were added to the church. The meetings were very interesting, especially the prayer and conference meetings. The church is revived and in a lively condition, and sometimes several are on their feet at once. One evening there were seventy-four testimonies in forty minutes. I closed this meeting with regret, praying that the Lord might continue to bless by adding to their number such as shall be saved in the day of his coming. I left New Hartford last evening (Jan. 31st), and arrived here this morning, to commence a series of meetings with Bro. Deyo in this place. Pray for us."

BRO. J. L. KNAPP writes:—"As the result of our meetings at Saratoga Springs, we have now organized a church, and hold our meetings every Lord's day at half past ten in the morning, and on Thursday evening. Our brethren and sisters take hold and work! We have some who will be found worthy of the kingdom when the Lord shall come. We have hired a hall on Broadway, and intend to keep it, and get Brn. to preach as often as possible. Many outsiders are anxious we should have preaching. If we can get some able man to come and stay a short time, we could raise up a good church and congregation. Those who heard Bro. Sweet steadily, said they were better instructed in the Bible than by all they had learned before. Some say the Bible is a new book. Any brother wishing to preach here should address J. L. Knapp, or G. W. Bishop. We hope our Brn. passing from west to east, and from east to west, will send appointments before them."

BRO. J. B. WADSWORTH writes from Memphis, Tenn.:—"Elder Macon, a colored Bro from St. Louis, visited our colored Advent brethren here last week. He is very much liked, and they want him for their pastor. Those who left at the time of the division in our church, have now re-united themselves with the faithful ones that remained, and also have re-organized the church. I trust the church will now prosper. But their place of worship is entirely too small. If they could only have the Chapel back now, with a large day and Sabbath School as before, and their former teacher, Dr. Leslie, here to assist in carrying on the schools, much good might be accomplished. My wife has commenced a day school, with prospect of success, and on next Sabbath expects to start a Sabbath School. Brethren, pray for this mission."

BRO. T. E. LANG, Jr., writes:—"As I am receiving letters almost daily requesting me to visit different places where I have labored in the past, I would say to all such, that I would gladly come if I could, but am obliged to stay at home with my poor sick wife, who is very low with consumption, and in all probability must in a very short time fall a victim to death. O death! thou art a cruel enemy, but, thank God, thou canst not hold them long; for the promise has gone forth that the loved ones shall come again from the land of the enemy. What great and precious promises are given in the word of God. How cheering they are to the weary and distressed pilgrim in this dark vale of tears. Remember us, dear brethren and sisters, at the throne of grace."

BRO. P. W. HOUGH writes:—"I have had six meetings in Bloomingdale, Wis. Fifteen have confessed Christ; almost all have found peace in believing. To God be all the glory. I shall continue two nights more."

SR. B. MATHEWSON writes:—"I am happy to send you the following slip cut from the Rutland Herald:—'It is denied that there is any truth in the statement that a man was drowned recently while being baptized by immersion in Kentucky.'"

SISTER R. HATCH writes:—"The World's Crisis has been a great blessing and comfort to me in my hours of affliction and sorrow. It brings light and truth to me in my lonely dwelling, and is all the preaching I have, excepting the Christian."

Bro. Cogswell writes:—"Brn. have noticed the call in Crisis, by Bro. A. H. Brown, in behalf of Sister C. B. Turner of Syracuse. You all understand her situation. Brethren and sisters, do respond to this call, and so relieve one of God's little ones."

Obituaries.

CLARK. Died, in Providence, R. I., Oct. 17th, of consumption, Sister Clarissa B., widow of Capt Amos Clark, late of Hartford, formerly of Middletown, Conn., aged sixty-five years and nine months.

Mother is dead, but Jesus lives; and because he lives, she shall live also. The hope of soon seeing Jesus, and being made like him, and of the resurrection of the dead, was very dear to her; it was her comfort through all her pilgrimage, and though greatly disappointed in not seeing him in 1843, she never for one moment ceased to watch for his coming. While apparently unconscious of every thing but extreme suffering, about three hours before her death, she was asked—"Ma, can you still lean upon that Arm which has been your support these many long years?" She answered firmly, "Yes! yes! yes!" "Can you still trust the same precious Savior who died and rose again, and will bring again from the dead all, every one?" "Precious Savior!" she repeated, with great animation, interrupting the speaker, and raising her emaciated arm three times, she each time repeated "every one!" while a sweet smile overspread her countenance, and appeared to rest upon it long after she had ceased to breathe.

Funeral services were held in the church of the Yahveh, conducted by her pastor, Eld. L. Osler, assisted by Rev. S. S. Parker, of the Friendship Street Baptist church.

CROSBY. Departed this life, in Rantoul, Ill., Dec. 28th, 1870, Sarah M., wife of Daniel H. Crosby, formerly of New Hampshire, and daughter of Jonathan Chase, of Columbia, N. H., aged thirty years.

Sister C. was brought up in the Advent faith, converted and baptized on her twelfth birth-day, lived a life of devotion to God, and was an active member of the church; unusually affectionate, kind and self-sacrificing to her husband, children, and others. She left three daughters, an infant of seven months.

During her last days she would often say, "I want to get well, and take care of my little family. I love my husband and children." Jesus' coming, and the hope of a resurrection from the grave to eternal life, was her consolation during the last conflict with the great enemy. She arranged for her family and funeral. A jewel is laid away in the dust of earth, prepared for the better resurrection.
MARY L. TURNER.

Adv. Chris. Times, please copy.

CLEGG. Mary E., wife of Henry Clegg, of Philadelphia, fell on sleep, Tuesday, Jan. 10th, aged forty years and three months.

Sr. C. was converted to Christ at the age of sixteen. Although having been a member of the M. E. church from that period to the time of her decease, her mind was always open to receive religious truth. After her conversion she was immersed by a Baptist clergyman. When she heard the glad news of a coming Savior who should establish his kingdom upon earth, her heart welcomed the message. When the crowning truth, "Immortality through Christ alone," was sounded in her ears, she embraced it gladly. She was not a newspaper or prayer-meeting christian simply, but one who was of good report in her family, amongst her neighbors, and in the church. She died as she lived—"unto the Lord." Funeral services were held in the lecture-room of St. Paul's M. E. church, the pastor of the church, Elders Campbell, Stuart, and Ashman, taking part in the services. Discourse by the writer, from 1 Thess. 4: 14.
F. H. BURBANK.

NORTON. Died, at Frankfort, Me., March 20th, 1870, Mrs. Sarah Norton, aged forty-nine years.

Sr. Norton leaves a husband and two daughters to mourn the loss of a christian wife and mother. She embraced Christ and was buried in baptism seven years ago, and held fast the profession of her faith unto the end. She was full of good works and deeds of kindness. Her labors among the sick and dying were very remarkable. Her last sickness was severe, but her patience and resignation showed the heart of a sincere christian. She received the Lord's Supper upon her bed, a few days before her death, in great joy. We laid her away, in sure and certain hope of meeting in the first resurrection. "The memory of the just is blessed."

Words of comfort were spoken on the occasion by the writer, who will never forget the kindness and piety of the dead.
F. A. BAKER.

CURTIS. Died, in Bath, Me., Jan. 27th, 1871, Sr. Mary Curtis, aged sixty-six years.

Sr. C. found favor with God in early life, and in 1843 she heard the Lord was soon to come, and loving the sound embraced it. Although feeble in health, she always found a way to get to the house of God, and was always ready to testify to the goodness of God, and to warn sinners to flee from the wrath to come. She leaves an only daughter. Words of comfort were spoken by the writer, assisted by Eld. N. G. Reed.
H. S. MITCHELL.

JAMESON. Died, in Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 31st, 1870, of diphtheria, George R., only son of George and Mary Jameson, late of Montreal, aged one [illegible]

SMITH. Died, in Sharon, Mass., Nov. 16th, Jacob Smith, aged ninety-two years and twenty-six days.

My honored father embraced the blessed hope nearly threescore and ten years ago, and has lived in the enjoyment of it ever since. From a careful investigation of the Scriptures, he clearly saw that the wicked were not immortal; that the saints sleep in Jesus until the morning of the resurrection, then come forth to live forever on the new earth. His last words were—"I have always had a desire to live until the Lord comes, but His will be done."

He leaves seven children, a number of grandchildren, and a large circle of friends, to mourn his loss. "The righteous hath hope in his death."
SARAH B. BLISS.

KNOX. Died, at Exeter, Me., Jan. 16th, 1871, Allen J. Knox, youngest son of Samuel and Naomi Knox, aged twelve years, five months, and four days.

He sleeps in Jesus, to awake when the last trump shall sound. Words of comfort were spoken by Elder E. V. B. Edgerly, from 1 Cor. 13: 11, being the first words the deceased learned from the Bible.
C. E. MARSHALL.

BRADLEY. In Plainville, Ct., Jan. 31st, Ellen H., wife of Albert C. Bradley, aged thirty-one years, one month, and twenty-three days.
C. L. AYER.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 31. The dykes at Smyrna have been destroyed by a torrent and a large part of the town inundated. Many persons were drowned.

LONDON, Feb. 1. A telegram from Constantinople states that the Turkish Government is making preparations with a view to the occupation of the Danubian principalities in the event of the proposed abdication of Prince Charles becoming a reality. Numerous detachments of troops have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to proceed to these territories on a moment's notice.

An official dispatch announces that Bourbaki's army, 80,000 strong, entered Switzerland to-day. The Federal authorities have summoned the Cantons to prepare to detain them.

A PROCLAMATION FROM GAMBETTA.

BORDEAUX, Feb. 1. Gambetta has issued a proclamation, saying: "Frenchmen, Prussia believes an armistice will dissolve our armies and secure the election of a chamber ready to conclude a shameful peace. It depends on France to upset these calculations. It is necessary to make the armistice a period for the instruction of our young troops. Continue with unrelaxed vigor organization for defence and for war if necessary, while you instal a National Republican Assembly, willing to make such peace only as is compatible with the honor, rank and integrity of France."

PESTH, Jan. 31. In the Austro-Hungarian delegation to-day, Beust advocated an increase of armaments, both military and naval. He distinctly repudiated the idea that the Government was actuated by any policy of revenge for the past, but said that the danger of warlike complications involving Austria was not a phantom peril. The policy of the Empire was peaceful and prudent, but contingencies were possible, and foreign powers must learn that Austria is ready for defence.

LONDON, Feb. 1. Many thousands of Bourbaki's army died from starvation in the Jura. There were 15,000 prisoners taken, including one hundred officers, two being generals. There were also captured ten cannon, seven mitrailleuses and two eagles. Only eight thousand escaped in the direction of Lyons, and Manteuffel is in pursuit of them.

A letter from Col. Ducan Kentry, assisting in the War Department of Bordeaux, states that there is immense reaction in official circles and among the populace against the Provisional Government, and ten millions of the people would vote for a restoration of the Empire to-morrow. France will refuse to continue the war. The Mobiles arriving at Bordeaux shout "Vive l'Empereur!"

VERSAILLES, Feb. 2. The terms of the armistice have been accepted by all the Departments of France except one branch, Edu Rhone. At Marseilles the election will be immediately proceeded with.

Favre has appealed to the Emperor of Germany to pity Paris confessing that he had overstated the amount of provisions by nine days. The Emperor sent in six millions of rations in compliance with a request, and 15,000 head of cattle. The dismounting of guns on the enciente is proceeding, and in the meantime the Prussian line is being constructed with dispatch, and will be held strongly until the enciente is dismounted. Considerable doubt is expressed whether the armistice and the election of the Constituent Assembly will be productive of ultimate peace.

All the departments except Bouches du Rhone have accepted the armistice. The elections will take place in the departments on the 8th inst. In London there is a general feeling of dismay and anger at the outrageous and unbearable terms proposed by the Germans. If enforced the war will soon be resumed.

FLORENCE, Feb. 1. The Chamber of Deputies has voted—282 to 29—to transfer the capital to Rome.

SAARBRUCK, Feb. 1. Another call on the Landwher for men between the ages of 27 and 47 was issued to-day from the new reserve, and 300,000 men will be ready to march into France at short notice.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 2. The peace negotiations have created great consternation in the camp of the Imperialists, who had hoped to treat directly with Bismarck, and return to France through the treaty of peace. Desperate efforts are now making to enter into negotiations with the Prussian Government.

The public manifestations here in favor of the temporal power of the Pope were magnificent. Immense numbers of pilgrims from all parts of Belgium traversed the streets singing litanies. Archbishop Molinea, after the celebration and mass, delivered an impassioned sermon.

LONDON, Feb. 2. Dispatches from many parts of France concur in expressing the determination of the people to continue the war, unless the terms proposed by Germany are greatly ameliorated.

Late advices from Paris state that Gen. Trochu is suffering from mental depression, and that there are fears of the loss of his reason or his life.

The excitement over the elections increases, and the lines will be closely drawn. The prospect so far as can be ascertained is that the Assembly will be a peace-at-any-price body.

VERSAILLES, Feb. 2. M. Favre refuses to attend the Conference or appoint a substitute, nor will he authorize Tissot, the present French Charge d'Affairs at London, to act as a Representative of France.

The City Government of Paris will pay to Prussia, on Feb. 13th, one hundred million francs, the amount claimed by the latter for war expenses during the siege. In addition to the assessment of the city of Paris, the terms of peace include an indemnification from France to the amount of ten million dollars.

BERLIN, Feb. 2. The Provincial correspondence to-day states positively that the Emperor will remain in Versailles during the armistice, on account of the pending negotiations for peace.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 6. The Independence Belge to-day says that the essential points of the Black Sea question have been already arranged by the London Conference.

A Paris letter of Wednesday says that Leuienne, in an article published in the Debats, writes that the Republic is a failure, and that the Orleans family is the only hope of France.

Religious Intelligence.

— Of the five hundred young ladies attending the Notre Dame Young Ladies' School at South South Bend, Indiana, about four hundred are said to be from Protestant families.—The cause of peace, which is as old as the Christian religion, and which has existed in an organized form since 1815, is exciting new interest both in Europe and America. Meetings in favor of international peace are being held in various places, and the conviction is becoming strong that there are better methods of settling difficulties than by a resort to arms.—The question of abolishing the six months' probation for membership in the Methodist Episcopal Church is discussed in some of the papers of that denomination.—Father Hyacinthe recently expressed himself quite freely, in England, declaring that "truth is the property of no creed, but belongs in varying proportions to all Christian churches."—Since the month of November the Italian government has ceased to pay to the Jesuits of the Roman College the 1,000 scudi monthly which they have previously received.—The Rev. C. E. Cheney, of Chicago, is threatened with a reprimand by the Episcopal Church, because, while absent on a visit to California, he preached in a Presbyterian pulpit.—Twenty-four years ago American Methodism had not one representative in China. Now Chinese Methodism sends the first native missionary to America.—The New Testament and parts of the Old are now translated into the Dacotah language. These people receive the gospel gladly.—Methodists in the [illegible]

to quarterly meetings on Sunday. So they did in this country in the olden time.—Beecher compares a text to a gate opening into the Lord's garden; and says that many ministers, instead of unlatching the gate and leading their hearers in to pluck the fruit and flowers, content themselves by getting upon it and swing to and fro.—The Young Men's Christian Association of Washington have fixed upon June 17th next, for meeting in that city of the International Convention.—The Fulton street daily prayer-meeting will be held hereafter, in the second story of the building No. 103 Fulton street, running through to No. 58 Ann street, entrance on either street. In this very place these meetings commenced September 23, 1857, and here they have since been continued daily without interruption, except that they were held in the adjoining church during the time required to take down the old lecture-room, and build up this spacious beautiful and commodious chapel.—John Stuart Mill is to introduce into parliament, at its next session, a bill to disestablish the English church, and a belief is confidently entertained that a fight continued through two or three sessions will result in its success.—About three hundred clergymen, of various denominations, attended the funeral of the Rev. Albert Barnes, in Philadelphia, all sitting in a body in the church.—In the last ten months about 1,500 persons have joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, in various places, under the labors of Mrs. Van Cott.—Several Presbyterian clergymen of New York city wear gowns while officiating in their pulpits.—A Baptist lady at the North has given the sum of $13,000 for the establishment of a school at Columbia, South Carolina, for the education of colored preachers and teachers.—The new chapel erected for the daily Fulton prayer meeting was opened this week with appropriate services. It stands on the site of the old consistory building, where the meeting originated. The room will seat comfortably about three hundred persons—large enough for the meeting at ordinary times. The room is very high studded, lighted wholly from the top, and wears a tidy and comfortable aspect.—The New York Observer says it has been estimated that 50,000 souls have been converted as the direct and remote result of a single revival in a college, in the time of Dr. Dwight.

In Brief.

—— It is confidently believed in Court circles that the Empire will be restored, with the Empress as Regent.——Although in Paris the army are prisoners of war, they will remain inside the walls till the close of the armistice. One of the conditions of the capitulation is that no food will be supplied to Paris from the districts occupied by the German armies.——The German troops, according to a Berlin paper, now occupy, not partially but completely, thirty-two of the eighty-six French Departments, comprising 15,000 communes. They exercise in these all civil and military powers, control the posts, telegraphs and railways, and regularly collect the taxes.——The German papers mention, as an indirect result of the war, that there has been a marked increase of lunacy in France, all the asylums being crowded. ——The strongest vegetable fibre known is the New Zealand flax. It has long, sword-like leaves, ten or twelve feet in length. It is used by the settlers for binding their sheaves, fastening their gates, tying up their horses, and in almost every possible way.——The drouth is still severe in many parts of the State, it being almost impossible to obtain water enough for household necessities.

The Times' correspondent attached to the headquarters of Prince Frederick Charles, speaking of the German troops, says: "I came here expecting to see an army looking overworked, and officers somewhat spoilt by too much success. I find troops of large stature, well fed, bright, and it may almost be said, rosy; the finest cavalry horses I have ever seen, and in such condition that they might all have been turned out of an English gentleman's hunting stud, and the tone of the staff officers, which sets the fashion for the rest of the army, is curiously, I had almost said studiously, modest. For instance, when I mentioned to-night the extraordinary efficiency of the train and the discipline of the drivers, the answer—a very true one—was, 'Yes, but hitherto the fortune of war has always enabled us to advance. The time of trial will come if we are obliged to retreat.' The men say that the French fought very well yesterday, but it has become almost an article of faith now that the French are to be beaten in every engagement."

☞ The Congregationalist has a letter from Bristol, N. H., which gives an account of a wonderful revival of religion in that place. The writer says: "It began on the first of January, when fourteen young ladies were received into the Congregational church. First, christians began to pray and labor; then the young became interested, then older people, till all classes were reached. The pastor writes: 'Every merchant, every doctor, the lawyer, the hotel keeper, every rumseller, every drunkard but two, every business man in the place but two, are rejoicing in Christ. Whole families again and again were seen coming to ask for prayers.' At present upwards of four hundred are indulging hope. Three-fourths of the inhabitants of Bristol of responsible age are seeking or have found Jesus. The work is still progressing. The inquiry now is, not who will come, but who has not come."

☞ AT THE MEETING lately held in Boston against the occupation of Rome, Mr. P. A. Collins stated that "the question was not whether twenty millions of Italians should have a capital, as much as it was whether two hundred millions of Catholics should have a common seat of authority." The N. Y. Times, commenting on the meeting, says: "We were under the impression that the Italians numbered very nearly, if not over, twenty-five millions, and that in the Catholic countries of Europe some three-fourths of the population were only indifferently attached, if not unflinchingly opposed to Popery, as defined by these political aspirants who have lately been stumping the Catholic churches throughout this region for votes. What most concerns us, however, is the spirit which pervades all the speeches delivered in denouncing the dethronement of Pius IX. Is it not evident that if people of his stamp were now in the majority they would not scruple to involve this country in a war against Italy for the restoration of Popery in its worst form?"

☞ To Preaching Brethren.

Those wishing to preach ..... Correspond with
In Westfield, Mass..........C. H. Phelps.
Lawrence, Mass.......Geo. Churchill, John T. Merrill, Ephraim Fisk.
Worcester, Mass.....H. P. Colker, H. W. Buxton, or S. O. Higgins.
Savoy, Mass..........Daniel Miller, or A. E. Bliss.
Wakefield, Mass..........G. R. Tyzzer.
Charlton, Mass.........E. H. Allen, Oxford, Mass.
Worcester, Mass.......E. M. Blackmer, Willard M. Hall, or Willard G. Ruggles.
Portsmouth, N. H..........T. E. Wood, Box 1445.
Hampton, N. H..........Joseph A. Philbrook.
Manchester, N. H..........J. W. C. Pickering.
Dover, N. H..........John Vickery.
London Ridge, N. H...Daniel L. Moore, Wm. Batchelder, Edward Mudget.
Seabrook, N. H......R. S. Johnson, of Hampton, N. H., or Chs. Barton, of Seabrook.
Chichester, N. H..........F. L. Knowles.
Goshen, N. H..........O. F. Coin.
Rye, N. H...Moses C. Philbrick or Samuel Seavet.
Pittsfield, N. H. (Bethel)..........O. S. Emerson.
Stowe, Vt........H. W. Sargent, or S. Whitney.
Portland, Me.......R. R. York, S. K. Dyer, D. F. Scamman.
Lewiston, Me..........Albert Burgess.
South Berwick (Great Works) Me...Harrison Dow.
Kennebunk Depot, Me..........Rufus Duran.
Hollis Centre, Me.........W. S. Moulton, or S. G. Rumery.
Vernon, Vt..........J. C. Allen.
Bristol, Ct..........E. Hitchcock, Forestville, Ct.
West Gloucester, R. I.....Geo. A. Hoskins, Putnam, Ct.
New Milford, Ct..........Richard Heacox.
New Haven, Ct......W. F. Carpenter, 73 State St.
Pleasant Valley, Ct....Rossel O. White, New Hartford, Ct.
Meriden, Ct......E. J. Whitehead, West Meriden, Conn., Box 4.
West Meriden, Ct..........S. D. Bingham.
New Britain, Ct..........Chs. M. Burt.
Wrightville, Ct......D. A. Grant, Torrington, Ct.
Newfield, Ct.....Wm. Ripley, Pleasant Valley, Ct.
New Milford, Ct..........J. Coggswell.
Morris, Ct..........Joseph Curtis.
South Butler, N. Y..........E. C. Brown.
Rochester, N. Y......J. R. Cooper, 4 Hickory St.
Hoosick, N. Y.....Geo. B. Keech, J. B. White, or Christopher Lawton, Hoosick Falls, N. Y.
Philadelphia, Pa.......Frank E. Davis, 1715 Markham St., or I. N. Wilfong, 125 No. 22nd St.

☞ MINISTERS visiting Shrewsbury to preach, can have a home with LIZZIE C. HODGKINS.

MEETINGS IN PORTLAND, ME. (Union Hall.)
Having vacated Cushman Hall, on Congress Street, meetings hereafter will be held in Union Hall. Entrance on Free Street, nearly opposite the Baptist church. Seats free.
S. K. DYER.
D. F. SCAMMAN.
R. R. YORK.

ROCHESTER, N. H.
There will be preaching in the chapel, near the brick school-house, in Rochester, N. H., on the first Lord's day in each month. Others can appoint so as [illegible]

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.
T. M. Preble..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
Hiram Munger..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Geo. W. Brown (of So. Elliot, Me.) Sunday, Feb. 26th

BOSTON, (Branch Chapel), 1735 Washington Street, corner of Madison Street.
Meetings at 10½ A. M., and 3 and 7½ P. M.
John G. Hook..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Nathan Whiting.......Wednesday evening, Feb. 15th
Mrs. Jane Benson..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Meetings every evening. Prayer and Temperance meeting Saturday evening. Seats free.

CAMBRIDGEPORT (Washington Hall, Main Street.)
A. P. Moore..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

CHELSEA, MASS.
Granite Block, Hall No. 11, corner of Broadway and Fourth Street. Entrance on Fourth Street.
(Up two flight of stairs.)
A. Ross..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. Couch..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
M. Batchelor..........Sunday, March 5th

CHARLESTOWN.
Preaching at Charlestown, (Evening Star Hall, No. 32 Main Street), every Lord's day.
H. M. Bryant..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
T. M. Preble..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
W. S. Campbell..........Sunday, March 5th
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, March 12th

EAST BOSTON, MASS.
(Second Advent Hall, 154 Meridian Street.)
Meetings every Sunday, at the usual hours, also prayer and conference meetings Wednesday and Friday evenings, at 7½ o'clock P. M.
B. Woodside..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
W. C. Thurman..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

Meetings in South Boston on Wednesday evenings, No. 2 Lowland Street.
Friday evenings, No. 227 E. St. Bay-View horse cars pass by. Come and welcome.
C. W. HUNTRESS.
J. N. BERRY.

Rye, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
C. GOODRICH.

Stowe, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Seabrook, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
A. P. MOORE.

Keene, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Salem, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. COUCH.

Boston, Mass. (Mercantile Hall, 32 Summer Street, near Washington Street), Sunday, Feb. 12th, and onward.
H. L. HASTINGS.

Wakefield, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. S. WHITE.

Bridgewater, Vt..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
West Fairlee, Vt..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 20th
H. F. CARPENTER.

Exeter, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
D. N. CHADSEY.

Hartford, Ct. (Talcott & Post's Hall) Sun., Feb. 19th
WM. N. PILE.

Albany, N. H. (Bell school-house)..Sabbath, Feb. 12th
Bartlett, N. H..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
G. H. WALLACE.

Brookfield, N. H. (Town House)....Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. BICKFORD.

Seabrook, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
B. FINNEY.

Scitico, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
A. M. HIGGINS.

Scitico, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
H. MUNGER.

Haverhill, Mass..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
N. C. TWOMBLY.

Great Falls, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
JOSEPH W. WHITE.

East Acworth, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
WM. W. SUTHERLAND.

Philadelphia, Pa....Sundays, Feb. 12th, 19th, and 26th
Saratoga Springs, N. Y..........Sunday, March 12th
A. A. PHELPS.

Middletown, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
New York City (Cooper Institute) Sunday, Feb. 19th
Providence, R. I...Sundays, Feb. 26th and March 5th
WM. STUART.

Northfield, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
Hartford, Ct. (Talcott & Post's Hall) Sun., March 5th
Meriden, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th
GEO. W. BROWN.

Bangor, Me..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
South Atkinson, Me..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
THOMAS SMITH.

Wheelock, Vt........Wednesday evening, Feb. 15th
West Groton, Vt..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
East Canaan, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
MARY E. OTIS.

Chicopee Falls, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
H. DAVIS.

Kennebunkport, Me. (Town House)...Sun., Feb. 12th
Great Falls..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Rochester Plains (Town House)....Sunday, Feb. 26th
EDWIN B. WALLS.

Fisherville, N. H..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
Great Falls, N. H..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
South Berwick, Me. (Great Works)...Sab., March 5th
S. S. MOONEY.

Francestown, N. H., (as L. B. Cummings may appoint) Thursday evening, Feb. 16th, and over Sunday.
JOHN H. DADMUN.

Starks, Me..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
E. M. HAGGETT.

West Romney, N. H. (Plain school-house) evening, Feb. 15th.
Orford, N. H. (Indian Pond) evenings, Feb. 16th, 17th, and 18th.
Piermont, N. H. (Clay meeting-house) Sab., Feb. 19th and a few evenings.
Haverhill, N. H. (Brick Church)...Sabbath, Feb. 26th
West Rumney, N. H. (Plain school-house) evening, Feb. 28th.
Campton, N. H. (Bump school-house) Sab., March 5th
Belmont, N. H. (where Bro. Kidder may appoint) evening, March 9th.
Loudon Ridge, N. H. (at Bro. Batchelder's) evening, March 10th.
Gilmanton, N. H. (school-house at Merrill's Corner) evening, March 11th.
Sabbath, March 12th, where Bro. Maney may appoint.
C. W. NELSON.

Southington, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
G. L. WHITE.

Dover, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Melvin Village, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Manchester, N. H. (where Bro. Samuel Morse may appoint) Sunday, Feb. 26th.
Lynn, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
WM. BODGE.

Yalesville, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
S. W. TREAT.

Greenwood City (Union meeting-house) Sab., Feb. 12th
JESSE GAY.

East Canaan, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Holderness, N. H. (Carr school-house) eve., Feb. 14th and onward as may be duty.
WM. H. SHAW.

Vernon, Vt..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Chicopee Falls, Mass....evenings, Feb. 16th and 17th
A. SIMPSON.

Bath, Me..........Sundays, March 5th and 19th
C. H. LEVERTON.

Holden, Mass..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
DAMON NICHOLS.

Rutland, Vt........Sundays, Feb. 12th, 19th and 26th
L. BOUTELL.

West Stafford, Ct..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
Keene, N. H..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
L B. POTTER.

West Plymouth, N. H. (Brick school-house, near Bro. Nelson's), Sunday, Feb. 12th.
A. H. CLARK.

Goffstown, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
GEO. W. BROWN, So. Elliot.

Fitchburg, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Nashua, N. H..........Tuesday evening, Feb. 14th
Sutton Mills, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Lynn, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
C. W. SARGENT.

Colebrook, N. H., Feb. 23d, and as long as the Lord will. The meetings will be held in the Methodist or Town Hall.
D M LEAVITT.
J. SHOREY.

North Dorchester, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
J. B. BROWN.

Bradford, N. H. (Bush meeting-house) Sabbaths, Feb. 12th and 19th.
Boscawen, N. H. (Gulf school-house)...eve., Feb. 7th and Sabbath, Feb. 26th.
SIMEON EMERY.

Lynn, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Philadelphia, Pa........Sundays, March 12th and 19th
M. BATCHELOR.

Manchester, N. H..........evening, Feb. 15th
Goffstown, N. H.........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
E. S. MOULTON.

Lewiston, Me..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Mechanic Falls, Me.......evenings, Feb. 15th and 16th
Bath, Me..........Sabbaths, Feb. 19th and 26th
Vienna, Me., or vicinity (as Bro. H. B. Sevey may arrange) Sabbaths, March 5th and 12th.
O. H. SWEET.

Bow, N. H. (Brown's Mills school-house) Sunday, Feb. 12th. Will Bro. Martin meet me there?
Canterbury (No. 1 school-house) evening, March 4th, and over Sunday, the 5th.
[illegible]

North Canton..........evenings, Feb. 9th and 10th
Bro. G. L. White is to be with me during the week.
Hartland (Town Hall or school-house) Sun., Feb. 12th
S. WOODRUFF.

Allegheny City, Pa., the last and first Sundays in each month until April 1st.
Rouseville, Pa., the third Sunday in Jan., Feb., and March.
Bucklins Corners, Chaut. Co., N. Y., commence meetings evening, Feb. 9th, and over Sunday. On Sunday at two o'clock P. M., and in the evening. Bro. Burdick will be with me.
JOHN T. ONGLEY.

Warren Summit, N. H..........evening, Feb. 9th
North Haverhill..........evening, Feb. 10th
DANIEL D. PAGE.

West Groton, Vt. (Ricker school-house) evening, Feb. 11th, over Sunday, the 12th, and on as the Lord directs.
East Landaff, N. H. (Bungay school-house) evening, Feb. 18th, and over Sunday.
GEO. E. BROWN, D. D. PAGE.

Carthage, Me..........Tuesday evening, Feb. 7th and Sunday, the 12th.
Byron, Me..........evenings, Feb. 9th and 10th
J. ALBERT LIBBY.

Seabrook, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Rye, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
WM. C. STEWART.

Wilmot Settlement (as brethren may arrange) Feb. 9th, and over the 12th.
Hawleyton, (as Bro. H. Bull may arrange) Feb. 14th, 15th and 16th.
Cohocton, N. Y. (as Deacon T. C. Armstrong may appoint), Feb. 18th and 19th.
Honeoye Flats, N. Y..........Feb. 26th
At Conference, March 2d, and over the 5th.
All evening appointments to commence at 7 P. M.
C. F. SWEET.

Waterbury, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
WM. J. RIPLEY.

Low Hampton, N. Y...11 A. M. and 6½ P. M., Feb. 19th
Pitts Town, N. Y....at 6½ P. M., March 1st, 2d, and 3d
Hoosick, N. Y..........Sunday, March 5th
C. PIKE.

Rawsonville, Vt........Sundays, Feb. 12th and 19th
Z. T. WOOD.

Providence, R. I..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
T. M. PREBLE.

Collinsville, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
G. L. WHITE.

Hoosick, N. Y., Feb. 11th and 12th. Will some one meet me at the Falls on the arrival of the first P. M. train from Adams?
North Dana, Mass.......Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
Wakefield, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
GEO. A. STREETER.

Dorchester, N. H. (Town House) evening, Feb. 14th
West Canaan, (at the new school-house) eve., Feb. 16th, and onward as the Lord may direct.
D. EASTMAN.
J. H. EVANS.

South Butler, N. Y., evening, Feb. 9th, and onward in Wayne Co. (as Bro. Wm. E. Brown may arrange) until Feb. 23d.
Will Bro. Brown meet me at Savannah Depot, Wednesday, P. M., Feb. 8th?
Brethren in western New York wishing my services before returning home, will write me at South Butler, N. Y.
C. H. WILLIAMS.

Stoneham, Me..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
On account of sickness, was unable to fill my appointment of the 29th.
J. T. JORDAN.

Farmington (Chapel) the last Sunday in each month. Others can make their appointments accordingly.
H. M. BRYANT.

W. H. Point, Ct., on prophecy......Sunday, Feb. 12th and two following evenings.
Springfield, Mass.......Wednesday evening, Feb. 15th
Collinsville, Ct., Thursday evening, Feb. 16th, and onward for one week, including Sun., Feb. 19th.
New York (as Bro. Cox shall arrange) on Revelations of John, Sunday, Feb. 26th.
West Haven, Ct., four evenings, commencing Tuesday, Feb. 28th.
Bridgeport, Ct..........Sunday, March 5th
Ansonia, Ct., three evenings, commencing Monday, March 6th.
Lanesville, Ct., Thursday and Friday evenings, March 9th and 10th.
New Milford, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th and through the week.
Roxbury, Ct., (as the brethren arrange) one week, commencing Sunday, March 19th, to accommodate those coming from Woodbury and Washington.
Lakeville, Ct., one week, commencing Sun., March 26th. Hope to find all ready to work for salvation.
H. K. FLAGG.

Deerfield, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
ORRILL W. KIMBALL.

Warner, N. H. (Waterloo school-house) eve., Feb. 17th
South Barnstead, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
A. S. WILLIAMS.

Collinsville, Ct..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
A. ELLIOT.

South Windsor, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
O. D. WOODRUFF.

Guilford, Conn..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
Waterbury, Ct..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
G. L. TEEPLE.

Ashburnham Depot, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
H. M. BRYANT.

Carlton, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Will some one meet me at the Oxford Depot, forenoon train from Worcester, Friday, Feb. 17th?
North Scituate, R. I. (with Bro. Kellaway) Sunday, Feb. 26th.
E. COTTON.

Putnam, Ct..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
Webster, Mass..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
Woodstock Valley, Ct..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
P. S. BUTLER.

Great Falls, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Dover, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
S. C. HANCOCK.

Porter Village, Me..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
MARK STEVENS.

Hebron, Me. (Sodom school-house) Sunday, Feb. 12th
Lewiston, Me..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
JARED WHITMAN.

Salisbury, N. H..........evening, Feb. 8th and over the following Sabbath.
S. S. MOONEY.

☞ Meetings will be held by the church of God worshiping at Lisbon Village, N. H. (Town Hall), three times every Sabbath. Preaching for the present by ALLEN DAMON.

There will be a meeting at Warren, Mass., every Sunday hereafter until further notice.
RUFUS BAKER.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Geo. W. Brown..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Wm. N. Pile......Sundays, Feb. 26th and March 5th
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, March 9th

WORCESTER, MASS.
R. K. Stark..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
A. Simpson..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. S. White..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, March 5th
J. Couch..........Sunday, March 12th

LOWELL, MASS.
W. H. Mitchell..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
J. Couch..........Sunday, March 5th
C. Cunningham..........Sunday, March 12th
W. H. Mitchell.......Sundays, March 19th and 26th

LAWRENCE, MASS.
H. Pratt..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
C. Goodrich..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
M. Batchelor..........Sunday, Feb. 26th

CONCORD, N. H. (Centre Street.)
John G. Hook..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

CONCORD, N. H., (at the Bethel.)
E. S. Moulton..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
T. W. Piper..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Wm. Stuart..........Sundays, March 12th and 19th

LONDON RIDGE, N. H.
Joseph Harvey..........Sunday, Feb. 26th

MANCHESTER, N. H.
W. H. Mitchell..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
M. Batchelor..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Wm. Stuart.......Sundays, March 26th and April 2d

WINSTED, CT.
H. H. Dickinson..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Mrs. M. L. Durand..........Sunday, Feb. 26th

NEW BRITAIN, CT.
M. L. Durand..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
A. M. Higgins..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

BRISTOL, CT.
A. M. Higgins..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Seth Woodruff..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

WATERBURY, CT.
Wm. J. Ripley..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
A. Elliot..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
G. L. Teeple..........Sunday, Feb. 26th

NEW HAVEN, CT.
Anna E. Smith..........Sunday, Feb. 12th evenings, through the week, and over Sun., the 19th
B. Hitchcock..........Sunday, Feb. 26th

PUTNAM, CT.
P. S. Butler..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
Mrs. L. M. Stoddard..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th

SOUTHINGTON, CT.
B. Hitchcock..........Sunday, Feb. 12th

SOUTH ELLIOT, ME.
W. M. Harmon..........Sunday, Feb. 12th

PORTLAND, ME.
Sec. Adv. Hall, Cushman's Block, 353½ Congress St.
B. S. Emery..........Sundays, Feb 12th and 26th

BIDDEFORD, ME.
B. S. Emery..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. W. White..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
C. H. Leverton..........Sunday, March 5th
O. H. Sweet..........Sundays, April 2d and 9th

PORTLAND, ME. (Union Hall.)
Sr. F. Taylor..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
A. Ross..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
W. C. Kimball..........Sunday, March 5th

Portsmouth, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
Goffstown, N. H..........Sunday, March 5th
A. SIMPSON.

Vernon, Vt..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
Springfield, Mass..evenings, Feb. 28th and March 1st
Worcester, Mass..........evenings, March 2d and 3d
Lowell, Mass..........evenings, March 7th and 8th
Lawrence, Mass..........evenings, March 9th and 10th
Manchester, N. H..........Sunday, March 12th
Concord, N. H. (Centre Street Church) evenings, March 14th and 15th.
Portsmouth, N. H.....evenings, March 16th and 17th
Dover, N. H..........Sunday, March 19th
Savoy, Mass. (New Chapel)......Sunday, March 26th
If any of these appointments conflict with others, please notify me at Savoy, Mass.
Z. D. BAIRD.

Campton Village, N. H..........evening, Feb. 7th
West Plymouth, N. H. (where Bro. Nelson may appoint) evening, Feb. 18th, and over Sunday.
Warren Village, N. H..........evening, Feb. 21st
Warren Summit, N. H..........evening, Feb. 22d
North Haverhill, N. H. (Brick Church) eve., Feb. 23d
Haverhill Center, N. H..........evening, Feb. 24th
North Benton, N. H......Feb. 25th, and over Sunday
Swift Water, N. H..........evening, Feb. 27th
West Groton, Vt. (Ricker school-house) eve., March 1st, and onward as the Lord may direct.
JOHN H. EVANS.

Rochester, N. H. (Gonic Chapel) Sabbath, Feb. 26th
S. VARNEY.

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

☞ We cannot discontinue or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in PLAIN LETTERS.

☞ P. A. SMITH—Subscriber received. Have sent Crisis.

☞ P. W. HOUGH—Yes. Send the $2.00.

☞ C. GOUD—Received and credited.

☞ N. H. REED—The Order on Hall & Co. was paid.

☞ A. B. DOTY—Your paper is paid to April 19th.

☞ ALLEN DAMON'S address is Lisbon, N. H.

☞ WM. H. SHAW'S address is Piermont, N. H.

☞ E. OWEN'S address is Portsmouth, N. H.

☞ P. S. W. DEYO'S address is Charles City, Floyd Co., Iowa.

Letters Received.

G Jameson, W A Fenn, T Marrow, I Davis, T E Lang, Jr., J H Bullard, E T Durand, O D Snow, R Hatch, C S Hall, J L Knapp, P W Hough, J F Sykes, D D Lathrop, F Schollinger, J W Taylor, A Damon, C. A. G., F A Baker, C E Marshall, M R Steele, H S Mitchell, H H Arnold, L C McKinstry, D F Newton, M L Turner, S B Bliss, F H Burbank, C S Hall, I, H Rowe, C C Ramsay, W Hobbs, G L Teeple, L B Weaver, A M Willis, P S W Deyo, E. J. G., P A Cressy, J D Jones.

Cash Receipts for Books and Tracts.

J. Couch (for N. H. Conf.) $25.00, J V Himes $20.00, S R Lawrence 25c, N L Barber 35c, H Davis $2.00, H D Reed $3.00, D R Moore $1.00, R E Snow 25c, W I Mann $2.50, C W Terry $1.50, R Perham 27c, C S Hall $2.00, A J Mayhew $4.30, A Thatcher $3.50, H Burlingame $1.63, J Ward 75c, E L Burnap 35c, J H Paine $3.70, E Barrows 50c, J H Brown 50c, J E Lynch 50c, J H Nickerson $1.10, L Rawson 25c, Mrs. E S Hocker $2.50, J. F. Sykes 25c, J. M. Treadwell $1.50, L B Cummings $1.10, J Barnes 50c, Thomas Smith $11.00, W F Fahnestock 30c, M H Brown 25c, A Veeder $10.00, N. B. McMurphy 85c, F D Fifield 35c, A Damon $3.00, S J Buswell 50c, S J Bushnell 75c, J A Frederick $1.00, O B Town 25c, S D Edes $1.50, A Kelsey $2.00, M Libby $5.00, W E Brown $5.00, R Osman $1.50, J Earl $0.90, N H Reed $4.00, E M Davis $2.00, G E Talbot 35c, I Fitzsimmons $5.50, W H Ford $1.50, J Thorp $1.25, A J Hunt 30c, J M Judson $2.30, E H Mann 50c, E Urch $5.25, W H Simmons 25c, C B Colton $1.00, P J Smith 30c, J H Bullard $1.00, M B Nutter 50c, N W Hammond 50c, J Bickford $9.00.

Notices.

New York Adv. Chris. Conference.

The Lord willing, this conference will hold its next and last quarterly session, for the conference year, with the church in Brockport, N. Y., commencing Thursday evening, March 2nd, and continuing over Sunday. Brockport—seventeen miles west of Rochester, on the N. Y. C. R. R.—is easy of access, and it is hoped a large delegation will be out. Let all churches interested attend immediately to the quarterly collection and the appointment of delegates, that all may be properly represented, the business done decently and in order, a good meeting be enjoyed, and the blessed cause of our dear Master be advanced. Some who attended the last conference said they hoped never to miss another. Let all the delegates secure certificates, pray earnestly for the success of the meeting, and come in the spirit of Jesus.
B. P. STEVENS, Pres.
WM. E. BROWN, Sec'y.

Times, please copy.

Dedication and Conference.

The Brick Chapel in Vienna (Sevey's Corner), Me., will be dedicated Feb. 16th, at one o'clock P. M., meetings to continue over Sunday. Brethren and sisters are invited to come and unite in laboring for the advancement of the cause of Jesus. Preaching Brn. will make arrangements to attend this meeting. Provision will be made for all. Brn. will call on H. B. Sevey, H. C. Clifford, S. W. Carr.
For the Brn., H. B. SEVEY.

Conference.

The second quarterly session of the N. H. Conference will be held, the Lord will, with the church at Hampton, N. H., commencing Thursday evening, Feb. 9th, to hold over the Sabbath. It is hoped that all who can, especially our preaching brethren, will come up to the feast, to labor for the Lord, and the salvation of the perishing. Let prayer be offered, that God may greatly bless.

T. W. PIPER, }
A. W. SIBLEY, } Committee.
C. H. FLETCHER. }

Notice.

We will commence a series of meetings at So. Troy, Vt., Thursday, Feb. 9th, to hold evenings through the week, over the following Sabbath, and as much longer as the interest may demand. Come, brethren, to this meeting. Troy needs help. May God bless the effort.
J. A. CLEAVELAND.

Notice.

The second quarterly meeting of the Woman's Christian Association will be held in Goffstown, N. H., commencing Wednesday evening, March 8th, 1871. A full attendance is desired and expected.
E. S. JENNINGS, President.
R. E. CHILDS, Secretary.

Notice.

Providence permitting, I shall hold a discussion at West Hoosick, N. Y., Wednesday evening, March 1st (and onward as duty may require,) with Eld. Parker, of Buskirk's Bridge, N. Y., (a Unitarian) upon the following question: "Resolved, that man is wholly mortal, body, mind, and soul." I affirm. He denies. Brethren, pray for us.
JACOB WILBUR.

Ordination.

By request of the Floyd church, and vote of the special conference held at New Hartford, Iowa, Dec. 29th, Bro. Alonzo Raymond was set apart for the work of the gospel ministry, Jan. 1st, by prayer, and the laying on of hands in the following order: Pledge, prayer, and laying on of hands, charge, and the right hand of fellowship, by Elds. C. C. RAMSAY, and PETER S. W. DEYO.

Notice.

Elder George A. Brown has accepted an invitation from the Advent church in this city to become their pastor. JAMES G. HARDING, Clerk of the Church in New Bedford.

Notice.

A portion of the Second Advent church and Society in Lewiston, Me., have removed from their former place of worship, to No. 54 Central Block, Main St. Meetings are continued in the Hall on Bates St. as usual.
L. H. ROWE.

Notice.

A protracted meeting will be held at Epsom Mountain school-house, N. H., commencing Saturday evening, Feb. 18th, and continue over the Sabbath, and onward as the Lord may direct. Elds. John Parsons, and Charles R. Parsons, will be present to preach the word. All are cordially invited to attend. Come praying that the Lord may bless.
For the Brn., C. R. PARSONS.

Notice.

Brn. of N. Y. State:—My health will not permit me to canvass the territory assigned me (as one of the committee on circuit preaching), in time to report at our next quarterly conference. Brn. who have written me on this matter will regard the enterprise deferred for the present.
WM. A. FENN.

Conference.

There will be a conference in Hartford, Me. (Stetson school-house), commencing Friday evening, Feb. 17th, and continue over the following Sabbath. In behalf of the church,
E. M. HAGGETT.

Notice.

Will not some one of our preaching brethren come here and preach? Will not some one answer this notice? We have had no meetings here [illegible]

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 24th, 1870, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.
WM. B. HERRON, Sec'y Adv. Chr. Pub. Soc'y.

Remittances should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass., or they may be enclosed with remittances to the Crisis office.

Donations for the Tract Fund.

Previous acknowledgments	$339.96
M. Henry	1.00
D. D. Reed	1.18

POOR FUND.

(To send the Crisis to the Poor.)

Previous acknowledgments	$37.25
D. H. Hatch	.50

YOUNG PILGRIM FUND.

Previous acknowledgments	$17.58

AMER. ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

Donations are earnestly solicited, to enable this Society to send out missionaries, and other means, into the Southern States, and elsewhere, as the Lord may open the door, to proclaim "the glad tidings of the kingdom at hand"; and should be sent, as also payments of pledges made, to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, P. O. Drawer 202, Boston, Mass., who will acknowledge the same in the columns of the Crisis.

Previous acknowledgments	$992.94
A Sister in Conn	7.00
John Clothy	2.00
A Friend (Cal. Mission)	4.00
Sarissa Bidwell	1.00

☞ "SOUTHERN NOTES," from our corresponding Editor, came too late for insertion this week.

☞ We understand that Theodore Tilton, late of the Independent, will hereafter confine his editorial labors to the Golden Age, to be published in New York, weekly; a paper to be devoted to the "free discussion of all living questions in Church, State, Society, Literature, Art, and Moral Reform."

Extracts from Letters.

BRO. C. S. HALL writes:—"I feel as though the Mission society had taken the right step in sending men out into the mission field, and money spent in sustaining them will not be thrown away, but will tell for the Lord's cause. Ever since the appeal made by the Mission Board, I have thought that I would do something, but have kept neglecting it, in the midst of many other duties, and have been waiting also to see some response to Bro. Cunningham's liberal proposal by other brethren. We read in one place of provoking 'one another unto love and good works.' I suppose this is one thing that I have been waiting for; but when I stop to think the matter over, I find that it is just as much my duty to lead off in these good works, as it is my brother's. I wish there might be more attention given to these things by the Advent people. I have not done all that I could, and if I could see the Adventists all in earnest, and every one doing something, I should feel like doing my utmost; but when there are so few, comparatively, it seems as though what little I could do would not amount to anything by itself; but if there were a great many mites, even, to add to it, the whole would make a nice sum, and we should all see some fruit of our labors. I feel powerless myself to do anything to change this state of things, but I wish something might be written or done to stir up the brethren and call forth unanimous and concerted action. What is done, must be done quickly. May the Lord help us all to know our duty, and then to do it."

BRO. D. D. REED writes:—"We spent last Christmas and New Year's at San Jose, laboring in a colored church. The Lord is with us, and the truth is doing its last great work. It is about thirty years since I embraced this great truth, but I never felt drawn right up to the judgment as of late. As I look at the 'man of sin,' the downfall of Babylon, and the hour of temptation which I think has commenced, my very soul is stirred to do all I can to warn a doomed world. And Christ will soon rise up and swear that time shall be no longer. I am not a fanatic, but I believe the sure word of prophecy.

A church member in San Francisco told me of a minister in that city, a godly man, who said he felt like giving up trying to do anything more. When the evenings for conference and class meetings came round, the members were off to balls and theatres, and seats were empty. 'Lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God.' Another evidence of Christ's soon coming. My dear Advent brethren, gird up the loins of your mind, and be stir yourselves for God and his cause, whilst it is day; for soon the night cometh when no man can work.

We shall sail in a few days for San Diego, four hundred miles down the Coast, to the south part of the State, where we shall preach the speedy coming of Christ; a new field; then work up the Coast by land, through town, city, and village, as the Lord directs. Pray for us, brethren and sisters. We need much wisdom, grace, and the spirit and power of God, to preach the word with effect in these last hours of peril. God help you all to stand true and endure to the end, for soon the Master cometh. Glory to God! we are almost home."

BRO. C. C. RAMSAY writes from Charles City, Iowa:—"I have just closed one of the most interesting meetings I ever attended. The next day after writing my last communication, Bro. P. S. W. Deyo arrived and assisted in the management of the meeting, while the preaching devolved on me. He staid until four days before its close, and rendered efficient service by his powerful exhortations and skillful management. He also gave us two good discourses, but was obliged to leave to attend the Quarterly Conference at Boylan's Grove. We closed up the meeting after twenty-nine days' session, with the following results: I preached thirty-one discourses, and buried fifteen souls with Christ by baptism into his death. Thirty-two were reclaimed, and eighteen were added to the church. The meetings were very interesting, especially the prayer and conference meetings. The church is revived and in a lively condition, and sometimes several are on their feet at once. One evening there were seventy-four testimonies in forty minutes. I closed this meeting with regret, praying that the Lord might continue to bless by adding to their number such as shall be saved in the day of his coming. I left New Hartford last evening (Jan. 31st), and arrived here this morning, to commence a series of meetings with Bro. Deyo in this place. Pray for us."

BRO. J. L. KNAPP writes:—"As the result of our meetings at Saratoga Springs, we have now organized a church, and hold our meetings every Lord's day at half past ten in the morning, and on Thursday evening. Our brethren and sisters take hold and work! We have some who will be found worthy of the kingdom when the Lord shall come. We have hired a hall on Broadway, and intend to keep it, and get Bro. to preach as often as possible. Many outsiders are anxious we should have preaching. If we can get some able man to come and stay a short time, we could raise up a good church and congregation. Those who heard Bro. Sweet steadily, say they were better instructed in the Bible than by all they had learned before. Some say the Bible is a new book. [illegible] wishing to preach here should address J. L. Knapp, or G. W. Bishop. We hope our Brn. passing from west to east, and from east to west, will send appointments before them."

BRO. J. B. WADSWORTH writes from Memphis, Tenn.:—"Elder Macon, a colored Bro from St. Louis, visited our colored Advent brethren here last week. He is very much liked, and they want him for their pastor. Those who left at the time of the division in our church, have now re-united themselves with the faithful ones that remained, and also have re-organized the church. I trust the church will now prosper. But their place of worship is entirely too small. If they could only have the Chapel back now, with a large day and Sabbath School as before, and their former teacher, Dr. Leslie, here to assist in carrying on the schools, much good might be accomplished. My wife has commenced a day school, with prospect of success, and on next Sabbath expects to start a Sabbath School. Brethren, pray for this mission."

BRO. T. E. LANG, Jr., writes:—"As I am receiving letters almost daily requesting me to visit different places where I have labored in the past, I would say to all such, that I would gladly come if I could, but am obliged to stay at home with my poor sick wife, who is very low with consumption, and in all probability must in a very short time fall a victim to death. O death! thou art a cruel enemy, but, thank God, thou canst not hold them long; for the promise has gone forth that the loved ones shall come again from the land of the enemy. What great and precious promises are given in the word of God. How cheering they are to the weary and distressed pilgrim in this dark vale of tears. Remember us, dear brethren and sisters, at the throne of grace."

BRO. P. W. HOUGH writes:—"I have had six meetings in Bloomingdale, Wis. Fifteen have confessed Christ; almost all have found peace in believing. To God be all the glory. I shall continue two nights more."

SR. B. MATHEWSON writes:—"I am happy to send you the following slip cut from the Rutland Herald:—'It is denied that there is any truth in the statement that a man was drowned recently while being baptized by immersion in Kentucky.'"

SISTER R. HATCH writes:—"The World's Crisis has been a great blessing and comfort to me in my hours of affliction and sorrow. It brings light and truth to me in my lonely dwelling, and is all the preaching I have, excepting the Christian."

Bro. Cogswell writes:—"Brn. have noticed the call in Crisis, by Bro. A. H. Brown, in behalf of Sister C. B. Turner of Syracuse. You all understand her situation. Brethren and sisters, do respond to this call, and so relieve one of God's little ones."

Obituaries.

CLARK. Died, in Providence, R. I., Oct. 17th, of consumption, Sister Clarissa B., widow of Capt Amos Clark, late of Hartford, formerly of Middletown, Conn., aged sixty-five years and nine months.

Mother is dead, but Jesus lives; and because he lives, she shall live also. The hope of soon seeing Jesus, and being made like him, and of the resurrection of the dead, was very dear to her; it was her comfort through all her pilgrimage, and though greatly disappointed in not seeing him in 1843, she never for one moment ceased to watch for his coming. While apparently unconscious of every thing but extreme suffering, about three hours before her death, she was asked—"Ma, can you still lean upon that Arm which has been your support these many long years?" She answered firmly, "Yes! yes! yes!" "Can you still trust the same precious Savior who died and rose again, and will bring again from the dead all, every one?" "Precious Savior!" she repeated, with great animation, interrupting the speaker, and raising her emaciated arm three times, she each time repeated "every one!" while a sweet smile overspread her countenance, and appeared to rest upon it long after she had ceased to breathe.

Funeral services were held in the church of the Yahveh, conducted by her pastor, Eld. L. Osler, assisted by Rev. S. S. Parker, of the Friendship Street Baptist church.

CROSBY. Departed this life, in Rantoul, Ill., Dec. 28th, 1870, Sarah M., wife of Daniel H. Crosby, formerly of New Hampshire, and daughter of Jonathan Chase, of Columbia, N. H., aged thirty years.

Sister C. was brought up in the Advent faith, converted and baptized on her twelfth birth-day, lived a life of devotion to God, and was an active member of the church; unusually affectionate, kind and self-sacrificing to her husband, children, and others. She left three daughters, an infant of seven months.

During her last days she would often say, "I want to get well, and take care of my little family. I love my husband and children." Jesus' coming, and the hope of a resurrection from the grave to eternal life, was her consolation during the last conflict with the great enemy. She arranged for her family and funeral. A jewel is laid away in the dust of earth, prepared for the better resurrection. MARY L. TURNER.

Adv. Chris. Times, please copy.

CLEGG. Mary E., wife of Henry Clegg, of Philadelphia, fell on sleep, Tuesday, Jan. 10th, aged forty years and three months.

Sr. C. was converted to Christ at the age of sixteen. Although having been a member of the M. E. church from that period to the time of her decease, her mind was always open to receive religious truth. After her conversion she was immersed by a Baptist clergyman. When she heard the glad news of a coming Savior who should establish his kingdom upon earth, her heart welcomed the message. When the crowning truth, "Immortality through Christ alone," was sounded in her ears, she embraced it gladly. She was not a newspaper or prayer-meeting christian simply, but one who was of good report in her family, amongst her neighbors, and in the church. She died as she lived—"unto the Lord." Funeral services were held in the lecture-room of St. Paul's M. E. church, the pastor of the church, Elders Campbell, Stuart, and Ashman, taking part in the services. Discourse by the writer, from 1 Thess. 4: 14. F. H. BURBANK.

NORTON. Died, at Frankfort, Me., March 20th, 1870, Mrs. Sarah Norton, aged forty-nine years.

Sr. Norton leaves a husband and two daughters to mourn the loss of a christian wife and mother. She embraced Christ and was buried in baptism seven years ago, and held fast the profession of her faith unto the end. She was full of good works and deeds of kindness. Her labors among the sick and dying were very remarkable. Her last sickness was severe, but her patience and resignation showed the heart of a sincere christian. She received the Lord's Supper upon her bed, a few days before her death, in great joy. We laid her away, in sure and certain hope of meeting in the first resurrection. "The memory of the just is blessed."

Words of comfort were spoken on the occasion by the writer, who will never forget the kindness and piety of the dead. F. A. BAKER.

CURTIS. Died, in Bath, Me., Jan. 27th, 1871, Sr. Mary Curtis, aged sixty-six years.

Sr. C. found favor with God in early life, and in 1843 she heard the Lord was soon to come, and loving the sound embraced it. Although feeble in health, she always found a way to get to the house of God, and was always ready to testify to the goodness of God, and to warn sinners to flee from the wrath to come. She leaves an only daughter. Words of comfort were spoken by the writer, assisted by Eld. N. G. Reed. H. S. MITCHELL.

JAMESON. Died, in Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 31st, 1870, of diphtheria, George B., only son of Brother [illegible] and Mary Jameson, late of Montreal, aged one [illegible]

SMITH. Died, in Sharon, Mass., Nov. 16th, Jacob Smith, aged ninety-two years and twenty-six days.

My honored father embraced the blessed hope nearly threescore and ten years ago, and has lived in the enjoyment of it ever since. From a careful investigation of the Scriptures, he clearly saw that the wicked were not immortal; that the saints sleep in Jesus until the morning of the resurrection, then come forth to live forever on the new earth. His last words were—"I have always had a desire to live until the Lord comes, but His will be done."

He leaves seven children, a number of grandchildren, and a large circle of friends, to mourn his loss. "The righteous hath hope in his death." SARAH B. BLISS.

KNOX. Died, at Exeter, Me., Jan. 16th, 1871, Allen J. Knox, youngest son of Samuel and Naomi Knox, aged twelve years, five months, and four days.

He sleeps in Jesus, to awake when the last trump shall sound. Words of comfort were spoken by Elder E. V. B. Edgerly, from 1 Cor. 13: 11, being the first words the deceased learned from the Bible. C. E. MARSHALL.

BRADLEY. In Plainville, Ct., Jan. 31st, Ellen H., wife of Albert C. Bradley, aged thirty-one years, one month, and twenty-three days. C. L. AYER.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 31. The dykes at Smyrna have been destroyed by a torrent and a large part of the town inundated. Many persons were drowned.

LONDON, Feb. 1. A telegram from Constantinople states that the Turkish Government is making preparations with a view to the occupation of the Danubian principalities in the event of the proposed abdication of Prince Charles becoming a reality. Numerous detachments of troops have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to proceed to these territories on a moment's notice.

An official dispatch announces that Bourbaki's army, 80,000 strong, entered Switzerland to-day. The Federal authorities have summoned the Cantons to prepare to detain them.

A PROCLAMATION FROM GAMBETTA.

BORDEAUX, Feb. 1. Gambetta has issued a proclamation, saying: "Frenchmen, Prussia believes an armistice will dissolve our armies and secure the election of a chamber ready to conclude a shameful peace. It depends on France to upset these calculations. It is necessary to make the armistice a period for the instruction of our young troops. Continue with unrelaxed vigor organization for defence and for war if necessary, while you instal a National Republican Assembly, willing to make such peace only as is compatible with the honor, rank and integrity of France."

PESTH, Jan. 31. In the Austro-Hungarian delegation to-day, Beust advocated an increase of armaments, both military and naval. He distinctly repudiated the idea that the Government was actuated by any policy of revenge for the past, but said that the danger of warlike complications involving Austria was not a phantom peril. The policy of the Empire was peaceful and prudent, but contingencies were possible, and foreign powers must learn that Austria is ready for defence.

LONDON, Feb. 1. Many thousands of Bourbaki's army died from starvation in the Jura. There were 15,000 prisoners taken, including one hundred officers, two being generals. There were also captured ten cannon, seven mitrailleuses and two eagles. Only eight thousand escaped in the direction of Lyons, and Manteuffel is in pursuit of them.

A letter from Col. Ducan Kentry, assisting in the War Department of Bordeaux, states that there is immense reaction in official circles and among the populace against the Provisional Government, and ten millions of the people would vote for a restoration of the Empire to-morrow. France will refuse to continue the war. The Mobiles arriving at Bordeaux shout "Vive l'Empereur!"

VERSAILLES, Feb. 2. The terms of the armistice have been accepted by all the Departments of France except one branch, Edo Rhone. At Marseilles the election will be immediately proceeded with.

Favre has appealed to the Emperor of Germany to pity Paris confessing that he had overstated the amount of provisions by nine days. The Emperor sent in six millions of rations in compliance with a request, and 15,000 head of cattle. The dismounting of guns on the enciente is proceeding, and in the meantime the Prussian line is being constructed with dispatch, and will be held strongly until the enciente is dismounted. Considerable doubt is expressed whether the armistice and the election of the Constituent Assembly will be productive of ultimate peace.

All the departments except Bouches du Rhone have accepted the armistice. The elections will take place in the departments on the 8th inst. In London there is a general feeling of dismay and anger at the outrageous and unbearable terms proposed by the Germans. If enforced the war will soon be resumed.

FLORENCE, Feb. 1. The Chamber of Deputies has voted—282 to 29—to transfer the capital to Rome.

SAARBRUCK, Feb. 1. Another call on the Landwher for men between the ages of 27 and 47 was issued to-day from the new reserve, and 300,000 men will be ready to march into France at short notice.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 2. The peace negotiations have created great consternation in the camp of the Imperialists, who had hoped to treat directly with Bismarck, and return to France through the treaty of peace. Desperate efforts are now making to enter into negotiations with the Prussian Government.

The public manifestations here in favor of the temporal power of the Pope were magnificent. Immense numbers of pilgrims from all parts of Belgium traversed the streets singing litanies. Archbishop Molines, after the celebration and mass, delivered an impassioned sermon.

LONDON, Feb. 2. Dispatches from many parts of France concur in expressing the determination of the people to continue the war, unless the terms proposed by Germany are greatly ameliorated.

Late advices from Paris state that Gen. Trochu is suffering from mental depression, and that there are fears of the loss of his reason or his life.

The excitement over the elections increases, and the lines will be closely drawn. The prospect so far as can be ascertained is that the Assembly will be a peace-at-any-price body.

VERSAILLES, Feb. 2. M. Favre refuses to attend the Conference or appoint a substitute, nor will he authorize Tissot, the present French Charge d'Affairs at London, to act as a Representative of France.

The City Government of Paris will pay to Prussia, on Feb. 15th, one hundred million francs, the amount claimed by the latter for war expenses during the siege. In addition to the assessment of the city of Paris, the terms of peace include an indemnification from France to the amount of ten million dollars.

BERLIN, Feb. 2. The Provincial correspondence to-day states positively that the Emperor will remain in Versailles during the armistice, on account of the pending negotiations for peace.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 6. The Independence Belge to-day says that the essential points of the Black Sea question have been already arranged by the London Conference.

A Paris letter of Wednesday says that Leuienne, in an article published in the Debats, writes that the Republic is a failure, and that the Orleans family is the only hope of France.

Religious Intelligence.

— Of the five hundred young ladies attending the Notre Dame Young Ladies' School at South South Bend, Indiana, about four hundred are said to be from Protestant families.—The cause of peace, which is as old as the Christian religion, and which has existed in an organized form since 1815, is exciting new interest both in Europe and America. Meetings in favor of international peace are being held in various places, and the conviction is becoming strong that there are better methods of settling difficulties than by a resort to arms.—The question of abolishing the six months' probation for membership in the Methodist Episcopal Church is discussed in some of the papers of that denomination.—Father Hyacinthe recently expressed himself quite freely, in England, declaring that "truth is the property of no creed, but belongs in varying proportions to all Christian churches."—Since the month of November the Italian government has ceased to pay to the Jesuits of the Roman College the 1,000 scudi monthly which they have previously received.—The Rev. C. E. Cheney, of Chicago, is threatened with a reprimand by the Episcopal Church, because, while absent on a visit to California, he preached in a Presbyterian pulpit.—Twenty-four years ago American Methodism had not one representative in China. Now Chinese Methodism sends the first native missionary to America.—The New Testament and parts of the Old are now translated into the Dacotah language. These people [illegible] to quarterly meetings on Sunday. So they did in this country in the olden time.—Beecher compares a text to a gate opening into the Lord's garden; and says that many ministers, instead of unlatching the gate and leading their hearers in to pluck the fruit and flowers, content themselves by getting upon it and swing to and fro.—The Young Men's Christian Association of Washington have fixed upon June 17th next, for meeting in that city of the International Convention.—The Fulton street daily prayer-meeting will be held hereafter, in the second story of the building No. 103 Fulton street, running through to No. 58 Ann street, entrance on either street. In this very place these meetings commenced September 23, 1857, and here they have since been continued daily without interruption, except that they were held in the adjoining church during the time required to take down the old lecture-room, and build up this spacious beautiful and commodious chapel.—John Stuart Mill is to introduce into parliament, at its next session, a bill to disestablish the English church, and a belief is confidently entertained that a fight continued through two or three sessions will result in its success.—About three hundred clergymen, of various denominations, attended the funeral of the Rev. Albert Barnes, in Philadelphia, all sitting in a body in the church.—In the last ten months about 1,500 persons have joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, in various places, under the labors of Mrs. Van Cott.—Several Presbyterian clergymen of New York city wear gowns while officiating in their pulpits.—A Baptist lady at the North has given the sum of $13,000 for the establishment of a school at Columbia, South Carolina, for the education of colored preachers and teachers.—The new chapel erected for the daily Fulton prayer meeting was opened this week with appropriate services. It stands on the site of the old consistory building, where the meeting originated. The room will seat comfortably about three hundred persons—large enough for the meeting at ordinary times. The room is very high studded, lighted wholly from the top, and wears a tidy and comfortable aspect.—The New York Observer says it has been estimated that 50,000 souls have been converted as the direct and remote result of a single revival in a college, in the time of Dr. Dwight.

In Brief.

—— It is confidently believed in Court circles that the Empire will be restored, with the Empress as Regent.——Although in Paris the army are prisoners of war, they will remain inside the walls till the close of the armistice. One of the conditions of the capitulation is that no food will be supplied to Paris from the districts occupied by the German armies.——The German troops, according to a Berlin paper, now occupy, not partially but completely, thirty-two of the eighty-six French Departments, comprising 15,000 communes. They exercise in these all civil and military powers, control the posts, telegraphs and railways, and regularly collect the taxes.——The German papers mention, as an indirect result of the war, that there has been a marked increase of lunacy in France, all the asylums being crowded.——The strongest vegetable fibre known is the New Zealand flax. It has long, sword-like leaves, ten or twelve feet in length. It is used by the settlers for binding their sheaves, fastening their gates, tying up their horses, and in almost every possible way.——The drouth is still severe in many parts of the State, it being almost impossible to obtain water enough for household necessities.

The Times' correspondent attached to the headquarters of Prince Frederick Charles, speaking of the German troops, says: "I came here expecting to see an army looking overworked, and officers somewhat spoilt by too much success. I find troops of large stature, well fed, bright, and it may almost be said, rosy; the finest cavalry horses I have ever seen, and in such condition that they might all have been turned out of an English gentleman's hunting stud, and the tone of the staff officers, which sets the fashion for the rest of the army, is curiously, I had almost said studiously, modest. For instance, when I mentioned to-night the extraordinary efficiency of the train and the discipline of the drivers, the answer—a very true one—was, 'Yes, but hitherto the fortune of war has always enabled us to advance. The time of trial will come if we are obliged to retreat.' The men say that the French fought very well yesterday, but it has become almost an article of faith now that the French are to be beaten in every engagement."

☞ The Congregationalist has a letter from Bristol, N. H., which gives an account of a wonderful revival of religion in that place. The writer says: "It began on the first of January, when fourteen young ladies were received into the Congregational church. First, christians began to pray and labor; then the young became interested, then older people, till all classes were reached. The pastor writes: 'Every merchant, every doctor, the lawyer, the hotel keeper, every rumseller, every drunkard but two, every business man in the place but two, are rejoicing in Christ. Whole families again and again were seen coming to ask for prayers.' At present upwards of four hundred are indulging hope. Three-fourths of the inhabitants of Bristol of responsible age are seeking or have found Jesus. The work is still progressing. The inquiry now is, not who will come, but who has not come."

☞ AT THE MEETING lately held in Boston against the occupation of Rome, Mr. P. A. Collins stated that "the question was not whether twenty millions of Italians should have a capital, as much as it was whether two hundred millions of Catholics should have a common seat of authority." The N. Y. Times, commenting on the meeting, says: "We were under the impression that the Italians numbered very nearly, if not over, twenty-five millions, and that in the Catholic countries of Europe some three-fourths of the population were only indifferently attached, if not unflinchingly opposed to Popery, as defined by these political aspirants who have lately been stumping the Catholic churches throughout this region for votes. What most concerns us, however, is the spirit which pervades all the speeches delivered in denouncing the dethronement of Pius IX. Is it not evident that if people of his stamp were now in the majority they would not scruple to involve this country in a war against Italy for the restoration of Popery in its worst form?"

☞ To Preaching Brethren.

Those wishing to preach	Correspond with
in Westfield, Mass	C. H. Phelps.
Lawrence, Mass	Geo. Churchill, John T. Merrill, Ephraim Fisk.
Worcester, Mass	H. F. Colhor, H. W. Buxton, or E. G. Higgins.
Savoy, Mass	Daniel Miller, or A. E. Bliss.
Wakefield, Mass	G. R. Tysser.
Charlton, Mass	E. H. Allen, Oxford, Mass.
Worcester, Mass	H. M. Blackmer, Willard M. Hall, or Willard G. Ruggles.
Portsmouth, N. H	T. B. Wood, Box 1445.
Hampton, N. H	Joseph A. Philbrook.
Manchester, N. H	J. W. C. Pickering.
Dover, N. H	John Vickery.
London Ridge, N. H	Daniel L. Moore, Wm. Batchelder, Edward Mudget.
Seabrook, N. H	R. S. Johnson, of Hampton, N. H., or Chs. Barton, of Seabrook.
Chichester, N. H	F. L. Knowles.
Goshen, N. H	O. F. Cain.
Rye, N. H	Moses O. Philbrick or Samuel Smart.
Pittsfield, N. H. (Bethel)	O. S. Emerson.
Stowe, Vt	H. W. Sargent, or S. Whitney.
Portland, Me	R. R. York, S. K. Dyer, D. F. Scamman.
Lewiston, Me	Albert Burgess.
South Berwick (Great Works) Me	Harrison Dow.
Kennebunk Depot, Me	Rufus Duran.
Hollis Centre, Me	W. S. Moulton, or S. G. Rumery.
Vernon, Vt	J. C. Allen.
Bristol, Ct	B. Hitchcock, Forestville, Ct.
West Gloucester, R. I	Geo. A. Haskins, Putnam, Ct.
New Milford, Ct	Richard Heacox.
New Haven, Ct	W. F. Carpenter, 73 State St.
Pleasant Valley, Ct	Reuel O. White, New Hartford, Ct.
Meriden, Ct	E. J. Whitehead, West Meriden, Conn., Box 4.
West Meriden, Ct	S. D. Bingham.
New Britain, Ct	Chs. M. Burt.
Wrightville, Ct	D. A. Grant, Torrington, Ct.
Newfield, Ct	Wm. Ripley, Pleasant Valley, Ct.
New Milford, Ct	J. Coggswell.
Morris, Ct	Joseph Curtis.
South Butler, N. Y	R. C. Brown.
Rochester, N. Y	J. R. Cooper, 4 Hickory St.
Hoosick, N. Y	Geo. B. Keach. J. B. White, or Christopher Lawton, Hoosick Falls, N. Y.
Philadelphia, Pa	Frank E. Davis, 1718 Markham St., or I. N. Wilfong, 125 No. 22nd St.

☞ MINISTERS visiting Shrewsbury to preach, can have a home with LIZZIE C. HODSKINS.

MEETINGS IN PORTLAND, ME. (Union Hall.)

Having vacated Cushman Hall, on Congress Street, meetings hereafter will be held in Union Hall. Entrance on Free Street, nearly opposite the Baptist church. Seats free.
S. K. DYER.
D. F. SCAMMAN.
R. R. YORK.

ROCHESTER, N. H.

There will be preaching in the chapel, near the brick school-house, in Rochester, N. H., on the first Lord's day in each month. Others can appoint so as [illegible]

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.

T. M. Preble..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
Hiram Munger..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Geo. W. Brown (of So. Elliot, Me.) Sunday, Feb. 26th

BOSTON, (Branch Chapel), 1725 Washington Street, corner of Madison Street.

Meetings at 10½ A. M., and 3 and 7½ P. M.

John G. Hook..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Nathan Whiting..........Wednesday evening, Feb. 15th
Mrs. Jane Benson..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

Meetings every evening. Prayer and Temperance meeting Saturday evening. Seats free.

CAMBRIDGEPORT (Washington Hall, Main Street.)

A. P. Moore..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

CHELSEA, MASS.

Granite Block, Hall No. 11, corner of Broadway and Fourth Streets. Entrance on Fourth Street. (Up two flight of stairs.)

A. Ross..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. Couch..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
M. Batchelor..........Sunday, March 5th

CHARLESTOWN.

Preaching at Charlestown, (Evening Star Hall, No. 32 Main Street), every Lord's day.

H. M. Bryant..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
T. M. Preble..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
W. S. Campbell..........Sunday, March 5th
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, March 12th

EAST BOSTON, MASS.

(Second Advent Hall, 154 Meridian Street.)

Meetings every Sunday, at the usual hours, also prayer and conference meetings Wednesday and Friday evenings, at 7½ o'clock P. M.

B. Woodside..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
W. C. Thurman..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

Meetings in South Boston on Wednesday evenings, No. 2 Lowland Street.

Friday evenings, No. 227 E. St. Bay-View horse cars pass by. Come and welcome.
C. W. HUNTRESS.
J. N. BERRY.

Rye, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
C. GOODRICH.

Stowe, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Seabrook, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
A. P. MOORE.

Keene, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Salem, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. COUCH.

Boston, Mass. (Mercantile Hall, 32 Summer Street, near Washington Street), Sunday, Feb. 12th, and onward.
H. L. HASTINGS.

Wakefield, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. S. WHITE.

Bridgewater, Vt..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
West Fairlee, Vt..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 20th
H. F. CARPENTER.

Exeter, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
D. N. CHADSEY.

Hartford, Ct. (Talcott & Post's Hall) Sun., Feb. 19th
WM. N. PILE.

Albany, N. H. (Bell school-house)..Sabbath, Feb. 12th
Bartlett, N. H..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
G. H. WALLACE.

Brookfield, N. H. (Town House)...Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. HICKFORD.

Seabrook, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
B. FINNEY.

Scitico, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
A. M. HIGGINS.

Scitico, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
H. MUNGER.

Haverhill, Mass..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
N. C. TWOMBLY.

Great Falls, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
JOSEPH W. WHITE.

East Acworth, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
WM. W. SUTHERLAND.

Philadelphia, Pa...Sundays, Feb. 12th, 19th, and 26th
Saratoga Springs, N. Y..........Sunday, March 12th
A. A. PHELPS.

Middletown, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
New York City (Cooper Institute) Sunday, Feb. 19th
Providence, R. I...Sundays, Feb. 26th and March 5th
WM. STUART.

Northfield, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
Hartford, Ct. (Talcott & Post's Hall) Sun., March 5th
Meriden, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th
GEO. W. BROWN.

Bangor, Me..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
South Atkinson, Me..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
THOMAS SMITH.

Wheelock, Vt..........Wednesday evening, Feb. 15th
West Groton, Vt..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
East Canaan, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
MARY E. OTIS.

Chicopee Falls, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
H. DAVIS.

Kennebunkport, Me. (Town House)...Sun., Feb. 12th
Great Falls..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Rochester Plains (Town House)..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
EDWIN B. WELLS.

Fisherville, N. H..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
Great Falls, N. H..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
South Berwick, Me. (Great Works)...Sab., March 5th
S. S. MOONEY.

Francestown, N. H., (as L. B. Cummings may appoint) Thursday evening, Feb. 16th, and over Sunday.
JOHN H. DADMUN.

Starks, Me..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
E. M. HAGGETT.

West Romney, N. H. (Plain school-house) evening, Feb. 15th.
Orford, N. H. (Indian Pond) evenings, Feb. 16th, 17th, and 18th.
Piermont, N. H. (Clay meeting-house) Sab., Feb. 19th and a few evenings.
Haverhill, N. H. (Brick Church)...Sabbath, Feb. 26th
West Rumney, N. H. (Plain school-house) evening, Feb. 28th.
Campton, N. H. (Bumpschool-house) Sab., March 5th
Belmont, N. H. (where Bro. Kidder may appoint) evening, March 9th.
London Ridge, N. H. (at Bro. Batchelder's) evening, March 10th.
Gilmanton, N. H. (school-house at Merrill's Corner) evening, March 11th.
Sabbath, March 12th, where Bro. Manes may appoint.
C. W. NELSON.

Southington, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
G. L. WHITE.

Dover, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Melvin Village, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Manchester, N. H. (where Bro. Samuel Morse may appoint) Sunday, Feb. 26th.
Lynn, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
WM. HODGE.

Yalesville, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
S. W. TREAT.

Greenwood City (Union meeting-house) Sab., Feb. 12th
JESSE GAY.

East Canaan, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Holderness, N. H. (Carr school-house) eve., Feb. 14th and onward as may be duty.
WM. H. SHAW.

Vernon, Vt..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Chicopee Falls, Mass..........evenings, Feb. 16th and 17th
A. SIMPSON.

Bath, Me..........Sundays, March 5th and 19th
C. H. LEVERTON.

Holden, Mass..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
DAMON NICHOLS.

Rutland, Vt..........Sundays, Feb. 12th, 19th and 26th
L. BOUTELL.

West Stafford, Ct..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
Keene, N. H..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
L. B. POTTER.

West Plymouth, N. H. (Brick school-house, near Bro. Nelson's), Sunday, Feb. 12th.
A. H. CLARK.

Goffstown, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
GEO. W. BROWN, So. Elliot.

Fitchburg, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Nashua, N. H..........Tuesday evening, Feb. 14th
Sutton Mills, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Lynn, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
J. SARGENT.

Colebrook, N. H., Feb. 22d, and as long as the Lord will. The meetings will be held in the Methodist or Town Hall.
D M LEAVITT.
J. SHOREY.

North Dorchester, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. B. BROWN.

Bradford, N. H. (Bush meeting-house) Sabbaths, Feb. 12th and 19th.
Boscawen, N. H. (Gulf school-house)...eve., Feb. 7th and Sabbath, Feb. 26th.
SIMEON HOYT.

Lynn, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Philadelphia, Pa..........Sundays, March 12th and 19th
M. BATCHELOR.

Manchester, N. H..........evening, Feb. 15th
Goffstown, N. H..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
E. S. MOULTON.

Lewiston, Me..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Mechanic Falls, Me..........evenings, Feb. 15th and 16th
Bath, Me..........Sabbaths, Feb. 19th and 26th
Vienna, Me., or vicinity (as Bro. H. B. Sevey may arrange) Sabbaths, March 5th and 12th.
C. H. SWEET.

Bow, N. H. (Brown's Mills school-house) Sunday, Feb. 12th. Will Bro. Martin meet me there?
Canterbury (No. 1 school-house) evening, March 4th, and over Sunday, the 5th.
East Concord, N. H. [illegible]

North Canton..........evenings, Feb. 9th and 10th
Bro. G. L. White is to be with me during the week.
Hartland (Town Hall or school-house) Sun., Feb. 12th
S. WOODRUFF.

Allegheny City, Pa., the last and first Sundays in each month until April 1st.
Rouseville, Pa., the third Sunday in Jan., Feb., and March.
Bucklins Corners, Chaut. Co., N. Y., commence meetings evening, Feb. 9th, and over Sunday. On Sunday at two o'clock P. M., and in the evening. Bro. Burdick will be with me.
JOHN T. COOLEY.

Warren Summit, N. H..........evening, Feb. 9th
North Haverhill..........evening, Feb. 10th
DANIEL H. PAGE.

West Groton, Vt. (Ricker school-house) evening, Feb. 11th, over Sunday, the 12th, and on as the Lord directs.
East Landaff, N. H. (Bungay school-house) evening, Feb. 18th, and over Sunday.
GEO. E. BROWN, D. D. PAGE.

Carthage, Me..........Tuesday evening, Feb. 7th and Sunday, the 12th.
Byron, Me..........evenings, Feb. 9th and 10th
J. ALBERT LIBBY.

Seabrook, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Rye, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
WM. C. STEWART.

Wilmot Settlement (as brethren may arrange) Feb. 9th, and over the 12th.
Hawleyton, (as Bro. H. Bull may arrange) Feb. 14th, 15th and 16th.
Cohocton, N. Y. (as Deacon T. C. Armstrong may appoint), Feb. 18th and 19th.
Honeoye Flats, N. Y..........Feb. 26th
At Conference, March 2d, and over the 5th.
All evening appointments to commence at 7 P. M.
C. F. SWEET.

Waterbury, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
WM. J. RIPLEY.

Low Hampton, N. Y...11 A. M. and 6½ P. M., Feb. 19th
Pitts Town, N. Y....at 6½ P. M., March 1st, 2d, and 3d
Hoosick, N. Y..........Sunday, March 5th
C. PIKE.

Rawsonville, Vt..........Sundays, Feb. 12th and 19th
Z. T. WOOD.

Providence, R. I..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
T. M. PREBLE.

Collinsville, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
G. L. WHITE.

Hoosick, N. Y., Feb. 11th and 12th. Will some one meet me at the Falls on the arrival of the first P. M. train from Adams?
North Dana, Mass..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
Wakefield, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
GEO. A. STREETER.

Dorchester, N. H. (Town House) evening, Feb. 14th
West Canaan, (at the new school-house) eve., Feb. 16th, and onward as the Lord may direct.
D. EASTMAN.
J. H. EVANS.

South Butler, N. Y., evening, Feb. 9th, and onward in Wayne Co. (as Bro. Wm. E. Brown may arrange) until Feb. 23d.
Will Bro. Brown meet me at Savannah Depot, Wednesday, P. M., Feb. 8th?
Brethren in western New York wishing my services before returning home, will write me at South Butler, N. Y.
C. H. WILLIAMS.

Stoneham, Me..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
On account of sickness, was unable to fill my appointment of the 29th.
I. T. JORDAN.

Farmington (Chapel) the last Sunday in each month
Others can make their appointments accordingly.
H. M. BRYANT.

W. H. Point, Ct., on prophecy......Sunday, Feb. 12th and two following evenings.
Springfield, Mass......Wednesday evening, Feb. 15th
Collinsville, Ct., Thursday evening, Feb. 16th, and onward for one week, including Sun., Feb. 19th.
New York (as Bro. Cox shall arrange) on Revelations of John, Sunday, Feb. 26th.
West Haven, Ct., four evenings, commencing Tuesday, Feb. 28th.
Bridgeport, Ct..........Sunday, March 5th
Ansonia, Ct., three evenings, commencing Monday, March 6th.
Lanesville, Ct., Thursday and Friday evenings, March 9th and 10th.
New Milford, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th and through the week.
Roxbury, Ct., (as the brethren arrange) one week, commencing Sunday, March 19th, to accommodate those coming from Woodbury and Washington.
Lakeville, Ct., one week, commencing Sun., March 26th. Hope to find all ready to work for salvation.
H. K. FLAGG.

Deerfield, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
ORRILL W. KIMBALL.

Warner, N. H. (Waterloo school-house) eve., Feb. 17th
South Barnstead, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
A. S. WILLIAMS.

Collinsville, Ct..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
A. ELLIOT.

South Windsor, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
O. D. WOODRUFF.

Guilford, Conn..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
Waterbury, Ct..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
G. L. TEEPLE.

Ashburnham Depot, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
H. M. BRYANT.

Carlton, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Will some one meet me at the Oxford Depot, forenoon train from Worcester, Friday, Feb. 17th?
North Scituate, R. I. (with Bro. Kellaway) Sunday, Feb. 26th.
E. COTTON.

Putnam, Ct..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
Webster, Mass..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
Woodstock Valley, Ct..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
P. S. BUTLER.

Great Falls, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Dover, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
S. C. HANCOCK.

Porter Village, Me..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
MARK STEVENS.

Hebron, Me. (Sodom school-house) Sunday, Feb. 12th
Lewiston, Me..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
JARED WHITMAN.

Salisbury, N. H..........evening, Feb. 8th and over the following Sabbath.
S. S. MOONEY.

☞ Meetings will be held by the church of God worshiping at Lisbon Village, N. H. (Town Hall), three times every Sabbath. Preaching for the present by ALLEN DAMON.

There will be a meeting at Warren, Mass., every Sunday hereafter until further notice.
RUFUS BAKER.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Geo. W. Brown..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Wm. N. Pile......Sundays, Feb. 26th and March 5th
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, March 9th

WORCESTER, MASS.

R. K. Stark..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
A. Simpson..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. S. White..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, March 5th
J. Couch..........Sunday, March 12th

LOWELL, MASS.

W. H. Mitchell..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
J. Couch..........Sunday, March 5th
C. Cunningham..........Sunday, March 12th
W. H. Mitchell..........Sundays, March 19th and 26th

LAWRENCE, MASS.

H. Pratt..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
O. Goodrich..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
M. Batchelor..........Sunday, Feb. 26th

CONCORD, N. H. (Centre Street.)

John G. Hook..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

CONCORD, N. H., (at the Bethel.)

E. S. Moulton..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
T. W. Piper..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Wm. Stuart..........Sundays, March 12th and 19th

LOUDON RIDGE, N. H.

Joseph Harvey..........Sunday, Feb. 26th

MANCHESTER, N. H.

W. H. Mitchell..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
M. Batchelor..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Wm. Stuart..........Sundays, March 26th and April 2d

WINSTED, CT.

H. H. Dickinson..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Mrs. M. L. Durand..........Sunday, Feb. 26th

NEW BRITAIN, CT.

M. L. Durand..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
A. M. Higgins..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

BRISTOL, CT.

A. M. Higgins..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
Seth Woodruff..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

WATERBURY, CT.

Wm. J. Ripley..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
A. Elliot..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
G. L. Teeple..........Sunday, Feb. 26th

NEW HAVEN, CT.

Anna E. Smith..........Sunday, Feb. 12th evenings through the week, and over Sun., the 19th
B. Hitchcock..........Sunday, Feb. 26th

PUTNAM, CT.

P. S. Butler..........Sabbath, Feb. 12th
Mrs. L. M. Stoddard..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th

SOUTHINGTON, CT.

B. Hitchcock..........Sunday, Feb. 12th

SOUTH ELLIOT, ME.

W. M. Harmon..........Sunday, Feb. 12th

PORTLAND, ME.

Sec. Adv. Hall, Cushman's Block, 353 Congress St.
B. S. Emery..........Sundays, Feb. 12th and 26th

BIDDEFORD, ME.

B. S. Emery..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. W. White..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
C. H. Leverton..........Sunday, March 5th
C. H. Sweet..........Sundays, April 2d and 9th

PORTLAND, ME. (Union Hall.)

Sr. K. Taylor..........Sunday, Feb. 12th
A. Ross..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
G. W. Kimball..........[illegible]

Portsmouth, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
Goffstown, N. H..........Sunday, March 5th
A. SIMPSON.

Vernon, Vt..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
Springfield, Mass..........evenings, Feb. 28th and March 1st
Worcester, Mass..........evenings, March 2d and 3d
Lowell, Mass..........evenings, March 7th and 8th
Lawrence, Mass..........evenings, March 9th and 10th
Manchester, N. H..........Sunday, March 12th
Concord, N. H. (Centre Street Church) evenings, March 14th and 15th.
Portsmouth, N. H.....evenings, March 16th and 17th
Dover, N. H..........Sunday, March 19th
Savoy, Mass. (New Chapel)......Sunday, March 26th
If any of these appointments conflict with others, please notify me at Savoy, Mass.
Z. D. BAIRD.

Campton Village, N. H..........evening, Feb. 7th
West Plymouth, N. H. (where Brn. Nelson may appoint) evening, Feb. 18th, and over Sunday.
Warren Village, N. H..........evening, Feb. 21st
Warren Summit, N. H..........evening, Feb. 22d
North Haverhill, N. H. (Brick Church) eve., Feb. 23d
Haverhill Center, N. H..........evening, Feb. 24th
North Benton, N. H......Feb. 25th, and over Sunday
Swift Water, N. H..........evening, Feb. 27th
West Groton, Vt. (Ricker school-house) eve., March 1st, and onward as the Lord may direct.
JOHN H. EVANS.

Rochester, N. H. (Gonic Chapel) Sabbath, Feb. 26th
S. VARNEY.

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

☞ We cannot discontinue or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in PLAIN LETTERS.

☞ P. A. SMITH—Subscriber received. Have sent Crisis.
☞ P. W. HOUGH—Yes. Send the $2 00.
☞ C. GOUD—Received and credited.
☞ N. H. REED—The Order on Hall & Co. was paid.
☞ A. B. DOTY—Your paper is paid to April 19th.
☞ ALLEN DAMON'S address is Lisbon, N. H.
☞ WM. H. SHAW'S address is Piermont, N. H.
☞ E. OWEN'S address is Portsmouth, N. H.
☞ P. S. W. DEYO'S address is Charles City, Floyd Co., Iowa.

Letters Received.

G Jameson, W A Fenn, T Marrow, I Davis, T E Lang, Jr., J H Bullard, E T Durand, O D Snow, R Hatch, C S Hall, J L Knapp, P W Hough, J F Sykes, D D Lathrop, F Schollinger, J W Taylor, A Damon, C. A. G., F A Baker, C E Marshall, M R Steele, H S Mitchell, H H Arnold, L C McKinstry, D F Newton, M L Turner, S B Bliss, F H Burbank, C S Hall, L H Rowe, C C Ramsay, W Hobbs, G L Teeple, L B Weaver, A M Willis, P S W Deyo, E. J. G., P A Creasy, J D Jones.

Cash Receipts for Books and Tracts.

J. Couch (for N. H. Conf.) $25.00, J V Himes $20 00, S R Lawrence 25c, N L Barber 35c, H Davis $2.00, H D Reed $3 00, D R Moore $1.00, H E Snow 25c, W I Mann $2.50, C W Terry $1.50, B Perham 27c, C S Hall $2.00, A J Mayhew $4.30, A Thatcher $3 50, H Burlingame $1.63, J Ward 75c, E L Burnan 35c, J H Paine $3.70, E Barrows 50c, J H Brown 50c, J E Lynch 50c, J H Nickerson $1.10, L Rawson 25c, Mrs. E S Hocker $2.50, J. F. Sykes 25c, J. M. Treadwell $1.50, L B Cummings $1.10, J Barnes 50c, Thomas Smith $11.00, W F Fahnestock 30c, M H Brown 25c, A Veeder $10.00, N. H. McMurphy 85c, F D Fifield 35c, A Damon $9.00, S J Bushnell 50c, S J Bushnell 75c, J A Frederick $1.00, O B Town 25c, S D Edes $1 50, A Kelsey $2 00, M Libby $5 00, W E Brown $5 00, R Osman $1 50, J Earl $6 90, N H Reed $4 00, E M Davis $2.00, G E Talbot 35c, T Fitzsimons $5 50, W H Ford $1.50, J Tharp $1.25, A J Hunt 30c, J M Judson $2.30, E H Mann 50c, E Urch $5 25, W H Simmons 25c, C B Colton $1.00, P J Smith 30c, J H Bullard $1.00, M B Nutter 50c, N W Hammond 50c, J Bickford $9.00.

Notices.

New York Adv. Chris. Conference.

The Lord willing, this conference will hold its next and last quarterly session, for the conference year, with the church in Brockport, N. Y., commencing Thursday evening, March 2nd, and continuing over Sunday. Brockport—seventeen miles west of Rochester, on the N. Y. C. R. R.—is easy of access, and it is hoped a large delegation will be out. Let all churches interested attend immediately to the quarterly collection and the appointment of delegates, that all may be properly represented, the business done decently and in order, a good meeting be enjoyed, and the blessed cause of our dear Master be advanced. Some who attended the last conference said they hoped never to miss another. Let all the delegates secure certificates, pray earnestly for the success of the meeting, and come in the spirit of Jesus.
B. P. STEVENS, Pres.
WM. E. BROWN, Sec'y.

Times, please copy.

Dedication and Conference.

The Brick Chapel in Vienna (Sevey's Corner), Me., will be dedicated Feb. 16th, at one o'clock P. M., meetings to continue over Sunday. Brethren and sisters are invited to come and unite in laboring for the advancement of the cause of Jesus. Preaching Brn. will make arrangements to attend this meeting. Provision will be made for all. Brn. will call on H. B. Sevey, H. C. Clifford, S. W. Carr. For the Brn., H. B. SEVEY.

Conference.

The second quarterly session of the N. H. Conference will be held, the Lord will, with the church at Hampton, N. H., commencing Thursday evening, Feb. 9th, to hold over the Sabbath. It is hoped that all who can, especially our preaching brethren, will come up to the feast, to labor for the Lord, and the salvation of the perishing. Let prayer be offered, that God may greatly bless.

T. W. PIPER,
A. W. SIBLEY, } Committee.
C. H. FLETCHER.

Notice.

We will commence a series of meetings at So. Troy, Vt., Thursday, Feb. 9th, to hold evenings through the week, over the following Sabbath, and as much longer as the interest may demand. Come, brethren, to this meeting. Troy needs help. May God bless the effort.
J. A. CLEAVELAND.

Notice.

The second quarterly meeting of the Woman's Christian Association will be held in Goffstown, N. H., commencing Wednesday evening, March 8th, 1871. A full attendance is desired and expected.
E. S. JENNINGS, President.
R. E. CHILDS, Secretary.

Notice.

Providence permitting, I shall hold a discussion at West Hoosick, N. Y., Wednesday evening, March 1st (and onward as duty may require,) with Eld. Parker, of Buskirk's Bridge, N. Y., (a Unitarian) upon the following question: "Resolved, that man is wholly mortal, body, mind, and soul." I affirm. He denies. Brethren, pray for us.
JACOB WILBUR.

Ordination.

By request of the Floyd church, and vote of the special conference held at New Hartford, Iowa, Dec. 29th, Bro. Alonzo Raymond was set apart for the work of the gospel ministry, Jan. 1st, by prayer, and the laying on of hands in the following order: Pledge, prayer, and laying on of hands, charge, and the right hand of fellowship, by Elds. C. C. RAMSAY, and PETER S. W. DEYO.

Notice.

Elder George A. Brown has accepted an invitation from the Advent church in this city to become their pastor. JAMES G. HARDING, Clerk of the Church in New Bedford.

Notice.

A portion of the Second Advent church and Society in Lewiston, Me., have removed from their former place of worship, to No. 5½ Central Block, Main St. Meetings are continued in the Hall on Bates St. as usual. L. H. ROWE.

Notice.

A protracted meeting will be held at Epsom Mountain school-house, N. H., commencing Saturday evening, Feb. 18th, and continue over the Sabbath, and onward as the Lord may direct. Elds. John Parsons, and Charles R. Parsons, will be present to preach the word. All are cordially invited to attend. Come praying that the Lord may bless. For the Brn., C. R. PARSONS.

Notice.

Brn. of N. Y. State:—My health will not permit me to canvass the territory assigned me (as one of the committee on circuit preaching), in time to report at our next quarterly conference. Brn. who have written me on this matter will regard the enterprise deferred for the present.
WM. A. FENN.

Conference.

There will be a conference in Hartford, Me. (Stetson school-house), commencing Friday evening, Feb. 17th, and continue over the following Sabbath. In behalf of the church,
E. M. HAGGETT.

Notice.

Will not some one of our preaching brethren come here and preach? Will not some one answer this notice? We have had no meetings here [illegible]

A FRIEND THAT'S EVER NEAR.

Though the days are dark with trouble,
And thy heart is filled with fear,
There is One who sees thee ever,
And will hold thee near and dear.
Cheerful hearts and smiling faces
Which make thee happy here,
Thy [illegible] to happy,
But sometimes the clouds appear.
Cho.—There's a friend that's ever near, never fear,
He is ever near, never, never fear.

All thy prospects will seem brighter,
When the shadow leaves the heart,
And the steps of time beat lighter,
When the glowing clouds depart;
Many days have dawned serenely,
While the birds sang with delight,
But the skies were dark and gloomy
Ere the sun had reached its height.

Soon will dawn a brighter morning,
On a blessed, tranquil shore;
Sighs will then give place to singing,
Tears to bliss, forevermore.
Thou shalt see a world of glory,
And eternal joy and bliss;
Let not, then, thy soul be moaning
O'er the woes and cares of this.

—Selected by G. S. L.

For the World's Crisis.

FRANCE, THE PROTECTORATE OF THE MAN OF SIN.

The past history of our world is marked with events that have to the eye of faith been noted as the fulfillment of the predictions of holy seers and prophets. The sudden overturning and destruction of the Napoleonic dynasty, and what has followed, and is now transpiring, has astonished the human race. France has been guilty of cruelties upon the helpless Protestants in past ages, for which, as a nation, it has not manifested the least concern. Roman Catholicism has been her national religion. For her national crimes she is now doubtless suffering national judgments from the Almighty.

An eminent English writer, in a work written in 1795, has said:—

"There is no nation existing which, first and last, has produced such a number of faithful witnesses against papal corruptions and tyrannies as France. No people have so long a list of martyrs and confessors to show, as the Protestants of that country; and there is no royal family in Europe which has shed in the support of popery half the blood which the Capets have shed. Who deluged the earth with the blood of the Waldenses and Albigenses, that inhabited the southern parts of France, and bore testimony against the corruptions and usurpations of Rome? The cruel kings of France slew above a million of them. Who set on foot and headed the executioners of the massacre of Bartholomew, which lasted seven days, and in which, some say, near fifty thousand Protestants were murdered in Paris, and twenty-five thousand more in the provinces? The royal monsters of France. A massacre this, in which neither age nor sex, nor even woman with child were spared; for the butchers had received orders to slaughter all, even babes at the breast, if they belonged to Protestants. The king himself stood at the windows of his palace, endeavoring to shoot those who fled, and crying to their pursuers, "Kill 'em! Kill 'em!" For this massacre public rejoicings were made at Rome, and in other Catholic countries."

In Paris five thousand helpless victims perished. "The parliament publicly eulogized the king's wisdom." The king sent a special messenger to the pope to announce to him the joyful intelligence of the extirpation of the Protestants, and to tell him that "the Seine flowed on more majestically after receiving the dead bodies of heretics." Nothing could exceed the joy with which the news was received at Rome. The pope and cardinals went in procession to the church of St. Louis, to return solemn thanks to God (horrible impiety!) for the extirpation of the heretics. Te Deum was sung, and the firing of cannon announced the welcome news to the neighborhood around. The pope's legate in France felicitated his most christian majesty in the pontiff's name, and praised the exploit, so long meditated and so happily executed, for the good of religion."—Dr. Dowling's Hist. of Romanism.

The following interesting article is taken from Harper's Magazine.

THE ST. BARTHOLOMEW MASSACRE.

The clock of the church of German l' Auxerrois sounded over silent Paris. Its ominous peal awoke an awful clamor, such as the earth had never witnessed before. A clang of bells responded from every tower and belfry, the adherents of the Pope seized their arms, rushed to the houses of the Huguenots, and murdered every inmate, from the sleeping infant to the gray-haired grandsire and the helpless maid. The city had been suddenly illuminated, and from every Catholic house the blaze of torches lighted up the labor of death. Beneath their wave were seen women unsexed, and children endowed with an unnatural malice, torturing and trailing with strange malignity the dying and the dead. It is impossible, indeed, to narrate the details of this awful event, over which Catholic kings and priests rejoiced, and for which the infallible pope at Rome gave public thanks to God.

Within the palace of the Louvre itself, where a few days before every saloon had rung with festivity, and where mask and dance and throngs of gallant knights and maidens had greeted the nuptials of Henry and Marguerite, now echoed the groans of the dying Huguenots, and the shrieks of the terrified queen. In the evening Marguerite had been driven by her enraged mother from her presence and from the arms of her sister Claude, who would have detained her, and was forced to go trembling to the apartment of her husband, lest her absence might excite suspicion. She lay awake all night, filled with a sense of impending danger; she pretends that she knew nothing of the approaching event. Henry's rooms were filled with his companions in arms, who passed the night in uttering vain threats against the Guises, and planning projects of revenge. Towards morning they all went out in company with the king; and Marguerite, weary with watching, sank into a brief slumber. She was aroused by a loud cry without of "Navarre! Navarre!" and a knocking at the door. It was thrown open, a man wounded and bleeding, pursued by four soldiers, rushed into the room, and threw his arms around the queen. He clung to her, begged for life. She screamed in her terror; the captain of the guard came in and drove off the soldiers, and the wounded Huguenot was allowed to hide himself in her closet. Marguerite fled hastily across the halls of the Louvre to her sister's room, and, as she passed amidst the scene that had so lately rung with the masks and revels of her wedding night, she saw another Huguenot pierced by the spear of his pursuer, and heard the clamor of his general massacre. Faint and trembling, she went to her mother and the king, threw herself at their feet, and begged the lives of two of her husband's retainers.

Meantime, when Henry of Navarre had left his room in the morning, he had been arrested and carried to the king's chamber; but of the throng of Huguenots who had attended him in the night only a few escaped. Each man as he passed out in the court, between two lines of Swiss guards, was stabbed without mercy. Two hundred of the noblest and purest reformers of France lay piled in a huge heap before the windows of the Louvre; Charles IX., Catherine, and her infamous train of maids of honor, inspected and derided them as they lay dead. All through that fearful Sabbath day, the feast of St. Bartholomew, and for two succeeding days, the murders went on; the whole city was in arms; every hat or cap was marked with a white cross, and every Catholic was converted into an assassin. Charles, a raging lunatic, rode through the streets laughing and jesting over the fallen; the streets were filled with corpses; the Seine was turned to blood; many Catholics grew rich by the plunder of the Huguenots; and it was believed that the king and his brother, Anjou, shared the spoils of opulent merchants and skilful goldsmiths. The Papal nuncio, Salviati, overjoyed at the spectacle, wrote to the Pope that nothing was to be seen in the streets but white crosses, producing a fine effect; he did not see the heaps of dead, nor the scenes of inexplicable crime. Charles IX. shot at the flying Huguenots from his bedroom window. The rage of the murderers was chiefly turned against women and infants. One man threw two little children into the Seine from a basket; another infant was dragged through the streets by a cord tied around its neck, by a throng of Catholic children; a babe smiled in the face of the man who had seized it, and played with its beard, but the monster stabbed the child, and, with an oath, threw it into the Seine.

For three days the massacre continued with excessive atrocities; a month later Huguenots were still being murdered in Paris. It is computed that several thousand persons perished in that city alone. In every part of the kingdom by order of the king, an effort was made to exterminate the Huguenots; and Lyons, Orleans, Bordeaux, and all the provincial towns ran with blood. Four thousand reformers are said to have been killed in Lyons. At Bordeaux, Auger, the most eloquent of the Jesuit preachers, employed all his powers in urging on the work of slaughter. "Who," he cried "executed the divine judgments at Paris? The angel of the Lord. And who will execute them in Bordeaux? The angel of the Lord, however man may try to resist him!" The number of the slain throughout France has been variously estimated at from ten to one hundred thousand. History has no parallel to offer to this religious massacre, even in its most barbarous periods.

Louis Napoleon, one short year since, was the ostensible protector of the "man of sin," and now we behold them both at this hour the imbecile relics of a barbarous age. Rome, the papal paradise, wrested from the mitred blasphemers, and France reeking with blood, and large portions of her cities, towns and villages smouldering in ruins, and her perjured emperor in captivity.

This is a day of wonders. Truly we are on the eve of the predicted consummation that holy men have foretold. Prepare, keep in readiness, watch, pray, and expect the redemption of the church to be consummated at an early day. Chronology and prophecy are rapidly becoming exhausted.

S. S. BREWER.

For the World's Crisis.

"NATHANIEL: THE ISRAELITE INDEED."

Some readers of the Crisis, I think, will recognize under this name an old friend, who visits them once a month, and being "a scribe well instructed in the things of the kingdom of heaven, brings out of his treasury things new and old." To those not acquainted with "Nathaniel," I would thus introduce him.

The editor of "Nathaniel," Bro. G. R. Lederer, is a venerable Hungarian Jew, educated as a Rabbi, well read in the Hebrew Scriptures. Many years since, the Lord Jesus opened his eyes, filled his heart with love, and made him a missionary of the cross, under the care of the Free Scotch church, to Jews and Gentiles in Hungary. After several years of abundant labor there, the opposition of the Jesuits, who then ruled the Austrian empire, induced him to remove to a free country; and he has been employed, for more than thirteen years, as one of the missionaries of the New York City Mission. Seeking the welfare of all, both Jews and Gentiles, he is peculiarly fitted, by birth and education, for mission work among the Jews. For their benefit especially, he edits "Nathaniel," a monthly of twenty-four pages, which is distributed gratuitously to many Jews, and is gladly read by them. It gives them important intelligence of their brethren abroad, while it points them to "Him of whom Moses and the prophets did write," even Jesus of Nazareth, as their and our Redeemer.

As "Nathaniel" is the only American publication of its class, and ably maintains Advent truth, it should be well sustained by those who are looking for the speedy return of Jesus, the King of the Jews. Bible students will often find in its pages valuable expositions of Scripture texts not well understood by readers ignorant of the Hebrew language and customs. It should be read by every Jew in the land.

Brethren, salvation is of the Jews. Remember that we owe to them the precious Bible. Read Romans 9, 10, 11. See Paul's earnest desire and prayer for their salvation.

All "Israel" shall yet be saved, when the Deliverer shall come out of Zion. Meantime, there is a remnant according to the election of grace. Seek out the "wandering" Jews. Subscribe liberally for "Nathaniel," and let him preach the gospel to his own. I could tell of many Hebrews converted to Christ by this simple means, some of whom are now ordained preachers.

"Nathaniel" is published by Bro. G. R. Lederer, 275 East Tenth St., New York. Price, $1 a year in advance.

M. R. STEELE.

For the World's Crisis.

DUTY OF PREACHERS.

Those that can do nothing but preach, are poor sticks in the building. Preachers ought to have some tact for some kind of business, to fill up their odd hours. No man can have a healthy brain who sits by a hot stove, studying or writing, and takes no bodily exercise. Such productions will generally give more light by burning, than by reading them.

Paul exercised, traveling, and sewing on tents; Peter, by fishing; Luke, doctoring. All these earned a part of their living, and, no doubt, felt the better for it. A wise man has said, A man who can do nothing but preach, God never set at it.

Advent preachers mostly belong to that class of men that (O, I forgot—the women too) are called out from farms and workshops, and can get something to do to help support themselves, and not hang like a dead weight on the church. Why should such whine about a support? It is true that some in the church never will do their duty in supporting the cause, and you cannot make them, any more than you can make a dead man pray; and whipping the whole church, is like whipping a whole team because you have one or two lazy mules harnessed in. Such a course only overworks the free ones. Let the preachers work and earn what that lazy member ought to have paid, and God will charge it over to his account, and give you credit. Some can do one thing, and some another; and there will be benefit accruing to somebody.

We are to work for others, if we do not need it. I cannot fill teeth, nor perform a cute case of surgery; but I can work at water-wheels, and in mills that grind your grain, and saw your timber.

And I wish to say here, I have been impressed for six or eight weeks to get up a cheap water-wheel for any wishing one to carry on their business while time continues; to use them for less than one half the common price for the same class of wheels. The simplicity of arrangement reduces the price without diminishing the power. I will let, or will assist any one to have the advantage of the discovery, gratis, by coming to me and seeing one now running in the Lamb Knitting machine shop at Chicopee Falls, Mass. Any common mechanic can make one after he sees the principle and the wheel work. I mean it shall benefit others, having refused to take out a patent, as I consider time so short. All kinds of wheels are so expensive that many have not the means to try one. This you can build yourself, all of wood, or iron, to go under any head, from four to twenty feet, and produce from three to fifty horse power, according to head of water and size of wheel. I know it works well, and may be the thing for many. I will assist any by way of instruction who wish to call and see it work. I can help others in this, my way, and do some good to those who want one.

H. MUNGER.

TIME OF THE WORLD'S CONVERSION GIVEN.

We clip the following note from Zion's Herald of Dec. 8th, 1870. W. B.

"MILLENNIUM FIGURES DON'T LIE."—Rev. Dr. Brunson, of Wisconsin, who in his pioneer work fought the wolves on its prairies, as Paul fought beasts as Ephesus, is out in the last Northwestern with a jubilant bit of mathematics and faith, under the above title. Hear him, all ye croakers, and add to your new knowledge, new faith and courage. The Old and New should put it into its table of Progress.

"It is calculated by many, from prophecy, that the A. D. 2000 will usher in the Millennium of the Church. Others doubt the possibility of the conversion of our present wicked world by that time, if ever. But as figures don't lie, there is hope of such an event, as the following shows:

'In the latter end of the year 1739,' say '40, the first class of Methodists was organized by Mr. Wesley, consisting of 'eight or ten persons.' In 1870, one hundred and thirty years later, there appears to be over three and a half millions of Methodists in the world. Now if ten becomes three and a half millions in one hundred and thirty years, what will three and a half millions become in the same length of time? The answer is, one trillion two hundred and twenty-five billions; or one hundred times more than the present inhabitants of the world, allowing that to be one billion two hundred thousand million; so that, at the same ratio of increase as in the past, the Methodists alone, under God, will save one hundred times as many as now inhabit the earth. We may not look for the same ratio of increase in the future as in the past; but why not? We have not a tithe of the opposition we had a century ago, while we have a hundred-fold more facilities of progress."

Though "figures don't lie," it is possible to lie about figures, even by leaving half of the truth untold. Dr. Brunson tells us that in "one hundred and thirty years," the Methodists have increased from ten members to "three and a half millions," and thinks that at this rate, they can convert the whole world by A. D. 2000. But in spite of Dr. Brunson's figures that "don't lie," there are more people in the world to-day that do not belong to the Methodist church, than there were one hundred and thirty years ago, for the population of the world has increased more rapidly than Methodists have made converts, and they have fallen far short of converting even the overplus. Who does not know that "three and a half millions" comes far short of giving the increase of the world's population for "one hundred and thirty years?" Not till a time is reached when Methodists can see as few non-Methodists in the world as when they commenced, "one hundred and thirty years ago," need they make figures. When they have converted the overplus of population, which they have made but a small beginning on, they will still have as large a world to convert as when they commenced, "one hundred and thirty years ago." Christ will come, and find the world as it was in the days of Noe—unconverted.

For the World's Crisis.

WHOSE BUSINESS IS IT?—No. 1.

We often hear the above question put by those who use tobacco to those who preach, write, or speak of the habit as an improper one. While we do not purpose to give a direct reply to the question, and thus be charged with meddling with other men's matters, yet we wish to ask tobacco-users a few questions for their prayerful consideration.

We find many professedly christian men and women, who are poor, and often destitute, and can scarcely get the means of subsistence; they owe the grocer, the dry goods dealer, the farmer, and mechanic, and cannot pay them, yet they get means to buy a little or much tobacco. Whose business is it?

We find those who are too poor to provide themselves and families food, clothing, and shelter. They become "subjects of charity," and others give, give, give, to keep them alive and "off the town," and they find means to buy tobacco. Whose business is it?

We find those who are not able to do much, if any thing, to support the ministry of the word of life, to gather souls to Christ; they want souls saved; want the gospel preached; like to hear it; but they want tobacco more, and find money to buy it. Whose business is it?

We find those who are too poor to buy tracts to scatter among their neighbors, to teach them important truths they want them to know, and which they should know; they will gladly accept a package of the preacher or mission to give away; but they find money to buy tobacco. Whose business is it?

We find those who are too poor to buy books, or take a christian family paper, to give them the instruction they need and very much want, but they cannot raise the money; yet they find money to buy tobacco. Whose business is it?

We find those who take good religious papers, read them, like them, and feel as though they cannot do without them, but they are poor, and money with them is scarce; they owe for one, two, three, or four years, and cannot pay; yet they can and do pay for tobacco. Whose business is it?

We find those who are too poor to promise to pay for a religious paper, but want and need one; will ask to have it "free," as there are those who give money to furnish the poor with free papers. So they get the paper free, but they pay five, ten, or even twenty dollars a year for tobacco. Whose business is it?

We find many who give from one to five dollars a year to ministers who travel and preach all they possibly can, in cold and heat, rain and snow, in poverty and care, and then work to earn a large share of their family's support, while those who use tobacco pay ten, fifteen, up to thirty dollars per year, for that weed. Whose business is it?

I. C. WELLCOME.

For the World's Crisis.

LETTER FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

TO THE CRISIS:—That which I have specially hoped for during these many years has come to pass. The truth in regard to the nature and destiny of man has been preached and publicly discussed in this city. All the papers of the city have referred to the debate, and several of them have given fair synopses of the arguments adduced. It is now understood among all intelligent people on this Coast, that there are many christians who maintain that man is by nature mortal; that he is unconscious in death; that the righteous only have eternal life given unto them.

If there is nothing more than the heralding of the truth this whole year, there is immense gain. For more and more shall the challenge rise in conversations and meditations, and the seed sown will bear great fruit by and by. It cannot be otherwise. Popular theology is a lullaby theology: the ministers are not to be charged with the fault of complacency and coldness on the part of their parishioners;—only so far as they willingly subscribe to the false doctrine of immortal-soulism. Tell men that they have got immortal souls, and in nine cases out of ten, they will pleasingly reason themselves into Restorationists. They cannot really believe a merciful God will torment in hell-fire forever. They do not so believe. But the truth as to our destiny destroys the hope of the Universalist and Restorationist, unless theirs be the hope of the righteous. It is a terribly searching truth. Will you have life or death? Choose! Reason does not stand aghast at the alternative. Reason says, The law is just. O, thank God, this truth has been boldly, ably preached in this city. I feared I should not live to see the day of proclamation, but I have.

To-morrow night and the next, Monday night, Elder Grant will continue his discussion with Mr. Loveland. It is expected that during this or the coming week arrangements will be made for the delivery of a series of lectures on Prophecy in one of the large halls of the city. There are thousands who have not been able to attend the meetings at the Minna St. church, on account of lack of room there, who are anxious to hear the "Advent Elder."

Those who wish to see a church fully "set up" here before the Elder leaves the city know that it is proper and of first advantage to secure a commodious place for the next course on the prophecies. And then if there was an appointed depot in the city where the Second Advent weeklies, monthlies, and quarterlies, and the books and tracts of the church, could be obtained, a very widespread and abiding impression would be made.

Now I am getting stronger in my wishes and hope. Now, I expect to live to see the time when the bravest "orthodox" clergyman in this city cannot get up before his congregation and tell them that they are all "immortal," without manifesting a consciousness of the fact that the majority of the people he is addressing are mentally exclaiming and protesting—"That is the old devil's lie; and you ought to be both afraid and ashamed to repeat it." It is amazing with what art Satan has managed to make this falsehood appear as one of the foundation corner-stones of orthodox Christianity. Let the people see the truth on the life and death question, and a hundred sectarian walls will crumble into the dust. It is a fearful error. C.

Jan. 22nd, 1871.

For the World's Crisis.

THE HOME SCHOOL;

OR,

WINTER EVENINGS AT HOME.

"Of all the spots that heaven has bless'd,
The dearest place is home;
'Tis there the fond heart loves to rest,
And never loves to roam:
Whilst love plays round the smiling hearth,
'Tis heaven's own bliss enjoyed on earth."

We have not been accustomed to put sufficient value upon home as a school of education, or to avail ourselves of half its privileges. Friends, little and big, is not home the pleasantest spot on earth? If it is not, where lies the fault? Have you not something to do with the matter? Set yourselves at once about the work of making it so. Be you father or mother, son or daughter, brother or sister, you are responsible in greater or less degree for the character and influence of home.

The fireside is a seminary of infinite importance. It is important because it is universal, and because the education it bestows being woven with the woof of childhood, gives form and color to the whole texture of life.

"Summer is gone; the fair young flowers
Have faded in their bloom,
And the music of the fairy bowers
Is hushed 'mid winter's gloom.

Our summer life hath its winter too,
And, 'mid its waning bloom,
We wait that spring, whose fadeless hue
E'er glows beyond the tomb."

Little readers, have you a home—pleasant, peaceful, happy? Oh! what a blessing. Do you realize it—are you thankful for it? Multitudes of little folks have no place they can call home. Others, again, have a place of turmoil and wretchedness, poverty and ruin. But a home that is a home in very deed is a heaven on earth, a little paradise. Was there ever a word that fell more delightfully on the ear than "Home, sweet home?"

"Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam,
Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home."

There is a magic power connected with the name of home that floods the mind with sad or pleasing thoughts, and thrills the soul with inexpressible emotions. How numerous the objects of interest around which the mind clusters. Every countenance—father, mother, husband, wife, brothers, sisters, and children; every room, picture, piece of furniture; together with all the surroundings—the gardens, walks, meadows, fields, and pastures; the great rock, the mountain, the hill, and the murmuring stream, the cooling spring and old well with its wooden bucket, the stately elm and grand oak; and there is the orchard, too, with its choice trees of peach, pear, cherry, apple, and plum.

"What thronging memories come!
Again that little group have met
Within the walls of home."

No spot on earth has charms like those of home. Friends may be kind and minister to our necessities, our physical wants may be cared for; but still the heart longs for the sympathies of home. Spend your evening hours at home, boys. You may make them among the most agreeable and profitable of your lives, and when vicious companions should tempt you away, remember that God has said, "If sinners entice thee, consent thou not."

"Though others may seek far and wide
To gain but a moment of bliss,
Ah, who would be longing to roam,
When taught by the joy tasted here?"

The education of the soul for eternity begins by the fireside. The principle of love, which is to be carried through the universe, is first unfolded in the family. "Let them learn first," says the apostle, "to show piety at home."

But all these objects of fascination are changing. Parents, husbands, wives, brothers, sisters, and children die. Happy homes are broken up. Those who enjoy the solace of home to-day, may be tossed upon life's surging billows to-morrow, pilgrims and strangers, without friends or a home, sad, lonely, and dejected. Happy for such if they possess an unshaken evidence of their acceptance with Christ, that he has gone to prepare a mansion for them in glory.—D. F. NEWTON, Author of "Apples of Gold."

Gems.

Thy helper is the Lord of all,
He marks thy lightest sigh;
A thousand means, at his high call,
For thy defence are nigh:
Safe in his care,
No storm shall bear
One hair from off thy head,
Though nature quails in dread.

— There are eyes that need only to look up, to touch every chord of a breast choked by the stifling atmosphere of stiff and stagnant society, and to call forth tones which might become the accompanying music of a life.

— We have no reason to believe our religion of the Bible, if it be palatable to the taste of carnal minds.

— When the pulpit lamp is surrounded by a reflecting church, the minister is successful.

— Paul fed babes with milk; some give babes meat; yea, and even the bones of controversy.

— It is the hardest thing to feign love where it is not, or hide it where it is; but it is easier counterfeited than concealed.

We live not to rust out,
Slothful by standing aloof from the strife.
A thousand times better,
More noble to wear out,
Battered and burned in the hot forge of life.

— There is no real use in riches, except it be in the distribution; the rest is but conceit.

He that loveth little, prayeth little; he that loveth much, prayeth much.

— Every sin has a Satan in it, and robs the soul of its beauty. Every sin hath a robbery in it. It is an endeavor to carry away some one or other of the crown jewels of heaven.

— To converse well is to acquire that delicate morality of the heart which leads on the one hand to kindness, and on the other to good taste in life, literature and art.

— It will always be far more honorable to be mistaken in any of our fellow-creatures than to be suspicious of them.

— The memory of good actions is the starlight of the soul.

"Himself hath done it": He, who's searched me through,
Sees how I cleave to earth's ensnaring ties,
And so he breaks each reed on which my soul
Too much for joy and happiness relies.

For the World's Crisis.

SOUTHERN NEW YORK AND NORTHERN PENN.

Brn. and Srs.:—Inasmuch as there are several ministers and churches in Southern New York and Northern Pennsylvania, who feel themselves too much isolated from the "New York State Advent Christian Conference," to become associated with it, we propose to organize a new conference for the accommodation of all such, and as many more as feel disposed to join with us in the work. We believe that what is done must be done quickly; and as we are convinced that such organizations have a tendency to promote the cause of Christ, and are instrumental in doing much good every way, we believe it is the duty of every child of God to engage at once. We therefore call for a correspondence at once from all interested.

1. We want to hear from every minister within said district.

2. We want to hear from every church that feels interested in such a project, and know just how strong you are, and what are your wants and needs.

3. We want to hear from every isolated brother or sister. Let us know where you are, what you are doing, and what you want to do. Whether there is any chance for holding meetings in your vicinity, any prospects of doing good, and whether you want it done.

4. We want to hear from all immediately, that we may know just how to act, what to depend on, and how many are interested, that we may make the necessary arrangements for such an organization. You can address—Eld. A. H. Briggs, Spring Mills, Allegany Co., N. Y.; Eld. E. H. Eggleston, West Bingham, Potter Co., Pa.; or Eld. J. W. Taylor, Stephen's Mills, Steuben Co., N. Y.

We desire to make the arrangements necessary as soon as possible, so that if everything is favorable, we can have our first meeting some time in June next. J. W. TAYLOR.

LETTER FROM BRO. J. W. THOMAS.

BRO. GRANT:—Through the great mercy of our heavenly Father I have been permitted to return to my family in safety. Two weeks ago, when I was suddenly prostrated with hemorrhage, it seemed as if I must fall a victim to death, among the northern hills of Vermont, but I looked to Jesus for help, and others besought his mercy in my behalf, and I believe he heard prayer. Praise his name forever! I will adore and exalt him for sparing me thus far. Still I need his aid, and the guidance of his Spirit, that I may pursue the right course, and adopt the proper means in order to recover health. I suppose it will be necessary for me to suspend preaching for a while, although I am very reluctant to do it; for I love the work, and my spirit is stirred within me when I see the harvest so abundant, and the laborers so few. I cannot bear the thought of being idle. I must do something, not only to provide for my family, but to save souls and help prepare a people for the soon coming kingdom. If it can please the Lord to restore me fully so that I can preach, I feel as if I would be more faithful and zealous than ever before; yet if it is for the best that I should remain in the furnace awhile, I'll endeavor to say—"Not my will, but thine, oh Lord, be done." The promise is that "all things work together for good to them who love the Lord." I only want the evidence to be more bright and unmistakable from day to day, that his love is shed abroad in my heart by the Holy Ghost, and that I am called according to his purpose; then with the apostle I may be able to exclaim in triumphant faith—"These light afflictions, which are but for a moment, work for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory." Jesus is soon coming, and then this mortal body shall put on immortality. Will the praying ones still remember me at the throne of grace? J. W. THOMAS.

Rockland, R. I.

P. S. The Lord has some excellent children in Cabot. They have a good house of worship, and need a pastor very much. Cannot some of the preaching brethren go and supply them? J. W. T.

FLATTERY.

Many persons mistake flattery for friendship, and regard candor as a mark of ill-will. The flatterer praises to please. The true friend reproves to profit. The true friend does not flatter, when he sees reproof and criticism are needed; and a pure and upright nature is unwilling either to flatter or to be flattered. Those who flatter to the face often slander behind the back; while those who reprove faithfully in our presence are the most staunch defenders of the absent, when others assail them.

Flattery gives temporary pleasure; friendship seeks the permanent interest of its object. Those who flatter to-day will often revile to-morrow. They flatter to gain their ends, and when they have no further hope of advantage, to turn to fresher fields, and pastures new, where others may be duped by their wiles. No flatterer can be depended upon. He lacks the root of righteousness, the element of constancy, the principle without which all is uncertain in the character and conduct of men. Honest men, even though they may be mistaken or misled, though they may blame us unduly, or criticise us sharply, yet should be respected for their frankness, and honored for their faithfulness to right and truth. The man who lives in the sunshine of flattery will gather around him sycophants and knaves. He who stands the storm of criticism and reproof, will have for his companions, friends who are staunch and tried, trusty and true. The day of trouble tests the genuineness of their professions, and while flatterers gain their own advantage, and vanish at the approach of trial or storm, friends, whose rough, frank words have often given us pain in our days of pride and prosperity, come then with gentlest hands, and tenderest sympathies, to bind up our broken hearts, and comfort us as we mourn. He that is wise will not be cheated by vain words, but will remember that while the wounds of a friend are faithful, "he that flattereth his neighbor spreadeth a net for his feet."—The Christian.

TURN YOUR BACK ON MISSIONS.—"Brethren," said a speaker at a late missionary meeting, "I want you to turn your backs upon this Board of Missions—your greenbacks, I mean—and, if you presume to speak to them, talk in silver tones."

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

LAYING UP RICHES.

"Grandpa," said a little boy, "our minister said this morning that 'riches take to themselves wings and fly away.' Now, is there no place in this whole world where wealth can be stored in safety?"

"None," replied the old man.

"Not in England?" still inquired the boy. "Surely the banks of such a great and wealthy country are on a sure footing."

"No," again replied the grandfather; "civil strife or foreign war may at any time arise, beggaring the people and ruining the banks."

"Is not money safe in Prussia, in the hands of those rich German bankers?"

"No, not safe," once more replied the old man, "even in their hands, for prosperity may fail them."

"But surely," said the boy, "even boundless wealth may be deposited in the banks of this great Republic with perfect safety."

"Alas! no," replied the aged man; "war may arise even in this great country; and villains abound in the land, who rob banks of their treasures and plunder vaults of their wealth."

"Then there is no place where riches may be stored in safety!" sighed the boy.

"Yes; not in this world, as I said at first, but in heaven. My boy, always remember the text: 'Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal; but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal.'"

CHILDREN'S MISSIONS.

Children by our Lord were honored,
When on this poor earth he stayed;
Fondly he embraced and blessed them,
Though a frowning throng forbade.

To his side a child he summoned,
Placed him in the midst, and told
Those that simple guide to follow,
Who God's kingdom would behold.

Still his gospel honors children,
Bids them to Christ's service move,
And their little rills of beauty
Swell the ocean of his love;

Bids them strive with zealous pity
For the desolate and sad,
Till the dark and desert places
Are for them exceeding glad.

Children, to our dear Redeemer
Yield the grateful homage due,
And, by love to every creature,
Pay the love he bears for you.

ONCE ONLY.

A shy little girl came to Sabbath-school! She was poorly dressed; a calico gown; a hat trimmed with faded green ribbons; thin slippers, which looked as if somebody had given them to her, and a small shawl on her shoulders. Miss Jones brought her in, and she was in Miss Jones's class.

Miss Jones's class were girls very nicely dressed. They had feathers and fresh ribbons, and fashionable boots. Miss Jones's class, too, all knew each other. Well, how did they receive the little stranger? Very glad, of course, to welcome her to the Sabbath-school, and their class too, because they had often heard how the Lord Jesus became poor for their sakes, and how he left the poor among us to feel and care for.

Did they receive her kindly? Not a bit. When she sat down on the seat beside them, they moved away. They glanced their eyes at her dress, then at each other, and laughed contemptuously. When she looked wistfully up to them for a look of kindness, they turned their faces another way. All their conduct seemed to say, "We are above you, and what business have you here, I wonder?" Oh, was it not cruel?

The little girl never went again. Perhaps she was driven from Sunday-school forever. Let every person great and small, remember this, that all who laugh at the poor laugh at God, and he will not always be mocked, I assure you.—Child's Paper.

ARE YOU THERE, MOTHER?—A mother, busy with her household cares, was obliged to go into an upper room, and leave two little ones alone for sometime. So she gave them books and toys to amuse them, which answered very well for a time. But by-and-by the house seemed to grow so still and lonesome, they began to feel afraid. So the eldest went to the foot of the staircase, and, calling with a timid voice, said:

"Mamma, are you there?"

"Yes, darling," said the mother, cheerily.

"All right, then," said the little one, more to herself than to her mother. So she went back to her plays for a time. After a while the question was repeated, with the same answer and the same result.

Oh, how often, in our loneliness and sadness here in the world, we forget that God still is overhead. But if we only send up our prayers to him, we shall not fail to get a comforting and quieting answer.—Presbyterian.

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—PAUL.

CHANGE OF DIET.

Frequently, we hear people say, "I have a sick-headache, or heart-burn, or feel irritable and nervous several hours after meals. To our reply: "You are dyspeptic; you need not medicines of any kind, but a change of diet, and very regular habits, with rest," they reply, "Oh, we can't change; we should die—we must have rich food." One lady said, "I must live while I live—I would as soon die of a surfeit as of starvation!"

We wish to talk a little while with these persons. Perhaps some one will be assisted and strengthened in the direction of a simple, pure life.

The secret of failure, we think, lies in the effort to make radical changes in a day. Our stomachs are creatures of habit. They have been accustomed, for years, to receive stimulating food and drinks—half-chewed food, tough meats—that, when chewed, is a sticky, tough, smooth mass, hardly fit for a chicken, that uses gravel stones with which to grind its food.

For long years the poor stomach has been imposed upon by having poured into it—before the gastric juices could lay hold of the above mass of trash—tea or coffee, so hot that the person could not bear their fingers in it without shrinking from the pain it would produce. From years of hard living, the poor, tired-out, over-worked stomach has, like a pinched foot or waist, taken on a habit; and when, all of a sudden, this habit is changed, it does not recognize or discriminate readily in favor of the new—hence, the complaints.

The fact is, changes must be made slowly. It may require weeks, months, years, to overcome bad table-habits, that changes may safely be made from hot bread to cold, and from fried meats to boiled. Where a variety of appetizers were used at a single meal, take but one. Where two cups of tea or coffee were taken, drop one of them. Where nine or ten varieties of food have been used at a single meal, omit half of them. Where fried potatoes have been used at every meal, substitute baked, or boiled, or mashed potato. Take more time—chew your food thoroughly—eat slowly. Do not eat and drink to fulness. Notice the feet and hands—if immediately, or in half an hour after meals, they are cold or chilly, sit by a fire to warm them. Do not read, or talk, or think much, but keep quiet, and allow the nervous forces full play at the stomach until the digestive processes are well at work. Soon after you will be conscious of a returning glow of warmth all over the body. This applies to persons in comparative good health, who are able to do work and attend to office business, or farm work, but are conscious of the necessity of changes of living that shall ward off sickness. They can—in a month—once a day, safely use brown bread instead of white bread, and a saucer of Graham-mash, with cream and sugar, in place of mince-pie, for dessert. Try it, and see if your sleep is not sweeter, and your head clearer than ever before in your life.

The next easy change will be to serve the tea and coffee one-third weaker for a month, and omit half of the appetizers. Omit the sweetmeats, and use baked apples, or canned or stewed fruit. Season your meals with cheerful conversation and thankfulness.

The result of sudden changes is a failure of physical strength, and, if persisted in, great nervous depression, and, very soon, a return to all the old habits, an excessive use of stimulants, and a disposition to declare dietetic changes hurtful and next to impossible.

The result of gradual change of dietetic habits is an increased relish for food, sweet sleep, a clean mouth, and a clear head, uniform cheerfulness, and a heart full of good will toward all the world.—Woman's Pacific Coast Jour.

SLOW CHILDREN.—The child is "slow," is it? It can't learn its multiplication table; spelling seems impossible to it, with any amount of teaching; and you get discouraged, and set it down as a foreordained dunce. Wait a bit. Every parent knows, at the same time, too much and too little of his own child. It is more than likely you will be prouder of that child's attainments than of any other child's in your family. Be patient, as is the gardener when he has sown the seed. Time and sunshine! Give plenty of both to these human plants. The fruit and the blossom that come prematurely lie oftenest useless upon the ground.

— Wisely has the custom of wearing the beard been revived in our country, and it should never be abandoned. It is a most valuable protection to the throat and lungs. To wear all the beard is the best rule. But if any part is shaved, let it be upper lip; which is the most inconvenient and distasteful place for it.

— Dr. Dio Lewis submits that a man's stomach is nearer his soul than his brain, that dyspepsia ruins character, and that the examination of a man's liver gives a better clue to the kind of man he is than an examination of the skull.

DR. TRALL says the great secret of the superior health of the English is the greater amount of quiet sleep. The Americans, as a nation, are wearing out prematurely for want of rest.

— Our nurses are our first theologians.

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance......................$2.50 a year.
Five copies six months to one address.......$5.00.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies six months to one address......$10.00.
Same rate for any number over ten.
CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage in the United States on each single copy of the Crisis is 20 cts. a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.

Over all matters not intended for publication write—PRIVATE.
Over all business matters, write—BUSINESS.
Over all articles for the paper, write—For the Crisis.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's NAME, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save much labor.
PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, please write PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.
☞ Put business matters and appointments on separate pieces of paper, or so that they can be detached without interfering with any other communication.
☞ All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the POST OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to
MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly,
THE YOUNG PILGRIM:
An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.
TERMS.
PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.
Single copy, 30 cts. a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.
Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 25 cts. a year for each copy.
Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 20 cts. a year for each copy.
To Canada subscribers at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 799. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1871. VOL. XXXII.—NO. 21.

The World's Crisis,
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, by the
ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY,
At No. 160 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass.
GEO. T. ADAMS,
Treasurer and Business Agent.

MILES GRANT, Editor.
William Sheldon, Corresponding Editor.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, L. BOUTELL,
JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
HOMER A. KING, H. V. DAVIS,
L. T. CUNNINGHAM, J. G. HAMBLIN,
H. H. DICKENSON.

☞ The Crisis is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

THE MASTER HATH NEED OF THE REAPERS.

The Master hath need of the reapers,
And, mourner, he calleth to thee;
Come out from the valleys of sorrow,
Look up to the hill-tops and see
How the fields with harvest are whitening,
How golden and full is the grain.
O, what are thy wants to the summons!
And what are thy griefs and thy pain?

The Master hath need of the reapers,
And, idler, he calleth to thee;
Come out from the mansions of pleasure,
From the halls where the careless may be.
Soon the shadows of eve will be falling
With the mists, and the dews, and the rain;
O, what is the world and its follies,
To the mold and the rust of the grain?

The Master hath need of the reapers,
And he calleth for thee and for me;
O haste, while the winds of the morning
Are blooming so freshly and free;
Let the sound of the scythe and the sickle
Re-echo o'er hill-top and plain,
And gather the sheaves in the garner,
For golden and ripe is the grain.

For the World's Crisis.

THE PROCLAMATION FROM HEAVEN.

What the true, devoted christian wants to know, what the real church of Christ wants to know, and what the world should know, is, what the Lord has caused to be proclaimed throughout the world. Not what the people say, a lukewarm and worldly-minded church has caused to be proclaimed, or "false prophets" who "prophesy out of their own hearts and have seen nothing" proclaim.

These all are uttering and sending to the ends of the earth, and have been for years, the following prophecy: "The people shall beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." Isa. 2: 4. But when is the prophecy going to be fulfilled? It is time there was some show or indication of it, if it is ever to be; for we have heard it all our days. The generation has had it proclaimed in their ears until it is as familiar as their A, B, C's. We see no "swords beat" into implements of husbandry, nor "spears into scythes"; and not a nation under heaven has ceased to "learn war," or to fight.

When is this prophecy to come to pass? Never! for it is soothsaying, and those proclaiming it are "soothsayers" (verse 6) i. e., those who "undertake to foretell future events without inspiration." Webster. And the Lord bids us beware of trusting in them—"Cease ye from man, whose breath is in his nostrils; for wherein is he to be accounted of?" v. 22. What the Lord has said will take place in the day of such false prophesying, can be seen by reading Isa. 2: 17–21, and comparing with Joel 3: 9–16, where the reverse is predicted, and is fulfilled before our eyes.

What is the proclamation from heaven? It is this: "Behold the Lord hath proclaimed unto the end of the world. Say ye to the daughter of Zion, Behold thy salvation cometh; behold his reward is with him, and his work [recompense] before him." Isa. 62: 11.

Who has he called to proclaim this "unto the end of the world"? "Visionary fanatics"? "Wild, deluded, and crazy men"? "Monomaniacs"? "Heretics"? "Sadducees"? and those "having the devil"? They may be so-called, as was their Lord and Master, "Beelzebub;" and as good and true men in all ages have been so maligned—thousands of whom have been burned alive as "heretics," and given to wild beasts to be devoured as bad men. But the Lord says he has committed this proclamation to "watchmen, which shall never hold their peace day nor night, nor keep silence." Isa. 62: 6. It matters not how the world and an unfaithful church regard them, then, if they are so esteemed of God, and loyal to him. They are not those watchmen whom this prophet Isaiah describes—"His watchmen are blind; they are all ignorant, they are all dumb dogs, they cannot bark; sleeping, lying down, loving to slumber. Yea, they are greedy dogs which can never have enough, and they are shepherds that cannot understand; they all look to their own way, every one for his gain, from his quarter. Come ye, say they, I will fetch wine, and we will fill ourselves with strong drink; and tomorrow shall be as this day, and much more abundant." Isa. 56: 10–12.

They are not those of whom the prophet Jeremiah speaks, who, together with their flocks, have "rejected the word of the Lord," and "every one of them, from the least unto the greatest, is given to covetousness," and say, "Peace, peace; when there is no peace," being more ignorant of the "appointed times" than "the stork, turtle, crane, and swallow"; but of whose false prophecy the people begin to be apprised, saying—"We looked for peace, but no good came; and for a time of health, and behold, trouble"; and whose lamentation is yet to swell into frightful despair—"The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved." Jer. 8: 7–20. Alas! for these prophets, and the people deceived by them.

To whom is the proclamation especially made? "The daughter of Zion." Who is she? The Roman Catholic church? She claims to be "the Church." The Episcopalians? The Methodists? The Baptists? The Presbyterians? The Congregationalists? Or any one of the many sects in the world? Who is "the daughter of Zion"? "The daughter of Egypt" was the citizens of Egypt. "The daughter of Edom" the citizens of Edom. "The daughter of Babylon" the citizens of Babylon; therefore "the daughter of Zion" is the citizens of Zion; the city of Zion or Jerusalem. What city? Old Jerusalem? What citizens? The old Jews? Nay, verily. That city "is in bondage with her children." Gal. 4: 25. In "desolation" and "trodden down of the Gentiles," while her citizens are "led away captive into all nations." Luke 21: 20–24. And "what saith the Scripture? Cast out the bondwoman and her son." To be received back again into embrace? No. "The son of the bondwoman shall not be heir with the son of the free woman." Gal. 4: 22–31.

Who is the "daughter of Zion"? "We, brethren, as Isaac was, are the children of promise." Gal. 4: 28. "For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ, have put on Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek," etc. "If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise." Gal. 3: 26–29. These constitute now "the daughter of Zion." "All that believe" (Acts 13: 39), "out of the Gentiles" (Acts 15: 14), "out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation." Rev. 5: 9.

What city is the Zion, or dwelling-place? "Jerusalem, which is above, which is the mother of us all." Gal. 4: 26. And is this the one which is the habitation of "the daughter of Zion," to whom the proclamation is made? Yes. For "the watchmen" are to give the Lord "no rest, till he make Jerusalem a praise in the earth." Isa. 62: 7. And this cannot be old Jerusalem, or Zion; nor another one built by man, Jew or Gentile, but is the one belonging in "covenant" to "Abraham and his seed." Gal. 3. And the "city hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God." Heb. 11: 10. And this is to be "a praise in the earth." "For, behold, I create a new earth. . . . Behold, I create Jerusalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy." Isa. 65: 17, 19. John says, "The city of my God is New Jerusalem, which cometh down out of heaven from my God." Rev. 3: 12. And this seer saw it "a praise in the earth"—"new earth" (Rev. 21), or in restored Eden. The proclamation, then, is to all christians, to all believers, to all the saints throughout the whole world, irrespective of sect or party, who are citizens of the city of God.

THE PROCLAMATION PROPER.

1st Part.—"Thy salvation cometh." This is equivalent to "thy Savior cometh." For salvation cometh with him. It came with his first advent. "Shout, O daughter of Jerusalem: behold, thy King cometh unto thee: he is just, and having salvation; lowly, and riding upon an ass." Zech. 9: 9; Matt. 21; John 12. The salvation he brought at his first coming was "to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness." Dan. 9: 24. As he did by his obedience, sufferings, and death, in the atonement he made. Hence says Paul, "Once in the end of the world hath he appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself." Heb. 9: 26.

The "salvation," however, above alluded to, is that to be brought at his second coming; when "Jerusalem" is to be made "a praise in the earth," new earth, Isaiah 65: 17, 18, 19, of which Peter speaks on the day of Pentecost—"He shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you: whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things." Acts 3: 19–21. And also to which Paul refers: "So Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation." Heb. 9: 28. The salvation to be brought, then, is a release and redemption from death, and a change to immortality and incorruptibility. 1 Cor. 15; Phil. 3: 20, 21. Also coronation in the heavenly kingdom, and heavenly world, and heavenly city. 2 Tim. 4: 1–8; 1 Pet. 5: 4; Rev. 5: 8–14; Dan. 7: 27; Rev. 21 and 22: 5.

Behold, thy Savior cometh, having salvation. "Behold, the Lord cometh," is to be proclaimed "unto the end of the world." And it is being proclaimed by "faithful and wise servants," notwithstanding the many "evil servants," saying: "My Lord delayeth his coming." Matt. 24: 45–51.

2d Part. "Behold his reward is with him, and his recompense before him." This also must be proclaimed "unto the end of the world," by the true and faithful "watchmen." Connected with this must be, of course, proclaimed the mortality of the race, and the exposure of the errors of the "immortality of the soul," and "rewards in death," both of which are fables. "The voice said Cry. And he said, What shall I cry? All flesh is grass, and all the goodliness thereof is as the flower of the field: the grass withereth, the flower fadeth; because the Spirit of the Lord bloweth upon it. Surely the people is grass. The grass withereth, the flower fadeth, but the word of our God shall stand forever . . . . Behold, the Lord God will come with strong hand, and his arm shall rule for him: behold, his reward is WITH HIM, and recompense for his work before him." Isa. 40: 6–10.

Jesus during his ministry affirmed: "The Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels; and then he shall reward every man according to his works." Matt. 16: 27. And on the closing page of divine inspiration it is written—"Behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give to every man according as his work shall be." Rev. 22: 12.

This, then, is the "standard" to be lifted up "for the people." "Lift up a standard for the people. Prepare ye the way of the people." v. 10. The Lord's "watchmen," like John the Baptist, are to "prepare the way of the Lord." "Go through, go through the gates." The gates of the nations, and cities of the nations, even "unto the end of the world," are to be entered, and the proclamation made to the people, as says Jesus: "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come." Matt. 24: 14. "Cast up, cast up the highway." Clear away the rubbish and lumber of tradition, and cast up a highway for the people, and let them understand and see that the Lord is to come and bring them salvation and reward.

Observe (1), the fable of the world's conversion, and a temporal millennium, has no place in this proclamation. It is decried, as soothsaying. Isa. 2. Observe (2), the fable of the Jews' return to Palestine, and the rebuilding of their city, has no place in this proclamation. Prophets may "prophesy concerning Jerusalem, and see visions of peace for her, but there is no peace, saith the Lord God." And those who are endeavoring to build up "the partition wall" between Jew and Gentile, demolished by Christ (Eph. 2: 14, 15), are "daubing with untempered mortar." Ezek. 13th chap.

Observe (3), rewards in death, and before the Lord comes to judgment, the Lord has not caused to be "proclaimed unto the end of the world." The Lord has not "sent these prophets, yet they ran."

Observe (4), recompense in heaven above is not found in the proclamation. It is in "Jerusalem which cometh down out of heaven," and which will be "a praise in the earth." v. 7.

Let us proclaim what the Lord has sent his watchmen to proclaim. It is the most glorious and sublime announcement ever made to mortal man, or ever greeted the ears of his waiting people. The Lord with his "salvation" and "reward" will soon "rend the heavens" and "come down, and the mountains will melt and flow down at his presence." Then will be revealed what "since the beginning of the world men have not heard, nor perceived by the ear, neither hath the eye seen, O God, beside thee, what he hath prepared for him that waiteth for him."

O. R. Fassett.

For the World's Crisis.

EXTRACTS FROM DR. PRIESTLEY, L. L. D., F. R. S.

Before giving the extracts, I will state that Dr. P. was a distinguished English theologian and philosopher, who held and advocated the Mosaic and Pauline view, that "the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground." In philosophical matters he was the discoverer of the Nitrous Oxide Gas which is in use throughout Christendom for the relief of pain in dental and surgical operations. In A. D. 1796 he delivered a course of lectures in this city relating to the evidences of revealed religion. These lectures were published in book form in the same year, and dedicated by the author to "John Adams, Vice-President of the United States of America." A few months ago I came in possession of a copy of this book, and now give extracts from it, which I trust may prove interesting to the readers of the "Crisis." The seventh and eighth discourses from which I quote are entitled, "The Principles of Heathen Philosophy compared with those of Revelation."

"It was a fundamental maxim with all the philosophers of antiquity, that creation from nothing was absolutely impossible; and many of those who admitted a principle of intelligence in the universe, maintained that matter in some confused chaotic mass was another principle, coeternal with it, and independent of it, and therefore could only be modified, but not destroyed by it. Moses, on the contrary, asserts a proper creation of everything that exists, antecedent to the chaotic state which he describes. (Gen. 1: 1.) . . . And since the properties of bodies are all that we know of them, the appointment and changing of these, which the philosophers admitted to be within the province of the intelligent principle, implies a power of proper creation, and a proper destruction. For if we take away all the properties of anything, nothing will be left. The system of Moses therefore, is more rational than theirs. . . .

According to the Scriptures, the future state of man depends entirely upon a resurrection, to take place at a distant period, called the last day, and nothing is said concerning the rewards of the righteous, or the punishment of the wicked antecedent to that time. Our Savior recommending acts of charity, says (Luke 14: 14), 'Thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just,' and on no occasion did he refer his hearers to any state of things prior to this. . . .

"The apostle Paul, comforting the Thessalonians on the death of some of their friends, refers them only to the resurrection, and gives no hint of their enjoying any degree of happiness at the time he was writing, which would have been unavoidable if they had been happy then (1 Thess. 4: 13.) . . . 'And the dead in Christ shall rise first,' that is, before any change take place on those who will be then alive. Why, indeed, did he use the term sleep, if, in his idea, the dead were not in a state of insensibility, and not to be awaked to life and action, but at the resurrection?

"Again, when the same apostle exhorts christians to live sober, righteous, and godly lives, he directs them to look for that blessed hope, even the glorious appearing of the great God, and our Savior Jesus Christ, when he shall come again to raise the dead and judge the world. When our Savior says that he will receive the apostles to himself, he refers them to the same time, and nothing prior to it:—'I will come again, and take you to myself, that where I am there ye may be also.' When, therefore, the apostle Paul speaks of being 'absent from the body and present with the Lord,' he must have meant the same great period, overlooking all that passed between the time of his death and his resurrection, which indeed will only appear as a moment; as in the case of a man awaking from a profound sleep.

"When Moses describes the formation of man, he represents him as made wholly, and not in part only, of the dust of the ground, and says after this, God put breath and life into him, thereby giving motion to the curious machine, which was before a lifeless mass. It is to this doctrine of Moses, that our Savior refers, when he says that God is able to destroy both body and soul, or the power of life, in hell. For the word that is here rendered soul, is elsewhere rendered life, meaning that men, by killing the body, which God has been pleased to put in their power, cannot prevent its returning to life, this being in the power of God only. There is not, in reality, any more reason to suppose life to be a real substance, than death, which we nevertheless personify when we say that death comes and surprises men, and takes them. In the Scriptures both death and sin are personified.

"The Gnostics, who were the first of the philosophers who embraced Christianity, could not divest themselves of their prejudices with respect to matter, as the source of all evil; and thinking it the happiest state of the soul to be detached from it, they explained away the doctrine of the resurrection, as to be understood of something that took place during life. To them the apostle alludes, when he says, that they "erred concerning the faith; saying that the resurrection was past already, and overturned the faith of some.' . . .

"Though after this Christians in general adopted the doctrine of a soul distinct from the body, they thought that, after death, it remained in a place under ground, called Hades, where it waited for the resurrection of the body, when, and not before, it would be admitted into the immediate presence of God and of Christ, in heaven. This continued to be the faith of the Christian world, for about a thousand years. They pretty soon, however, made an exception in favor of the souls of the martyrs, which they thought went directly to heaven.

"There are thought to be some traces of the doctrine of a resurrection in the heathen world, as among the Chaldeans and Zabians. But if this was the case, the doctrine was soon obliterated, and speculative persons, thinking a proper resurrection to be absolutely impossible, and yet unwilling to give up all hope of some future state, imagined that there was some spiritual or ethereal, principle in man, which having existed long before his birth, would subsist after his death. For with the heathen these two doctrines always went together: and Origen, one of the most learned of the early Christians, believed both the pre-existence of the soul, and its separate existence after death. Afterwards Christians in general abandoned the former, but retained the latter, though originally they were both derived from the same source.

"But what evidence is there from any appearances in nature, which is all that the heathen had to look to, on which their belief of the pre-existence, or the separate existence of the soul is founded. The former will be allowed to have been wholly chimerical. But with respect to the latter, is it not evident that the power of thinking depends upon the brain; and if thought is suspended in the state of sleep, and during a swoon, must it not be more effectually suspended in a state of death?

"It will be said that we cannot conceive of any connection between the properties of perception or thought, and the idea of matter. But we know nothing at all of the connection of any properties with those of any substance whatever. Who can explain the connection between the magnet and the property of attracting iron, or the cause of the gravitation of all material substances toward each other? And what clearer ideas have we of the connection between the power of perception and thought with an immaterial substance any more than with a material one? Let us then no longer cover our ignorance, or our fancied knowledge, with the repetition of mere words, to which we have no ideas, but confine ourselves to known facts, such as the strict connection between the powers of thought and the organization of the brain. When that is destroyed, sensation and thought cease; so that there cannot be any rational ground to expect the restoration of the one without the restoration of the other. And certainly the great Being who made man of the dust of the ground, can make him again, though reduced to the same dust. As to the manner in which this is to be effected, we know as much of one as the other; which is just nothing at all. But as the one has been effected by the same Being who has promised the other, we have no reason to entertain any doubt of its accomplishment at the time appointed.

"The only rational hope of a future life must, therefore, be founded on the Scripture doctrine of a resurrection, when the whole man, with all his powers, will be revived. That this doctrine of a resurrection is inconsistent with that of a soul, which survives the body, and retains all its faculties, not only unimpaired, but improved, (for such is the original and proper doctrine of the subject) is obvious to the slightest consideration. For if such be the condition of the soul, when freed from the clog and obstruction of the body, a resurrection would not only be unnecessary, but even undesirable. The two systems are, therefore, repugnant to each other, and cannot be rationally held together.

"The doctrine of a soul, and consequently that of an intermediate state between death and the resurrection, has been the foundation of the worship of dead men and women, called saints, of the doctrine of purgatory, and many other doctrines of popery.—These, and almost every other corruption of genuine christianity came from the same heathen source. . . .

Thus we have given in part a noble testimony from a learned head in favor of that gospel which has brought the great doctrines of Life and Immortality into the light. The great Jehovah who alone has inherent immortality has given to his Son to have life in himself. Hence Jesus is the one, divinely appointed, through whom we may obtain these great gifts. "He that eateth of this bread shall live forever."

I have received the "Crisis" gratuitously for a long time, for which favor I thank the brethren. I have but little time for writing, but a stormy day keeps me in doors, so that I am enabled to write the preceding paragraphs. May the Lord bless our editors—Storrs, Grant, Himes, Sheldon, Couch, Phelps, and others who are trumpeting the glad news of Life and Immortality through Christ alone. Let all be one in heart in the great cause, even though there may be diverse convictions on some points aside from the one named—this is the earnest injunction of their brother in Christ,

F. H. Burbank.

Philadelphia, Jan. 24, 1870.

WORK FOR JESUS.

God calls you, dear brother, to carry the glad news of salvation to sinners. He has honored you above the highest seraph by lifting you to the infinite toils of this work. Do it, then, after his example, by giving your whole being to it. When more money is needed to enlarge the enterprises of the church, don't stand back and tell how much you have already given, and say the church will impoverish you! Ask what Christ would do. Would he refuse that dollar? Would he hold back that thousand dollars? What if you should give the last dollar? What if houses, and lands, and bank stock should all melt into the treasury of the Lord? Would not all these be "An offering far too small?"

How much owest thou my Lord? He gave his throne, his life for you! Some men are fearfully rich this side the grave, where they are to spend but a few days, and fearfully poor the other side, where they are to spend eternity! Ah, brother, you had better be a beggar here and a king there, than to be as rich as Dives here, and a hopeless beggar there. It is full enough that you have any share in this divine work. As sin came by man, God takes men to aid in bringing in its death. His divine power alone can renew the soul. Still, there is much we can do. This he will certainly require of us. When the weeping Christ stood by the grave of Lazarus, none but a God could speak life into the dead and decaying body. God was there, but he first commanded men to "roll away the stone." Then he spake. The mouldering earth heard its Maker's voice, and sprang to life; and then Christ spake to men again, and said, "Loose him and let him go." So, brother, God must renew; but, as at the grave of Lazarus, the God-man standing before the sepulchre of a dead world, commands men to "roll away the stone." We can reach the sepulchre of heathenism, and rolling away the stone, let the light of the gospel shine athwart its gloom. We can go to the suffering, sinning, ignorant multitudes, and, rolling the stones of infamy and want away from their sepulchres, open their doors to a Savior's voice. We can go to many a careless or despairing sinner, and with kind words, and sympathy and love, open his sepulchre to a divine Christ. He will speak! He weeps still at the sepulchre! There is life in his word! The power of death shall be broken! Its captives shall live! They may come forth swathed with error, and bound by habit, and then will he speak to us again, and we can "loose them and let them go."

Remember, the absent disciples did not "roll away the stone." To do Christ's work, we must walk with him in closest fellowship.—Zion's Herald.

THE DIVINE MERCY.

There's a wideness in God's mercy,
Like the wideness of the sea;
There's a kindness in his justice,
Which is more than liberty.

There is no place where earth's sorrows
Are more felt than up in heaven;
There is no place where earth's failings
Have such kindly judgment given.

For the love of God is broader
Than the measure of man's mind;
And the heart of the Eternal
Is most wonderfully kind.

But we make his love too narrow
By false limits of our own;
And we magnify his strictness
With a zeal he will not own.

If our love were but more simple,
We should take him at his word;
And our lives would be all sunshine
In the sweetness of our Lord.

—Faber.

For the World's Crisis.

JESUS SOON TO COME.—DO WE BELIEVE IT?

Brethren and Sisters:—Are we so near the end of all things as signs now seem to show? and if so, do we as a people believe it? and if we believe it, should we not act accordingly? Our daily lives and actions will fully agree with our profession. We shall be striving earnestly, daily and hourly, to be ready, all ready to meet Him who went away to prepare a place for those that loved and obeyed him, and said that in due time he would come again, and receive them to himself, that where he was there his children should be also. I feel for one that every moment should be spent in seeking to do God's blessed will, keeping ourselves in perfect readiness for Jesus' soon coming. I do with my whole heart believe that Jesus is very soon to rend the heavens and come down, and give every one his reward, either life, or death. I feel solemn when I think of these things, for I see so much that bears the profession, that has no possession, that I sometimes fear I may deceive myself and at last be lost; but if I am lost at last, it shall be in trying to serve God. Truly I can say, and feel it too—

"And if I perish I will try,
And perish only there."

When I think how strait and narrow the way is, and how pure and holy we must be in order to enter through the gates into the city, I almost faint and falter by the way. Then I know that Father never requires of us more than we can do, and the very best we can do is all that is required.

Dear ones, are we wholly consecrated, given up entirely to God and his service? Has this poor and perishing world any attractions for us? is there any love of it in our hearts? do we enjoy a good social gathering where the name of Jesus is not once spoken? Can we enjoy ourselves at such a place? Can we indulge in vain and trifling conversation and enjoy it? If so, I fear there is too little love for Jesus and his soon coming to secure us eternal life at last. Do not let us trifle with the beggarly elements of the world. If we are truly pilgrims and strangers here, let us act accordingly, letting love be the ruling element, and our hearts be so full of God and his blessed Spirit, that there will be no room for hatred, variance, envy, or anything that is not in harmony with God's beloved word. Let no bitterness, nor wrath, nor anger, nor evil speaking, be among us, or sanctioned by us. What if we do not all believe just alike? Shall that make us hate each other, and try to bite and devour one another? Is that the spirit of Jesus? We are commanded to live in peace; and the promise is, the "God of peace shall be with you." But where envy and strife are, there is "every evil work." Let us love one another with pure hearts fervently, not thinking that we are the only right ones in the world, but "live and let live" be our motto. "Let brotherly love continue." Whosoever loves Jesus, and is trying to serve God, looking for Jesus' soon coming, living a holy life, is my brother or sister.

We are too near the final consummation of all things to let these things keep us from being brethren and sisters, and working together for the good of our perishing fellow men. For one, I believe that "the end of all things is at hand," and that we need to "exhort one another and so much the more as we see the day approaching." I believe it is near, very near. I want to be ready now, for we have no promise of the future. Let us be good, putting away all harshness and severity, and "love as brethren." God bless you all.

Luthera B. Weaver.

For the World's Crisis.

WORDS OF COMFORT.

"Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid. Ye have heard how I said unto you, I go away, and I come again unto you."

Is there a child of God who can fully express the sweet peace he has while engaged in doing the Master's will? No, for it is a peace that "passeth all understanding." It is a peace that fills the heart too full for utterance.

How true it is that the world cannot give this peace to her children, as our heavenly Father does to his. When trouble like a flood overwhelms us; when the icy hand of death snatches our loved ones from us, we do not sorrow as those without hope, for we

"Take it to the Lord in prayer";

he hears and answers, our sorrowing hearts are made glad, and a holy peace from God pervades our entire being.

Sorrowing mother! weep no more for thy child who now sleeps in death, for "thus saith the Lord, Refrain thy voice from weeping, and thine eyes from tears; for thy work shall be rewarded, saith the Lord, and they [thy children] shall come again from the land of the enemy" (grave). Is not your heart filled with peace when you read such glorious promises? Then be faithful, for the eternal King is soon coming to raise the sleeping ones from their dusty beds. And, mother, thy child will be there, clad in robes of snowy whiteness, and pure as the angels who sang, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men!" Wouldst thou be there too? If thou art a follower of Jesus, and dost love him with all thy heart, thou shalt be there, for he has promised it.

Aged pilgrim! thou knowest what this peace is, that cometh from the Father. Then "let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." Though you have been disappointed in the past, you can now "lift up your head and rejoice, for your redemption draweth nigh." Signs of Jesus' coming are multiplying. The prophetical days are nearly expired. The sun has refused to shine. The moon has been turned into blood. The stars have fallen from heaven. We are now in the midst of "wars and rumors of wars." Men's hearts are failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth." Babylon the great, the mother of harlots, is fallen. The Messiah is soon coming to inaugurate a reign of peace. Then will the earth be filled with the glory of God, as the waters fill the sea. And then will the redeemed ones sing—"saying, Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof; for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood, out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation, and hast made us unto our God kings and priests; and we shall reign on the earth."

Then let us not weary in God's service, but go forward, ever striving to do his will, looking unto the "perfect day," when death will be swallowed up in victory; when we shall exclaim—"O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?"

J. B. W.

Nashua, Jan., 1871.

For the World's Crisis.

THE PRESENT ASPECT OF SOCIETY.

All are familiar with the fact that we are living in an age of corruption, when men are filled with their own wicked devices, and show an almost entire disregard both of God and man. They are wise to do evil, but to do good they have no knowledge. How truly is this verified.

The apostle tells us that because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold. Every influence that can be brought to bear against pure and undefiled religion by Satan and his agents is exerted, so that many have departed from the faith, giving heed to false teachers, and to "doctrines of devils." This embraces the whole catalogue of Spiritism with all its abominable falsehoods and horrible blasphemies. The cardinal "doctrine of devils" is an immortal soul in man. Many are reprobate concerning the plain revealed truth of God's word, and therefore turn to fables.

The faith of multitudes is shaken in regard to the truths of the Bible; which shows a lack of the religious element in society; hence vice and crime abound on every hand.

If there is a pleasure-party, people will flock to it with the greatest interest; while the prayer-meeting is almost entirely neglected. A party convened for the pursuit of worldly pleasure attracts more professed christians than many a religious meeting. Truly such are "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God."

Religion with many is but a mass of forms and ceremonies, to be gone through with on certain occasions, regardless of purity of heart and life. To be in regular church-standing is the highest aim and end of too many.

The question is not asked, is such a minister spiritually-minded; but is he smart? has he a good college education? Such may preach flowery discourses that will contain a great deal of ideality, and sublimity, but these will not convert the sinner, nor awake the unawakened.

Pride, folly, and fashion are displayed in the churches, so that the fashionable go there for the sole purpose of displaying the latest fashions, or to see and be seen. And the churches bid them welcome, but shut their doors against the poor and humble followers of Christ.

Well may we turn away from such, for they are far from the strait and narrow way that leads to life eternal. God has chosen the poor of this world, heirs of the kingdom and rich in faith. He seeks the humble and devout worshiper, but looketh upon the proud afar off.

We are assured that they who will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution. If we can have our good things on the new earth, what matters it so much if we have the worst here? Our light afflictions will work out for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory.

I feel that we ought not to be discouraged. Surely we have no reason to be, when we read the precious promises God has given us. Oh! to be forever saved in that land of beauty, where everything thrills the heart with love and praise to our heavenly Father.

"There is the home of the pure and the blest,
There are the weary ones ever at rest;
There shall life's trials and sorrows be o'er,
There shall the gathered ones part nevermore."

Morris, Ct. T. L. Waugh.

For the World's Crisis.

"OUR EARTHLY HOUSE."

In my article in Crisis of Feb. 1st, under this head, I wish to change the last sentence of the eighth paragraph, so as to read as follows: "To abide in the flesh" stands in opposition, therefore, to that death that was gain, and not to that third thing which he desired as far better than the mortal life, or death at the end of it."

To die is to put off the flesh; to abide in the flesh is to continue to live; while to be translated bodily would be to abide in the flesh in a changed condition only. Life and death were in a measure optional with Paul, as he stood in continual peril of his life by wicked persecutors, and had to resort to different expedients from time to time to save his life; while a personal translation out of the world was not optional, as he was destined to wait for the time of the general unloosing of saints from mortality. He had a desire "to the unloosing", (Gr. eis to analusai), and to be with Christ, which, he said, was very much better. And we are not to take it for granted that he was selfish in the matter, and wanted to unloose himself only, but looked forward to the time of the general unloosing of God's saints from the bondage of corruption, with such an intense longing, that made it difficult to choose between the mortal life or death; nevertheless, to abide in the flesh, or not to die just then, he concluded was more profitable for the Corinthians, for their joy and furtherance in the faith.

Wm. Hobbs.

Cambridgeport, Mass.

For the World's Cri

COME AND REST.

"Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

This precious invitation is addressed to the weary and heavy laden. What encouraging truth. Ofttimes, though sad and weary, we travel on and find nothing to cheer us in looking to the end of our future life; but we have a Savior who is touched with the feeling of our infirmities, and he will henceforth be with us to the end of our journey, if we but listen closely to his gentle voice, and follow after him in the right path.

Reader! are you not sometimes sad and weary, with burdens pressing heavily upon you? Come to Jesus, and rest your aching heart upon his loving breast, and you shall find abiding comfort for your weary soul.

Jesus bids us come unto him when our hearts are sore distressed. When all within is dreary and desolate, and though shadows may gather thickly around our path, we shall not be forsaken, for the loving arms of Jesus will uphold and strengthen us. There is soft repose for the weary and heavy laden. Jesus fulfills his blessed promise of giving rest to all that come unto him. If we take up our burdens with a light heart, he will renew our strength; he will be near us in time of trouble.

There are no weary hearts on the "other shore." Just yonder gleams the beautiful land of rest, enduring peace, and unspeakable joy. Let us, then, not murmur or repine at our lot, for sweeter far shall our rest be for the toils we have had. Christ tells us to come unto him, to believe in him, to trust in him only for salvation; and to all who humbly ask him to sustain them under their burdens, he imparts strength. There is rest if we will but seek for it; for those who take up their cross and follow after Jesus enjoy this sweet rest. Soon he will come to take us to himself, and shield us from all sorrow and suffering. Blessed be God! how good he is to prepare a rest for his people.

Weary one! look away from the present suffering; for there is nothing to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in us. We may always rest in the assurance that God is love; that a rest remaineth for those who love and serve him. A little while, and the saints will enter into that promised land of rest, where the weary-hearted shall dwell forever with the Lord.

J. M. [illegible]

Portland, Me.

THE WORLD'S CRISIS.

LIBERAL OFFERS FOR 1871.

VALUABLE PRESENTS!

The Best Sewing Machine,
The Best Illustrated Dictionary,
The Best Books, and
The Best S. S. Paper,

GIVEN AWAY!

FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS,
TILL THE FIRST OF JUNE.

We would, if possible, double our present circulation during the current year. It can be done, if every one will help, and do all they can. To encourage our friends everywhere to make an earnest and persistent effort, we offer the following valuable presents to all who shall obtain new subscribers for

The World's Crisis

till the 1st of June.

Here is a good opportunity for every one to secure a desirable gift for nothing but a little effort in your own neighborhood or field of labor.

A PRESENT FOR ALL.

For every wife, mother, daughter, or widow, a superior SEWING MACHINE, saving many hours of weary toil in the family, and adding to the means of livelihood.

For every minister, Bible student, or general reader, the best ILLUSTRATED DICTIONARY, BIBLE DICTIONARY, CONCORDANCE, HYMN BOOK, or other valuable religious, theological, or hygienic work.

For the children of our Sunday Schools and churches, any number of copies of THE YOUNG PILGRIM for one year, to cheer them in their pilgrimage, and help them on their way to the kingdom of heaven.

Look over the list, dear friends, and see what you want. Then go out among your neighbors, friends, kindred, acquaintances and strangers, and try what you can do. When you have done all that you can, then order from us your choice of any one of the following

PREMIUMS FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

For 2 New Subscribers, with $5,
A $1 PREMIUM.

1. Hymns of Jubilee Harp, cloth; and Pilgrim Praises.
2. Fables of Infidelity, and Facts of Faith.
3. Stories for Young Pilgrims, vols. I. and II.
4. Two copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
5. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
6. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and Bible Text-Book.

For 3 New Subscribers, with $7.50,
A $1.50 PREMIUM.

1. Jubilee Harp, full gilt, extra cloth, leather back.
2. Immortality, by James H. Whitmore; and Tracts.
3. Health by Good Living, by W. W. Hall, M.D.
4. Plan of Redemption; and Nature of Man.
5. The Broken Seal; an Exposure of Freemasonry.
6. Talks about People's Stomachs, by Dr. Dio Lewis.
7. Three copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
8. Two copies "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
9. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and any $1 premium.

For 4 New Subscribers, with $10,
A $2 PREMIUM.

1. Dictionary of the Holy Bible, with 4 Maps and 250 Engravings; and Grant's "Nature of Man."
2. Cruden's Condensed Concordance, and Sheldon's "Futurity."
3. Berean's Casket and Repository; Scriptures classified by Subjects.
4. Müller's Life of Trust; Effects of Prayer and Faith.
5. Four copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
6. Three copies "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
7. Two copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1 premium.
8. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and any $1.50 premium.

For 5 New Subscribers, with $12.50,
A $2.50 PREMIUM.

1. Synchronology; or, the Principal Events in Sacred and Profane History, from the Creation of Man to the Present Time.
2. Credibility of the Scriptures, in two volumes; a recast of the former work, by J. H. McCulloh; and Bible Text-Book.
3. English Reference Bible.
4. Five copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
5. Four copies "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
6. Three copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1 premium.
7. Two copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1.50 premium.
8. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and any $2 premium.

For 10 New Subscribers, with $25,
A $6 PREMIUM.

1. Webster's National Pictorial Dictionary, 1,040 pages, octavo, and 600 Engravings, price, $6; or, the "Unabridged" (below) for $4 extra.
2. Fifteen copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
3. Seven copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $2.50 premium.

For 15 New Subscribers, with $37.50,
A $12 PREMIUM.

1. Webster's Illustrated Unabridged Dictionary, 1,840 pages, quarto, and 3,000 Engravings, price, $12. The best dictionary extant.
2. Thirty copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
3. Webster's Pictorial Dictionary ($6), and fifteen copies "Young Pilgrim."

For 40 New Subscribers, with $100,
A $55 PREMIUM.

A Grover and Baker Sewing Machine, first class in every respect, with hammer and attachments; one of the best, if not the very best, in the market. These machines make "the Grover and Baker stitch," which is considered the best for family use, and "the shuttle-stitch." Please state which is wanted.

Things to be Remembered.

In raising your list—the names may be obtained from as many different places as you please, and the papers will be mailed by us to each separate address.

Subscriptions may be taken for the year, with $2.50 each; or double the number for six months, with $1.25 each; or any number for both periods, which, with $1.25 and $2.50 each, shall make up the requisite amount.

Keep a list yourself of all names and monies obtained by you and forwarded to us, with the date when sent.

In sending to us—put the list always on a sheet by itself. If, at the same time, you write on other matters, or remit for old subscribers, put that on a separate sheet.

Write each name plainly, with its Post-office, County, and State, and amount paid, all on one line by itself, in that order; and, at the bottom, give the whole amount of premium monies sent, with your own name and full address.

Names sent "for a premium," should, in all cases, be so marked when sent. No name should be sent without the money.

All names and monies can be forwarded at once, or from week to week, as fast as you get them, until the 1st of June.

Any one aiming for a higher premium, and failing to get the full number of names and amount, can pay the balance in cash, and so get the premium; or he can order some other premium on the list corresponding to the amount obtained.

When you have got all the names you can, and want your premium, send us a full list of all the names, addresses, and monies you have sent, so that we may compare them with our books; then we will send you whatever premium you may select from the catalogue—the Sewing Machines and Webster's Dictionaries by express, at the expense of the receiver, and the other books by mail, postpaid.

Monies, if under $5.00, may be sent by letter at our risk. If a larger sum, and under $25, send a Post-Office Money Order, or Registered Letter. If $25 or more, send a Bank Draft, or money Order, payable to the order of GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass. All sums of $5.00 and over, sent in any other way than above directed, will be at the sender's risk.

All letters and remittances for premiums should be addressed to the Business Agent, undersigned, or, if more convenient, they may be enclosed in letters to the Editor, MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

And now, dear brethren and sisters everywhere, from Maine to California, and from the Lakes to the Gulf, put your hearts and hands to the good work, and a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull all together! and the blessing of the Lord be with you!

GEO. T. ADAMS, Business Agent,
Advent Chris. Publication Society.

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, February 15, 1871.

☞ Please Remember!

☞ All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the BUSINESS AGENT, GEO. T. ADAMS.

☞ Take Notice!

☞ All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

CALIFORNIA ITEMS.

Some things are peculiar to the people in California; one is fast riding. Those who ride on horseback go upon a canter, causing a bystander, who was not familiar with the customs here, to think that the rider was in great haste to get the doctor; or to announce some other most important event. No one thinks of trotting a horse, when riding horseback.

BITS.

A ten cent piece here is called a "bit." They have the short and long bit. The long is twelve and a half cents. There are no cents in circulation. They have no change less than five cents. If the price of a thing is "two bits," and you give two ten cent pieces, nothing more is said; if it is fifteen cents, and you give "two bits," you may not expect any change; if it is "two bits," and you give the clerk twenty-five cents, you must not expect any change; hence four bits is either forty or fifty cents; but usually the latter. Any thing not worth five cents is free. Business is done on a generous scale. When a man is found to be on the watch to take all possible advantage of "bits," etc., he is put down as a small, stingy soul, and shunned in business society. There are no bills or scrip in circulation. Gold and silver are used instead. The gold and silver are alike in value.

FRUITS BY THE POUND.

Apples, pears, peaches, other fruits, potatoes, etc., are sold for about six cents a pound. We have never seen as nice fruit in any other place as here. The fruit is large, fair, and delicious. It is very rare that a worm is ever found in an apple in California. The display of fruit in the markets is a beautiful sight. Most delicious grapes, and almost every variety of fruit and nuts, including figs and oranges, are abundant; though the latter grow best little further south than San Francisco.

BOOT-BLACKS.

The boot-blacks here do not go about the streets, as in other cities; but they have an alcove fitted up with elevated chairs, some like a barber's, where gentlemen take their seats, while the boot-black stands up and performs his work. He usually keeps some books, or other articles, to sell.

BILL-POSTERS.

Some bill-posters and knife-grinders go with horse and wagon, having extra conveniences for their work. Business generally, of all kinds, is carried on in a kind of wholesale manner, more than in any other city we have ever visited.

THE WEATHER

is still like a New England May and September. A few nights we have had a little white frost; but no nights cold enough to kill the flowers in the gardens. We have had more or less rain in January, which has caused the grass to look very green. It usually rains nights and clears off in the morning. It is a delightful place to spend a winter. It is like a perpetual spring.

OUR MEETINGS

are increasing in interest every day. To-night (Monday, Jan. 30th) we are to commence meetings in Platt's Hall, that is said to hold fourteen thousand persons. There is great interest to hear. Our friends sent their money for the halls just the right time. It seems as though the Lord was directing every thing connected with this mission. Keep praying for us. Our peace is perfect. Praise the Lord. Stout-hearted sinners are coming to Jesus. Some ten or fifteen request prayers every night. The interest is daily widening and deepening. Some seven nations are represented in our meetings. Rich Jews and Gentiles attend; also many lawyers, doctors and other professional men. They are becoming satisfied that they have at last found a people who are talking and living the pure christian religion. Bro. Bailey, the pastor of Minna street church, is a true yoke-fellow, and loves the appearing of Jesus. We have rarely found such a true-hearted christian minister. Again we say, pray for us.

SALT LAKE.

Since we came to California, we felt a desire to visit Salt Lake city, and proclaim there the evidences of the immediate coming of Christ. After praying about the subject, we felt impressed that the Lord would be pleased to have us visit the Mormon city. A few days since the managing Editor of the Salt Lake Daily Herald came to San Francisco, and attended our meetings. On introduction, we found him an intelligent gentleman. He is one of the elders among the Mormons. In the Herald, of Jan. 27th, we find the following:—

"EXPECTS TO COME.—Elder Miles Grant, the celebrated Second Adventist, has been creating a furore in San Francisco by his lectures on the prophecies concerning the Second Advent. We learn by private source that he would like to come to Salt Lake and lecture on his return east. We shall be pleased to see the Elder, if he comes."

We expect to go, and to see good results. Will our friends ask the Lord to direct us in every thing connected with our California mission? We believe the prayers of our dear Brn. and Srs. are being answered daily. We can see the guiding hand of the Lord most signally manifested in the great work now going on in San Francisco. The interest appears to be increasing every hour. Stout hearts are bowing to Jesus, and giving up their all to him. The young converts are coming out bright and bold in the service of their Redeemer.

SURRENDER OF PARIS.

As Paris has surrendered to the Emperor of Germany, we may expect some important changes soon, which will afford additional evidence that we are near the end of the present dispensation. There is now but little doubt in the public mind that the imperial power of the Napoleonic dynasty will be restored in France. We are living in a period of tragic interest to the Bible student. The believers in the speedy coming of Christ are multiplying on every hand. The signs of his second advent are now so bright, it is difficult to keep the light hidden from the eyes of the true followers of Jesus. Many sleepy watchmen do not yet see any signs of the coming King, but we are hoping that something may soon awaken them to the perils of these last days; and the importance of sounding an alarm at once, to arouse all the sleeping virgins. The long-absent Redeemer may be expected in his glorious appearing within a brief period. Let us all be ready.

GERMAN ENTHUSIASM.

When the Germans in San Francisco heard of the surrender of Paris, their enthusiasm of joy was very great. The intelligence was received about eight o'clock Saturday evening, Jan. 28th. The Alta California says of the effect of the news upon the Germans:—

"Cheer upon cheer followed the announcement of the news, and with one accord rushed into the street, and to the Alta office. Those who were playing billiards dropped their cues, and, in most instances, departed without their coats and hats. Beer was left untasted, and bills unpaid in most of the saloons. The proprietors joining with their customers, rushed to the Alta office for details of the capitulation."

☞ We are requested to publish the following "Correction":—

The Reporter and the Chronicle, San Francisco, Cal., represent Eld. Grant as saying:

"In 1839 a man in New York, named George French, published a pamphlet setting forth these truths: [the destruction of the wicked, etc.] In 1844 Geo. Storrs, who had been led by French's pamphlet to examine the subject, published his famous Six Sermons."

This statement contains several errors. First, French's given name was Calvin. Second, French lived in Mass., near Boston. Third, Geo. Storrs never saw French nor any of his writings prior to his publishing his "Six Sermons"; nor had he ever heard that French had published any thing on the subject. Besides, Geo. Storrs had published "Three Letters," he had written to an eminent Methodist minister as early as April, 1841.—Herald of Life.

CORRECTION.—In our description of the buildings in San Francisco, the omission of the word as gave the opposite meaning from what was intended. The sentence reads as follows: "As a general rule, the buildings are not as high in other cities of the same size, but built in better taste, and with more ornamental work." It should read as follows: "The buildings are not as high as in other cities," etc.

"SPIRITUALISM."

LECTURE BY MILES GRANT.

(From the Alta California.)

Minna Street Church was packed close to suffocation point last night, by an audience called together by the announcement that Elder Grant would preach on "Spiritualism." There is no doubt that the accommodations of Platt's Hall would all have been required, if the meeting had been appointed for that place. The disappointment of many who could not get within hearing distance of the Minna Street pulpit last night, was expressed in anything but scriptural or spiritual phrase. Indeed it is evident that the Elder and his friends should seek and secure larger quarters, in which his next discourse on "Prophecy" or "Spiritualism" may be delivered. It partakes something of the nature of an imposition, to knowingly summon two thousand people to attend at a place where there is not room for more than six hundred, at the outside limits.

The Elder took for his text Timothy 4: 1-2: "Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils." "Speaking lies in hypocrisy."

He wished to say, before commencing his remarks on the text, that he was a friend to all who differed from him on the subject he was about to discuss. He was a friend on the same principle that he would manifest that character whenever he saw any one of his fellow men in physical danger. He proposed to show that the assumed or alleged cause for the spiritual phenomena was not the true cause. He was prepared to admit the facts of physical and intellectual phenomena presented by and claimed for Spiritualism. It was too late in the day to stand up and say that it was all trickery. He would not have the face to make such an assertion in the presence of an intelligent audience. It was said that there were 12,000,000 of Spiritualists in the United States; not all open and avowed, but that number of actually ascertained believers and sympathizers. He had learned from an intelligent gentleman that the sentiments of Spiritualism, the spiritualistic doctrine and sentiment prevailed above all others in this city. It is said that more than half the Congressmen are Spiritualists. Scores of men, once ministers of the gospel, are now preaching the "new religion," Napoleon III., King William of Prussia the Emperor of Russia and the Queen of England consulted Spiritualists. No one would or should say that of the millions of Spiritualists are all playing tricks on each other—fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters, etc. He did not propose to throw ridicule on the subject, but to treat it with all seriousness.

He proposed in his subsequent lectures to consider the subject ranged under five heads: 1st, the cause of the various phenomena of Spiritualism; 2nd, the doctrines taught by those spirits; 3d, the moral tendency of the system: 4th, the political aspect of the "New Religion," or religious sect; and lastly, its prophetical bearing. It would be found to be the most bitter enemy, the most deadly foe that Christianity ever had. While it has nothing in common with Christianity, it is sometimes claimed that it is ancient Christianity revived.

This discourse was to be directed to the cause of spiritualism. The Elder remarked that every effect must have a cause adequate to produce that effect; and when we arrive at the true cause of the spiritual manifestations, it will account for all their phenomena. Various causes have been suggested by different writers and speakers, which have explained some of the phenomena, while they have failed to account for others still more wonderful. Some have assumed that all the manifestations of spiritualism were the result of trickery, practised by the mediums and those associated with them. This assumption might have answered very well in the early history of spiritualism; but he who makes such a statement now, would only show that he knew but little about the facts in the case. He thought that such a position is but little less than an absurdity, and must be given up by those who would treat the subject with candor.

Others have assumed that all the phenomena of Spiritualism can be accounted for upon philosophical principles. This statement, also, might have been satisfactory till facts were multiplied that completely upset such a position, and scattered it to the four winds. Yet it is true that the manifestations are governed by certain laws which regulate or control the physical phenomena in Spiritualism, as in Mesmerism, and these laws may be understood and observed, and will assist very much in obtaining a clear view of the subject under examination.

But what laws of philosophy, either mental or physical, will account for facts like the following:

In September, 1850, when Mr. Charles Partridge, of New York City, was in Rochester, N. Y., he was persuaded to attend a Spiritualist circle. At that time he did not believe in Spiritualism, but went to the circle to please a friend. In the report of the interview, Mr. Partridge says:

"The mediums, the Misses Fox, did not know me, neither did they know that I ever had a brother, or know his age, time of death, etc.: but through the raps, and the use of the alphabet, his whole history was minutely given me. The day of the month, the day of the week, the hour of the day of his death were given me; his business and property were disclosed, and every test I was capable of putting was correctly answered. My ability to test him became exhausted, and yet I told him I did not believe he was communicating, but that, by some means, my own knowledge of these facts were reproduced through the raps. He then said, 'I will communicate to you a matter of business, of which you can have no knowledge, but which will be confirmed to you by next mail.' He then said: 'Messrs. Finley Johnson & Co., of San Francisco, who had your goods for sale, have failed, and will probably not pay one cent on the dollar they owe.' I answered: 'It cannot be true: the house is reputed to be very wealthy: and instead of this last communication confirming the claim that the spirit of my brother is present, it makes me, if possible, still more skeptical, because I feel sure this last communication is not true.' The spirit added further, that he did not think that I should even get an account of the sale of the goods.

The next mail brought letters confirming the failure. I subsequently wrote to the parties several times, requesting account sales, which they did not send. I then sent my account to a house there, to intercede for me to get account sales. They tried to obtain such account, and finally wrote me they could not, and advised me to trouble myself no further about the matter; for if I succeeded in getting account sales the house would not pay one cent on a dollar. And these things I never had the means of knowing were disclosed to me, and things I did not believe at the time have been confirmed."

Many similar cases might be given. What philosophy will meet such cases? Some have said the medium reads the inquirer's mind. How could the medium read what was not there? Mr. Partridge did not believe Messrs. Fouley, Johnson & Co. had failed, when thus informed by the spirit; consequently knew nothing about the matter before; but when "the next mail" came from California, it confirmed what he received some time earlier through the medium in Rochester, N. Y. The question arises, how did the medium obtain the information before the arrival of the mail? While he admitted the physical and intellectual phenomena of Spiritualism, he did not believe that human spirits have anything to do with the manifestations.

The Bible teaches that when a man is in a state of physical death, "his sons come to honor, and he knoweth it not; and they are brought low, but he perceiveth it not of them." Job 14: 21. This cannot be true, unless the teaching of the spirits is false; because they declare the opposite. Again, Job says: "When a few years are come, then I shall go the way whence I shall not return."—Job 16: 22. But the Bible makes this point still stronger and plainer. When describing the state of man in death, the wise man says, it is one where "there is no work, nor device, NOR KNOWLEDGE, NOR WISDOM"; consequently it is a state where they know not any thing. This is in harmony with the teaching of the Psalmist. He says: "In death there is no remembrance of thee."—Ps. 6: 5. Again he says of man: "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth, in that very day his thoughts perish."—Ps. 146: 4. Again: "The living know that they shall die, but the dead know not any thing."—Eccl. 9: 5.

The Elder then declared that the manifestations came from demons. Who are they? "The angels that sinned," called also "evil angels," "unclean spirits," and "devils," or, more properly, "demons." Who are the angels? An order of beings higher than men, who were created before the human race.

The angels resemble men in their exterior form, and on this account have been mistaken for men. "Be not forgetful to entertain strangers, for thereby some have entertained angels unawares." Heb. 13: 2. This proves that they are not disembodied human spirits. They are real persons, with tangible organisms, like men; yet they are not made of dust as are men. Jesus said, "A spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have." We read of Jesus—"He took not on him the nature of angels, but he took on him the seed of Abraham."

The good angels never have claimed that they were the spirits of men, or that they ever lived on our earth. The angels have power to render themselves invisible, or to be seen by us, as they may choose. This is shown in the case of Balaam.

Some hold that demons are nothing more than men's propensities. In James 2: 19, we read—"Thou believest that there is one God; thou doest well; the devils also believe and tremble." It cannot be said of men's propensities that they "believe and tremble."

WHERE DO DEMONS DWELL?

In 2 Peter, 2: 4, we read, "God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell and delivered them into chains of darkness, to be reserved unto judgment." Where is the hell in which they are "reserved unto judgment?" The word tartarus, here rendered "hell," occurs nowhere else in the Bible.

It is not the place where wicked men go at death, for they go to sheol or hades. It is not the place where the wicked are to be finally punished, for that is in gehenna. The word is not used to represent the abode of men in any condition; it is only applied to "the angels that sinned."

"Dr. Wm. Ramsey, an able and learned writer, says: 'The word tartarus means, according to Greek writers, in a physical sense, the bounds or verge of this material system.' Dr. R. remarks, 'That place is, probably, at present, within the atmosphere of our earth.'

"The learned Ralph Cudworth, D. D., in his 'Intellectual System,' vol. 3 p. 363, while speaking of Peter's remark, says: 'And by tartarus here, in all probability, is meant this lower caliginous [i. e., dark] air, or atmosphere of the earth, according to that of St. Austin concerning these angels, 'That after their sin they were thrust down into the misty darkness of this lower air.' "

Suidas, an ancient writer, says it signifies "the place in the clouds," or, "in the air." It is said of the great leader of the hosts who are opposed to the Lord, that he is "the prince of the power of the air."—Eph. 2: 2. The Scriptures also tell us of "the rulers of the darkness of this world," and of "spiritual wickedness in high places;" or, more literally, "wicked spirits in aerial regions."

Dr. Parkhurst, the lexicographer, says: "It appears from a passage in Lucian, that by tartarus was meant, in a physical sense, the bounds of this material creation."

Empedocles says: "Our dull, lack-lustre globe is the doomed haunt and dungeon of evil angels, envious and malignant demons."

Dr. Whately says: "The word used by Peter, which our translators render 'cast down to hell,' or tartarus, is to be understood of our dark, gloomy earth, with its dull clouds, foul vapors, and misty atmosphere. . . . Socrates called the abyss, or sea, tartarus, as does also Plato, who elsewhere calls our dim, lack-lustre earth itself tartarus. Plutarch says our air . . , is called tartarus, from being cold. And both Hesiod and Homer call it the aerial tartarus. In no other sense or way can St. Peter be understood and explained."

Lucian says: "The great depth of the air is called tartarus."

The Bible informs us that they are "seducing" people, causing them to "depart from the faith once delivered to the saints"; speaking lies in hypocrisy," and opposed to the marriage laws of the country.—1 Tim. 4: 1-13. They are "deceiving" men and women by the means of miracles, and leading a multitude to adopt "doctrines of devils" instead of the truth of the Bible.

When Mrs. Cora Hatch was lecturing in Boston, in a trance state, she said: "The action of light agitates, dissipates, or in some way so disturbs the fluid, gas, magnetism, or whatever the instrumentality be called, which is employed by spirits in acting upon grosser matter, that they are unable to control and employ it."

The demons employ the same agent that a mesmerizer does when he controls his subjects. In answer to the question, "What, then, is a distinction between Mesmerism and Spiritualism?" we find the following in the Spiritual Age, of April 3d, 1858: "Mesmerism is something which a man does while he has his clothes on; Spiritualism is a similar act of his, after his clothes have been put off. [By clothes, they mean body.] Suppose I magnetize you to-day; and that I, the mesmerizer, speak, write, act through you, being unconscious—this is Mesmerism. Suppose, further, that I die to-night, and that to-morrow, I, a spirit, come and magnetize you, and then speak, write, act through you—this is Spiritualism."

The Banner of Light says:

Q. How do we understand that spirits control an organism?

A. We have just informed you that they do so by means of the magnetic aura, or animal magnetism.

Q. Do spirits concentrate their power upon the brain?

A. Sometimes on the nervous system. In cases of mechanical writing, power is concentrated upon the ganglion of the arm, and is not at all connected with the brain. In cases of entire physical control, then it pervades the entire physical body.

Dr. Blain, son of Eld. J. Blain, attended a lecture on Mesmerism. At the close of the lecture, the speaker desired those to present themselves that were willing to be mesmerized, provided the speaker could do it. Dr. Blain submitted himself for trial, and was mesmerized. The operator then made the doctor believe that he was about to amputate a limb. Accordingly, he went through the motions necessary to get out his surgical instruments, then prepared his subject for the operation, took his knife and cut through the flesh to the bone, then took his saw and sawed off the bone, then his knife again to cut off the remaining muscle; then got his needle and thread and took up the arteries, and so on till the wound was all done up nicely, when the operator exclaimed, "All right," and the doctor came out of his mesmeric state. When the doctor was going through the movements necessary for amputating the limb, it was a reality to him. The operator formed a mental picture of the whole scene, in his own mind, and that became a reality to Dr. Blain.

The spirits operate just as a mesmerizer does. Just as a mesmerizer makes his subject see men, women, children, birds, flowers, etc., which exist only as mental pictures in his mind; "So, positive spirits who are around, may present the image of any person with whom they are familiar, and it may appear as a reality to the impressible medium." What spirits are these doing this work? The spirits of demons, not human spirits. Then it follows that the only difference between Mesmerism and Spiritualism is simply this: in Mesmerism a human being is the operator, and in Spiritualism a demon. But in both cases the medium does not see any real friends, flowers, birds, or other objects; consequently it follows that our deceased friends are not present to make any communications, but another class of beings—the demons—are trying to make us believe that they themselves are our spirit-friends, by presenting mental pictures of them to their mediums.

We have given above the leading points made by the Elder; though a full report of his hour and a half discourse would embrace many minor yet important arguments, which we have not time or space to mention.

At the close of his discourse, which was listened to with the closest attention, a dozen or more persons in the audience rose and propounded questions, which were promptly answered by the Elder.

☞ It has been deemed advisable to change the place of the quarterly meeting of the W. C. Association, from Goffstown, N. H., to Providence, R. I. See notice.

CAN NOT DODGE THE PROOF.

When we adduce strong Bible testimony to prove that death fully kills man, and consigns him to a state of utter unconsciousness till the resurrection morn, an attempt is often made to evade the force of the proof, by claiming that reference is not made to the intellectual man, but merely to the house which he had been a tenant of. We wish here to quote several texts that relate to the condition of man in death, and notice the feeble efforts of theologians to escape the conclusion that they teach an unconscious state for the intellectual man after death.

1. We have the definite statement—"The dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence." Ps. 115: 17. This statement either relates to man as man, or to a component part of man. If it relates to the intellectual man, it clearly negates the doctrine of consciousness in death, and tells us that men "go down into silence," where they "praise not the Lord." But we are told that it is only the body that shall then "praise not the Lord." Well, then it follows that only the body praised the Lord before death; for if there is any force to the statement, it indicates that whatever praised the Lord previous to death, could not praise him after death; and if only the body praised the Lord before death, then the body is the intellectual man, for praise is impossible without intellect; and if the body, instead of the soul, possessed intellect before death, then the soul, having never been the intellectual part, can not possess intellect after death: so, from this standpoint, death must produce unconsciousness in man in the fullest sense. If, however, it is insisted that the soul is the intellectual part, instead of the body, and that the soul praises the Lord through the body, then the conclusion is inevitable that the part which praises the Lord previous to death, enters into "silence" at death: so from this standpoint, too, it is seen that death must envelope man in total unconsciousness. But if, as a last resort, it should be claimed that soul and body jointly praise the Lord before death, then, as that which praised the Lord in life, ceases to praise him in death, it follows that soul and body jointly cease to praise God, and enter into a state of "silence" at death. To say of some part of man that never did and never could praise the Lord while alive, that when dead it should not praise him, would be nonsense too ridiculous to charge upon a sensible man, to say nothing about putting it into the lips of an inspired witness. Whatever praises God in life, let it be a part of man only, or the man entire, just that intellectual something ceases to praise him after death, being enveloped in "silence." So there is no escape from the conclusion that this text teaches the utter unconsciousness of the intellectual man, after he is paralyzed by the hand of death.

2. The positive affirmation is made—"The living know that they must die; but the dead know not anything, neither have they any more a reward; for the memory of them is forgotten. Also their love, and their hatred, and their envy, is now perished." Eccl. 9: 5, 6. This statement either relates to an abstract part of man, or to the man entire; and with either view, it will prove the utter unconsciousness of the intellectual man after death. With a design to evade the conclusion that the text teaches the unconsciousness of the man proper, in death, we are often told that the statement simply refers to the body, and only proves that the body will be unconscious in death. But the text attributes knowledge to some part of man while alive, and denies it to the same part when dead; "the living know" something, "but the dead know not any thing."

The intellectual man only can possess knowledge, whether that be the body alone, the soul alone, or both combined; and the intellectual man only can be dispossessed of knowledge by the stroke of death, for that cannot be taken from a being which it never possessed. If the body only is the intellectual man, or, in other words, if the body only possesses knowledge during this life, then the soul is destitute of knowledge, and can not be the intellectual man, and of course, having never possessed knowledge before death, can not possess it after death: so from this premise, death leaves man fully unconscious. If the claim should be made that the soul, instead of the body, is the intellectual man in this life, it being the knowing part of man, then it follows that as that which possesses knowledge while alive, shall be deprived of knowledge after death, the soul must be consigned to unconsciousness under the powerful blow of death; for whatever part knowledge is attributed to during life, it is deprived of it in death; hence, if the soul is the intellectual part before death, it will "know not any thing" after death. If body and soul combined constitute the intellectual man prior to death, then both combined will be deprived of consciousness, and "know not any thing" subsequent to death: for whatever may be said to "know" while alive, is as positively said to "know not any thing" in death; for this statement must not be made to clash with the affirmation of Jesus, "Thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just" (Luke 14: 14); so while there is no reward in death, there is to be reward after the reign of death is over. Not only is death here pronounced a state in which there shall be no reward given to men, but it is also affirmed that "their love, and their hatred, and their envy, is now perished"; and it is a conceded fact that these passions of love and hatred belong to the intellectual man, let that be soul or body; for it is impossible to love or hate without intellect; and if they belong to the body, instead of the soul, then the body is the intellectual man, and the soul is destitute of intellect previous to death, and consequently cannot possess it in death. But if these passions, which are guided by intellect, are passions of the soul, and not of the body, then the soul must be affected by the stroke of death, under which these passions "perish." So it is impossible to evade the conclusion that this text teaches the unconsciousness of the intellectual man in death, by applying the statement to the body only, for that makes the body only the intelligent part while living, and denies intellect to the soul previous to death, and consequently leaves it destitute of knowledge in death: so from this hypothesis, death plunges the intellectual man into utter unconsciousness.

3. In the same chapter we read this statement: "There is no work, nor knowledge, nor device, nor wisdom, in the grave [sheol—the state of the dead] whither thou goest." Eccl. 9: 10. The effort of our opponents to apply this statement to the body only, will not help their theory in the least; for the very part of man that possesses "knowledge" goes into sheol; if the body is the part that goes to sheol, then the body is the intellectual man while alive, and consequently the soul is destitute of intellect even in life, and therefore cannot be conscious in death; but if the soul is the intellectual man during life, then it is the soul that goes into sheol at death, where there is no "knowledge," "nor wisdom." But if the intellectual man is soul and body combined while in life, then it follows that this very intellectual man goes into a state at death where there is no "knowledge." This address, "whither thou goest," is made to a living, conscious being, whether to the soul, or body, or both united in one; and whatever part is here addressed, goes to a realm where there is no "knowledge." That which lacks knowledge before death, must be without knowledge after death; and that which possesses knowledge in life, is dispossessed of it in sheol, which is a realm of unconsciousness, whether occupied by physical man, or disembodied men.

4. David speaks thus concerning man in death: "For in death there is no remembrance of thee: in the grave [sheol—the state of the dead] who shall give thee thanks?" Ps. 6: 5. When we quote this strong declaration to disprove consciousness in death, we are met with the assertion that reference is made only to the body; but the force of the argument cannot thus be set aside; for if allusion is here made to the body only, then it follows that the body is the part that possesses memory prior to death, instead of the soul; and if this is so, the soul must be destitute of memory after death as really as before; thus this attempt to escape the force of the declaration, leaves man unconscious in death. That which could remember during life, ceases to remember after death, whether we ascribe memory to soul or body, or to both jointly. In life we possess the faculty of memory; in death we are deprived of it—the very being that can remember in life, can not remember in death.

5. Job testifies thus concerning man in death: "His sons come to honor, and he knoweth it not; and they are brought low, but he perceiveth it not of them." Job 14: 21. The intellectual man, the very one that possessed knowledge during life, "knoweth not" what is transpiring while in death's embrace. But we are told that only the body is here referred to. Then the body is the intellectual man, instead of the soul, and consequently as the soul never possessed knowledge in life, it cannot possess it in death; so this method of dodging the proof fails to disprove man's unconsciousness in death. But if the soul, instead of the body, is the intellectual man, or if soul and body jointly constitute the intellectual man, this very man that possesses knowledge in life, is deprived of it in death; "in that very day his thoughts perish" (Ps. 146: 4), the thinking man dies; and can the body think without a soul? If both jointly constitute the thinker, death will kill the thinker.

W. S.

THE COMING RESTITUTION.

The apostle Peter informs us that when the Father shall again "send Jesus Christ," we shall witness the "times of restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." Acts 3: 20, 21. Not the "restitution of all things" unqualifiedly, but simply of "all things which God hath spoken." If we were to have a restitution of all things, without limitation or qualification, it would involve the restitution of Beelzebub and his satanic legions,—a thing never mentioned by the prophets. But the prophets have spoken of a good time to come, when sin and death shall end, paradise be restored, and the faithful ones be restored to their ancient home when freed from the curse. "He will swallow up death in victory; and the Lord God will wipe away tears from off all faces, and the rebuke of his people shall he take away from off all the earth; for the Lord hath spoken it." Isa. 25: 8. Here, as elsewhere, God has spoken of a restitution of the saints from death to a tearless life, and the restitution of earth to a sinless state, the rebuke of God's people being obliterated therefrom; then will be fulfilled the affirmation, "Violence shall no more be heard in thy land, wasting nor destruction within thy borders. . . . Thy people shall be all righteous; they shall inherit the land forever." Isa. 60: 18, 21. Here is a restitution foretold by the prophets, which will obliterate death, tears, sin, and the curse, and substitute a world-wide state of sinless and deathless perfection, of endless duration, to be enjoyed by immortalized and glorified saints, who have lived and died on earth in years gone by.

W. S.

MISSION WORK.

Have we anything to do as missionaries in the gospel field? In view of our comparative inactivity, this question seems appropriate. We are doing something, it is true; but are we doing all we ought to do to sound the judgment alarm in new fields? God has a people scattered all through the different organizations, who are in profound darkness upon these topics that so much interest us as a people; and they receive the light with eagerness when properly presented to them. Shall they have the light? Will we help them to it? If so, it will require a sacrifice upon our part. Our assent to the proposal will not do it. Our good wishes will not accomplish it. Our deep feelings will not help on the work, unless we feel deep in our pockets. No other kind of feeling will pay the R. R. fare of a missionary, nor pay the rent of a hall to preach in, in a new field.

We ought to open a hundred new missionary fields the coming season; and a portion of them in the destitute south; though this is the most difficult field in the world to put a northern missionary in, among the whites, unless he is a judicious and cautious man; and even then he will be watched with suspicious eyes from every quarter, till they are satisfied he is not an enemy in disguise. But the South needs the light, and it will be gladly received by many.

Who will help spread the gospel of the kingdom in new fields? Mission work should be largely our present work.

W. S.

For the World's Crisis

WILLING IGNORANCE.

Peter in his second epistle, third chapter, has drawn a prophetic picture of the two classes of professors in the last days. First, scoffers of those who are showing the promises of Christ's coming to do a work of which their narrow, sectarian theology does not admit. Hence they reject all evidence, and become the "willingly ignorant" class to come in the last days,—which days are certainly upon us. Each character speaks for itself. The one class know these things because they believe what the prophets and apostles have written about these times. Read this chapter again carefully. It will strengthen your faith. One class see new developments of Scripture in improvements in every direction of business, new modes of traveling, new prophetic aspect of nations, also the sudden downfall of the pope, and other startling prophetic events all around us, which make us know the things spoken of in the seventeenth verse, of which the other class are willingly ignorant, because the last day scoffing priests and people say, Where is the promise of His coming? Such as live in the spirit and pride of this age will remain in darkness, and be overtaken as a thief, as Jesus has told us.

This state of willing ignorance among the people is in consequence of ministers spiritualizing the Scriptures, doing away with literal fire, the literal resurrection, and making Christ's coming spiritual, and at death. The great army of opposers are led on by scoffing, blind ministers, to reject this truth; all of which tries our patience; but we have encouragement from Rev. 3: 10, that He will keep us from the temptation that is prophetic and universal. See next verse. "Behold, I come quickly."

This time of temptation has begun. See the perplexity among the nations. See how rashly the monarchs of earth act. See what hosts are tempted, and how many commit suicide. Professors are tempted to go into the spirit of the world for enjoyment. Adventists are tempted to find fault, and, uneasy, are trying one another needlessly. This is the "error of the wicked" against which we are warned. Brethren, let us endure the temptations of these times, and be ready for His coming.

HIRAM MUNGER.

— Seed which is sown in toil, springs up and yields an abundant harvest; the righteous who labor in the night of trouble, receive as a reward great prosperity and joy.

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 24th, 1870, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.
WM. B. HERSON, Sec'y Adv. Chr. Pub. Soc'y.

Remittances should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass., or they may be enclosed with remittances to the Crisis office.

Donations for the Tract Fund.

Previous acknowledgments	$342.16
M. C. Wadwell	1.50
J. B. Pain	1.00

POOR FUND.

(To send the Crisis to the Poor.)

Previous acknowledgments..........$37.76

YOUNG PILGRIM FUND.

Previous acknowledgments..........$17.58

AMER. ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

Donations are earnestly solicited, to enable this Society to send out missionaries, and other means, into the Southern States, and elsewhere, as the Lord may open the door, to proclaim "the glad tidings of the kingdom at hand"; and should be sent, as also payments of pledges made, to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, P. O. Drawer 202, Boston, Mass., who will acknowledge the same in the columns of the Crisis.

Previous acknowledgments	$1,006.94
Rufus Pike	20.00
C. F.	1.00
John Bigwood	1.00
W. E. Stone	5.00
C. P. Lothrop	1.00
S. C. Gould	5.00

SPRINGFIELD NATIONAL ADVENT CAMPMEETING.

Previous acknowledgments	$10.00
E. Cotton (balance of pledge)	5.00
S. A. (From Refreshment Stand)	1.00

For the World's Crisis.

CHRIST ALL IN ALL.

"Christ is all, and in all."—Col. 3: 11.

A short sentence, but it contains great things. Christ is all in the counsels of God concerning the redemption of man. No other being could be found who was worthy or capable of undertaking the wondrous work. On the soil where Adam fell, Christ was promised. The devil must be defeated, and the forfeited inheritance must yet be restored.

Christ is all in the Bible. All the rays of divine truth connect and centre in him, like the rays of light in a focus. In all parts of the Bible Christ is seen; dimly and indistinctly at the beginning, more clearly in the middle, fully and completely at the close, but really and substantially every where. Christ in shame and Christ in glory, Christ suffering and Christ reigning, was the theme which filled the minds of the ancient prophets.

Christ was all in the faith and preaching of the apostles. Philip went down to the city of Samaria and preached Christ unto them. Paul preached in the synagogue that Jesus is the Christ.

Christ must be all in the christian ministry now. We preach not ourselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord, and ourselves your servants for Jesus' sake. Christ is all in the religion of every true christian on earth. There is no other name, no other door, no other light, no other way, no other refuge, by which and in which sinners can be saved. Christ is all in the sinner's justification. "Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ." One believing glance at the cross of Calvary will save a soul from death, and hide a multitude of sins. Christ is all in a believer's sanctification. "Without me ye can do nothing." He is the vine, we are the branches. United to him we have life, and can bring forth fruit unto holiness; separated from him we are dead, and must utterly perish. Looking unto Jesus we become more and more like him, and are transformed into his image. Christ is all in the believer's comfort. He was anointed to comfort all that mourn. He can be touched with the feeling of our infirmities. He has tasted human sufferings in all their varied forms and phases. He can pour the oil of consolation into wounded hearts. He can say to the tossing billows, Peace, be still, and there will be a heavenly calm in the troubled heart.

Christ is all in the christian's hope. What is our hope? It is just this—Christ is coming the second time to do a glorious work; coming to raise the dead; coming to save his people; coming to wipe away tears and bind up broken hearts; coming to remove the curse; coming to make all things new; coming to reign in glory forevermore.

Christ will be all in the enjoyment of the world to come. His presence will be the delight of the saved. His praise will be their employment. Around the throne this song shall swell—"Thou art worthy; for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation; and hast made us unto our God kings and priests; and we shall reign on the earth." Then through the vales and o'er the hills of Paradise the heavenly strains will echo, until every creature joins in the chorus—"Blessing, and honor, and glory, and power, be unto Him that sitteth on the throne, and unto the Lamb, forever and ever."

Reader! what think ye of Christ? Dost thou believe on the Son of God? In the language of the dying martyr, I hope ever to exclaim—"None but Christ—none but Christ!" J. W. THOMAS.

Rockland, R. I.

Correspondence.

From Bro. H. W. Sargent.

Brethren in Christ:—The Lord is yet on the giving hand. Much good has been the result of a few evening and two Sabbath meetings held here by Bro. Z. T. Wood of Springfield, Vt. He administered the emblems of our Lord's broken body and spilled blood, on Sunday the 22nd. It has been only a few months since we were organized into a little church. We have seen some afflictions and trials as christians since we organized, but out of them all the Lord has delivered us. During the meetings, ending on Sunday evening last, the Lord has been with his people and has heard the prayers of those that trust in him. Several have shown evidence, too plain to be mistaken, that God had sent conviction home to their hearts; while others, who once had known the Savior, and had been wandering away from home for years, have again been brought to the saving knowledge of the truth, and God's praying ones have been strengthened. Bless the name of Christ, the goodness of the Lord endureth forever.

Darkness reigns around us, but, methinks, I see a small, bright light glittering from afar through all the mist and darkness, that will lead us safely through, if we follow it. Though we must pass through many persecutions, trials, and, perhaps, troubles that will be unto death, before we enter the glorious kingdom of God, yet we never ought to be discouraged as long as we can with confidence go to Jesus and find a solace there. Let us lay hold on eternal life while it can be obtained, that we who have never beheld each other in the flesh, may greet each other on the immortal shores. How the hosts of the true Israel will shout when the borders of the heavenly Canaan appear. There will be such a song chanted as earth never heard before. By the help of Christ, I expect to be one of that choir then. May the Lord help us to walk in the light, and watch the development of his word; then when the "cloud" that led Israel moves, we may be ready to move in harmony with it. H. W. SARGENT.

Stowe, Vt.

From Bro. F. H. Chamberlain.

TO THE BRN.:—I propose, if the Lord will, to go out as a traveling agent for the Crisis, Bible Banner, and all of our best periodicals, and visit the brethren in such places as may be accessible, or within a range of fifty or seventy-five miles of Worcester, Mass. I wish to have all who can aid or encourage me in this work (and who feel interested in this thing) to write to me at Webster, Mass., and give me information in regard to the prospects in their section. I intend to have a supply of tracts, and can furnish the brethren with any of the books kept for sale at the Crisis office. F. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

Webster, Mass.

Extracts from Letters.

SR. P. M. EATON writes:—"The goodly heritage promised to Abraham, and looked forward to by his sons, has ever been a theme of expectation, of gratitude, and thanksgivings. Canaan, the land of milk and honey, was the land for which the kings and warriors fought, where David's holy psalms were sung, and the organ and the harp joined the anthem; where the Temple was glorious in the perfection of beauty, and where the glory of the Lord was made known. But at length Israel was scattered among the countries; and as centuries elapsed, were lost and forgotten, and Judah wandered in exile, or remained in servitude. To the Gentiles was the gospel preached; and the fulness of the Gentiles hear in every nation the glad tidings.

Can it be possible, as is now beginning to be proclaimed, that through the ages past Israel has wandered and been forgotten, and that to-day his sons and daughters, through the Celtic and Teutonic races, have been preserved, and do now fill a nation, a strong nation; and that to them the promises made to Abraham, that his children should be as the sand by the seashore for multitude, are fulfilling even to-day? Can it be that the last prophet's warnings and promises are addressed to the people of this land, even us, as the sons and daughters of Israel? Let us "search the Scriptures," and search history, and if it be found true, let us not refuse to be called the children of Abraham, in whom shall all the families of the earth be blessed. Let us behold with thanksgivings the "good land," and prepare for the coming of Him whose right it is to reign, and who 'shall sit upon the throne of his father David' in the city of God—the New Jerusalem, into which the glory and honor of the nations shall be brought. 'Great is the mystery of godliness; God manifest in the flesh.' To Him who is 'the offspring of David,' and 'the bright and Morning Star,'—to him be blessing, and glory, and honor, and dominion, and riches, and power. To the Prince of the kings of the earth be hosannas."

BRO. H. S. WOODS writes:—"Left home Jan. 14th, and went to Portsmouth, N. H. Was glad to know that the church is in working order, and peace and harmony prevail. Was at Newcastle, at the dedication of the new Advent Chapel. Found Brn. Daniels, Leavitt, Brown and Shorey there to preach the word. Bro. Leavitt preached the dedication sermon to a crowded house. This house was built by a few who became interested in having the New Hampshire Tent pitched there last summer, in which Brn. Leavitt and Shorey labored three weeks, without money and without price. I thank God we have some faithful laborers in the gospel.

The 21st, went to South Berwick, Me., to the dedication of another Advent Chapel. On Sunday the house was well filled with an intelligent audience. After the forenoon service, two were baptized, and others are interested in the great truth which we believe. Bro. Leavitt preached the dedication sermon, which was listened to with much interest.

Last summer, when Brn. Leavitt and Shorey were there with the Tent, they held meetings evenings, and in the day-time did the most of the framing to the new Chapel. I believe there is a class of people that can be reached by tent-meetings, and in no other way."

BRO. C. H. SWEET writes from Lewiston, Me.:—"I wish to make the following brief statement of facts, in relation to the church here:—The time for which the church had leased Graffam's Hall, on Bates St., having expired, they rented Central Hall, on Main St., where they are now worshiping. Some five or six believers in the non-resurrection of the wicked have since commenced holding meetings in Graffam's Hall, their avowed object being to divide and destroy the church. They have thus far met with but poor success, and everything seems to indicate that their efforts will prove a complete failure. They have among them but two persons who ever had any connection with the church, and one of them was expelled some time ago.

God smiles upon us, and we are at present having some most excellent meetings. We are seeking to get men converted to God, instead of proselyting them to some pet theory, and our efforts are being crowned with success."

BRO. H. H. ARNOLD writes:—"While preaching from place to place and seeing so few that show they love God with all the heart, might, mind and strength, it causes me to inquire, Who are christians? This question interests all, for we read in Matt. 7: 21, 23, 'Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven.' Many deceive themselves, because they can make long prayers, or exhort well in meeting, or give a dollar a year to preachers; having great confidence in their works, by which they claim to be christians. Let us be careful and not be deceived; for God is not mocked."

A BRO. from Machiasport writes:—"The clouds are thickening fast, and signs of the Savior's coming are visible on every hand; evil men and seducers are waxing worse and worse; but some here are seeking the narrow way, and have chosen Jesus as their friend. Seven or eight have started for the kingdom. They are quite zealous in the cause of Christ. They are not satisfied with having the love of God in their own hearts, and keeping it to themselves, but they are desirous of seeing all around them engaged in this same glorious cause. My prayer is that they may dig deep, and lay the foundation on the rock, Christ Jesus."

—I am not a Calvinist, an Armenian, a Universalist, a Unitarian, a Pelagian, nor a Swedenborgian, but I am simply a preacher of the gospel, a believer in the Lord Jesus Christ, and trying to make other people believe in him—that is all.—H. W. Beecher.

Obituaries.

ASHMAN. Fell asleep in Jesus, Jan. 30th, after an illness of six days, Rebecca, wife of Eld. Wm. Ashman, of Philadelphia, aged fifty-seven years.

In former years our deceased sister and her companion were connected with a Baptist church in this city. When they heard the news of the speedy return of our Lord, nearly thirty years ago, they identified themselves with our body, who love and wait for the appearing of the Savior. When they heard that gospel that brings life and immortality to light, they received it into good and honest hearts. Our sister feared no evil as she walked through the dark valley. She was reconciled to God. Her last end was peace. She was a quiet, unassuming, and practical christian. A devoted, self-denying, and pious mother. As a wife, her fidelity was marked. In health and in sickness she repeatedly expressed her intense desire that all her family might accept of the great salvation, and be thus prepared for the coming kingdom.

Funeral services conducted by the writer.
F. H. BURBANK.

SADLER. Died, in Lowell, Mass., Jan. 31st, 1871, of consumption, Mrs. Elizabeth J. Sadler, aged thirty-two years.

She loved the second advent of our Lord, and ardently cherished the blessed hope of soon rising in the likeness of Jesus.

PERKINS. Also, in Lowell, Feb. 1st, Mrs. Lizzie Perkins, wife of Mr. F. H. Perkins, aged thirty-seven years.

She loved the blessed Savior, and the hope of the soon coming kingdom. She sleeps in Jesus.

The funerals of both these beloved and loving children of God were attended by Bro. Wm. H. Mitchell, who spoke words of comfort to those whose hearts were stricken, and whose eyes were filled with tears of sadness. All who knew these precious children and disciples of Jesus, were convinced that in the awful future it would be well with them. "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord. . . . Yea, saith the Spirit, they rest."
C. P. WHITTEN.

BLACKSTONE. Died, in Biddeford, Me., Feb. 3d, of diphtheria, Mary E. Blackstone, aged thirty-four years.

Sister B. was converted with the Methodists, and lived an honored member for several years; became acquainted with the Advent faith four years since; was honored with a letter from that church, and joined the Advent church of this place. She was beloved by all who knew her, and was a faithful laborer in the vineyard of her Master. She was sick but eight days, and when we followed her to the grave, her daughter, Hattie F. Blackstone, aged five years, departed this life, Sabbath, Feb. 5th, with the same disease.

Funeral services attended by the writer.
J. HILL.

CROSBY. Died, at Rantoul, Ill., Dec. 28th, of quick consumption, Sarah, wife of Daniel Crosby, aged thirty years.

A loving and true wife, a tender and affectionate mother, a consistent and devoted christian, she sleeps beneath the cold sods of the prairie, with her dear white face, which we shall never look upon again in this world, upturned to heaven, whence she looked for that Jesus who is to change our vile bodies, and fashion them like his glorious body. May God comfort the husband and children with the riches of his grace. E. J. O.

BENHAM. Fell asleep, Dec. 20th, in Hampden, Nettie May, daughter of Bro. and Sr. M. W. Benham, aged one year, eight months, and twenty days.

Thus another bud of promise has been stricken to the ground, but the morning of the resurrection will unfold it in a fairer clime. G. L. TEEPLE.

HALE. Died, in Hampden, O., Dec. 27th, Clarinda, wife of A. Hale, in the sixty-fourth year of her age.

Her illness was long and painful, which she bore with christian patience and resignation. She sleeps in Jesus till that morning when the grave yields up the dead in Christ. A. HALE.

BROWN. Died, in Sutton, N. H., Dec. 22nd, 1870, Jennie Idell, youngest child of Dexter E. and Lois A. Brown, aged one year and four months.

Bro. and Sr. Brown feel comforted in this time of affliction in the blessed hope of soon meeting little Jennie where death can never part. Words of comfort were spoken by the writer.
D. W. DAVIS.

COTTRELL. Fell asleep, at Clear Lake, Iowa, Jan. 14th, 1871, Benjamin F. Cottrell, son of G. B. and H. Cottrell, and brother of Eld. A. J. Cottrell, aged twenty-three years, nine months, and eight days.

The writer tried to comfort the mourners with a text of their choice—Job 19: 25, 26.
P. S. W. DEYO.

MARSHALL. Died, at Hooksett, N. H., of consumption, Jan. 22nd, Frank A. Marshall, orphan grandson of George W. and Pamelia P. Marshall, aged eighteen years, seven months, and two days.

Rest, dear one; thy sufferings are over; sleep peacefully, till Jesus' own voice shall say, Arise!
P. A. CRESSEY.

ABBOTT. Died, at Clear Lake, Iowa, Dec. 10th, 1870, Polly, wife of Asa Abbott, and mother of Sr. C. S. Goodwin, formerly of Bradford, N. H., aged eighty-one years and two months.

Sermon by the writer, from Heb. 5: 9.
P. S. W. DEYO.

JONES. Died, Feb. 2d, Katie E. Jones, of Merrimack, Wis., aged four years, eight months, and six days.

"She is not dead, but sleepeth."
J. D. JONES.

Married.

BRADFIELD—DELANO. At the Advent Hall in Darien, Dec. 25th, by Eld. A. C. Newell, Mr. WM. BRADFIELD, of Rochester, N. Y., and Miss FLORA DELANO, of Batavia, N. Y.

BICKFORD—BICKFORD. In Meredith, N. H., Jan. 4th, 1871, by Elder N. Glidden, Mr. MOSES C. BICKFORD and Miss ANNA BICKFORD, both of Meredith, N. H.

STICKNEY—HALL. In Piermont, N. H., Feb. 1st, 1871, by A. H. Clark, Mr. JONATHAN G. STICKNEY and Miss SUSAN E. HALL, both of Orford, N. H.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

LONDON, Feb. 7. Fifty railroad wagons laden with provisions entered Paris on the 3d, bearing the inscription, London gifts to Paris.

LONDON, Feb. 8. The Times to-day says that all the information received from Paris indicates a longing a longing for peace at any price.

LONDON, Feb. 9. A dispatch from Belgrade says that the Turkish Government is concentrating a large force of troops on the Roumanian frontier, and announces that they will remain there while the treaty of Paris of '56 is observed.

QUEEN VICTORIA HISSED.

LONDON, Feb. 9. [Special to New York World] The Queen, preceded by the Horse Guards, in passing through Whitehall, to open Parliament to-day, was greeted with mingled cheers and hisses, the latter predominating. The cheers were chiefly given by Germans. The extraordinary police precautions prevented disorder.

LONDON, Feb. 9. Colonel Halpin, one of the released Fenian prisoners, is a passenger on the Siberia for Boston.

John Locke, M. P. for Southwark, in an address to his constituents last evening, expressed himself in favor of the grant by Parliament of a dowry to the Princess Louise. The announcement created a great uproar in the meeting, and the utterance of the Queen's name was hissed. The workmen last evening resolved to hold public meetings in the metropolis and provinces to protest against the dowry.

Favre wrote to the Lord Mayor of London, Tuesday, expressing the gratitude of the Government and people of Paris for the munificent gift of food received from London.

The letter says that the distress in Paris has been very great and that it still continues, but that the city is tranquil.

A dispatch from Wilhelmshohe says that the Emperor Napoleon has issued a proclamation to the French people in reference to the elections.

The Paris Presse confirms the statement that France is to withdraw from the treaty of commerce with England.

LONDON, Feb. 11. There has been a violent gale all along the coast of the United Kingdom. Six ships are ashore near South Shields, and several lives are known to have been lost. Numerous wrecks are apprehended.

BREST, Feb. 10. A plague has appeared among the immense droves of cattle intended for the relief of Paris, and a sanitary cordon has been established around the infected animals. Deaths are so numerous that it is impossible to bury the carcasses; they are being loaded on condemned war ships and towed out to sea and sunk.

LONDON, Feb. 11. It is now ascertained beyond a doubt that the result of the French elections is a triumph for the Conservatives.

THE SITUATION IN PARIS.

The revictualing is proceeding well, but the organization is wretched. The poorer districts are suffering badly, and there is terrible mortality among the children. Many respectable people are making efforts to leave, dreading a renewal of the war, which will bring on worse horrors than ever.

The actual condition of the city is little changed. The Champs Elysees are very little damaged. Bois de Boulogne is destroyed at the entry to the lake, and other parts are partially destroyed. The shops are slowly commencing to reopen. The nights are still terribly dull, and it is singular there are no street robberies.

There is a report that the Prussians sent an army corps south on Tuesday, resolved to carry Belfort by assault.

LONDON, Feb. 13. A Versailles despatch states that a grand triumphal march of the German armies through Paris has been arranged for the 22nd inst., a few days after their entry into the city. The line of march is not definitely ascertained, but it has been already agreed, on the whole, that the German army of investment will participate in this august procession.

Advices have just been received in this city, with returns from several of the French election districts. The Orleanists are confident that the Count de Paris will be King of France in a few weeks.

The government states that they will be able to despatch 150,000 men immediately in case of war.

All the troops before Paris are fully reinforced to the utmost war strength.

BERLIN, Feb. 13. It is confidently expected at headquarters that peace will shortly be concluded; nevertheless the military and financial preparations continue.

DOMESTIC.

AN EVENTFUL YEAR.—The year which is now fast drawing to a close will long be remembered as one noted for the unexpected political events which have transpired since its commencement, as well as for strange natural phenomena. One of the most powerful empires of the world has been shaken to its foundation and its Monarch driven from his throne; the Pope has been robbed of his temporal power, and the red, white and green flag of Italian nationality floats over the castle of St. Angelo; earthquakes have occurred in all quarters of the globe; immense fires have raged in the cities and forests of the old and new world, such as have scarcely ever been known before; strange diseases have appeared in Spain and elsewhere; vampires are said to have sucked the life blood from men, women and children in Hungary: a fearful massacre of Christians has taken place in China, and other events of a strange and startling nature have rendered the year 1870 a remarkable one. An English divine thinks that he sees in all this an indication of the end of the world. The fact is, however unfortunately, that many such years filled with a record of bloodshed, misery and crime, have gone, before into the abyss of time though it is questionable whether during the life time of the present generation so strange and eventful a year has been known.—Carleton (N. B.) Sentinel.

☞ THE KIND of warfare which is being carried on in the east of France, and the exasperation of the Germans against the Garibaldians and other irregular combatants, are illustrated by letters from an artilleryman, published in the Cologne Gazette. After mentioning Menotti Garibaldi's surprise at Chatillon, where seventy or eighty Landwehr men and half a squadron of Hussars were massacred in their beds, he says: "A few days ago thirty of the banditti (Garibaldians) were captured not far from Chaumont. They were first forced to dig their own graves, and were then shot and thrown in. Any of them who fall into our hands immediately receive a bullet. If we meet with Garibaldi, there will be a life and death struggle; no quarter will be given. We are no longer fighting against a French army, but against assassins. In consequence of a requisition company having been surprised at a village in the Vosges by Franc-Tireurs and inhabitants, we were ordered to set fire to it. The infantry stormed it, fired some volleys into the windows, and brought out sixteen principal inhabitants, including the Mayor and the priest, as prisoners. Several who attempted to escape were immediately shot. Our infantry with the prisoners, drew out of the village, and we posted ourselves 1600 paces off in order to convert it into dust and ashes. After we had fired forty shots the Franc-Tireurs advanced from the neighboring woods. Four of our horses and two of men fell, the infantry could no longer make a stand, and it was high time to retreat, or all our horses and both our guns would have been lost. The next day we went with six guns and more infantry, and only infants in the cradle were spared. All who could carry even a stick were shot."—Boston Journal.

☞ The January term of the S. J. Court for Sullivan county commenced at Newport, N. H., on the 31st ult., Chief Justice Bellows presiding. Judge Bellows, in his charge to the jury, referred very pointedly to the prevalent practice of gambling among the religionists of the day, at festivals and other "social" gatherings of church membership, where lotteries, grab-bags, guess-cakes, and almost every known system of gambling was introduced to raise money for the spread of the gospel! All these are recognized in law as indictable offences, and the proper officers failed to do their duty where they were suffered to pass unnoticed.—Portsmouth Times.

In Brief.

—A good old lady in New Jersey, "past threescore years and ten," loves the cause of foreign missions so much that she has given up her snuff and sent $10, which she calls "snuff money," to the American Board. "A rare example of self-denial."——Seventeen years ago there was not even a single human being, in Leavenworth, Kansas. Now there are 25,000 inhabitants, twenty-seven schools, thirty churches, two theatres, seven public halls, two jails, and hotels, stores, factories and founderies in abundance.——The Mission Church at Adana, Central Turkey, consists of thirty-four members and the congregation connected with it of about 250, of whom fifty are taxpayers. Its contributions last year were $600, gold—a much larger proportion than is given by most congregations in this country.——A letter from a member of the Magellan Colony speaks of some of the Patagonians as standing six feet six or seven inches, and "from head to heel symmetry itself." Nor is it unusual to find a Patagonian weighing as much as two hundred and eighty-five pounds. With all their splendid physical characteristics, the race is degenerating "through the use of tobacco and liquor." Moreover, with all their bodily strength, the people are said to be exceedingly cowardly.——Thirteen thousand nine hundred and forty-two feet of tunneling have been completed through the mountain at Hoosac, and eleven thousand and eighty-nine feet remain to be dug through.——The Italian Chambers have passed a bill giving regal honors and a body guard to the Pope.——A dispatch from Versailles says that the delivery of cannon and small arms of the army of Paris to the Germans was commenced on the 7th inst., and continued throughout the 8th.——The commerce of the world requires 3,600,000 of able bodied men to be continually traversing the sea; of this number probably 7,500 die every year. The amount of property annually moved on the water is from fifteen hundred to two thousand millions of dollars; and the amount lost by casualties of the sea averages twenty-five millions of dollars.——A draft of a bill excluding Chinese labor from New York State was unanimously adopted on last Thursday night by the Workingmen's League in New York. Wm. M. Tweed is to present it to the State Senate. Thus the war against the Chinese has commenced. The bill will probably pass both Houses of the Legislature.——On the "best authority" the Providence (R. I.) Journal says that a comet of large size will suddenly make its appearance on the night of June 19th, 1871, and "during the next four weeks the fate of the world will be decided."——A gentleman attending Spurgeon's weekly prayer-meeting writes that, the evening being wet, there were only 1,500 persons present.——Mr. Gladstone, explaining why France was not represented in the London Conference, said that the Prussian authorities had promised Favre a pass for himself to attend the London Conference if he should be sent as the representative of France, but the Prussian flag having been violated when the application was renewed by Favre to the military authorities, the bombardment had begun, and Favre declined to leave Paris.——It is said that during the French Revolution there was not a new patient admitted to the Lunatic hospitals of that country who was crazy on religious subjects.——The entire press of California is calling loudly on the government for protection for the people of Arizona against the Apaches.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.

Hiram Munger..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Geo. W. Brown (of So. Elliot, Me.) Sunday, Feb. 26th
J. A. Cleaveland..........Sunday, March 5th
T. M. Preble..........Sabbath, March 12th

BOSTON, (Branch Chapel), 1735 Washington Street, corner of Madison Street.
Meetings at 10½ A. M., and 3 and 7½ P. M.
(Meeting every evening. Seats free.)

Mrs. Jane Benson......Thursday evening, Feb. 16th
Eld. John S. White..........Friday evening, Feb. 17th
Temperance meeting Saturday evening, Feb. 18th.
Mrs. Jane Benson..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
and Tuesday and Thursday, Feb. 21st and 23d.

MERCANTILE HALL, 32 SUMMER STREET, BOSTON.
Meetings at 10½ A. M., and 3 and 7 P. M.
Social meeting at 2 P. M.

H. L. Hastings..........Sunday, Feb. 19th and following Sundays.

EAST BOSTON, MASS.
(Second Advent Hall, 154 Meridian Street.)

Meetings every Sunday, at the usual hours, also prayer and conference meetings Wednesday and Friday evenings, at 7½ o'clock P. M.

W. C. Thurman..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
John G. Hook..........Thursday evening, Feb. 23d

Meetings in South Boston on Wednesday evenings, No. 2 Lowland Street.
Friday evenings, No. 227 E. St. Bay-View horse cars pass by. Come and welcome. C. W. HUNTRESS.
J. N. BERRY.

CAMBRIDGEPORT (Washington Hall, Main Street.)

A. P. Moore..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

CHELSEA, MASS.
Granite Block, Hall No. 11, corner of Broadway and Fourth Streets. Entrance on Fourth Street.
(Up two flight of stairs.)

A. Ross..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. Couch..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
M. Batchelor..........Sunday, March 5th

CHARLESTOWN.
Preaching at Charlestown, (Evening Star Hall, No. 32 Main Street), every Lord's day.

T. M. Preble..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
W. S. Campbell..........Sunday, March 5th
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, March 12th

Rye, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 20th
C. GOODRICH.

Seabrook, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
A. P. MOORE.

Salem, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. COUCH.

Stoneham, Mass..........Wednesday evening, Feb. 22d
JOHN G. HOOK.

Wakefield, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. S. WHITE.

West Fairlee, Vt..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
H. F. CARPENTER.

South Berwick, Me (Great Works) Sunday, Feb. 19th
JOSEPH W. WHITE.

Locke's Mills, Me..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Lewiston, Me..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
J. ALBERT LIBBY.

Hartford, Ct. (Talcott & Post's Hall) Sun., Feb. 19th
WM. N. PILE.

Bartlett, N. H..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
G. H. WALLACE.

Haverhill, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Lawrence, Mass..........evening, Feb. 21st
Great Falls, N. H..........Sundays, March 5th and 12th
South Berwick, Me. (Great Works)...Sundays, March 19th and 26th. GEO. W. BROWN, So. Elliot.

Brimfield, Mass..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
DAMON NICHOLS.

Holden, Mass..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
WILDER NICHOLS.

Stowe, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
T. T. FARNELL.

Webster, Mass..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
Fitchburg, Mass..........Sabbath, March 5th
Providence, R. I..........Sabbath, March 12th
Putnam, Ct..........Sabbath, March 19th
MRS. L. M. STODDARD.

Haverhill, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. G. SMITH.

Gloucester, Mass.......Thursday evening, Feb. 16th
Meetings through the week, and on Sunday, the 19th.
S. JULIA BURWELL.

Seabrook, N. H..........Sundays, March 5th and 12th
WM. W. SUTHERLAND.

Ashburnham Depot, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Rye, N. H..........Sunday, March 12th
Seabrook, N. H..........Sunday, March 19th
Hampton, N. H..........Sunday, March 26th
H. M. BRYANT.

Meredith Neck, N. H..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
N. GLIDDEN.

Loudon Ridge, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
O. W. KIMBALL.

Piermont, N. H. (Clay meeting-house) Sab., March 12th
A. H. CLARK.

Brookfield, N. H. (Town House)...Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. BICKFORD.

Seabrook, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
B. FINNEY.

Scitico, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
A. M. HIGGINS.

Philadelphia, Pa..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
Saratoga Springs, N. Y..........Sunday, March 12th
A. A. PHELPS.

New York City (Cooper Institute) Sunday, Feb. 19th
Providence, R. I...Sundays, Feb. 26th and March 5th
WM. STUART.

Northfield, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
Hartford, Ct. (Talcott & Post's Hall) Sun., March 5th
Meriden, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th
GEO. W. BROWN.

South Atkinson, Me..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
THOMAS SMITH.

West Groton, Vt..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
East Canaan, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
MARY E. OTIS.

Great Falls..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Rochester Plains (Town House)..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
EDWIN H. WELLS.

Fisherville, N. H..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
Great Falls, N. H..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
South Berwick, Me. (Great Works)...Sab., March 5th
S. S. MOONEY.

Piermont, N. H. (Clay meeting-house) Sab., Feb. 19th and a few evenings.
Haverhill, N. H (Brick Church)...Sabbath, Feb. 26th
West Rumney, N. H. (Plain school-house) evening, Feb. 28th.
Campton, N. H. (Bumpschool-house) Sab., March 5th
Belmont, N. H. (where Bro. Kidder may appoint) evening, March 9th.
Loudon Ridge, N. H. (at Bro. Batchelder's) evening, March 10th.
Gilmanton, N. H. (school-house at Marrill's Corner) evening, March 11th.
Sabbath, March 12th, where Bro. Massy may appoint.
C. W. NELSON.

Southington, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
G. L. WHITE.

Melvin Village, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Manchester, N. H. (where Bro. Samuel Morse may appoint) Sunday, Feb. 26th.
Lynn, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
WM. DODGE.

Bath, Me..........Sundays, March 5th and 19th
C. H. LEVERTON.

Rutland, Vt..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
L. BOUTELL.

Keene, N. H..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
I. B. POTTER.

Sutton Mills, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Lynn, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
C. W. SARGENT.

Colebrook, N. H., Feb. 22d, and as long as the Lord will. The meetings will be held in the Methodist or Town Hall.
D M LEAVITT.
J. SHOREY.

Philadelphia, Pa..........Sundays, March 12th and 19th
Lynn, Mass..........Sunday, March 26th
M. BATCHELOR.

Goffstown, N. H..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
E. S. MOULTON.

Bath, Me..........Sabbaths, Feb. 19th and 26th
Brunswick, Me. (as Bro. Storer may arrange) evening, Feb. 22d.
Richmond Village, Me...evenings, Feb. 29th and 30th
Vienna, Me. or vicinity (as Bro. H. B. Sevey may arrange) Sabbaths, March 5th and 12th.
Lewiston, Me..........Sabbath, March 19th
C. H. SWEET.

Canterbury (No. 1 school-house) evening, March 4th and over Sunday, the 5th.
East Concord, N. H. (Gale school-house) Sunday, March 12th.
CHAS. R. PARSONS.

Bradford, N. H. (Bush meeting-house) Sab., Feb. 19th
Boscawen, N. H. (Gulf school-house)..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th.
Fisherville, N. H. (Sander's Hall) Sab., March 12th
SIMEON HOYT.

Brockport, N. Y..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Murray (as Bro. Knight may arrange) evenings, Feb. 22d and 23d.
Knowlesville..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
Eagle Harbor..........evening, Feb. 28th
A. C. NEWELL.

Mexico Corner, Me..........Feb. 17th and 18th and over Sunday.
A. A. ABBOTT.

New Preston, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Lakeville, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
J. L. WOOD.

Allegheny City, Pa., the last and first Sundays in each month until April 1st.
Rouseville, Pa., the third Sunday in Jan., Feb., and March.
Bucklins Corners, Chaut. Co., N. Y., commence meetings evening, Feb. 9th, and over Sunday. On Sunday at two o'clock P. M., and in the evening. Bro. Burdick will be with me. JOHN T. ONGLEY.

East Landaff, N. H. (Bungay school-house) evening, Feb. 18th, and over Sunday.
GEO. E. BROWN, D. D. PAGE.

Rye, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Brentwood, N. H. (at Bro. Leavitt's) Sun., Feb. 26th
Seabrook, N. H..........Sunday, March 26th
WM. C. STEWART.

Cohocton, N. Y. (as Deacon T. C. Armstrong may appoint), Feb. 18th and 19th.
Honeove Flats, N. Y..........Feb. 26th
At Conference, March 2d, and over the 5th.
All evening appointments to commence at 7 P. M.
C. F. SWEET.

Low Hampton, N. Y....11 A. M. and 6½ P. M., Feb. 19th
Pitts Town, N. Y......at 6½ P. M., March 1st, 2d, and 3d
Hoosick, N. Y..........Sunday, March 5th
C. PIKE.

Rawsonville, Vt..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Z. T. WOOD.

Providence, R. I..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
T. M. PREBLE.

North Dana, Mass.......Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
Wakefield, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
GEO. A. STREETER.

West Canaan, (at the new school-house) eve., Feb. 16th, and onward as the Lord may direct.
D. EASTMAN.
J. H. EVANS.

Collinsville, Ct., Thursday evening, Feb. 16th, and onward for one week, including Sun., Feb. 19th.
New York (as Bro. Cox shall arrange) on Revelations of John, Sunday, Feb. 26th.
West Haven, Ct., four evenings, commencing Tuesday, Feb. 28th.
Bridgeport, Ct..........Sunday, March 5th
Ansonia, Ct., three evenings, commencing Monday, March 6th.
Lanesville, Ct., Thursday and Friday evenings, March 9th and 10th.
New Milford, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th and through the week.
Roxbury, Ct., (as the brethren arrange) one week, commencing Sunday, March 19th, to accommodate those coming from Woodbury and Washington.
Lakeville, Ct., one week, commencing Sun., March 26th. Hope to find all ready to work for salvation.
H. K. FLAGG.

South Barnstead, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
A. S. WILLIAMS.

Collinsville, Ct..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
A. ELLIOT.

South Windsor, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
O. D. WOODRUFF.

Waterbury, Ct..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
G. L. TEEPLE.

Lafayette, R. I..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
J. T. DIXON.

Carlton, Mass..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Will some one meet me at the Oxford Depot, forenoon train from Worcester, Friday, Feb. 17th?
North Scituate, R. I. (with Bro. Kellaway) Sunday, Feb. 26th. E. COTTON.

Bridgewater, Vt..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Plymouth, Vt. (Five Corners)..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
Bridgewater, Vt..........Sunday, March 5th
Dinsmore Hill, Vt..........Sunday, March 12th
GEO. A. COLE.

Corinna, Me..........2 P. M. Feb. 25th and over Lord's day, the 26th.
South Dover, Me (Bran's Mills)....7 P. M., March 1st
South Atkinson, Me..........7 P. M. March 2d
Sebec, Me. (Harriman school-house)..........March 3d
Milo, Me..........Sunday, March 5th
I. DAMMAN.

Windsor, Me. (Prebble school-house) Sun., Feb. 19th
Augusta, Me. (Ballad school-house) Sunday, Feb. 26th
Sidney, Me. (school-house, Dist. No. 2)....March 5th
Sidney (school-house, Dist. No. 1) Sunday, March 12th
Windsor, Me. (Prebble school-house) Sun., March 19th
THOMAS RINES.

Webster, Mass..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
Woodstock Valley, Ct..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
P. S. BUTLER.

Dover, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
S. C. HANCOCK.

Lewiston, Me..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
JARED WHITMAN.

Portsmouth, N. H..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
Goffstown, N. H..........Sunday, March 5th
A. SIMPSON.

Vernon, Vt..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
Springfield, Mass...evenings, Feb. 28th and March 1st
Worcester, Mass..........evenings, March 2d and 3d
Lowell, Mass..........evenings, March 7th and 8th
Lawrence, Mass..........evenings, March 9th and 10th
Manchester, N. H..........Sunday, March 12th
Concord, N. H. (Centre Street Church) evenings, March 14th and 15th.
Portsmouth, N. H.....evenings, March 16th and 17th
Dover, N. H..........Sunday, March 19th
Savoy, Mass. (New Chapel)......Sunday, March 26th
If any of these appointments conflict with others, please notify me at Savoy, Mass. Z. D. BAIRD.

Hazardville, Ct.......Saturday and Sunday evenings, Feb. 18th and 19th.
Scitico, Ct..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
South Norwalk, Ct., Sabbaths, Feb. 26th and March 5th
H. PRATT.

Morris, Ct..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
Wrightville, Ct..........Sunday, March 5th
Waterbury, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th
☞ NO NAME.

Lyndsboro, N. H. (school-house District No. 8) Thursday evening, Feb. 16th, and over Sunday.
JOHN H. DADMUN.

West Plymouth, N. H. (where Bro. Nelson may appoint) evening, Feb. 18th, and over Sunday.
Warren Village, N. H..........evening, Feb. 21st
Warren Summit, N. H..........evening, Feb. 22d
North Haverhill, N. H. (Brick Church) eve., Feb. 23d
Haverhill Center, N. H..........evening, Feb. 24th
North Benton, N. H......Feb. 25th, and over Sunday
Swift Water, N. H..........evening, Feb. 27th
West Groton, Vt. (Ricker school-house) eve., March 1st, and onward as the Lord may direct.
JOHN H. EVANS.

Rochester, N. H. (Gonic Chapel) Sabbath, Feb. 26th
S. VARNEY.

☞ The appointments for Rochester, N. H. (Brick school-house) for the first Lord's day in each month, are withdrawn. S. V.

☞ Meetings will be held by the church of God worshiping at Lisbon Village, N. H. (Town Hall), three times every Sabbath. Preaching for the present by ALLEN DAMON.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

Geo. W. Brown..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Wm. N. Pile......Sundays, Feb. 26th and March 5th
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, March 9th

WORCESTER, MASS.

A. Simpson..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. S. White..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, March 5th
J. Couch..........Sunday, March 12th

LOWELL, MASS.

W. H. Mitchell..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
J. Couch..........Sunday, March 5th
C. Cunningham..........Sunday, March 12th
W. H. Mitchell..........Sundays, March 19th and 26th

LAWRENCE, MASS.

C. Goodrich..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
M. Batchelor..........Sunday, Feb. 26th

CONCORD, N. H. (Centre Street.)

John G. Hook..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th
C. H. Fletcher..........Sabbath, Feb. 26th
A. Ross..........Sabbath, March 5th
C. S. Shattuck..........Sabbath, April 2d
T. W. Piper..........Sabbath, April 9th

CONCORD, N. H., (at the Bethel.)

T. W. Piper..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
Wm. Stuart..........Sunday, March 12th
E. Owen..........Sunday, March 19th
C. S. Shattuck..........Sunday, April 9th

MANCHESTER, N. H.

M. Batchelor..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
O. W. Kimball..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
A. Owen..........Sunday, March 5th
T. W. Piper..........Sunday, March 12th
F. H. Carpenter..........Sunday, March 19th
Wm. Stuart..........Sundays, March 26th and April 2d

LOUDON RIDGE, N. H.

Joseph Harvey..........Sunday, Feb. 26th

VERNON, VT.

S. Cook..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
O. D. Woodruff..........Sunday, March 12th

WINSTED, CT.

Mrs. M. L. Durand..........Sunday, Feb. 26th

NEW BRITAIN, CT.

A. M. Higgins..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

BRISTOL, CT.

Seth Woodruff..........Sunday, Feb. 19th

WATERBURY, CT.

A. Elliot..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
G. L. Teeple..........Sunday, Feb. 26th

NEW HAVEN, CT.

Anna E. Smith..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
H. Hitchcock..........Sunday, Feb. 26th

PUTNAM, CT.

Mrs. L. M. Stoddard..........Sabbath, Feb. 19th

SOUTH ELLIOT, ME.

J. Bickford..........Sunday, March 5th
E. Owen..........Sunday, March 12th

PORTLAND, ME.

Sec. Adv. Hall, Cushman's Block, 353½ Congress St.

C. Richardson..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
B. S. Emery..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
R. Dearing..........Sunday, March 5th

BIDDEFORD, ME.

B. S. Emery..........Sunday, Feb. 19th
J. W. White..........Sunday, Feb. 26th
J. T. Jordan..........Sunday, March 5th
C. H. Sweet..........Sundays, April 2d and 9th

PORTLAND, ME. (Union Hall.)

A. Ross..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
O. W. Kimball..........Sunday, March 5th
Henry Pratt..........Sundays, March 12th and 19th
C. H. Sweet..........Sunday, March 26th
S. S. Brewer..........Sundays, April 2d and 9th

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

☞ We cannot discontinue or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in PLAIN LETTERS.

☞ DANIEL WEAVER—The $9.00 received.

☞ F. H. BURBANK—Yes. Send.

☞ SOME ONE sent us $2.50 for Crisis, from Winthrop, Me., Feb. 7th, with NO NAME signed. Who sent it?

☞ JOHN S. MILNE—Canada money brings only 9 cts. premium now instead of 15 cts. Balance due 46 cents.

☞ W. HALL—Samuel D. Green's P. O. address is Chelsea, Mass.

Letters Received.

P T Wright, F H Chamberlain, H M Rose, D Eastman, G Thomson, C H Sweet, A Hale, D W Davis, L Reimer, J W Thomas, J H Mosher, J Pinkham, J Hill, H Winchell, C E Darrow, A. J. D., F H Burbank, L D Ackerman, C P Whitten, P. H. M, J W Taylor, J W C Gray, W C Clark, T L Waugh, G E Lee.

Notices.

W. C. Association.

The second quarterly meeting of the "Woman's Christian Association" will be held in Providence, R. I., by invitation of the church worshiping in Lester Hall, to commence March 8th, and continue over the Sabbath. An invitation is extended to all, both saint and sinner, to come up to this feast. The presence of brethren and sisters, both preachers and lay members, from churches in the surrounding vicinity, is solicited, and provision will be made for the entertainment of all who come. Order of the meeting as follows:

Business session in the morning, preaching every afternoon and evening, with prayer and conference meetings preceding. We expect the blessing of God; to this end let fervent prayer be offered.

Directions to strangers coming in on the cars will appear in due time. By authority of the Association, E. S. JENNINGS, Pres.

Notice.

Those coming to the quarterly meeting of the Woman's Christian Association, will please take the Cranston horse-car, and stop at Lester Hall.
For the Bro., N. PHILLIPS.

Conference at Melvin Village.

The Lord will, there will be a meeting at Melvin Village, commencing Thursday evening, Feb. 23d, to hold over the Sabbath. Brn. J. G. Smith and D. F. Leavitt are expected to be present to preach the word; and it is hoped that the Lord will send others to help in the good work. A general invitation is extended to all. T. W. PIPER.

Conference.

A conference of three days is desired to be held in Palmyra, Me., Marsh's school-house, about four miles from Corinna Mills, to commence Mar. 9th, at 7 P. M., and continue over Lord's day. We invite all who love our Lord Jesus Christ, and want to see souls converted and wanderers reclaimed, to come and help in the blessed work; and to those who preach the gospel, who feel like coming to help, we heartily say, Come in the name of the Lord. In behalf of the brethren,
I. DAMMAN.

Conference.

A conference will commence on the Ridge, between Dexter and Corinna, Me., at seven P. M., Thursday, Feb. 16th, to hold over the Lord's day. Call on Brn. Burton and Trefethren. Brethren in the ministry are invited to come and preach the word to the perishing. Come, all who love our Lord. In behalf of the Brn., I. DAMMAN.

New York Adv. Chris. Conference.

The Lord willing, this conference will hold its next and last quarterly session, for the conference year, with the church in Brockport, N. Y., commencing Thursday evening, March 2nd, and continuing over Sunday. Brockport—seventeen miles west of Rochester, on the N. Y. C. R. R.—is easy of access, and it is hoped a large delegation will be out. Let all churches interested attend immediately to the quarterly collection and the appointment of delegates, that all may be properly represented, the business done decently and in order, a good meeting be enjoyed, and the blessed cause of our dear Master be advanced. Some who attended the last conference said they hoped never to miss another. Let all the delegates secure certificates, pray earnestly for the success of the meeting, and come in the spirit of Jesus.
B. P. STEVENS, Pres.
WM. E. BROWN, Sec'y.

Dedication and Conference.

The Brick Chapel in Vienna (Sevey's Corner), Me., will be dedicated Feb. 16th, at one o'clock P. M., meetings to continue over Sunday. Brethren and sisters are invited to come and unite in laboring for the advancement of the cause of Jesus. Preaching Brn. will make arrangements to attend this meeting. Provision will be made for all. Bro. will call on H. B. Sevey, H. C. Clifford, S. W. Carr. For the Bro., H. B. SEVEY.

Notice.

A protracted meeting will be held at Epsom Mountain school-house, N. H., commencing Saturday evening, Feb. 18th, and continue over the Sabbath, and onward as the Lord may direct. Elds. John Parsons, and Charles R. Parsons, will be present to preach the word. All are cordially invited to attend. Come praying that the Lord may bless. For the Bro., C. R. PARSONS.

Conference.

There will be a conference in Hartford, Me. (Stetson school-house), commencing Friday evening, Feb. 17th, and continue over the following Sabbath. In behalf of the church,
E. M. HAGGETT.

Notice.

Providence permitting, I shall hold a discussion at West Hoosick, N. Y., Wednesday evening, March 1st (and onward as duty may require.) with Eld. Parker, of Buskirk's Bridge, N. Y., (a Unitarian) upon the following question: "Resolved, that man is wholly mortal, body, mind, and soul." I affirm. He denies. Brethren, pray for us. JACOB WILBUR.

Ordination.

Bro. Richard L. Harrison, of the Advent Christian Church in Hoosick, N. Y., was duly set apart and ordained to the work of the ministry, Jan. 29th, 1871, by the laying on of hands, by the undersigned Elders:
WM. J. BLANCHARD.
J. WILBUR.
E. TOWSLEE.

Notice.

As I have considerable money to make out on my Hymn Book between this and April 1st, I hope that those owing me will remember my necessities, and send to me, if possible, between March 1st and 20th, at South Exeter, Me. If at any other time, address me at Machiasport, Me., my home. I. K. LOMBARD.

Notice.

Will all the preachers of the gospel of Jesus Christ, who can come and preach in Dover, N. H., on the Lord's day, please correspond with Adam Eglin, Box 1078? In behalf of the church,
JOHN VICKERY.
JOSEPH PINKHAM.

Notice.

A portion of the Second Advent church and Society in Lewiston, Me., have removed from their former place of worship, to No. 5½ Central Block, Main St. Meetings are continued in the Hall on Bates St. as usual. L. H. ROWE.

German Tracts.

I will send my German Tracts gratis (except postage), to any one who wants them for himself, or to distribute. I have a good supply. Send your orders to L. REIMER, 1006 Chesnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

MEETINGS IN PORTLAND, ME. (Union Hall.)

Having vacated Cushman Hall, on Congress Street, meetings hereafter will be held in Union Hall. Entrance on Free Street, nearly opposite the Baptist church. Seats free.
S. K. DYER.
D. F. SCAMMAN.
R. H. YORK.

ROCHESTER, N. H.

There will be preaching in the chapel, near the brick school-house, in Rochester, N. H., on the first Lord's day in each month. Others can appoint so as not to conflict.

ADVENT CHRISTIAN CHURCH, SALEM.

Meetings are held every Sabbath, at the Chapel, Sewall Street. Prayer meeting Monday evening, at the Ward Room, North Salem. Tuesday and Friday evenings at private houses. C. E. BARKER, Pastor.

NEW YORK CITY.

The Advent Church formerly meeting at Grand and Allen Streets, have removed to [illegible] Grand Street, one door above Clinton. Preaching every Sunday for the present. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening, at the house of [illegible] Bellows, [illegible] Orchard Street.

For the World's Crisis.

OUR PROGRESSIVE AGE.

BY S. S. BREWER.

The long looked for age, behold, now is here,
For wondrous things are seen everywhere;
And now to be great is to have plenty of pelf,
Do not scruple to get it, and take good care of self;
Then power and honor will surely be had,
'Twill make evil good, sometimes good what is bad.

Amid the great progress of this wonderful day,
Children now dictate, and parents obey;
And fashion the homely to beauty transforms,
While the lust of the age fair beauty deforms;
Mammon hath triumphed, its conquests declare,
The church hath converted, leaves it no cross to bear.

'Tis truly an age of wondrous progression,
When preachers are giants in mental discretion.
"Bless'd are the meek," they nobly declare,
For they shall inherit the sky and the air;
And the soul that sinneth it never can die,
'Tis a captive till death, then to heaven doth fly;

There the immaterial soul, with immaterial wings
Mounts the immaterial air and immaterially sings;
With immaterial kindred in glory profound,
On an immaterial throne, unseen, it is crowned;
Where all the immaterials immaterially share
An immaterial victory, in immaterial air.

And there disembodied, incomprehensibly strange,
With palms, robes and crowns, immaterially range,
Ever soaring aloft through the vast realms above,
These palm-bearing victors perpetually move;
Expanding, enlarging, and dwelling nowhere,
Transcendant as ether and buoyant as air.

A theological soul is at best, seems to me,
A stupendous theological nonentity;
It is so transcendant, requiring no place—
At death such may soar "beyond time and space";
Uncompounded, intangible, no form, like the air;
Such truly is mythical existence nowhere.

[From our Corresponding Editor.]

SOUTHERN NOTES.—No. 2.

What I was well aware of before, I am now enabled to realize; namely, the poverty of the southern people. War has produced its work of ruin. I am now putting up with a man who was dispossessed of about $60,000. Of course, the remembrance of all this augments the bitterness of feeling toward northern men. It is useless to try to conceal the point from which one comes, for a plain question evaded, leads to suspicion that cannot be allayed; and the truth told, makes every man brace up against you. It is a work of time to inspire confidence, and calls the gift of caution into exercise. One must be here to really understand the strength of prejudice against a "Yankee." Several strong illustrations of this feeling have already come under my own observation, of which I may hereafter speak.

The first house in which I slept in Georgia had not a window sash or light of glass in it. An opening for a window, and board blinds, left open in the day time, and closed at night, was the only substitute for a window. I am now in a house with windows in it. Winter here is mild; snow is seldom ever seen, and then only for a few short hours, just enough to whiten the ground. Cotton and sugar cane are raised mostly; the latter principally in the south part of the State. The present season has been a poor one for this branch of business, the crop bringing a low price, making hard times.

Jan. 21st, I preached my first sermon in Georgia, in the Presbyterian meeting-house, to a fair congregation, who listened, in spite of themselves, with eagerness to a sermon on the reign of Christ on earth renewed. This sent the news in every direction. The sentiment was new to them. Many were deeply anxious to hear more. This place (Irwinton) is the county seat of Wilkinson Co., and has been since 1809, and is situated near the geographical centre of Georgia, a little east of Macon city, in an adjoining county. Before leaving home, Bro. H. T. Moore gave me a letter of introduction to one of his brothers, who has lived in this State nearly twenty years; and though this brother belongs to the Presbyterian church, he has treated me with true kindness, and opened for me the doors of his church, and feels an interest in the preaching. Had it not been for this letter of introduction, I should have stood a poor chance, as the K. K. K. are vigorously searching out every suspicious man just at this time, not excepting ministers from the north who are wholly unknown here. They are bound to prevent this "tampering with the nigger"; and although I do not approve of their way of rectifying this interference, I certainly deprecate the northern affinity to the negro that leads to an exasperation against the white population, thus rendering life like a seat on a volcano.

Sunday, Jan. 22nd, I preached two sermons more in the same church, to good congregations, who listened with breathless attention. The Lord helped me. Three of the ministers were out to hear me, and expressed themselves highly gratified, and received me with the warmest cordiality, and, together with the people at large, requested me to remain longer, and give them a chance to hear more on these topics. Accordingly I left another appointment for Monday night. Some are already insisting that I must remain several days longer; but my friend being upon the point of moving to another part of the State, where he is well acquainted, and believing he can open the doors of their meeting-houses for me there, thinks I had better go along with him, especially fearing that the anti-Yankee feeling may break out against me after his departure. I hardly fear this, for the Lord will protect.

To open in one of these large cities without the influence of some friend, will cost $10 per night for hall rent, and $6 per week for board bill, aside from the cost of advertising. I do not feel warranted in making this outlay at present, especially as my expenses in getting here have exceeded my expectations. I will work on a smaller scale, if I can do so untrammeled, as I have done here, for the present, if I can find similar openings. Thus far I have never preached to more attentive congregations.

Jan. 23d, I preached again to the largest congregation seen in this church for many years past, with two new preachers in the congregation,—one being the Methodist circuit preacher, and the other the former presiding Elder of this district, now on a visit to the place from another field of labor. Both ministers listened with eagerness, and the crowd gave breathless attention, and I am solicited to remain longer. I am told that the new preacher and the new doctrine is now the topic of conversation in every direction. Even the "niggers" are getting anxious to hear what is being said; and though on Sunday only one negro could be seen in the gallery (the place allotted to them), last night the gallery was tolerably well filled, and one "old nigger" began to get a little noisy, or happy, in sermon time.

Yesterday I took dinner with one of the merchants of the place—a Baptist member—and last night a Methodist merchant invited me to his place; also one of the lawyers invited me to dinner. I am now considering whether to remain longer, or go to another place with my friend, Bro. M.

Several cases have occurred in this vicinity, since I came here, in which white men have been severely beaten by the K. K. K. One man was taken to the graveyard; and a grave was dug for him, but finally they let him off, after inflicting seventy-five lashes, with the proviso that he should immediately leave the country. It is not safe for a white man to speak a word against them. The community generally deem such a secret organization needful, as the negroes generally now carry pistols, and need some such invisible rod of terror to restrain them; and white men who are suspected of influencing the negroes are deemed ten times worse than the negroes. This organization is reviving of late, at least in this locality.

Being fatigued, I omitted meeting on the 24th. Took dinner with a Baptist deacon, who, after listening to one of my sermons, went home and read his Bible till after midnight, and then laid awake the rest of the night in study. A stir is being made in the region. Spent part of the day in conversing with two clergymen, who had got hold of new ideas in listening to my sermons. They appear much interested, but what the result will be I cannot tell. I mean to do my duty in presenting the truth, whether men believe it or not.

Jan. 25th, I preached to an interested congregation. The two ministers above referred to took a seat with me in the pulpit, and assisted in opening the meeting. I preached on the prophecies, and the Lord helped me greatly. The attention was profound, and deep solemnity pervaded the congregation. At the close of my sermon, I asked how many were willing to labor and pray for a revival during my meeting. Over forty arose to pledge themselves to do so, including the two ministers before mentioned, both of whom spoke afterward. One of them lives one hundred miles away, and leaves to-day; the other, the circuit minister, promises to attend and help in the meeting. One was so much interested that he says he must have a chart like mine, that he may enlighten his people on the prophecies, and this Bro. was formerly the presiding Elder on this district, but now lives in another part of the State. He left with the greatest reluctance, bidding me the warmest God-speed, and confessing himself both interested and instructed. We parted with him reluctantly; but he thinks he shall make the coming of the Lord more prominent among his people. He told the congregation that they could but feel impressed from my discourses that the judgment is near.

Some mischievous "nigger" has circulated the report among his colored friends that I said I "did not want airy nigger to step his foot into that church, without he was a democrat nigger"; but in spite of this, the gallery is filled with them; so they either disbelieve the report, or else "democrat niggers" are plenty here. I am invited by a Methodist merchant, who is an official member, to dine with him to-day. Many people who have not attended church for long years, are attending strictly, and appear all absorbed. The rain-storm now coming on I fear will make a break in the meeting, for (1) the kind of clay in this region makes the roads almost impassable after a storm; and (2) there are no stoves in the church, and it is disagreeable sitting without fire in January when the weather is cold and rainy. But it is but a short time that a fire is needed in this latitude, so they put no stove into the meeting-house. It continues to rain, and is turning quite cold, so I fear several days that will nearly suspend the meeting, as the bad weather here holds on when it comes.

Jan. 26th, had no meeting owing to the rain-storm; and it now looks doubtful about having suitable weather for several days. Staid all night at the home of the Methodist class-leader, and slept with the circuit preacher, being treated with all possible friendship and hospitality. This minister spent four years in the Confederate army, being a bold officer in the "lost cause."

The entire community is kept in a foam by the operations of the freed negroes, and the retaliation of the K. K. K. Nearly every day since I have been in the place, some new case has been reported to me, generally transpiring within a mile. One Baptist minister had his corn-crib and corn burnt a night or two ago; it is thought by a negro. Last night two negroes entered the house of a widow, and after violating her person, and that of her daughter, beat them and left them for dead. These scenes are so frequent that they rarely ever find their way into the press. Theft is the order of the day among the blacks. Indeed, I can give but a faint idea of the state of community in this region. "Sherman's raid," so called, was over this region, and impoverished the people. Multitudes are trying to overcome their feelings and cheer their spirits by drink; nor is this uncommon among church-members.

Jan. 27th, though the rain-storm continued, a goodly number came out to church, and listened with the deepest interest; and after my sermon several arose for prayers. There is a deep feeling produced here by the preaching of the gospel of the kingdom. The "niggers" got a little noisy in the gallery, being overcome by the preaching, and groaned and responded all they dared to in a white meeting. They never sit in the body of the church, but occupy the gallery exclusively.

The storm is increasing, and the mud deepening, making it look doubtful whether we can have any more meetings at present; but the interest being so deep, we ventured an appointment for the next evening, hoping that a few at least might come and be benefited. Had the weather continued fair, it is thought that the church could not have contained the people.

Something occurs nearly every night to keep the people excited. Several buildings have been burned since I have been in this neighborhood. Last night a widow woman near by had four fat hogs killed and carried off. The most religious "niggers" do not scruple to do such deeds, claiming that the property rightly belongs to them, because, though they did not earn it themselves, some of the colored people did earn it. Recently, a short distance from here, a large meeting of the colored people was held, and they had a happy time of it; but the white folks on every side lost their chickens, hogs, bees, potatoes, and other edibles. Their preachers are usually as bad a class of men as the rest of them, except while in the pulpit, being not only licentious, but malicious. One who had lived for years at this place, recently, after having dressed himself to go and preach a sermon, murdered his wife in a fit of anger, having often before threatened to do it, and frequently whipped her severely.

Jan. 28th, in spite of the storm, a goodly number got out to the meeting, and after my sermon four came forward for prayers. Others are deeply convicted. The cold, wet weather still continues, and makes it tedious to sit long enough to listen to a sermon; yet I had profound attention. But I fear a bad day to-morrow. After the meeting to-night, the people were stirred up with the information that two Methodist ministers, near by, had received notice from the K. K. K., to prepare to meet their God, or to land in hell immediately. All is excitement. This and several adjoining counties have recently become alive with this thing. They are the terror of the negroes. Two full-grown ones live in the house where I am stopping, and they are so much frightened over the news of to-night, that they cannot be induced to go to the well after a pail of water. A short time ago, several of them were taken out and had their ears cut off. An effort is made to make the negroes believe that they are ghosts. They generally make some graveyard their starting point before a raid, and manage by some plan to have some negro see them start, to tell the news. One recently took his oath that he saw one come out of each grave. One ordered him to bring him some water, and said he had been in hell ever since the first battle in the war, and felt —— thirsty. Many of the negroes believe them to be ghosts of bad men. They often dress in white, and wear false faces, and muffle their horses' feet.

I was asked to-day by a good old Baptist brother if I was not aware that I was suspicioned? I have no doubt of it; but making my home with rank secessionists, I am safer than among northern men.

Sunday, Jan. 29th, I preached in the forenoon and evening to larger congregations, it is said, than that church has contained for several years, even though the weather and going were bad. I had a free time in presenting the truth, and had the best attention. In the evening, after my sermon was over, several requested prayers. The circuit preacher, who had an evening appointment fifteen miles away, took it up, and came to hear me preach, and assisted in the services. The time had come for me to close the meeting here, to go to another point, but the interest was such that I announced another appointment for the next evening, though the weather is still forbidding.

W. S.

For the World's Crisis.

OUR COVENANT.*

"Looking for Jesus"! words of solemn import,
Looking for Jesus speedily to come,
To usher in the year of our God's vengeance,
To heal earth's ills and take his people home.
Thus, looking for Jesus.

Solemnly now we covenant and agree,
By help of Him who all things doth behold,
To walk together in most holy charity,
As doth become the members of the fold
Of the great Shepherd.

Ever taking for our rule of faith and practice
The unfailing Word, shunning all other guide;
The ordinances of God's house maintaining
Most faithfully, and in them to abide.
Further do we

A mutual watchcare to maintain agree,
To counsel, to admonish, and reprove
With christian meekness and fidelity,
And to receive the same from each in love,
Looking for Jesus.

O Father God! regard us now, we pray;
Thy benediction let on us now rest;
Extend thy helping hand through all our way,
Number us finally with the faithful blest,
When cometh Jesus.

CARRIE HILL.

* Of the Christian Church, Algansee, Mich.

For the World's Crisis.

SELFISHNESS.

"In the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves."—2 TIM. 3: 1, 2.

The above declaration of Inspiration has its fulfillment in our times; so that the world has denominated our times "the age of selfishness," or "selfish age." It is prominent in all branches of business, in all grades of society, in all classes of people, both professors and non-professors. The whole tendency of our times is, every one for SELF. Men see it, and admit it, but are not willing to admit that we are in the "last days" of earth's probation. If we see fulfilled just what the Bible declares will take place in the "last days," are we not there? The candid must say yes, and try to be "kept" while amid these perils.

Selfishness shows itself in business men, in their wanting the best of every bargain; who fill their own pockets by emptying others. They want to see no one prosper but self. It is this principle that leads the rumseller to deal out the deadly poison to his neighbor until he has got from his family their last cow, and then their home, and they are turned out of doors penniless.

Selfishness is the abuse of self-esteem. People think self-esteem is necessary in these times, and instill it into their children from the time they first begin to notice. A little boy who had been petted and praised was in a parlor full of people, and he was the only one to be seen or heard. "See ME, grandpa," was his oft-repeated request. This see ME is the trouble. Yet how many show out the same disposition.

Ministers get the same feeling and think no one can preach quite so well as themselves. Anything done by any one but them, is found fault with. They want to be seen and heard first. They want to be head and shoulders above every one else.

Writers show it in the fact that they want their names and writings in the most conspicuous place. Some men can hardly find type large enough to print their names for fear they will not be the most prominent. Others show it the most when they sit down to the table. You will see them pick for the very best of everything on the table, and of course some one else must have the poorest. Others want to keep everything they have got and get everything others have got. It is selfishness, selfishness, SELFISHNESS. There is no end to the catalogue.

Brotherly kindness and sympathy are fast dying out of professors of religion. They think it is all they can do to look out for number one.

O, how different is the good, old-fashioned Bible way. "Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others." "Let each esteem others better than themselves." Where are the followers of Him who was "meek and lowly of heart"? His was a life free from selfishness. He freely gave up all things, and then gave himself a ransom for many. He is our pattern. How blessed it is to follow him. The cross-bearing, self-denying way is the best way yet. Man may invent a smoother, easier way, but it leaves all its travelers just this side of the kingdom. The real follower of Jesus will always crucify self. Thank God there are a few who cling to the old path, and are walking the narrow way. Instead of wanting the best of everything, they want others to have it. Instead of trying to exalt self, they try to exalt Jesus, and keep him first and foremost. If a person is naturally selfish, the grace of God will enable him to overcome the disposition. Grace will do it all.

O, brethren, let us be free from selfishness. We shall have to struggle, but the grace of God will enable us to do it. The Lord is coming. He will save only such as have overcome the world. We have the most light of any class of christians, and we ought to be the best people in the world. "What manner of persons ought we to be?" God help us to be unspotted from the world and "pure in heart."

A. P. MOORE.

HYMN.

All that I was—my sin, my guilt,
My death was all my own;
All that I am I owe to thee,
My gracious God, alone.

The darkness of my former state,
The bondage—all was mine;
The light of life in which I walk,
The liberty is thine.

Thy grace first made me feel my sin,
And taught me to believe;
Then, in believing, peace I found,
And now I live, I live.

All that I am e'en here on earth,
All that I hope to be,
When Jesus comes and glory dawns,
I owe it, Lord, to thee.

Selected by B. W. Davis.

For the World's Crisis.

WHOSE BUSINESS IS IT?—No. 2.

We find many sick among the people. Humor of all sorts, from cancer to tetter; general debility, nervous troubles, palsy, deafness, rheumatism, etc. They are objects of sympathy and pity. We feel them to be such. We inquire for causes. They seldom know. We observe or learn that an inveterate use of tobacco, either by themselves or their ancestors, has worked many of these evils. But it will scarcely do to tell them so. Whose business is it?

We find many stupid and drowsy, of bad memory, hard to learn, slow to perceive the truth, crabbed, rash, petulant, of bad temper. They are sad, dejected, often melancholy, feel that they are backslidden, but do not see the cause. Such are the genuine symptoms of tobacco effects on the mind, and we often find this is the cause. They ask us to pray for them. Will it do to exhort them to leave the use of tobacco? Whose business is it?

We find the children of parents who use tobacco, afflicted with many sores, ulcers, boils, fits, tumors, and other troubles, which are often the results of tobacco on the human system. We pity them, and fear the parents have transmitted these troubles to their children by the use of tobacco. But as these diseases are found where tobacco is not used, it seems not safe to charge all to tobacco. Yet if it be so, whose business is it?

We find the people becoming more and more sickly, and the best of physicians in all countries declaring tobacco to be a great cause of disease and suffering—generating some eighty of the most painful and fatal diseases among mankind. But whose business is it?

We find that tobacco creates a thirst for liquors, and in a large ratio of cases leads to the habitual use of them, and to drunkenness; that it is the constant associate of whiskey. But whose business is it?

We find insanity greatly increasing, and insane asylums rapidly filling up, while the use of tobacco is greatly increasing, and physicians inform us that insanity largely results from the use of tobacco. Whose business is it?

We find many who are fully convinced that tobacco injures them, and they have known it for a long time, and have come to the conclusion to leave off the use of it. Some have found it a mighty struggle, and have failed in the attempt—have been mastered by their deadly enemy, and returned to worship at its shrine, slaves to tobacco, led captive by it. Whose business is it?

We find many who are so conscious that tobacco is ruining them, that they say they would give hundreds, and some say thousands of dollars, to be rid of the appetite. They know they are bound in its slavish chains, and feel themselves too weak to resist, and give themselves up to its sway, and are being led on in trouble to a worse condition. Whose business is it?

I. C. WELLCOME.

Gems.

Triumph and toil are twins; and aye,
Joy suns the cloud of sorrow,
And 'tis the martyrdom to-day,
Brings victory to-morrow.

— He loves the weakest of those for whom He died. Just as a mother loves all her children, even those that are weak and sickly, so Christ cares for those who are weak in the faith—who have many doubts and fears—who have heavy burdens and temptations.

— There is no real dawn before Christ is seen. There may be starlight, moonlight, twilight—but there is no day till he shines upon the soul.

— One thing all the children of all covetous people learn without fail, is to lose confidence in their parent's religion.

— Strength for works of holiness depends on being at rest in Christ as our righteousness.

There is a way more excellent, so traced the sacred pen,
Than e'en to share the precious gifts which God vouchsafes to men:
It is to draw for every act our motive from above,
And make our whole of mortal life a holocaust of love.

— A handful of common-sense is worth a bushel of learning.

— It is a good thing to obey the law of God, but it is a better thing to love it. The former is to live a new life, the latter is to have a new heart. A slave may obey a master whom he fears and hates, but the child loves the laws of a father.

— A sight of Christ's glory while we are here in this world is a good preparative for our sufferings with Him, as these are preparations for the sight of His glory in the other world. Paul, who had an abundance of troubles, had abundance of revelations.

— Intense study of the Bible will keep any writer from being vulgar in point of style.

— A good conscience is the best looking-glass of heaven; in which the soul may see God's thoughts and purposes concerning it reflected as so many shining stars.

— It is not enough to aim; you must hit.

Like a breath, like a flower, like the shuttle that flies,
Like a vision that lasts but a day;
In concert with heaven all nature replies,
"Life is a shadow that passeth away."

THE APOSTLE PAUL'S SALARY.—Hunger, thirst, fasting, nakedness, peril, persecution, stripes, death. Very much like the salaries of some preachers now-a-days, only Paul received more. Paul never was a settled minister, however, except in Rome.

WINTER AND SUMMER.

Close by my window grows a thicket of Norway spruces, which, all winter long, has been the home of little birds. I have loved to watch them flying in and out, and on fair mornings when the sun shone brightest, I would hear from them a little song. But as the winter has passed away and the spring advanced with its warmer sun and fair promise of summer, the thicket has been alive with song. One quiet Sunday morning they wakened me with their cheery notes, and clear and sweet above the rest rose the trill of the linnet that I had known so well as a child. In an instant I was away in the dear old meadow at home, standing on the mossy stones in the brook under the willows, reaching for the yellowest willow stick, sure harbinger of the coming spring, while in and out of the branches sung the linnets, telling, as plainly as birds could tell, that the winter was over and the spring had come, and they sang for very joy.

I cannot fail to see myself in all this, for the past winter my heart has been heavy and dark as the old spruces, only that God's promises like little birds, flew in to comfort me, and when the days have been brightest I could sing in return a little song. In all my christian experience it seems to me I have never been so sorely tempted to sin as in the past winter, and, it pains me to the heart to say, never so often yielded to it. I am not referring to outward sin (we do not look for this in the christian,) but the inner heart-sin so grievous to the sincere christian.

Early in the autumn I had formed plans which, as I thought, promised much usefulness and pleasure, but in a most unexpected way they were entirely frustrated, and I found myself forced into a position I particularly disliked. I had little heart to meet the annoyances sure to come, till at last I was startled to find myself yielding to impatience and fretfulness, quick to feel a slight, (or, as I see plainly now,) quick to imagine one, and I have often felt the flush of anger on my cheek when I should have been ashamed to acknowledge it, until my heart was filled, not only with sorrow but keenest shame, that I, a child of God, could so sin against him. I resolved it should not be so. I would overcome those sins. Outward circumstances, I knew, would not change, but God had placed me in that position, and it was my duty to accept it. But to my astonishment I found I could not do it. Morning after morning I would ask God to give me strength to overcome, and again and again I failed, till I just sank down in despair. I had to make to myself the humiliating confession that I grievously sinned each day, and had no power to help it: sinned against Jesus, my best friend, whom I loved so well. Oh, how it made my heart ache. Life seemed insupportable. What could I do?

Just at that time a friend asked me to attend a meeting for holiness. I was reluctant to do so, for I had a prejudice against those meetings. Those who attended them were strangers, but I knew they had faith and comfort that I had not, but longed for. So I went, earnestly seeking it, and the very first afternoon found it in listening to one of the lovely chapters of St. John. For as he read, the reader stopped to explain, saying, "we must not ask God to give us strength to overcome, but ask him to overcome for us." That was the very mistake I had made. It flashed upon me in an instant. I had insisted that God should give me strength, instead of waiting humbly upon him. I took the blessed truth to my heart and pondered it over and over, and all the week prayed, "Jesus, save me now from this sin, Jesus, keep me." He did keep me, and the rest and peace of that week was inexpressibly sweet, so much so that it seemed altogether too precious to last. I was afraid to speak of it lest it should fly away. I longed for Tuesday to come again, that I might talk with some who had this experience. And so I went to the meeting again, and all the afternoon it kept coming to me like sunshine through the clouds. I longed to ask some questions, but did not intend doing so, as all were strangers to me. But at its close the one who had led the meeting stopped to speak to a lady near me, and then, turning, gave his hand to me so cordially that almost before I knew it the questions of my heart were on my lips:

"I want to ask you how do you live without sin?"

"It is not I, but Jesus living in me who keeps me from sin."

"And does he never leave you? Does he abide with you always?"

"Yes, always."

"Oh! what a blessing. If I could but have it. I am so tired of sinning. I try so hard to help it and cannot."

"Of course you cannot. But if you truly desire it, Jesus will come and abide in your heart and keep you from sin."

"Indeed, I do desire it."

"Well, you will have it."

"Do you really mean that I can have this wonderful blessing?"

Yes; you will have it."

And this confident, God-given assurance lifted me right up into Jesus' arms, and the gift came into my heart and has never left it, and I am sure it never will.

And now the winter is over, the spring is here, and I can no more help singing than the birds, for the warm sun of righteousness, giving promise of the fair summer, fills my heart with love, joy and peace unspeakable. And as the months pass by, the contrast in my life is as great as that of winter and summer. Fretfulness and impatience have passed away. Anger comes not near me. Love, joy and peace have sprung up in my heart and fairly crowded them out. And for the future I have only to leave it with Jesus, my mighty friend. He arranges all for me to-day, giving me strength to perform each duty as it comes, and he will arrange all for to-morrow. The wearing responsibility of life is gone. Light as a bird, I have only to float in the sunshine of Jesus' love and sing out my joy to him who cares for me.—Times of Refreshing.

For the World's Crisis.

MINISTERIAL SUPPORT.—No. 3.

The doors are wide open now, and the message of Christ's soon coming can be preached in most places, and many will hear it, and be brought to repentance by faithful preaching of the gospel. Shall a large number of our preachers be detained from the work to earn their families' support by other labor, while there is an abundance of property among the Lord's stewards which is not devoted to the Lord's work? Cannot some of our men of large means do a good thing in devoting such a share of it as will keep the preachers at it all they can preach? Is it not as well for a lay brother to spend three, four, or five hundred dollars a year, to keep a minister going and preaching, as it is for a minister to spend the same amount of his own earnings and time to do it?

Come, brethren, let us look this matter square in the face. You want the truth preached, the people instructed, and souls saved. Do you want it enough to sustain a preacher a year out of your own means? There are those who could do it and have a plenty left.

Some of you live isolated, have no society of your own faith, no church to sympathise with, no minister to support, unless you help support one who teaches much you think is false. You would gladly have a good minister come and preach occasionally, or perhaps spend a month, and make a general effort in your place to plant the truth, and bring souls to Christ. But—well, what? There are none to support the minister, and you would not be so small as to ask a man to "come over and help us," and not sustain him? No, no; but could you not spend twenty-five or fifty dollars yourself to have such an effort for the good of the people? Would not the Lord bless the sacrifice? Many brethren have done so, and much more, and God has abundantly blessed them, and blessed the effort to the salvation of souls. Many of the ministers spend time and money and labor in such efforts, which you would ask your neighbors fifty dollars to spend the same time in labor for them, in their business. Yes, you think perhaps you would make a heavy outlay for a meeting if you could get Eld—— or Eld—— to come and preach. Indeed, you have tried, but as all cannot have the great preachers, you did not get one. Some did get them, and got far less results than have followed small preachers. Not, perhaps, because they were not good preachers, but because you trusted in the men, and not in Christ. If you carefully observe the results of labors, you will find that much the greater portion of christians are converted under the labors of those called small preachers, and that many of the lean, barren, great-headed dwarf critics, murmuring, fault-finding, dry, cold, self-righteous societies, are often the results of the labors of those called great preachers.

I. C. WELLCOME.

EPITOME OF CALVINISM.

BY LORENZO DOW.

1. A man gets religion when he does n't want it.
2. When he gets it, he does not know it.
3. If he knows it, he has not got it.
4. If he has it, he cannot lose it.
5. If he loses it, he never had it.

—Selected by A. P. M.

TEACH THE TRUTH.

Most of our teaching to children seems to be, in substance, "Be good; obey your parents; keep holy the Sabbath day and you will go to heaven." What should we say of a minister who taught a similar doctrine from the pulpit for his grown-up hearers? No. Teach them from infancy that Jesus is the sinner's only hope; that if they trust in Him to save them, and come to Him in sincerity for the pardon of their sins, they will not be cast off. Begin such teaching as early as it can be understood. It is the glory of the Gospel that while all the theologians of the world may study the Bible most profoundly for a lifetime, always finding something new and valuable in it, yet the little child may comprehend its grandest, foundation doctrine, and believe in it to the saving of its soul.—S. S. Times.

BENEVOLENCE does not measure its charms too nicely. The clouds never send down to ask the plants and grass below how much they need; they rain for the relief of their own full bosom.

— In ancient days, the most celebrated precept was, "Know thyself." In modern times it has been supplanted by the more fashionable maxim, "Know thy neighbor, and every thing about him."

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—PAUL.

HABITS OF STUDY.

In the Herald of Health for February, we find an excellent article on the above subject, worthy to be read by all students. We have not space for the entire article, but will quote a few of the good things in the form of rules.

"In the first place, it may be confidently urged that no study of any kind ought to be attempted when the body is fatigued and needs rest. It is a great mistake for a tired man to give himself to a new occupation which will only add fatigue of the brain to fatigue of the limbs. Study cannot be profitably pursued when the nerves are racked by lame joints or stiffened muscles. Study after moderate exercise is good, but not after prolonged exercise. . . . Study nothing, not even your own constitution, when you are tired and want to go to bed. . . . Of course, there should be no more study when the brain itself is tired. The moment any one feels that his brain is becoming dizzy, that he thinks or writes by a painful effort, that he must wrap a wet towel around his head, he is guilty if he goes on with his writing or reading. Fatigue is the inexorable limit of all profitable study. . . . .

Then, in the second place, we may say that a wise student will be regular in his habits. He will have certain hours in the day when, as a rule, he will be with his books and papers; and he will not often take other hours, even if he may lose some of his regular hours. On the railways, a late train 'makes up time'; but in study it is not well to try to make up lost time. One who has lost his morning task by some interruption, will err if he sits up at night to make the loss good. . . . Six hours of regular study in the daylight will accomplish more than ten hours of irregular study, and will leave body and mind at the year's end in far better condition . . . . .

Another rule of healthy study is quiet. A reason why so many prefer night studies is, that most of the sounds of the day are stilled in the hours of darkness. Perfect quiet is not necessary. The ticking of the clock, the gentle murmur of wind in the trees, delicate and soft sounds, rather stimulate thought and imagination. . . . . The proper room for hard study is not the nursery, or the office frequented by all sorts of visitors, but the quietest retreat of the house—always remembering that this shall be spacious, light and airy.

And this last reservation suggests another rule, to have plenty of physical light in any kind of study which is done above ground. . . . . . Not for the eyes only, but for the mind as well, is light necessary in studies. Knowledge comes into the soul from the printed page much more fully and cheerfully when the page is bright with radiance. The science that thrives best in darkness is mystical, occult, and devilish. 'Study in the light,' is a maxim as good as 'walk in the light.' Even a blind student finds more satisfaction in his studies by day than by night, and is quickened in his intellect by actinic influence.

Another rule repeats what we have said of posture in study. Sit upright, or stand upright, and do not study with the head reclining, either forward or backward. Sit straight at the writing-table or in the study-chair. . . . .

And still another rule is in place. Do not get into mechanical ways of study, or follow any kind of study which is not interesting, merely as a matter of duty. For sanitary reasons, if for nothing else, routine studies should be discouraged. Mere memorizing, mere conscientious reading of even the best books, is bad. All study in which the heart is not engaged with the head, injures the head and injures the body."

MINISTER'S NERVES.

Great drafts are made upon the nervous vitality of that class of men who are enthusiasts in the work of the ministry. With clergymen of stupid temperament—mere blocks of men—there is no danger at this point. The more this latter class rouse themselves, and bestir themselves, and make demands upon their sluggish vitality, the better it is for them, and the more useful they become. But with active, nervous, rapid men, whom a little trouble keeps awake nights, the case is different. Such men should guard themselves with jealous care, and never make either a useless or wasteful expenditure of nerve power. For this power is a precious gift. It is a talent, one of the very best. You may let it loose always in the delivery of your sermons, and in conversation with individuals about their souls, and in the work of guiding the membership. But do not waste your lightning on things of no account. "It is better to lose a pint of blood from your veins than to have a nerve tapped." When a man's nerve power is expended, his useful ministry is at an end, even though he be still young.

SICKNESS is very largely the want of will. Everything is brain. There is thought and feeling, not only, but will; and will includes in it far more than mental philosophers think. It acts universally, now as upon mind, and then just as much upon body. It is another name for life—force. Men in whom this life or will-power is great, resist disease, and combat it when attacked. To array a man's mind against his sickness is the supreme art of medicine. Inspire in man courage and purpose, and the mind-power will cast out disease. "Nothing ails her. It is only her imagination," said the nurse one day. "Only" the imagination? That is enough. Better suffer in bone and muscle than in imagination. If the body is sick, the mind can cure it; but if the mind is sick, what can cure it?

SICK HEADACHE.—Sick headache is caused by overloading the stomach, by indigestion. It may be relieved by drinking very freely of warm water, whether it produces vomiting or not. If the feet are cold, warm them or bathe them in water as hot as you can bear it. Soda or ashes in the water will do good. If the pain is very severe, apply a cloth wrung out of hot water to the head, pack the head as it were. To prevent it, let plainness, simplicity, and temperance, preside at your table. In some cases medicine is necessary; but if the above is properly carried out, almost immediate relief is experienced.—Orthopathic Journal.

CURE FOR TOOTHACHE.—Take one drachm of collodion and add to it two drachms of carbolic acid (pure), and insert a small portion of the gelatinous mass thus formed into the cavity of the tooth; the result will be immediate relief.—Western Home.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

GO BECAUSE IT RAINS.

"I suppose that you won't go to Sabbath-school to-day, Lucy," said a mother one rainy Sabbath, setting herself to some agreeable reading after breakfast.

"Please let me go to-day, mamma; I want to go because it rains."

"Why, Lucy, that is my excuse for staying at home! How can you make it a reason for going?"

"Our teacher always goes, mamma, in all weather, although, as she lives so far away, she is often obliged to hire a carriage to bring her; and she told the class that one Sabbath when she went through the storm and did not find even one scholar, she was so discouraged that she couldn't help crying. She asked us, too, if we did not go to our day-schools when it stormed worse; and she said, while we must always do just as our parents thought best, perhaps if we asked them pleasantly to let us go, and were willing to wear our thick boots and water-proofs, they would be willing if we were well. Please let me go to-day, mamma; you know if it rains ever so much worse to-morrow, I shall go to school to keep my place in my class."

"Well, I am willing, my dear, if you wear your school suit; go and get ready." But when the mother heard Lucy singing softly in the nursery as she dressed herself to go out,

"Must Jesus bear the cross alone,
And all the world go free?"

She could no longer take interest in her book, and when her husband, who was a lawyer, came in soon after from his library, she said, smiling:

"Our Lucy is going to Sabbath-school especially because it rains, that her teacher may be encouraged by at least one pupil. What say you to going to meeting ourselves for the same reason, if we do not for a better?"

"I'm agreed, my love; I was just thinking I never could plead a cause to a vacant court-room, and that our minister must find it hard to preach to empty pews."—Congregationalist.

SAMMY HICKS AND HIS PIPE.—It is said of that good man, Sammy Hicks, the Micklefield blacksmith, that "as he understood the words of the Lord Jesus, it was quite enough for him to see the path of duty steadfastly to travel in it."

An instance of this feature of his character was exhibited in his sudden abandonment of tobacco. One day he gave sixpence to a poor widow. She blessed him and could hardly find words enough with which to express her thanks.

He said to himself, "Well, if sixpence makes that poor creature so happy, O how many sixpences have I spent in filling my mouth with tobacco!"

He made a vow instantly never to let a pipe enter his lips again. Soon afterwards he was taken very ill, and a doctor said to him, "Mr. Hicks, you must resume your pipe."

"I will not," he replied.

"Then," said the doctor, "if you do not you will not live."

"Bless the Lord, then," said Sammy, "I shall go to heaven. I have made a vow to the Lord that the pipe shall never enter my mouth again, and it never shall." Sammy Hicks kept his vow, and lived to be an old man.—Rev. T. E. Thorsby.

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance..........................$2.50 a year.
Five copies six months to one address.......$5.50.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies six months to one address.......$10.00.
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage in the United States on each single copy of the Crisis is 20 cts. a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.

Over all matters not intended for publication, write—PRIVATE.
Over all business matters, write—BUSINESS.
Over all articles for the paper, write—For the Crisis.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's NAME, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of NEW subscribers are sent, please say they are NEW, and it will save much labor.
PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, please write PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.
☞ Put business matters and appointments on separate pieces of paper, so that they can be detached without interfering with any other communication.
☞ All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the POST OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to either

MILES GRANT, or GEO. T. ADAMS,
BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly,
THE YOUNG PILGRIM:
An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.
TERMS.
PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Single copy, 50 cts. a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.
Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 40 cts. a year for each copy.
Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 35 cts. a year for each copy.
To Canada subscribers at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 800. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1871. VOL. XXXII.—NO. 22.

The World's Crisis,
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, by the
ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY,
At No. 160 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass.
GEO. T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.
WILLIAM SHELDON, Corresponding Editor.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, L. BOUTELL,
JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
HOMER A. KING, H. V. DAVIS,
L. T. CUNNINGHAM, J. G. HAMBLIN,
H. H. DICKENSON.

The "Crisis" is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

THE LOST SHEEP.

There were ninety and nine that safely lay
In the shelter of the fold;
And one was out on the hills away,
Far off from the gates of gold:
Away on the mountains wild and bare—
Away from the tender Shepherd's care.

"Lord, thou hast here thy ninety and nine;
Are they not enough for thee?"
But the Shepherd made answer, "This of mine
Has wandered away from me;
And although the road be rough and steep,
I go to the desert to find my sheep."

But none of the ransomed ever knew
How deep were the waters crossed;
Nor how dark the night that the Lord passed thro'
Ere he found his sheep that was lost.
Out in the desert he heard its cry,
Sick, and helpless, and ready to die.

"Lord, whence are those blood-drops all the way,
That mark out the mountain's track?"
"They were shed for one who had gone astray
Ere the Shepherd could bring him back."
"Lord, whence are thy hands so rent and torn?"
"They were pierced to-night by many a thorn."

And all through the mountains, thunder-riven,
And up from the rocky steep,
There rose a cry to the gates of heaven,
"Rejoice, I have found my sheep!"

For the World's Crisis.

CHRIST'S COMING.

This subject, like the old, old story of Jesus and his love, can never be fully told so that no more can be said of it. To those whose hearts are in anxious expectancy for the fruition of this blessed hope, it is a glorious, never-ending topic. Much has been said and written of it, yet there remains much more to learn of this joyful thought—His coming. Even old truths dressed anew are as a refreshing shower to the waiting one. O that others might have this glorious hope, sharing with us its comforting, peace-giving, and purifying power. But the idea is scoffed at, and when believed it is put off for a thousand years, or more. The church and the world do not wish to realize that the day is near at hand, nor will they see the necessity for the Second Advent while their visions are clouded by the superstitious heathenisms of the old philosophers. The traditions of men lose sight of his coming literally to reign upon the renewed earth. Men who expect to be rewarded at death do not feel that longing desire for Jesus, that should be an eternal fountain of hope, purifying them for the great change that awaits those who "love his appearing."

Our hope of a Paradise restored, a kingdom upon this earth, freed from the curse, is something real, tangible, worthy of desire. How much better than this—

"Then when we drop this dying flesh,
We'll rise above the sky."

This is man's doctrine now for Christ's word as recorded in John 3: 13—"And no man hath ascended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of man that is in heaven." The Scriptures teach everywhere that death is an enemy. Man tries to make him our best friend, opening to our earth-worn souls the portals of that heavenly place, ridding the spirit of this cumbrous clay, and placing us at once in our reward or punishment, as the case may be: this surely does away in a great degree with the need of an advent; and if there is no advent, there will be no resurrection.

Thus saith the Lord—"And this is the will of him that sent me; that every one which seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life; and I will raise him up at the last day." Four times in this chapter (John 6) Christ promises to raise the believer "at the last day." But why did he so urge this point, endeavoring to impress it so firmly on the minds of the people, if the soul goes to heaven at death? Surely to a soul in full enjoyment of heavenly bliss, it would not be desirable to again enter this prison-house of clay, after having been so kindly liberated by death, trying the realities of an unknown world. The hymn says—

"When this poor, lisping, stammering tongue,
Lies silent in the grave,
Then in a nobler, sweeter song,
I'll sing thy power to save."

The Psalmist says (115: 17), "The dead praise not the Lord." According to the doctrine of men, the spirit must have a tongue independent of the one that "lies silent in the grave"; or does it sing without vocal organs, being, as some say, without body or parts? Bickersteth tells us in "Yesterday, To-day, and Forever"—

"They err who tell us that the spirit unclothed,
And from its mortal tabernacle loosed,
Has neither lineament of countenance,
Nor limit of ethereal mould, nor form
Of spiritual substance."

And so it is, every one has his particular definition, his peculiar belief about what this thing is; one terms it the rational principle in man; but that is not deathless, for David says in Ps. 146: 4, "His breath goeth forth; he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish."

Again, we have heard it said a soul can stand on a needle's point, or a soul would fill a room, a house, immeasurable space; that it has wings; that it has no wings; it can go under a door-crack, or through a key-hole; yet others open a window (when a person dies) that the "immortal soul" may not be impeded in its upward flight. We are told that it goes to heaven or hell, or to purgatory—anywhere but to the grave. A Baptist brother once told us that the soul "goes into space" (where that is he did not know), and there remains until the judgment day. Thus we see it is all conjecture with them, and they have to pervert the pure word of God in the vain attempt to make it fit their theology.

O! what darkness and sin have fallen upon this world by believing that lie of Satan—"Thou shalt not surely die." This was the first sin, and this it is that has caused all the misery to which we are heirs. God grant us wisdom and strength to combat this fearful error, which results in so much harm, driving so many men to skepticism.

The Bible nowhere teaches immortal-soulism. God says he "formed man of the dust," breathing into "his nostrils the breath of life," when man "became a living soul." When that breath of life leaves man, he becomes a dead soul. So man lieth down, and riseth not; till the heavens be no more, they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep." Job 14: 12. When Jesus comes the heavens shall be no more. Then, and not till then, will the dead awake. God, says Josephus, made man, taking dust from the ground, and placed in him a soul and a spirit. From the Jews this idea was transmitted to the early Christian fathers, being found in the writings of Justin Martyr, Irenæus, Clemens, Alexandrinus, Origen, and others. Smith's Bib. Dic. Thus we see that this doctrine of man's having a deathless spirit started in Eden by the serpent, and was taken up by men, and today is supported by man, and not by the gospel of Christ.

The promulgation of this belief of immortality out of Christ justifies, in part, widow-burning, catholicism, spiritualism; and a host of other abominations are the legitimate offspring of this heresy. The advocates of this error talk of a merciful God; yet in the next breath they say he punishes man, a poor, weak, sinful creature, surrounded by temptation (if he die in his sins), with an endless life in torment so unutterably fearful and agonizing, there are no words that can express his misery. What inconsistency and blindness! "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John 3: 16. Would it not be a reasonable conclusion, that whosoever did not believe on him should not possess everlasting life? Yet orthodoxy tells us we do possess this life, whether he believe or not. Or again, if, as we are taught by modern divines, we cannot perish or be annihilated, because we have an inherent entity that is indestructible, why did Christ promise immortality, if we naturally have it? did he wish to deceive us by giving us what we already own? are his words meaningless? No, no. God forbid. When we take him at his word, all is plain. "For we are saved by hope [in Christ of everlasting life]; but hope that is seen [or possessed] is not hope: for what a man seeth, why doth he yet hope for?" Rom. 8: 24.

We by reason of sin are all subject to death. "Wherefore as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned"; our only escape from the second death, for which the unjust are reserved unto the day of judgment to be punished, is through faith in Christ. This second death destroys man utterly, leaving him neither root nor branch. They shall not live for ever. See John 3: 15; 6: 53; 10: 28; 1 John 3: 15. They are to be destroyed, soul and body. Matt. 28: 10. Surely if a sinner is doomed to an endless roasting, the Bible does not say so; hence we are warranted in attributing this theory to the father of lies.

Soul and spirit, though occurring sixteen hundred times in the Scriptures, are never called deathless, undying, or ever-existing; on the contrary, we are plainly told "God only hath immortality." 1 Tim. 6: 16. If faithful, we shall be clothed by it, or, in other words, put it on in the resurrection. 1 Cor. 15: 53, 54. We receive it through Christ. Out of him we can not receive it, and it therefore must be speaking lies in hypocrisy to claim any such prerogative.

Some have told me "they fear to reap immortal woe," they fear endless torment in fiery billows that rage below, or else they would plunge into the excesses of this world, and "eat, drink, and be merry." They try to think death is no punishment; that losing all, the glory of eternal life and blissful enjoyment in the renewed earth is no punishment for a sinner; nothing will do but a theological hell. Truly what man loses by sin is a punishment severe indeed.

The greatest incentive and the purest motive to a holy life is love for Christ. "God is love." "There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear; because fear hath torment." "He that feareth is not made perfect in love." 1 John 4: 18. This principle of love for God, for holiness, and for truth, will only and alone stand the test of the day of God Almighty. Nothing but trusting love in Christ will give man an inheritance in the new earth. If a man has no higher motive than the fear of the law, he has not been cleansed from all unrighteousness. "But who may abide the day of his coming? and who shall stand when he appeareth? for he is like a refiner's fire, and like fuller's soap." Mal. 3: 2. Glory be to his name, it will not be long before Christ shall come to destroy the last enemy; then shall all error be removed, and we shall be like him—"And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels; and I will spare them, as a man spareth his own son that serveth him." Mal. 3: 17.

One we love has been mowed down by the relentless scythe of death; there he lies before us pale, cold, so like marble. Is not this indeed a curse, an enemy? Yet tradition strives to make it something desirable; yet in our very nature we fear it. Richard Baxter said—"For my own part, I must confess to you that death, as death appeareth to me, is an enemy, and my nature doth abhor and fear it." Then let us pray that he may come to drive this foe from the earth, and to give the saints their reward at the resurrection. Paul says if there be no resurrection, then those who believe in Christ are perished,—a fate which would not befall them were they now in the joy of their Lord; hence we see all depends on Jesus' coming again, without sin, unto salvation; that of all which hath been given him nothing should be lost, but he should "raise it up again at the last day." This is why we as Adventists give to his return the prominence which rightly belongs to such an event. The word of God is not "yea and nay," but "yea and amen." It positively proves, by over an hundred passages, that the just and the unjust are recompensed at the Lord's return, and not at death. For death is a sleep, the opposite of all life, thought, existence in any form, or action; hence it cannot be an immortal life in any way or place whatsoever.

Orthodox brethren take to themselves a special license to abuse us, and to misrepresent these truths, bringing railing accusations against us, calling us infidels, heretics, and using opprobrious epithets against us, "speaking evil of the things that they understand not." But, beloved, even these seeming discouragements, taken in the true light of the gospel, should fill us with hope, for they indicate the nearness at hand of the last days, "when men will not endure sound doctrine, but after their own lusts shall they heap up teachers having itching ears," becoming scoffers and lovers of darkness. Let us, then, pray for strength, even to "casting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ"; proclaiming the riches of his grace, the plenitude of his mercies, and the beauty and simplicity of his truth as it is revealed in the word; in the mean time holding a waiting attitude, occupying faithfully until Christ comes to relieve us. We must not weary in well doing, but be cheered and strengthened by constant prayer, knowing that no work which is done with an eye single to God's glory is in vain; bread cast upon the waters shall return after many days.

O for more workers in the vineyard! Let not this apply to us—"Woe unto them that are at ease in Zion." We want men with hearts all aglow with the truth, and lives in accordance with their precepts. God guide our thoughts, fill our mouths with arguments, and help us to persuade in meekness all men to turn to Christ and live, direct our pens, set a watch over our tongues, that we may lead some into the glorious light which makes the Bible a new book, and adds much to God's glory. Therefore "let us not sleep as do others," but let us "watch and be sober." We know he must soon come literally and personally. Are we ready? Have we no fear that we shall not be recognized? Prepare thyself; set thy house in order, for thy redemption draweth nigh, waiting one.

"Let us therefore fear, lest a promise being left us of entering into his rest, any of you should seem to come short of it." We cannot be too well prepared; we cannot be too pure, for "in an hour when ye think not the Son of man cometh." In view of the shortness of time, let us do all we can for the truths we love so well. We want that love and zeal that must work. Having these truths, we must not shut them up within ourselves, but must let our light shine, though men may try to cover it with their vain delusions. We want to arouse the church to a realization of the closing of this probationary time. We want reinforcements from the ranks of the devil, by bringing in such as shall be saved from the highways and hedges by God's converting power.

Sinner! will you leave the things of this world, and with us follow the instructions of the divine Master? Then you can claim that endless life and infinite happiness, at his coming, which is soon to be given to those who love and serve the Lord. "And this is the promise that he hath promised us, even eternal life." "And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof; but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever." "Finally, brethren, farewell. Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace; and the God of love and peace shall be with you." "He which testifieth these things saith, Surely I come quickly; Amen, even so, come, Lord Jesus." CYRUS MENDENHALL.

Wilmington, Del.

For the World's Crisis.

THE MORTALITY OF MAN.

A SHORT SCRIPTURAL ARGUMENT.

"In Him was life; and the life was the light of men. And the light shineth in darkness; and the darkness comprehended it not."—JOHN 1: 4, 5.

"In him [Christ] was life." What life? "This is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son." 1 John 5: 11. Immortality is in him. "As the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself," John 5: 26. "Who only hath immortality." 1 Tim. 6: 16.

What is "the light of men"? "And the life was the light of men." The life in him (Christ) is the light of men. The immortality and eternal life in Christ is the light of men, and this is made known by the gospel in contrast to man's mortality. 1 Pet. 1: 24, 25; 1 Tim. 1: 10.

"And the light shineth in darkness"—the life in Christ (immortality) shineth in darkness. What, then, is "the darkness"? If the immortality in Christ is the light, the mortality in man is the darkness. The gospel proclaims immortality to a mortal race, as "the gift of God."

"And the darkness comprehendeth it not." Why? Because mankind think and believe themselves to be possessed of immortality already. And so blurred are they by this conception, they cannot comprehend the life and light in Christ Jesus.

Alas! for our mortal race. O that they might be made to see their poverty and need of "the light of life" in Christ Jesus our Lord, and seek for it. Rom. 2.

O. R. FASSETT.

For the World's Crisis.

IS SIN INFINITE BECAUSE THE LAW IS?

It is often stated by our friends who are adherents of the popular theology of the endless misery of immortal souls, that the sin of man deserves infinite punishment, because it is the transgression of infinite law, and, therefore, there can be no other penalty for it than "endless misery." There is on the face of this an appearance of plausibility, hence it is likely to mislead. It has misled multitudes, and its sophistries have become so interwoven in men's faith, that often they are fully persuaded this is an unanswerable argument; and they present it as the great climax of all their arguments in proof of man's inherent immortality, and his endless misery in case he is sentenced to suffer the penalty of a violated law.

Let us look at this matter candidly, and see whether, after all, this statement does not prove too much, and involve its friends in a greater difficulty than they desire.

We ask, therefore, What is the result of an infinite penalty of an infinite law? And we answer, It is to destroy the infinity of the law, by creating an antagonistic infinity. As, therefore, two infinities cannot exist, even in harmony, especially as antagonisms, there cannot be an infinite penalty attached even to an infinite law.

But what is the proof of this? We answer. An infinite penalty requires an infinite subject of the penalty; hence we have the anomaly of one infinity punishing another. How can it be otherwise? How can man, for instance, be sentenced by an infinite law to suffer its infinite penalty, unless he has a nature corresponding to the penalty, so that the penalty can grasp it,—if you please, an infinite nature? Some even assert this de facto, by declaring that "the soul of man is a part of God."

Further; as to results, if God's law, as related to man, has an infinite penalty, then the subject of that penalty, being an evil person, full of sin and opposition to God, must have an inherent, immortal soul, made by the infinite God, for a subject of the infinite law, to suffer infinitely, at least as to duration. And what have we in that case? Simply, a case of self-frustration on the part of the Almighty God; a making of what he cannot destroy; hence, a destruction of his own omnipotence, he giving, thereby, a dignity to the evil he affects to punish, and simply placing man where he has full power to defy, to curse, and blaspheme his imbecile Creator, who can do nothing more than suffer the sinner to curse on forever, and thus involve the moral universe in "interminable trouble." Evil cannot interminably exist, and not be in itself thereby lifted to the dignity of a supremacy, which would be fatal to the omnipotence of Jehovah.

Doubtless our friends who hold these views would shrink from admitting these conclusions, and accuse us of blasphemy, in thus stating the case; but the blasphemy, if there be any, is theirs, not ours, as we find no such state of things in existence, or even possible to existence; because the penalties of God's law must be such as to keep forever all power in his own hands; hence sin and evil must be under his absolute control; and as absolute control does not mean simply regulating power, as shutting the evil up in an eternal prison-house, and there from sheer necessity, by exhaustion of power, letting it reign rampant; or, more moderately, even, does not mean a control by eternal toleration, for that would be all the same in its results as in the other case; for it is all the same as to the dignity and supremacy of evil, whether it runs on forever, self-existent, or has as much power and liberty, simply by Divine permission. But it means, and this only, that God must of necessity,—a necessity involved in the laws of his own great infinity and omnipotence; laws which make it for ever impossible for but one infinity to exist in the universe; that he must of this "necessity" bring all evil, by his absolute control of it, to a final termination, and wipe it for ever from his universe, as the word of Inspiration has it. Sin must be "finished." "All the wicked" must "be destroyed," or God cannot hold his place as the infinite Ruler of the universe, the absolute Controller of all his foes.

"Being whom we call God, and know no more,"—

Here is the true solution of the question. Oh! that all might see the fatality involved in any other theory. Clearly, God's word, his declarations as to what shall be done with the sinner, are in harmony with his nature, and the necessities which grow out of it; or, rather, the laws which constitute it what it is.

Sin shall come to an end. All the proud, and all that do wickedly shall, yea, must be burned up. They cannot possibly exist forever, as our God is supreme. Let all the people say Amen, and seek for life, that they be not destroyed. L. C. MCKINSTRY.

THE Christian Union says, that churches are getting to be merely lecture associations for the maintenance of a course of Sunday lectures; and that the gifts of a preacher are more sought after and more highly paid than the gifts of a pastor.

THE ROCK OF AGES.

The following interesting sketch of the author of the well-known hymn—"Rock of Ages," and some items relating to it, appeared in the Evangelist, from the pen of Rev. T. L. Cuyler:—

The southern coast of England has been the birth-place of the grandest hymns in our language. Within that belt of land—sacred to devout poesy—Charles Wesley caught the inspiration of many of his hymns, and there (we believe) he composed that delicious love-lay of the heart, "Jesus, lover of my soul!" On the shores of Hampshire mused and sang good Isaac Watts; and in the same country modest Annie Steele breathed forth her tender songs of consolation. In old Kent lived Edward Perrouett, who struck that thrilling note, "All hail the power of Jesus' name!" In beautiful Devonshire, the Rev. Henry F. Lyte chanted his last sweet melody, "Abide with me; fast falls the even-tide." A few miles from him dwelt Charlotte Elliott, the sister of a clergyman; she went about doing good; but the grandest work God ever put into her hands, was to write, "Just as I am, without one plea." Devonshire is certainly honored above all the other shires of Britain, for on that poetic soil Augustus Toplady gave birth to the most glorious hymn of modern times, the "Rock of Ages." The "Dies Iræ" is the king of mediæval hymns; but of modern songs of Zion, the "Rock of Ages" wears the crown.

It is a curious fact that the spiritual birth-place of the heart which fashioned this hymn was a barn! Augustus Toplady was the son of a British officer. After Major Toplady's death his widow took the lad Augustus on a visit to Ireland. While at Codymain, the boy of sixteen found his way into a barn, where an earnest, but uneducated layman was preaching on the text "Ye who sometime were afar off, are made nigh by the blood of Christ." The homespun preacher "builded better than he knew," for his sermon converted the soul which gave to the Church of God the "Rock of Ages." Let no man feel that he is doing a small thing when he is proclaiming Jesus and the great salvation, even to peasants in a cow-house, or to sailors on the docks. Probably that obscure Irish preacher has overheard ten thousand echoes of his sermon in the heavenly world.

Toplady was ordained to the ministry in 1762, and began to preach on the banks of the Otter. His career was a short one, for he died at the age of thirty-eight. He lived fast, and worked fiercely. James Hamilton says of him, that "like a race-horse, all nerve and fire, his life was on tiptoe, and his delight was to get over the ground." He composed in hot haste. Certainly some of his sharp controversial papers against Arminianism were thrown off as from a furnace, for they scorched terribly.

Even when he wrote his magnificent masterpiece, the "Rock of Ages," he could not resist the temptation to give a sly thrust at those who he insisted were believers in "Perfectionism." So he entitled his hymn when he printed it—"A living and dying prayer of the holiest believer in the world." This was as much as if he had said: "The most sanctified soul in the world must come down on his knees, and confess that 'nothing in my hands I bring,' and that 'vile I to this fountain fly.' . . . .

Toplady's hymn is as universally popular as the sunshine, or the vernal flowers. It has been translated into almost every tongue. Dr. Pomeroy went into a church in Constantinople, where a company of Armenians were singing a hymn which so moved them that tears were trickling down their cheeks. He inquired what they were singing? A man present translated the words, and lo! they were the dear old lines of "Rock of Ages!" When Prince Albert of England was dying, his lips feebly murmured the sweet words of Toplady's hymn! And so it came about that the dying prince laid hold of those precious thoughts which had their original root in the rude discourse of an obscure layman in an Irish barn! Truly the religion of Jesus abaseth the proud, and exalteth the lowly. Kings and beggars must go down into the dust alike, where the blood of the atoning Lamb is streaming.

We do not dare to attempt the critical analysis of Toplady's wonderful hymn. Just as soon would we pull a tube rose to pieces to find out where the delicious odor was lurking. The hymn itself is absolute perfection. Of all its lines the two finest are those which are carved on a monument in Greenwood, beneath a figure of Faith kneeling before a cross:

"Nothing in my hand I bring,
Simply to Thy cross I cling!"

No device in all Greenwood is more impressive; and no words can express more beautifully the entire empty-handedness with which a poor, weak, sinful soul comes up to grasp the divine Redeemer as its last and only hope. The essence of the gospel is in this matchless couplet. It has wrought itself into ten thousand prayers for pardon; it has been the condensed "confession of faith" for ten thousand penitents.

Two slight changes have been made in Toplady's hymn. The word "tracts" has been superseded by "worlds" in the last verse. In the same verse the author also wrote:

"When my eye-strings break in death."

Perhaps he had learned the medical fact, that at the moment of dissolution a delicate tendon near the eye sometimes breaks, and causes a flow of tears. But the allusion was more anatomical than poetic, and the word "heart-strings" is substituted in our common version. . . . .

The whole hymn is a fervent outcry of a broken heart to Jesus. It begins in a plaintive confession,

"Not the labor of my hands
Can fulfill Thy law's demands!"

Then the suppliant owns that he is naked, empty-handed, and helpless, and foul, and calls out imploringly—

"Wash me, Savior, or I die!"

Then his bursting heart begins to yearn and stretch onward. It reaches on to the dread hour when the heart-strings are snapped at the touch of death. It sweeps out into eternity. It soars to the judgment-seat. It beholds the great white throne! And casting itself down before that throne, it pours forth its last piercing but triumphant cry,

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in thee!"

For the World's Crisis.

NO MORE TEARS.

Numerous are the sources of sorrow in this world. Disappointments, poverty, bereavements, sickness and afflictions of various kinds, are constantly stirring the fountains of grief, and causing tears in unnumbered drops to roll over the cheeks of the pure and good; unseen, perhaps, by the gay and proud who pass thoughtlessly on, but felt and realized in solitude by those who in meekness bear their burdens without a murmur or complaint.

Earth's history has truly been a long dark night of weeping. Ever since sin entered the portals of fair Eden, sorrow and tears have been the heritage of mankind. Crushed and bleeding mortals have wrestled and struggled with difficulties until their strength has failed, and they have fallen victims to the last great foe. Still the foe rushes on, the night is dark, and creation groans for deliverance; on every side the sound of distress greets the ear. Oppression and injustice triumph. The poor are trodden down, and the good are despised. Homes are broken up. Fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, husbands, wives, and loved ones, are scattered, perhaps to meet no more. Every Thanksgiving, Christmas, and New Year cause weeping. Circles that were once complete, are now sad and broken; the smiling countenance is no longer seen, the sweet and pleasant voice no longer heard. Yonder little grave contains all that was dear to some mother's heart. Oh, how she weeps at every recollection of the sweet darling; but tears are in vain. Circumstances are often beyond our control. Disease will rage. In every land, and among all classes, its desolating track is seen.

But, thank God, this shall not always be. There comes a brighter dawn. The saints shall sing the song of victory, and wear the spotless robes of unfading immortality. "God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things are passed away." On the eternal hills of Paradise I see the white-robed band. No tear bedims the eye, no sorrow fills the heart. They are forever saved. There is no more sorrow, sickness, affliction or trouble of any kind. Every source of sorrow is dried up, and no spring of grief will ever again be opened. "For the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of water" that shall never run dry; "and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes."

The loved and blest of every age will be reunited then; circles broken on earth will then be completed, and ties snapped in sunder here, will then be knit in eternal bonds. The mists, shade and gloom of Time will be merged in the holy splendors of Eternity; and the sighs and groans of the sorrowing church and the burdened creation, will be hushed by the awakening anthems of the morning stars, and the swelling melodies of the everlasting jubilee. Then the redeemed of the Lord "shall return and come to Zion, with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads; they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away."

"Savior, come and bring the day,
Day of endless gladness;
Drive our tears and gloom away,
Banish all our sadness.

Let us see the light of home,
Hear its music swelling;
Bring us through the conquered tomb,
To that heavenly dwelling."

J. W. THOMAS.

For the World's Crisis.

PRACTICE WHAT YOU PREACH.

How often do we hear it said of those who profess to be followers of the meek and lowly Jesus that they "preach more than they practice." Their daily walk, either at home or abroad, is compared with what or how they may talk, or preach to others. And if they are not in possession of that "unfeigned love," and of that "meek and quiet spirit," which they desire others to have, the worldly man, and others who may listen to such teaching, will at once think within themselves, that such things are not consistent.

And well they may; for if our works do not correspond with our preaching, the word of God will condemn us, and our preaching will be in vain. Rather let us endeavor to "show our faith by our works," and then we shall not be offended if we are led to see wherein we have erred, and rebuked by the Scriptures which are "profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, and for instruction in righteousness." 2 Tim. 3: 16. We have Christ as our example, and his word as our guide; and if we diligently seek to be led by him, we shall "put on, therefore, as the elect of God, . . . kindness, humbleness of mind, meekness, long-suffering; forbearing one another, forgiving one another; if any man have a quarrel against any; . . . and above all these things, put on charity, which is the bond of perfectness." Col. 3: 12-14.

We may say that we "love those that differ from us," and that we can love them as well as those that are in harmony with us; but do we love them as well? Do we bridle our tongues, and take heed that we say or do nothing which will "offend one of God's little ones"? Do we have that spirit of meekness and gentleness which Jesus had, and when about to speak harshly and hastily of those that are seeking with all diligence to do the will of their heavenly Father, stop and consider that unless we are careful in our speech, we may "grieve the Spirit of God"? We may boast of our knowledge, and exalt ourselves as great and wise teachers, yet if we speak not the truth in love, humble ourselves, and become as little children, we "can in no wise enter into the kingdom of God." And if we have not that "charity," which "suffereth long, and is kind, that envieth not, that vaunteth not itself, that is not puffed up, that is not easily provoked, that thinketh no evil," we are nothing. And "though we may speak with the tongues of men and of angels," have the "gift of prophecy," and "understand all mysteries," and "all knowledge," and "have not CHARITY," we are become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal." 1 Cor. 13: 1-8.

Our Savior has taught us to "love our enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you" (Matt. 5: 44); and the reason assigned us for so doing, is this—"That ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven." How can we expect to be his children, if we do otherwise? Some may say that they "know of people that they would not have anything to do with, whatever." But did Jesus do thus? Did he cast any aside on account of unbelief? or, because we were sinners, refuse to die for us that we through his death and resurrection might be made partakers of a glorious immortality? Nay, verily, he has ever been willing to receive all who would come to him, and requires us to "do good" unto all men. "For if ye love them which love you, what reward have ye? do not even the publicans the same? And if ye salute your brethren only, what do ye more than others? Do not even the publicans so?" Matt. 5: 46, 47.

May the Lord help us to "examine our own selves," and see that our hearts are free from everything which is contrary to the gospel; and may we be so filled up with the love of God, that strife, wrath, anger, malice, jealousy, pride, and all evil imaginations, can find no room; and then, if we are walking as becometh the children of God, "when He who is our life shall appear, we shall appear with him in glory."

Jealousy causes people to surmise evil one of another, but "charity thinketh no evil." Let us always remember this, and when we assert positively that we know others are in an error, and say that we will "fight against it with all our might," beware lest we be deceiving ourselves. The true child of God will not fight in any way that is contrary to the spirit of Jesus. We may "fight the good fight of faith," but let us do it with meekness, gentleness, and godly fear; and "let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall." 1 Cor. 10: 12. "And the Lord make you to increase and abound in love one toward another, and toward all men, even as we do toward all men; to the end he may stablish your hearts unblamable in holiness before God, even our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ with all his saints." 1 Thess. 3: 12. GEO. E. LEE.

Athol, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

HONOR FROM GOD.

The Almighty Savior hath ascended up on high. He has received gifts for men: honors, titles, fame in abundance. The saints who are the excellent of earth God delighteth to honor. Angels are their body guard. The Savior is their friend. He confers on them the title of "sons of God," of "kings and priests," who shall possess a kingdom that endureth forever. Their fame is immortal. The righteous shall be had in "everlasting remembrance."

The honors of earth come from inconstant mortals. The honors which are spiritual flow from the unchangeable Jehovah. The honors of earth are sought by trampling on the rights of others. The honors of God are sought by the increase of human happiness. Earthly honors are unsatisfactory when obtained. The honors of God fill the soul with bliss. Earthly honors are transitory, like the source from whence they spring. The honors of heaven are abiding, like their divine Author. Then let us seek the honors of heaven. EDWIN B. WELLS.

Kennebunk Depot, Me.

MISSIONARY WORK.—We live in an earnest age. Energy speaks from the eyes, lips, feet of all who hurry by us. Things thought impossible are done, and progress and success are everywhere—everywhere but in the church of Christ. There victories come—oh, how slowly! and the day of triumph seems a fable. Why is this so? The reason is very plain. We christians are the cause. The soldiers of Christ are not fighting for their Captain as they should; therefore error and wickedness defy the armies of the living God. And yet who ever had such motives to earnestness as we christians? Our Master offers us not rewards that perish or must be left, but everlasting crowns and kingdoms, riches and glories, if we will fight the good fight of faith, if we will overcome, if we will be wise enough to win souls. Appeals to our pity, such as no other than a christian can bear, come from every side—from souls dying, not for time, but for eternity. But above all, from the One whom we serve, and who, as he seeks to save the lost, bids us follow him. When, then, the promise of such great reward, pity for our brothers and sisters, and gratitude to our Savior, all plead with us for an earnest life with him, how strange that there should be earnest men and women everywhere, but so few in the church of Christ!—Ex.

DIOGENES being at Olympia, saw at the celebrated festival some young men of Rhodes, arrayed most magnificently. Smiling, he exclaimed, "This is pride." Afterward meeting with some Lacedemonians in a mean and sordid dress, he said, "And this is also pride." Pride is found at the same opposite extremes in dress at the present day.

— Men ought to be more considerate in writing than in speaking, because a rash and indiscreet word may be corrected presently; but that which is written can no more be denied or amended but with infamy.

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, Feb. 22, 1871.

☞ Please Remember!

☞ All remittances to this office, in the form of Drafts, Bank Checks, and Postal Money-Orders, should be made payable to the Business Agent, GEO. T. ADAMS.

☞ Take Notice!

☞ All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable in Advance, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

CALIFORNIA DISCUSSION.

Our discussion with Mr. J. S. Loveland, in San Francisco, has proved a great blessing to many honest persons, who are now rejoicing in the truth. Our discussion occupied a part of four weeks, and was attended by an intelligent audience, which crowded Dashaway hall every night. Each disputant made twenty-four minute speeches. An intelligent gentleman remarked that he did not think there was another man in the United States who could defend the Orthodox view any better than Mr. Loveland. He is an interesting speaker. He has lately renounced Spiritualism, and is now advocating what he calls a "new religion." Christ is not the "corner stone" of this new system, but Mr. Loveland, so far as we can learn, does not believe that one prophecy of the Bible is reliable. He denies the resurrection of Christ, and the rest of the dead; but holds on to the dogma that the soul of man is an immortal personality. He believes all will be saved; and that death is but a birth into a higher life. Although he has renounced his belief in spiritual manifestations, he holds on to their doctrines with a death-like grasp.

The discussion called out an intelligent class of people, who seemed anxious to know the truth. We had a fine opportunity to show the harmony of the Scriptures on the subject of the sleep of the dead, the coming of Christ, and the destruction of the wicked. The truth on these subjects is taking root rapidly in California. Mr. Loveland tried to prove his position by an appeal to reason and science; but both were found to be in harmony with the Scriptures, and to declare that man is wholly unconscious in death. The discussion made the doctrine of the sleep of the dead look plainer to us than ever before. Like pure gold, the more it is rubbed, the brighter it shines. This doctrine is being received into many honest hearts, who are rejoicing in the Lord about as much as when they were first converted. To them, the Bible is now a plain book, where before it was all mystery and darkness. The former apparent confusion is now changed to beautiful harmony.

MORE WAR CLOUDS.

There is reason to believe that another war in Europe is impending. Should it begin at the place indicated, we may expect most important results; such as will give strong additional evidence that we are near the second coming of Christ. The following is from the Alta California, a first class daily, published in San Francisco:—

"The indications are very strong that the spring will witness the breaking out of another war, in another part of Europe—that is to say, the east. The sick man has of late been manifesting an activity and vitality, not heretofore customary. The visit of the Commander of the Faithful to Europe, in 1867, removed, in all probability, many of the superstitions which he had previously entertained. After he had seen the armies of the different Christian nations, he probably came to the conclusion that by the expenditure of some money, he could get up as good an army as any of them. If nothing else, the personal observation of Frankistan removed that fear which vagueness of information and ignorance usually beget. So he is evidently going to fight sooner than yield an inch in the Black Sea or anywhere else—fight whether he has assistance from the western powers or not. The Musselmans have a superstition that the gate of Constantinople, through which the Red Giaours are to pour in, is already in existence. Believing this, they will struggle to the death, before they concede an inch to those whom they regard as their hereditary enemies."

When Turkey goes to war again, we may expect the "sick man" will die, and come to his end without help. The opening scenes of the coming judgment are drawing near. Are we ready? This inquiry should come home to every heart. The evidence in favor of the speedy coming of Christ is overwhelming; but the giddy throng pay no attention to these things, and boldly scoff at those who are looking for and loving the appearing of the King of kings. Let us sing,

"Come and reign, come and reign,
Jesus, on thy throne;
And, O, it fills my heart with joy
To know we're almost home."

☞ A "Correspondent" writing of the tendency to fault-finding evinced in some recent contributions, especially in regard to labor in the churches, among other things says:

"The church of Christ will be fed; and those who break unto her the 'Bread' of life, filled with the abundance of the blessing of the Lord of all, and bearing the seal of his ministry, are to her as the angels of his grace, and receive double honor for their 'works' sake.' The faithful and unflinching laborer, who dares do the right everywhere, and works anywhere, following the Master's call either to this or yonder side of his vineyard, will gather in souls for his hire, and has no time—and no disposition—to ask, 'Where are my wages?' The church should best know its own needs; and it surely knows whether its servants have wherewith to meet them."

In another place we find our writer saying:

"This decrying special beliefs, or opinions,—which must in the present state of things be nothing more or less than such,—is lamentable, to say the least. What right has the one 'believer' to say to another,—each professing to stand upon the divine Word,—'Your belief is pernicious, false, unchristian, and mine is the only Bible doctrine'? What have christians to do with such a sentiment? Alas! where is the breadth of apostolic teaching emulated in these days of dissension and strife for the mastery?"

California Pears.—The fruit grows very large in California. A pear has been on exhibition weighing four pounds and six ounces. It was eight and a half inches high, nineteen inches around it one way, and twenty-three the other. We have eaten here the most delicious apples and grapes we ever tasted.

California Oranges.—A gentleman residing in San Francisco, has received a splendid sample of Los Angelos oranges. A single stem bears seventy-five oranges.

Correction.—In "California Items" of last week, under the head of "Our Meetings," for—"Platt's Hall is said to hold fourteen thousand," read fourteen hundred.

GRANT VS. LOVELAND.

Last evening Elder Grant and the Rev. Mr. Loveland once more resumed their argument at Dashaway Hall, before a crowded house. The proposition in discussion was that "the Bible and reason teaches that man, as an intelligent moral being, is a composite unity, made of the dust of the earth in the likeness of his Creator, and is mortal, remaining unconscious between his death and the final resurrection." Mr. Grant maintained the affirmative, Mr. Loveland the negative.

ELDER GRANT.

opened the discussion by asserting that the belief in the continued, consecutive existence of the soul was not taught in the Bible, and was therefore unscriptural. He repeated his statement that the idea originated with the ancient Egyptians, and was only sanctioned in the Christian Church for the first time by Pope Clement V. He laid down as

A PROPOSITION TO HIS OPPONENT

(Mr. Loveland) that the mind (or soul, as synonymous) was dependent upon the body with which it was connected, and depended upon it for the exercise of its powers. Hence, when the body was destroyed, the mind or soul would cease to exercise its powers. It was both unreasonable and unscriptural to believe that a dead man could know anything. It was not reasonable to believe that if a blow would make a man unconscious, a series of blows, heavy enough to kill him, would send him into a state of consciousness.

THE GREAT ERROR OF THE WORLD

Had been the belief in the lie told by the tempter in the Garden of Eden—"Ye shall not surely die." With such a belief it was impossible to harmonize the Bible, unless the whole were taken in a spiritual sense, which would throw everything into mysticism. All the doctrines of Christianity were expressed in simple and unmistakable language in the Bible, and it was reasonable to suppose that had the immortality of the soul been a Bible doctrine it would have been expressed in the same way. On the contrary, however, it was not once set down in the Bible.

Mr. Grant then proceeded to notice the numerous passages in the Bible which refer to the "death" of persons, in order to bear out his theory that the Bible meant to infer that the real personalities "died" and were "buried."

THE WORD "SPIRIT,"

Mr. Grant stated, was used in four senses in the Bible. First, as a personality or being; second, as an emanation from God; third, as a state of feeling; fourth, as the breath of life. In support of his statement, Mr. Grant adduced a number of texts in which the word "spirit" was clearly used in the sense of feelings and in that of wind and air. He also recapitulated his argument of a previous evening as to the "coming again" of the spirit or, as he construed it, breath of the "maid" restored to life by Jesus.

He maintained that angels were personalities, though "spirits," and that they had "tangible feet," which could be washed as Abraham had done. But they were not made of dust as were man. The text—"What man knoweth the things of a man but the spirit that is in a man," the Elder interpreted as meaning that only the mesmeric intuition of one man was able to comprehend the nature of another man.

MR. LOVELAND

Rose in reply. In reference to Mr. Grant's view of the "maid's" restoration to life by Jesus, and the coming again of her "spirit," Mr. Loveland once more, as on a previous occasion, perverted Mr. Grant's argument into meaning that the same gasp of air came again, and ridiculed it as usual; but as it seemed to us somewhat unfairly, seeing that he must have well known, as did everybody else, what the Elder meant.

Mr. Grant's argument that the text "the spirit is willing" meant the mind is willing, Mr. Loveland met by contending that such a construction would infer that the spirit—a mere emanation or breath, as the Elder had said—was possessed of a will—another rather uncandid argument. Mr. Loveland here also made good use of his old perversion about "carbonized air" "returning to the God that gave it."

He contended that the Bible should be interpreted in a colloquial sense—the expression "died" in it being taken in no stricter sense than that in which it was used in every-day conversation.

Mr. Loveland denied, very properly, of course, that Herodotus was the oldest historian whose writings are now extant, and therefore questioned his statement that the Egyptians had originated the idea of the immortality of the soul. Though how Elder Grant made a point by quoting the statement of Herodotus, or how Mr. Loveland made a point by impugning it, was not very clear.

QUESTIONS.

He propounded the following questions for his opponent to answer:

Did Jesus exist a personal entity in the days of Noah, and as such preach to the spirits in prison?

Mr. Grant had said that the Holy Spirit was a mesmeric influence. Did he mean to say that the converted were mesmerized?

This was another perversion by Mr. Loveland, and Elder Grant subsequently explained, that he had only meant that the Holy Spirit was an emanation of moral influence from God.

Mr. Loveland further asked, where was the hades to which Jesus went after his death on the cross?

What was his soul that was not left in hades?

Was Jesus in an unconscious state during the period that elapsed between his crucifixion and resurrection?

Mr. Loveland then brought up again the question of whether when Jesus warned his disciples against the "leaven of the Pharisees," he intended to warn them against that sect's belief in the immortality of the soul, or merely against their hypocrisy. He contended the latter. He then passed to a continuance of his argument of a previous evening, that our aspirations after immortality were a proof of our innate possession. He contended that the belief in an eternal life of the soul was warranted by the Bible, and among other texts quoted in support of his assertion,—"He that believeth in me shall never die." "If," said he, "they died, Jesus Christ told a lie,—either Elder Grant or Jesus Christ made a mistake, one or the other!" At this point

ELDER GRANT'S TURN

Came again. He met Mr. Loveland's last quotation by directing his attention to other texts in the same connection—the death of Lazarus—such as "Lazarus is dead," and he asked whether Jesus told the truth when he thus said that Lazarus was not alive. "Though he be dead, yet shall he live," etc.

Mr. Grant also met again, in the same manner as formerly, the arguments of Mr. Loveland upon the text, "Fear not them that kill the body," etc., as already reported in the Chronicle.

THE QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Christ did exist at the time of the flood.

Hades, Mr. Grant said, was the place where the dead were, and was synonymous with the Hebrew sheol, translated in the Old Testament as "grave." "Bring down my gray hairs with sorrow to the grave." "There is no knowledge, nor wisdom, nor device, in the grave."

Jesus' soul not being left in hades, meant that Jesus himself was not left in hades—the grave. The word soul being frequently used in the sense of himself—"he poured out his soul an offering for sin."

Jesus certainly was unconscious in the grave, as the Bible said, "There is no knowledge, nor wisdom," etc.

THE ASPIRATION THEORY

Of Mr. Loveland, Mr. Grant asserted, was destitute of one particle of proof, and he repeated in substance his arguments of a previous evening, that we often aspired for what we never obtained, while the very fact of our aspiring was a proof that we were not in possession of the object of our aspirations. He also called attention to what he considered the inconsistency of the Bible in commanding men to "strive" for immortality, and to obtain it by "patient continuance in well doing," if, as Mr. Loveland had said, they were innately possessed of it.

MATERIAL AND IMMATERIAL.

Mr. Grant then defined his conception of the meaning of entity, etc. He said that by an entity or personality he meant a real being or existence. An attribute was a principle of a material form which could not exist independent of an organism, such as sweetness, lightness, density, weight, etc. Love, mercy, justice, etc., were attributes, because they could not exist after the personality had been destroyed. Life, he contended, was an attribute, and could not exist after the body had been destroyed. No amount of immaterialities could make an entity. All personalities are entities; all attributes immaterialities; so that if the soul be immaterial, then it is a property of the being, and cannot exist apart from the personality to which it belongs.

MR. LOVELAND AGAIN

Arose in his turn and argued, as we have said, that Jesus' expressions as to the "death" of Lazarus should be taken in a colloquial sense. He contended that sheol and hades were not synonymous terms, and that the former should not have been translated into Greek by the latter word, which he asserted the Greeks used to express the idea of the place of disembodied spirits, while the Hebrews used sheol to express the idea of a grave, or put in the earth.

He argued in very eloquent terms in support of his theory, that the aspiration after immortality is an idea of its innate possession.

MR. GRANT'S ANSWERS

Will explain some of Mr. Loveland's arguments which we may have omitted:

It was true that "flesh and blood" should "not inherit the kingdom of God," but that did not militate against Jesus' presence in his flesh and blood in heaven at the present time, as God's "kingdom" was not to be set up until after the resurrection.

He quoted Kitto, Campbell, and Stewart, in support of his interpretation of sheol as hades, and still further argued against the aspiration theory.

He argued that the immortality of the soul had been accepted by the spiritualists as one of their fundamental doctrines, and as on every other point they were plainly at variance with the Bible, it was probable, to say the least of it, that they were at variance with it on that point, especially as the Bbile nowhere sanctions the idea.

MR. LOVELAND

Followed on the use of the word "dead"; on the value of Herodotus as an authority for the belief of the ancient Egyptians; on the meaning of the words sheol and hades; and once more upon the "aspirations." On the expiration of the time allotted to him, the discussion was closed, to be resumed this evening, at seven o'clock, at the same place.—San Francisco Daily Chronicle.

MINNA-STREET CHURCH.

(From the Spectator.)

Dear Spectator:—The revival at Minna-street has become a power in this city that is being felt among all classes of the people. It would be safe to say that not less than fifty persons have professed saving faith in Christ, or been reclaimed from their backslidings. Elder Grant is still with us, and will continue until over next Sunday. The church has become too small to hold the evening congregations, and we have removed to Platt's Hall. The afternoon service still continues in the church. Elder Grant is from Boston, and is called a Second Adventist, and holds some views that would not be considered orthodox by many good and learned christians; but his life seems to be consecrated to the one great work of directing sinners to Christ and teaching christians to walk in the light of truth. He believes that Christ will soon come and set up his kingdom on the earth, and that only the pure in heart shall see God. He urges sinners to seek pardon in the name of Jesus, and so live as to be ready to meet their King when he comes. On the subject of experimental and practical religion he is apostolic, and preaches as Methodists used to preach. His spirit is unexceptionable. I have never met a man that I can work with in a revival with less friction than Elder Grant. And after a most intimate acquaintance with him for more than one month in public and in private, I can most heartily recommend our brethren on this coast to receive him as a minister of God, and co-operate with him in doing the work of the Master.

A. M. Bailey.

San Francisco, Jan., 1871.

The Rev. Miles Grant is holding forth in Platt's Hall, on the fulfillment of prophecy. This champion, having concluded his debate with Loveland, to the complete satisfaction of his numerous followers, is now delivering his warnings to the people from a more responsible platform. He foretells that the clock of time will wind up in 1875, when the wicked will be burned and the righteous be permitted to reign in the renewed and glorified earth. This dogma was first propounded by Mr. Frere, of London, who fixed upon Napoleon Bonaparte as the Anti-Christ, in league with his Holiness, the Pope, and foretold for both an ignominious death, and for the world a millennial redemption. The banishment of Napoleon and the death of his son made a change in this important programme. Finally, the restoration of the Bourbons, the elevation of Louis Phillippe, and the revolution of '48 demanded changes and postponements, until Louis Napoleon was authoritatively designated as the "Man," his present Holiness the "Beast," and 1863, I think, the period of catastrophe.

We are all familiar with Miller's operations, and the signal failure of his predictions. The great apostle of the second advent view, is Dr. Cumming, of London, a man of great talent and eloquence, who has succeeded Frere and more than doubled the prestige which that man transmitted. Dr. Cumming has been confidently expecting the fall of the Crescent and the overthrow of the Papacy, as the result of the European war. Mr. Grant, pursuing the line of interpretation followed by Frere and Cumming, announces '75 as the finality, and warns us to expect the event which will be to us a glory or an irreparable calamity. I am inclined to the view of Robert Hall. That most extraordinary man, celebrated as much for piety as for genius, affirmed that he could not believe God had permitted the historic reading of prophecies, since in such event, men would strive to achieve their fulfillment, and fanaticism would work the undoing of faith itself.

J. W. S.

San Francisco, Feb. 4th. —Oakland Daily News.

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 24th, 1870, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

Wm. H. Hebron, Sec'y Adv. Chr. Pub. Socy.

Remittances should be sent to the Treasurer, Geo. T. Adams, Boston, Mass., or they may be enclosed with remittances to the Crisis office.

Donations for the Tract Fund.

Previous acknowledgments	$144.86
Jewelry	2.50
A Friend	2.00
M. Grover	2.75
W. M. Howland	2.00
C. & H. Smith	5.00
L. W. Spalding	1.00
Mary A. Dawson	1.00

POOR FUND.

(To send the Crisis to the Poor.)

Previous acknowledgments	$37.14

YOUNG PILGRIM FUND.

Previous acknowledgments	$17.56

AMER. ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

Donations are earnestly solicited, to enable this Society to send out missionaries, and other means, into the Southern States, and elsewhere, as the Lord may open the door, to proclaim "the glad tidings of the kingdom at hand"; and should be sent, as also payments of pledges made, to the Treasurer, Geo. T. Adams, P. O. Drawer 202, Boston, Mass., who will acknowledge the same in the columns of the Crisis.

Previous acknowledgments	$1,039.94
Mrs. E. M. Davis	5.00
A. A. Havens	7.50
C. F.	1.00
Mrs. P. T. Wright	1.00
Corea Paiode	.50
C. Marsh	5.00
Mrs. A. Andrews	1.75
Mrs. M. E. Howland	2.00
C. & H. Smith	5.00

THE MISSION WORK.

Our friends will see by the following letter to the Society, as also by Bro. Grant's articles, that the good work is making rapid progress in San Francisco.

In addition to a depot for the sale of our works, the Mission Board propose, if the funds are furnished, to forward a large supply of tracts for free distribution, not only in San Francisco, but in the various cities and towns in which Bro. Grant may hold meetings, or arrange for the distribution to advantage.

We now have one of the most favorable opportunities to send out tracts that has ever occurred. We hope our friends will see that we have the means to supply all that are wanted.

G. T. A.

SAN FRANCISCO.

During the past week the cause of Bible truth has received a fresh impetus, from the meetings held in Platt's Music Hall—the most eligibly situated and with a single exception the largest hall in the city. Platt's Hall will seat fourteen hundred persons comfortably, and by crowding and making use of all standing room, a thousand more persons have been counted on the floor and in the galleries.

Returning to the city from a short trip into the interior, last Thursday night, at eight o'clock, I barely had time to reach the hall before the lecture closed. I found all the "regular" seats occupied, and about fifty persons standing near the doors. The janitor informed me that if benches or chairs, extra, had been provided, three hundred persons, at least, who "came and went," would have been added to the audience.

In the audience I noticed many of our leading lawyers, bankers, merchants, and physicians, all of whom paid the closest attention to the lecture, and some of whom remained in the hall during the prayer-meeting. I am enabled to say that men of the highest standing in the professions I have named, in this city, have confessed to me that it "looked very threatening"—the prophecies as interpreted for the near approach of the Second Advent. I speak more particularly of this class of men, because it is generally supposed that they are the hardest to reach with the truth as to prophecy and man's destiny (though I think this is a mistake), and because it is undoubtedly true that the conversion of men of pronounced eminence in the world gives courage to the weak and timid who have less influence and importance in the world.

As for Elder Grant, he seems to grow young every day. I imagine that his only regret at present is, that he cannot find it expedient to obtain an audience every forenoon of the week, as well as every afternoon and evening. Indeed, he does frequently deliver a morning discourse in my office, when I volunteer differing views from those he entertains, on non-essential points; when he rises up and pours down upon me a column of Scripture.

This evening the Elder lectures in Platt's Hall, on the Morals of Spiritualism.

An agency has been established here for the Crisis, at A. J. Burke and Co.'s periodical depot, Washington St., near Montgomery. Advent books and tracts will also be placed on sale at the same place, when an invoice is received.

Well: looking over the whole course of events since the Mission was commenced, there is every reason to congratulate and hope. A steadily growing interest; not a sensation of a day or week, and then a general indifference. The error that has emasculated christianity for fifteen centuries has been exposed. Almost every one in this great city—except the Chinese—knows that the declaration that man has an immortal soul is denied with emphasis. The orthodox divines of our city who at first dished up little sneering passages for the Elder's benefit, have found it politic not to say as much as would involve themselves in a lengthy argument. The brightest newspaper in this city, by the pen of a keen and candid editor, declares that the Elder had decidedly the best of the argument with Elder Loveland,

I was rejoiced to see the prompt and generous aid sent up to your treasury for this mission. The givers will not regret their liberality in this instance. If time lasts, I believe that within ten years the Second Advent churches on this coast will equal in membership any of the orthodox denominations. Why not? The truth is with the Adventists; those in the faith who reside east of the Mississippi have built up a noble literature for the faith; within a month, more than one hundred men and women of San Francisco have responded to the Mission preaching by confession of its entire truth. The work here was well inaugurated, and is having due progress. G.

San Francisco, Feb. 6th, 1871.

WHEN AND WHERE WILL THE KINGDOM OF GOD EXIST?

The kingdom of God must have a beginning and a locality, let its nature be literal or spiritual. It either had its commencement in the past, or it must begin in the future.

All who have carefully perused the Scriptures of truth concede the fact that there are numerous declarations pertaining to a coming kingdom, or predictions concerning the establishment of the kingdom of God on earth. There is no dispute among theologians concerning this fact. But with regard to its nature, and the time of establishment, there are diversities of opinion—some maintaining that it is a spiritual kingdom, instead of being literal, and that it was set up 1800 years ago. The only ground for this theory is the fact that the component elements of this kingdom—such as the king, territory, and subjects—are sometimes denominated the kingdom, on the principle of putting a part for the whole, as in the following instances: "For the kingdom of heaven is as a man traveling into a far country." Matt. 25: 11. Here Christ, one component element of the kingdom, is spoken of as the "kingdom." Again: "They shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend." Matt. 13: 14. Here another element—the territory—is spoken of as the kingdom. Also, we read, "Then shall the kingdom of heaven be likened to ten virgins." Matt. 25: 1. Still another element—the church, or prospective subjects—are spoken of as the kingdom, on the same principle of putting a part for the whole. But these component elements are in an unorganized state at present, and must be organized in order to be a kingdom complete. Without the organization of these elements there can be no setting up of the kingdom. The prospective king is now in a far country, and must return. The territory is now in a dilapidated state, and must be cleansed. The prospective subjects, in part, are dead, and must be raised; and a part are living in a mortal state, and must be changed to immortality. And this is requisite to the organization of these component elements of the kingdom, which work involves the advent of Christ, and the resurrection of the dead; hence, the setting up of the kingdom cannot precede the coming of Christ—no matter how often these unfinished parts may be called by the name of the whole. All of the parts, in their perfected state, are requisite to the formation of the glorious whole. But we inquire:

I. What is the nature of his kingdom?

Our negative answer is, It is not spiritual.

(1.) We may be met with the declaration that the kingdom of God is "righteousness, peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost." This is the characteristic of that kingdom, and, consequently, we must be recipients of this element in order to dwell there, as counter-elements can never enter it; but to insist that this element alone constitutes the kingdom, would be to exclude both the king and the subjects, and make man the territory; and instead of allowing it to be true that man is to "enter into the kingdom," it would so change the arrangement as to have the kingdom enter into man; besides, if this element constitutes a kingdom, its inauguration could not have been future when the prophet Daniel said—"In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom" (Dan. 2: 44); for this element dwelt in the hearts of saints before Daniel's time, because "holy men of old spake as they were moved upon by the Holy Spirit."

(2.) We may be reminded that Christ said, "The kingdom of God is within you." So he did to the Pharisees, but not to his disciples; therefore he could not have meant within the heart, but, as in the margin, "within your midst," or "among you," which was true of one element of the kingdom—the prospective king—a part being put for the whole, as in other instances. But the subjects still remained in their mortal state, and the territory, also, continued under the curse, and even he soon took his departure "into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom" (Luke 19: 12), all of which proves the organization of the kingdom then future.

(3.) We may be told that Jesus affirmed, "The kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force." So he did, and while this could never be true of a spiritual kingdom in the heart, it was true of Christ, one element of the future kingdom. Christ suffered violence in this world, and was taken by force. So it has often been with his saints. The theological idea of holy violence is simply ridiculous.

To the question, What is the nature of this kingdom? we reply affirmatively, It is literal.

(1.) Its component elements are all literal. Jesus, the prospective king, is a literal being. The resurrected saints, who are destined to be the subjects, are literal beings. The territorial "kingdom prepared from the foundation of the world" is, also, literal. With a literal king, literal subjects, and a literal territory, we must have a literal kingdom. Yet it will be unlike literal earthly kingdoms in one essential particular—it will be established on the basis of immortality; the King and subjects will live eternally, devoid of pain or sickness, "and the kingdom shall not be left to other people," and it shall have "no end."

(2.) It is presented as the fifth of a series of universal kingdoms on earth, in the second and seventh chapters of Daniel—four of which kingdoms have been literal, leaving the principle upon which the greater part of the prophecy has already been fulfilled as a guarantee of the literal fulfillment of the balance. When God foretells the rise of five universal kingdoms, and we see four of them rise as literal kingdoms, can we query whether the fifth will be literal?

II. Its chronological location.

Its establishment cannot be in the past. Why?

(1.) Because it was not to exist cotemporary with the kingdoms of earth, but to succeed them; the "stone," representing the kingdom of God, was not to "fill the whole earth" till the image was "broken to pieces," and "carried away" by an irresistible tornado, "that no place was found for them." This is not in the past.

(2.) It is still a matter of "promise" and not of actual possession; and the saints are yet only "heirs" to it, and not possessors: "Hearken, my beloved brethren, hath not God chosen the poor of this world, rich in faith, heirs of the kingdom which he hath promised to them that love him?" As long as the saints are "heirs" to it, it cannot be in their possession—cannot be in the past.

It is still future, because,

(1.) After Christ had enumerated a long chain of events to precede his second coming, he adds, "When ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand." Luke 21: 31. These events span the gospel age, reaching nearly to the revelation of the Savior: hence, the establishment of the kingdom is subsequent to this age—agreeing with Christ's statement at his trial, "My kingdom is not from hence"—not from that time onward.

(2.) The seer of Patmos locates it after the sounding of the seventh angel: "And the seventh angel sounded; . . . the kingdoms of this world are become the kingdom of our Lord and his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever." Rev. 11: 15. The resurrection of the dead being connected with the sounding of this trumpet, shows it a future scene, and, consequently, proves the ushering in of the kingdom still future.

(3.) Daniel locates it not only after the ten divisions of the "fourth kingdom," but, also, subsequent to the history of the Papal horn, which was to rise after these divisions, and continue to exist till the coming of the Ancient of days. Dan. 7: 21. These conspicuous facts cannot be obliterated.

III. Its Geographical location.

Is it to be in heaven, or on earth? Not in heaven, for there has been order there for ages past, and it does not need to be superceded by a better arrangement; indeed, such a claim would virtually cast reflections on the former government of Jehovah. But this long-foretold kingdom is to be inaugurated in a realm where disorder and evil have long predominated, and where such a change would be a blessing, namely: in the earth, when renovated. The proof is abundant.

(1.) Daniel informs us that it shall be "under the whole heaven." Dan. 7: 27. This is explicit.

(2.) The Revelator informs us that it will be composed of the "kingdoms of this world," minus their unholy inhabitants, whom he will "destroy."

(3.) Christ informs us that it is to include the territorial "kingdom prepared from the foundation of the world." Matt. 25: 34.

(4.) At the "end of this world," Christ "shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend." Matt. 13: 40. The wicked are to be disinherited preparatory to giving it to the resurrected saints. Then the "meek shall inherit the earth," and forever "reign on the earth."

IV. The time of its establishment.

This is not one of Jehovah's secrets, but a matter of revelation. In the light of the numerous signs which distinctly bespeak our nearness to this event, in connection with the measurements given in the Bible, we cannot evade the conclusion that we are already upon the very threshold of a new era, which shall be introduced by the sound of the trump of God, the resurrection of the dead saints, and the establishment of a kingdom that shall never end—the perpetual home of the redeemed. It is time to sound the alarm. We must make this a special theme. It is Heaven's last dispensational truth to men. It must not be suppressed. It is "meat in due season" to the saint. It is a salutary warning to the sinner. "Watchman, what of the night?" Are we not far past the "midnight" watch? Cry aloud, "The morning cometh."

In waiting for the kingdom of God, we are waiting for no ordinary event, but for an event involving the coming of Christ, the resurrection of the dead, the judgment day, and the destruction of incorrigible sinners. What is being done to arouse the slumberers? The multitudes sleep on, and will only be aroused by the sound of the judgment trump. Let us awaken some before the day of wrath arrives.

W. S.

IS THE THRONE OF DAVID NOW OCCUPIED BY CHRIST?

While it is true that Christ is now occupying the heavenly throne as the guest of his Father, it is not true that he is yet on the throne of David, promised in the oath of Jehovah to David's "seed," which Peter says is Christ; because (1) the throne promised in this oath was firstly to be occupied by David's royal children successively till they should become disobedient; and neither David nor his successors ever occupied the throne that Christ is now seated upon; (2) David's children did succeed him upon the very throne promised to David's great "seed," Christ, till they become so disobedient that God decreed, "I will overturn, overturn, overturn it; and it shall be no more, until He come whose right it is; and I will give it him." Ezek. 21: 27. The throne now occupied by Christ has never been thus overturned, and has never been "no more," and consequently it is not the throne promised to David's great "seed," Christ, "whose right it is"; and when God said, "I will give it him," no reference was made to a throne in heaven, but to a throne that should cease to exist for a time, and finally be restored to David's great Heir.

Long after that throne had been in ruins, the angel Gabriel renews the promise of its restoration, and specifies Christ as the true heir to it: "The Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David"; and this promise will yet be fulfilled, for "When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit on the throne of his glory," or "his glorious throne"—the throne of David in its glorious restoration to him "whose right it is." The throne now occupied by Christ, existed long before David's day, and was never occupied by David.

W. S.

"OVERPAST."

God's "indignation" against the wicked will be experienced when he shall "punish" them; but this will ultimately be "overpast," which could never be true if the process of inflicting that punishment were never to close. The prophet thus speaks concerning this matter: "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust; for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead. Come, my people, enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors about thee: hide thyself as it were for a little moment, until the indignation be overpast. For, behold, the Lord cometh out of his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity." Isa. 26: 19-21.

Here we learn that God will "punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity" when the entombed dead awake, and the Lord shall come "out of his place" in heaven, and the saints enter their chambers; and this infliction of punishment is styled "the indignation"; and we are plainly informed that it shall finally "BE OVERPAST."

The theology of the day repudiates the sentiment here distinctly stated, and insists that the display of divine indignation against sinners will be of eternal duration; but the prophet thought it would finally "be overpast." Was the prophet mistaken? And are theologians wiser than God's prophets? The result of that punishment, only, will be eternal—irreversible; but its infliction will "be overpast," for earth is "reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men," and then comes the "new earth"—the "curse" having been removed, the tares having been all burned up, death and pain having been obliterated—and then the mission of Christ will be fully realized; he will "destroy the works of the devil" and "him that had the power of death, that is, the devil"; thus exterminating both the cause and effect of sin at one stroke.

W. S.

For the World's Crisis

TO THE BRETHREN.

Bro. William Gordon's buildings were destroyed in No. Dorchester, Dec. 2nd, between twelve and one o'clock at night, they being asleep at the time. They had only time to dress themselves, and save two beds and a very few other things. His barn being on fire at the same time, his stock was all burned, which consisted of two yoke of cattle, three cows, one yearling, one horse, and also two shotes, and his fowls. All of his hay, wheat, rye, corn, pork, and potatoes, were consumed. He is between sixty and seventy years of age, and loves the Lord. His house is a home for all God's saints; as long as he has a home you can have one. He has done much for the cause. He was one of the first that invited God's servants into that place, and the Lord blessed the people. He feels though his property here may be consumed, he has a treasure yet in heaven, where moth or rust can not corrupt, nor thieves break through and steal. His loss is some two thousand dollars. We would say to the brethren having the Lord's money, you would do well to lend a helping hand. Those who feel to send money to help our worthy brother will please send to Daniel Eastman, East Canaan, N. H., and it will be thankfully received and acknowledged.

Daniel Eastman.
John H. Evans.

Extracts from Letters.

Bro. S. C. Gove writes:—"Yesterday I visited Sister Turner in Syracuse, and find her quite sick, so that she is confined to her bed most of the time. She stated that she was thankful for what the brethren were doing for her in trying to pay for her place; but, dear brethren, I find that she is in want of means to procure such little necessaries as sick persons generally want. I hope the good people scattered abroad will contribute, so that our sister will not want for anything. If any feel as though they could give, it would be thankfully received by our worthy sister. Anything sent to me at Fairport, N. Y., for her, I will see that she receives, and notice the amounts through the Crisis."

Sr. L. M. Brittan writes:—"We returned home last week after a tour of two months in Va., having visited many families, both colored and white, leaving tracts, which were gladly received; and with the assisting grace of God endeavored to point all to Christ as the only way of life and salvation. May some seed sown spring up and bear fruit to the glory of God.

Husband's failing health shortened our stay, being unable to be out. He suffered much, and at one time thought he must soon rest from his labors, and we hastened home. He is now more comfortable. Pray for him. The Lord does not afflict willingly, but for our profit. May we bow submissively to the chastening rod, and say from the heart, 'Thy will be done.'"

Bro. H. Munger writes:—"Some men have the peculiar knack of mixing in all kinds of religious meetings, and being at home in all; and have no particular standard, or colors, to present. Such are a detached part of the religious creation. Some light, but no locality; like a comet, not belonging to any atmosphere in particular.

Now I like to meet a man who has an identity somewhere, who has taken root in some kind of religious soil, and can show his colors. If you are a child, you were begotten by some body of christians, and their colors should be carried by you. If we have an important truth for this age, it must be made prominent; and we cannot do it in all these different localities, without encroaching upon others' rights. If we are known by our faith, we have a standard raised, and people will know what we are, and what we believe, and will inquire after our truth, and invite us to preach. When they have an inquiring mind, we can show the light untrammeled."

Sr. A. W. Willis writes from Cambridgeport, Mass.:—"In this hard season of business depression and embarrassments, we need strong faith to keep from feeling at times discouraged; but let us comfort one another with the promise—'Ye shall reap if ye faint not.' 'In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thy hand.' We must not regard the chilling winds that blow; often they are quickly succeeded by soft zephyrs: so in life's journeyings. Remember to keep pressing onward. The night is far spent, the morning is at hand.

The writer desires through this letter to say that she would gladly receive information in regard to a situation to take charge and personal care of children, or would do any domestic work in a pleasant location north of Boston, where labor, social privileges, and the law of love to God and our neighbor, were associated, to make it a home, sweet home, —where its inmates were thus blessed."

Bro. Z. T. Wood writes:—"I left my home in Springfield, Vt., with my companion, Dec. 9th. We visited Bradford, Waterloo, and Canaan, N. H.; found some children trying to make their way to Mount Zion; had very good meetings. Came to Pomfret, Vt.; had some good meetings with the few brethren there, who are trying to be ready for the coming kingdom, which we believe is near at hand. Came to East Roxbury, to the watch-meeting. The brethren came in from Bethel, Randolph, Braintree, Warren, and other places, and we had a heavenly sitting together in Christ. Some said it was the best watch-meeting they ever enjoyed. The Spirit of the Lord seemed to rest on the meeting, and those out of Christ felt they ought to be christians. We hope the Spirit will continue to rest on the people until some become acquainted with Christ, and get ready to meet him at his coming. I leave here next week to fill my other appointments. I feel the need of the prayers of my brethren. Pray for me."

Bro. F. Schollinger writes:—"The blessed Savior said to his disciples, 'If I go away, I will come again.' Are these not comforting words to the child of God? And how cheering is the thought of Jesus' soon coming. Never before have the prospects been so bright in favor of the Lord's soon coming. The signs of the times tell us of great events. We are on the eve of a great crisis. Every nation is preparing for war. Bless God, the signs show that we are almost home. The end is right upon us. My Lord, help thy people to get ready for thy coming kingdom. Now is the time to strive. There is no time for delay. Soon Jesus will be here. Let us awake, and gird on the armor anew, for such only will get into the kingdom when Jesus comes; and, like little children, let us abide in him, that, when he shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him."

THE WORLD'S CRISIS.

LIBERAL OFFERS FOR 1871.

VALUABLE PRESENTS!

The Best Sewing Machine,
The Best Illustrated Dictionary,
The Best Books, and
The Best S. S. Paper,
GIVEN AWAY!

FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS,
TILL THE FIRST OF JUNE.

We would, if possible, double our present circulation during the current year. It can be done, if every one will help, and do all they can. To encourage our friends everywhere to make an earnest and persistent effort, we offer the following valuable presents to all who shall obtain new subscribers for

The World's Crisis

till the 1st of June.

Here is a good opportunity for every one to secure a desirable gift for nothing but a little effort in your own neighborhood or field of labor.

A PRESENT FOR ALL.

For every wife, mother, daughter, or widow, a superior SEWING MACHINE, saving many hours of weary toil in the family, and adding to the means of livelihood.

For every minister, Bible student, or general reader, the best ILLUSTRATED DICTIONARY, BIBLE DICTIONARY, CONCORDANCE, HYMN BOOK, or other valuable religious, theological, or hygienic work.

For the children of our Sunday Schools and churches, any number of copies of THE YOUNG PILGRIM for one year, to cheer them in their pilgrimage, and help them on their way to the kingdom of heaven.

Look over the list, dear friends, and see what you want. Then go out among your neighbors, friends, kindred, acquaintances and strangers, and try what you can do. When you have done all that you can, then order from us your choice of any one of the following

PREMIUMS FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

For 2 New Subscribers, with $5, A $1 PREMIUM.

1. Hymns of Jubilee Harp, cloth; and Pilgrim Praises.
2. Fables of Infidelity, and Facts of Faith.
3. Stories for Young Pilgrims, vols. I. and II.
4. Two copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
5. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
6. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and Bible Text-Book.

For 3 New Subscribers, with $7.50, A $1.50 PREMIUM.

1. Jubilee Harp, full gilt, extra cloth, leather back.
2. Immortality, by James H. Whitmore; and Tracts.
3. Health by Good Living, by W. W. Hall, M.D.
4. Plan of Redemption; and Nature of Man.
5. The Broken Seal; an Exposure of Freemasonry.
6. Talks about People's Stomachs, by Dr. Dio Lewis.
7. Three copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
8. Two copies "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
9. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and any $1 premium.

For 4 New Subscribers, with $10, A $2 PREMIUM.

1. Dictionary of the Holy Bible, with 5 Maps and 250 Engravings; and Grant's "Nature of Man."
2. Cruden's Condensed Concordance, and Sheldon's "Futurity."
3. Bevan's Casket and Repository; Scriptures classified by Subjects.
4. Muller's Life of Trust; Effects of Prayer and Faith.
5. Four copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
6. Three copies "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
7. Two copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1 premium.
8. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and any $1.50 premium.

For 5 New Subscribers, with $12.50, A $2.50 PREMIUM.

1. Synchronology; or, the Principal Events in Sacred and Profane History, from the Creation of Man to the Present Time.
2. Credibility of the Scriptures, in two volumes; a recast of the former work, by J. H. McCulloh; and Bible Text-Book.
3. English Reference Bible.
4. Five copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
5. Four copies "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
6. Three copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1 premium.
7. Two copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1.50 premium.
8. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and any $2 premium.

For 10 New Subscribers, with $25, A $6 PREMIUM.

1. Webster's National Pictorial Dictionary, 1,040 pages, octavo, and 600 Engravings, price, $6; or, the "Unabridged" (below) for $4 extra.
2. Fifteen copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
3. Seven copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $2.50 premium.

For 15 New Subscribers, with $37.50, A $12 PREMIUM.

1. Webster's Illustrated Unabridged Dictionary, 1,840 pages, quarto, and 3,000 Engravings, price, $12. The best dictionary extant.
2. Thirty copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
3. Webster's Pictorial Dictionary ($6), and fifteen copies "Young Pilgrim."

For 40 New Subscribers, with $100, A $55 PREMIUM.

A Grover and Baker Sewing Machine, first class in every respect, with hemmer and attachments; one of the best, if not the very best, in the market. These machines make "the Grover and Baker stitch," which is considered the best for family use, and "the shuttle-stitch." Please state which is wanted.

Things to be Remembered.

In raising your list—the names may be obtained from as many different places as you please, and the papers will be mailed by us to each separate address.

Subscriptions may be taken for the year, with $2.50 each; or double the number for six months, with $1.25 each; or any number for both periods, which, with $1.25 and $2.50 each, shall make up the requisite amount.

Keep a list yourself of all names and monies obtained by you and forwarded to us, with the date when sent.

In sending to us—put the list always on a sheet by itself. If, at the same time, you write on other matters, or remit for old subscribers, put that on a separate sheet.

Write each name plainly, with its Post-office, County, and State, and amount paid, all on one line by itself, in that order; and, at the bottom, give the whole amount of premium monies sent, with your own name and full address.

Names sent "for a premium," should, in all cases, be so marked when sent. No name should be sent without the money.

All names and monies can be forwarded at once, or from week to week, as fast as you get them, until the 1st of June.

Any one aiming for a higher premium, and failing to get the full number of names and amount, can pay the balance in cash, and so get the premium; or he can order some other premium on the list corresponding to the amount obtained.

When you have got all the names you can, and want your premium, send us a full list of all the names, addresses, and monies you have sent, so that we may compare them with our books; then we will send you whatever premium you may select from the catalogue—the Sewing Machines and Webster's Dictionaries by express, at the expense of the receiver, and the other books by mail, postpaid.

Monies, if under $5.00, may be sent by letter at our risk. If a larger sum, and under $25, send a Post-Office Money Order, or Registered Letter. If $25 or more, send a Bank Draft, or money Order, payable to the order of GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass. All sums of $5.00 and over, sent in any other way than above directed, will be at the sender's risk.

All letters and remittances for premiums should be addressed to the Business Agent, undersigned, or, if more convenient, they may be enclosed in letters to the Editor, MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

And now, dear brethren and sisters everywhere, from Maine to California, and from the Lakes to the Gulf, put your hearts and hands to the good work, and a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull all together! and the blessing of the Lord be with you!

GEO. T. ADAMS, Business Agent,
Advent Chris. Publication Society.

For the World's Crisis.

ARENA, WIS.

BRO. GRANT:—Knowing that the dear brethren, like myself, like to read of revivals, I sit down to give a brief report of the work at Arena. It was a blessed work. "It is the Lord's doing, and it is marvelous in our eyes." There were no very favorable indications in the commencement. A vast amount of prejudice existed in the community, which became sensibly diminished as the meetings progressed. There was no excitement, but a calm, solemn, sweet influence pervaded the meetings, indicating the Holy Spirit's presence. Many were compelled to acknowledge its power, and were led to yield to the demands of the gospel. A number of the most influential members of the community were brought to a knowledge of the truth, and are now happy in the Savior's love.

Quite a number far advanced in years were awakened, and found pardon and peace. One old man about seventy years of age remarked as follows: "This thing has come upon me like a thunder-clap. The first meeting I attended I did so out of mere curiosity, not having any serious feelings whatever. I became interested; something got hold of me. I have set up the family altar, and am happy in the Lord."

Others testified also of the suddenness and unexpectedness of the work, brethren of other churches having made repeated, but unsuccessful efforts to promote a revival. A number of dear brethren and sisters of other churches attended towards the last, got a blessing, and co-operated with us. God bless them. We would not forget to mention that much of the success of this meeting is due to the prayers and preparatory labors of a few faithful ones, who purchased tracts and scattered them, paid for and introduced our papers in several families. These dear brethren now feel that they are amply repaid. This is an example worthy of imitation. Bro. Hitchcock was also among the first to sow the good seed in this field. We all rejoice together, and give God the glory.

Some forty in all arose for prayers during the meetings. About twenty-five covenanted together in church fellowship; others will unite. A Bible class and weekly prayer-meeting were appointed. We hold these two things to be absolutely essential to the life and growth of a church. Pray for the little band at Arena. GEO. THOMSON.

Attica, Feb. 7th, 1871.

Married.

CHADSEY—MARSH. By the Rev. P. V. West, on the 15th inst, at the residence of the bride's father, Brome, P. Q., ELD. E. G. CHADSEY and ROXEY E. MARSH, only daughter of Eld. L. Marsh.

HAWLEY—LOUKS. By the same, at Sutton, P. Q., Jan. 1st, HENRY C. HAWLEY and EMILY LOUKS.

Obituaries.

TRAFTON. Died, in Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 24th, 1871, with croup, Oel Ray Trafton, son of Mathew and Carrie Trafton, aged two years and six months.

The parents are in deep sorrow because their little Oel is not; but they "sorrow not, even as others which have no hope." They expect the resurrection of the same intelligent, sprightly, and loving child "from the land of the enemy."

OEL RAY FASSETT.

SNOOK. Died, in Williamsburgh, L. I., Feb. 17th, 1871, Mary S. Snook, widow of James Snook, in her seventy-ninth year.

Mother has been a great sufferer most of the time for the last fifty-seven years, yet in the midst of it all her trust in Jesus and his love and promises never wavered. She was always ready to say, "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want." She sweetly sleeps in Jesus. She expected to awake in his likeness when he comes, and be satisfied. We expect to meet her there and then.

J. M. SNOOK.

DOCKUM. Died, in Bath, Jan. 14th, 1871, after an illness of six days, Bro. B. B. Dockum, aged sixty-two years.

This was a sudden blow to his friends, but they sorrow not as those that have no hope. Bro. D. was reclaimed at Alton Bay campmeeting in 1869, and since that time has been trying to serve the Lord. Funeral services by A. C. Palmer.

H. D. REED.

MASON. Died, at Groton Junction, Mass, Nov. 23d, 1870, Sybil P. Mason, wife of Aaron P. Mason, aged seventy-one years.

A mother in Israel. H.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

GERMAN ENTRY.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—The press of Paris alludes to the proposed entry of the German army in excited terms. The Reforme opposes the entry as such, and foresees a bloody encounter between them and the citizens. A majority of the journals counsel the citizens to remain indoors and display mourning emblems from their residences during the passage of the German troops.

MAIL COMMUNICATION.

Dissatisfaction prevails in Paris at the meagreness with which provisions are distributed, but the distress and mortality is decreasing. Sealed letters can now be transmitted by mail to Paris.

The radicals are energetically at work, and are resolved not to part with their power without a struggle. They are making earnest appeals and violent speeches among the people. Their unmeaning cries for a prolongation of the war and no surrender have evidently lost their force. The conservatives are quiet and confident. There is a strong undercurrent in favor of the Orleansists, and the election of the Princes is likely to be declared valid.

It is undecided when the Emperor will return to Germany, but expects to leave Versailles the 23d, travelling through Strasbourg, Carlsruhe, Stuttgart and Munich, and visiting on the way the Sovereigns who elected him Emperor, and who will fall into the train to grace his triumphant entry into Berlin. If affairs are unpropitious, he may remain here until the beginning of March, and then proceed direct to Berlin.

M. Thiers and Favre have made earnest appeals to Chanzy, Faidherbe and other commanders to appeal to the patriotism of the army to preserve order in France. If necessary the organization of the armies will be kept for that purpose.

It is believed that a moderate course by the Assembly will secure a modification of the Prussian demands.

BORDEAUX, Feb. 15. [Special to New York Herald.] A settled purpose is manifest among the deputies now here to accomplish two things, viz: The overthrow of the violent Republicans and the removal of the future seat of Government from Paris, in order that the country may be no longer at the mercy of the mobs of the capital.

BORDEAUX, Feb. 16. Gen. Chanzy has advised the French Government that, in view of the present weakened condition of the armies of France and the impoverished state of the treasury, it would be madness to attempt to prolong the struggle with Germany.

The General therefore recommends the submission of France to the German nation, as the only means left whereby the country can be saved from the utter desolation and ruin which would follow, as the consequence of a further resistance.

LONDON, Feb. 16. In consequence of certain preparations made in the south of France for calling into service the military of 1872, Bismarck will consent to prolong the armistice only five days.

BERLIN, Feb. 17. A decree has been issued declaring that while it is still impossible to raise the state of siege, the Emperor, desiring that the electoral movements be unfettered, annuls, during the period of elections, the clauses in the proclamation of the state of siege suspending the right of association and public meetings; and he furthermore directs that political prisoners awaiting trial be released, but without prejudice to their future prosecution.

German troops are concentrating in large numbers on the Loire.

The line of demarcation between the hostile armies runs south of Lons les Saunier in Jura, but the French retain Besancon and Auxonne and a limited circle of the country around each city.

BORDEAUX, Feb. 20. M. Henri Rochefort introduced a resolution, during the recent meeting of the Assembly, declaring the crown forever forfeited by the Bonapartes.

LONDON, Feb. 20. A report was current at the stock exchange to-day that Germany would demand of France as the terms of peace the payment of a sum equal to 260,000,000 of pounds sterling, and the cession of the provinces of Alsace and the greater portion of Lorraine, with the fortified cities of Metz, Thionville, and Belfort.

☞ THE following is Napoleon's "Proclamation" to the French Electors:—"Wilhelmshohe, Feb. 8. Betrayed by fortune, I have kept, since my captivity, profound silence, which is misfortune's mourning. As long as the armies confronted each other I abstained from any steps or words capable of causing party dissensions, but I can no longer remain silent before my country's disasters, without appearing insensible of its sufferings. When I was made a prisoner I could not treat for peace because my resolutions would appear to have been dictated by personal considerations. I left the Regent to decide whether it was for the interest of the nation to continue the struggle. Notwithstanding the unparalleled reverses of France she was unsubdued, her strongholds unreduced, few departments invaded, and Paris in a state of defence. The extent of her misfortunes might possibly have been limited, but while attention was directed to her enemies an insurrection arose at Paris, the seats of representatives were violated, and the safety of the Empress threatened, and the Empire, which had been three times acclaimed by the people, overthrown and abandoned. Stilling my presentiment I exclaimed, 'What matters my dynasty if the country is saved?' Instead of protesting against the violation of my right, I hoped for the success of the defence, and admired the patriotic devotion of the children of France. Now, when the struggle is suspended, and all reasonable chance of victory has disappeared, is the time to call to account the usurpers for the bloodshed, ruin and squandered resources. It is impossible to abandon the destinies of France to an unauthorized government, to which was left no authority emanating from universal suffrage. Order, confidence and solid peace is only recoverable when the people are consulted respecting the government most capable of repairing the disasters to the country. It is essential that France should be united in her wishes. For myself, bruised by injustice and bitter deceptions, I do not know or claim my repeatedly confirmed rights. There is no room for personal ambition. But till the people are regularly assembled and express their will it is my duty to say that all acts are illegitimate. There is only one government, in which resides national sovereignty, able to heal the wounds, to bring hope to firesides, to reopen the profaned churches, and to restore industry, concord and peace."

In Brief.

—— The London Daily News calls attention to the fact that some gloves are dyed in such a way as to be poisonous to the wearer. The case is given of a lady who, after wearing several pairs, noticed "a vesicular eruption" at the sides and roots of the nails. Investigation showed that the dye in which the gloves had been dipped contained an arsenical salt.——The three famous monster guns in Fort Valerien, named Josephine, Beethoven and Valerie, are to be blown up, as they are too heavy to transport to Germany.——Hartford, Ct., possesses 25,000 people who do not attend any place of worship.——It is a somewhat notable fact, that fifty-six members of the Maine House of Representatives are Free Masons.——The Treasurer of the Michigan University Freshman class is a lady.——Locomotives are now running through the Mont Cenis Tunnel under the Alps.——A Berlin dispatch says that Bismarck's terms of peace are comparatively moderate.——Minister Cremieux has ordered the liberation of Bregowski, a Pole, who was imprisoned for attempting the life of the Emperor of Russia during his visit in Paris in 1867.——Reports from Paris report an alarming spread of infectious diseases.——A wood famine is reported at Mt. Desert, on account of the absence of snow in the woods and the extreme severity of the weather.——A fire company in Auburn, instead of hiring a band of music to attend the funeral when a comrade dies, donate the amount which a turnout would cost to the family of the deceased.——Massachusetts has machines which are said to represent the labor of a hundred millions of men.——Prince Napoleon is in London, and will make that city his permanent residence.——It is reported in diplomatic circles that Germany has refused the request of the British Government to communicate the conditions upon which it is willing to make peace.——A Times Berlin dispatch says that if peace is not concluded prior to the assemblage of the German Diet, Emperor William will probably remain at Versailles, and the meeting of Parliament postponed. The Emperor is now suffering from a severe attack of the rheumatism.——M. Francis Paul Jules Grevy, the President of the French Constituent Assembly, is a moderate Republican.——Capt. Bartlett, the veteran Sailors' Missionary, reports more religious interest at the present time among seamen in port, than at any previous time for many years. Quite a number have signed the temperance pledge and been converted.——London supports thirty-eight theatres and twenty-six music halls, beside the opera, Cremorne Garden, and one or more circuses. Over seventeen hundred performers gain their living from the music halls alone.——The three elephants in the Jardin des Plantes, Paris, were sold to a butcher for $4,050.——Waves never run "mountain-high." Figuier ("Ocean World," p. 40) tells us that the highest waves occur at the Cape of Good Hope. No exact measurement has been made, but they are supposed not to exceed forty feet. But spray falls in torrents on the roof of Eddystone light-house, one hundred and thirty feet above the sea.——The Mitrailleuse is a twenty-five barrelled rifle, carrying balls of fifty grammes (ten to the pound), fired by a sort of needle.——Queen Victoria decrees in the Court Journal, that the name of her daughter, the Princess Helena, must be pronounced as Hellena instead of Heleena.——No wine at the reception of the cabinet ladies in Washington has been the practice this winter.

THE COMING MAN.—If the elections in France take the monarchical turn, that is by no means the most improbable theory in the world, the next complication will be in the matter of the selection of the happy monarch. So far the Duc d'Aumale, the Count de Paris and Leopold of Belgium are spoken of in connection with the office—the latter being the choice of M. Thiers. Like the Count de Paris, he is a grandson of Louis Phillippe, and is a nephew of the Duc d'Aumale. The royal wire pullers, therefore, even if they have not quite made up their minds as to the exact man, seem to have selected the family, and to be determined that the royal honors shall be confined to it. The chief objection to Leopold will probably be an objection on the part of Belgium to a scheme that would cause her absorption by France, while on the other hand the proud Parisians are not the most likely people in the world to favor a transfer of the national capital from Paris to Brussels, or to look kindly upon anything that might contain that idea as even a remote contingency.—Boston Journal.

MIRAGE AT SACRAMENTO.—In no country, we presume, are mirages more grand or beautiful than on the Pacific coast, and they are of such frequent occurrence, especially in the Sacramento Valley, that many persons have seen and admired them who before knew of such things only from prints. This morning, at an early hour, the entire Bay of Suisun was portrayed with the utmost distinctness against the heavens, and persons who came down by the Valley train from Folsom were regaled with the beautiful sight. The shores of the bay were as visible as the objects at their feet, and a steamer and several sailing craft were depicted with a distinctness almost startling, the color of the soil, and the indentations along the shores of the bay, being quite as distinguishable as though the beholder stood on the hills of Montezuma overlooking the whole scene. Mount Diablo, seemingly more grand than usual, formed a beautiful background for the picture, and towered upward until its summit was lost from sight among the clouds. All who witnessed the mirage speak of it as one of the grandest sights of the kind they ever looked upon.—Sacramento Bee.

A NEW KING.—The completion of the French Assembly is such as to make it almost certain that Count de Paris will soon be King of France. The Count is nearly thirty-three, grandson of Louis Philippe, and a man of decided abilities. Many of our soldiers remember him as one of the staff of Gen. McClellan, as was his cousin, the Duke de Chartres. The election of an Orleanist to the throne of France, secures for that country a constitutional monarchy, which is probably the best that France is willing to accept at present.—News.

☞ Whatever may be said against the Bonapartes, there is one remarkable fact that should always be remembered in their favor. A Napoleon was never dethroned by the French people, and never enthroned by French bayonets. [illegible]

Notices.

W. C. Association.

The second quarterly meeting of the "Woman's Christian Association" will be held in Providence, R. I., by invitation of the church worshiping in Lester Hall, to commence March 8th, and continue over the Sabbath. An invitation is extended to all, both saint and sinner, to come up to this feast. The presence of brethren and sisters, both preachers and lay members, from churches in the surrounding vicinity, is solicited, and provision will be made for the entertainment of all who come. Order of the meeting as follows:

Business session in the morning, preaching every afternoon and evening, with prayer and conference meetings preceding. We expect the blessing of God; to this end let fervent prayer be offered.

Directions to strangers coming in on the cars will appear in due time. By authority of the Association, E. S. JENNINGS, Pres.

Notice.

Those coming to the quarterly meeting of the Woman's Christian Association, will please take the Cranston horse-car, and stop at Lester Hall.

For the Brn., N. PHILLIPS.

Notice.

The Lord willing, a Conference will be held at West Deerfield, N. H., commencing Friday evening, March 3d, and hold over the following Sabbath. Brn. John R. Parsons, James Towle, and John M. Quimby, will be present to labor for the salvation of the perishing. Come, Brn. and Srs., to this meeting. ENOCH MORRILL.

Conference at Melvin Village.

The Lord will, there will be a meeting at Melvin Village, commencing Thursday evening, Feb. 23d, to hold over the Sabbath. Brn. J. G. Smith and D. F. Leavitt are expected to be present to preach the word; and it is hoped that the Lord will send others to help in the good work. A general invitation is extended to all. T. W. PIPER.

Conference.

A conference of three days is desired to be held in Palmyra, Me., Marsh's school-house, about four miles from Corinna Mills, to commence Mar. 9th, at 7 P. M., and continue over Lord's day. We invite all who love our Lord Jesus Christ, and want to see souls converted and wanderers reclaimed, to come and help in the blessed work; and to those who preach the gospel, who feel like coming to help, we heartily say, Come in the name of the Lord. In behalf of the brethren,

I. DAMMAN.

Notice.

The Maine Westerly Quarterly Conference will be holden in the Reed meeting-house, Richmond, commencing Thursday, March 2nd, 1871, at two o'clock P. M., and continue over the next Lord's day. We invite, and hope to see, a general attendance of brethren, sisters, and friends, from the surrounding country, and especially our brethren who preach the word. Brethren can call on Low Curtis, F. Bates, and H. D. Reed.

By request, C. GOUD.

New York Adv. Chris. Conference.

The Lord willing, this conference will hold its next and last quarterly session, for the conference year, with the church in Brockport, N. Y., commencing Thursday evening, March 2nd, and continuing over Sunday. Brockport—seventeen miles west of Rochester, on the N. Y. C. R. R.—is easy of access, and it is hoped a large delegation will be out. Let all churches interested attend immediately to the quarterly collection and the appointment of delegates, that all may be properly represented, the business done decently and in order, a good meeting be enjoyed, and the blessed cause of our dear Master be advanced. Some who attended the last conference said they hoped never to miss another. Let all the delegates secure certificates, pray earnestly for the success of the meeting, and come in the spirit of Jesus.

B. P. STEVENS, Pres.
WM. E. BROWN, Sec'y.

Notice.

Providence permitting, I shall hold a discussion at West Hoosick, N. Y., Wednesday evening, March 1st (and onward as duty may require,) with Eld. Parker, of Buskirk's Bridge, N. Y., (a Unitarian) upon the following question: "Resolved, that man is wholly mortal, body, mind, and soul." I affirm. He denies. Brethren, pray for us. JACOB WILBUR.

Notice.

As I have considerable money to make out on my Hymn Book between this and April 1st, I hope that those owing me will remember my necessities, and send to me, if possible, between March 1st and 20th, at South Exeter, Me. If at any other time, address me at Machiasport, Me., my home.

If any brethren have sent me letters in the last six or eight weeks containing money, which I have not acknowledged, or calling for books or Admonitions, which they have not received, I wish they would inform me directly, stating all the facts, as I fear that some letters may be lost in this time. I. K. LOMBARD.

Milwaukee, Wis.

Advent Christian meetings are held every Lord's day, at 10½ o'clock, and Thursday evenings at 7 o'clock, in the upper hall, north-east corner of Jefferson and Michigan streets. A call from any of our preachers coming this way will be thankfully received. R. MARTIN.

German Tracts.

I will send my German Tracts gratis (except postage), to any one who wants them for himself, or to distribute. I have a good supply. Send your orders to L. REIMER, 1006 Chesnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

MEETINGS IN PORTLAND, ME. (Union Hall.)

Having vacated Cushman Hall, on Congress Street, meetings hereafter will be held in Union Hall. Entrance on Free Street, nearly opposite the Baptist church. Seats free.

S. K. DYER.
D. F. SCAMMAN.
R. R. YORK.

ROCHESTER, N. H.

There will be preaching in the chapel, near the brick school-house, in Rochester, N. H., on the first Lord's day in each month. Others can appoint so as not to conflict.

ADVENT CHRISTIAN CHURCH, SALEM.

Meetings are held every Sabbath, at the Chapel, Sewall Street. Prayer meeting Monday evening, at the Ward Room, North Salem. Tuesday and Friday evenings at private houses. C. E. BARNES, Pastor.

NEW YORK CITY.

The Advent Church formerly meeting at Grand and Allen Streets, have removed to 405 Grand Street, one door above Clinton. Preaching every Sunday for the present. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening, at the house of J. K. Bellows, 19 Orchard Street.

☞ To Preaching Brethren.

Those wishing to preach	Correspond with
in Westfield, Mass.	C. A. Phelps.
Lawrence, Mass.	Geo. Churchill, John T. Merrill, Ephraim Fisk.
Worcester, Mass.	H. F. Collier, H. W. Buxton, or E. G. Higgins.
Savoy, Mass.	Daniel Miller, or A. R. Bliss.
Wakefield, Mass.	G. R. Tymer.
Charlton, Mass.	E. H. Allen, Oxford, Mass.
Portsmouth, N. H.	T. E. Wood, Box 1445.
Hampton, N. H.	Joseph A. Philbrook.
Manchester, N. H.	J. W. C. Pickering.
Dover, N. H.	Adam Eglin, Box 1078.
London Ridge, N. H.	Daniel L. Moore, Wm. Batchelder, Edward Mudget.
Seabrook, N. H.	R. S. Johnson, of Hampton, N. H., or Chs. Barton, of Seabrook.
Chichester, N. H.	F. L. Knowles.
Goshen, N. H.	O. F. Cain.
Rye, N. H.	Moses C. Philbrick or Samuel Smart.
Pittsfield, N. H. (Bethel)	C. S. Emerson.
Stowe, Vt.	H. W. Sargent, or S. Whitney.
Portland, Me.	R. R. York, S. K. Dyer, D. F. Scamman.
Lewiston, Me.	Albert Burgess.
South Berwick (Great Works) Me.	Harrison Dow.
Kennebunk Depot, Me.	Rufus Doran.
Hollis Centre, Me.	W. S. Moulton, or S. G. Rumbry.
Vernon, Vt.	J. O. Allen.
Bristol, Ct.	Luther Tuttle, Henry A. Way.
West Gloucester, R. I.	Geo. A. Hawkins, Putnam, Ct.
New Milford, Ct.	Richard Hoxsie.
New Haven, Ct.	W. F. Carpenter, 73 State St.
Pleasant Valley, Ct.	Seuel O. White, New Hartford, Ct.
Meriden, Ct.	R. J. Whitehead, West Meriden, Conn., Box 4.
West Meriden, Ct.	S. D. Bingham.
New Britain, Ct.	Chs. M. Bert.
[illegible]	[illegible]

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.

Geo. W. Brown (of So. Elliot, Me.) Sunday, Feb. 26th
Hiram Munger............Friday evening, March 3d
J. A. Cleveland..................Sunday, March 5th
T. M. Preble..................Sabbath, March 12th

BOSTON, (Branch Chapel), 1735 Washington Street, corner of Madison Street.

Meetings at 10½ A. M., and 3 and 7½ P. M.

John G. Hook............Friday evening, Feb. 24th
S. C. Hancock..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
John G. Hook..................Sunday, March 5th
(Meeting every evening. Seats free.)

MERCANTILE HALL, 32 SUMMER STREET, BOSTON.

Meetings at 10½ A. M., and 3 and 7 P. M.
Social meeting at 2 P. M.

H. L. Hastings..................Sunday, Feb. 26th and following Sundays.

EAST BOSTON, MASS.

(Second Advent Hall, 154 Meridian Street.)

Meetings every Sunday, at the usual hours, also prayer and conference meetings Wednesday and Friday evenings, at 7½ o'clock P. M.

John G. Hook..........Thursday evening, Feb. 23d

Meetings in South Boston on Wednesday evenings, No. 2 Lowland Street.
Friday evenings, No. 227 E. St. Bay-View horse cars pass by. Come and welcome. C. W. HUMPHRES.
J. N. BERRY.

Mrs. Jane Benson (227 East Street, at Bro. Berry's) Friday evening, Feb. 24th.

CHELSEA, MASS.

Granite Block, Hall No. 11, corner of Broadway and Fourth Streets. Entrance on Fourth Street.
(Up two flight of stairs.)

J. Couch..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
M. Batchelor..................Sunday, March 5th
Wm. Thurman..................Sunday, March 12th
T. M. Preble..................Sabbath, March 19th
J. Couch..................Sunday, March 26th

CHARLESTOWN.

Preaching at Charlestown, (Evening Star Hall, No. 22 Main Street), every Lord's day.

S. S. Brewer..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
W. S. Campbell..................Sunday, March 5th
S. S. Brewer..................Sunday, March 12th

Rye, N. H..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
C. GOODRICH.

Seabrook, N. H..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
A. P. MOORE.

Stoneham, Mass........Wednesday evening, Feb. 22d
John G. Hook..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
JOHN G. HOOK.

Providence, R. I..................Sunday, March 19th
J. COUCH.

Holden, Mass..................Sabbath, March 5th
T. M. PREBLE.

Warehouse Point, Ct..................Sabbath, Feb. 26th
Second Sabbath, March 12th, not engaged. [If there is an opening in the vicinity of Portsmouth for March 12th, please inform me at Chicopee Falls, Mass.]

Great Works, N. H......Tuesday evening, March 7th
Great Falls, N. H....Wednesday evening, March 8th
Dover, N. H............Thursday evening, March 9th
Exeter, N. H............Friday evening, March 10th
Hampton, N. H.........Monday evening, March 13th
Lynn, Mass............Tuesday evening, March 14th
Scitico, Ct..................Sabbath, March 19th
The rest of March not engaged. H. MUNGER.

Fairhaven, Mass..................March 3d
Mattapoisett, Mass..................Sunday, March 5th
New Bedford, Mass..................March 7th
Plymouth, Mass..................Sunday, March 12th
Holden, Mass..................Sunday, April 2d
J. S. WHITE.

Rutland, Vt..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
L. BOUTELL.

West Fairlee, Vt..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
H. F. CARPENTER.

Lewiston, Me..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
J. ALBERT LIBBY.

Great Falls, N. H.......Sundays, March 5th and 12th
South Berwick, Me. (Great Works)...Sundays, March 19th and 26th. GEO. W. BROWN, So. Elliot.

Webster, Mass..................Sabbath, Feb. 26th
Fitchburg, Mass..................Sabbath, March 5th
Providence, R. I..................Sabbath, March 12th
Putnam, Ct..................Sabbath, March 19th
MRS. L. M. STODDARD.

Bath, Me..................Sabbath, Feb. 26th
Vienna, Me., or vicinity (as Bro. H. B. Savey may arrange) Sabbaths, March 5th and 12th.
Richmond, Me. (Reed meeting-house) Sab., March 19th
My appointments for Brunswick, Richmond Village, and Lewiston, are withdrawn. Will try to visit these places before I return home. C. H. SWEET.

Biddeford, Me............Monday evening, Feb. 27th
Great Falls, N. H.........Tuesday evening, Feb. 28th
Brookfield, N. H......Wednesday evening, March 1st
New Durham Ridge, N. H.....Thurs. eve., March 2d
Dover, N. H..................Friday evening, March 3d
A. ROSS.

South Chichester (as Bro. Jonathan Towle may arrange) evening, Feb. 26th, and over the Sabbath.
JOHN PARSONS.

Pittsfield, N. H..................Sunday, March 12th
J. H. CLARK.

Haverhill, Mass..................Sunday, March 5th
J. DRAKE.

Southington, Ct..................Sunday, March 12th
SETH WOODRUFF.

Seabrook, N. H..................Sunday, April 2nd
H. FINNEY.

Great Falls, N. H..................Sabbath, March 12th
N. C. TWOMBLY.

Northwood Narrows, N. H.........Sunday, Feb. 26th
Seabrook, N. H.........Sundays, March 5th and 12th
WM. W. SUTHERLAND.

Rye, N. H..................Sunday, March 12th
Seabrook, N. H..................Sunday, March 19th
Hampton, N. H..................Sunday, March 26th
H. M. BRYANT.

Piermont, N. H. (Clay meeting-house) Sab., March 12th
A. H. CLARK.

Scitico, Ct..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
A. M. HIGGINS.

Philadelphia, Pa..........Sundays, Feb. 19th and 26th
Albany, N. Y..................Sunday, March 12th
A. A. PHELPS.

Providence, R. I...Sundays, Feb. 26th and March 5th
WM. STUART.

Northfield, Mass..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
Hartford, Ct. (Talcott & Post's Hall) Sun., March 5th
Meriden, Ct..................Sunday, March 12th
GEO. W. BROWN.

West Groton, N. H..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
East Canaan, N. H..................Sunday, March 5th
MARY E. OTIS.

Rochester Plains (Town House)....Sunday, Feb. 26th
EDWIN H. WELLS.

Great Falls, N. H..................Sabbath, Feb. 26th
South Berwick, Me. (Great Works)...Sab., March 5th
S. S. MOONEY.

Haverhill, N. H (Brick Church)...Sabbath, Feb. 26th
West Rumney, N. H. (Plain school-house) evening, Feb. 28th.
Campton, N. H. (Bump school-house) Sab., March 5th
Belmont, N. H. (where Bro. Kidder may appoint) evening, March 9th.
London Ridge, N. H. (at Bro. Batchelder's) evening, March 10th.
Gilmanton, N. H. (school-house at Merrill's Corner) evening, March 11th.
Sabbath, March 12th, where Bro. Maxey may appoint.
O. W. NELSON.

Southington, Ct..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
Warehousepoint, Ct..................Sunday, March 12th
G. L. WHITE.

Manchester, N. H. (where Bro. Samuel Morse may appoint) Sunday, Feb. 26th.
Lynn, Mass..................Sunday, March 5th
WM. DODGE.

Bath, Me..................Sundays, March 5th and 19th
C. H. LEVERTON.

Keene, N. H..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
L. B. POTTER.

Lynn, Mass..................Sunday, March 5th
C. W. SARGENT.

Philadelphia, Pa.......Sundays, March 12th and 19th
Lynn, Mass..................Sunday, March 26th
M. BATCHELOR.

Goffstown, N. H..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
Seabrook, N. H.........evenings, March 15th and 16th
Kittery (Spruce Creek)..evenings, March 22d and 23d
Great Works, N. H..................evening, March 24th
Rochester, N. H..................Sunday, March 26th
E. S. MOULTON.

East Rochester, N. H..................Sunday, March 5th
Friendship, Me.........Saturday evening, March 11th
Cushing, Me..................Sunday, March 12th
I wish to say to the church at Cushing, that on account of the conference at the Reed meeting-house, I shall not be able to be there the first Sunday.
Bath, Me..................Sunday, April 30th
W. H. MITCHELL.

Canterbury (No. 1 school-house) evening, March 4th and over Sunday, the 5th.
East Concord, N. H. (Gale school-house) Sunday, March 12th. CHAS. R. PARSONS.

Boscawen, N. H. (Gulf school-house).......Sabbath, Feb. 26th
Fisherville, N. H. (Sander's Hall) Sab., March 12th
SIMEON BOHY.

Knowlesville..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
Eagle Harbor..................evening, Feb. 28th
[illegible]

Allegheny City, Pa., the last and first Sundays in each month until April 1st.
Ronseville, Pa., the third Sunday in Jan., Feb., and March.
Bucklins Corners, Chaut. Co., N. Y., commence meetings evening, Feb. 9th, and over Sunday. On Sunday at two o'clock P. M., and in the evening. Bro. Burdick will be with me. JOHN T. ONGLEY.

Brentwood, N. H. (at Bro. Leavitt's) Sun., Feb. 26th
Seabrook, N. H..................Sunday, March 26th
WM. C. STEWART.

Honeoye Flats, N. Y..................Feb. 26th
At Conference, March 2d, and over the 5th.
C. F. SWEET.

Pitts Town, N. Y....at 6½ P. M., March 1st, 2d, and 3d
Hoosick, N. Y..................Sunday, March 5th
C. PIKE.

Providence, R. I..................Sabbath, Feb. 26th
T. M. PREBLE.

North Dana, Mass..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
Wakefield, Mass..................Sunday, March 5th
GEO. A. STREETER.

Warehousepoint, Ct..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
My appointment for New York the same Sabbath is withdrawn for the present.
West Haven, Ct., four evenings, commencing Tuesday, Feb. 28th.
Bridgeport, Ct..................Sunday, March 5th
Ansonia, Ct., three evenings, commencing Monday, March 6th.
Lanesville, Ct., Thursday and Friday evenings, March 9th and 10th.
New Milford, Ct..................Sunday, March 12th and through the week.
Roxbury, Ct., (as the brethren arrange) one week, commencing Sunday, March 19th, to accommodate those coming from Woodbury and Washington.
Lakeville, Ct., one week, commencing Sun., March 26th. Hope to find all ready to work for salvation.
H. K. FLAGG.

Collinsville, Ct..................Sabbath, Feb. 26th
A. ELLIOT.

Waterbury, Ct..................Sabbath, Feb. 26th
G. L. TEEPLE.

North Scituate, R. I. (with Bro. Kelloway) Sunday, Feb. 26th.
Clinton, Mass..................Sunday, March 12th
E. COTTON.
Any wishing my labors, write me at Clinton, Mass., up to March 12th. E. C.

Plymouth, Vt. (Five Corners)......Sunday, Feb. 26th
Bridgewater, Vt..................Sunday, March 5th
Dinsmore Hill, Vt..................Sunday, March 12th
GEO. A. COLE.

Corinna, Me..................2 P. M. Feb. 25th and over Lord's day, the 26th.
South Dover, Me. (Bran's Mills)....7 P. M., March 1st
South Adkinson, Me..................7 P. M. March 2d
Sebec, Me. (Harriman school-house).........March 3d
Milo, Me..................Sunday, March 5th
I. DAMMAN.

Augusta, Me. (Ballad school-house) Sunday, Feb. 26th
Sidney, Me. (school-house, Dist. No. 2)....March 5th
Sidney (school-house, Dist. No. 1) Sunday, March 12th
Windsor, Me. (Prebble school-house) Sun., March 19th
THOMAS HINES.

North Benton, N. H........Friday evening, Feb. 24th and over the Sabbath.
Warren Summit, N. H...Tuesday evening, Feb. 28th
East Canaan, N. H..................Sabbath, March 4th
F. S. RANSOM.

West Abington, Mass..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
B. WOODSIDE.

Bowdoinham Village, Me....evenings, Feb. 23d, 24th and 25th, and over Sunday.
North Norway, Me..................Sunday, March 5th
Lynn, Mass..................Sunday, March 12th
Biddeford, Me..................Sunday, March 26th
J. T. JORDAN.

Littleton, Mass. (Central Hall) Friday evening, March 3d, and over Sunday, the 5th.
This is a new field. Brn. in the surrounding towns, come and help us. A. P. MOORE.

Harrison, Me. (where Bro. H. Kimball may appoint) evening, March 7th, and longer if thought best.
Buckfield (Federal Corner).......Sabbath, March 12th
Hartford, Me. (Bostoon school-house)........Tuesday evening, March 14th.
South Livermore, Me. (where Bro. C. Denning may appoint) evening, March 16th, and over Sunday.
O. W. KIMBALL.

South Berwick, Me (Great Works) Sunday, Feb. 26th
Rochester, N. H. (Gonic Chapel)...Sunday, March 5th
T. & A. MARSTON.

Meredith Neck, N. H..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
Moultonborough Neck, N. H. (Middle school-house) Sunday, March 5th.
Meredith, N. H. (Dolloff school-house), Sun., March 12th
N. GLIDDEN.

Northwood Narrows, N. H.........Sunday, Feb. 26th
Nottingham, N. H. (where Bro. G. W. Randall may appoint), Tuesday evening, Feb. 28th.
ENOCH MORRILL.

Chicopee Falls, Mass..................Sunday, March 5th
Please meet me at depot. If this conflicts, write me at 31 Anderson Street, Boston, Mass.
JANE BENSON.

Woodstock Valley, Ct..................Sabbath, Feb. 26th
P. S. BUTLER.

Goffstown, N. H..................Sunday, March 5th
A. SIMPSON.

Vernon, Vt..................Sabbath, Feb. 26th
Springfield, Mass...evenings, Feb. 28th and March 1st
Worcester, Mass..........evenings, March 2d and 3d
Lowell, Mass............evenings, March 7th and 8th
Lawrence, Mass.........evenings, March 9th and 10th
Manchester, N. H..................Sunday, March 12th
Concord, N. H. (Centre Street Church) evenings, March 14th and 15th.
Portsmouth, N. H.....evenings, March 16th and 17th
Dover, N. H..................Sunday, March 19th
Savoy, Mass. (New Chapel).......Sunday, March 26th
If any of these appointments conflict with others, please notify me at Savoy, Mass. Z. D. BAIRD.

South Norwalk, Ct., Sabbaths, Feb. 26th and March 5th
H. PRATT.

Morris, Ct..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
Wrightville, Ct..................Sunday, March 5th
Waterbury, Ct..................Sunday, March 12th
☞ NO NAME.

Haverhill Center, N. H..................evening, Feb. 24th
North Benton, N. H......Feb. 25th, and over Sunday
Swift Water, N. H..................evening, Feb. 27th
West Groton, Vt. (Ricker school-house) eve., March 1st, and onward as the Lord may direct.
JOHN H. EVANS.

Rochester, N. H. (Gonic Chapel) Sabbath, Feb. 26th
S. VARNEY.

North Easton, Mass. (Ripley Hall)......every Sunday
GEO. WATON.

☞ Meetings will be held by the church of God worshiping at Lisbon Village, N. H. (Town Hall), three times every Sabbath. Preaching for the present by ALLEN DAMON.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

Wm. N. Pile......Sundays, Feb. 26th and March 5th
S. S. Brewer..................Sunday, March 9th

WORCESTER, MASS.

J. S. White..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
S. S. Brewer..................Sunday, March 5th
J. Couch..................Sunday, March 12th

LOWELL, MASS.

W. H. Mitchell..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
J. Couch..................Sunday, March 5th
C. Cunningham..................Sunday, March 12th
W. H. Mitchell........Sundays, March 19th and 26th

LAWRENCE, MASS.

M. Batchelor..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
W. H. Mitchell..................Sunday, March 5th
A. Ross..................Sundays, March 12th and 19th

CONCORD, N. H. (Centre Street.)

C. H. Fletcher..................Sabbath, Feb. 26th
A. Ross..................Sabbath, March 5th
C. S. Shattuck..................Sabbath, April 2d
T. W. Piper..................Sabbath, April 9th

CONCORD, N. H., (at the Bethel.)

T. W. Piper..................Sunday, March 5th
Wm. Stuart..................Sunday, March 12th
E. Owen..................Sunday, March 19th
C. S. Shattuck..................Sunday, April 9th

MANCHESTER, N. H.

G. W. Kimball..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
E. Owen..................Sunday, March 5th
T. W. Piper..................Sunday, March 12th
F. H. Carpenter..................Sunday, March 19th
Wm. Stuart.......Sundays, March 26th and April 2d

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

A. Simpson..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
H. Munger..................Sunday, March 5th
E. S. Moulton.........Sundays, March 12th and 19th
E. Owen.........Sundays, March 26th and April 2nd
J. S. White..................Sunday, April 9th

LONDON RIDGE, N. H.

Joseph Harvey..................Sunday, Feb. 26th

VERNON, VT.

S. Cook..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
O. D. Woodruff..................Sunday, March 12th

WINSTED, CT.

Mrs. M. L. Durand..................Sunday, Feb. 26th

BRISTOL, CT.

Jas. Carter..................Sunday, March 5th
Seth Woodruff..................Sunday, March 19th
B. Hitchcock..................Sunday, April 2nd
W. N. Pile..................Sunday, April 16th
Dr. A. M. Higgins..................Sunday, April 30th

WATERBURY, CT.

G. L. Teeple..................Sunday, Feb. 26th

NEW HAVEN, CT.

B. Hitchcock..................Sunday, Feb. 26th

SOUTH ELLIOT, ME.

J. Bickford..................Sunday, March 5th
E. Owen..................Sunday, March 12th

PORTLAND, ME.

Sec. Adv. Hall, Cushman's Block, 353½ Congress St.
B. S. Emery..................Sunday, Feb. 26th
E. Dearing..................Sunday, March 5th

BIDDEFORD, ME.

[illegible]

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

☞ We cannot discontinue or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in PLAIN LETTERS.

☞ S. B. ENSIGN—Subscriber received. Cannot get the discussion.

☞ T. SMITH—Money received.

☞ OTIS RIDER—We have no chart that would suit you.

☞ J. PORTER—The "Crisis" goes regularly to Samuel Smith.

☞ JACOB F. HUBER—Bro. L. Reimer's P. O. address is 1006 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

☞ A. A. PHELPS—All right. Send me your subjects. 10½ A. M., 2½ and 7½ P. M.

AARON VEDDER.

Letters Received.

O R Fassett, M E Green, L M Britten, R Martin, A B Swanseburg, Geo. Thomson, T W Gile, M Bucklin, A P Dixon, J M Snook, O R Fassett, J H Green, F H Chamberlain, T A Cheney, W Hobbs, S Woodruff, F M Drake, J Ridley, I C Wellcome, W Kellaway, H D Reed, C. A. S., N Reynolds, J Weston, S C Gove, J F Leighton, W Mitford, J Maxim, D Killam.

Cash Receipts for Books and Tracts.

S. Varney 75c, H. H. Warn $3.50, W. Dunn $3.50, J W Sawyer $3.25, M L Lawrence $1.00, J V Himes $10.00, D F Newton 25c, W Littlejohn 25c, E Kingsnorth $1.50, T Smith $2.00, C W Tozier 50c, J Hassett 25c, M Crannick $1.75, J Rowe 35c, G M Little 75c, W G Poor 25c, A W Taylor 25c, G Jameson $1.00, N Field $14.00, H L Hastings $18.94, A D Flagg $1.50, J Leslie $4.00, D Weaver $2.00, S Roby $1.75, S J Buswell 50c, J S Milne $5.54, D J Prince $1.75, G W Nichols 50c, E Curtis $1.50, Mrs. A M Bancroft $2.00, E A Bowe $3.00, C. Mendenhall 35c, M. E. Gregory $1.09, S Avery 35c, J W Morrow $1.25, J Hamilton $1.00, M Russell $1.50, E S Gilbert $1.00, J H Bean $4.75, P S Hartough 30c, A D Smith $1.00, E Urch 60c, J H Schoonmaker 60c, E A Fullerton 60c, J T Jordan 25c, J E Pearce 50c, J H Baxter $1.00, L H Dowling 25c, T S Day $1.00, W McLellan 25c, J W Sawyer $4.37, A Mallory 50c, W H Peytone 25c, S B Colton $1.50, S Mason $1.50, M E Stone $5.00.

Books and Tracts Sent.

By Mail—G P Persons, C B Colten, P J Smith, W H Simmons, J A Wells, W E Brown (3), D Cogswell, W J Cummings, W Coates, E E Shiply, E D White, M Russell, J H Ballard, E S Gilbert, A W Palmer, Mrs. M B Nutter, C Roberts, C Mendenhall (3), S B Ensign, Mrs. P Maybury, W Dunn, H H Warn, S Varney, A Damon, S J Bacon, M N Stevens, C W Tozier, E Kingsnorth, W Littlejohn, D F Newton, J V Himes, M L Lawrence, Eld. T Smith, J W Sawyer, A W Taylor, R Geyer, W J Poor, G M Little, J Rowe, G Hampson, W Scholz, J Earle, G W Nichols, L E Saltpaugh, N Holm, E A Rowe, R W Lilley, Mrs. A M Bancroft, E Curtis, J A Kimball, Mrs. A M Bonney, Mrs. E A Douglass, J Merrill, S Avery, T C Decoe, M C Gregory, J Hamilton, J Conrad, J W Marrow, M Grant (40), P S Hartough, J H Bean, P S Day, L H Dowling, L B Cummings, B Clement.

By Express—Mrs. L Reeder, N Shumway, J W O Pickering, S Roby.

"TALKS ABOUT PEOPLE'S STOMACHS,"

Is the title of a new work just issued by Dr. Dio Lewis, of Boston.

"Like all of his works, it is brimful of common sense. We do not know of another writer on matters pertaining to health, who says so many good things as Dr. Lewis."—Crisis of Dec. 7th.

"HEALTH BY GOOD LIVING."

A VALUABLE WORK, BY W. W. HALL, M. D.

These two works are for sale at this office, and will be sent by mail, on receipt of publisher's price. $1.50 each. AG'T.

JUST PUBLISHED.

By the Advent Christian Publication Society, a new Tract, entitled, "The Judgment Impending: Prophecy and Chronology converging to one Grand Culmination." By Bro. L. T. Cunningham. 52 pp. Price, 8 cents per copy. Postage, 2 cts. 75 cts. per dozen. $5.00 per one hundred. AG'T.

SHELDON'S FOUR NEW TRACTS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

1. LIFE AND DEATH THEOLOGY: or, The Scriptural Doctrine of Eternal Damnation and Everlasting Punishment. Price 8 cts. single, postage 2 cts.; 75 cts. per dozen, postpaid; $5.00 per hundred by express.

This work of forty-eight pages is the clearest and strongest document yet produced by Bro. Sheldon on this topic. It is just the thing to scatter among all classes.

2. IMMATERIALISM: or, The Doctrine of Soul-Immortality Refuted. Price 5 cts. single, postage 2 cts.; 40 cts. per dozen, postpaid; $3.00 per hundred by express.

A tract of thirty-two pages, showing that fifteen cardinal errors spring out of the doctrine of the soul's immortality, and that those errors could not exist independent of that doctrine, thus showing it to be the main root of error. Let it be scattered widely.

3. DEATH AND THE DEAD, 16 pages. Price 3 cts. single, postage 2 cts.; 20 cts. per dozen, postpaid; $1.50 per hundred by express.

Just the thing to scatter everywhere.

4. THE COMING JUDGMENT: Its Necessity and Result. Eight pages. 10 cts. per dozen, postpaid, or 75 cts. per hundred by express.

It will do much good.

THE DOCTRINE OF IMMORTALITY.

OR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

By Elder James H. Whitmore. Published by the Western Advent Christian Association.

This little volume of three hundred pages is a valuable contribution to the literature of the subject on which it treats, and is worthy of a wide circulation, not only among those who hold to the views advocated therein, but among others who have not given them due thought and investigation.

Price, single copy, postpaid, $1.00. Six copies, by mail, $5.00; by express, $4.20.

NEW TRACTS BY S. S. BREWER.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE SEVEN MESSAGES OF THE APOCALYPSE. Sent by mail for 13 cents. Postage 2 cents. $1.20 per dozen by express.

EVANGELS OF THE COMING ONE. Price by mail, 10 cts. single copy; per dozen, 70 cts.; per hundred by express, $5.00.

THE MYSTERY OF INIQUITY. This is a work on the man of sin, as viewed in the light of historic testimony. Price by mail, single copy, 5 cts.; postage 2 cts.; 50 cts. per dozen; $3.00 per hundred.

THE JUBILEE HARP.

We are now ready to supply friends with the new Hymn and Tune Book, at the following prices:—

Plain cloth, leather backs, colored edges, $1.00 per copy; $9.00 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges, $1.15 per copy; $10.50 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges and covers, $1.35 per copy; $12.00 per dozen.

☞ Postage 15 cts. per copy additional, when sent by mail.

NEW HYMN BOOK.

"Hymns of the Jubilee Harp."

WITHOUT THE MUSIC.

The above work, printed in large, clear type, on beautiful paper, we are ready to fill orders for, at the following prices:—

Bound in cloth, with sprinkled edges, 75 cents per copy; $7.00 per dozen; $55.00 per 100.

Bound in leather, gilt edge, $1.00 per copy; $9 per dozen; $75.00 per hundred; when sent by mail, 15 cts. additional postage.

LIST OF ENGLISH BIBLES.

We have received and keep on hand the following English Reference Bibles:

Minion, 8vo., marg. ref., large type, circuit binding, $4.50; postage 28 cts. Do. plain binding, $4.00; postage 28 cts.

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., circuit binding, $3.50; postage 20 cts. (Best size for preachers.)

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., plain, $2.25; postage 20 cts. Do. ref. between verses, $2.25; postage 24 cts.

Pearl, 8 vo., marg. ref. circuit, $2.25; postage 20 cts. [illegible]

SPIRITUALISM CONDEMNED BY THE TESTIMONY OF THE BIBLE AND ITS OWN WITNESSES.

BY M. D. WELLCOME.

[illegible]

For the World's Crisis.

1870.

The moments fast are fleeting,
And time is rolling on,
This year with all its changes
Alas! will soon be gone;
We all are hurrying swiftly
Down time's fast rolling tide;
Year after year is passing,
And onward thus we glide.

But what eventful moments
This year to some has brought;
Months, weeks, and days and hours
With sorrow have been fraught.
Some hailed with joy its dawning
With prospects bright and fair,
But now in death they're sleeping
Till Christ their Lord appear.

From sickness, pain and sorrow
They have been called away,
But soon they'll hail with pleasure
That bright and glorious day,
When Christ will come to gather
His loved ones from afar,
To dwell with him forever,
Where nought their joys shall mar.

Soon, soon will dawn that morning
Which life and peace will bring,
When all God's ransomed people
Will hail with joy their King.
Loved ones that long have slumbered
Beneath the damp cold earth,
And with the dead are numbered,
Shall at his call come forth;

And o'er death's gloomy portal
They shall the victory gain;
When they are made immortal,
With Christ their Lord to reign,
May I be counted worthy
With them to enter in,
To dwell with Christ forever,
Who suffered for our sin.

Albe, Minn. M. H. OWENS.

THE COMING OF THE LORD.

"He which testifieth these things saith: Surely I come quickly."

Jesus will come to translate the living saints, to clothe them with immortality, and receive the quick and risen dead together, to himself. "We which are alive and remain, shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air; and so shall we ever be with the Lord." This is the express testimony of God's truth. The poet beautifully describes it, and says:

"Go up with joy the shining way,
To meet and praise my Lord."

We have known people "caught up" before. One holy one in the first earth walked with God in signifying sacrifice. He was upright in his day and generation, and the favor of the Lord was on him; for, having prophesied of the coming of Jesus with ten thousand of his saints, in the following words, seeing it before him: "Behold, the Lord came, with his holy myriads, to execute judgment upon all, and to convict all the ungodly among them of all their acts of ungodliness which they committed, and of all the hard things which ungodly sinners spoke against him,"—he was not detained or hurt by death, and this one short and expressive sentence was left to describe his blissful end, "And Enoch walked with God, and was not, for God took him."

Oh! blessed, blessed indeed, to be thus caught away as one too precious for earth to hold longer; to be up-borne by angelic hands, and carried into the presence chamber of the "Great King." Does it not make one feel like the poet, who says:

"My heart aspires
With warm desires
To see my God."

Israel had departed from God; the land had grown wanton from the Lord, and the "gross darkness" of idolatry covered the people. There stood out against this flood of iniquity one who feared God. He was the Lord's prophet; not ashamed of his commission, or of his Master. His life was perilous in the extreme; his work was heart-aching; he appeared to be the only oasis in all that wilderness. But the consummation of his career arrived at last. The day came—the memorable day of translation. Elijah and Elisha walked on together. In vain had Elijah endeavored to persuade Elisha from following him. His feeling is aptly described in the answer of Ruth to Naomi—"Whither thou goest I will go." The garment of Elijah smote the Jordan and it divided. And then Elijah tells Elisha that he must leave him, and asks what parting present he should make him. Elisha's choice was that a double portion of Elijah's spirit should rest on him. It was a great boon craved of him; but still, said he, "If thou seest me when I am taken from thee, it shall be so unto thee." They walked on. What is that imposing sight that has flashed in the heavens? Fiery steeds, with a gallop, rush down toward earth. These drag royal chariots after them. Elisha descries them. They draw nearer. "One is taken and the other left." And as they return through the parting clouds, the bereaved Elisha calls out: "My father, my father, the chariots of Israel, and the horsemen thereof." Thus was Elijah caught away, and thus did he escape the doom of our humanity.

Once more, and the picture is complete. The Son of God had died the death of the cross. Those heart-heavings on our account were past. The sword had made a clean work, and Jesus was dead. Now "he that is dead is freed from sin." Everything had been met, all had been completed, and, therefore, he was emphatically "freed." He was not to see corruption; and so on the third day we find him "free among the dead;" yea, "the living among the dead." He had risen—risen to die no more—risen with the keys of death and hell. He showed himself alive for forty days by many infallible proofs. One day, and the disciples stood on Olivet, and Jesus in their midst. But that was the last they were to spend with him personally during their little life-day; for, suddenly, and ere they are aware, he is separated from them. Anon they look, and as a fugitive he is lost in the great distance. Clouds had embosomed and enpalaced him, and he was ascending the shining road to his Father's house.

But what has all this to do with us? Just this: we are to ascend the same path. The above went singly; but we are to "tarry till I come,"—that I we love to talk about, read about, sing about, talk to, and commune with. But how can we expect translation? Because the text at the head of this paper causes us to hope for translation. Again: it is ours to possess the faith of David who says: "Thou wilt show me the path of life; in Thy presence there is fulness of joy, and at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore." There is a "path that no fowl knoweth." For "the way of life is above to the wise, that he may depart from hell beneath." The holy aspirations that arise in believers' hearts shall soon be realized. One of David's reads thus: "Oh that I had wings like a dove, then would I fly away and be at rest;" but without wings shall we ascend—the clouds we behold shall swoop and catch us up.

I have often gazed on the star-lit sky in the evening, when all has been calm, and I have felt well-nigh staggered with the thought. It has seemed so immensely grand a way to take us worms to our dear Lord. Truly

"God moves in a mysterious way
His wonders to perform."

And what preparations. In a silver, gauzy cloud to leave the world behind, the crowd of toiling folk, the great St. Paul's, and all that earth considers noble, princely, and great; and higher, higher to ascend, and meet the Lord in the air, and so be forever with him.

We shall arise at a call. Whose call? The call of the Beloved. Let us read about it. "The voice of my Beloved! behold, He cometh leaping upon the mountains, skipping upon the hills. My Beloved is like a roe or a young hart; behold, he standeth behind our wall, he looketh forth at the windows, shewing himself through the lattice. My beloved spake and said unto me: Rise up, my love, my fair one, and come away. For, lo, the winter is past, the rain is over and gone; flowers appear on the earth; the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in our land; the fig tree putteth forth her green figs, and the vines with the tender grape give a good smell. Arise, my love, my fair one, and come away." Can. 2: 9, 13.

We shall arise en masse. Single travelers do not now ascend that road; but at the coming of Jesus we shall all go together. And how? All immortal. The last traces of the effects of sin shall be expunged. No weakness, no frailty, no liability to sickness or death in risen, Christ-like ones. For, says Paul: "Behold I shew you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we [talking to believers] shall all be changed. In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump; for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead [the sleeping,] shall be raised incorruptible, and we [the living] shall be changed. For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality. So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that it is written, Death is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? . . . . Thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

O, then, if all this be in reversion, I would that that day would hasten. Oh! that the slow wheels of time would spin more quickly round, and deliver us, whose "loins are girded, and who stand like men waiting for the return of their Lord," safe, at his coming, into his open arms. Amen.—Herald of the Kingdom (London.)

[From the Corresponding Editor.]

SOUTHERN NOTES.—No. 3.

Jan. 30th, I dined with a Methodist lawyer, who is greatly interested in listening to the truths that I am advocating here, which are new to him. He spent four years in the Confederate service, and, in common with others, feels a strong aversion to the "Yankees," but is nevertheless greatly interested in my preaching. At night I preached again to a good congregation, in spite of the rain and cool weather, and was listened to with deep solemnity, except at one stage in my sermon, when the feelings of a negro in the gallery overcame him, and led him to indulge in a queer response, producing a wave of merriment, and almost making me lose my gravity for a moment. I had a free time in preaching, and at the close of the sermon some twenty persons requested prayers, and the congregation was filled with weeping during the season of prayer. One woman said, "That man's preaching has scared me, and I mean to live better, and I don't mean to get over the scare." Though the time has come for me to leave, I felt it duty to leave another appointment, though the weather does not look as though the people could attend. Several are strongly insisting that I must remain longer, while many others are fearful I will yet play them some Yankee trick before leaving. The community is on the pivot between interest and suspicion. All has been right so far, but they suspect something wrong hereafter.

Jan. 31st brought us one of the greatest rain-storms I have witnessed for years, making it impossible to hold a meeting, and flooding the country with water.

One of the amusing features of southern peculiarities is negro preaching, which is a strange mixture of deep ignorance and strong imagination. As a sample, a noted negro minister recently told his hearers—"Peter am got the keys of heaven and hell. And how did he get them? Why, Jesus Christ had them first, and the devil got them away from him; but Peter stole them away from the devil, and Peter has got them now strung on a cord, tied around his neck, and he keeps the keys in his pocket, so the devil can't get them away from him; and if you don't do right, Peter will take the key of hell out of his pocket, and open the big door of hell, and say, Go in dare, you mis'able sinner; and you got to go. When a good man come along, Peter takes the key of heaven out of his pocket, and unlocks the door of heaven, and lets him in." Again, in describing the crucifixion—"Christ had to tote his own cross up the hill, and it was a mighty heavy cross, and he could n't tote it alone, so he hollered to Simon—'Simon, come hep me tote dis ere cross up the hill.' So Simon come and took hold of the leetle eend of the cross, and made Christ tote the big eend. Then they drove a ten-penny nail in his right hand, and a ten-penny nail in his left hand."

There is quite an excitement among the colored people over my preaching on the prophecies. It so stirred them up, that after the close of my meeting the other night, they held a meeting by themselves, and had a boisterous time, and could be heard shouting and singing for over a mile, till past one o'clock. They pay me great respect when they meet me, by taking off their hats and saluting me, "How d' do, Marster?"—a practice laid aside since they were freed, except in cases they regard special exceptions.

There are no hymn books used in this place, except by the minister, who lines the hymn, singing two lines, and then reading two lines more. I am strongly urged to revisit the place, and think I shall do so. The Methodist minister is intensely anxious to have me return; but I fear when the Presiding Elder comes around, he will change his mind; for it is hard to believe that a Yankee can be good. They are even bitter against northern Methodist ministers, and they are watched by the "K. K. K."

Instead of stoves, fire-places are used in this State, from the house to the city depot, reminding me of my boyhood days, when I used to play on the hearth, before a bright fire. I have seen but one stove in the State; that was in the capital.

Feb. 1st, by request, I preached again before leaving. Had the best attention, and at the close of my sermon, several new seekers came forward for prayers, all grown people, with one man nearly seventy years old. It was a time of deep feeling in the congregation, and an hour of solemnity. I am now to leave, for several reasons; (1) to meet an arrangement elsewhere; (2) this meeting-house is to be used for other meetings planned for before I commenced; (3) I must stop and rest a short time before preaching much more, and I may as well use that time in canvassing, or feeling my way into community in another locality; (4) it may be as well to let the people digest what they have already heard before giving them more. I have partly promised to return before leaving for home.

During my stay here I have encountered no open opposition, except in this form: once, the meeting-house was locked against me by some unknown person, who had obtained the key in an unjust manner, which act the entire community condemned; and once all the negroes were locked up gallery by some villain, and came near being compelled to stay there all night. There has, however, been a steady undercurrent opposition. One man from Florida, who had become embittered against the preaching of Bro. P. A. Smith, tried to hedge up the work, but refused to come and hear me preach. Aside from this, the spirit of the "K. K. K." pervades the minds of the most of the people, whether they belong to the Klann, or not, and leads them to be suspicious of a northern man; so it is beating against wind and tide to make a permanent opening in this region. But I mean to keep up an agitation by means of reading matter, to some extent, though the majority of the people are illiterate, even among officials. As a sample, the Methodist steward informs me that he holds a note against a man recently elected to the State senate, who could not sign his own name, but had to make his mark. In the cities there is more education, but very limited compared to the north. It needs a man to settle down, and hold all the ground that is gained, and live himself into the confidence of a suspicious people, which will require time and caution.

On the 2nd of Feb., I bade farewell to my friends in Central Georgia, and started for the southern part of the State, after promising to revisit them. At the depot I overheard a part of a conversation between two men about persons who were being watched by the "K. K.'s" "Who are they?" inquired one. The other replied, "They suspect Sheldon, and two other men from the north." I had before heard these two men charged with "tampering with the niggers"; but my being a northern man, though opposed to these northern efforts to stir up the negroes against the whites, subjects me to constant suspicion, which prevents my access to the people in a great measure. If it were not for this, it seems as though I might carry every thing with me. As it was, some claimed to be converted, some to be reclaimed, and many to have received new light on the Bible. I preached more than my usual number of fireside sermons, besides over a dozen sermons in the meeting-house, with unusual freedom. Seed has been sown, I believe, that the devil will not destroy.

I soon traveled about one hundred and forty miles, and on the 3d of Feb. reached Brunswick, a place of about four thousand inhabitants, in the south of Georgia. Improved Feb. 4th in looking about the city, and forming new acquaintances, to decide how and where to begin my work of preaching here.

Sunday, Feb. 5th, by request of the pastor of the Presbyterian church of this city, I filled his pulpit, and was listened to by a candid congregation, and had freedom of speech. The Baptist minister did not feel at liberty to invite me into his desk, as his congregation had once found fault with him for inviting strangers to preach for him. W. S.

For the World's Crisis.

MINISTERIAL SUPPORT.—No. 4.

Large and little means, great and small preachers. It is well to consider that God accepts the means used in his cause in accordance with the state of heart of those who bestow. They who of their abundance give what is of no use to them, and is no sacrifice or inconvenience to them (while it may be turned to much account in spreading the truth, or feeding the hungry, and clothing the naked), get small blessings in return. But they who of their penury give all their living, can have it multiplied like the widow's oil, to do even more in the hand of the Lord, and they reap great blessings themselves.

It is pretty fully decided by the church that great preachers, able speakers, must be supported, whether the lesser ones receive any thing or not. Talent, education, experience, draw pay. We should not condemn this, nor desire it otherwise. But would not Christ say in this case—"These things ought ye to have done, and not to have left the others undone"? Is there not a great fault, a glaring sin in the favoritism and partiality shown in the bestowment of means upon some, and the withholding of them from the working, faithful ministers? We speak of those of equal expenses and responsibilities. If a man has a family requiring much means to sustain them properly, he of course should have more provided for him than a man without family, or who has small expenses. But is this rule followed? Do not the most of men give according to their fancy of a minister's gifts and smartness, or according to his reputation as an able minister?

Eld. A, B, C, or D, is sent for to come and spend a Sabbath, or a week. It is decided that he must be paid $10, $15, or $20, even though he is worth five or ten thousand dollars, or has a lucrative business going on which more than supports him, or has a salary in other business, or has little or no family expenses. But let other ministers equally good, and often much more useful, be sent for, who do even twice the labor, have spent all their earnings in the cause, are worth no property, or very little; have no income; large family expenses; they get not half, or even a quarter, the amount of the reputed "able minister." Can ministers ever become able ministers under such management? They may perhaps have twice the native talent of those called able, but being obliged to devote much of their time to manual labor, they cannot get books, cannot have practice, while those well sustained are put in circumstances to use all the advantages to make them able workmen, and then often fail to be such.

The idea that we cannot have a protracted meeting, conference, or campmeeting, without securing the labors of some able ministers, is destructive to christian prosperity, disheartens the majority of the ministry, deprives them of their proper work, and leads to placing our trust in men. Let us secure the services of Christ, and then all hands go into the work as we have ability and opportunity.

I. C. WELLCOME.

NOTHING TO DO.

"Nothing to do!" in this world of ours,
Where weeds spring up with fairest flowers,
Where smiles have only a fitful play,
Where hearts are breaking every day!

"Nothing to do!" Thou christian soul,
Wrapping thee round in thy selfish stole;
Off with the garments of sloth and sin,
Christ thy Lord hath a kingdom to win.

"Nothing to do!" There are prayers to lay
On the altar of incense, day by day;
There are foes to meet, within and without,
There is error to conquer, strong and stout.

"Nothing to do!" There are minds to reach
The simplest form of christian speech;
There are hearts to lure with loving wile,
From the grimest haunts of sin's defile.

"Nothing to do!" There are lambs to feed,
The precious hope of the church's need;
Strength to be borne to the weak and faint,
Vigils to keep with the doubting saint.

"Nothing to do!" and thy Savior said,
"Follow thou me in the path I tread."
Lord, lend thy help the journey through,
Lest faint, we cry, "So much to do!"

THE CONVERSION OF ST. PAUL.—We have received from the publisher, S. R. Wells, New York, "The Conversion of St. Paul," in the form of three "Discourses," by Geo. J. Geer, D. D., Rector of St. Timothy's, N. Y. The subject of each discourse being respectively—(1) "Its relation to unbelief. (2) Its false uses and true. (3) Its relation to the church." A book of eighty odd pages, neatly printed on toned paper, price $1.00. There are many true things in the book, notwithstanding the tendency is decidedly towards "The Church"; but we can endorse such passages as these:—

"This man, whose career was so wonderful—whose life has proved a fund of exhaustless interest and instruction to the church and to the world, who was so signally marked as a favorite of heaven—is a type of the men we most need. It is earnest men that we want in this world—not willful men, not men who are earnest in gratifying a caprice, or their own wills, or in accomplishing their own selfish ends—but we want men who are always in earnest respecting the truth which they do possess—who are sincere, in the sense in which St. Paul was sincere through his whole life: simply desiring to apprehend truth, and then laboring for it with the whole soul.

Such men, open to the influences of divine truth, may meet with some wonderful changes of opinion and action. But they are the only men who are entitled to have confidence that they will be led by the hand of God. We want earnest christians, and we want earnest unbelievers also; men who will always be able truly to say that they 'verily think' that they are doing God's service in the lives which they are leading."

"The trouble is, not that men like Saul of Tarsus persecute the church of Christ, but that indifference to truth prevails. Men are not longing for it, praying for it; and when they think they have found it, devoting themselves to its service with all their heart, mind, soul and strength. Indifference to truth and her interests broods like the spell of death over the minds of men. God in his providence carries home the truth of his gospel to the heart and conscience; but there is not the remotest idea of going on to the discharge of duty. Men draw it in with every breath they breathe. But as with the air, so with the truth. They learn its value only when God takes it from them.

Amid all the conflict of opinion, whose din and noise fill the earth, men eagerly seizing whatever makes for themselves, bolsters them up in their chosen position, thrusting from them all considerations which make against them, present the spectacle of men fighting for a victory. As if any victory will stand at the day of judgment, but that which truth shall win."

"Men who are thinking most of everything else but the truth of God, are not the men to whom he will, in any special manner, by any special act, make his truth known. Saul was ready, the moment the true light of heaven broke in upon his soul, for any service. He was not the man to ask, 'Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?' with a mental reservation to do that will or not according to his inclination or fancied interests. He would take the consequences of an answer to his prayer. He would aim to be equal to the responsibilities which it imposed. In like manner, only as any one, in full purpose of heart, turns his steps heavenward, to follow where God shall lead, will it be a glorious announcement when, as of Saul, it shall be said of him, 'Behold he prayeth!'"

Gems.

He prayeth best who leaves unguessed
The mystery of another's breast;
Why cheeks grow pale, why eyes o'erflow,
Or heads are white, thou need'st not know;
Enough to note, by many a sign,
That every heart hath needs like thine.
Pray for us!

— Happiness can come of little wealth, and the possession of hearts that are loving and true, is fortune greater than gold can give.

— It is the property of true friends to live and love together; but feigned friends fly from a man in time of trial.

— It is easy to speak and do kindly, and every such act and word becomes a blessing to be returned in later days.

— A subtle wolf will never hunt too near his own den.

— Purify thine own wickedness, then prate of others' sins.

With patient step thy course of duty run,
God nothing does, or suffers to be done,
But thou would'st do thyself if thou could'st see
The end of all events as well as he.

— Christ walks upon and quiets the waves of life's troubles, as in olden days he stilled tempests on Gallilee's lake.

— Like as a physician cureth a man secretly, he not seeing it; so should a good friend help his friend privately, when he knoweth not thereof.

— He who boasts most of his strength, is most likely to fall.

— Beware of judging hastily; it is better to suspend an opinion than to retract an assertion.

— That person is not worthy to live, that taketh not care how to live well.

Little things—ay, little things
Make up the sum of life;
Then let us watch these "little things,"
And so respect each other,
That not a word, or look, or tone,
May wound a friend or brother.

— Poets are born, but orators are made.

— He is our friend who helps us to one new thought, or who inspires us to one noble action.

— Time is so swift of foot, that being once past he can never be overtaken.

— Value the friendship of him who stands by you in the storm; swarms of insects will surround you in the sunshine.

— We may use the world; but if we delight in it, we break the love we should bear to Him that created it.

Art thou faithful? then oppose
Sin and wrong with all thy might;
Care not how the tempest blows,
Only care to do the right.

— Those who want no counsel, ought to be advised of their folly.

— No designing man can be a true friend.

"WHAT BOOK?"

The advocates of Scripture truth often find it impossible to make men believe the plain teachings of the Bible. Many have a convenient way of disposing of those passages which oppose their favorite theories. They say, "it don't mean so, it means thus and so." They never are at a loss to spiritualise any text to suit their convenience; therefore all argument with such is unavailing. They have chosen their position, and their wills are pledged to maintain it. An appeal to the literal teachings of "The Book" has no effect upon them. They are like some of their politicians I chanced to hear in conversation on the steamboat Burlington last fall.

For convenience, we will call them, A. and B., whigs, and R. democrat.

A. and B. were joking R. about his party, when he remarked, "There is nothing of the whig party any way."

"O yes," says A., "there is enough of us to elect now and then a representative, and now and then a President."

"Yes," say R., "but your party is so corrupt, if you do elect a President, the Almighty wont let him live."

A. replies, "There is another view which may be taken of that subject: it may be that he sees our Presidents are too good men to live in that sink of iniquity."

"Yes," responded B., "even Moses, though a good man, was not permitted to enter the promised land, but died after seeing it."

"No," says R., "he did't die."

"But," inquired B., "doesn't the Scripture say he died?"

"No, it says he was buried, and his grave was not found, but it don't say he died."

"Well," say A. B., "we think it says he died, but we will see."

They went to the cabin, and B. soon returned smiling, with the big Bible open before him. He says, "Well, friend R., it's a fine thing to always have the documents at hand." He presented him the Bible, with his finger on the following passage: "So Moses the servant of the Lord died there in the land of Moab, according to the word of the Lord." Deut. 34: 5.

R. read the passage, but remarked: "He did not die, he only died to the things of this world."

B. exclaimed, "Ha! ha! ha! I don't know what book to go after now." At that moment A. appeared and remarked, "Well, friend R., it is a fine thing to have the documents."

"But," says B., He got the start of me, he says he did'nt die; he only died to the things of this world, and I don't know how to meet that."

For the World's Crisis.

WHOSE BUSINESS IS IT?—No. 3.

We find men and women who are not brought up in tobacco smoke, nor accustomed to the fumes of that poison, of necessity, from the present associations of society, must come in contact with tobacco users, obliged to walk, ride, sit, stand, room, or sleep with them. This, in many cases, is a severe infliction. Many persons cannot endure the fumes of tobacco smoke, or the breath of a chewer. Their distress is such that they are obliged to leave the presence of one who smokes or chews the cud, at once. Whose business is it?

Chewers poison the atmosphere which God has prepared for all animal creation to breathe, and then spit the juice of the poison tobacco all about their seats and walks, polluting not only everything it touches, but leaving a stench to poison others. Whose business is it?

Smokers send up continual fumes of their incense, not only from their own altars dedicated to the tobacco god, smoke rooms, smoking cars, smoking sheds, and back grounds, but from almost all other places. The public roads, stage coaches, public stands, rooms, station houses, dining, sitting and sleeping rooms, parks, public gardens, and city streets, are literally, almost constantly, polluted, and the atmosphere filled with tobacco smoke, to sicken, distress and disgust many who have never learned to love it. Whose business is it?

But it does not stop here. Many are so devoted to this tobacco god, they take it to the places dedicated to the worship of "the true and living God." They "chew" in the hour of prayer, singing and preaching, and roll it about their mouths as a "sweet morsel." Smokers wait with more or less impatience and dissatisfaction until the religious services close, then with intrepid movements they frequently kindle a fire in their "censors," and burn a tobacco "offering" in the house of God, filling the temple with the abominable fumes, sickening and disgusting the more cleanly portions of the congregations, who hasten out into purer air. We have frequently seen this disgusting sight. Whose business is it?

This expensive waste, health-destroying, disease-generating, God-dishonoring, heart-sickening, air-poisoning, foul-smelling, unclean, uncomfortable, offensive habit, is fastening itself upon thousands and hundreds of thousands of young men, who might, but for this habit, be gentlemen, and who in other respects, for a time, are gentlemen, until tobacco produces its real effects. Whose business is it?

The effort is constantly made to popularize the use of tobacco, and the effect of it is to make our boys feel that they must use tobacco to become gentlemen. To this effort women, and even christians, give their influence. Whose business is it? I. C. WELLCOME.

DEACONESSES.—This order of trained women in Germany, take high rank as educators, mission-workers and nurses. The Mother Institution takes girls and educates them for teachers and nurses, cooks and laundresses, and then sends out colonies that are competent to equip fully a first-class female boarding-school or hospital. The order is required to dress in a plain uniform of blue, and are pledged to three years of gratuitous service. They have a most excellent female seminary at Smyrna, to which has been added a department for small boys, and an orphanage. The whole number of pupils sometimes reaches three hundred. The order owns the fine buildings they occupy, and the institution is now more than self-sustaining, as they reach many of the daughters of wealthy Greek and Armenian families. Daily religious services are held, and the essential truths of the Bible are taught, without denominational bias of any kind. A daily prayer-meeting is held by the teachers and employers of the institution. A noble and far-reaching work is thus being done for the women of the East. The order maintain hospitals at Beyrut, Alexandria and Constantinople. We have been very much interested in accounts of the heroic self-denying work of these women. We are debtors for these facts to Mrs. Dr. Van Lennep, a considerable portion of whose life has been spent as a missionary in the East.—Christian at Work.

GOOD TEMPER.—No trait of character is more valuable than the possession of good temper. Home can never be made happy without it. It is like flowers springing up in our pathway, reviving and cheering us. Kind words and looks are the outward demonstration: patience and forbearance are the sentinels within.

— Revenge is a momentary triumph, which is always immediately succeeded by remorse; while forgiveness, which is the noblest of all revenges, entails a perpetual pleasure.

Hygiene.

"This is for your Health."

WARM FEET.

But few are aware of the importance of keeping their feet warm. Previous to seven years since, we were much troubled with cold feet. This arose from three causes: (1.) A lack of physical exercise, when compared with the mental. (2.) For a want of proper clothing upon the feet. (3.) From keeping the feet too much at the fire, when in the house. Constant mental exercise, with little physical, causes the vital forces to leave the extremities and centre in the brain. In such cases, additional covering should be placed upon the feet. But if, instead of this, one keeps their feet at the stove, then nature does not make an effort to send extra warmth to the feet, because they are supplied with artificial warmth; when this course is pursued, the feet become cold immediately after leaving the fire.

After trying various remedies recommended for cold feet, we consulted Dr. Dio Lewis, of Boston, as to the best remedy. He replied: (1.) Bathe the feet every day, using soap. (2.) Change the stockings every day. (3.) Keep them away from the fire. (4.) Obtain about half a yard of firm carpeting, one yard wide, and sew into seams, about one inch apart, letting the seams run the shortest way of the cloth; then rub the bare feet, when cold, on this carpet with much earnestness. The first direction we had followed for years. The second we have not yet adopted. But the third and fourth we have followed rigidly, with the most happy results. We have not warmed our feet at the fire for the past six winters; and we have never before had so little trouble with them. Every winter we have less and less. We carry the piece of carpet in the winter; and in case our feet should be a little chilly at the hour of retiring, or any other time, we can soon warm them in a room without a fire, by rubbing them briskly on the seamed carpet. Of course, we could warm them quicker in a room of moderate temperature, than in one quite cold. When the feet are cold, we can warm them quicker on the carpet, than at the stove; and they remain warm much longer.

This mode of warming has another advantage over all other methods; the rubbing on the carpet generates electricity, which is imparted to the system, thus increasing its vital energies, and producing a healthy glow of feeling.

When we first adopted this system, our feet made some bitter complaints, because they could not be at the fire as before; but now it is far otherwise.

It is quite important for health that the feet should be positively warm. Many go with less clothing on their feet and legs than any other part of the covered portion of the body. This should not be allowed. We have very warm cloth boots made for winter use, lined with lambskin, and another thickness of buckram-like cloth between the lambskin and the outside cloth. We have the soles of the boots about half an inch thick, made of layers of cloth, or thin leather; and then take a pair of large rubbers, cut them down to within three fourths of an inch of the sole, and fasten them on the boot with rubber cement. With these on, we need no over-shoes. We have the boots made large, so that one or two pairs of cork soles may be used. When about to go out in a cold day, or to take a long ride, it is well to warm the boots, and take out the cork soles, and warm them well before starting. Such boots we have found to be a great luxury during the cold winter weather. They do not wet through by traveling in the snow as soon as leather boots. The snow slips off from the cloth, and the feet keep dry and warm. With these on, we can go out of a warm room in a cold day, into the midst of the snow, and hardly be conscious of any change in the feelings about our feet. On account of the porous nature of cloth, the feet do not sweat as when incased in tight leather boots. Water-proof boots, made so by water-proof blacking, are bad for the feet, because they retain the perspiration, and make the feet damp and chilly.

EDITOR.

SLEEP.

In "Talks to my Patients," Mrs. Gleason says under the head of "Hints to the Sleepless":—

"Those inclined to wakefulness will find a cold drip-sheet rubbing for a minute, or a towel bath before retiring, to prove a most happy and healthful anodyne. Cold foot baths for five minutes in the evening are also useful. If the head is hot and the feet cold, lie down and take a head bath at seventy degrees for five minutes, having the back of the head in the water and the feet in a hot foot bath at the same time. A wet napkin around the head will often suffice. A cool sitz bath for fifteen minutes, with a cold cloth to the head and the feet in hot water, equalizes the circulation and quiets the nervous system so as to induce sleep. A full bath at ninety-eight degrees, for twenty minutes or half an hour, has often cured the most obstinate cases of sleeplessness, provided the habits of the day were healthful. A brisk walk in the open air will often quiet the head and tire the body, so that sweet sleep will ensue. Then, too, let all subjects of thought, amusements, and employments for the evening be of a kind least exciting. Finally, 'Somnus lets her poppies fall most plentifully on those having a cool head, an empty stomach, tired muscles, a quiet conscience, and warm feet.'

"Jesus promises to give 'his beloved sleep'—sleep so sweet, that at the awakening there shall be no aching of the head or heart because of the labors, the sorrows, or the sins of our earthly days. Until then, let us each, in our small way, try to give to our beloved sleep, as the best solace for the past, the best source of strength for the future."

TWO PROMINENT causes of disease with us are tobacco and alcohol. The demand for these potent substances may be prompted to relieve the excitement and depression which have pervaded all grades of society for several years past. Arctic explorers affirm that tea or coffee will support the bodies of men under great or little fatigue infinitely beyond whisky, wine, or cider, and Dr. Douglison states in his work on Materia Medica that less than a dram of tobacco has proved fatal; yet the chewer, smoker, or dipper of snuff will use treble the quantity. If the youth of America need proof of the injurious effects either of tobacco or strong drink, let them turn to the statistics of hospitals for the insane and of incurables, and they will be amply satisfied; and if collegians, they will find from the last report of the Polytechnic School in Paris that the smokers in the various competitive examinations were far inferior to the non-smokers.—Ex.

☞ IF compelled to face a bitter cold wind, throw a silk handkerchief over the face; its agency is wonderful in modifying the cold.

SHOULDER BRACES.—Do not wear them. They do not answer the purpose for which they are intended, but are an absolute harm. They perform the work that should be accomplished by the muscles of the breast and back, and by so doing weaken instead of strengthening them. By the use of dumb bells, or the Indian clubs, you can easily overcome any disposition to "stoop shoulders," without the aid of worse than useless braces.—Ex.

☞ NEVER stand still a moment out of doors, especially at street corners, after having walked even a short distance

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

For the "Children's Corner."

FORGETFULNESS IN LITTLE FOLKS.

"Up! then, with speed and work,
Fling ease and self away;
This is no time for thee to sleep,
Up! work, watch, and pray."

Forget, do you, little folks? What? to eat, drink, sleep, gratify your appetite, live and breathe? How often we hear slack, slothful, slipshod, careless ones say, "O, I forgot." Whenever and wherever you hear this eke out, take it for granted some foot is out of joint, a spoke is out of some wheel.

"Look to the garden of your heart,
For weeds are growing there;
With faithful prayer act well your part,
It needs a constant care."

Do we ever hear a lively, sprightly, go-ahead, common sense, obedient, God-fearing boy or girl, dole out this sickly, wicked, "O, I forgot," by way of apology for disobedience?

"Oliver, did you carry that basket to the store?" "Oh, I forgot."

"Why did you not come directly home from school, Oliver, as I requested you?" "Oh, I forgot all about it."

"Why did you not study your Sabbath school lesson, Oliver?" "Oh, I forgot it entirely. Indeed, I forgot to bring my book home."

Thus, on every occasion of neglect and unfaithfulness, the excuse was, "I forgot." Did God forget? No! This forgetfulness showed his wicked heart—his disobedience.

"As a man thinketh, so is he." There is no excuse whatever for boys and girls thinking bad things, speaking bad things, or doing bad things. The Lord gives directions in his blessed word for thinking, speaking, and acting for little folks and great folks. Whenever we hear any of our juvenile friends say, "I forgot," or "I did n't think," we take it for granted that there is a weak spot, a worm at the root. "I did n't think," said a little boy to his mother, as she reproved him for using a bad word, for which she had corrected him before. Hundreds of little boys and girls, perhaps, have said the same thing. "I did n't think." But it is no trifle to do this without thinking; it is evidence of heedlessness, especially when children repeat the acts for which they have been rebuked. Just think of it, young friends; your father and mother forbid you to do a certain act, and yet you do it without thinking! So little regard you have for your parents' counsel, that you even forget their reproofs.

Suppose you grow up and become men and women, with this "I did n't think" habit really formed. What blunders would you make! What errors and sins would mar your character! Awful!

"He that thinketh good may do,
And God will help him thereunto;
For never was good work wrought,
Without beginning of good thought."

Young readers, do things quick; do things well for conscience' sake. Whatever father or mother says "do," haste to do it, quick as possible, cheerfully, up stairs or down stairs, in doors or out, in the kitchen or in the parlor, in the garden, the field, or in the workshop—off, off! in a twinkling—quick as a flash. Run, hop, skip, fly! in the way of obedience. Haste to do every good thing your little hands find to do, with your might; be sure, also, to do every thing in the best possible manner.

D. F. NEWTON.

HANDSOME IS THAT HANDSOME DOES.

The spider wears a plain brown dress,
And she is a steady spinner.
To see her, quiet as a mouse,
Going about her silver house,
You would never, never, never guess
The way she gets her dinner.

She looks as if no thought of ill
In all her life had stirred her;
But while she moves with careful tread,
And while she spins her silken thread,
She is planning, planning, planning still
The way to do some murder.

My child who reads this simple lay,
With eyes down-dropped and tender,
Remember, the old proverb says
That handsome is that handsome does,
And that worth does not go nor stay
For poverty nor splendor.

'Tis not the house and not the dress
That makes the saint or sinner.
To see the spider sit and spin,
Shut with her web of silver in,
You would never, never, never guess
The way she gets her dinner.

—Alice Cary.

☞ If a bee stings you, will you go to the hive and destroy it? Would not a thousand come upon you? If you receive a trifling injury, don't be anxious to avenge it; let it drop. It is wisdom to say little respecting the injuries you have received.

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance........................$2.50 a year.
Five copies six months to one address......$5.00.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies six months to one address.......$10.00.
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage in the United States on each single copy of the Crisis is 20 cts. a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.

Over all matters not intended for publication, write—PRIVATE.
Over all business matters, write—BUSINESS.
Over all articles for the paper, write—For the Crisis.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's NAME, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of NEW subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save much labor.
PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, please write PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.
☞ Put business matters and appointments on separate pieces of paper, or so that they can be detached without interfering with any other communication.
☞ All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the POST OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to either

MILES GRANT, or GEO. T. ADAMS,
BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly,
THE YOUNG PILGRIM:
An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.
TERMS.
PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Single copy, 30 cts. a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.
Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 25 cts. a year for each copy.
Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 20 cts. a year for each copy. [illegible]
To Canada subscribers at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 801. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 1, 1871. VOL. XXXII.—NO. 23.

The World's Crisis,
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, by the
ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY,
At No. 160 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass.
GEO. T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.
WILLIAM SHELDON, Corresponding Editor.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, L. BOUTELL,
JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
HOMER A. KING, H. V. DAVIS,
L. T. CUNNINGHAM, J. G. HAMBLIN,
H. H. DICKENSON.

The "Crisis" is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth: especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

DAILY WORK.

In the name of God advancing,
Sow thy seed at morning light;
Cheerily the furrows turning,
Labor on with all thy might.
Look not to the far-off future,
Do the work which nearest lies;
Sow thou must before thou reapest,
Rest at last is labor's prize.

Standing still is dangerous ever,
Toil is meant for Christians now;
Let there be when evening cometh,
Honest sweat upon thy brow;
And the Master shall come, smiling,
When work stops, at set of sun,
Saying, as he pays thy wages,
"Good and faithful man, well done."

For the World's Crisis.

ETERNITY OF EVIL.

This subject suggests a few thoughts towards that religious system which aims to exterminate sin in the present, but carefully collects and preserves it all in the future It is properly known as a "Theology of Evil." Inspiration reviews the conflict with evil in advance, inspects its battle ground from beginning to end, and confines its field of operations exclusively to this planet. Inspiration and science on this point are agreed; theology alone dares to dissent. Penetrate the boundless expanse of space, calculate the number of the stars, and the distances between them, and of all the countless bright orbs which like gems deck the sky, earth presents the only blot in the vast creation of God.

Can we presume that the great Author of Christianity, who so abhors evil that he has promised a new creation (Isaiah 65: 17) because sin has ruined the old, will appropriate a vast reservoir of space in the new, to eternally preserve that which he so utterly detests, and for which he is to destroy the old? Inspiration must solve its own problem, and we abide the decision. Sinners are the embodiment of sin. If they by nature possess an inherent, undying life principle, sin will triumph. If they are void of any such principle, sin will cease. We judge the fountain by the stream it sends forth; so we determine the nature of the race by their parentage.

Adam lost life through disobedience, and was driven from the tree of life, lest by eating thereof he should live forever. Gen. 3: 22, 23. He is now left like a dying, withered branch in the fatal road to death, and the words (Gen. 2: 17 margin)—"Dying thou shalt die," describe his journey back to dust again. Gen. 3: 19. While in this condition, with his existence limited, he begets his posterity. Can he impart to them an inherent, undying nature? If a branch severed from the tree can bud, blossom, put forth leaves, and bear fruit, such a thing might be. Both are utterly impossible; hence, the natural man is as destitute of inherent immortality as a cut-off branch is of life; and except another source of life be provided, must perish as a dead branch. This is easily understood, and, thank God, provision has been made. John 3: 16. "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him might not perish, but have everlasting life." Jesus makes the application (15: 5, 6)—"I am the Vine, ye are the branches. . . . If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered, and men gather them and cast them into the fire, and they are burned." As the vine (Jesus) lives forever, so all branches grafted into him will likewise live forever. But as all are cumbered with mortality, this union does not evade the loss of the present life, because mortality and immortality cannot be blended; hence, immortality is laid up for the believer until his resurrection. See Col. 4: 3, 4; 1 Cor. 15: 51–55. To the withered, dying branches the true Vine says (John 6: 53)—"Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you." Therefore all who are not joined to Christ the living vine, by faith, are cast off branches; and as such will be burned up root and branch at the harvest, which is the end of the world. See Matt. 13: 30, 39–42; Mal. 4: 1.

It may occur that this logic prevents the reliving of all dead natural branches. This might be, if God's power was confined to logic; but the past proves that natural laws and fixed principles are set aside whenever his decrees so require. The passage of the Red Sea, and the escape from the fiery furnace, are to the point. A case in hand is found (1 Kings 13: 4–6); and the same power that withered the hand of that ungodly monarch, and then revived the dead member, with his character unchanged, can revive the wicked dead for executive judgment. For He who can revive the dead member of a wicked man, can revive the entire man, or any number of such characters. John 5: 28, 29.

As the sinner is by nature a destructible being, the extinction of sin is a logical result. Civilized humanity enters a practical protest against sin and suffering; and, with humanity perfected by christianity, is it not strangely inconsistent that christians should preach and practice against both in the present, and earnestly advocate their eternal preservation in the future? Is it the work of the gospel to implant the heaven-born, God-like attributes of divinity in the human heart; convert the most malignant passions into a nursery of righteousness and holiness; transform hate to love, malice to good will, and then preserve the wicked amid blasphemies, curses and rage intermingled, in torture indescribable, agony unspeakable, roasting and writhing, yet never consumed; shrieking with thirst that can never be quenched; that the redeemed, who once prayed for wickedness to end, relieved the distressed and mourned over sin, may calmly gaze over the battlements of heaven, and with sacred joy lift their glad voices in thanksgiving and praise, that they are accounted worthy to witness this horror of horrors as poor sinners die the death that never dies? Can it be that God holds out as his ultimatum to man, the choice between singing loud hallelujahs to drown the piercing cries of the damned to all eternity, or in excruciating suffering to forever shriek their chorus of despair? Strange Christianity this! To wave its banner of love o'er a lost world, full of mercy and pity for poor heathen and all, and then transform itself into such a hideous, woe-begotten monstrosity in the future!

Tell a heathen who exercises malice and hate without restraint, that Christianity will lead him to love his enemies, do good to those that hate him, pity the distressed and relieve their wants; relate the marvelous change in your own case, and having done this, kindly unfold the future; tell him when he dies he will be transferred beyond the bounds of time and space, and set down in sight of more torment and misery in one hour than this world ever saw;—would it be strange if the privilege of beholding the constantly increasing horrors of evil, magnified to infinitude, proved insufficient to induce him to believe a gospel which, for its finality, makes an eternity of evil indispensable to an eternity of holiness? Is it a wonder that infidelity shoots out here? Can men with a good degree of natural affection consent to its manipulation by theology, till they subscribe to a theory for which every sane person is only thankful they are neither heathenish nor barbarous enough to practice?

Ponder well the conclusion. A scheme of redemption graciously devised to conquer and destroy sin, and as the result an infinite amount of the evil left, exceeding beyond calculation the amount in existence when its work began. The catacombs of theology have been disquieted by this question for long ages. Material has from time to time been collecting for a vast theological pit capable of holding all the evil in the universe, to be finally located beyond the bounds of space, and there (where?) preserved forever. The location is well chosen, but theology has been unable to carry out the programme to its own or any one's else satisfaction. Wise and good men, whom the work of grace has caused to overcome and destroy sin all their lives long, have been vexed and puzzled with their theory, which finally sets in motion all the machinery of evil, backed by infinite power, to turn out new styles of matchless horror to all eternity. Such is the everlasting support of a "theology of evil." We are constrained to cry—"O theology! thou art beside thyself; much learning doth make thee mad."

Theology claims that eternal death, or total loss of being, is too trifling a punishment for sin. It has a "gate" called death, only a passway to "endless joy"; and its experience with that (though a trivial affair) may beget a conclusion; as trifles sometimes lead to grand results. A loud call brings a believer to the gate, when friends of like precious faith exhaust medicine, and pray earnestly and desperately to prevent an entrance.

"'Tis but the voice that Jesus sends,
To call them to his arms";

but the sweet voice and extended arms, shining gate and endless joy, are overmatched by homeopathy, when the candidate for that blissful abode is congratulated on his escape, and to a restoration to a life of pain and sorrow. Inconsistent yet sensible conclusion. Theology slaughtered in the house of its friends. It sings well at a safe distance from the gate, but is sensible only at its threshold. We conclude that if it will sacrifice both endless joy and itself for the first gate, the second (death) will hush its melody, and silence it forever.

Another branch of theology, to avoid its neighbor's awful conclusion, attempts to save all men unconditionally. But Deity has fixed the terms, and made salvation attainable only on strict compliance with the conditions. Faith and repentance are essential, and limited exclusively to this life. There is no change of character after death, therefore all who die in their sins remain sinners. If then they are saved, they must be reckoned as satanic pets who, like ungovernable children, are to be forever cajoled, to prevent a rupture in the divine government; while sin becomes the dictator of God, overrides his authority, and secures all the privileges of obedience. As the theory admits of no stand-still, if those who die in their sins are saved, sin is promoted; and, by the unending law of progression, must ultimately subvert the divine authority itself. Thus, while attempting to shun its neighbor's highway to misery and horror, it falls into a pit of its own theological digging, and buries itself. One employs infinite power to forever torment sinners; the other uses the same means to forever coax them to keep quiet. As neither removes the difficulty, both are patent methods for preserving evil.

Sin had a beginning, and is to have an end, therefore is finite. The devil sinned from the beginning, and the Son of God was manifested to destroy both him and his works (1 John 3: 8; Heb. 2: 14); and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death. James 1: 15. Divinity and Christianity both rejoice that it is so; but theology, bewildered and confused, maintains the opposite. It allows the Bible to be standard authority in settling this question, but is so demoralized by the operation, that it is compelled to assume authority, and make the Bible its dependent.

Refusing the assumption, we appeal to the record. 1 John 3: 8,—"He that committeth sin is of the devil; for the devil sinneth from the beginning. For this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil." Heb. 2: 14,—"Forasmuch, then, as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he also himself likewise took part of the same, that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil." James 1: 15,—"Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin; and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death." Gal. 6: 8,—"He that soweth to the flesh, shall of the flesh reap corruption"; and (2 Pet. 2: 12), "They shall utterly perish in their own corruption." Psalm 145: 20,—"The Lord preserveth all them that love him, but all the wicked will he destroy." Ps. 37: 20,—"The wicked shall perish, and the enemies of the Lord shall be as the fat of lambs; they shall consume, into smoke shall they consume away." Rom. 6: 23,—"For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord." Thus the divine arrangement mercifully and justly disposes of the ungodly, according to the words of the Master. John 15: 6.

As in the past mercy and justice have characterized all God's dealings with man, so in the future he changes not. His judgments have always been sudden, effectual, and complete. The antediluvians, Sodomites, Korah and his company, and Pharaoh and his host, are examples. With such precedents, coupled with the final, sudden and utter overthrow of all the ungodly at the day of judgment, predicted in clear and decisive terms, the extermination of evil becomes a fixed fact. The punishment for sin is death, not torment. Theology finds it difficult to believe that eternal death can be an eternal punishment, and objects to the destruction of sinners on the ground that extinction of being is incompatible with everlasting punishment. We know not the value of life till threatened with its loss; then our efforts to save it prove our estimate of its worth. Any loss that man may suffer for crime is a punishment for that crime. Life is a blessing. If man commits a crime which deprives him of that blessing, the loss is his punishment; and human as well as divine government recognizes it as the highest known. And why? Simply because life commands a higher price than anything else. As gold is the standard that regulates the price current, so life is the standard that determines the character of punishment; which by human government is graded to suit the nature of the crime; and is heightened just in proportion as it interferes with the enjoyment of life; its total loss being the extreme limit. The length of punishment is computed from the time the loss is experienced till that loss is gained again; if, however, the loss is never gained, it becomes an eternal loss or punishment. Hence, if endless life is the highest conceivable gift to man, the utter and eternal extinction of being is the greatest possible loss; and the greatest loss is the greatest punishment when inflicted for crime.

Eternal or unquenchable fire is to be the element of destruction. Eternal fire turned Sodom and Gomorrha into ashes, and made them an ensample to those that after should live ungodly. Jude 7, 2 Pet. 2: 6. So when the elements shall melt with fervent heat (2 Pet. 3: 7, 10), sin and sinners, like their predecessors, will be reduced to a smoking pile, and become ashes under the soles of the righteous' feet. Mal. 4: 1–3; Luke 17: 29, 30. The duration of the effect qualifies the duration of the cause; and the fire is called eternal, not because it burns forever, but because the chaff are destroyed forever, as the effect. Matt. 3: 12. The chaff (wicked) are to be burned up with unquenchable fire, which is the strongest possible symbol of utter destruction. To illustrate: A house takes fire. Quench the flames, and a portion of the building is saved. Fail to do this, and the house burns up because the fire is unquenchable.

As man wisely provides against the spread of contagion, so God has fixed the bounds of sin, and confined it to this earth. Evil then will disappear, and the blot of creation become its attractive adorning. To remove the stain and elevate earth to its proper sphere, is the object of Divinity in the redemptive scheme. Though intrenched in its camp on its chosen battle-ground, sin will be finished, and death destroyed. Prov. 11: 31,—"Behold, the righteous shall be recompensed in the earth; much more the wicked and the sinner." Joyous anticipation, fully assured! Why mar another with so fearful a blight? See the present (Rom. 8: 22, 23), groaning and sighing, quaking and trembling, 'neath mountain-like billows of sin. See nations o'erwhelmed with distress, as fearful sights and leprous spots in the heavens above baffle the wise in their wisdom, and denote the unrest of a dying creation in her struggles to shake off the coils of sin. Glorious thought! Quickly put off thy sin-stained vesture, tattered and torn, and be robed in spotless adorning, gloriously put on. Thy disease then removed, and death swallowed up and destroyed of itself, listen to thy future (Isa. 65: 17),—"Behold, I create new heavens, and a new earth; and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind"; and (Rev. 21: 4),—"There shall be no more death, for the former things are passed away." Blissful expectation!

But, says theology, this will not do. Should death pass away, I must go too. Leave me my death which never, never dies. I'll always be dying, but never will die. No more death—can it be? And must my gate be swept away? How can I pass the bounds of space without my gate? All hope is lost. We assign theology the chief place on the list of articles we are not likely to covet.

The expiring moments of time, laden with sin's direst abominations, like the delayed funeral cortege, drag heavily along; while deception and fraud, envy and strife, hatred and wrath, the satanic pall-bearers to a world's funeral, complete their vile work, when all will be hushed forever.

Their wages to the wicked will then be given, when, in bridal array, creation anew appears without sin. Then (Rev. 5: 13) "every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them, heard I saying, Blessing, and honor, and glory, and power, be unto Him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb, forever and ever." Glorious consummation! ('Tis well that theology conveys its never-dying, wretched throng beyond the bounds of space; otherwise they would be included here.) The morning dawns, whose sun once risen knows no setting; its rays touch no sin-polluted spot, and a cloudless sky echoes no sinful note. It is the new order of things. Mar not its beauty, retain not the blight which for sixty centuries cursed the old. Divinity designed, and humanity desires, that the new forever remain new; and the new responds a universal amen. The blot of the past has now disappeared, and all things new, from sin set free, strike the high anthem melodious and sweet. The angelic host join in the song, till their voices are hushed as the chorus is reached—"Thou art worthy; for thy blood hath redeemed us from all sin." Saved ones alone its power can acclaim; redeemed ones alone the chorus will sing—"Redeemed." Precious word.

Sinner! thou hast need of this. For thee it was provided, and thou mayst chant it when angels are silent. Do you feel a desire such glory to reach? Bring not thy choice righteousness—filthy rags at best, but come as you are, without one plea, to Christ your righteousness, Christ your salvation, Christ your eternal redemption. Sin is thy disease. It must be removed, or with it thou must perish eternally lost. No spot in the new where sinners can live; no place in the wide universe where sin can be found. Wilt thou neglect salvation? Death is reserved for thee. It will be thy wages. Thus saith the Word. The end is at hand, and judgment sure o'er thy head impends. To Jesus now flee, and and escape for thy life. O. D. WOODRUFF.

Southington, Ct., Feb., 1871.

For the World's Crisis.

ENDURANCE OF THE SAINTS.

"But he that endureth unto the end, the same shall be saved."

What a glorious, heart-cheering promise is this, that fell from the lips of our divine Master, to his inquiring disciples who were ever ready to hear and embrace the truth! How applicable is this expression of Christ to the humble child of God in our time. Christ knew what trials, temptations, and persecutions his followers would be called to pass through, in their pilgrimage through this evil world to the celestial city of our God—the new Jerusalem—the promised inheritance to all those who love his appearing. The people of God have ever been a persecuted people in all ages of the world. The doctrine, which was promulgated by Christ, embraced and published to the world by his disciples, was an unwelcome message to a great part of the world in their time, and has ever been from that time to the present, and probably will be to a majority of the world's inhabitants down to the end of time. It is an unpopular doctrine at the present time. The Jews hated Christ in their time, and why should his followers expect to escape the hatred of the world?

The promise of Christ was designed for those who had already embraced his doctrine, or should receive it in the future. Saint Paul says, "They that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution." The truths of the Christian religion are antagonistic to the ways and customs of the world. The wicked are constantly reproved of their ungodly deeds by the example of all true christians, and are therefore in a state of disquietude. They will endeavor to injure the true child of God in every possible way that their imagination can devise, and will leave no means untried to hinder his advancement in the divine life, and allure him into the paths of sin. They are always ready to censure and deride him, and also to heap upon him the most opprobrious language in their power.

But the christian is required to bear the reproaches that are heaped upon him by the ungodly in consequence of his attachment to Christ, in a spirit of love, desiring at the same time their highest good in this life, and their eternal salvation in the world to come; ever remembering the blessed promise: "Blessed are ye when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely for my sake. Rejoice and be exceeding glad; for great is your reward in heaven; for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you."

In addition to the obstacles thrown in his way by the world, he has an inherent evil nature to contend with, and is, therefore, inclined to do evil, notwithstanding he has received the Holy Spirit, and is a child of God. This appears to have been the experience of the apostle Paul, when he uses the following language: "The good I would, I do not; but the evil which I would not, that do I." So we may infer that there is, and ever will be, in this world of sin, a constant warfare between the renewed man and his depraved nature, as well as between himself and the world. But we are not called upon to engage in this warfare in our own strength; for we have the aid of the divine Spirit, which will enable us to surmount all obstacles, external or internal.

O, despondent christian, take courage! If we go back into the world, eternal death will stare us in the face; but should we continue in the cause of Christ, eternal life with all its glories will be our reward. Let us not give up the struggle while so glorious a promise is before us: "He that endureth unto the end, the same shall be saved." No endurance short of life itself will answer, if we wish to be saved in the everlasting kingdom of God. There shall we receive the crown of life, and enjoy the presence of our immortal King forever. T. W. G.

Haverhill, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

LOVE TO JESUS.—No. 1.

"We love Him, because he first loved us."

"We love Him!" What words of assurance are here breathed by the loving Paul concerning himself and brethren. There is not here the whisper of a fear, the breath of a doubt, or a ripple of uncertainty. How positively the apostle speaks; with what holy confidence. "We love Him"; it is a certainty, a verity, a fact. Nor quivers the lip as though it was speaking a something of which the heart was not fully assured; nor lingered the words on his tongue, as a sign that he was asserting too great things of himself and the children whom he had begotten in Christ through the gospel.

And how many since Paul's time have been able to affirm the same glorious fact. I am thinking of the times of the early Methodists, when hearts were all aglow with love to the infinitely-generous Jesus, and tongues woke music in an instant at the sound of his name; as a spark spreads fire among tinder, so the mention of the saving name of Jesus lit up in the disciples a cheerful and inextinguishable fire. Then eyes gleamed with a beautiful light as the Sun of Righteousness shed his beauty and love into their souls. Many of us may have read the history of these holy men of God. We have become familiarized with their characters and experience as of the faithful in Christ, by the records of those who have long since been gathered into the one great bed of the dead. We have "Marked the footsteps that they trod,"

and have come to the conclusion that they were men whose whole hearts were stedfastly set to do and suffer the will of God as far as they had learned it. We can look in upon them with the eyes of our minds, and see them gathered closely together in the barn and the kitchen, and with full hearts and eyes streaming tears of joy, singing with all the heartiness of truth, and the gusto of zeal, if not with the curves and flourishes of our degenerate age. Hark! hark! to the refrain of their hymn—

"I love Jesus: alleluia!
I love Jesus: yes, I do; I do;
I love Jesus: he's my Savior;
Jesus smiles, and loves me too."

Their melody vibrates from the same key of attachment which the beloved Paul had touched before them; love to Jesus is the burden of their "spiritual songs." And as the minister, who labored himself to be accepted of Christ, whether present or absent, rose in the desk to speak to his brethren the word of the Lord—as he became all absorbed with the love of Christ—subdued in spirit, by tracing the loving kindness of the Lord, and mollified his hearers, assuaging the hardness that was in them, and breaking them sweetly into tenderness, he could reiterate the saying, "We love Him"—the emphasis rolling deeply out of his soul the while, and making his statement most irresistible and convincing. Thus were their words stamped, graved, chiseled into the hearts of those who heard; for who could doubt the assurance of these men so much in earnest, so absolutely real?

But where can we hear such assurance now? How different this language to that uttered by many professors of this day. How rarely are our ears refreshed with such words of faith. And what preacher of the gospel, even if he felt he could say of himself, "I love the Lord," would take the responsibility on him, seeing such formality and coldness have taken up their residence in the hearts of the professed followers of Jesus,—how many would be justified in their own conscience to say collectively, even to what are called their christian hearers, "We love Him"? Alas! alas! instead of improvement in the church since the days of the apostles, or even since the days of the reformers, as is so often and falsely asserted, it has been shorn of its locks of faith and assurance, and the Samson of which we speak is to be found at this hour a prisoner in the temple of doubt and fear, mocked by the sins which have been fostered, and which have wrought serious injury to it. What is to-day called "the Church" is like an army which has been continually beaten and driven before the enemy. So it has fallen back. In David's time it held the vantage ground of blessed consciousness of love to God, and that captain of the Lord's host could say with the voice of song, to the strains of his renowned harp, "I love the Lord." In Paul's day it more than held its own; the battle went signally in favor of the church, and that leader of the war-worn army could boldly declare with the men of his division, to heaven, earth, and the deep, "We love Him," the "Him" referring to the Captain of their salvation.

But the love of the church very sensibly assuaged for centuries. Ever and anon it would emerge into the clear horizon from the hiding of the clouds, till we come down to Wesley and Whitefield's time. These men, in the strength of God, preached with the power of grace and truth, and the disordered ranks began to reform. At the time of this re-organization, the warriors of the cross could sing such sentiments as are embodied in the following verse—

"My Jesus, I love thee, I know thou art mine;
For thee all the pleasures of sin I resign;
My gracious Redeemer and Savior art thou,
If ever I loved thee, my Jesus, 'tis now."

But we are now painfully sensible that the "confession" is changing. Men and women of the various religious societies, instead of being able to take such a confident, free, and straightforward stand; instead of being able to testify truly, from the bottom of their souls, without any "a-hem's," "We love Him," are heard uttering the most miserable dolors of uncertainty; and the feeling of the masses of professing Christendom is most aptly expressed in the appended stanza—

"'Tis a point I long to know,
Oft it causes anxious thought—
Do I love the Lord? or no?
Am I his? or am I not?

And in our public assemblies for the worship of God, we hear such unsatisfactory statements as—"I hope I love Jesus." There is but little certainty, little faith. The witnessing is fitful, killing, and distressing to the disciple taught of God. Is the reader one of the characters my pen has sketched? If so, let him learn to be so much for the Lord, so completely his, so much enamored of him, as to be able to say "I love Him," and not only "I hope so."

Bless God, however, there is yet a little remnant left who have the apostolic and primitive assurance, and can sincerely say, "We love Him." O that their numbers were swollen as the risen tide! Among that "little flock" are we found? O let us answer in simplicity and truth, in the presence of our Savior, "Yes, or No. Yes; praised be God! there are yet a few who can answer to the question of Jesus with respect to worldly possessions, their own desires, and ungodly company, "Lovest thou Me more than these?"—"Yea, Lord, thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I love thee."

The persons spoken of by the apostle as loving the Lord were not some persons of whom he had heard, or who lived in some distant part. He is not talking to his audience of some one else distinct from themselves. His statement is not with reference to a third person or persons. He is not narrating that there was a certain class of men living in a town he had visited who have an affectionate regard to one whose name was Jesus. That is how the world talks. It speaks not of itself, but of others; and it hath been constrained to say, "See how these christians love one another." Not so with the apostle. He talks of himself and his brethren; says something about them. His words are pre-eminently personal and relative. Personal—"I love Him." Relative—"You love Him." This in a spirit of unity he expresses in one word. He binds himself with them into one bundle of love in that little word "We," and says—"We love Him." And how well he must have known the disciples, to have been so positive in his assertion! Paul would not have hazarded a misstatement. His words were a great matter with him. The solemn sight of the Judge was in his mind in the scenery of the future, and there stood Paul at the judgment seat. And in such a position it was his endeavor to keep a conscience void of offense. Doubtless, therefore, his words were well weighed before they were spoken, and when spoken were uttered with the greatest deliberation and care. But says he, "We love Him." Blessed, united love!

Then he must have been fully persuaded in his own mind that he was speaking the truth. Spake he not these words with conscience? Yea, verily, he had a consciousness of love to the Lord. Love is a felt thing. It is the product or fruit of some thing or being. We feel its motions in our inward parts. It is a vital something inside of us, and full of sensation; it operates throughout the whole body; it enters the blood; it circulates through our veins; it quickens our flesh; it dwells in our hearts; it looks into our eyes; it speaks from our mouths. We can experience the propelling and constraining power of this secret influence. O what is like love—so inclining, so cementing! And Paul was a man with a great heart. This is seen from 1 Thess. 1, where he speaks of the gentleness and largeness of his affections. And if ever man felt a flow of soul to any living being, the apostle did to Christ. His heart beat quick to him. His bosom swelled toward him, his soul was sweetly drawn to him. He was affectionately desirous of Christ. This Jesus had revealed himself directly, and by his grace had captivated his body, soul, and spirit. He was Jesus Christ's attached friend, and as a practical man and an apostle, he could discern the same love to the very same Jesus in his brethren. He could see the outward evidences of the inward grace. Those prayers which he had heard—O how they breathed love when they agonized, "Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly." Those songs uttered in praise of the person, the work, and the words of their Beloved—they were too hearty to be the mere mechanical workings of indifferent minds. They had come from the home of the affections; they looked like love; they felt to the handling of his feeling as love; his enlightened eyes perceived them to be loving words from loving hearts, as out of the abundance of the heart the mouths of the early christians spake words of energy, life, and fire.

Surely, then, with such manifestations, the apostle was justified in saying, "We love Him." But where testimony for Jesus has to be pumped out of men; where professed christians have to be exhorted half-a-dozen times in one meeting to take up the time; where they have almost to be begged to speak in the interest of their Master; where they are so tardy in praying, that the congregation have in the intervals of engagement nearly time to get into a sound sleep; where, when men do speak, they appear like pumps with dry, shrunk suckers, and can bring out no living water; where they appear to have as little truth in them as a run-down well has water in a season of drought; where, when they speak they always say the same words, and those in the most labored and insincere way; where all is lethargy in the church, and no groans are heard in prayer; where the shades of death and the coldness of indifference are plainly observable;—how can he who preaches, if alive to his own accountability and amenability to God, stand up and say to his hearers, before the Deity who can see below the surface of our words—"We love Him"?

But the apostle could make this statement on the strength of other facts. Jesus had said, "If ye love me, keep my commandments." And here they were all keeping the commandments of the Lord Jesus. They were searching for his footprints, that they might follow him. They had heard his voice saying, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me." Time was when they first would go after Jesus. So they believed in him as the Scriptures of truth directed. They were baptized into his name, and admitted into the company of his most holy church, both catholic and apostolic. This separated them from their homes and friends; and now they were suffering for Christ's sake, bearing their cross daily. They moreover were laboring to support the weak and "comfort the feeble-minded." They were doing good like Jesus, because Jesus commanded them, and they loved him. O the sacrifices which love prompted them to make in those days. Truly they might have adopted the words of the Psalmist—"I will freely sacrifice unto thee; I will praise thy name, O Lord; for it is good." And all this out of love to Christ. His great sacrifice for them (for "He made his soul an offering for sin") was the root of it all—was the reason why they loved him. They had renounced their old religions; they had formally and openly accepted the cross of Jesus; they had taken upon them the disgrace which association with the name of Jesus entailed; they had left their kindred and become one fraternity with the brethren of Jesus; they had become poor men for Christ's sake and the gospel's; they had become sojourners in the world for a better one; they had courted persecution and death for Christ's sake. And why all this? Let the apostle answer: "We love Him." That was the sum and substance of the whole. So that, looking upon such a self-sacrificing company who "counted not their own lives dear unto them, that they might win Christ and be found in him," he had the persuasion that they loved Christ.

Are there any who love Jesus in this day as these disciples did? But "the days are different," and "we have not the same afflictions as the disciples once had to endure." True; but, believe me, "they who will live godly in Christ Jesus must suffer persecution" still. There are many errors in doctrine to be resisted, and many errors in life to be fought, and many opportunities of doing good to those who seek them out. What marks do you bear to prove that you love Jesus? What sorrows and privations are you wading through because Christ commands and you love him? Where are the poor whose homes you make pleasant with gifts of love in Christ's name? How are you fulfilling His will as God's almoner?

"We love HIM"! Paul and his associates loved HIM. The real, personal Christ was the object of their love. They might have loved the holy principle by which he had been governed, which, resolved into practice, exhibited to us a righteous being with a stainless character. The ancients loved purity. They practised all kinds of austerities to attain it. They lived in the meanest places, on the poorest food, in the most abject poverty, and away from the common herd of men, that they might escape the vices of the world. But here is Jesus. He did nothing of the kind; but lived among men, and never failed. They might have loved his virtue, and the Holy Spirit the cause of it. They might also have loved his wisdom. The one ambition of many in Christ's day was to find out what was truth. So they might have loved the truth and wisdom which proceeded from him, and many things in him, about him, and belonging to him: but no, no, no. "We love Him," says the apostle. A living, personal Christ, first, chiefest. Christ is all. As the poet says—

"The bride eyes not her garments,
But her dear bridegroom's face;
I will not gaze on glory,
But on my King of grace:
Not on the crown he giveth,
But on his pierced hand:
Not e'en where glory dwelleth
In Immanuel's land."

The true lover will love his lady for herself alone, not for what belongs to her; and a true follower of Jesus will see intrinsic value in Jesus to love him for. "We love Him"—that is our object. He who lived and died for us. He who rose and ascended for us. He who comes again to receive us to himself. He who sits to-day at the right hand of God. It is He whom our souls love. And yet—

"O, thou lovely, lovely Jesus,
Though thou art precious unto me,
Thousands in thy blessed person
Form nor comeliness can see."

And thou, Lord, knowest if the reader be one of the number. If so, apply eye-salve to the dark, benighted eyes of the mind, and let the understanding be opened to see Thee. Make thy word forcible to his conversion, and thine shall be the praise, world without end. Amen.

No. Scituate, R. I. W. KELLAWAY.

☞ The great Earl of Chatham once went with a pious friend to hear Cecil. The sermon was on the Spirit's agency in the hearts of believers. As they were returning home, the mighty statesman confessed that he could not understand it at all, and asked his friend if he supposed there was any one in the house who could. "Why, yes," said he, "there were many pious, unlettered women, and some children there, who understood every word of it, and heard it with joy."

— Where flatterers bear rule, things come to ruin.

THE WORLD'S CRISIS.

LIBERAL OFFERS FOR 1871.

VALUABLE PRESENTS!

The Best Sewing Machine,
The Best Illustrated Dictionary,
The Best Books, and
The Best S. S. Paper,
GIVEN AWAY!

FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS,
TILL THE FIRST OF JUNE.

We would, if possible, double our present circulation during the current year. It can be done, if every one will help, and do all they can. To encourage our friends everywhere to make an earnest and persistent effort, we offer the following valuable presents to all who shall obtain new subscribers for

The World's Crisis

till the 1st of June.

☞ Here is a good opportunity for every one to secure a desirable gift for nothing but a little effort in your own neighborhood or field of labor.

A PRESENT FOR ALL.

For every wife, mother, daughter, or widow, a superior Sewing Machine, saving many hours of weary toil in the family, and adding to the means of livelihood.

For every minister, Bible student, or general reader, the best Illustrated Dictionary, Bible Dictionary, Concordance, Hymn Book, or other valuable religious, theological, or hygienic work.

For the children of our Sunday Schools and churches, any number of copies of The Young Pilgrim for one year, to cheer them in their pilgrimage, and help them on their way to the kingdom of heaven.

Look over the list, dear friends, and see what you want. Then go out among your neighbors, friends, kindred, acquaintances and strangers, and try what you can do. When you have done all that you can, then order from us your choice of any one of the following

PREMIUMS FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

For 2 New Subscribers, with $5, A $1 PREMIUM.

1. Hymns of Jubilee Harp, cloth; and Pilgrim Praises.
2. Fables of Infidelity, and Facts of Faith.
3. Stories for Young Pilgrims, vols. I. and II.
4. Two copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
5. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
6. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and Bible Text-Book.

For 3 New Subscribers, with $7.50, A $1.50 PREMIUM.

1. Jubilee Harp, full gilt, extra cloth, leather back.
2. Immortality, by James H. Whitmore; and Tracts.
3. Health by Good Living, by W. W. Hall, M.D.
4. Plan of Redemption; and Nature of Man.
5. The Broken Seal; an Exposure of Freemasonry.
6. Talks about People's Stomachs, by Dr. Dio Lewis.
7. Three copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
8. Two copies "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
9. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and any $1 premium.

For 4 New Subscribers, with $10, A $2 PREMIUM.

1. Dictionary of the Holy Bible, with 4 Maps and 100 Engravings; and Grant's "Nature of Man."
2. Cruden's Condensed Concordance, and Sheldon's "Futurity."
3. Bayne's Casket and Repository; Scriptures classified by Subjects.
4. Muller's Life of Trust; Effects of Prayer and Faith.
5. Four copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
6. Three copies "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
7. Two copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1 premium.
8. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and any $1.50 premium.

For 5 New Subscribers, with $12.50, A $2.50 PREMIUM.

1. Synchronology; or, the Principal Events in Sacred and Profane History, from the Creation of Man to the Present Time.
2. Credibility of the Scriptures, in two volumes; a recast of the former work, by J. H. McCulloh; and Bible Text-Book.
3. English Reference Bible.
4. Five copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
5. Four copies "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
6. Three copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1 premium.
7. Two copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1.50 premium.
8. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and any $2 premium.

For 10 New Subscribers, with $25, A $6 PREMIUM.

1. Webster's National Pictorial Dictionary, 1,040 pages, octavo, and 600 Engravings, price, $6; or, the "Unabridged" (below) for $4 extra.
2. Fifteen copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
3. Seven copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $2.50 premium.

For 15 New Subscribers, with $37.50, A $12 PREMIUM.

1. Webster's Illustrated Unabridged Dictionary, 1,840 pages, quarto, and 3,000 Engravings, price, $12. The best dictionary extant.
2. Thirty copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
3. Webster's Pictorial Dictionary ($6), and fifteen copies "Young Pilgrim."

For 40 New Subscribers, with $100, A $55 PREMIUM.

A Grover and Baker Sewing Machine, first class in every respect, with hemmer and attachments; one of the best, if not the very best, in the market. These machines make "the Grover and Baker stitch," which is considered the best for family use, and "the shuttle-stitch." Please state which is wanted.

Things to be Remembered.

In raising your list—the names may be obtained from as many different places as you please, and the papers will be mailed by us to each separate address.

Subscriptions may be taken for the year, with $2.50 each; or double the number for six months, with $1.25 each; or any number for both periods, which, with $1.25 and $2.50 each, shall make up the requisite amount.

Keep a list yourself of all names and monies obtained by you and forwarded to us, with the date when sent.

In sending to us—put the list always on a sheet by itself. If, at the same time, you write on other matters, or remit for old subscribers, put that on a separate sheet.

Write each name plainly, with its Post-office, County, and State, and amount paid, all on one line by itself, in that order; and, at the bottom, give the whole amount of premium monies sent, with your own name and full address.

Names sent "for a premium," should, in all cases, be so marked when sent. No name should be sent without the money.

All names and monies can be forwarded at once, or from week to week, as fast as you get them, until the 1st of June.

Any one aiming for a higher premium, and failing to get the full number of names and amount, can pay the balance in cash, and so get the premium; or he can order some other premium on the list corresponding to the amount obtained.

When you have got all the names you can, and want your premium, send us a full list of all the names, addresses, and monies you have sent, so that you may compare them with our books; then we will send you whatever premium you may select from the catalogue—the Sewing Machines and Webster's Dictionaries by express, at the expense of the receiver, and the other books by mail, postpaid.

Monies, if under $2.00, may be sent by letter at our risk. If a larger sum, and under $25, send a Post-Office Money Order, or Registered Letter. If $25 or more, send a Bank Draft, or money Order, payable to the order of Geo. T. Adams, Boston, Mass. All sums of $2.50 and over, sent in any other way than above directed, will be at the sender's risk.

All letters and remittances for premiums should be addressed to the Business Agent, undersigned, or, if more convenient, they may be enclosed in letters to the Editor, Miles Grant, Boston, Mass.

And now, dear brethren and sisters everywhere, from Maine to California, and from the Lakes to the Gulf, put your hearts and hands to the good work, and a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull all together! and the blessing of the Lord be with you!

GEO. T. ADAMS, Business Agent,
Advent Chris. Publication Society.

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, March 1, 1871.

☞ Please Remember!

☞ All remittances to this office, in the form of Drafts, Bank Checks, and Postal Money-Orders, should be made payable to the Business Agent, GEO. T. ADAMS.

☞ Take Notice!

☞ All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable in Advance, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

MEETINGS IN CALIFORNIA.

We have only good news to report from San Francisco. Our meetings continue to increase in interest and power. The Lord is doing a great work in this wicked city. Several bold infidels have been converted, and many others are convinced the Bible is true. We commenced meetings in the Minna street church, Jan. 30th, and have continued them till the present time, Feb. 15th: excepting the eight evenings when we were at Dashaway Hall, engaged in the discussion with Mr. Loveland; and seven evenings at the Music Hall. We have had two meetings a day, with some four or five exceptions. The circle of the revival interest is continually widening, and has taken hold of the hearts of many strong men, who hold prominent positions in society. Like Agrippa, they are almost persuaded to be christians. We have much faith to believe that they will yield to the kind invitation of the Savior, and thus secure eternal life.

The Lord is pouring out his Spirit in a wonderful manner. Our meetings are the common topic of conversation in hotels, stores, shops, streets, and dwellings. Of course, all sorts of rumors are afloat,—some good, some bad, and very far from the truth. The enemy is becoming quite aroused, especially in the form of Spiritualism, and cold-hearted sectarianism; but the work goes steadily on in spite of all opposition. We have found Bro. A. M. Bailey, the pastor of the Minna street church, one of the truest christian men we ever knew. His eye is single to the glory of the Lord. If he ever had any sectarianism, it is all gone. His only object is to get men ready for the coming of Christ. Although he does not yet see just as we do in all points of doctrine, he does not oppose us in the least. Our hearts are knit together like those of David and Jonathan. We would like to keep together till Jesus comes. He stands up for a pure religion and no other. He has no sympathy with the worldly-minded religion of these last days. He is on the highway of holiness, where there is no conformity to the world, or its foolish fashions.

The Lord has raised up here a number of very bright converts; some of whom already feel inclined to go forth to the world and proclaim the glad tidings that Jesus is soon coming. One Swede feels anxious to return to his native land, and publish the glad tidings there that the King of kings is about to set up his kingdom. An Englishman, who is a missionary, is having our chart copied for his use in preaching the speedy coming of Christ; a noble Scotch Highlander, a tea planter in India, has been converted, and is much inclined to devote the rest of his life in proclaiming the glad tidings which have filled his heart with great joy and peace. A city tract distributor has opened his heart to take in the whole truth; besides many of the most active members of the various churches. Several Catholics and some Jews are interested in the meetings. One intelligent Catholic lady has been converted, and is ready to be buried with Christ in baptism, in company with her husband, who was an infidel when he first came to the meetings. He is now happy in the Lord; and, with his amiable wife, takes an active part in the meetings.

People who have lived in San Francisco for twenty years are amazed and astonished at what the Lord is doing. They never expected to see what they are now beholding. Ten were baptized last Friday, Feb. 10th. It was one of the most interesting baptismal scenes we ever enjoyed. The Spirit of God rested upon us with power. Saints rejoiced and sinners wept. Six more have handed in their names for baptism, and we expect quite an addition to the number by the time of the next immersion. The prospect now indicates that there will soon be one of the largest and best churches in San Francisco that can be found in the United States looking for the coming of Jesus. Keep on praying for us.

THE FRENCH EMPIRE.

The prospect is now very favorable for the restoration of the French Empire. The Proclamation of Napoleon III. to the electors of France, dated Wilhelmshoe, Feb. 8th, 1871 [see Crisis of last week], can hardly fail to arouse the French people, and cause them to rally again around the name that is so hallowed in every Frenchman's heart.

Considering all the circumstances, the Proclamation is a model document, and most admirably adapted to give its author a triumphal march into Paris.

We have this day (Feb. 13th) just read the Proclamation, and shall wait with much interest for the sequel. Great events must be at our doors. Are we ready for the greatest of all—the coming of the Son of man?

THE CATHOLICS.

We learn, on reliable authority, that the Catholics are taking a census throughout the world, to ascertain how many will stand by the Pope. It is said they mean to fight for him if necessary. They appear to be getting ready for a death-struggle. They find they can do but little without temporal power; and they intend to make one grand, united effort for its restoration.

THE THEOLOGICAL DUEL.

End of the Argument between Elder Grant and Rev. Mr. Loveland.

Last evening the long discussion between Elder Miles Grant and the Rev. Mr. Loveland was brought to a close. Dashaway Hall was filled with attentive listeners, as it has been during each evening of the debate. The question in debate was the alleged formation of the human body as a composite unity, out of the dust of the dead, and the unconscious state of the soul during the period elapsing between death and the final resurrection. Mr. Grant maintained the affirmative, Mr. Loveland the negative. Both set forth their arguments and defended their views with considerable ability. Mr. Loveland proved himself the better orator; Mr. Grant the better debater. The former indulged in rhetorical displays which were calculated to catch, and did catch, the less reflective portion of his audience. Mr. Grant never wandered away from the argument proper. Never, for instance, said his opponent's views made a "muddle," never said his opponent was "afraid" to answer him, never, in short, said or did anything to prejudice or embitter the audience against him other than might be done by controverting his arguments. Without entering upon the question of which of the two contestants is right in the main question, it seemed to us that Mr. Grant was undoubtedly victor at the close in so far as the arguments of his opponent in the late discussion were concerned. It is possible that had Mr. Loveland had further time—he wasted a good deal more than did Mr. Grant—he would have effectually overthrown the latter's arguments. But looking at the affair as a mere matter of palpable "hits," Mr. Grant undoubtedly made the most. The audience it is quite possible held an entirely different opinion. Some from not knowing when a hit was made and when it was not made, and the majority from being strongly prejudiced in favor of Mr. Loveland's—the popular—belief. We should think very little of the critical judgment or judicial capacity of that judge who should openly applaud the argument of one counsel before the conclusion of the case and while the arguments of other counsel were to come, and that is why we doubt the impartiality, and consequently the judicial capacity of the audience that listened to Messrs. Grant and Loveland, especially in view of the fact that they were earnestly requested by the chair not to manifest approval or disapproval of either speaker. Then again, there was something more flattering to human nature in Mr. Loveland's idea of man's inherent immortality than in Mr. Grant's, that man does not possess it, and will not till it is given to him by God at the last resurrection. Mr. Loveland made as much capital as possible out of this little weakness in human nature, and dwelt long and eloquently upon the grandeur implied in such inherent immortality, his audience applauding heartily at the close. We may be permitted to doubt whether any six persons could have been found in the audience who on the presentation of the points brought up during the debate could have clearly sketched out the answers returned by the other side; but, nevertheless, we doubt not there were plenty who were perfectly ready to have delivered an opinion upon the question as to which of the debaters had got the best of the argument, had their opinions been asked. With this for its result, the usefulness of the discussion may very well be questioned. As an arenic display it was good; as a medium for rendering shaky faith still more shaky, it was still better; as a means of converting anybody from one side of the question to the other, a failure; as a means of setting men a thinking, probably a success. But how far we may congratulate ourselves upon such a success, is very doubtful, seeing that two intelligent men like Messrs. Grant and Loveland have thought all their lives upon it, and yet hold diametrically opposite opinions. In

THE DISCUSSION LAST EVENING

Elder Grant opened. He argued that thought was the result of an active brain, and could not exist without it. It was not an essential, but a peculiar property of matter. Pain, for instance, was not an essential property of matter, but was a property of organized matter in a certain condition. Man, he defined as a self-acting, intelligent body, motived by moral faculties; the brutes, as self-acting, intelligent bodies, lacking moral faculties: vegetables, as self-acting matter, lacking both intelligence and moral faculties; mineral, as matter lacking self-imparted motion, intelligence and moral faculties. If intelligence were the standard of immortality, the brute would have more than the infant or the idiot. Were animals to be considered immortal because they had the power of thought? When a man in his old age lost his powers of mind, did he lose his powers of mind, did he lose his immortality? When the brain was deranged thought was deranged; when a man was dead, how then could he think? The mind was intimately connected with the body, and depended upon it for the existence of its faculties; therefore, without the body there was no exertion of its faculties. No attribute was equal to the being that exhibited it.

Men cannot exist without flesh and bones. Which lives, the body or the spirit? Whichever does, certainly "dies." At the resurrection "both the just and the unjust" shall rise. Then that which was just is dead—that is the man—the moral intelligent being that dies. In the Bible the words translated soul and spirit occurred 1,644 times, but not in one case was the sense of immortal existence attached to them. The words translated "die"—"death"—"dead"—occurred 1,939 times in the Old Testament; 643 times in the New, yet not in a single case was it implied that any part of man lived on in a conscious state after man died.

Elder Grant then recapitulated his arguments on the meanings of the words "soul" and "spirit," already reported in the Chronicle.

MR. LOVELAND.

replied, contending as before that the Bible uses the word "soul" in the same loose manner as it is used in colloquial parlance at the present day. He said; "We say 'soul,' meaning 'person.' I don't think my opponent has shown that the Bible uses it in any different way than we do now. It was used then by people believing in the immortality of the soul." [Mr. Grant, as may be remembered, quoted numerous passages in which "soul" and "dead" were coupled together.] Mr. Loveland said that a part was often substituted in conversation for the whole, especially when that part was very important. Thought and life were attributes, his opponent ('brother' Mr. Loveland called him) had said; attributes were less than that which possesses them. Something, then, possessed the attributes. What? What was personality? What was the me and I of which we spoke? Was it the mass of organized matter within our skulls? No thought without a brain. How did spirits think? With regard to

THE SOUL

Mr. Loveland expressed himself thus: "So far as the essence is concerned we know nothing, we can only judge by the attributes and qualities. When any man undertakes to define the essence he shows himself incapable of reasoning. No man lives, or ever will live, who can tell what the essence is. When we come to spirit, it is the same. When you come and ask me what the soul is, I point to you, direct your attention to your high attributes and say: there are the qualities of the soul, they indicate its nature, the nature of that which has them for its attributes!"

MR. GRANT.

in reply to several assertions made by Mr. Loveland said he (Grant) simply asked for proof, that was all that was wanting. We are unable for lack of space to follow the speakers through the remainder of their arguments or in their recapitulations. Mr. Grant, as we have said, was very forcible, Mr. Loveland very eloquent; the latter of course made the closing speech and was loudly applauded.—San Francisco Daily Chronicle, Feb 2nd.

SOUTHERN NOTES.—No. 5.

While preaching in Central Georgia, and seeing the whites coming forward to be prayed for at the close of my sermons, and knowing that it would be hazardous to invite the blacks to the same altar of prayer (though many of them were deeply affected), from the fact (1) that it is not practised here, and (2) from the fact that the introduction of a new practise, by a northern man, that would be regarded equivalent to placing the negro on a par with the white man, would not be tolerated in this community, besides hedging up my way to reach the whites, I saw no way to discern the extent of feeling among them, till the adoption of a southern practise; namely, after the whites were done coming to the anxious seats, this request was extended: Now if there are any more anxious ones in the congregation who wish our prayers, let them signify it by kneeling down where they are. This not only brought several more white people to their knees, who perhaps were too diffident to come forward, but in addition to this, I heard a rustling in the gallery, and upon looking up, I saw the blacks getting down upon their knees for prayers.

Upon reaching Brunswick, in Southern Georgia, I found I had got out of the strong "K. K." current. Its strong hold appears to be in Central Georgia, so far as this State is concerned. The Presbyterian minister, Rev. Mr. Way, for whom I preached last Lord's day, was a missionary to China for eighteen years, and rendered that people much service in translating the Holy Scriptures into their tongue. He expressed himself highly pleased with my preaching so far as he had heard, and expressed a desire to have me fill his desk again.

A lady who attended the meeting, said she heard me preach in Portland last summer, and circulated the report that I preached the annihilation of all men. Upon being informed that I believed only in the destruction of the wicked, the claim was set up that she obtained one of my books at the time, and had it now, that advocated the doctrine. I suppose it was my work entitled "Futurity, or the hereafter of all men." Probably she had simply read the title page, and concluded that it advocated the same hereafter to all men. Hope she may now be stirred up to read the rest of the book, and believe the truth.

This city, Brunswick, is situated on the salt water, having one of the best harbors on the southern coast, accessible to the largest vessels of the ocean, giving it water communication with the various seaports, besides being the terminus of a R. R. from the city of Macon, and also being on another R. R. running from Savannah to Albany, Ga. There is one striking peculiarity about Brunswick. It is literally a city buried in a forest, and a forest of "live oaks"—a species of evergreen oaks, that never grow over two or three miles back from the salt water coast, and only on the southern coast, and are as green and fresh at one season of the year as at another, casting only a few leaves at a time, and that at all stages of the year, being perpetually green, growing to an immense size, and making a delightful shade tree, impressing the mind with the thought that it is a relic of paradise. The city is building up rapidly of late. The following churches are established here:—Catholics, Presbyterians, Methodists, colored Methodists, Baptists, colored Baptists, and Episcopalians.

The weather here in February is as fine as May weather in New England. At the present time (Feb. 8th), plum trees and peach trees are in blossom, and the leaves begin to put forth. Winter exists here nominally only; snow is a stranger.

There being but two halls in the place, and they being occupied for other purposes, I have not been able to begin regular meetings this week. The Presbyterians have not completed their house of worship, and at present are occupying the City Hall; and that is not under their control except at the time of their regular meetings: if it were not for this, they would willingly permit me to hold a series of meetings with them. Under these circumstances, I have been looking about for a place to hold a meeting in. I find much suspicion that I will tear their churches to pieces if they let me in, several persons having circulated reports to that effect, claiming to have witnessed such results elsewhere; so there is a disposition to exercise caution, and test me before opening the door too widely. By request of the Baptist deacon, I attended the Baptist prayer-meeting, Feb. 8th, and was invited to take part in the meeting, which I was glad to do. They began to get over their fears a little, and appointed another prayer-meeting for the evening of Feb. 10th, to consider at the close of the meeting whether it was the voice of the church that I should be invited to preach in their house. Feb. 9th, I attended the Presbyterian prayer-meeting, and was invited to take part, with which request I gladly complied, and the pastor gave me a cordial request to fill his desk again on Sunday, Feb. 19th. On the evening of the 10th, I again attended prayer-meeting at the Baptist house, and was invited by the pastor to take charge of the prayer-meeting, which I did with great willingness, and gave them as long a lecture as it was proper to give in a prayer-meeting, much to the satisfaction of all, as I learn. At the close of the meeting, a motion was made, and unanimously carried, "That Bro. Sheldon be invited to preach in our church on Sunday morning, Feb. 12th." Thus they venture to try me for half a day at a time. As a half a loaf is better than no bread, and as there was no other opening for me at that time, I accepted the invitation, trusting that I might yet get the house for more meetings, as it is the largest house in the city.

Sunday, Feb. 12th, arrived, and I preached as requested in the forenoon; the pastor, Rev. Mr. Barrett, aided me in the preliminary services, and though I doubtless brought some strange things to their ears, in contrasting the hope of apostate Christendom with the true hope of the gospel, nobody was hurt, and the pastor invited me to preach again in the evening, which I did with the greatest pleasure. I was also requested to preach for the Presbyterian minister at the same hour, but could not be in two places at the same time. After my Sunday evening sermon, there was an anxiety, in spite of their strong suspicions of error, to hear me again; so after the minister had held a private consultation with several of his members, I was requested to give them a sermon on Nebuchadnezzar's image, on Monday night—this being done, perhaps, to keep me from treating on life and death; but knowing that they needed this chain of prophecy, I accepted the invitation. On Monday, by invitation, I took dinner with the Baptist minister, and found him perusing "Ghostology," and Grant on soul and spirit, which some person had put into his hands, and learned that he and the Presbyterian minister had been jointly examining them; so I had a friendly chat on the state of man in death.

Monday evening came, and I had a good congregation out to hear, including the pastors of the Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian churches, all of whom listened with profound candor to an exposition of the great Image. After the close of my meeting, the Presbyterian minister invited me to take tea with him at his house the next day. Not being invited to preach the next night, I closed without further appointments, till the way should open. The pastor took me one side, and told me privately that his own hearty wish was to have me continue; that so far as he had heard, he was greatly pleased, and the preaching had gone to his heart, and made him feel that he must go to work more vigorously; that the doctrine of a kingdom to come on earth looked glorious to him; that he was satisfied his denomination made too little of the coming of Christ; but there were "a few old fogies" in his church that were opposed to letting any other denomination occupy their pulpit, for which reason he had omitted to give me another invitation to preach till further consultation with them on the point.

In this place the colored people have no place in the white meeting-houses; so they have not been out, except a few who have crept in contrary to the general custom, and a few servants who, after bringing the whites to meeting, have sat in their carriages outside, and listened there; this, in connection with the constant conversation of the whites about the preaching, has awakened a great excitement among them, and they are all talking about the new preacher as "the greatest preacher that ever came to Brunswick"; and they are all determined to "hear Dr. Sheldon preach," as they call me.

To-day (Feb. 14th), I was waited on by a colored deacon of the colored Baptist church, as a delegate from their church, "to invite Dr. Sheldon to preach in their meeting-house." They have a large and beautiful church edifice here. The deacon said they were "all powerful anxious to hear Dr. Sheldon preach." I did not give a decided answer, wishing firstly to feel of the pulse of the white people, to determine whether it would tend to forestall my usefulness among the whites. Before night I was waited on by another colored delegation, pressing the invitation: "The colored people are right fast to hear Dr. Sheldon preach about de comin' of de Lord." I gave them some encouragement, and now all hats are off when they meet "the Doctor"; and every colored child has heard, and is ready to repeat—"Dr. Sheldon is comin' to preach to us." But I must try to get at the whites first.

I learn there are two or three members in the Baptist church who feel opposed to having me occupy their house any more; so a church meeting is appointed for Feb. 15th, to decide the matter; meanwhile there is much feeling awakened, and some of their members say they will go five miles every night to hear me through, if I am not let in to their house, provided I do not preach nearer; and others say a place shall be secured in the city at some rate, if I am not let into the Baptist house.

Feb. 15th, instead of going to the Baptist church meeting, I attended the young men's prayer-meeting in the Methodist meeting-house. Bro. Cook, the Methodist pastor, recognized me in the congregation, and invited me forward, requesting me to take part with them in the meeting, which I did, offering prayer and giving an exhortation. Bro. Cook gave me a cordial invitation to preach in the Methodist church next Sunday, in his place.

The Baptist church meeting unanimously voted me the use of their house, and the pastor, a regular college-bred gentleman, even offers to give up his regular Sunday hours to me. I have now four houses open for my use next Sunday, but I cannot occupy so many places in one day. May the Lord bless.

W. S.

Has the Negro a Soul?—While on my southern mission, I came across a work which has been extensively circulated in the South, arguing that the negro is destitute of a soul. With the modern view of a soul (a personality or invisible organism separate from the body), we would not protest against the position, but insist that the white man sustains the same relation; but with the Bible position that the soul of man indicates either the life or mind of man, instead of a personality within man, we insist that although the negro may be inferior to the white man, he is in possession of a soul as really as any man. The following is the substance of a conversation with a southern minister who holds the view above referred to:—

"Well, Elder, if you are correct in taking the position that the negro is but a two-legged beast, and destitute of a soul, what disposal do you make of amalgamation, the father being a white man, and the mother being a black woman—the child being half negro, or half beast, according to your position?"

"Well, in such cases, the child follows the condition of its mother, of course."

"But, suppose the mother is a white woman and the father a black man, has that mulatto a soul?"

"Never thought of that before."

"Well, if the negro is really a beast, and not a human being, is not a long established rule invalidated, rendering a propagation of the species impossible after the first cross, as in the case of the mule?"

"Never thought of that before?"

"Although, as a rule, the negro is inferior to the white man, in some cases they possess gigantic intellects, towering above the ordinary intellects of the whites; if such intellect can exist without a soul, what need of having a soul?"

"Well, I must be going." W. S.

Taking Snuff.—Before visiting the South, I had often heard the statement that southern ladies took snuff by dipping a little brush into the snuff, and putting the brush into their mouths. I supposed it to be a mere story; but I find it true. If you converse with them concerning the practice, they say, "Your Yankee women put snuff in their nose, don't they?" Really, one practice is about on a par with the other. I begin to think if the Lord had intended to have people take snuff, he would have put the nose on with the lower end up.

W. S.

— They who will be admitted into the marriage supper of the Lamb must have on clean linen, pure and white, and now is the time to begin to spin the threads.

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 24th, 1870, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

Wm. B. Herrick, Sec'y Adv. Chr. Pub. Soc'y.

Remittances should be sent to the Treasurer, Geo. T. Adams, Boston, Mass., or they may be enclosed with remittances to the Crisis office.

Donations for the Tract Fund.

Previous acknowledgments	$360.91
Hattie S. Clark	.25
N. Chase (by J. Couch)	2.50
"R."	1.00
E. S. Gilbert	1.00

POOR FUND.

(To send the Crisis to the Poor.)

Previous acknowledgments	$37.15

YOUNG PILGRIM FUND.

Previous acknowledgments	$17.58

AMER. ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

Donations are earnestly solicited, to enable this Society to send out missionaries, and other means, into the Southern States, and elsewhere, as the Lord may open the door, to proclaim "the glad tidings of the kingdom at hand": and should be sent, as also payments of pledges made, to the Treasurer, Geo. T. Adams, P. O. Drawer 202, Boston, Mass., who will acknowledge the same in the columns of the Crisis.

Previous acknowledgments	$1,071.69
S. C. Gould	5.00
C. F.	1.00
"Contribution from Greely, Colorado"	2.00
"A Friend"	3.00
"A Friend," W. Meriden, Ct.	1.50
J. Cook	1.00
Mrs. M. (gold dollar)	1.12

THE CALIFORNIA MISSION.

To the Crisis:—It was rainy, and altogether the most uncomfortable of San Francisco weather last evening, when Elder Grant held forth in Platt's Hall on the topic, "The Soul; what is it?" Yet the floor and galleries were crowded, and the attention throughout was profound. The "sensation" of the Mission has died away; the interest has deepened. There is less excitement; there is a more earnest and solemn inquiry. All the ground of apprehension now is, with the friends of the Bible truth on prophecy, and man's nature and destiny, that the Elder will feel it his duty to return to the east before the summer months.

The Elder goes to San Jose to-morrow, and will remain there one week. His preaching is desired at Sacramento, Marysville, Stockton, Grass Valley, Nevada City, and in Virginia City in the State of Nevada. He ought to give, at least, a series on prophecy in each one of the places named.

I attended the opening section of Mr. Loveland's review of the Elder's lectures on prophecy. He commenced by retailing the old, exploded objections to Daniel and John; objections which it becomes the orthodox to answer as much as the Elder. Then he proceeded to criticize the precise time dates, concerning which the Elder has as yet—in this city—said nothing. Loveland is a smart man, and ought to be in better business. I say this in no unkind spirit, but under a firm expectation of one day hearing the person referred to advocating the truth against which he now compiles and assorts and recites the ancient equivocations, hypercriticisms, and fallacies. But, of course, Loveland's lectures are so many advertisements for the imperturbable Elder.

I have thought and said and in some correspondence maintained, for years past, that the Bible truths the Adventists hold and proclaim ought to be shed abroad through the larger volumes placed on sale in the popular bookstores. I was gratified to notice in a little advertisement, received lately from Eld. Blain, that he is of the same opinion, and has uttered that opinion in a form to attract attention. Tracts rarely convert. They arrest and arouse attention. Then where there is no preaching, the larger printed page should be accessible for a reasonable sum. I am sure I am within bounds when I say that since the Elder has been here, I have been asked a hundred times, by men of high standing in the community, "Where can I buy any of the standard literature of that [the Advent] sect?" Grant's little volume, Blain's "Life and Death," Hastings', Hudson's, Wellcome's, and Dobney's works, bound in cloth, would sell rapidly today, if put on sale at Roman's or Bancroft's large bookstores in this city. And Archbishop Whateley's work should be here (as it will soon be) in abundant supply.

There is no reason why the men of renown in this world should not be approached in the only way in which it is probable they can be captured by the truth. Why, I have heard men in this city say, since the Elder came: "The Adventists don't believe a man can be saved unless he is very poor and very ignorant—except there is a miracle, as in the case of the conversion of the majority of their preachers." Of course, what the Bible says is the royal thing, no matter what man says by way of comment or interpretation. But if leading men in the Episcopal, Congregational, Baptist, Presbyterian, Lutheran, and other orthodox churches, have seen and confessed and proclaimed the truths the Adventists prominently set forth, let us have their testimonies convenient for the inquiries or disputes of the respective sects; so that they may be judiciously and helpfully referred to their own "fathers," when they dare to mock, or desire to investigate.

Let us improve opportunities to place those in darkness in the position where they must admit the true interpretations or exhibit perverse sectarian blindness. In the latter case, willful denial of the fact will aid others to perceive the right. Sheldon's "Adventism" and Whitmore's "Immortality" should be brought forward on sale in every large bookstore of the land.

The Spiritualists, intensely orthodox hereabouts, are getting mad,—a healthy sign. The truth cuts, and many are sore and ashamed. A leading "meedyum" kindly informed me, a few evenings since, that Gen. Jackson informed him that "if he [Jackson] was a 'demon,' as Grant asserted, he'd put a quietus on him [Grant] before morning." All of which goes to show that the aforesaid "meedyum" is in direct spiritual communication with the genuine, uncompounded, indivisible, intangible, illimitable spirit—which is the soul, which is the thinking part—of Andrew Jackson, formerly President of the United States, etc. For if the corresponding spirit was a demon, how then does it happen that for the days past, since the talk alluded to, the Elder has kept on the even tenor of his way; has not had "a quietus put on him," but, on the contrary, seems to be more lively and irrepressible than ever? I pause for a reply.

San Francisco, Feb. 16th, 1871. C.

For the World's Crisis.

CHURCH DIVISIONS—No. 1.

Brother Editor:—As you have often urged me to write for the "Crisis," and as my pen has had a little rest for several months, I now propose to give you a series of short articles on the above practical and painful subject, written expressly for your columns. I shall try to treat the subject specifically and thoroughly, under the following general analysis: The "Causes," the "Calamity," and the "Cure of Church Divisions."

The Causes.

1. Misunderstanding. This is a very fruitful cause of mutual alienations. Warm debates, angry disputes and furious wranglings, are often the result of not understanding each other's real position. The exercise of a little care and patience in defining terms, and comprehending the meaning and force of language, would often forestall a deplorable dispute, by showing that the parties occupy essentially the same ground. There is sometimes undue haste in drawing conclusions for another, before the premises are distinctly enunciated by him, or fully understood by us. As a result, he is both misrepresented and grieved. If we give publicity to the false conclusions we have drawn, he loses confidence in our integrity, and the opening crevice widens into a frightful chasm.

Many a miserable muss has been born of defective ears. Ministers are sometimes reported to have said what they never spoke, thought, or believed! The same is true of thousands who are not ministers. Uncharitable judgments are thus formed, and those who are innocent as angels are often obliged to lie down under some cruel imputation, and groan under a burden which they never deserved to bear. As prejudice is born of ignorance, it is exceedingly difficult to labor among the grossly ignorant class, without being perplexed and grieved with the petty jealousies and sensitive fault-findings which naturally arise from a want of real Christian intelligence. For this reason a minister of God finds it much easier to preach the gospel to those who know how to put a fair construction on his words, than to those who are likely to understand his utterances in every conceivable way but the right one.

There is a constant liability to mistake the motives underlying a given act. A brother's intentions may be perfectly pure, while he makes a sad blunder in outward action. If we look only at the outward action, without inquiring into the motive, we may be led to censure with too much severity one who is dear to the heart of Jesus. Sometimes a man is made an "offender for a word," when the circumstances are not taken into consideration. The very tones of voice in which a given statement is made, may alter the complexion of the whole case. If parables are not to be interpreted as literal history, neither is an expression of irony, pleasantry, or sarcasm to be handed about from lip to lip, and construed according to the sober sense of the literal words. Let us come close enough together to have a perfect understanding of each other's sentiments, feelings, motives, manners, and lives. This will greatly tend to obliterate our differences, by showing us that many of them were imaginary rather than real.

Rochester, N. Y. A. A. Phelps.

For the World's Crisis.

THE CHURCH IN SAVOY.

To all whom it may concern:—It has long been known that the two churches comprising the Advent body in Savoy, Mass., have been at variance with each other. And feeling that such a state of things should not exist between two churches believing the same doctrine and cherishing the same glorious hope of a blessed immortality through Jesus Christ; therefore, the church in East Savoy chose a committee of two, to form and send to the church in Savoy (New State) a proposition to settle all past difficulties, which was heartily responded to by the brethren of that church. In consequence, a church meeting was appointed, and a committee of five from Savoy (New State) met the church in East Savoy to consider the matter proposed. Meeting was called to order, Jan. 24th, at two o'clock, P. M., Bro. A. E. Bliss chairman, Elder Z. D. Baird, Sec. The causes of past difficulties were freely discussed, and a union established between the two bodies according to the following

ARTICLE OF AGREEMENT.

True religion unites believers, not only to Christ, but to one another, in a most tender and endearing union; one which is a source of great enjoyment, which will outlive all other unions, and be growing more and more delightful forever. And such a union existing among professed christians is peculiarly pleasing to God. It prepares the way for him to dwell with them, and is the means through which those who are at enmity with God and his church may become converted and saved. "Behold, how good and pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." Ps. 133. In all the relations of life, harmony and holiness are equally pleasant and promotive of strength and prosperity; and therefore, as we the members of the Advent Christian churches in Savoy, Mass., feeling the desire and necessity of such a union for the special benefit of ourselves, for the welfare of those around us, and for the promotion of the glory of God, we do hereby agree to forgive, and bury all past difficulties; and by the grace of God, in the future live in the full enjoyment of all christian privileges and duties.

Further, we agree to fellowship all persons who exemplify a christian character, and manifest a desire to grow in grace and in the knowledge of the truth as it is in Jesus, by living in obedience to the commands of God, and in harmony with the true principles and precepts of christianity, as instituted by our blessed Savior.

Further, we do agree and promise to deal with all offending brethren and sisters according to the Scripture rule, as recorded in Matt. 18:15. Z. D. Baird, Sec.

For the World's Crisis.

TO VERMONTERS.

A SUGGESTION.

I suppose you are all tired of that Tent debt. I propose, if no one else comes forward to do so, to find an efficient co-laborer and visit with the tent such places as may need and desire it the coming season, should my health permit. I suggest that those in every place where a tent meeting is desired the coming season, should at once take up a collection for the tent debt, and write me how much they have sent for that purpose, where they wish the tent pitched, and about when.

I will do my best to secure a tent meeting for such as respond to this suggestion. Who wishes for our next conference? Our conference at Warren was a precious and profitable season. H. F. Carpenter.

North Springfield, Vt.

— There cannot be a christian whose light does not shine.

THE HYGIENIC INSTITUTE OF NEW YORK.

Or, the Editor's Sickness and Recovery.

The general features of our sickness have been reported in the Herald of Life. It is sufficient for us now to say, that a hard, dry cough was its commencement. This was some time in October. For two weeks we continued our work in the office of the Herald, taking such medicine as was prescribed by an eminent physician; which however gave us no relief—night and day our cough continued unabated, till we became so exhausted and our appetite for food had so failed that we were obliged to take our bed about the first of November; from that time we were visited daily and sometimes twice a day by a Brooklyn physician, in whom we had great confidence. He did all that human skill could do with homeopathic remedies. He gave us relief from the violence of our cough, but the disease continued unabated. At the end of three weeks we found ourself in "the valley of the shadow of death;" and our physician informed us distinctly enough that our end was near.

At this point an allopathic physician visited us. He pronounced us incurable. The same day, at evening, Dr. Miller, the hygienic physician of New York city, came to our house, being urged thereto by Sister Helen Robertson, who was passing the winter at his Institute; himself also feeling a deep interest in our case from Helen's representation, though he had never seen us, but had read some of our writings on immortality twenty years ago.

The condition in which he found us is described by himself in the following note, which he has since sent us by our special request:

"Mr. Storrs: Your disease was acute bronchitis. This is an inflammation of the lining membrane of the bronchial tubes. In your case, both the large and small tubes were involved, and the accompanying fever assumed a typhoid form. When I first saw you, your pulse was about 130 to the minute, and would intermit once in seven or eight beats. Your respiration was forty-six to the minute:* there was great difficulty in breathing, frequent cough, and a profuse expectoration of a thick, light-colored, stringy matter, about half of which would sink in water. The tongue was livid and red; no appetite, bowels constipated, countenance pale and haggard, no strength, spirits depressed, great restlessness, yet indisposed to move, with but little sleep night or day."

The result of Dr. Miller's first visit was an interview with our attendant physician, who cheerfully gave our case into his hands. From that time Dr. Miller visited us daily, though living some five miles from us, and crowded with business at his Institute. From the first treatment he gave us, we felt a sort of removal from "the valley of the shadow of death" where we had so long lain. He usually spent one hour with us, and applied his remedies with an energy that astonished us. We often said to him, "Doctor, you cannot be laboring thus barely for money." He was truly in earnest, and knew well our case was most critical. For four weeks he continued his daily visits and earnest efforts, which proved successful, and after visiting us occasionally for two weeks more, he left us, saying, "You must come and see me now."

We have made the foregoing statement unknown to Dr. Miller, and out of gratitude to him as God's instrument in our recovery from the gates of the grave. The hand of God is visible to us all in this. If Sister Robertson had not providentially been spending the winter at his Institute, we should not have known anything of him or his practice. If he had not been providentially brought to my house, weeks since, my friends, we have no doubt, would have laid me in the silent grave.

First of all, then, we thank and praise God and the Lamb for our prolonged life. Next, as God's instrument, we thank Dr. Miller for his faithful and kind services, which have resulted in our restoration, thus far; and as a token of our gratitude, we give the following notice of his Institute, from the Methodist, a gratuitous and unsolicited insertion in the Herald of Life, a paper that publishes no paid advertisements, for it is not an advertising sheet. We wish Dr. Miller success, and he cannot well fail of it. If you are sick, try him; we doubt not, if your case is a curable one, he will give you back health. Let him examine you. If he cannot help you, he will tell you so; he will not deceive you about it.

The following is the notice found in the Methodist, of this city, two weeks ago; and we most cordially unite in the commendation at its close:

TURKISH BATHS.

Dr. E. P. Miller, the founder of the first Turkish bath in this city, has just opened a new and elegant establishment at 41 West Twenty-sixth street, New York. He has a house with fifty rooms, for transient and permanent boarders and patients, with excellent facilities for applying the Turkish baths, Electric baths, Water Cure, Movement Cure, and Lifting Cure.

His house is kept on strictly temperance principles, free from tobacco smoke, and affords a quiet home for those visiting the city for a longer or shorter time.

The Turkish baths are almost a specific for colds, catarrh, sore throat, bronchitis, rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, and many other forms of acute and chronic diseases.

We commend this establishment to all our readers who wish to regain lost health, prevent disease, or secure a quiet, pleasant home in the city.

—Herald of Life.

---

* Our natural pulse is seventy-five or eighty per minute, and our respiration about twenty, to which they are now reduced.—Editor.

For the World's Crisis.

JOURNEYINGS OFT.

Jan. 1st. Visited the church in Lewiston, and found them in a state of prosperity in the Lord. They are awake and at work. I preached three discourses to full and attentive audiences, and enjoyed two social meetings with them. The young converts are persevering. One converted Catholic lady is meeting much opposition from former connections, but is decided to follow the Lord. At the close of the evening meeting she introduced me to a brother, saying, "This is the man who led me to Christ." This man's wife also has been led to Christ and "the blessed hope," and is rejoicing in it. Truly the Lord is good.

I visited Greene. Found Bro. John Parker and his dear family still loving the Lord, and hoping for his return. They have been deeply afflicted in the death of a brother, killed by the falling of a barn in a tornado. The Lord will soon bring us to a land where evil will not come. Bro. and Sr. Austin are also hoping for the Lord's return.

Visited Lisbon Plains, and preached Sunday, Jan. 8th, to a congregation which has been some time interested to hear the gospel of the kingdom of God, but who have been so occupied and entertained with pleasure-parties, Christmas trees, and musical entertainments, that they seem to have no stability. Bro. J. P., who has been anxiously waiting for the Lord since 1842, is still looking and hoping for his return.

Jan. 15th. Visited West Falmouth and preached to a few who came out in a very rainy day. A few are there who are interested in the hope, and would gladly see it enjoyed by their neighbors, but there is little union of feeling and active mission spirit in the community.

Jan. 22nd. Not being able to get to Windham, where I had intended to go, I was providentially entertained in West Cumberland by the family of Bro. B. F. Copp, whom I had not seen for twenty years. I attended the Methodist meeting, and was invited by the minister to preach. I cast about to think what subject I might present and not be obnoxious. I chose the "kingdom of God," and had a free time in preaching it, and the undivided attention of the people. At the close, the minister arose and thanked God they had not to go after nor wait for the kingdom. Said he had the kingdom in him, and that Christ told his disciples they had the kingdom in their hearts; and promised to preach on the kingdom the next Sabbath. Thus that congregation got two sermons on the kingdom, and can decide which is true.

Not being able to get to my appointment in Friendship for the 29th, because there was no sleighing, I went to Pownal and visited Bro. Stubbs and family; found them faint, but hoping for eternal life at Jesus' coming.

L. C. Wellcome.

Correspondence.

From Bro. P. A. Smith.

Bro. Grant:—I started for the Indian river on the first day of Feb., by a steamboat, which is built to run in shallow water; so it can go up the St. John's river seventy-five miles further than other steamboats which run only to Enterprise. She runs to Salt Lake, within eight miles of Sand Point, on Indian river, which is traveled by wagons and carts. Salt Lake is two hundred and seventy-five miles south of Jacksonville up the St. John's river. The climate is the most delightful I ever saw. The frost did reach there this last winter. It is the best orange country in the world. No one can have any idea of the difference in the fruit without eating it. Every new settler puts out an orange grove. The country is new and wild, but people are there from Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, New York, and Rhode Island.

I held meetings two Sabbaths and ten evenings; had a good turn-out, and the best attention; baptized three, and would have more, but sickness prevented. Quite a number received the truth and are rejoicing in the hope of eternal life. It was the first revival they ever had. The Lord did bless, and hearts were moved by the truth and the Holy Spirit. It was one of the most pleasant trips I ever made. Thus the gospel of the kingdom is being spread through the world, "and then the end shall come." I scattered tracts at the different places where the boat stopped, and had invitations to come and hold meetings at different places; but having to work to support myself and family, I shall have to postpone it at present. If time continues another winter, I hope to be able to penetrate further into the wilds of this wonderful country. The weather is so mild and delightful that people build their houses so open that you can see out doors in every direction; this makes it rather bad for me nights when it is a little cool, as I am subject to the asthma. I never saw invalids improve faster than they do up on Indian river. But I hope and pray that we may all be ready, and the time soon come, when the kingdom will appear, and then the inhabitants will not be sick. Yours in hope,

P. A. Smith.

Jacksonville, Fla., Feb. 20th.

Bro. C. H. Hurd writes from Porter, Me.:—"We still live, and are holding fast the profession of our faith; and never mean to quit the field until our work is done, and the Father calls, Come home. Our enemies are doing what they can to put us down, but we believe that all their efforts will now, as they have in the past, work together for our good. We are having some very good prayer and conference meetings, and have been highly favored in having the pure word of life promulgated in our midst, to large and attentive congregations of people, and to good effect. There is quite a revival interest existing at the Mill school-house, some two miles north of the village. Several have started for the kingdom, and many more are almost persuaded so to do. The Lord has greatly blessed the labors of Bro. Mark Stevens in this place and vicinity."

Bro. Wm. Whitford writes:—"I am now in my ninetieth year, and have taken the Crisis from nearly its first start. I feel, however, that this (most likely) will be my last year. But should the Lord see fit to continue my unprofitable life, I shall try to sustain the Crisis while I remain on the shores of time."

Obituaries.

Robie. Died, in Clarksville, Jan. 28th, 1871, of consumption, my brother, Lorenzo Robie, aged thirty-one years, two months, and twenty-three days.

He had been a great sufferer several years. About three months before he died he embraced the Savior anew. He was wholly given up to the will of God. I asked him a few days before he died if he was prepared to wear the crown of glory in the kingdom when Jesus comes. He said, "My faith in God is strong. He is my all. I long to fall asleep in Christ, and be laid in my grave to sleep a little while. Be ready to meet me in the kingdom. I shall be there."

He leaves a wife, a little daughter four years old, three sisters, one brother, and a sick mother very low with consumption. Our dear mother saw him about two weeks before he died, when they bade each other farewell in this world. He calmly fell asleep in Christ, prepared to have a part in the first resurrection. Bro. L. F. Cole preached at the funeral from 1 Cor. 15: 49.

Mahala J. Coolidge.

Thompson. Died, at Dexter, Me., Feb. 13th, of quick consumption, Georgianna, wife of Wm. P. Thompson, aged twenty-seven years and eleven months.

Sister T. formerly belonged in Hillsburgh, Nova Scotia. Her last sickness was of two months' duration, which she bore with much patience, and died in full hope of a glorious resurrection through Jesus at the last day. May God comfort the husband and children with the riches of his grace. The 21st chapter of Revelations was read, and words of comfort spoken, by the Methodist minister, Rev. E. C. Spinger. Wm. P. Waterman.

Wagner. Died, in Conhocton, Steuben Co., N. Y., Jan. 9th, 1871, Sr. Clarcy Ann Wagner, aged nineteen years.

She fell asleep with the hope of soon awaking in the likeness of her Redeemer. She leaves a husband, one child, and a large circle of friends to mourn her loss. May the time soon come when "there shall be no more death." Words of comfort were spoken by the writer, from Isa. 61: 1, 2.

J. W. Taylor.

Crocker. In Genoa, De Kalb Co., Ill., Feb. 7th, 1871, Eld. Allen Crocker, aged seventy-seven years, nine months, and twenty-three days.

He leaves a companion, one son (Eld. A. A. Crocker), and three daughters to mourn his loss.

Father Crocker was born in Shutesbury, Mass., April 14th, 1793. Entered the ministry at the age of twenty-two years. Thus for a period of over one-half a century, he continued a faithful minister of the New Testament, in the Christian and Baptist denominations, the greater portion of the time with the former. Was very vigorous until about seven years since, when his bodily health was impaired by a stroke of paralysis. Since this he has labored but little in the ministry, but has occupied a prominent position with those who are looking for the Savior's return.

Thus a father in Israel has fallen, one with whom I have taken sweet and profitable counsel, in this, the early part of my ministerial labors. But, thank God, we shall meet in the morn of the resurrection, as we endeavored to show to a large circle of mourning and sympathizing friends, from the text—"If a man die shall he live again?" (Job 14: 14), Eld. Underwood, of the M. E. Church, assisting.—H. McCulloch.—Times.

Field. In Yankton, D. T., Jan. 30th, 1871, Emily M., wife of Levi Field, and daughter of Moses and Sarah Atkinson, aged forty-three years and six days.

She was born in Stanstead, C. E. Married twenty-one years ago. Converted about five years ago at Mindora, Wis., under the labors of Eld. P. W. Hough. Came last fall to Yankton, in hopes of improving her health; but having been a sweet singer, and having overtaxed her vocal powers, together with exposure to atmospheric changes, bronchitis in its most malignant form hurried her away. She had put her house in order; had done what she could; was ready for her change. Preferred for several days extreme bodily suffering to stupefying medicines, that her mind might be clear and her thoughts deliberate. Said it had seemed hard to part with her family, but felt reconciled with assurance that the Lord would provide and take care of them. Was very happy; said she loved Jesus, and Jesus loved her; and she knew she would come up at the first resurrection. Selected John 11: 25 for a text for her funeral sermon, dictating the manner of its treatment, alluding especially to the resurrection. Her remains were sent to Newport, Vt., to rest beside those of her little son. Highly esteemed, she has passed away, among strangers, as the christian dies. Being dead, she yet speaketh. May the Lord abundantly bless her husband and remaining children, her aged parents, with other kindred and friends.—C. W. Batchellar.—Times.

Clapp. Fell asleep in Christ, in Hartford, Ct., Jan. 30th, Samuel F. Clapp, aged fifty years.

Bro. Clapp was converted and became a member of the Baptist church in 1838. In 1841 he embraced the doctrine of the speedy advent of Christ, and for thirty years has been waiting for the Son of God from heaven. About ten years ago he embraced the doctrine of future life only in Christ, of which he was a sincere and ardent advocate. He died as he lived, a devoted follower of Jesus, and awaits the coming of Him who is the resurrection and the life. He leaves a wife, two sons, and the church to mourn the loss of an affectionate husband, a tender father, and a faithful member. Sr. Clapp is upheld in her bereavement by the blessed hope of a speedy reunion, where death shall not exist. The gospel hope was presented at the funeral by the writer.

Wm. N. Pile.—Herald of Life.

Rand. In South Boston, Feb. 15th, 1871, Bro. Ferdinand W. Rand, a native of Prussia, aged thirty-seven years and six months.

He fell asleep in the valley of the shadow of death, after three months' suffering with consumption and dropsy, to rest till the fair Star of the morning shall beam on the hills of the brightness of life, when the voice of his Redeemer, clearly ringing o'er the music of glory, shall bid him awake from his slumber, and come with the ransomed host to the fair land of Eden.

J. N. Berry.

Canfield. Fell asleep in Jesus, Jan. 15th, 1871, after a severe and painful sickness, Mrs. P. P. Canfield, wife of T. S. Canfield, of Morris, Ct., aged thirty-eight years.

Although her suffering was severe, and, as she often remarked, sleep looked sweet, yet her mind was perfectly clear until she died, and she sent for many of her unconverted neighbors and acquaintances, to warn them of the approaching doom of the ungodly, and exhort them to flee to Jesus for a refuge, and left a request that the speaker at her funeral should warn all who attended to prepare to meet their God. In her death the Advent cause has lost an able advocate, and the church a zealous christian. Beloved by all who knew her, she leaves a large circle of friends to mourn her loss, but "not as those that have no hope." She is sweetly sleeping, but, as she firmly believed, it will be only a "little while," and she will hear it said,

"Child, thy Father calls, Come home."

C. A. F.

Johnson. Died, in Haverhill, Mass., Nov. 1870, of typhoid fever, Charlie F., son of Wm. and Sarah Johnson, aged twenty-one years.

While his many friends may miss his loving voice and manly form, so early borne away, the sweet assurance that he felt that all was well with him, the parting "good by" which he gave with thoughts of future meeting, give joy to mingle with the cup of sorrow. Funeral services were held at Haverhill, his mother's home, by H. L. H., and by the writer at West Poland, Me., his native place, where he was buried. J. Albert Libby.

Stevens. Died, in Windham, Me., Sept. 27th, 1870, Frankie, eldest son of Bro. John and Sister A. M. Stevens, aged fourteen years.

He was a noble boy, dearly loved, and now so greatly missed the parents still must mourn. But Jesus died and rose again, and them that sleep in Jesus God will bring with him. These words come as a solace to their wounded hearts. Funeral attended by the writer. J. Albert Libby.

Fletcher. Died, Jan. 6th, in Providence, R. I., Mrs. C. Fletcher, aged sixty-seven years.

Married.

WATROUS—WHITMORE. In South Windsor, Conn., Feb. 17th, by Eld. Oliver Loomis, Mr. Henry Watrous and Miss Dora C. Whitmore, both of Hartford, Conn.

WHITE—CARRIER. In Canisteo, Steuben Co., N. Y., Feb. 10th, 1871, by Eld. J. W. Taylor, Mr. Abe White and Miss Olive Carrier, both of Canisteo.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

London, Feb. 23. [Special to the New York World.] Parliament was startled to-night by the declaration of Lord Hartington that disaffection in Ireland existed to such an alarming extent that it would be necessary to appoint a secret committee to ascertain the causes. The Tories are exultant at this evidence of the failure in the Irish policy of the Government.

Feb. 24. The treaty of peace was signed at Versailles to-day by Thiers and Bismarck. Some details are yet unarranged, but all will be finally settled to-morrow.

France pays to Germany three hundred and twenty millions of thalers. Alsace and Lorraine, including the cities of Metz and Nancy, are ceded to the Germans.

The railroads are getting in good condition again, and the theatres are reopening. The American Minister went on Wednesday from the city for a few days' relaxation, and is now in Brussels.

The German army will not enter Paris. Emperor William leaves on Monday for Berlin.

Bremen, Feb. 24. A telegraphic order received from Versailles directs the immediate liberation of all French hostages.

The journals here say that the demands made by the Germans on France have produced a painful impression in the Cabinets of London, Vienna and St. Petersburg.

The Versailles Moniteur prints a series of extracts from German newspapers demonstrating that whatever amount of the indemnity may be imposed it is impossible to exceed the good right of Germany or the resources of France.

Bordeaux, Feb. 24. The Court of Rome has recognized the new Government of France.

Paris, Feb. 27. The preliminaries of peace were signed yesterday at 5:30 P. M. France cedes Alsace and Metz. Belfort is retained. The war indemnity is fixed at five millards of francs, for the payment of which three years' time is granted. The Germans are to hold the fortresses until it is paid. The armistice is prolonged a week. The Germans enter Paris immediately. From information received here it is considered probable that the sum demanded by Germany as indemnity from France will be paid in bonds to be issued by the French Government. M. Thiers proposed the purchase of Luxembourg by France, and to transfer it to France. Thiers offered another million of thalers to keep Metz, but the offer was refused.

Berlin, Feb. 27. The news of the conclusion of peace [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in this city. The streets are crowded, the houses decorated with flags and festoons, thousands of people are in front of the palace, and there will be a general illumination to-night. The triumphal entry of the Germans into Berlin has been delayed two months, as the whole of Germany will observe six weeks of mourning for the victims of the war.

DOMESTIC.

Religious Intelligence.

—— Spurgeon, the famous London preacher, began life as an usher in a school at Newmarket, England, and he delivered sermons at the age of 17, being known as the "boy preacher." For several months he drew large congregations in a barn at Waterbeach.——Edith O'Gorman, the escaped nun, is in New England, sapping the very foundations of the Church of Rome.——Some members of an organization in England, known as the "Church Reform Union," including Dean Stanley and Mr. Hughes, M. P., recently held a conference to consider the means by which ministers of other religious bodies might be admitted to the Church of England pulpits. They wished to be able to admit not only Dissenters, but men like Archbishop Lycurgus and Father Hyacinthe. Dean Stanley felt that the coveted breadth of the Church might possibly become too "broad," and remarked that "some regulations would be necessary to prevent such a scandal as that of a Mormon preaching in St. Paul's Cathedral, for example," but he was ready to admit Nonconformists and Romanists.——In Russia the circulation of the Bible is rapidly increasing.——Not long ago a handsomely bound copy of the New Testament, quarto size, was presented to one of the Emperor's children as a birthday gift. The Empress complained of its size, and asked: "Why is not a smaller edition printed?" "If it is to your Imperial Majesty's pleasure, it can soon be done," was the answer. Her Majesty at once gave orders for 15,000 copies, and the number was soon increased to 50,000. Since 1863 over 85,000 copies of the New Testament have been circulated in the Russian language.——The first Protestant service in Madrid was attended by not more than fifteen persons. There are now two congregations that number 1000 each.——A "native" Wesleyan chapel was recently dedicated near Beaufort, Southeastern Africa. A pleasing part of the proceedings noted was the singing of the natives, of which are especially remarked: "The richness of the voice tones, the fulness and body of the harmony, the rhythmical precision," and the taste with which the music was made to respond to the sentiment of the words.——Father Hyacinthe has recently addressed a fervid appeal to the Catholic bishops, "in presence of the woes of his country and the woes of his Church." Referring to the Œcumenical Council, he says: "Bishops, respectable by reason of their number, and by their eminence in learning and in character, openly and repeatedly complained of all manner of restrictions put upon their liberty, and finally refused to take part in the vote."——The Chicago Bible Society has 100 agents at work in the different school districts of the city. Last year 20,000 books were distributed. Some ten thousand families were visited, of whom nearly a fourth were without the sacred volume.——A convention has assembled at Toronto, composed of committees of the various Methodist bodies of the Dominion, to take steps toward a union into one denomination.——The examination of Yam Sing, a Chinese, before the First Baptist Church of San Francisco, was very interesting. In response to the question how he found Jesus, he answered: "I no find Jesus at all; he find me." He was baptized on the Sabbath.——The churches of Great Britain, Rev. Newman Hall estimates, have lost 30,000 persons by intemperance in the period of three years.——A Chicago journal states that eighteen per cent. of the population of that city are connected with Protestant churches, fifteen with Catholic, and (sorrowful to contemplate,) sixty-six per cent have no religious connection at all.——The Metropolitan Tabernacle, (Mr. Spurgeon's) was opened in March, 1861. The cost of the building—which includes spacious lecture, school, and class rooms—was about $125,000. The congregations usually number about six thousand persons, the ordinary sitting accommodation being sufficient for five thousand.

"The Wandering Jew."—A rumor comes from a village near Antwerp that the historic "Wandering Jew" has been seen in that neighborhood. He is reported as having passed rapidly through the market place, and as having, on the outskirts of the village, addressed a few words to some children, who, bolder than their companions, had followed in his path. He was dressed in worn and dingy antique garments, carried a long staff, and with his profuse beard streaming in the wind presented such an awe-inspiring appearance that the terrified villagers fled from him in fright. When he paused and spoke to the children he told them to go back and inform the people that a new ruler had arisen in Europe, who would bring Belgium, Holland, and other countries under his sway, that many strange vicissitudes would be witnessed, and that many proud heads would be brought low. On being questioned as to his name he replied, "Seek not to know. I have been here before in the past. I shall be here again in the future. Until the end of time shall I walk the earth unceasingly." The apparition then waving its hand turned from the children and resumed its plodding walk, and disappeared in the distance.

☞ Since her humiliation the Empress Eugenie has displayed a dignity and force of character which she was never before supposed to possess. Her trials have been great, but she has borne them with fortitude. She has been approached by those who desired to restore the Empire, and play France into the hands of the Imperialists, but the patriotic woman has invariably refused to become a party to any such scheme, or to cast her vote in favor of a peace which was not honorable to her adopted country. The baptism of suffering has developed a great soul in her who was once supposed to be only fit to reign as one of fashion's queens.—Woman's Journal.

The First printed Greek Testament.—Erasmus was the first to publish the Greek Testament (1516,) but to Cardinal Ximenes belongs the credit of having it first printed. In 1514 he had it set up in Greek type, with thick black Latin type by its side, and it was stored away until the old Testament, in Hebrew, Greek and Latin, should be completed, that they might come out together. He is said to have expressed more pleasure at the printing of the New Testament than on any act of his administration.

☞ The cleanest city in the world is Broch, in Holland, where no horse or carriage has ever been permitted to enter, and where everything is kept with most scrupulous neatness. Before entering many of the houses you are required to remove your shoes. It is said that even the Emperor of Russia was compelled to comply with this custom on his recent visit to that place.

In Brief.

—— The new hammer in the Bessemer Steel Works at Harrisburg, Pa., weighs 35,000 pounds and cost $92,000.——The conjoined capital of all the banking houses of the Rothschilds in London, Paris, Frankfort and Vienna is said to be, in our money, not less than $500,000,000.——The winter has been so severe in England that birds are dying of hunger. Among blackbirds the mortality is great.——The London Standard is informed that the health of the Emperor of Germany leads to grave anticipation.——The radicals have again invited Garibaldi to take his seat in the National Assembly.——Louis Blanc, Victor Hugo and Henri Rochfort, members of the radical Left of the Assembly, will present to that body a motion demanding the impeachment of Napoleon.——There are over 250,000 Free Masons in the United States. Chicago contains 6000 of the fraternity, and thirty-three lodges.——Communication by all railways leading to Paris has been re-established.——Sojourner Truth spoke in Springfield Wednesday night—her last speech in New England. She goes to Kansas next week to end her days.——Of the French prisoners in Belgium more than seven hundred, who were without any instruction, have been taught to read, write and cipher since their residence in that country.——It is rumored that negotiations are pending between the Court of Rome and the Catholic party at Brussels, for the transfer of the Holy See to Belgium.——Among the "strange revenges" which the whirligig of time is bringing upon the Pope, it is reported in the Jewish Messenger that a rich Jew, Mr. Alatri, is the most prominent candidate for Mayor of Rome under the Italian regime.

☞ The New Testament revisionists, now in session in London, have voted that the literal translation of the phrase "deliver us from evil" should be, "deliver us from the evil one;" and they have decided to expunge the doxology at the end of the prayer, as absent from all the earlier manuscripts.

— Connecticut paid $32,000,000 in revenue taxes last year, about 37 per cent of it going for rum and tobacco.—The child Mortara, whose kidnapping by Catholics in Rome made such a stir in the religious world some years ago, has reappeared in the guise of a Romish priest.—In Japan a person can live comfortably on two cents a day.

— Choose ye whom ye will obey. Satan prompts only to lead astray, heals but to destroy.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston, corner of Causeway and Lowell Streets. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

Lowell Street Chapel.

Hiram Munger..........Friday evening, March 3d
J. A. Cleaveland..........Sunday, March 5th
T. M. Preble..........Sabbath, March 12th

Boston, (Branch Chapel), 1722 Washington Street, corner of Madison Street.

Meetings at 10½ A. M., and 3 and 7½ P. M.

John G. Hook..........Sunday, March 5th
Communion, in primitive order, at the close of the evening service.
Theodore N. Sherman..........Sunday, March 12th
(Meeting every evening. Seats free.)

Mercantile Hall, 32 Summer Street, Boston.

Meetings at 10½ A. M., and 3 and 7 P. M.
Social meeting at 2 P. M.

H. L. Hastings..........Sunday, March 5th and following Sundays.

East Boston, Mass.

(Second Advent Hall, 154 Meridian Street.)

Meetings every Sunday, at the usual hours, also prayer and conference meetings Wednesday and Friday evenings, at 7½ o'clock P. M.

S. C. Hancock..........Sabbath, March 5th

Meetings in South Boston on Wednesday evenings, No. 2 Lowland Street.
Friday evenings, No. 227 E. St. Bay-View horse cars pass by. Come and welcome. C. W. Huntress.
J. N. Berry.

Chelsea, Mass.

Granite Block, Hall No. 11, corner of Broadway and Fourth Streets. Entrance on Fourth Street.
(Up two flight of stairs.)

M. Batchelor..........Sunday, March 5th
Wm. Thurman..........Sunday, March 12th
T. M. Preble..........Sabbath, March 19th
J. Couch..........Sunday, March 26th

Charlestown.

Preaching at Charlestown, (Evening Star Hall, No. 32 Main Street), every Lord's day.

W. S. Campbell..........Sunday, March 5th
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, March 12th

Providence, R. I..........Sunday, March 19th
J. Couch.

Exeter, N. H..........Sunday, March 5th
C. Goodrich.

Littleton, Mass. (Central Hall) Friday evening, March 3d, and over Sunday, the 5th.
This is a new field. Brn. in the surrounding towns, come and help us. A. P. Moore.

Gloucester, Mass..........Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings, March 1st, 2d, and 3d.
North Searsport, Me. (Conference)...Friday evening, March 10th, and continue six days.
John G. Hook.

Rutland, Vt..........Sunday, March 5th
Claremont, N. H.......Saturday evening, March 11th and over the following Sunday.
H. F. Carpenter.

Rutland, Vt......Sundays, March 12th, 19th, and 26th
L. Boutell.

Holden, Mass..........Sabbath, March 5th
Providence, R. I..........Sabbath, March 26th
T. M. Preble.

Great Works, N. H......Tuesday evening, March 7th
Great Falls, N. H......Wednesday evening, March 8th
Dover, N. H..........Thursday evening, March 9th
Exeter, N. H..........Friday evening, March 10th
Hampton, N. H..........Monday evening, March 13th
Lynn, Mass..........Tuesday evening, March 14th
Scitico, Ct..........Sabbath, March 19th
The rest of March not engaged. H. Munger.

Fairhaven, Mass..........March 3d
Mattapoisett, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
New Bedford Mass..........March 7th
Plymouth, Mass..........Sunday, March 12th
Houden, Mass..........Sunday, April 2d
J. S. White.

North Springfield, Vt..........Sunday, March 5th
I. B. Potter.

Lewiston, Me..........Sunday, March 5th
I. C. Wellcome.

Fitchburg, Mass..........Sabbath, March 12th
C. W. Sargent.

Bear River, N. S..........Sunday, March 5th
J. M. Tozier.

East Acworth, N. H..........Sunday, March 5th
C. H. Fletcher.

Wakefield, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
Portsmouth, N. H.......evenings, March 13th and 14th
Elliot, Me..........evenings, March 15th and 16th
Kennebunk Depot, Me..........evening, March 17th
Geo. A. Streeter.

Hartford, Ct. (Talcott & Post's Hall) Sun., March 5th
Meriden, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th
New Britain, Conn..........Sunday, March 19th
Meriden, Conn..........Sunday, March 26th
Geo. W. Brown.

Hampton, N. H..........Sunday, March 12th
Haverhill, Mass..........Sunday, March 19th
Great Falls, N. H..........Sunday, March 26th
J. Bickford.

Wolcottville, Conn..........Sunday, March 12th
Meriden, Conn..........Sunday, April 9th
Wm. N. Pile.

Natick, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
L. T. Cunningham.

Great Falls, N. H.......Sundays, March 5th and 12th
South Berwick, Me. (Great Works)...Sundays, March 19th and 26th. Geo. W. Brown, Sq. Elliot.

Fitchburg, Mass..........Sabbath, March 5th
Providence, R. I..........Sabbath, March 12th
Mrs. L. M. Stoddard.

Vienna, Me., or vicinity (as Bro. H. B. Sevey may arrange) Sabbaths, March 5th and 12th.
Richmond, Me. (Reed meeting-house) Sab., March 19th
My appointments for Brunswick, Richmond Village, and Lewiston, are withdrawn. Will try to visit these places before I return home. C. H. Sweet.

Brookfield, N. H......Wednesday evening, March 1st
New Durham Ridge, N. H.....Thurs. eve., March 2d
Dover, N. H..........Friday evening, March 3d
A. Ross.

Pittsfield, N. H..........Sunday, March 12th
J. H. Clark.

Haverhill, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
F. Drake.

Southington, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th
Seth Woodruff.

Seabrook, N. H..........Sunday, April 2d
B. Finney.

Great Falls, N. H..........Sabbath, March 12th
N. C. Twombly.

Seabrook, N. H.........Sundays, March 5th and 12th
Wm. W. Sutherland.

Rye, N. H..........Sunday, March 12th
Seabrook, N. H..........Sunday, March 19th
Hampton, N. H..........Sunday, March 26th
H. M. Bryant.

Piermont, N. H. (Clay meeting-house) Sab., March 12th
A. H. Clark.

Albany, N. Y..........Sunday, March 12th
A. A. Phelps.

Providence, R. I..........Sunday, March 5th
Wm. Stuart.

South Berwick, Me. (Great Works)...Sab., March 5th
S. S. Mooney.

Campton, N. H. (Bump school-house) Sab., March 5th
Belmont, N. H. (where Bro. Kidder may appoint) evening, March 8th.
London Ridge, N. H. (at Bro. Batchelder's) evening, March 10th.
Gilmanton, N. H. (school-house at Marrill's Corner) evening, March 11th.
Sabbath, March 12th, where Bro. Maxey may appoint.
C. W. Nelson.

Warehousepoint, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th
G. L. White.

Lynn, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
Wm. Hodge.

Bath, Me..........Sundays, March 5th and 19th
C. H. Leverton.

Lynn, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
C. W. Sargent.

Philadelphia, Pa.......Sundays, March 12th and 19th
Lynn, Mass..........Sunday, March 26th
M. Batchelor.

Seabrook, N. H........evenings, March 15th and 16th
Kittery (Spruce Creek)...evenings, March 22d and 23d
Great Works, N. H..........evening, March 24th
Rochester, N. H..........Sunday, March 26th
E. S. Moulton.

East Rochester, N. H..........Sunday, March 5th
Friendship, Me..........Saturday evening, March 11th
Cushing, Me..........Sunday, March 12th
I wish to say to the church at Cushing, that on account of the conference at the Reed meeting-house, I shall not be able to be there the first Sunday.
Bath, Me..........Sunday, April 30th
W. H. Mitchell.

Canterbury (No. 1 school-house) evening, March 4th and over Sunday, the 5th.
East Concord, N. H. (Gale school-house) Sunday, March 12th. Chas. R. Parsons.

Fisherville, N. H. (Sander's Hall) Sab., March 12th
Simeon Roby.

Dorchester (Town House)........Sunday, March 12th through the week, and over Sunday, the 19th,
Wm. H. Shaw.
John H. Evans.

Danielsonville, Ct..........Friday evening, March 3d
Quarterly meeting of W. C. Association at Providence, R. I., March 8th to 11th.
New Haven, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th
Waterbury, Ct..........Sunday, March 19th
Mrs. M. L. Durand.

West Parsonsfield, Me..........Sabbath, March 5th
Porter, Me..........Sabbath, March 12th and on the second Sabbath of each month.
Conference at one o'clock P. M., the second Saturday of each month. Mark Stevens.

Allegheny City, Pa., the last and first Sundays in each month until April 1st.
Rouseville, Pa., the third Sunday in March.
John T. Ongley.

Seabrook, N. H..........Sunday, March 26th
Wm. C. Stewart.

Hoosick, N. Y..........Sunday, March 5th
C. Pike.

Bridgeport, Ct..........Sunday, March 5th
Ansonia, Ct., three evenings, commencing Monday, March 6th.
Lanesville, Ct., Thursday and Friday evenings, March 9th and 10th.
New Milford, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th and through the week.
Roxbury, Ct., (as the brethren arrange) one week, commencing Sunday, March 19th, to accommodate those coming from Woodbury and Washington.
Lakeville, Ct., one week, commencing Sun., March 26th. Hope to find all ready to work for salvation.
H. K. Flagg.

Bridgewater, Vt..........Sunday, March 5th
Dinsmore Hill, Vt..........Sunday, March 12th
Geo. A. Cole.

Sebec, Me. (Harriman school-house)..........March 3d
Milo, Me..........Sunday, March 5th
I. Damman.

West Abington, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th
W. S. Campbell.

Brimfield, Mass., Sabbath, March 5th, and if the weather is favorable, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings following. Damon Nichols.

Oxford, Me. (Craig's Mills)..........Sunday, March 5th
Lewiston, Me..........Sunday, March 12th
J. Whitman.

Torringford, Ct. (where Bro. Ackerman may appoint) Saturday evening, March 4th.
Wolcottville, Ct..........Sunday, March 5th
Montgomery, Mass..........Sunday, March 12th
B. Hitchcock.

Nashua, N. H. (76 Hollis street) Monday evening, March 6th. L. E. Saulpaugh.

North Somers, Ct..........Sunday, March 5th
Woodstock Valley, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th
A. Morse.

North Scituate, R. I..........Sunday, March 5th
Clinton, Mass..........Sunday, March 12th
Charlton, Mass..........Sunday, March 19th
Some one meet me at the Oxford depot, forenoon train from Worcester, March 17th. E. Cotton.

Alton, Me. (Rand school-house)...Sunday, March 5th
Orneville, Me. (Hoxie school-house) Friday, March 10th, and over the following Sunday.
Thomas Smith.

Starks, Me..........Sunday, March 12th
E. M. Haggett.

Lovely Street, Ct..........Sunday, March 5th
S. Woodruff.

South Livermore, Me..........Friday, March 3d
Dixfield Centre, Me.......Saturday evening, March 4th and over the Lord's day.
South Livermore, Me.......evenings, March 10th and 11th, and over the following Lord's day.
Jesse Gay.

Providence, R. I. (Lester Hall).......Sunday, March 5th
M. R. Pettyplace.

Stowe, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
North Abington, Mass..........Sunday, March 12th
Wakefield, Mass..........Sunday, March 19th
T. T. Farrell.

Newport, Vt. (Wilcox neighborhood) evenings, March 9th, 10th, 11th, and Sunday, the 12th.
Mary E. Otis.

Square Pond, Ct..........Sabbath, March 5th
Webster, Mass..........Sabbath, March 19th
Woodstock Valley, Ct..........Sabbath, March 26th
P. S. Butler.

Sidney, Me. (school-house, Dist. No. 2).....March 5th
Sidney (school-house, Dist. No. 1) Sunday, March 12th
Windsor, Me. (Preble school-house) Sun., March 19th
Thomas Rines.

East Canaan, N. H..........Sabbath, March 5th
F. S. Hanson.

North Norway, Me..........Sunday, March 5th
Lynn, Mass..........Sunday, March 12th
Biddeford, Me..........Sunday, March 26th
J. T. Jordan.

Harrison, Me. (where Bro. H. Kimball may appoint) evening, March 7th, and longer if thought best.
Buckfield (Federal Corner)..........Sabbath, March 12th
Hartford, Me. (Stetson school-house)..........Tuesday evening, March 14th.
South Livermore, Me. (where Bro. C. Denning may appoint) evening, March 15th, and over Sunday.
O. W. Kimball.

Rochester, N. H. (Gonic Chapel)...Sunday, March 5th
T. & A. Marston.

Moultonborough Neck, N. H. (Middle school-house) Sunday, March 5th.
Meredith, N. H. (Dolloff school-house), Sun., March 12th
N. Glidden.

Chicopee Falls, Mass..........Sunday, March 5th
Please meet me at depot. If this conflicts, write me at 31 Anderson Street, Boston, Mass.
Jane Benson.

Goffstown, N. H..........Sunday, March 5th
A. Simpson.

Worcester, Mass..........evenings, March 2d and 3d
Lowell, Mass..........evenings, March 7th and 8th
Lawrence, Mass..........evenings, March 9th and 10th
Manchester, N. H..........Sunday, March 12th
Concord, N. H. (Centre Street Church) evenings, March 14th and 15th.
Portsmouth, N. H.....evenings, March 16th and 17th
Dover, N. H..........Sunday, March 19th
Savoy, Mass. (New Chapel)..........Sunday, March 26th
If any of these appointments conflict with others, please notify me at Savoy, Mass. Z. D. Baird.

South Norwalk, Ct., Sabbaths, Feb. 26th and March 5th
H. Pratt.

Wrightville, Ct..........Sunday, March 5th
Waterbury, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th
☞ No Name.

North Easton, Mass. (Ripley Hall).....every Sunday
Geo. Wacon.

☞ Meetings will be held by the church of God worshiping at Lisbon Village, N. H. (Town Hall), three times every Sabbath. Preaching for the present by Allen Dames.

Springfield, Mass.

Wm. N. Pile..........Sunday, March 5th
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, March 19th
Wm. N. Pile.......Sundays, March 26th and April 2d

Worcester, Mass.

S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, March 5th
J. Couch..........Sunday, March 12th
Wm. N. Pile..........Sunday, March 19th
H. F. Carpenter...Sundays, March 26th and April 2d
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, May 7th
A. Simpson..........Sunday, May 14th
W. H. Mitchell..........Sundays, May 21st and 28th

Lowell, Mass.

J. Couch..........Sunday, March 5th
C. Cunningham..........Sunday, March 12th
W. H. Mitchell..........Sundays, March 19th and 26th

Lawrence, Mass.

W. H. Mitchell..........Sunday, March 5th
A. Ross..........Sundays, March 12th and 19th

Concord, N. H. (Centre Street.)

A. Ross..........Sabbath, March 5th
C. H. Fletcher..........Sabbath, March 12th
J. A. Cleveland..........Sabbath, March 19th and Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings, if the brethren wish me to do so.
C. S. Shattuck..........Sabbath, April 2d
T. W. Piper..........Sabbath, April 9th

Concord, N. H., (at the Bethel.)

T. W. Piper..........Sunday, March 5th
Wm. Stuart..........Sunday, March 12th
E. Owen..........Sunday, March 19th
C. S. Shattuck..........Sunday, April 9th

Manchester, N. H.

E. Owen..........Sunday, March 5th
T. W. Piper..........Sunday, March 12th
H. F. Carpenter..........Sunday, March 19th
C. H. Fletcher.....Sundays, March 26th and April 2d

Portsmouth, N. H.

H. Munger..........Sunday, March 5th
E. S. Moulton..........Sundays, March 12th and 19th
E. Owen..........Sundays, March 26th and April 2nd
J. S. White..........Sunday, April 9th

London Ridge, N. H.

N. B. McMurphy..........Sunday, March 5th
Wm. C. Stewart..........Sunday, March 12th

Vernon, Vt.

O. D. Woodruff..........Sunday, March 12th

Bristol, Ct.

Jas. Carter..........Sunday, March 5th
Seth Woodruff..........Sunday, March 19th
B. Hitchcock..........Sunday, April 2nd
W. N. Pile..........Sunday, April 16th
Dr. A. M. Higgins..........Sunday, April 30th

New Britain, Ct.

O. C. Barker..........Sunday, March 5th
A. M. Higgins..........Sunday, March 12th

Putnam, Ct.

Mrs. M. L. Durand..........Sunday, March 5th
P. S. Butler..........Sunday, March 12th
Mrs. L. M. Stoddard..........Sunday, March 19th

Waterbury, Ct.

James A. Somerville..........Sunday, March 5th
Wm. J. Ripley..........Sunday, March 12th
B. Hitchcock..........Sunday, March 19th
A. Elliott..........Sunday, March 26th

Vienna, Me. (Brick Chapel).

C. H. Sweet..........Sunday, March 5th
—— Jackson..........Sunday, March 12th
W. H. Doughty..........Sunday, March 19th

South Elliot, Me.

J. Bickford..........Sunday, March 5th
E. Owen..........Sunday, March 12th

Portland, Me.

Sec. Adv. Hall, Cushman's Block, 353 Congress St.
B. Deering..........Sunday, March 5th

Biddeford, Me.

Geo. A. Streeter.......Sundays, March 12th and 26th
O. H. Sweet..........Sundays, April 2d and 9th
B. S. Emery..........Sunday, April 16th

Portland, Me. (Union Hall.)

C. W. Kimball..........Sunday, March 5th
Henry Pratt..........Sundays, March 12th and 19th
O. H. Sweet..........Sunday, March 26th
S. S. Brewer..........Sundays, April 2d and 9th

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

☞ We cannot discontinue or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in PLAIN LETTERS.

☞ MRS. UNDERWOOD—You say 71 College Street, but do not say what place. Please let us know.

☞ D. S. CLARK—Money received.

☞ P. A. SMITH—Money received.

☞ J. E. HOWARD—Money received and Crisis sent.

☞ T. WHEELER—We are unable to do so.

Letters Received.

S Woodruff, M E Graham, T E Lang, E Mathewson, M A Davis, L T Cunningham, S S Brewer, H Pratt, C H Sweet, C Mendenhall, F H Chamberlain, J Perrin, C A French, W C Bartlett, J A Libby, H B Tilley, W C Clark, H F Carpenter, J Maxim, T L Harriman, I C Wellcome, N L Willard, C H Hurd, W M Bennett, T Wheeler, G E Merrill, I Slocum, W P Waterman, J W Taylor, O Loomis, M D Avery, P S W Deyo, P A Smith, S Goodhue, H J Munson, A A Phelps, P G Bowman, O D Woodruff, M J Cooledge, J M Pratt, J N Berry, B Hitchcock, N B McMurphy.

Notices.

W. C. Association.

The second quarterly meeting of the "Woman's Christian Association" will be held in Providence, R. I., by invitation of the church worshiping in Lester Hall, to commence March 8th, and continue over the Sabbath. An invitation is extended to all, both saint and sinner, to come up to this feast. The presence of brethren and sisters, both preachers and lay members, from churches in the surrounding vicinity, is solicited, and provision will be made for the entertainment of all who come. Order of the meeting as follows:

Business session in the morning, preaching every afternoon and evening, with prayer and conference meetings preceding. We expect the blessing of God; to this end let fervent prayer be offered.

Directions to strangers coming in on the cars will appear in due time. By authority of the Association, E. S. Jennings, Pres.

Notice.

Those coming to the quarterly meeting of the Woman's Christian Association, will please take the Cranston horse-car, and stop at Lester Hall.

For the Brn., N. Phillips.

Notice.

The Lord willing, a Conference will be held at West Deerfield, N. H., commencing Friday evening, March 3d, and hold over the following Sabbath. Brn. John R. Parsons, James Towe, and John M. Quimby, will be present to labor for the salvation of the perishing. Come, Bro. and Srs., to this meeting. Enoch Morrill.

Conference.

A conference of three days is desired to be held in Palmyra, Me., Marsh's school-house, about four miles from Corinna Mills, to commence Mar. 9th, at 7 P. M., and continue over Lord's day. We invite all who love our Lord Jesus Christ, and want to see souls converted and wanderers reclaimed, to come and help in the blessed work; and to those who preach the gospel, who feel like coming to help, we heartily say, Come in the name of the Lord. In behalf of the brethren,

I. Damman.

Notice.

The Maine Westerly Quarterly Conference will be holden in the Reed meeting-house, Richmond, commencing Thursday, March 2nd, 1871, at two o'clock P. M., and continue over the next Lord's day. We invite, and hope to see, a general attendance of brethren, sisters, and friends, from the surrounding country, and especially our brethren who preach the word. Brethren can call on Low Curtis, F. Bates, and H. D. Reed.

By request, C. Goud.

New York Adv. Chris. Conference.

The Lord willing, this conference will hold its next and last quarterly session, for the conference year, with the church in Brockport, N. Y., commencing Thursday evening, March 2nd, and continuing over Sunday. Brockport—seventeen miles west of Rochester, on the N. Y. C. R. R.—is easy of access, and it is hoped a large delegation will be out. Let all churches interested attend immediately to the quarterly collection and the appointment of delegates, that all may be properly represented, the business done decently and in order, a good meeting be enjoyed, and the blessed cause of our dear Master be advanced. Some who attended the last conference said they hoped never to miss another. Let all the delegates secure certificates, pray earnestly for the success of the meeting, and come in the spirit of Jesus.

B. P. Stevens, Pres.
Wm. E. Brown, Sec'y.

Notice.

As I have considerable money to make out on my Hymn Book between this and April 1st, I hope that those owing me will remember my necessities, and send to me, if possible, between March 1st and 20th, at South Exeter, Me. If at any other time, address me at Machiasport, Me., my home.

If any brethren have sent me letters in the last six or eight weeks containing money, which I have not acknowledged, or calling for books or Admonitions, which they have not received, I wish they would inform me directly, stating all the facts, as I fear that some letters may be lost in this time. I. K. Lombard.

Receipts for Sr. C. B. Turner.—Previous acknowledgments, $30.25. J. C., Chicago, Ill., $2. T. J. Williamson, Hartford, Ct., $5. Mrs. Sunderland, Hyde Park, Mass., $4. A stranger, Worcester, Mass., $5. C. Pettibone, Granby, Mass., $1. S. S. Oaks, $1, Charlie Oaks, 50 cts., Katie, 50 cts., of Rose Valley, N. Y. A sister, Clyde, N. Y., $1. Mary A. Dawson, New Market, N. H., $1. P. S. H., $2. M. C. Wardwell, Savannah, N. Y., $2. A friend, West Meriden, Ct., $1 50. Society at W. Barre and E. Shelby, N. Y., $20. M. C. Philbrick $5, Miss S. A. Philbrick $1, Rye, N. H. "B.," 50 cts. O. T. A.

Notice.

The church in Nashua, N. H., having recently had their place of worship burned out, would give notice that they have no regular place of meeting, but hope to have a place soon, of which due notice will be given. Nathaniel Eaton.

Notice.

As Bro. C. W. Rathburn, of Washington Village, R. I., formerly of the Methodist E. church, has received the light of the gospel of Christ's soon coming kingdom, and kindred truths, and feels called of God to preach the gospel, I cheerfully commend him to all the churches of God.

John G. Hook.

Notice.

Bro. Geo. L. White, of Bristol, Conn., was duly ordained to the work of the ministry, by the laying on of hands and prayer, at the Conn. A. C. Conference, held in Talesville, Conn., Jan. 4th, 1871.

B. Hitchcock, Secretary.

Milwaukee, Wis.

Advent Christian meetings are held every Lord's day, at 10½ o'clock, and Thursday evenings at 7 o'clock, in the upper hall, north-east corner of Jefferson and Michigan streets. A call from any of our preachers coming this way will be thankfully received. R. Martin.

German Tracts.

I will send my German Tracts gratis (except postage), to any one who wants them for himself, or to distribute. I have a good supply. Send your orders to L. Reimer, 1006 Chesnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

A Word to Friends.—Some of you are aware I have been sick with typhoid fever. I am now recovering very rapidly. Expect to be able to fill my appointment at Vienna. Continue to pray for me. C. H. Sweet.

Meetings in Portland, Me. (Union Hall.)

Having vacated Cushman Hall, on Congress Street, meetings hereafter will be held in Union Hall. Entrance on Free Street, nearly opposite the Baptist church. Seats free.

R. K. Dyer.
D. F. Scamman.
R. R. York.

Rochester, N. H.

There will be preaching in the chapel, near the brick school-house, in Rochester, N. H., on the first Lord's day in each month. Others can appoint so as not to conflict.

Advent Christian Church, Salem.

Meetings are held every Sabbath, at the Chapel, Sewall Street. Prayer meeting Monday evening, at the Ward Room, North Salem. Tuesday and Friday evenings at private houses. C. E. Barnes, Pastor.

Star of Hope Mission, 14 Laurens Street, New York City.

Sunday morning, prayer and conference, six o'clock. Sunday School, two o'clock P. M. Love feast, four o'clock P. M. Preaching, [illegible]. Monday, (class meeting), seven o'clock P. M. Wednesday, (preaching), seven o'clock P. M. Friday, (prayer and conference), seven o'clock P. M. Come one, come all. A. K. Smith, Principal.

For the World's Crisis.

THE LILY AMONG THORNS.

Fair daughter of the light,
Amid the sons of night,
Thy many foes;
And do they wound thee now,
As once they pierced His brow,
Fair Sharon's Rose?

Thy loveliness confest,
Who 'mong the flowers so blest,
Beneath the sun is
Robed in thy garments rare,
Who with thee can compare?
Not Solomon!

Chaste emblem of the bride,
Who waits at eventide
Her Lord's return;
Then they who here oppose
The Lily and the Rose—
The thorns, he'll burn.

San Francisco, Cal. A. Hall.

For the World's Crisis.

MATCHLESS COUNSEL.

One of the most profound sayings of the profoundest of all teachers is this counsel: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." Matt. 6: 33.

This is invaluable instruction. It cannot be fully estimated in this life. Eternity alone will disclose to us the real importance of this wise counsel. When the judgment is revealed, and the books shall be opened, and the Judge shall pronounce the sentence: "Come, ye blessed," and "Depart, ye cursed," then shall we awake to the real import and value of these words.

This instruction cannot be ignored, gainsayed, reasoned away, or trifled with, with any reason whatever, by finite folly or infidelity. "Seek first" of all; not last of all, middle of all, or with equal consideration with other things. But, before all things good, true, valuable, or advantageous and needful, "seek the kingdom of God and his righteousness."

The Kingdom of God

is that kingdom for which Jesus taught his church to pray: "Thy kingdom come." A kingdom to be established on the demolition of all worldly empires, and their removal as "the chaff of the summer threshing floor" (Dan. 2); and at the revelation of "the Son of man," when he "comes in the clouds of heaven, as there shall be then "given him a dominion, glory and kingdom." Daniel 7. It is the kingdom to be given to the 'saints when he shall winnow "the chaff from the wheat," separate "the good from the bad," "the sheep and the goats." Matt. 13 and 25. And at the return of "the Nobleman" shall be received by him. Luke 19. The chronology of which is "at the sound of the last trump." 1 Cor. 15. And when "the kingdoms of this world" will be announced by angelic voices as having "become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever"; while "is come" God's "wrath" is the "destruction" of "the wicked" and of "angry nations," "and the time of the dead, that they should be judged, and "reward be given" to God's "prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear his name, small and great." Rev. 11 And "then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father." Matt. 13. The evident meaning of our Lord's counsel is to secure first, and above all things, a right, title, citizenship, and inheritance, in "the everlasting kingdom" which is to be "given to the saints of the Most High," in the eternal and glorified state on earth.

God's Righteousness.

There are three kinds of righteousness spoken of in the Scriptures: "Our righteousness," "the righteousness of the law," and "God's righteousness." "Our righteousness" is like "our religion," all self and sectarian. Paul says of himself, "After the most straitest sect of our religion I lived a Pharisee"; and sure he was zealous above others in his proselytism and sectarianism. And there is much of this kind of religion in these days. Our righteousness is the moral good some see in us, and which the advocates and defenders of an "Independant Morality" declare to be the inherent good in us, and constitute it the ground of hope; and by which we are to be saved without the Savior, and redeemed without the Redeemer, and justified without "the blood of the covenant," and "the Lord our righteousness."

But this is "denying the Lord that bought them." The Bible says of this righteousness, "All our righteousnesses are as filthy rags." How contemptuously do the Scriptures speak of such garments! They are worse in the sight of God than "the fig leaves" with which our first parents endeavored to hide their nakedness before God. "The righteousness which is of the law," is that endeavored to be obtained through obedience to the law. The law says—"Do, and live." "The man that doeth these things shall live by them"; yet at the same time says, "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." "Cursed is every one that continueth not in all things written, in the book of the law to do them." "If a man commit iniquity, all his righteousness shall not be remembered; for the iniquity that he hath committed he shall die for it," and "he that offends in one point is guilty of all"; or has broken the law, and is subject to the penalty of the law, for he has broken it. In a word, this "law" is "so holy, just, and good," in order to give "knowledge of sin," that it condemns every man who cometh into the world who has in the least sinned; hence "every mouth is stopped, and all the world is guilty before God." And "therefore by the deeds of the law there shall be no flesh justified in his sight; for by the law is the knowledge of sin." "Israel after the flesh" endeavored to be justified in this way; but they failed effectually; "their table" becoming a snare and a trap to them, which God designed as their "schoolmaster to bring them unto Christ." Paul bemoans this in bitter sorrow: "Brethren, my heart's desire and prayer to God for Israel is, that they might be saved. For I bear them record that they have a zeal of God, but not according to knowledge. For they, being ignorant of God's righteousness, and going about to establish their own righteousness, have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God." Rom. 10: 1–3.

"The righteousness of God," or "God's righteousness," is "the righteousness by faith." "For Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth." "The righteousness which is by faith speaketh on this wise: . . . the word is nigh thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart: that if thou shalt confess with the mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thy heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation." Rom. 10.

Inasmuch as God has "made Christ to be sin for us, who knew no sin"; "and laid upon him the iniquity of us all"; and he "has borne our sins in his own body on the tree," becoming "a curse for us," and a sin offering. He has "made the righteousness of God in him" a garment for us, and clothes each believer in it, his "faith being counted unto him for righteousness." This is the "wedding garment" in which all the guests at "the marriage of the Lamb" must be vested after the oriental custom, in order to be admitted to the marriage when the King shall be "married to the land," and the city which is the mother of us all. Those "without the wedding garment" will be asked, "How camest thou in hither without the wedding garment?" And the self-justified moralist and self-justified Jew will be found "speechless." The church too, often called "the wife" of Christ, taken out of his wounded side, and redeemed by his blood, and to be given to him subsequent to his sleep in death, and after his awaking," is thus to be arrayed. "To her was granted that she should be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white; for the fine linen is" (not the white robes which slander has attributed Adventists to have manufactured in which to meet the Lord, but) "the righteousness of saints." Rev. 19 6–9.

"Jesus, thy blood and righteousness
My beauty are, my glorious dress;
'Midst flaming worlds, in these arrayed,
With joy shall I lift up my head.

This spotless robe the same appears
When ruined nature sinks in years;
No age can change its glorious hue;
The robe of Christ is ever new."

The Lord in mercy array us in it, and "present us spotless before the presence of his glory, with exceeding joy."

"Unerring Wisdom thus instructs us to secure the infinitely greater good before the lesser. "The reverse is folly's creed": "Get and secure the lesser, or the things of the present, and let the things of the future take care of themselves." Alas! what folly. The kingdom of God lost, all is lost, and lost forever! What are the vanities, the pomp and the show, the gilded toys and treasures, and all earthly kingdoms and their glory, with the future substantial joys and treasures of the everlasting kingdom of our God?

"How solid all where change shall come no more."
"O ye blessed scenes of permanent delight,
Full above measure! lasting beyond bound."

O. R. Fassett.

LOOKING FOR PEARLS.

AN ORIENTAL LEGEND.

The Master came one evening to the gate
Of a fair city; it was growing late,
And sending his disciples to buy food,
He wandered forth intent on doing good,
As was his wont. And in the market-place
He saw a crowd, close gathered in one space,
Gazing with eager eyes upon the ground.
Jesus drew nearer, and thereon he found
A noisome creature, a bedraggled wreck—
A dead dog with a halter round his neck.
And those who stood by mocked the object there,
And one said, scoffing, "It pollutes the air!"
Another, jeering, asked, "How long to-night
Shall such a miscreant cur offend our sight?"
"Look at his torn hide," sneered a Jewish wit,
"You could not cut even a shoe from it,"
And turned away. "Behold his ears that bleed."
A fourth chimed in, "an unclean wretch indeed!"
"He hath been hanged for thieving," they all cried,
And spurned the loathsome beast from side to side.
Then Jesus, standing by them in the street,
Looked on the poor spent creature at his feet,
And, bending o'er him, spake unto the men,
"Pearls are not whiter than his teeth." And then
The people at each other gazed, asking,
"Who is this stranger pitying the vile thing?"
Then one exclaimed, with awe-abated breath,
"This surely is the Man of Nazareth;
This must be Jesus, for none else but he Something to praise in a dead dog could see!"
And, being ashamed, each scoffer bowed his head,
And from the sight of Jesus turned and fled.

—Atlantic Monthly for March.

THE EARNEST OF OUR INHERITANCE.

One may be contented without being satisfied,—grateful for what God has given, and yet anxious to press forward to better things, nobler attainment, a higher position. How much there is in daily experience to teach the necessity of this earnest pressing forward! Every one who knows anything of himself must say, "I have not yet attained, neither am already perfect." Trials and difficulties within, trials and difficulties without, remind us constantly that we are yet in the wilderness, yet in the land of storms, and trouble, and sorrow, and unrest. Sometimes our sun shines brightly for a brief period; our communion with God is a conscious reality; every difficulty in religion vanishes before the supernatural light, and every burden of life is lifted as if by an invisible hand. We foodly think we have conquered the world, the flesh, and the devil. Our mountain stands strong; we are on the hill of transfiguration; have visions of the glory that fadeth not away; wonder at our past miserable unbeliefs; and feel quite sure that henceforth, happen what may, we shall walk with God as Enoch did! Nothing shall in future make us doubt the Father's faithfulness, or the Son's love, or the Spirit's gracious presence. We will be "strong in faith, giving glory to God." We will keep our garments clean, our heads up in the serene atmosphere of "heaven upon earth," and our hearts full of the peace that passeth understanding. No more shall we be tossed on a tempestuous ocean, or driven to and fro by the dark blasts of the adversary; but we will illustrate the joy of salvation by our constant happiness, and recommend the gospel by our holy consistency. We shall be, even now, more than conquerors through Him that loves us, and we shall prove to all with whom we are surrounded, that we are "the epistles of Christ written, not with ink, but by the Spirit of the living God," so that they beholding the evidence of our sonship, may glorify our Father and long for the sacred privilege we so manifestly enjoy.

Alas! how brief these periods of refreshing are! How soon we find ourselves at the foot of the mountain, groveling in the dust, groping in the dark, and tempted by a demon! We have lost those things that we had gained; the shekinah has departed; a blast from the wilderness has extinguished the torch with which we went joyously forth to meet the Bridegroom; all is over with us now; it was only a beautiful illusion, a delicious dream, which makes the bitter reality of disappointment and sorrow almost unendurable!

"Unendurable," said you? Then something has been "gained" after all! Everything is not lost. You have at least this salvage from the wreck to remind you how precious that argosy was,—a memory of the holy wealth which seems to have been engulfed in the dark sea. Look at it! unendurable? It is well. You cannot now rest where you are. Up again! That scene was too beautiful to be shut out of sight for ever, that enjoyment too sweet to be henceforth denied the man that loves it. Our God is too fatherly to give only foretastes of the milk and honey. He means these foretastes to create the desire for the goodly land itself. The education of the moral taste is one of the chief objects of Christian discipline. To admire what he esteems, to value what he calls "of great price," and to strive for the rewards that he holds out to the victor, are among the lessons which the disciple has to learn in the school of his Master, Christ. Let us up again, then! True, we are vexed with ourselves, and disappointed in our dearest friends, our families, and our Christian fellowship; in short, in everything about us—all is vanity and vexation of spirit! Well, if God says "Go forward," let us obey, though there be frowning mountains on either hand, the sea in front, and Pharaoh and his host close behind. It seems madness; there is neither bridge nor boats, and the furious adversary is in hot pursuit. Well, we must just find out God's meaning by doing what he commands. Obedience is, in fact, only another word for victory. Let us therefore press on, —trying, painful as it is; for, beyond controversy, the "prize" is worth it all.

Has He not given his children an earnest of that prize? And will he refuse the inheritance to those upon whom the earnest has been bestowed? The first sheaf heralds the harvest; the earnest implies the full reward; the foretaste is a pledge of the bliss ineffable. Let us not misunderstand our God on this important matter. He certainly means what he says; and if he has said that believers are sealed by the Holy Spirit as the earnest of their inheritance, the words must be accepted as the declaration of a truth not to be disputed, and a purpose not to be set aside. The authorized version gives this sublime revelation with substantial accuracy thus:—"In whom Christ ye also trusted, after that ye heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation; in whom also after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that Holy Spirit of promise, which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory." Eph. 1: 13. 14. Elsewhere, also, the fidelity of God to his purpose and promise is thus declared:—"But as God is true, our word towards you was not yea and nay. For the Son of God, Jesus Christ, who was preached among you by us, even by me and Silvanus and Timotheus, was not yea and nay, but in him was yea. For all the promises of God in him are yea, and in him amen, unto the glory of God by us. Now he which stablisheth us with you in Christ, and hath anointed us, is God; who hath also sealed us, and given the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts." 2 Cor. 1: 18–22. The word "earnest," which had its origin in mercantile transactions, clearly means the pledge or deposit guaranteeing the rest. The Spirit is the divine pledge to the child of God, that all the promises shall be fulfilled at the proper time. The inheritance is kept back, reserved, until the day of Christ, the glorious heir; but the believer is sure to enter on possession then, seeing that he has the earnest now. The counsel to practical holiness, therefore, founded upon this fact, is full of significance: "Grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption." Eph. 4: 30.

The day of redemption, or resurrection (Rom. 13: 23), is the time of the inheritance. The Lamb alone can open and read the sealed title deeds (Rev. 5) of that glorious inheritance, and it will be given to the sealed people. How sublimely simple and coherent all this! Compared with the mysterious, far-off "sky-kingdom" to which common theology sends souls of believers at death, it is mid-day sunlight! The Bible knows nothing of glorification at death; that takes place only when the Lord of glory comes; and the Bible knows nothing of "going to heaven," but a great deal about Christ coming to give his people "glory, honor, and immortality" with himself. His reward is with him. Infallibly he will recognize, and right royally he will reward, his friends who dared all for his truth, and remained faithful to Him amidst trial, desertion, and persecution. Let us be sure that we have the "earnest," the enlightening, guiding, and sanctifying Spirit, and all will be well when the beloved Master returns. Nay, all is well now. If "led by the Spirit" we can well afford cold looks and hard speeches. Is he not the Comforter? and does he not prove his right to that beautiful name, by filling our hearts with peace, and joy, and hope? Yes, it is all well, even now! O for more of that constraining love to Jesus which makes service pleasant, and burdens light, and turns sorrow into songs of gladness, as we bear witness for and journey on to meet Him—our Redeemer, our example, our Lord, our life, all!—Rainbow.

Gems.

— Correct and exalted conceptions of God are the spring of all virtue. Seek, then, to find and nourish in your mind great conceptions of Him with whom you have to do. Expand and exalt your notions of him by every means in your power.

— Our Creator does not mock and baffle us by implanting strong instincts in our nature; and great yearnings after happiness, which have nothing corresponding to them.

Ye who toil with a purpose high,
And fondly the proud result await,
Murmur not, as the hours go by,
That the season is long, the harvest late.

— Come to God for what no one else can give you or do for you; plead his promise, and expect his aid; so you honor him.

— It is impossible that an ill-natured man can have a public spirit; for how should he love ten thousand men who never loved one?

— Peace at the expense of principle, and union, at the sacrifice of individual freedom, are never worth having.

Be it thine life's cares to smother;
And to brighten eyes grown dim;
Kind deeds done to one another
God accepts as done, my brother,
Unto him.

— A profession of religion without purity, is like a fair glove drawn over a foul hand.

— Every promise in the Bible is a pearl of great price. Faith makes a chain of pearls out of the promises, by which she graces her neck, and secures her armor. Activity is a thread of silver running through the chain of pearls.

Bury thy sorrow,
The world has its share;
Bury it deeply,
Hide it with care.
Think of it calmly,
When curtained by night;
Go and tell Jesus,
And all will be right.

— A true christian lives by dying to the world daily, and grows by the cuttings of sore temptations and persecutions.

— Faith quickens, and love sweetens, every duty, but joy like sunshine brightens every thing.

— Prayer is a "distinct, unique, elemental power in the spiritual universe, as pervasive and as constant as the great occult powers of nature."

He is dead whose hand is not opened wide
To help the need of a human brother;
He doubles the length of his life-long ride
Who gives his fortunate place to another;
And a thousand million lives are his
Who carries the world in his sympathies.
To deny
Is to die.

For the World's Crisis.

LINES.

Jesus, precious Savior, may I trust in thee,
Cast my cares and burdens, all of them on thee;
And though in affliction, weary, worn, and sad,
Wilt thou, blessed Jesus, make my lone heart glad?

My grace is sufficient, still I hear thee say,
I will never leave thee, in affliction's day;
Come to me, thou weary, heavy-laden, sad,
Find sweet rest and comfort for thy weary head.

Yes, I'll come, my Savior, and I'll trust in thee,
And though sad and weary, thou wilt comfort me;
Be thou ever near me, guide me day by day
By thy Holy Spirit, in thine own good way.

O, my blessed Jesus, may I do thy will;
Help me to be faithful, trusting in thee still;
That I may be numbered with the good and blest,
When thou com'st to gather thy weary ones to rest.

East Randolph, Mass. Jennie M. Pratt.

THE EARTH IN TROUBLE.

An occasional correspondent of the Boston Journal gives the following facts about the earthquakes of the past two years in the columns of that paper:—

Philosophers divide earthquakes into three classes viz: (1) The disastrous and destructive, comprehending all those capable of overturning buildings, destroying ships and convulsing the earth; (2) The severe, those capable of forming rents in houses and fissures in the ground, and (3) the harmless, which cause a shock, but are too feeble to destroy life or buildings, or rend the ground. Of the one hundred and forty-nine earthquakes experienced in New England between the years 1638 and 1850 inclusive, nearly all were of this last-named class, this kind being far the most numerous. A writer in one of our popular monthlies supposes that thirty thousand shocks of earthquake, comprising all classes and all degrees of severity, have been felt over the whole earth during the past hundred years, which, if true, would realise the conception of Humboldt, who imagined some part of the earth to be perpetually trembling under these remarkable visitations. The writer of this has himself enumerated over four thousand shocks which occurred in the two years 1867 and 1868.

Of great and terrible destructive earthquakes, only one each year are registered by Mallet, Ponton and other historians of these phenomena, as happening between the years 1800 and 1865. In 1867–68 the number of this first class of earthquakes increased alarmingly, no less than eleven occurring in the following places and countries, and in the order here named, viz: Algiers, in Northern Africa, the island of Mitylene, St. Thomas, in the West Indies, the island of Formosa, the Sandwich Islands, Northern Ecuador, Peru, Chili, Ecuador, California, and Jalisco in Mexico, while others of a frightful character have taken place under the floor of the ocean, this number of the kind destructive of cities, villages and human life, by which over one hundred thousand human beings were estimated to have perished, being far in advance of any previous two years in this century. So remarkably was the earth convulsed during this period as that it attracted the universal attention of scientific men, and occasioned no small amount of conjecture, as well as some degree of alarm, though no generally accepted and satisfactory solution of this extraordinary unrest of the earth has yet appeared.

So far as reported, the following is a list of the earthquakes of the first and second class that have occurred within the period of two years just past. We notice them in order:

Santander, a State of half a million souls, in Bolivia, South America, was visited by an earthquake that lasted two days. Churches and dwellings were prostrated and life destroyed, while La Robada, a rocky hill overlooking the town, was broken up by the force of the convulsion. This occurred in the early part of 1869, few details reaching us.

On the 10th and 11th of January of the same year the District of Cachar, in Bengal, which alone is half as large as Vermont, together with all Lower Bengal, was terribly convulsed. The earth rose in a wave twenty feet high and opened in hundreds of places, engulfing men, cattle and houses, and in some cases swallowing them entirely up. Trees and buildings were tossed about, and the hills reeled to and fro. The course of the river Barak was changed and turned up stream for a whole hour, while the force of the shock dashed its waters into the air to a hight of fifty feet. The loss of life was very great, and the visitation in some of its features was one of the most remarkable of modern times.

On the 21st of August the town of Shemacha, in the Caucasus, and the village of Sundi, eighteen versts away, were both totally destroyed, nearly all the houses in the first named place being thrown down by the great shaking. The earth-waves met and crossed each other, and the vertical motion of the ground was regarded as very extraordinary and singular. The shock was preceded by the loss of the power of the magnet, and by subterranean thunder; also by great clouds of dust moving from east to west.

Peru and Ecuador, in South America, were shaken from the 15th to the 24th of August, two great shocks occurring on the 20th and 24th that were very destructive, the inhabitants pronouncing them fully equal to those of August, 1868. A country of 800 miles in extent, embracing Chala, Iquique, Puno, Pisaqua, Tarapaca, Cuzco, Tacna, Arica and Arequipa came in for its share of the great ruin wrought by these convulsions. At sea on the 24th, the steamship Payta, fifty miles south of Arica and three miles from the coast, encountered a fearful earthquake, and from her deck the distant mountains were seen to totter and rock. At Lima and all other places affected by it the houses were thrown down, while at Pisaqua, Iquique and Arica, on the coast, the sea rose and fell in tidal waves to a hight of twelve feet. On the 19th, at Arica, there were forty strong shocks.

September 1, the town of Chacos, in the department of Ariquipa, was entirely destroyed by a shock, pronounced much stronger than those of 1868, and which lasted a minute and a half. The earthquakes in Peru this year were followed by yellow fever, of which no less than 12,000 persons died.

At Manilla, a place of 15,000 population, in the Phillipene Islands, October 1, three severe shocks prostrated houses, knocked over the city walls, leaving not a whole roof in all the town. Eight persons lost their lives. In the interior there was a wholesale destruction of churches and houses; the shocks were also felt one hundred miles out at sea.

Only three days later, October 4, violent irruption of the volcano Parae, situated fifteen or twenty miles from Popayan, in New Grenada, took place, with great trembling of the earth. Immense quantities of brimstone and ashes were ejected, and several villages near the base of the burning mountain were completely destroyed, together with most of their inhabitants.

After a lapse of a quarter of a century, violent earthquake shocks were experienced in Germany, and the old extinct volcanoes on the Rhine began to show signs of life. The throbs began Oct. 2, and had not ceased at the close of the year, but continued at intervals until the following March (1870.) At Gross Geran the scaffolding of a church fell, tiles on the roof rattled like straw, chimneys were toppled over, walls were rent, houses fell down, and a chasm 400 feet in depth was formed in a mountain. A general consternation ensued among men and animals.

On the 11th of October, Sevastopol, Livadia, Feodosia, and Sudak, in the Crimea, were severely shaken, the shocks being sufficient to cause great rents in the walls of houses and churches, occasioning immense destruction of property.

In December, the earthquakes in Southern Italy totally destroyed several towns on the Calabrian coast. Many lives were lost and great suffering ensued amongst the afflicted people.

In the same month also a frightful convulsion visited the district of Mentache, in the dependency of Adin, in Asia Minor, and by three successive shocks the town of Oula was entirely swallowed up and disappeared in the earth, with a loss of some lives.

On the 26th of December the severest earthquake ever known in that region was experienced in Eastern California and Nevada. Walls were thrown down, chimneys destroyed, rocks rolled from the mountains, a railway train was thrown from the track, jets of water were thrown up from springs to a hight of twenty feet, and a general terror was felt.

December 29, the town of Santa Maura, in the island of Leucadia, on the shore of Greece, was split in twain and totally destroyed by a great earthquake. Not a house was left standing, and the loss of life was reported to have been very great, among a population of 20,000.

We notice also the fact that an earthquake occurred at Curacoa, in the West Indies, on the 17th of September, where no earthquake was ever before experienced since the settlement of that island in the sixteenth century, and which, of course, produced great terror among the inhabitants; and that one month later, in October, a long dormant volcano was re-opened on the west coast of Africa; one of the Cameroon mountains having commenced amidst great convulsions to eject burning lava. The volcano is 13,000 feet high, and has not been active for centuries, perhaps not since the Christian Era.

Passing into the year 1870, we register severe shocks experienced in California on the 17th of February, as also on the 2d of April, of sufficient force to crack the walls of buildings and occasion much fright.

Early in March an earthquake or volcanic movement of a singular character, lasting four or five days, took place on the coast of Guayaquil, in South America. The earth for the space of two leagues slowly undulated, rose up in hills and opened in immense chasms, the whole region being strangely tossed and torn asunder by the internal throes.

On April 11, an earthquake of terrible violence occurred on the confines of Thibet, China and Burmah, affecting a country nearly two hundred miles in extent. Whole villages were torn in pieces. The town of Batang was leveled to the earth, and more than 3000 persons lost their lives.

One month later, on the 11th of May, the city of Oaxica, in Mexico, was by one of these fearful visitations leveled to the earth and left in ruins, with 103 persons killed, and hundreds more injured. All the country around was shaken, and very many buildings tumbled to pieces, and many persons perished. It was the severest shock within the memory of the oldest inhabitant.

May 13, Japan was fated to experience the severest earthquake known on the island for a period of fifteen years. Houses rocked, walls were cracked, several volcanoes became fiercely active, the convulsion extended far into the sea, and whole villages were reported as having been destroyed on Vries Island, not far from Yokohama. In three days there were counted 123 shocks.

In June, an earthquake near Iquique, South America, demolished houses and destroyed life.

July 1, Greece was again convulsed, the town of Sartoria reduced to a heap of ruins, and an island in the neighborhood suddenly disappeared, sinking into the sea.

On the 6th day of July a great volcanic convulsion was experienced in the Pacific ocean, in the vicinity of Sunday Island, turning the water of the sea to inky blackness, throwing up steam and smoke 3000 feet into the air, and obscuring the heavens with cloud for fifty miles around, the shocks severely affecting ships sailing in the region of the submarine volcano.

July 26 an earthquake in Nicaragua did some damage, of which few details were given.

August 1, the shores of the Gulf of Corinth, in Greece, were frightfully convulsed, destroying the towns of Amphiras and Galazida, together with several villages, killing many persons, wounding others, and causing great destitution and suffering.

On the 7th October a dreadful earthquake ravaged Calabria, in Southern Italy, destroying two or three villages and many lives.

On the 20th October the severest earthquake known in this latitude since 1755 occurred, rocking the entire country from New Brunswick to the west shore of Lake Michigan, embracing a region some twelve or thirteen hundred miles in length and five or six hundred in breadth. On the St. Lawrence, below Quebec, where it was the severest, chimneys were demolished; churches ruined, three lives were destroyed, and the shaking continued from the middle of the forenoon till ten at night. This great throb, which left its mark on all our large cities and towns, does not appear to have been connected with any notable earthquake in other parts of the globe, neither has it been traced to any volcanic eruption elsewhere. With thousands it is an event long to be remembered.

The year 1870 was also remarkable for earthquakes in Middle Italy. During the last months of the year the Romagna was visited by severe shocks, causing twelve houses to fall at Cesena, and creating a panic in that place and at Bologna.

In December word came that a large and fertile island, one of the group of the New Hebrides, had at some time during the year utterly disappeared. This island, named Aurora, was thirty-six miles in length and five miles in width, and was situated in latitude 15° 2 min. south, longitude 168° 25 min. east. It appears to have sunk into the ocean, probably by the action of earthquake force, and no trace of it is by navigators to be seen. So striking a circumstance in physical geography as the sinking of an island eight times the size of Manhattan Island, on which lies the great city of New York, very naturally creates some anxiety and alarm in the civilized world, and we wait to have the tidings confirmed.

On reviewing the foregoing list we find here registered some twenty-five disastrous earthquakes, all occurring within the two years ending December 31, 1870, and the list may be, and probably is, yet incomplete, owing to our imperfect information of what is transpiring in distant countries. These terrible convulsions, though not on so grand a scale as those of the two preceding years, 1867 and 1868, nor so terribly destructive of human life, are nevertheless most extraordinary as respects their number and severity, and overwhelmingly demonstrate the truthfulness of the views of those savans who hold that the earthquake forces are by no means becoming more and more quiet and dying out, but, on the contrary, from some unknown cause, are increasing in activity. At any rate, there is enough in the earthquake record of the past four years to justify the remark of the scientific writer in a late number of Blackwood's Magazine, who says: "We have been passing through a remarkable period of terrestrial phenomena—more remarkable, certainly, than any which has been witnessed by the present generation." And we may add it is by no means certain that we have reached the end of the earthquake term.

And here we may also be permitted to state that in the absence of any and all established theories of the earth's internal structure, by which to account for the terrible convulsions of which we are writing, there is increasing evidence for regarding very favorably the generally accepted belief of the earth's interior being a molten, fiery mass, considered as the only one that fairly accounts for all the varied and well-known phenomena of earthquakes felt and witnessed on the surface crust. In harmony with this opinion, there is plausibility in the conclusion of Professor T. M. Thorpe, who imagines the great shocks of 1867–8 to have been caused by the breaking off of immense masses of solid earth from the inner crust, which, falling into the lava cauldron below, agitated it into gigantic, throbbing and rolling waves, that heaved the outer crust with great throbs and throes. Indeed, the theory of this scientist, who has made seismic action a special study, together with his wide-spread and sagacious conjectures of a series of great earthquakes the whole world over, made on the occurrence of the destructive shock at St. Thomas in October, 1867, and subsequently published in all the papers, was amply supported and borne out to a sad reality in the experience of the three or four years that have followed the utterance of his prediction, during which time the earth, the emblem of all that is stable, has agonized in deep and mysterious troubles for which the Lord of Nature affords at present no remedy. Assuredly, this generation of men are the witnesses of events of the most startling character and marvelous significance. O for a prophet's glance to read the future aright!

☞ The speech which ministers grace to the hearers is never forced, but flows naturally from the exuberance of a heart full charged with its subjects; it is water from a fountain, not water forced up by machinery.

Hygiene.

"This is for your Health."

COLD FEET AND HEADACHE.

We take the following from "Health by Good Living," by Dr. Hall:—

Cold feet and headache are more often complained of in a family of growing up and grown daughters than any other two maladies in the whole catalogue of human ailments.

No child can be well who is troubled with cold feet; and if the symptom is not removed permanently, such a daughter is pretty certain to die of consumption before she reaches the age of thirty years. Hence, a wise parent will spare no pains to remedy the trouble, for it is a very common beginning of consumption, and it will be difficult enough to remove the symptom in its very earliest stages; but if delayed, it is a herculean task, and is seldom accomplished, trifling as the symptom may appear. Cold feet many times ushers in croup, inflammation of the lungs, diphtheria, scarlet fever, and putrid sore throat, any of which may kill within forty-eight hours; hence the moment a child complains of cold feet, day or night, winter or summer, a wise parent will be alarmed, will take immediate measures to have the condition rectified, and ought not to rest satisfied until the work is done, and the danger removed. No one can be well whose feet are not comfortably warm all the time.

Headache in children under ten forebodes brain-fever, which means an early death; in children over fifteen, there is a more immediate connection with a costive condition of the bowels brought on by improper eating; hence parents will not commence too early if at five years of age they should begin to impress on the child's mind the close connection between this and almost all the diseases to which they are liable, and it will be one of the most important lessons in its connection with human health and happiness which can be impressed on the minds of the young of both sexes.

One of the most effective plans of burning this important fact into the memories of the young, is to point out to them, as it occurs in all their sicknesses, that any actual present disease is preceded or accompanied by the failure of the bowels to act every day, and that in addition, when they have been ailing, a change for the better is always accompanied or followed by a freer action of the bowels; and that grown persons may feel that they have grounds to teach such a sentiment, and find the strongest confirmation of it, they should remember that all patent medicines, except those used for throat and lung diseases, have the effect to move the bowels; and the fact is, none of the common diseases of mankind begin to disappear until the bowels commence acting daily, and this is the reason why such a vast amount of money is spent yearly by the masses for patent medicines: they feel in themselves, and see in others, that diseases are abated by a free condition of the bowels, and that the use of patent medicines brings about this free condition, at least temporarily. If better educated minds could see the same thing, and would take pains to inform themselves of the fact that a safer, and surer, and more permanent change to a regular daily action of the bowels can often be brought about by the use of our natural food rather than by physic, much of the sickness and suffering of the world would be prevented.

Parents should consider it an imperative duty to impress upon the minds of their children as early as their fifth year the importance of a regular daily action of the bowels, because it is literally a subject of life and death, a practical attention to which would have a very material bearing on the enjoyment and success of after life.

CINDERS IN THE EYE.

Dr. Henry W. Williams, the eminent occulist of this city, is contributing to the Atlantic Monthly a valuable series of articles about "Our Eyes, and how to take care of them." In the March issue he offers the following practical suggestions:

"Travelers, especially by railroad, are liable to the lodgment of small particles of dust or cinders inside the lid or upon the front of the eyeball, causing great suffering. These should be removed as soon as possible, before the eye becomes excessively sensitive, and before they give rise to inflammation. Sometimes these foreign bodies are to be seen, on close inspection, lodged in the front of the cornea, where they are not felt when the eye is open, though every movement of the lid over them causes much pain. If not firmly imbedded they may be removed by means of a bit of wood, say a toothpick, sharpened to a flat point, or even by a camel's hair brush; but when forcibly implanted they are sometimes so firmly held in place that their extraction requires a skillful hand. When fixed in the centre of the cornea, with the dark pupil as background, they are frequently overlooked at a first inspection. If the foreign body is not found in this situation, it will be discovered, in nine cases out of ten, inside the upper eyelid, and generally at about the centre of the lid near its border. Thus placed, it scratches the cornea at each motion of the lid or eyeball and causes great irritation. Such particles once slightly imbedded in the membrane lining the lid may remain there a long time before being expelled by natural efforts.

If the eyelids are closed for a few minutes, soon after the entrance of the foreign body, so as to allow the tears to accumulate, and the skin at the centre of the upper lid is then taken hold of with the thumb and finger and drawn forward so as to lift the lid from the eyeball, the intruding particle is often washed away with the outflow of tears.

If relief is not obtained after two or three trials of this plan, and no physician is at hand, it will be best to ask a traveling companion to turn the lid and remove the offending substance. But if this should be a grain of light colored dust or sand, good eyes or eye glasses will be needed to detect it.

The upper lid may be easily turned by taking hold of the eyelashes and edge of the lid with the thumb and finger of the left hand, and drawing the lid outwards and upwards, while at the same time a small pencil, a knitting needle, or some similar thing held in the right hand is placed against the centre of the lid, pressing it backwards and downwards towards the eyeball. The person should look down, as this greatly facilitates the eversion of the lid, which may be easily accomplished if these directions are followed. The cinder or dust may then be wiped off with a handkerchief or the finger."

☞ To prevent dandruff and falling hair, keep the hair quite short, wet the scalp with cool water every morning, and shampoo the hair occasionally.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

DO AS YOU WOULD BE DONE BY.

A little boy, in a holiday-time, set off to walk to his home. It was some distance off, but the day was bright and clear, and as he walked on in the shade the birds were singing in the branches, and he felt pleased and happy. When he came out into the open fields he saw young lambs sporting by the side of their mothers, and here and there cows were standing knee-deep in the cool streams. After walking about a mile he began to feel somewhat tired, when he reached a shady bank, where a mossy seat had been made near a spring. He threw himself at his length upon this seat, and was enjoying the rest it afforded, when another boy came along, seemingly much more wearied than himself, and asked him to make room that he might sit down and rest beside him in the shade.

"Oh no! said our little boy; "do not ask me to move, I am so comfortable; I have found this resting place, and if you go on farther, I dare say you can find another spot as pleasant, where you can also stretch yourself and rest."

The little traveler thought him, no doubt, very selfish, but he said nothing, and passed on. When our little boy was rested enough he arose and resumed his walk. The sun was now pretty high, and the heat was great, and it was only here and there that shady places were to be found. He felt more and more tired, and longed to reach a large tree which he saw at a distance, that he might rest himself in its shade. As he drew near he found that the ground all about it was wet and miry, but a rude bench had been formed beneath the tree, and on it was stretched the very same boy that had passed him an hour before. He felt, as he drew near, that he had no right to ask the boy to allow him room upon that bench to rest himself—weary and heated as he was—for had he not refused to render the same kindness a short time before to that very boy? He stood still a while, and looked wistfully at the seat, and the boy who occupied it, sprang up, and making room for him, said:

"Come, you look as tired as I was an hour ago; I know you will be glad to rest yourself in this shady place. Here is plenty of room for both of us. Come and sit down a while."

Which of these two little boys felt happiest? —the one who thought only of his own comfort, or he that did as he would be done by, and returned good for evil?

Childhood is the holiday-time of life, and you, dear little ones, are setting off for your home, the house of your Father in heaven.

While your thoughts are full of cheerfulness and your hearts of innocence and good affections, one of the first evils you must learn to strive against is selfishness. To give way to this evil may seem to be pleasant, but have you ever tried how much pleasanter it is to strive to do to others as we would have them do to us? Now, the first chance you have, try this.—Children's Hour.

BIRD'S NESTS FOR DINNER.

BY THEO.

Oh, dear!" some one says, "what nonsense that is! Bird's nest's for dinner? As if they could be eaten, no matter how much they might be cooked!" It does seem odd enough, but you must remember, young friend, that all bird's nests are not made of the same material. You have seen them built out of sticks, grass, hairs, old rags and bits of thread; but those the Chinese are so fond of eating, are made of something like glue, which oozes out of the birds' mouths and which they work into shape with their bills. This material grows hard very soon in the air, and to be made soft again, must be boiled; and then it makes a delicious dinner for the rich people of China who can afford it.

The birds who build such nests, are a kind of swallow; they live by the sea and get all their food out of its waters. Along the shores of the lands where they live, there are steep cliffs which have been worn by the tides until they are full of deep caves. In these dark caves the swallows glue their nests, and when the tide is high no man can reach them. But as soon as the water is at its lowest, the nest gatherers come, and let down rattan ropes for ladders, which they fasten to the sharp points of the cliff. Then they build a sort of suspension bridge of ropes, under the nests, and walk along on this bridge, while they gather the strange food.

They have to be very careful not to work too long, or the tide will come up and drown them; and the work is thought to be so dangerous, that before the nest-gatherers go to their task, they offer up solemn prayers to their goddess (for they are heathens, and worship images,) and they lay gifts upon the grave of the man who first found the bird-caves. If a storm should come up suddenly while they are under the cliffs, there would be little or no help for them, and, for that day at least, the rich would have to eat something less delicate than bird's nests, unless they had not eaten all their store the day before.

But the swallows are never drowned; the one who taught them how and where to build their homes and rear their young, takes kind care of them. If you ever visit the islands of the Indian Archipelago, you will see great flocks of these birds, flying over the sea, and plunging into the foamy waves after their food; and as you stand on the edge of the cliffs, within whose caves their homes are, you will see a thousand rainbows glistening in the spray, through which they are ever darting in and out. But I doubt if you will ask at dinner, for a dish of bird's nests! dainty as it is said to be.—Bright Side.

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance..................$2.50 a year.
Five copies six months to one address.......$5.00.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies six months to one address......$10.00.
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Postage.—The postage in the United States on each single copy of the Crisis is 20 cts. a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

Rules for Correspondents.

Over all matters not intended for publication, write—Private.

Over all business matters, write—Business.

Over all articles for the paper, write—For the Crisis.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's Name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save much labor.

Private Letters.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, please write Private on the outside of the envelope.

☞ Put business matters and appointments on separate pieces of paper, so as that they can be detached without interfering with any other communication.

☞ All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the POST OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to either

MILES GRANT, or GEO. T. ADAMS,
Boston, Mass.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly,
THE YOUNG PILGRIM:
An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.
TERMS.
PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Single copy, 40 cts. a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.

Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 30 cts. a year for each copy.

Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 25 cts. a year for each copy.

To Canada, subscribers at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 802. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8, 1871. VOL. XXXII.—NO. 24.

The World's Crisis,
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, by the
ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY,
At No. 160 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass.
GEO. T. ADAMS,
Treasurer and Business Agent.

MILES GRANT, Editor.
William Sheldon, Corresponding Editor.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, L. BOUTELL,
JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
HOMER A. KING, H. V. DAVIS,
L. T. CUNNINGHAM, J. G. HAMBLIN,
H. H. DICKENSON.

The "Crisis" is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

REJOICE IN THE LORD ALWAYS.

Their brows should wear a holy light
Who front the heavens serenely bright,
And gladness should their steps attend,
Who walk with Christ, their chosen Friend.

For every footfall of their way
But brings them nearer to the day
That knows no night, and to the joy
No grief can mar nor sin alloy.

Fixed in the path that He hath trod,
Their lives are hid with Christ in God,
And dwell secure from every harm,
Encircled by the Father's arm.

Behind the clouds, above the storm,
His sunlight lingers soft and warm;
And e'en through midnight's gloomiest pall,
Some beams of mercy gently fall.

However dark the frown of fate,
God will his promise vindicate,
And in his own good time and way,
Bring in the full and perfect day.

In whose glad light shall disappear
All that perplexed and troubled here,
And show the weary path they trod
As the one path whose end is—God!

—Sel.

For the World's Crisis.

LITERAL INTERPRETATION OF SCRIPTURE.

A PARTIAL REVIEW OF "THE END OF ALL THINGS."

In reading a work bearing the above title, by Jas. Grant, London, Eng., I have been peculiarly struck by his singular manner of reasoning upon the Holy Scriptures. His work is written to combat the Millenarian view of the second coming of Christ, and his personal reign upon the earth. These views are very precious to Advent believers, who hold that the Scriptures contain overwhelming evidences that they are right, and who are at all times ready to appeal to the sacred word as their only authority. Therefore when an earnest attempt is made to controvert or overthrow these plainly revealed statements, and kindred subjects, it is our duty to take the sword of the Spirit, and give battle. We hasten, therefore, to defend our views, and rely solely upon the word of God, as given to us, for the correctness of our position. We feel this to be necessary, especially when a man of acknowledged piety and learning attempts to honestly show us to be in error, and whose whole life and character attest the sincerity of his belief. His opinions have great weight among those who differ from us, and his works are largely circulated both in England and this country, so that they exert no mean influence in misapprehending the word of God.

That the author is honestly mistaken I fully believe, for he says, "If God does really say in his word a particular thing, then every saint of his is not only bound to believe what he says, but to act in accordance with that belief, however incomprehensible to his mind the statement or doctrine may be." I therefore claim that he simply misconceives the word, and thus interprets it; or, in other words, he interprets it when it needs no interpretation.

As a rule, the word of God is very plain, and most of its declarations are clear, positive, and to the point. Any attempt to improve, symbolize, or alter them, only weakens and destroys them. And while we frankly admit that there are numerous figures, symbols, and parables used, it is a fact that these are in a large majority of cases so stated and fully explained, either in their immediate connection, or in other portions of holy writ. As a rule, therefore, we hold that all plain, positive declarations mean just what they say, and should so be taken, constituting as it were the framework of the religious edifice; while all symbolical or figurative language should be made to harmonize with, or conform to, the building, as "scaffolding."

The popular idea and mode of procedure is the very reverse. The scaffolding is first put up, and then they attempt to force the building to it, regardless of beauty, utility, or design. Poor, fallen man knows better than to do this in human affairs; and shall we charge God with less wisdom? God forbid. Now God's word contains the whole plan of salvation, which plan is very distinctly laid down. No mistake need be made in it. Accompanying it are numerous details and specifications, often put in figurative language, by means of which our ideas are enlarged, and our perceptions quickened. But when we substitute a few details for the whole plan, or attempt to prove that because the brackets of the house are graceful curves and lines, the corner posts must also be like them, we not only destroy the whole plan, but make it a ridiculous farce. Great truths are often best illustrated by allegorical representations, and for this very reason we frequently find them in the Bible. Men may mistake them if they wish to; may call the figurative literal, and the literal figurative. But I hold most tenaciously that no man need make this mistake unwillingly. True, there may be, and doubtless are, many passages, the true meaning of which is not clear; but I maintain that enough is made clear to keep us busy until we have time to find out that which may be doubtful.

In this connection I cannot refrain from transcribing the words of a distinguished author (Prof. C. E. Stowe, in his great work—"History of the Books of the Bible"), for they so fully convey the true idea, that I can not improve them. He says—

"The Bible is not given to us in any celestial or superhuman language. If it had been, it would have been of no use to us, for every book intended for men, must be given to them in the language of men. Every human language is from the very nature of the case, and from necessity, an imperfect language. No human language has exactly one word, and only one, for each distinct idea. In every known language, the same word is used to indicate different things, and different words are used to indicate the same thing. In every human language each word has more than one meaning, and each thing has generally more than one name. The boy is learning his letters—the merchant is writing his letters—Dr. Johnson was a man of letters. In these three sentences the same word, letters, is used to designate three perfectly distinct, and most widely divergent things; yet nobody mistakes, or nobody need mistake, for the connection in each case shows the meaning. In the first stanza of Gray's Ode on Spring, there are no less than six words used in their figurative instead of their literal sense. Yet who mistakes?

'Lo, where the rosy-bosomed hours,
Fair Venus' train appear;
Disclose the long-expecting flowers,
And wake the purple year!' etc.

In all these cases men can mistake if they choose. All this is as true of the Bible as of any other book, and no more so."

With these prefatory remarks, I now come to the examination of such passages as Mr. G. has selected, and which he adduces with figurative renderings to show that we are in serious error in looking for Jesus the second time, or that he will personally reign upon the earth. I take them as he gives them, without reference to the subject in dispute; but simply to show that nearly all passages which he cites, and interprets figuratively, are the very ones (among hundreds of others which he omits) upon which we base our faith. He says—"Take the promise made to Abraham that his descendants should inherit the land of Canaan forever. It is a great historical fact, and a fact no less proved by the existing state of things, that the promised land has ceased for more than two thousand years to be inhabited by the children of Abraham. The same remark may be made in relation to the promise made by God to Abraham that his seed should be as numerous as the sand on the sea-shore. That could not be literally true; the seed of Abraham, however numerous they may hereafter become, will not exceed the powers of arithmetic to compute; but the sand on the sea-shore far exceeds all the capabilities of arithmetic to calculate. The expression is therefore figurative. Again, the expression occurs under circumstances which place in a still more striking light the impossibility of its being literally true. In Rev. 8: 20, we read—'And Satan shall go out to deceive the nations which are in the four quarters of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together to battle, the number of whom is as the sand of the sea.' This is a physical impossibility. The whole earth would not provide the requisite space to contain these innumerable hosts. Therefore I maintain that the thousand years and the first resurrection cannot be understood literally, but must be regarded in a figurative sense."

Now to us who believe these blessed Scriptures as they are written, and who have no doctrine to bolster up which demands a change of their reading, this sounds very strange. Indeed, a feeling of sadness at such lamentable ignorance takes possession of us, for it seems to us to dishonor our heavenly Father by refusing to believe his word. With the passages in question there is no trouble, when we take the whole connection, as in every instance we are bound to do. Therefore it is only because our author misconceives the subject upon which he writes, that he can honestly make such astounding deductions.

The promise made by the Almighty to Abraham was a positive one. But the one made to his seed was a conditional one, so far as this life was concerned. In Abraham's case, it has never been fulfilled; but that is no sign that it never will be fulfilled. The promise was a literal one, because it referred entirely to literal things. The land was literal, Abraham was literal, his seed literal, the oath literally performed or taken, and the great name by which the Almighty sware that his promise should be fulfilled as he said, was most undeniably literal. Where, then, is there anything figurative? All that God asked of Abraham was that he (Abraham) should believe it was a literal promise, and the land was his. Had Abraham said, as he had every reason under heaven to say (except for his unbounded faith), when on his death-bed he found himself without an acre of the land except what he bought of the sons of Heth to be buried in—"God don't mean this, because he has not fulfilled his promise; therefore it is only a symbolical promise, and means something else"—would he ever have got the land? Never. But, no. "Abraham BELIEVED God, and it was accounted to him for righteousness." The land is Abraham's! Concerning Abraham's seed, that it should inherit the land forever, there are two views, both of which are equally correct.

As I before remarked, the promise was conditional. Again, it was absolute. Hear what God saith—"And if thou [Solomon] wilt walk before me as David thy father walked, in integrity of heart and in uprightness, and do all that I have commanded thee, and wilt keep my statutes and my judgments; then will I establish the throne of thy kingdom upon Israel forever. . . . . But if ye shall at all turn from following me, ye or your children, and will not keep my commandments and my statutes, which I have set before you, . . . then will I cut off Israel out of the land which I have given them." Here, then, is the conditional promise, the fulfillment of which depended entirely upon the good behavior of Abraham's natural seed.

Now, I ask, did not God fully and literally perform his part, as long as the children of Israel did theirs? Both sacred and profane history declare that he did. Why, then, has the land of Canaan been "for more than two thousand years uninhabited by the children of Abraham"? Hear again the words of the Almighty—"Because they forsook the Lord their God, who brought forth their fathers out of the land of Egypt, and have taken hold upon other gods and have worshiped and served them, therefore hath the Lord brought upon them all this evil." 1 Kings 9: 9. Everything fulfilled to the very letter. The promise will be absolutely fulfilled when Abraham and his seed (both natural and adopted) come into final possession of the land. That this will take place in due time, is just as true as it is that the Almighty lives.

Concerning the number of Abraham's seed, I fully believe God's statement of it. The statement is—"I will make thy seed as the stars of heaven and the sand on the sea-shore for multitude." Not that for every star, or for every grain of sand, there must be a saint to correspond; but that, as the sand cannot be numbered (by man), so shall not the saints be numbered. But, says Mr. G., "Arithmetic can compute the number of Abraham's seed, however numerous they may become, but cannot calculate the grains of sand of the sea." All right. But suppose that the saints should become, as God says they will, as numerous as the sand; how about the arithmetic then? Could n't compute them, could it? Thought not! But will the saints be so numerous? Hear God—"And I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth [finer even than sand], so that if a man can number the dust of the earth, then shall thy seed be numbered."—Gen. 13: 16. That this means what it says, hear what St. John says—"I beheld, and lo, a great multitude, which no man could number [where is your arithmetic?] of all nations, and kindreds, and tongues, and peoples, stood before the throne, and before the Lamb." That this is true, I believe, because John says he saw only "such things as must . . . . come to pass." So if arithmetic fails with the sand, it is worth nothing with the saints. How are the sands upon the sea-shore? Innumerable! How are the saints of God, or Abrahamic seed? Also innumerable! Well, then, are not the saints of God like the sand of the sea for number?

The same remarks hold good about the wicked. The idea that the earth would be too small to contain such a host, is too absurd to notice. For, take every wicked man who ever lived, and all those now alive, and add to these all the righteous, both living and dead, and they could all stand in the State of Indiana, and have one square yard each, and then the State would have several thousand yards left. "Arithmetic" says this, and figures don't lie.

Objection 2. Says Mr. G., "It was said of David that he should be a 'prince forever.' We all know that this promise was not literally fulfilled, neither was that other promise, that his descendants should sit forever on the throne which he occupied as king in Jerusalem. In less than four hundred years, the house of David ceased to exist, and it has never since been re-established. Neither could the words, when speaking prophetically of the Lord Jesus Christ, receive a literal rendering, when he said that his name should endure as long as the sun. The sun, like the world it warms and vivifies, will cease to run his course. [When?] A period is appointed by God,—and millenarians, above all others, believe it is not far distant,—when the light of the sun shall be no more needed, and consequently when there shall be no sun, for God appoints nothing that is not necessary."

Like the passages already noticed, there is not the slightest trouble in taking these quotations literally. Indeed, the trouble seems to be on the other side; for if they do not mean what they say, what do they mean? The difficulty with our writer is, that because these promises and predictions have not been fulfilled, they must necessarily be figurative. I am lost in amazement at such singular reasoning, for he forgets that there was a time when some of the events which he admits have transpired were predicted and not fulfilled, and which might with equal consistency have been considered as symbolical, or figurative, by those who lived previous to their fulfillment. As for instance the birth, life, death and resurrection of our Savior. Man's life is rather too short and uncertain for him to solemnly decide for or against the truth of God's statements, simply because certain predictions may or may not have taken place during his puny existence.

But let us look at the objection of David's being a "prince forever." Prince, and King, are simply titles indicative of rank; either may become the other. Now David was a prince before he became a king. He remained a king until dethroned by death. But David's throne is to be occupied by a king who shall never be dethroned, and whose kingdom shall have no end; and as David will be under that government by virtue of a resurrection from the dead, he once more assumes his former title of "prince." And as David can never ascend the throne again as a ruler, and as he is immortal, and cannot die, will he not remain a "prince forever"?

That "other promise" is equally clear. Had our author read his Bible carefully, I think he could not have failed to see the reason why David's descendants did not sit on his throne forever, or until the end of time. This promise, too, was a conditional one. Hear the word of the Lord—"If thy children take heed to their way, to walk before me in truth with all their heart, and with all their soul, there shall not fail thee a man on the throne of Israel." Did they do it? History, and "facts, which are no less proved by the existing state of things," say they did not. What was the result? David's throne was overturned and destroyed, precisely as God said it would be if he was not obeyed. The children of Israel thought it about the most literal thing they ever saw, and I can only account for their astounding temerity in disobeying God, by believing that they previously thought that God's promises and threats were "figurative." The safe side is the best side, especially when we are dealing with the Almighty.

But this promise is also unconditional, when we take it in its most extended, literal rendering. The descendants of David (or rather a descendant) will sit upon his throne forever. How do we know? Hear the angel of God—"And behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and shalt bring forth a son; and shalt call his name Jesus. And he shall be great, and shall be called the son of the Highest: and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father DAVID." Also Isaiah—"Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it and to establish it with judgment and with justice, from henceforth even forever! The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this." The prophecy was literally fulfilled, so far as the conception, birth, name, and mission of Jesus were concerned; and why should we not look for the fulfillment of the rest? The very fact that the first part was literally performed, is the best kind of evidence that the latter will also be literally accomplished.

That the name of Jesus will endure as long as the sun, we have no doubt; for we believe the sun will endure as long as Jesus' name. The same is true of the earth. The Scriptures are very full and explicit in making this earth the future home of the saints, while they are profoundly silent on the subject of a home in heaven. The earth, we are repeatedly told, shall be restored, made new, brought back to its Edenic state. Not a word is said about destroying the earth or the sun. It is only the things that are in it (the earth) that are to be burned up. This will have to agree with what John says—"And I saw a new heaven and a new earth;" not a heaven and earth made out of new material, but the old material restored and made new; for, says Jesus—"Behold I make all things new"—not all new things; and when this is done it (the earth) is to last forever; for "the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it." The sun will continue to shine, also the moon, and the stars. Hear what Isaiah saith—"Moreover, the light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun [this does away with night, 'for there shall be no night there'], and the light of the sun shall be seven-fold, as the light of seven days." Isa. 30: 26. As now, both luminaries will light the earth, but in the "city" their light will not be needed. Why? Because the glory of God and the Lamb is the light of it. They will doubtless shine on the city, but not for the purpose of giving light, for their light compared to the "glory of God" is as a candle to a Drummond light.

Thus we see that everything pertaining to the saints and their future home is located on this earth restored; therefore it shall endure forever; because "they [the saints] shall reign forever and ever."

DR. N. L. WILLARD.

For the World's Crisis.

SOUND THE ALARM.

To the Ministers and Brethren in Christ scattered abroad, Greeting: It is our most solemn conviction that we as a people are not speaking and acting according to the light that now shines from God's great book of prophecy. God is completing the last items in the great chain of prophetic events; and they are being accomplished in harmony with his great chronological measurements of time given in his word. We believe God is distinctly and manifestly calling us to advance to our original position, viz., that a knowledge of the time for the coming of Christ is necessary to the household of faith, to make them complete in his counsel. In a most remarkable manner by his providence he is upsetting many objectionable and foolish theories, based on the literal time position; i. e., such as the development of a future antichrist, either by Napoleonism or Spiritualism, or a future Syrian king. The adopting of the above named theories, in our humble opinion, is advancing backward, and will result in disaster and shipwreck of faith to those thus entrapped by Satan, and is abasing and dishonoring to the revelation that God has given to man by the sure word of prophecy.

This sudden back track to papal interpretation of prophecy, by some of those that were once giants in the cause of our soon coming King, is truly lamentable. A late editor of one of our Advent papers published a statement, that unless the 2300 days (years) of Dan. 8: 14, and the 1335 days of Dan. 12: 12, ended in A. D. 1843–4, then those periods of time are literal, and to be fulfilled in the future. One might as well say unless the 70 weeks of Dan. 9: 24 ended A. D. 33, then those weeks are literal time, and remain yet to be fulfilled. Such confusion and uncertainty as this hardly comport with the position of the "just," whose pathway is compared to "the shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day." The express language of the prophecy in the case of the 70 weeks, the 1335 days, or the 2300 days, forbids the application of those periods to events that would end the shorter period in A. D. 33, and the longer periods in 1843–4.

By giving strict attention to the language of the angel to Daniel, it will be seen that the 70 weeks relate to events that have been fulfilled. Through this period of 490 years the transgression was restrained from desolating the Jews, and their probationary trial continued for life and blessing. In it Christ came and made reconciliation for iniquity. By rejecting and crucifying him the Jews sealed their doom, and the execution was only delayed till those 70 weeks were ended, A. D. 65, then the stroke of vengeance fell, and the word of God was verified. 1810 years from A. D. 65 complete the vision of the 2300 days (years) of Dan. 8: 14; then will be accomplished the justification of the "sanctuary." 1335 years from A. D. 538, will end in 1873.

The statement of the prophecy in Dan. 12: 11, requires the commencement of the 1335 years from the setting up of the abomination that maketh desolate. This was dated by the late Wm. Miller, and a host of the early writers in the Advent movement, in A. D. 538. The mistake of Bro. Miller resulted in dating the 1335 years from the taking away of the "daily," or paganism, in A. D. 508, instead of from the establishment of popery in 538; thus dating the 1335 years thirty years too early; consequently ending them in 1843, instead of 1873, where they legitimately do end. This is the epoch when that servant of God, with Daniel, and all the holy dead, will stand up for their lot in the first resurrection.

Having passed through the period (1260 years) of the supremacy of the little horn (or the great papal antichrist), which ended in A. D. 1798, we have seventy-five years more—the period of waiting to the church of Christ, while the dominion of the papal antichrist is being taken away; as the prophecy reads—"They shall take away his dominion, to consume and destroy it unto the end." Here we stand almost seventy-three years from the time that the work of taking away the dominion of that persecuting power commenced, and we now see it in the condition described by the prophet Daniel just before going to the burning flame. Observe what comes next in the order of the prophecy. Dan. 7: 27—"And the kingdom, and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him."

The events of the last few months in the history of popery prove conclusively that the Mene, Mene, Tekel, of its usurpation has been or is being written with unmistakable certainty; and in a very brief period will be utterly and eternally destroyed at the coming of Christ to judgment. The events of the next two years will be watched with intense interest by all true lovers of Christ's appearing; especially those events connected with the Turko-Russian powers, as those powers are to fill an important place in the closing scenes of this world's history. The downfall of the Turkish Empire in the immediate future is of general expectation by the civilized world. Writers and historians have been uttering such expectations for a long period, and remarkably so for the last few years.

Said Count de Gurowski in 1854—"The empire of the Ottomans, at least in Europe, is rapidly approaching its end; no human aid can preserve it; and the real question is—What banner shall finally be planted on the wall of Constantinople? It is Russia, and Russia alone, which for more than a hundred years has uninterruptedly drawn nearer and nearer, with a bold, aggressive, and steady pace. . . . The expulsion of the Turks, and the future possession of Constantinople, have been considered for years as the highest problem for European politics. . . . Prophecies are at hand that the oscillating waves of the shock which is to engulph the empire of the Ottomans will be deeply felt throughout the whole globe. Seven and a half centuries ago a Greek writer records a prophecy, old in his time, relating to the North, to the effect that in the last days the Russians should be masters of Constantinople. When it was uttered no one knows; but he tells us it was written on an equestrian statue, in his day one of the special monuments of the imperial city, which had at some time been brought thither from Antioch. It is now a thousand years since this famous prophecy has been illustrated by the actual incursions of Russian hordes. The wonder is that its fulfillment has been so long delayed."

Gibbon, writing at the end of the last century, records his own expectation of the event. "Perhaps," he says, "the present generation may yet behold the accomplishment of a prediction, of which the style is unambiguous and unquestionable." The Turks themselves have long been under the shadow of its influence, even as early as the middle of the seventeenth century, and they feel that Asia is the true footing of their faith; and so strong is the popular feeling on this subject, they have their favorite cemetery at Scutari, on the Asiatic coast. "The Czar, Peter, made no secret of his views of the duties imposed on him and his successors, as he piously believed by Divine Providence to dismember the Turkish Empire and make Constantinople the metropolis of Russia, the great emporium of the commerce of the east."

All well informed writers at the present time regard the immediate downfall of the Turkish Empire as a matter of destiny, and a foregone conclusion. The history of the Turkish Empire from the period of its invasion and overthrow of the Greek Empire, is a subject of prophecy in Dan. 11: 40, and onward, and is so regarded by eminent prophetical writers in the past and at the present time; and the immediate future must witness the last event of that prophecy in the sudden and final overthrow of the empire of the Turks. This is a remarkably clear and distinct prophecy, pointing the church of Christ to the last event on the great chart of prophecy on the stream of time, and her proximity to the kingdom of God—her eternal home.

We believe, then, the last event will be the overthrow of the Turkish Empire in the holy land (or Palestine), before the coming of Christ; and it will be in harmony with the above arrangement of the prophetic periods. If these things are so (and who can dispute it?) is it not high time to awake out of sleep, ye ministers of Christ, and get the trumpet to your lips, and give it the certain sound? Amen.

L. T. CUNNINGHAM.

Adv. Chris. Times, please copy.

— Take good heed at the beginning to what thou grantest, for after one inconvenience another will follow.

For the World's Crisis.

THE MAN OF SORROWS.

"He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief."—Isa. 53: 3.

Is it possible that this Scripture refers to Jesus, the holy and harmless Son of God? It most certainly does, and it is well for us sometimes to "consider him who endured such contradiction of sinners against himself, lest we be weary and faint in our minds." Never was there a person whose grief was so intense or sorrow so poignant as the Man of Calvary. Who can refrain a tear as they gaze upon him, the loveliest among the children of men, and the fairest among the sons of God, and yet suffering inexpressible grief? Behold him as he sleeps upon his mother's bosom in Bethlehem's manger, a helpless babe. What indigence surrounds him. He was not born in a palace, but in a stable. His mother was not a princess, but a poor obscure woman.

In the morning of life he was persecuted. The envy and bloody rage of Herod compelled the flight to Egypt to escape that ferocious tyrant in whose nature no trace of compassion was found. Then see him after his return to Nazareth, a poor carpenter, partaking of the common sorrows of mankind; and in addition to these what dark shadows must have crossed his pathway as he thought of what was yet before him. When the proper time had arrived he commenced his public career as a poor traveling preacher, without money, or home, or friends. On one occasion when some desired to follow him he replied, "Foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head." He lodged in another man's house, fed at another man's table; he preached in another man's ship; he prayed in another man's garden; he rode to Jerusalem on another man's colt, and he was buried in another man's grave.

Often in his journeyings he suffered fatigue. Weary and sad he sat down at Jacob's well. Sometimes alone in the mountains, the dews of midnight fell on his gentle brow. Then how he suffered in his treatment from men. He came to his own, and his own received him not. He was despised and rejected; called a "wine-bibber," a "friend of publicans and sinners," an impostor, a deceiver; yet how he loved his enemies. See him as he beholds the city and weeps over it; and hear from his lips those pathetic words—"O Jerusalem! Jerusalem!"

Follow him to Gethsemane. See depicted in his countenance all the sad emotions of his heart. Behold the sweat like great drops of blood. Hear the agonizing prayer—"If possible, let the cup pass." Follow him to the judgment hall. There he is begirt with a gorgeous robe of mockery, and his placid brow entwined with a crown of thorns. They mocked and scourged him. They smote him with a reed, and did spit upon him; and the blood and spittle together clotted his flowing locks; and in that condition Pilate introduced him to the people, saying, "Behold the man."

Follow him to Golgotha and behold his death by crucifixion, which was painful, degrading, and accursed. O what anguish and sorrow! No countenance ever bore more distinguished marks of grief, and no man was ever exposed to more painful suffering and agony by the murderous treatment of his enemies by his shameful death.

Behold him in these tragic scenes! Whatever was the dignity of thy person, O Redeemer, the elegance of thy form, and the beauty of thy countenance, all is marred now. Thy saddened face, O Man of sorrows, thy bleeding brow, thy clotted locks, thy fainting spirit, should rend all human hearts. The tears of sorrow rushing down thy cheeks, the poignant crown, the knotted scourges, the rugged nails, the dislocating shock, have effaced the bloom of thy countenance, and dimmed the lustre of thine eyes. I see thee there on that cross, pale, bleeding, dead and ghastly, and this was all for me. O what love! How can I forget my Lord? Dear Lord! remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom.

J. W. THOMAS.

VOICE OF THE CONTRIBUTION BOX.

"My good friends, give me a chance to speak. I have long had something to say, and wish to free my mind. The truth is, I am much abused, am often slighted, and pass by you seemingly unnoticed, and then tucked out of sight, where I get only dust and cobwebs. Worse still are my grievances when I am allowed to come around from pew to pew in aid of your devotions. I always come with a heart full of good will, ready to confer on you all the great blessings of giving. Yet, oh, what treatment! I don't mean now the tricks of purloining boys, who give me old buttons for money. I can put up with their mischief, especially as I never get so full but that I can carry a few buttons extra.

But I do mean you, for one, Mr. Blind. Why do you never see me when I come? Your face is turned in an opposite direction, or you are hunting for something in the hymn book, or your head is down as though you had just then an extra touch of devotion. You are rightly named Blind; for none are so blind as those who wont see.

And what were you doing last night, Mr. Keeptight, after your clerks left the store? Why did you look over the money drawer for that counterfeit bill, in anticipation of the collection day? You thought nobody would know it. But I saw you, and I am bound not to keep your secret. I wonder if you think God does not know counterfeit money, and counterfeit charity, too? I can keep this bill as a witness when God shall put you on trial for passing counterfeit money. (Mr. Keeptight turned very pale when the box spoke of a trial.)

Closefist, you put in this torn bill; you know it would be at a discount at the bank. Don't tell me it was accidental. You have done the same thing before. You had better go home and read what the prophet Malachi says about the man who brought what was 'torn' as an offering to the Lord.

Have you lost your large pocket-book, Bro. Prudence? (Prudence clasps his hand suddenly on his pocket.) Don't be alarmed, you left it at home, for fear, as you said, that your feelings would get the better of your judgment. You need n't be so prudent. Your benevolent feelings are the last things to get beyond your control."

"Whose turn next?" whispered the excited crowd.

"Loveself, why did you instinctively feel for your cigar-case first when I came? Confess the truth, now, that you have spent more for cigars the last three months than you have contributed during the whole year.

Where's Demas, Jr.? Oh! he is not here to-day. He is generally missing when a collection is expected. His father, I remember, forsook Paul for love of the world.

Drop that rich veil over your face, Mrs. Display; you will need it to hide your blushes when I tell the congregation that you have not given me so much this year as you have paid out for those ear-rings and that point-lace handkerchief; and here to-day you have been thinking about buying a $500 diamond ring. And you profess to love the Savior, and the heathen who are perishing for want of his gospel.

What shall I say to you, the richest man in the whole society, a member of the church, a teacher in the Sunday School, a regular attendant at the prayer-meeting? I see I don't need to name you. (Dr. Penurious is hitching nervously in his pew in the broad aisle.) You speak and pray well; you have much to say of sound doctrine and liberality and consecration to Christ. But whenever you are asked to give, you always say, I have too many calls. Too many calls? Yes, but they get no answers. You gave me one dollar today, when you ought to have given fifty. You have a 'call' to study that book which says 'covetousness is idolatry,' and soon you will have another 'call' which you must answer—to leave those money bags, and go and settle accounts with Him who owns them all. (The doctor became very much affected at all this talk, but he had nothing to say.)

Now I have something for you all to hear.

When at the end of last year you footed up the contributions of the church, and said was quite a fair sum, I ached to tell you that your pastor, and a ministerial secretary in the church, from their slender incomes, had given full one-third of the whole. It would have been still more but for Bro. Whole-Souled and Bro. Generous, who are always liberal. And Sister Humble, too—dear, good woman, let me not forget her—the five-dollar bill she put in was fragrant with prayer and love and self-denial, and shed a sweet perfume through the whole. 'She hath done what she could.' There was a quarter, too, that dropped most lovingly from little fingers that had made themselves weary in earning it.

I have one secret more to tell. I am something more than I seem to be. You think me only a wooden box—a convenience for gathering up your donations. Know, then, that a messenger from your Savior is here. Yes, I represent his pierced hand outstretched toward you, and your returns to me are registered as the index of your love for him. As I pass from pew to pew, I gather something more than money. These tales of your secret history, and a thousand others, are all put on record, and read in that great day."

The whole congregation trembled. And the pastor said, "Let us all pray for pardon."
—Selected by J. E. Clark.

For the World's Crisis.

HIS COMMAND.

"And as ye go, preach, saying the kingdom of heaven is at hand."—MATT. 10: 7.

The command of our Savior to his disciples as uttered in this text, is not local in its character, either in regard to persons or localities. It is not confined to any one person or one place. The command, "As ye go, preach," is as broad as the world, and as long as probation continues to its inhabitants. Neither is it confined to one people or nation, but is extended to all alike. It is not confined to the pulpit, or public places where people congregate, but it reaches every fireside. It is not confined to the minister of the gospel in proclaiming the joyful news of salvation to the multitudes, but has a claim on every follower of Jesus. It is not altogether confined to vocal labor, but in scattering tracts and papers containing the truths of God's holy word.

All cannot preach the gospel as ministers, but all can do something in spreading light and truth in the world. Jesus left us a worthy example. He did not confine his labors to the synagogues, but he preached to individuals as he met them by the sea-shore, on the mountain, and at the well of Samaria.

Much can be done by missionary labor; preaching from house to house; out in the highways; in the field; in the work-shop; in the mill; or wherever man or woman may be found; and in this way many can be brought within the sound of the gospel who will not attend upon the more public and customary means of grace.

What is done must be done quickly. Let us be up and doing, and obey the command of our Lord, and his promise will be verified unto us—"Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end."

N. B. MCMURPHY.

Gilmanton, N. H.

— When mountains are in the way of God's people, he does not permit them to ascend and pass over their summits, but he bids the mountains give way. He will not suffer his saints to walk too high; therefore he reduces the hills to vales, which are pleasant and safe to humble pilgrims.

THE WORLD'S CRISIS.

LIBERAL OFFERS FOR 1871.

VALUABLE PRESENTS!

The Best Sewing Machine,
The Best Illustrated Dictionary,
The Best Books, and
The Best S. S. Paper,
GIVEN AWAY!
FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS,
TILL THE FIRST OF JUNE.

We would, if possible, double our present circulation during the current year. It can be done, if every one will help, and do all they can. To encourage our friends everywhere to make an earnest and persistent effort, we offer the following valuable presents to all who shall obtain new subscribers for The World's Crisis till the 1st of June.

Here is a good opportunity for every one to secure a desirable gift for nothing but a little effort in your own neighborhood or field of labor.

A PRESENT FOR ALL.

For every wife, mother, daughter, or widow, a superior SEWING MACHINE, saving many hours of weary toil in the family, and adding to the means of livelihood.

For every minister, Bible student, or general reader, the best ILLUSTRATED DICTIONARY, BIBLE DICTIONARY, CONCORDANCE, HYMN BOOK, or other valuable religious, theological, or hygienic work.

For the children of our Sunday Schools and churches, any number of copies of THE YOUNG PILGRIM for one year, to cheer them in their pilgrimage, and help them on their way to the kingdom of heaven.

Look over the list, dear friends, and see what you want. Then go out among your neighbors, friends, kindred, acquaintances and strangers, and try what you can do. When you have done all that you can, then order from us y*our choice of any one* of the following

PREMIUMS FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

For 2 New Subscribers, with $5,
A $1 PREMIUM.

1. Hymns of Jubilee Harp, cloth; and Pilgrim Psalms.
2. Fables of Infidelity, and Facts of Faith.
3. Stories for Young Pilgrims, vols. I. and II.
4. Two copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
5. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
6. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and Bible Text-Book.

For 3 New Subscribers, with $7.50,
A $2 50 PREMIUM.

1. Jubilee Harp, full gilt, extra cloth, leather back.
2. Immortality, by James H. Whitmore; and Tracts.
3. Health by Good Living, by W. W. Hall, M.D.
4. Plan of Redemption; and Nature of Man.
5. The Broken Seal; an Exposure of Freemasonry.
6. Talks about People's Stomachs, by Dr. Dio Lewis.
7. Three copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
8. Two copies "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
9. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and any $1 premium.

For 4 New Subscribers, with $10,
A $3 PREMIUM.

1. Dictionary of the Holy Bible, with 4 Maps and 250 Engravings; and Grant's "Nature of Man."
2. Cruden's Condensed Concordance, and Sheldon's "Futurity."
3. Barrow's Casket and Concordance; —sources arranged by Subjects.
4. Muller's Life of Trust; Effects of Prayer and Faith.
5. Four copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
6. Three copies "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
7. Two copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1 premium.
8. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and any $1.50 premium.

For 5 New Subscribers, with $12.50,
A $3.50 PREMIUM.

1. Synchronology; or, the Principal Events in Sacred and Profane History, from the Creation of Man to the Present Time.
2. Credibility of the Scriptures, in two volumes; a recast of the former work, by J. H. McCulloh; and Bible Text Book.
3. English Reference Bible.
4. Five copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
5. Four copies "Young Pilgrim," and one volume Pilgrim Stories.
6. Three copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1 premium.
7. Two copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1.50 premium.
8. One copy "Young Pilgrim," and any $3 premium.

For 10 New Subscribers, with $25,
A $8 PREMIUM.

1. Webster's National Pictorial Dictionary, 1,040 pages, octavo, and 600 Engravings, price, $6; or, the "Unabridged" (below) for $4 extra.
2. Fifteen copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
3. Seven copies "Young Pilgrim," and any $1.50 premium.

For 15 New Subscribers, with $37.50,
A $12 PREMIUM.

1. Webster's Illustrated Unabridged Dictionary, 1,840 pages, quarto, and 3,000 Engravings, price, $12. The best dictionary extant.
2. Thirty copies of "The Young Pilgrim" for one year.
3. Webster's Pictorial Dictionary ($6), and fifteen copies "Young Pilgrim."

For 40 New Subscribers, with $100,
A $60 PREMIUM.

A Grover and Baker Sewing Machine, first class in every respect, with hemmer and attachments; one of the best, if not the very best, in the market. These machines make "the Grover and Baker stitch," which is considered the best for family use, and "the shuttle-stitch." Please state which is wanted.

Things to be Remembered.

In raising your list—the names may be obtained from as many different places as you please, and the papers will be mailed by us to each separate address.

Subscriptions may be taken for the year, with $2.50 each; or double the number for six months, with $1 25 each; or any number for both periods, which, with $1.25 and $2 50 each, shall make up the requisite amount.

Keep a list yourself of all names and monies obtained by you and forwarded to us, with the date when sent.

In sending to us—put the list always on a sheet by itself. If, at the same time, you write on other matters, or remit for old subscribers, put that on a separate sheet.

Write each name plainly, with its Post-office, County, and State, and amount paid, all on one line by itself, in that order; and, at the bottom, give the whole amount of premium monies sent, with your own name and full address.

Names sent "for a premium" should, in all cases, be so marked when sent. No name should be sent without the money.

All names and monies can be forwarded at once, or from week to week, as fast as you get them, until the 1st of June.

Any one aiming for a higher premium, and failing to get the full number of names and amount, can pay the balance in cash, and so get the premium; or he can order some other premium on the list corresponding to the amount obtained.

When you have got all the names you can, and want your premium, send us a full list of all the names, addresses, and monies you have sent, so that we may compare them with our books; then we will send you whatever premium you may select from the catalogue—the Sewing Machines and Webster's Dictionaries by express, at the expense of the receiver, and the other books by mail, postpaid.

Monies, if under $5 00, may be sent by letter at our risk. If a larger sum, and under $25, send a Post-Office Money Order, or Registered Letter. If $25 or more, send a Bank Draft, or money Order, payable to the order of GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass. All sums of $5.00 and over, sent in any other way than above directed, will be at the sender's risk.

All letters and remittances for premiums should be addressed to the Business Agent, undersigned, or, if more convenient, they may be enclosed in letters to the Editor, MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

And now, dear brethren and sisters everywhere, from Maine to California, and from the Lakes to the Gulf, put your hearts and hands to the good work, and a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull all together! and the blessing of the Lord be with you!

GEO. T. ADAMS, Business Agent,
Advent Chris. Publication Society.

The World's Crisis
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.
Boston, Wednesday, March 8, 1871.

☞ Please Remember!

☞ All remittances to this office, in the form of Drafts, Bank Checks, and Postal Money-Orders, should be made payable to the Business Agent, GEO. T. ADAMS.

☞ Take Notice!

☞ All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable in Advance, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

SAN FRANCISCO.

At this date (Feb. 21st) there is still a deep interest in our meetings. New ones start in the service of the Lord in about every meeting. Several decided last evening to become the disciples of Jesus. Those who come in from the various churches say they never witnessed such love and harmony before. There is a bitter war spirit manifested by some professors against our meetings, because we preach that sin and misery will come to an end, that man is mortal, and must seek for immortality by patient continuance in well doing. A large proportion of those who take an active part in our meetings are now believers in the sleep of the dead, the destruction of the wicked, and the immediate coming of Christ. It is a wonder to them how they could have overlooked these great and simple truths so long, when they are so clearly taught in the Scriptures. While we have strong opposition from popular ministers and their supporters; also from infidels, Mormons, and Spiritualists, we have the blest assurance that the Lord is our great helper. This has been most wonderfully manifested during the progress of the meetings, to the astonishment of friends and enemies. Notwithstanding the tremendous tide of opposition, the Lord has given his truth wonderful success, and a triumphant victory over error, which now lies bleeding at the foot of the cross, a conquered foe, slain by the sword of the Spirit.

Those who have been many years in the service of the Lord now feel and talk like young converts, on account of the great light which has recently burst forth from the sacred Scriptures. What was darkness and confusion to them, when they held to the doctrine of man's natural immortality, and the eternal misery of the lost, is now full of light and harmony. Their Bible has become more precious to them than ever. They now read with delight what was before of but little interest. Instead of library books, novels, and other trash, the sacred Scriptures have the first place in all their readings. In short, they feel like "new creatures."

Sceptics say they have seen nothing before that looked consistent. The popular preaching had almost entirely lost its influence upon the minds of the worldly people, who did their own thinking. They saw its want of harmony, and also the lack of consistency in the lives of most of those who professed to lead others to Christ. One thing was certain: the present popular preaching had lost its power, if it ever had any, to turn the people away from their sins, and cause them to embrace Christ as their Savior. The careful observer can see that the standard of religion is being continually lowered to please the unconverted, especially the fashionable and rich, in order to keep their sympathies, and influence them to help sustain the worldly churches. These sharp men can see through the thin gauze made to cover up the religious deformities of those who are trying in all ways to get their money and influence, and they turn away disquieted at such a bungling counterfeit of christianity, feeling about as safe in their unconverted state, as they would with such a religious cloak to cover their filthy rags. This sad state of things is not confined to California, but is becoming more common in all parts of the civilized world. These facts admonish us that we are amid the perils of the last days.

We still find Bro. Bailey manifesting a kindred spirit in this blessed work. He has heard us preach the whole truth, as we understand the Bible to teach; but he is just as kind, sympathetic, and brotherly as before. He does not yet see all things just as we do; but he stands ready to receive the light as fast as he comprehends it. He is satisfied that Jesus is soon coming, which causes him to lift up his head and rejoice. He appears to be emptied of sectarianism, and is ready to do or believe everything that he thinks is pleasing to the Lord. We feel very thankful that such a true man has been raised up to watch over these dear lambs of Christ, after our departure. Grievous wolves are prowling around to catch them; but Bro. Bailey is a faithful watchman, who will not flee when he sees the enemy approaching, nor be frightened from his position by the cry of "heresy," or through fear of losing his reputation. He counted the cost, and committed all to the care of Jesus.

Next Friday, Feb. 24th, we purpose to meet again for baptism. Some fourteen have expressed a wish to be baptized at that time. Others will probably unite with them. The converts are bright specimens of christianity. So far as we know, they have embraced the whole truth. Some of them were turned from their infidelity on account of hearing the very things, for the belief of which we are shut out of popular churches, and ranked with infidels.

Our meetings in the Music Hall are discontinued this week because the hall is engaged for other purposes. We had it full every night, and great interest was manifested. Many questions were asked, which helped to develope the truth. Infidels, Spiritualists, Orthodox ministers, laymen, Catholics and Mormons, improved the opportunity, and presented their best questions orally and in writing. Those scenes of thrilling interest will be long remembered by those present. We are most heartily delighted with the results. We are fully satisfied that seed has been sown that will germinate, spring up, and bear fruit to the glory of God. The neglected Book is now being read and examined with an interest and pleasure never before realized on this coast.

Again, we wish to thank our friends who furnished money to pay for the use of the hall. We trust they will never have cause to repent on account of the gift. It came just the right time. This week our meetings are being held in the Minna street church, of which Bro. Bailey is pastor. It is a blessed place to those who love Jesus and his coming. Our friends at Rutland, Vt., will understand our meaning. The meetings here are like those there last spring. We feel, talk, sing, pray, and love after the same pattern. We have meetings every day at two P. M., prayer meeting again at forty-five minutes past six, preaching at half-past seven, followed by a conference meeting till about twenty minutes past nine; and then we have a general talk for some twenty minutes after the close of the meeting. It is hard to leave the consecrated spot.

Bro. G. P. Dykes, a preacher among the "Disciples," came about one hundred miles to seek after the light which he heard was shining in San Francisco. We found him an honest-hearted man, who was anxious to know the whole truth. He feels a lack of something in his present situation, and is quite well satisfied that he found in our meetings a people enjoying and believing just what he most needed to fill up the vacuum. He has had a very interesting experience, and gave us some valuable light in relation to the Mormons, some of whom reside in this city, and attempted to take his life in 1864. He gave us startling facts in relation to the character of Mormonism. Continue to pray for us.

THE VOICE OF MANY.

An intelligent lady in San Francisco, who had attended our meetings for some time, and been blest by so doing, being brought from the dark abyss of Spiritualism and infidelity to the comforts of the christian religion, sent us a private note, containing a double gold eagle, as a token of gratitude for the light she had received while listening to the discussion, and lectures on the mortal nature of man. In the note she says:—

> "I see what mighty weapons they [these truths] are with which to fight error. . . . I believe it was the doctrine of eternal torment of the wicked more than any thing else, that led me, in early life, into utter disbelief of the Bible, as a revelation from God. For many years I honestly and earnestly labored with all my power to remove all faith in it from the mind of every one with whom I came in contact. Several have told me that I was the means of destroying their faith in the Bible, as a revelation from God. I would to heaven I could say as much in regard to my being the means of establishing the truths of that book in the minds of others. . . .
>
> This same doctrine of eternal torment, which I never had a doubt but what the Bible taught, has made me often take refuge in that 'refuge of lies,' Spiritualism."

Now, this lady's voice may be heard in the prayer and conference meetings, confessing Jesus. She now sees that the Bible does not teach the doctrine of "eternal torment."

SCOFFERS.

The last-day scoffers are multiplying around us, and are becoming bold in their mockings against the word of the Lord. After the close of our discussion with Mr. J. S. Loveland, in San Francisco, it was thought best, by him and some of his friends, to issue the following

NOTICE.

> "The advent of the great Adventist, ELDER MILES GRANT, in San Francisco, has created a profound sensation in the public mind. The great discussion on immortality, which filled Dashaway Hall to overflowing, followed by the Elder's lectures on prophecy, and the speedy coming of the Lord Jesus Christ, in the clouds of heaven; and the utter destruction of nearly the whole human race, has called forth the demand for "more light" on this subject.
>
> To meet this demand, the Rev. J. S. Loveland has consented to give a series of lectures in review of Grant's scarecrow perversions of John and Daniel. The great image, the four beasts, the dragon, the horns, heads, tail, antichrist, Louis Napoleon, the pope, and all other points, will be fully met and explained."

According to the foregoing notice, Mr. Loveland gave a lecture to about fifty persons the first night. The second evening some eight or nine came to hear, but the lectures were indefinitely postponed, and have not been heard from since. We loaned to Mr. L. our chart, representing the visions of Daniel and John; but it would not contradict what we had said on other occasions; and it came back to us to tell its truthful story to others who love the truth, and are willing to take heed to the "sure word of prophecy."

CALIFORNIA ITEMS.

CHINESE NAMES.—The following is a sample of the Chinese names, as we see them on their signs in San Francisco: Wing Yek; Sing Wa; Ouong Wo; Kong Wan; Tang Gee; Thoon Lee; Log Sing; Ung Lee; Tung King, Vaun Sing, Lun Hop, Woo Yek, Wing Lee.

GREEN PEAS have been in the San Francisco market for some weeks, at this date (Feb. 21st.)

WATERING TROUGHS.—The best arrangements we have seen in any city for watering horses is to be found in San Francisco. At the corner of the streets, and frequently midway between, are watering troughs, from ten to twenty-five feet in length, which are filled by means of hose attached to the hydrants.

GREEN MOSS grows on the roofs of buildings in San Francisco. This is occasioned by the deposit of dust, vegetable matter, and the warm weather. This moss holds more or less moisture, which serves to rot the roofs much sooner than they would decay in New England.

"TO LET." In no other city have we seen so many rooms and buildings marked "to let" as in San Francisco. A large number of families hire rooms, and take their meals at eating saloons; while those who have spare rooms, let them as a means of support. At the present time, business is quite dull in San Francisco, which accounts for the many rooms "to let."

"THE RESURRECTION OF THE DEAD."

As usual a very large concourse of people assembled in Platt's Hall to hear Elder Grant last evening, his theme being "The Resurrection of the Dead." The texts taken by the Elder were from Job 14: 14—"If a man die, shall he live again?" and Isa. 26: 19—"Thy dead men shall live." The Elder stated that the doctrine of the resurrection was held of more importance by the early christians than those of the present time, many not believing in a literal resurrection of the dead. Some believe that possibly "a new body may be made out of new material." This, however, would not be resurrection but a creation. If any one could convince him that there was no resurrection, then he would acknowledge that he was a lost man. The Elder believed in the actual and literal resurrection of the

IDENTICAL BODY

that is buried. If this were not so, he said, the Bible was not true, for in the Bible the resurrection was always spoken of in a literal sense. For instance, the Bible stated that if "a man dies he will live again." Any one, therefore, that should say that there was no resurrection would call the Apostles liars, for they distinctly said that there is a resurrection. "Did not Christ come from the dead? Was that no resurrection?" The Elder stated that cunning and acute as man might be he could not raise a man from death; he had no power so to do. Christ said that "He that liveth and believeth in me shall never die." That was, that those who believed in Christ and were alive when he should come would not die. The Elder said he did not believe in a man dying and being in torture for some thousand years, or perhaps more, and then being judged to see if he had been in the right place all the time, or if he were qualified to get into a better one. Was it any more difficult for God to find a man and put him together than it was to make one in the first place?

In short, the Elder believes in the resurrection of the body—not a body made for the occasion, for that, he contends, would not be resurrection. He believes that our bodies as we have them now will rise, only in a glorified and purified state. That, he contends, is taught all through the Bible, not in an allegorical, but in a literal sense.

As usual, at the conclusion of the lecture, a collection was taken up. The Elder announced that on the last five lectures he was $40 75 out of pocket. After the collection the usual discussion was carried on, the Elder maintaining his position against all comers.—Daily (Cal.) Chronicle, Feb. 8th, 1871.

NEW TRACTS.

WHO ARE SADDUCEES? OR, TRUTH VINDICATED. Being a Review of "The Wicked not Annihilated; or, Modern Sadduceeism Refuted, by Israel P. Warren." By GEO. THOMSON.

The above is a valuable Tract of 32 pages, published by the Author, Attica, Wis. 10 cts. per copy; 75 cts. per dozen, postpaid.

"A COLPORTEUR'S NOTES, by John B. Wadsworth, Memphis, Tenn." Published by the Author.

An interesting pamphlet of 48 pages, giving some incidents in the experience of the author, as tract distributor: a dialogue between a Baptist missionary and an Adventist, together with choice sayings, valuable receipts, etc., etc. Price 10 cts.; postage 2 cts.

Both of the above are for sale at this office. AG'T.

THE MORMON BIBLE.

Having often heard the Mormons deny that they recognize the Book of Mormon as a Bible, I clip this item from a sermon recently preached by Orson Pratt in the Salt Lake Tabernacle, reported in the Desert News of Dec. 3d, 1870—a Mormon paper:

> "Let us now inquire, for a few moments, in what manner this gospel was restored by an angel. Did it come to us verbally, from His mouth, or was there a revelation communicated and written containing this everlasting gospel? We testify that by the ministration of this angel, sent from heaven, in fulfillment of John, an ancient Bible, kept by ancient prophets, was brought to light,—the Bible of ancient America. Of course it has a little different name—we call it the Book of Mormon. This Bible contains the everlasting gospel."

This is owning the coin—they do make that book a new Bible,—or rather a newly found Bible,—found by a ghost of an American prophet, called Maroni, and dug up by Joseph Smith. This departed Maroni, who is said to have pointed out to Joseph the hiding-place of the new "Bible," is also called an angel; from which we learn that death transforms prophets into angels, according to Mormon theology. The same sermon affirms:

> "That book also informs us that Jesus, after he was crucified in Jerusalem, appeared on this American continent, and commanded the people to do away with the law of Moses which their fathers were in possession of and kept; and he introduced the everlasting gospel in their midst; and he commanded them to write it on the plates, from which this book was translated. Thus you see that this is a record of the everlasting gospel, as Jesus, himself, administered it to the people of this continent eighteen hundred years ago, that is, after his resurrection from the dead, and after he had finished his ministry in Jerusalem.
>
> On what part of this continent did Jesus appear? He appeared in what is now termed the northern part of South America, where they had a temple built, at which place the people gathered together, some twenty-five hundred in number, marvelling and wondering at the great earthquake that had taken place on this land, which had destroyed so many cities, etc., and the great darkness that had overshadowed the land, which was a sign given them by prophecy concerning the crucifixion of Christ. They were marvelling and wondering about it, and while they were talking over it, nearly a year after the resurrection of Jesus, they heard a voice in the heavens, and casting their eyes heavenward they saw a man descend out of heaven, clothed in a white robe; and he came down and stood in the midst of them, and told them he was Christ, about whom their prophets had written; and that he had been crucified for the sins of the world. He then chose twelve disciples from amongst them, and administered his gospel unto them."

This locates the second coming of Christ in the past, "nearly a year after the resurrection of Jesus"; so if he ever comes again, according to the Mormon Bible, it cannot be the "second time," as Paul affirmed. Was Paul mistaken? W. S.

"HAUNTED GROUNDS."

In former years, superstition in the north, and elsewhere, has pictured to fruitful imaginations a great many haunted houses; but of late years they have greatly diminished in number. While on my mission to the South, I learn that the negroes are famous for having "haunted grounds," in every town, and often in every neighborhood—often a piece of ground by the road-side, or a certain field, where ghosts are seen frequently, especially on very dark nights; and many of the whites partake of the same superstition, and sometimes see ghosts on these haunted grounds. Why these ghosts have such a relish for houses in a cold country, and for grounds in a warm climate, we will not attempt to determine. But that they are often seen, either by literal eyes, or by the eyes of the imagination, is certain. The following is a remarkable case: Recently, in Central Georgia, a white man and two negroes were passing over a haunted ground, doubtless expecting to see some strange sight; and when near its centre, the white man saw a person approaching on foot; at the same time one negro saw a person riding on a small white mule, and the other negro saw a person riding on a large black horse. Three witnesses thus report the same sight. Did they see with literal eyes, or eyes of imagination? And have mules and horses been turned into beastly ghosts by death, for human ghosts to ride on? Is "the spirit of the beast" an immaterial beast? "They have all one ruah"—spirit. W. S.

SOUTHERN QUERIES ANSWERED.—"Do you believe in the immortality of the soul?"

Yes, at the resurrection, but not before; and then the righteous only will be made immortal, soul and body.

"Do you believe that the soul of man leaves the body at death?"

Certainly, when the term is used as a synonym of life; but do not believe that a personality leaves.

"What becomes of the spirit of man at the death of the body?"

It returns to God who gave it; and as God gave it as an element, and not as a personality, it returns as an element, and not as a personality. The spirit of life sustains a relation to man similar to that which the mainspring sustains to the watch. The watch cannot keep time without the mainspring, nor can the mainspring keep time separate from the watch. So the human machinery is kept in motion by the spirit of life, the result being thought, and various passions of the mind, according to the perfection or imperfection of the machinery; but this spirit is no more a man, than the mainspring of the watch is a watch.

"Do you not believe in reward after death?"

Certainly, after the dead are raised; but the theory of a judgment for the spirit, and a reward for the spirit, separate from the body, is nowhere taught in the Bible; indeed, there is but one judgment scene described in the word of God, and then those who are found deposited in the "sea," or enveloped in "death" elsewhere, are to be "judged" (Rev. 20: 13); so, as the corporeal man is to be judged, that must be the accountable man, as God will not judge unaccountable men; hence, the spirit is not judged or rewarded alone, not being the accountable part, as that reposes in the arms of death till the resurrection. W. S.

STATE OF THINGS AT THE SOUTH.

I find many things different from what I expected before coming South. Take the following as samples:

1. After getting well down South, the bills at the eating houses on the R. R. lines that I have traveled on, are $1 00 per meal, and in some places even $1 50 per meal; nor is it possible to get any thing to eat either on the train, or at the stations, without getting a meal.

2. The cheapest hotels charge $4.00 per day, and others still higher prices.

3. It is rarely possible to obtain board at the boarding houses for less than $8 00 per week. Edibles are high, being mostly imported, Georgia being chiefly engaged in raising cotton, instead of produce to feed the people.

4. But few white women know how to do their own cooking, having had servants to do it for them formerly; so even though now reduced to poverty, they manage to hire a colored servant to cook for them, and wait upon them; and the same is largely true of the men—work is the last resort.

5. Southern hospitality, so much spoken of in former years, though not all dead yet, is fast expiring. A southern lady of high culture, who had spent two summers at the North, told me that southern generosity, hitherto so much praised, would soon fall far below the hospitality of the northerners.

6. Since their freedom, the negroes generally go armed with revolvers or knives. The probabilities of a war of the races are much talked about. Southerners can neither live with the blacks, nor without them; they are needed, yet dreaded. W. S.

☞ THE LITTLE CHRISTIAN comes to us in a new, attractive dress. What it lacks in illustrations, it fully redeems in its original and selected reading matter. 25 cts. a year. Can be had of H. L. Hastings, 19 Lindall Street, this city.

For the World's Crisis.

FREE MASONRY.

Mr. C. A. Blanchard, "Lecturer and agent of the National Association of Christians opposed to Secret Societies," gave a course of four lectures at Washburn Hall a few weeks ago, on the history, principles, obligations or oaths, and anti-christian character of Freemasonry. There was a good attendance, the hall being well filled each evening. He was listened to with profound attention, while he showed up the ridiculous ceremonies and evil tendencies of the horrid oaths of this claimed-for Christian institution.

I am thankful that the people of Worcester have heard on this subject. I know that some have had their eyes opened to the truth, and were convinced that Mr. Blanchard told the truth in regard to the institution, and will not join it; whereas if they had not heard, they might have been induced to join. In fact, I have heard them say so. Well, may the Lord bless Mr. Blanchard in his work of love, to save the young men from joining themselves to this oath-bound and anti-christian society.

There are quite a number out lecturing against Masonry; but there are not enough; every minister ought to speak more or less against the institution. Where are our Advent preachers? It seems to me they ought to be awake on this subject; they speak against every other evil, but do not touch this. Why? Are you afraid? If so, throw your fears to the winds, and come out against every evil that is in the land, and the Lord will bless you. I wish our papers—the Crisis and Times—would have something to say about secret societies. Shall we not have the opinion of the editors through their columns? Yours for the cause of Christ,

Worcester, Mass. G. E. MERRILL.

— Ministers are stars, and Christ knows best in what part of the firmament of the church to fix them.

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield Camp-ground, August 26th, 1870, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the coming year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

WM. B. HERRON, Sec'y Adv. Chr. Pub. Soc'y.

Remittances should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass., or they may be enclosed with remittances to the Crisis office.

Donations for the Tract Fund.

Previous acknowledgments	$365 66
H. B.	5 00
F. L. Smith	5 00
Loring Morse	2 00
Mary Morse	.50
F. Sherman	.75
"E. G."	.50
H. E. Whipple	.50

POOR FUND.

(To send the Crisis to the Poor.)

Previous acknowledgments	$37.15

YOUNG PILGRIM FUND.

Previous acknowledgments	$17 58

AMER. ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

Donations are earnestly solicited, to enable this Society to send out missionaries, and other means, into the Southern States, and elsewhere, as the Lord may open the door, to proclaim "the glad tidings of the kingdom at hand"; and should be sent, as also payments of pledges made, to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, P. O. Drawer 202, Boston, Mass., who will acknowledge the same in the columns of the Crisis.

Previous acknowledgments	$1,086 31
F. L. Smith	5 00
"A Sister"	10 00
B. R. Fellows	5 00
A Friend	3 00
C. F.	1.00
John Sadler	10 00
"Contributions from Colorado"	2 00

THE CALIFORNIA MISSION.

TO THE CRISIS:—Although it is only a day or so since I wrote you what I fear must be regarded as an uncomfortably long letter, I feel impelled to write again to-night. But now I will be brief, and I am sure what I have to say will be interesting.

Since the date of my last communication, I have heard and seen evidences of a great advance in the cause of truth in this city. Platt's Hall was filled last Thursday evening, when Eld. Grant lectured on the punishment of the wicked. Not less than eighteen hundred persons were present. In that audience were many men whom I know right well—men of the best intelligence, of large means and influence. I remarked that of this number the majority exhibited an intense interest in the discourse. I have taken advantage of a few hours' interval in my business since the meeting referred to, to visit these men at their stores and offices. In one roundabout form or another, I have brought out the topics and the preacher of the Advent Mission. Generally the matter has been so approached that my friends have first named the Elder and his prominent themes. I was even amazed at the expressions of earnest desire to "hear more on the questions that fellow discussed." They are all going again. They all want to know where books on the prophecies, etc., can be had. On one or two occasions I was advised to "go and hear that man Grant" myself; assured that he "seemed to make the Bible read as plain as a primer"; informed that "preaching eternal torment in hell-fire" was "played out in this city, since Grant opened on the orthodox creed." These expressions have a decidedly worldly twang, I am well aware; but their literal reporting will give you a better idea of the sentiments of the people whose views I have canvassed, than if I had presented their substance in nicer language.

The discourse of "that fellow," Thursday evening last, was particularly excellent. In the opening there was a comprehensive yet compact statement of the meaning of "soul." Then the "jury" was empaneled, and Paul placed upon the stand. Does Paul teach the eternal torment of the finally impenitent in hell-fire? or elsewhere? And Paul's statements are rehearsed and critically examined. At the close only five voted in favor of the declaration that Paul taught the doctrine of eternal torment, while full five hundred responded with uplifted hand to the call for votes on the negative of the topic inquiry.

Now, don't be trying to pull the Elder home before June. And if time lasts he must return here next December. Let some of the younger soldiers attend to the winter services in the frosty East. It may be inquired, Where are the younger missionaries? Sure enough. The Elder is not apparently any older than when I first knew him—sixteen or seventeen years ago. The only difference that I can notably remark in regard to him, between his appearance then and now, is this,—then the Elder wore a wondrous fashioned coon-skin coat, all buttoned down before!

The Elder is now in San Jose, where his engagement runs for a week. Then he returns to this city, and re-opens Platt's Hall for Mission services. I expect the tidings for you will be better and better as the services here continue. There are hundreds of little yet very significant indications. For instance: The Young Men's Christian Association of this city, or those of authority in its management, announce a daily noon prayer-meeting at the Hall of the Association, to which "all who love His appearing" (sic) are cordially invited. How did the prayer meeting leaders come by that term? Every one in this city who takes a real interest in religious matters (and many others) are talking of this new proclamation—"Behold, the Bridegroom cometh!" From common conversation it slipped into the advertisement. C.

San Francisco, Feb. 18th, 1871.

For the World's Crisis.

ENOUGH FOR ALL.

"Yes, there's work to do for Jesus,
And the harvest is in view,
There's a great work everywhere to do.
There is work to do for Jesus,
And the harvesters are few.
There's enough work for all to do."

When we lift our eyes and behold the fields white already to harvest, and remember that he that reapeth receiveth wages and gathereth fruit unto life eternal, how can we fold our hands in inglorious ease, while souls on our right hand and on our left are hastening down to death? How can we close our eyes and stop our ears when all around us sinners are preparing for a plunge into everlasting perdition, and it is in our power to warn them of their peril? Hard-hearted indeed we should be were it but a temporal loss which threatened those about us, if we could idly sit and watch the indications of approaching danger, without giving sign or word of admonition. Society would not tolerate us. We should be scouted and scourged from the community of civilized beings, as unworthy the name of common humanity, did we manifest but half the indifference which is too often apparent when eternal interests are at stake.

Surely we who mark the tokens of approaching doom, and discern the signs of earth's speedy dissolution, will not prove so recreant to our high profession. The harvest is to be gathered. The field is wide. There is room for all to work. God has appointed a place for every one. Varied as the wants and woes of burdened humanity, are the opportunities for usefulness presented to christian workers. O let us give ourselves anew to labor. With the love of Christ shedding its sweet and holy influence over all our lives, let us bear in mind that

"There is work to do for Jesus,
Yes, a glorious work to do;
For a harvest fully ripened,
Rich and golden, lies in view.
With a prayer to God our Father,
Let us all the work pursue,
For our risen Lord is calling,
And the harvesters are few."

Thoughts and feelings similar to the above, have led some of our sisters to heed the call of the Spirit, and go forth into the gospel field, content to labor, Ruth-like, among the gleaners, that so they might be permitted to share in the glad rejoicing of the blessed "Harvest-home." That the blessing of the Lord has attended them, is evident to those who have witnessed their success, and especially to those who have attended the stated meetings of the "Woman's Christian Association," formed for mutual assistance and strength and comprising laborers in the different departments of gospel work.

Others have become acquainted with their success, as well as with the variety of labor performed, through the organ of the Association—"Woman and her Work"—a monthly paper of sixteen pages; established, as the prospectus informs us, for the purpose of enlarging the sphere of woman's usefulness, especially in that department which becomes her so well, namely, Christian Charity. Published at Concord, N. H. Edited by Mrs. T. F. Sargent, the wife of Elder C. W. Sargent, well known to many as a woman of large intellectual endowments and generous culture. Of the corresponding editors, four in number, we notice the names of Mrs. E. S. Jennings and Mrs. L. M. Stoddard, and many familiar names among the regular contributors, whose ability to render the paper both interesting and profitable needs no endorsement. We bespeak for both the paper and the Association the sympathy and support of all those who love our Lord's appearing, and who desire to "help those women" who labor in the gospel.

CARRIE W. BIXBY.

For the World's Crisis.

CHURCH DIVISIONS.

THE CAUSES.

2. Jealousy may be named as a faithful cause of disaffection and distraction. It is akin to "evil-surmising." While gospel "charity thinketh no evil," and puts the best construction on everything, jealousy looks with distrustful eyes, and surmises that there may be evil where none appears. Not satisfied with such evidences of wrong as lie upon the surface of things, it travels down the pathway of secret-judging into the hidden motives of the heart, and thinks it discovers what might possibly develop itself in improper action. It is also akin to envy. It is that unsanctified sensitiveness that feels uncomfortable over the prosperity of others, and would often mar the happiness of another for the sake of enhancing its own. It is easily affronted. A word of pleasantry is translated into a base insult, and an accidental inattention into a personal slight. Generally reticent and unsocial itself, it expects others to make all the advances. It is full of suspicions. Its eyes and ears and nose are constantly distended, to see or hear or smell something that may detract from the reputed goodness of others. All its senses seem acutely developed. It revels in darkness, and gluts itself on moral carrion. It knows far more of other people's failures than of its own. Its constant murmurings are greatly damaging to the spirit of brotherly love. It is not a drawing but a dividing spirit. It magnifies mole-hills into mountains, and causes painful chasms to yawn between those who ought to be one in Christ Jesus. No wonder Inspiration has affirmed that "jealousy is cruel as the grave." Many a man has forfeited his grace and spoiled his usefulness by giving place to this little "blue devil" that is always so ready to enter the human heart.

3. Censoriousness. If jealousy is secret-judging, censoriousness is open-judging. It is jealousy developed—emboldened—clothing its bitter thoughts in words of condemnation. It is neither frankness nor boldness—neither earnestness nor fidelity. All these are commendable. Christians should have clear convictions and possess an uncompromising spirit. They are to "reprove, rebuke, exhort," yet they are to do it "with all long-suffering." Censoriousness consists in harsh judging and bitter denunciation. It proceeds from a sourness of spirit, or a mistaken notion of duty. Some people take altogether too much responsibility in pronouncing verdicts upon their fellows. I have known persons to be repulsed, discouraged, and perhaps driven beyond the reach of christian effort, by a spirit of senseless brow-beating. Censoriousness makes but little allowance for honest differences of opinion, and grants no liberty of conscience in the practical workings of christianity.

The cause of God is often sadly retarded by the exhibition of a "you-think-as-I-do-or-be-damned" spirit! Such a spirit of intoleration will naturally beget its like. When one man cruelly denounces another, the second will either feel grieved and discouraged, or be aroused to resent the baseless charge, by hurling back the same kind of "shot and shell." In either case there is a loss of love, confidence, and unity. How much we need to learn the lesson of mutual forbearance! While we shoot sharp arrows, let them not be poisoned with jealousy and hate. The "sword of the Spirit" is better than the meat-axe of malice. "Let us not therefore judge one another any more: but judge this rather, that no man put a stumbling block or an occasion to fall in his brother's way."

Rochester, N. Y. A. A. PHELPS.

For the World's Crisis.

"TO DIE IS GAIN."—It is generally supposed that this "gain" is Paul's, but I would suggest that it is Christ's. The previous verse suggests this. . . . "Christ shall be magnified in my body, whether it be by life, or by death." He then goes on to say—"For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain."

TIMOTHY WHEELER.
Waterbury Center, Vt.

For the World's Crisis.

DISCUSSION IN MAINE.

Bro. Grant:—The discussion on the immortality of man, between Bro. M. W. Corliss, and Eld. E. B. Fletcher of the Methodist Episcopal church, came off as appointed, being held in Milltown, Me., and closing up Dec. 1st. The discussion was one of much interest, and was listened to by a large audience, who assembled in the Methodist chapel for three days to hear this important subject discussed. Eld. Fletcher opened the debate, affirming that man is now immortal. This position be tried hard to sustain, and laid down several propositions from which he argued to prove man's immortality. Eld. Corliss manfully met the arguments of his opponent, and showed that after all reasoning and inference had been exhausted, the question remained as far from being decided as before. Without the Bible all was uncertainty on this subject. With it the question could be satisfactorily settled. So to the Scriptures he appealed, and soon showed that Mr. Fletcher's position was opposed to the word of truth.

For three sessions Bro. Corliss followed Mr. Fletcher in all the windings of his serpentine theory, after which Eld. C. took the affirmative of the proposition—"Man is not immortal," and presented a powerful Bible argument to sustain his position.

His argument on this point Eld. F. scarcely touched or tried to meet, and rarely spoke much over one half of the time to which be was entitled. Finally, finding himself falling so far in the rear, and evidently realizing his inability to answer Bro. C.'s Scripture argument, he resorted to misrepresentation and ridicule, to throw what impediments he could in his way. Eld. C. paid no attention to them, and maintained throughout the spirit of a christian.

Many expressed themselves as satisfied with the result of the discussion; and some who had never decided upon the question of man's nature and destiny came out decided to believe and obey the truth. The congregation, made up of all denominations and shades of opinion in the place, were reckoned by good judges, at the close of the discussion, to be fully three to one favorable to the position maintained by Bro. Corliss.

So truth has suffered nothing in this case in being compared with the fables and traditions of men. And instead of Mr. Fletcher overturning the "Advent, Millerite, Materialistic Annihilationists," as he terms them, he has left them stronger than before the discussion.

J. M. Tozier.

For the World's Crisis.

Iowa Christian Conference. Q. M.—Met Jan. 28th, at Boylan's Grove, Butler Co., Iowa. Bro. Durand chosen Chairman, and J. J. Towsley, Secretary pro tem. Bro. C. L. Jones chosen delegate for the Boylan's Grove church. Visiting brethren are invited to take part with us. Bro. N. T. Eggleston was received to membership.

Voted, to hold the next quarterly meeting at Clear Lake, March 10th. The meeting was well attended, and we trust some good was done in reclaiming backsliders, and turning sinners to God. Preaching by Bro. A. H. Eggleston, N. F. Eggleston, L. Lyons, and P. S. W. Deyo.

J. J. Towsley, Sec'y pro tem.

☞ "I am highly instructed concerning Health, by the work of Dr. Hall's, which I have read with almost entire satisfaction."

S. S. Brewer.

Extracts from Letters.

Bro. P. S. W. Deyo writes:—"With the year 1871 I resumed the mission work, by appointment of the special conference held at New Hartford, Iowa, which closed on the first day of January. Jan. 2nd I left for Boylan's Grove. Bro. Alonzo Raymond was with me. From there I went to my home at Charles City, Iowa. Jan. 8th, went with Bro. A. Wilbur and filled his appointment on the Little Cedar. Jan. 14-16, spoke four times to the Clear Lake brethren. Two backsliders were reclaimed. I was sent for to go to New Hartford to help Bro. Ramsay. Found the work going on well when I arrived there. Jan. 27th, went to the quarterly meeting at Boylan's Grove, Iowa. Preaching attended with good results. Four backsliders were reclaimed, one who has formerly been a public speaker. Jan. 31st, Bro. Ramsay arrived at Charles City, to help me in the meeting, which we held till Feb. 6th. Feb 7th commenced at Floyd. We had the promise of the Presbyterian house, but when we got there the preacher objected, so they let us into the basement. Went to Clear Lake Feb. 11-12. Four united with the church. Bro. Ramsay remained at Floyd till Feb. 16th, then had to leave; so I continued the meeting. Two united with the church, and we raised $1500 in one night to build a meeting-house. The brethren expect to build one that will cost from two to three thousand dollars. Bro. Ramsay and myself worked together as one to advance the cause of Christ."

Bro. H. B. Sevey writes:—"Since my last letter, I have been doing what I could to give meat in due season. Find the truth gaining ground. Have held meetings in my own neighborhood. Some good meetings. Some have started anew for the kingdom. Our Dedication and Conference was one of interest. Our house is all we could wish for. Bro. I. C. Wellcome, Nason, Doughty, Jackson, Rhodes, Darwin and Beau, were present to preach the word. The house is nearly paid for, only twenty dollars due me,—thanks to those who have helped. May it prove to be for the glory of God."

Sr. S. E. Elliott writes:—"He that giveth to the poor lends to the Lord. Bro. and Sister A. J. Elliott, are the Lord's poor, and need help. Any assistance for them, sent to Sarah E. Elliott, West Rumney, N. H., will be thankfully received."

Dr. L. Watson and C. C. Tuck write from Bangor, Me.:—"Sister Lucretia Tuttle, of Bangor, who is a widow, is in destitute circumstances. She has been sick for over five years, and utterly unable to provide for herself. She is one of Christ's 'little flock.' Any wishing to send money for Sister Tuttle, can enclose and direct to either of us, Bangor, Me., and it will be thankfully received, and acknowledged through the Crisis."

Bro. C. H. Sweet writes:—"My health is so much improved, I shall (D. V.) go on to Vienna to-day, and try to preach to the people of that vicinity the glorious truths with which God has blessed us. I feel satisfied that our heavenly Father is answering the petitions of those who have been so earnestly praying for my speedy restoration to health. Join with me in thanking him for the loving kindness he is thus manifesting towards me."

☞ One kernel is felt in a hogshead—one drop of water helps to swell the ocean—a spark of fire helps to give light to the world. You are a small man, passing amid the crowd, you are hardly noticed; but you have a drop, a spark within you that may be felt through eternity. Do you believe it? Set that drop in motion, give wings to that spark, and behold the results! It may renovate the world. None are too small—too feeble—too poor to be of service. Think of this, and act. Life is no trifle.

Things Preachers might Avoid.—1. They might avoid apologies, unnecessary personal explanations, hawking, clearing up their throats or adjusting their dress when they arise to preach. It is always gratifying to the congregation for a preacher to proceed at once to the discussion of his subject, or text, which should be distinctly stated in the first sentences that fall from his lips. Nothing is more appropriate in a preacher than respectful attention to his hearers, and total indifference to himself.

2. Preachers ought to avoid intimating, by word or manner, that they are going to close the sermon and not do it. We have known some to give notice three or four times that they were going to quit,—but breaking out afresh would go on at wearying length, disappointing the expectations which their unwise and repeated intimations had created. Two popular qualifications of a preacher are to know how to begin and how to end a sermon, and the gift of knowing, exactly, when to quit, we should infer, is of the highest order from its rare attainment.—Western Recorder.

Save your Papers.—The value of a good religious paper but few appreciate. It is taken up and read in the same way as the daily, and when read, cast one side without a thought, and it finally reaches the waste basket. Now, it seems to me that a religious paper has not accomplished the good for which it was intended by any such brief existence. It should be read and re-read after the family have all thoroughly read it. Lend it to your neighbor, marking the paper,—"After reading, pass it along to your neighbor," and in this manner it will be in use until it is worn out. Another good use that these papers can be put to, is to send them also to some poor minister, who cannot afford to take one, and thus gladden his heart. A paper containing so many good thoughts and advice applicable to every station in life, should be used to its fullest extent. The word of the Master will not accomplish its whole mission, my fellow-reader, if you appropriate your paper wholly to your own use. Circulate it, circulate it.—Ex.

Too Much Dress.—It is sometimes found difficult to induce pupils to go to Sunday school because of a fancied lack of suitable clothing. A young teacher makes a valuable suggestion in the Independent. It is to the effect that wealthy parents should send their children to Sunday-school dressed in every-day clothes, and teachers should go plainly dressed. We may add, that fine clothes, rustling silks, flounces and furbelows are out of place in church or Sunday school. Extravagant dress in church is a vulgarism peculiar to Americans. Wise teachers, if they discover that their dress absorbs the attention of their pupils, very soon learn to leave their superfluous finery for full-dress occasions.—Christian at Work.

The Church needs business men as well as preachers—workers, indeed, rather more than talkers. The gospel has no controversy with the rich man whose conscience enlarges with his expanding purse. It censures only the covetous, the selfish—the man whose eye would spoil a neighbor's home to fill out some unrounded corner of his own possession; the man who starts up and half swears in his sleep at the possible unbottoming of iron safes; the man of wealth who seems hardly to possess anything but suspicion of his fellowmen; the man whose gains only serve as swallows of salt-water to his thirsty throat; the miser.—Ex.

Married.

CARR—DUTTON. In Vienna, Me., Feb. 2nd, by H. B. Sevey, Mr. E. P. Carr and Miss W. E. Dutton, both of Mt. Vernon, Me.

BRITTAN—MILLER. In Westboro, Feb 27th, by Rev. G. H. Child, Mr. J. W. Brittan, Jr., and Miss Maria L. Miller, both of W.

BARNUM—YOUNG. In Manchester, N. H., March 1st, by Eld. C. H. Fletcher, Mr. George D. Barnum, of Worcester, Mass., and Miss Sophia E. Young, of Manchester.

Obituaries.

Lang. Died, in Meredith, N. H., Feb 16th, 1871, of consumption, Susan B., wife of Elder T. E. Lang, aged thirty-nine years.

We have to bid her farewell for a little season, until the morning comes which shall usher in the glad day, in which the dead shall live again. If it were not for the bright prospect ahead, of one day realizing the blessed promise of God, to bring the loved and dead ones forth from their graves to life and immortality, we never could endure it.

My companion was converted in 1863, and soon after embraced the doctrine of the coming of Christ, since which time she has lived a consistent christian. Words of consolation were spoken at the funeral by Bro. T. W. Piper.

T. E. Lang, Jr.

Howard. Died, in Mt. Vernon, Lawrence Co., Mo., Feb. 15th, of lockjaw, Martin L. Howard, formerly of Danielsonville, Ct., aged twenty-two years.

Martin sought and found the Savior about nine years ago, and was baptized by Bro. Grant. After years of wandering in deserts wild, and in a vain search for pleasure in the ways of the world, he once more set his face Zionward, and at last died in the faith, and his mourning friends have the blest assurance that he sleeps in Jesus. He leaves a wife and child, and a large circle of relatives to lament his early death. He was in the army several years, part of the time on the western frontier. He finally settled in Missouri, where, far from the home and friends of his youth,

He sleeps "in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep."

F. H. Chamberlain.

Batchelder. Died, in New Market, N. H., Feb. 22nd, 1871, D. Jennie Batchelder, aged twenty-three years and four months.

Her disease was putrid erysipelas, from which she suffered intensely for nearly eight weeks. She retained her reason till near the last, and had a good hope. For her death had no terrors, the grave no gloom. She leaves an afflicted father, two brothers, three sisters, and many friends to mourn her early departure from life.

M. A. Davis.

Preble. Died, in Richmond, Me., Feb. 14th, 1871, at the home of my brother, Elder N. Preble, my honored mother, in the eighty-fifth year of her age.

My mother had been a christian for more than fifty years. She rests in hope. I expect to meet her again at the resurrection of the just.

T. M. Preble.

Brown. Died, at Wayne, Feb. 19th, Samuel S. Brown, in the fifty-sixth year of his age.

Bro. Brown made a profession of religion some four years since, under the labors of Eld. E. Burnham. He sleeps. He leaves a widow and son to mourn his loss. May the grace of God sustain them. The funeral discourse was preached by the writer.

H. B. Sevey.

Woodruff. Died, at Avon, Feb. 8th, our father, Ozem Woodruff, aged eighty-two years.

We have laid him in his resting place, to wait for life till Jesus comes. Words of comfort spoken by B. Hitchcock, from Job 14: 14.

S. Woodruff.

Brown. Died, in North Scituate, R. I., Feb. 12th, Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Samuel J. and Adeline Brown, aged one year, two months, and twenty days.

N. A. Angell.

Osmon. Died, in Tunbridge, Ct., Feb. 27th, 1871, in hope of a glorious resurrection, Mrs. Mary L. Osmon, wife of A. Osmon, aged sixty-two yrs.

A. Merrill.

☞ India has proved one of the most hopeful of missionary fields. There are 260,000 Protestant Christians and 2,000 native preachers and catechists in that country. A hundred thousand boys and thirty thousand girls attend school where the Bible is specially taught. Twenty-five missionary societies converge their labors upon this point, and tracts, newspapers, magazines and Bibles are disseminated in vast quantities.—Christian Union.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

The Treaty Ratified.

Bordeaux, March 1. In the Assembly to-day the Committee of Consultation, which accompanied Thiers to Versailles, made a report, unanimously recommending the ratification by the Assembly of the preliminaries of peace agreed to and submitted by the President.

Bamberger, a deputy from the Department of Moselle, adjured the Assembly to reject any terms involving the cession of French territory, and strongly denounced Napoleon III. Violent agitation arose in the Chamber on an attempt by Conti, formerly a private secretary of the Emperor, to speak in justification of the Emperor.

The Assembly enthusiastically and unanimously voted by acclamation the resolution offered by Targe, decreeing the fall of the Empire and stigmatizing Napoleon as the author of the misfortunes of France.

The Assembly voted the ratification of the preliminary conditions of peace—546 to 107.

Russia and Prussia Congratulate each Other.

London, March 1. Emperor William has written to the Czar Alexander a letter announcing the terms of peace, and concluding as follows:

"We have arrived at the end of a glorious and bloody war, which was precipitated by the frivolity of the French. Prussia remembers that you prevented the spread of the war. God bless you!"

The Czar replied that he shared the joy felt by his illustrious brother, and hoped for a durable peace. He had proved a devoted friend. The happiness and glory of Russia were now insured.

Versailles, March 2. The Emperor's staff are quartered at the Palace of Elysees. General Kanecke commands the army of occupation.

A Prussian Military Commission has been established to receive complaints of the inhabitants who have deserted the occupied quarters of the city. The public buildings also have been deserted, and are closed. The Emperor declares he will not enter the city. The Crown Prince will, therefore, review the German army.

Favre to-day notified Bismarck of the vote of the National Assembly ratifying the preliminaries of peace. Bismarck at once replied that he was ready to exchange the formal ratifications, and that the Emperor had already signed the treaty.

The French indemnity is payable in three instalments, viz.: One milliard thalers in 1871, two milliards in 1872, and two milliards in 1873. Interest is only payable on the last instalment, from which the proportion of the debt appertaining to Alsace and Lorraine, estimated at one and a half millards of thalers, and the cost of railways in Eastern France, is to be deducted.

Paris, March 1. The Germans occupy all the quarters assigned to them, and perfect tranquility prevails.

London, March 3. The German troops have all left Paris.

The Mobiles and National Guards at Havre have been disbanded and the trenches around the town are being filled up.

London, March 6. Negotiations for a definitive treaty of peace will commence shortly at Brussels. Favre will be the French plenipotentiary. It is probable that Von Arnim, acting on the part of Germany, and Baron Bunde, as representative of France, have already settled the main points, but the details will occupy several months.

Intrigues for the Restoration of Napoleon.

The reports that intrigues are actively prosecuted for the restoration of Bonaparte continue. The friends of Napoleon say that he patiently and confidently awaits the popular decision, and abstains from all efforts to influence it.

From the preparations making at Chiselhurst it is believed that Napoleon will rejoin the Empress there and remain some time in England.

Paris, March 5. The Germans are evacuating the prescribed districts of France, in excellent order. Fort Valerien will be evacuated on the 7th. The generals of the French and German armies are arranging for the retirement of the Prussians before the advance of the French troops, so that collision between the two may be avoided. Other accounts state that parts of Paris are disaffected, and that the revolutionary element have entrenched themselves at Montmartre where they have a battery of twenty-seven guns, and that all the approaches are guarded. It has been decided to remove the general depot of ammunition from Paris, and locate it at some point better situated for public defence. The aspect of Paris is somewhat threatening. Last night the national guard made a serious demonstration against the authorities. They threatened the prison of St Pelagie, but the troops of the line remained firm and the national guard fell back.

DOMESTIC.

Religious Intelligence.

—— The Episcopal Bishop of Florida has ordained Mr. J. Robert Love, the first colored man ever episcopally ordained in the South. Mr. Love was complimented for his sound scholarship and manly sense, and is coming to New York, by invitation of Dr. Haight, to obtain funds for building a church and school in Florida.——There is a wonderful revival among the thirteen convicts in the Pittsburg, Pa., penitentiary.——During the gale, Feb. 17, the spire of the Oakland Church, Chicago, was blown down, and a few minutes later the roof fell in.——The Methodist church in Westfield employs a young woman in missionary work.——At Clyde, N. Y., a great revival of religion is taking place, chiefly in the Methodist church, where "over two hundred have been forward for prayers, and all who faithfully and earnestly sought have found." Workshops have been deserted to attend the meetings, which have been continued daily for some weeks.——The fruit of a revival in Guilford, Minn., is about forty conversions, including all but one of the Sabbath school scholars over ten years of age. ——A revival of great interest is in progress in the village of New Alstead, N. H., where, out of a population of 300, there have already been about thirty conversions.——Dr. Osgood made his first public appearance in his new relations with the Episcopal Church at a large meeting in Brooklyn, where Bishop Littlejohn presided. The sermon was very literary—delivered without notes.—— Rev. Phœbe A. Hanaford is at present doing a very successful work in reforming the fallen women of New Haven, Connecticut.——The Tablet looks hopefully forward to the day when Roman Catholicism shall be supreme in this country. Should such an event ever occur, it tells us that the clergy would at once be removed wholly out of the pale of the civil law, and be answerable for every offense whatsoever only to an ecclesiastical court!——The Baptist Magazine says it would not be surprised if the present generation should see Dr. Norman Macleod, or Mr. Newman Hall, or Mr. Spurgeon, in the pulpit of St. Paul's and Westminster Abbey. ——"Why don't you give us a little Greek and Latin occasionally?" asked a country deacon of a new minister. "Why, do you understand those languages?" was asked. "No, but we pay for the best and we ought to have it."—— Archbishop Purcell, of Cincinnati, having accepted the Dogma of infallibility and made his peace with Rome, has received an autograph letter from Pius IX., couched in admirable ecclesiastical Latin and closing with the Apostolic benediction.——The Central Baptist, of St. Louis, a journal of genuine liberal tendencies, has been proscribed by the Antioch (Mo.) Baptist convention as not an exponent of the principles of the denomination. The crime of the St Louis paper appears to have been the insertion of certain letters in which Christian Union and greater freedom of the Communion table were the subject of favorable comment.——The First African Baptist Church of Richmond, Va., has now thirty deacons, and more than four thousand members.——Thirty-nine millions of tracts were circulated by the Tract Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church last year. ——The Presbyterian confession of faith and shorter catechism are being translated into the Siamese language.

In Brief.

—— Marshal Bazaine's wife is a rich and beautiful Mexican woman, whom he married during Maximilian's time. She has just borne him a son at Cassel. The child was literally baptized on French soil, as the Marshal had enough earth brought expressly from France to cover the floor of the room in which the baptism took place.—— In view of the republicanism of Paris it has long been said that "France is a monarchy with a republic for its capital."——New York has inaugurated a most righteous war against lottery dealers.——A Prussian is rarely met who is not able to read and write.——The Tribune approves the course of the Prussians in marching through Paris, affirming that the city was theirs by right of conquest and by treaty.——It is stated that on January 10th a pigeon arrived at Paris with dispatches which, when printed, filled four columns of the newspapers, together with fifteen thousand dispatches for private individuals. This extraordinary compression of mail matter was due to microscopic photography.—— A lady reporter goes to church and writes the "Style in the Sanctuary" for one of the Chicago papers.——Brigham Young's fortune is estimated to be not far from $8,000,000 or $9,000,000, and to be rapidly increasing. He is evidently desirous of leaving, when he dies, $2000 or $3000 apiece to his numerous widows.——Of 90,000,000 railway travelers in France last year, only two passengers and four railway servants were killed, and 112 passengers and 61 servants injured.——The New York Herald has paid out, since the European war began, $150,000 for cable news alone; a fact unparalleled in the history of newspapers.

Dr. Hill and the Greek Priests.—The Churchmen of this country are greatly interested in the work of Dr. Hill at Athens. A half a century of labor has produced, apparently, but little fruit. Communications have been received in this city from Dr. Hill of an exceedingly interesting character. He announces an extraordinary revival of religion within the Greek Church itself. Extraordinary meetings are held and largely attended, presided over by the Priests of the Church. The Bible is read and expounded by the Ecclesiastics, and the entire population seem alive to the subject of personal religion. In spirit and temper the meetings resemble those held in Berea in the Apostle's time, when the people "heard the word with all the readiness of mind, and searched the Scriptures daily, whether those things were so." Considering the former apathy of the priesthood, not to say their opposition, to the Evangelical faith, the movement is a very extraordinary as well as a hopeful one.—Cor. Boston Journal.

☞ Father Hyacinthe, in a letter to the Independent, appeals to the Bishops of Christendom for a Catholic reformation. The decrees of the Vatican Council must be annulled. The pretensions of infallibility and temporal sovereignty must be overthrown, priestly celibacy abolished, the Bible put into everybody's hand. Until this reformation is effected he pays no allegiance to Rome, and exercises no ministry. Meanwhile he sees in the present condition of the Church a new embarrassment and peril for France. In the reconstruction which is to follow the war, religious problems must bear an important part. France cannot do without religion as it is interpreted at Rome. What shall she do?

Notices.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Mass. Advent Conference, will hold their annual session the first week in April (so as to have the advantage of Fast day) for the choice of officers for the coming year. We desire a large gathering of preachers and delegates, with the brethren. The times demand it. Let all make preparation to attend. Call hereafter.

L. Boutell.

R. I. and East. Ct.

The R. I. and East. Ct. Conference will hold its next quarterly session with the church at North Scituate, R. I., commencing Wednesday, April 5th, at two o'clock P. M. We hope that all who can, especially our preachers, will attend this meeting, and labor for the advancement of the cause of truth.

C. H. Sweet, Secretary.

W. C. Association.

The second quarterly meeting of the "Woman's Christian Association" will be held in Providence, R. I., by invitation of the church worshiping in Lester Hall, to commence March 8th, and continue over the Sabbath. An invitation is extended to all, both saint and sinner, to come up to this feast. The presence of brethren and sisters, both preachers and lay members, from churches in the surrounding vicinity, is solicited, and provision will be made for the entertainment of all who come. Order of the meeting as follows:

Business session in the morning, preaching every afternoon and evening, with prayer and conference meetings preceding. We expect the blessing of God; to this end let fervent prayer be offered.

Directions to strangers coming in on the cars will appear in due time. By authority of the Association,

E. S. Jennings, Pres.

Reduction of Fare.

Delegates attending the Woman's Christian Association, in Providence, R. I., commencing March 8th, paying full fare to the meeting, will be supplied with free return tickets.

M. R. Phetteplace.

Notice.

Those coming to the quarterly meeting of the Woman's Christian Association, will please take the Cranston horse-car, and stop at Lester Hall.

For the Brn., N. Phillips.

Conference.

A conference of three days is desired to be held in Palmyra, Me., Marsh's school-house, about four miles from Corinna Mills, to commence Mar. 9th, at 7 P. M., and continue over Lord's day. We invite all who love our Lord Jesus Christ, and want to see souls converted and wanderers reclaimed, to come and help in the blessed work; and to those who preach the gospel, who feel like coming to help, we heartily say, Come in the name of the Lord. In behalf of the brethren,

I. Damman.

Notice.

As I have considerable money to make out on my Hymn Book between this and April 1st, I hope that those owing me will remember my necessities, and send to me, if possible, between March 1st and 20th, at South Exeter, Me. If at any other time, address me at Machiasport, Me., my home.

If any brethren have sent me letters in the last six or eight weeks containing money, which I have not acknowledged, or calling for books or Admonitions, which they have not received, I wish they would inform me directly, stating all the facts, as I fear that some letters may be lost in this time.

I. K. Lombard.

Notice.

As Bro. C. W. Rathburn, of Washington Village, R. I., formerly of the Methodist E. church has received the light of the gospel of Christ's soon coming kingdom, and kindred truths, and feels called of God to preach the gospel, I cheerfully commend him to all the churches of God.

John G. Hook.

Notice.

The church of God, formerly worshiping in the Quincy Hall, 127 Lacock Street, Allegheny City, Pa., having hired the Duquesne Hall, corner of Third and Market Streets, Pittsburgh, Pa., will commence meetings in the same, Sunday, March 26th, and services will be held (Lord willing) every Sunday, at 10½ A. M., 3 and 7 P. M., and on Thursday evening for prayer and conference. The writer has engaged to preach the word for them every other Sunday. Bro. Jonas Wendell is requested by the church to be with us at the opening of the new hall.

John T. Ongley.

☞ Bro. going to Gloucester, Mass., to preach, will call on G. E. Smith, Washington St., near old Cemetery.

German Tracts.

I will send my German Tracts gratis (except postage), to any one who wants them for himself, or to distribute. I have a good supply. Send your orders to L. Reimer, 1006 Chesnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

☞ To Preaching Brethren.

Those wishing to preach	Correspond with
in Westfield, Mass.	C. A. Phelps.
Lawrence, Mass.	Geo. Churchill, John T. Merrill, Ephraim Fisk.
Worcester, Mass.	H. F. Collier, H. W. Burton, or E. G. Higgins.
Savoy, Mass.	Daniel Miller, or A. E. Bliss.
Wakefield, Mass.	G. R. Tyzzer.
Charlton, Mass.	E. H. Allen, Oxford, Mass.
Haverhill, Mass.	T. F. Pinkham or J. P. Yeats.
Portsmouth, N. H.	T. E. Wood, Box 1445.
Hampton, N. H.	Joseph A. Philbrook.
Manchester, N. H.	J. W. C. Pickering.
Dover, N. H.	Adam Eglee, Box 1078.
London Ridge, N. H.	Daniel L. Moore, Wm. Batchelder, Edward Mudget.
Great Falls, N. H.	Wm. Clark.
Seabrook, N. H.	R. S. Johnson, of Hampton, N. H., or Chs. Barton, of Seabrook.
Chichester, N. H.	F. L. Knowles.
Goshen, N. H.	O. F. Cain.
Rye, N. H.	Moses O. Philbrick or Samuel Smart.
Pittsfield, N. H. (Bethel)	G. S. Emerson.
Stowe, Vt.	H. W. Sargent, or S. Whitney.
Portland, Me.	R. R. York, S. K. Dyer, D. F. Scamman.
Lewiston, Me.	Albert Burgess.
South Berwick (Great Works) Me.	Harrison Dow.
Kennebunk Depot, Me.	Rufus Duran.
Hollis Centre, Me.	W. S. Moulton, or S. G. Rumery.
Vernon, Vt.	J. O. Allen.
Bristol, Ct.	Luther Tuttle, Henry A. Way.
West Gloucester, R. I.	Geo. A. Hawkins, Putnam, Ct.
New Milford, Ct.	Richard Hensen.
New Haven, Ct.	W. F. Carpenter, 73 State St.
Pleasant Valley, Ct.	Raual O. White, New Hartford, Ct.
West Meriden, Ct.	S. D. Bingham.
New Britain, Ct.	Chs. M. Burt.
Wrightville, Ct.	D. A. Grant, Torrington, Ct.
Newfield, Ct.	Wm. Ripley, Pleasant Valley, Ct.
New Milford, Ct.	J. Coggswell
Morris, Ct.	Joseph Curtis.
Putnam, Ct.	H. N. Read.
South Butler, N. Y.	R. C. Brown.
Rochester, N. Y.	J. R. Cooper, 4 Hickory St.
Hoosick, N. Y.	Geo. B. Keith, J. B. White, or Christopher Lawton, Hoosick Falls, N. Y.
Philadelphia, Pa.	Frank R. Davis, 1718 Markham St., or I. N. Wilfong, 135 No. 22nd St.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston, corner of Causeway and Lowell Streets. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

Lowell Street Chapel.
T. M. Preble..........Sabbath, March 12th
J. H. F. Varney..........Sunday, March 19th
H. Pratt..........Sunday, March 26th

Boston, (Branch Chapel), 1735 Washington Street, corner of Madison Street.
Meetings at 10½ A. M., and 3 and 7½ P. M.
Theodore N. Sherman..........Sunday, March 12th
Nathan Whiting....Wednesday evening, March 15th
(Meeting every evening. Seats free.)

Mercantile Hall, 32 Summer Street, Boston.
Meetings at 10½ A. M., and 3 and 7 P. M.
Social meeting at 2 P. M.
H. L. Hastings..........Sunday, March 12th and following Sundays.

East Boston, Mass.
(Second Advent Hall, 154 Meridian Street.)
Meetings every Sunday, at the usual hours, also prayer and conference meetings Wednesday and Friday evenings, at 7½ o'clock P. M.

Meetings in South Boston on Wednesday evenings, No. 2 Lowland Street.
Friday evenings, No. 227 E. St. Bay-View horse cars pass by. Come and welcome.
C. W. Huntress.
J. N. Berry.

Chelsea, Mass.
Granite Block, Hall No. 11, corner of Broadway and Fourth Streets. Entrance on Fourth Street.
(Up two flights of stairs.)
Wm. Thurman..........Sunday, March 12th
T. M. Preble..........Sabbath, March 19th
J. Couch..........Sunday, March 26th

Charlestown.
Preaching at Charlestown, (Evening Star Hall, No. 32 Main Street), every Lord's day.
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, March 12th

Providence, R. I..........Sunday, March 19th
J. Couch.

North Searsport, Me. (Conference)...Friday evening, March 10th, and continue six days.
John G. Hook.

Cambridgeport, Mass..........Sunday, March 12th
Rye, N. H..........Sunday, March 26th
C. Goodrich.

South Boston (Mattapan Hall, 361 Broadway, near E. Street) Sunday, March 12th. S. C. Hancock.

Salem, Mass..........Sunday, March 19th
Joseph W. White.

Stowe, Mass..........Sunday, March 19th
B. Pinney.

Needham, Mass. (Hurde's Corner)..Sun., March 12th
J. W. Horn.

Plymouth, Mass..........Sunday, March 12th
Holden, Mass..........Sunday, April 2d
J. S. White.

Fitchburg, Mass..........Sabbath, March 12th
C. W. Sargent.

Philadelphia, Pa.......Sundays, March 12th and 19th
Lynn, Mass..........Sunday, March 26th
M. Batchelor.

Lynn, Mass..........Sundays, March 12th and 19th
Biddeford, Me..........Sunday, March 26th
J. T. Jordan.

Montgomery, Mass..........Sunday, March 12th
B. Hitchcock.

Pittsfield, N. H. (at the Bethel)..Sunday, March 12th
Northwood Narrows, N. H..........Sunday, March 19th
Northville (in Newport) at conference, from April 5th to the 9th.
J. H. Clark.

West Canaan, N. H. (at the new school-house) Sabbath, March 12th.
D. Eastman.

Northville, Newport, N. H......Sabbath, March 19th
Fisherville, N. H..........Sabbath, March 26th
Frank Nelson.
D. W. Davis.

Bradford, N. H. (Bush meeting-house) Sun., March 12th
Barnstead, N. H. (Clark's Corner)...Sun., March 19th
Allenstown (where Bro. David Haynes may appoint) Sunday, March 26th.
A. S. Williams.

Hampton, N. H..........Sunday, March 19th
J. G. Smith.

Lyndeboro, N. H. (school-house near Page Spalding's) Sunday, March 12th.
John H. Dadmun.

Melvin Village, N. H..........Sunday, March 26th
T. W. Piper.

Alton Corner, N. H..........Sunday, March 12th
Strafford, N. H. (Roberts' school-house) Sun., Mar. 19th
☞ No Name.

East Rochester, N. H.....Sundays, March 12th, 19th, and 26th.
South Berwick, Me. (Great Works)..Sun., April 2nd
J. Pinkham.

Barnstead, N. H. (Tuttle school-house) Sun., March 12th
J. H. F. Varney.

Claremont, N. H.......Saturday evening, March 11th and over the following Sunday.
H. F. Carpenter.

Rutland, Vt......Sundays, March 12th, 19th, and 26th
L. Boutell.

Providence, R. I..........Sabbath, March 26th
T. M. Preble.

Great Falls, N. H.....Wednesday evening, March 8th
Dover, N. H..........Thursday evening, March 9th
Exeter, N. H..........Friday evening, March 10th
Dover, N. H..........Sunday, March 12th
Hampton, N. H..........Monday evening, March 13th
Lynn, Mass..........Tuesday evening, March 14th
Scitico, Ct..........Sabbath, March 19th
Webster, Mass..........Sunday, March 26th
April not engaged.
H. Munson.

Gloucester, Mass.........Friday evening, March 10th and over Sunday, the 12th.
Portsmouth, N. H......evenings, March 13th and 14th
Elliot, Me..........evenings, March 15th and 16th
Kennebunk Depot, Me..........evening, March 17th
Geo. A. Streeter.

Meriden, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th
New Britain, Conn..........Sunday, March 19th
Meriden, Conn..........Sunday, March 26th
Geo. W. Brown.

Hampton, N. H..........Sunday, March 12th
Haverhill, Mass..........Sunday, March 19th
Great Falls, N. H..........Sunday, March 26th
J. Bickford.

Wolcottville, Conn. (Town Hall)..Sunday, March 12th
Meriden, Conn..........Sunday, April 9th
Wm. N. Pile.

Great Falls, N. H..........Sunday, March 12th
South Berwick, Me. (Great Works)...Sundays, March 19th and 26th.
Geo. W. Brown, So. Eliot.

Providence, R. I..........Sabbath, March 12th
Mrs. L. M. Stoddard.

Vienna, Me., or vicinity (as Bro. H. B. Sevey may arrange) Sabbath, March 12th.
Richmond, Me. (Reed meeting-house) Sab., March 19th
Hollis Centre, Me......evenings, March 28th and 29th
Kennebunkport, Me..........Sabbaths, April 16th and 23d
Lewiston, Me (Baptism)..........Sabbath, April 30th
C. H. Sweet.

Southington, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th
Seth Woodruff.

Seabrook, N. H..........Sunday, April 2nd
B. Pinney.

Great Falls, N. H..........Sabbath, March 12th
N. C. Twombly.

Seabrook, N. H..........Sundays, March 12th
Wm. W. Sutherland.

Bear River, N. S..........Sunday, March 19th
J. M. Tozier.

Rye, N. H..........Sunday, March 12th
Seabrook, N. H..........Sunday, March 19th
Hampton, N. H..........Sunday, March 26th
H. M. Bryant.

Piermont, N. H. (Clay meeting-house) Sab., March 12th
A. H. Clark.

Warehousepoint, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th
G. L. White.

Bath, Me..........Sundays, March 5th and 19th
C. H. Leverton.

Seabrook, N. H.........evenings, March 15th and 16th
Kittery (Spruce Creek)..evenings, March 22d and 23d
Great Works, N. H..........evening, March 24th
Rochester, N. H..........Sunday, March 26th
E. S. Moulton.

Friendship, Me.........Saturday evening, March 11th
Cushing, Me..........Sunday, March 12th
I wish to say to the church at Cushing, that on account of the conference at the Reed meeting-house, I shall not be able to be there the first Sunday.
Bath, Me..........Sunday, April 30th
W. H. Mitchell.

East Concord, N. H. (Gale school-house) Sunday, March 12th.
Chas. R. Parsons.

Fisherville, N. H. (Sander's Hall) Sab., March 12th
Simeon Rost.

Dorchester (Town House)........Sunday, March 12th through the week, and over Sunday, the 19th.
Wm. H. Shaw.
John H. Evans.

Quarterly meeting of W. C. Association at Providence, R. I., March 8th to 11th.
New Haven, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th
Waterbury, Ct..........Sunday, March 19th
Mrs. M. L. Durand.

Porter, Me..........Sabbath, March 12th and on the second Sabbath of each month.
Conference at one o'clock P. M., the second Saturday of each month.
Mark Stevens.

☞ Meetings will be held by the church of God worshiping at Lisbon Village, N. H. (Town Hall), three times every Sabbath. Preaching for the present by Allen Damon.

Albany, N. Y..........Sunday, March 12th
Springwater, N. Y..........Sunday, March 19th
Danseville, N. Y..........Sunday, March 26th
A. A. Phelps.

New Preston, Ct..........Sunday, March 19th
J. L. Wood.

Guilford, Conn..........Sabbath, March 12th
Salem, N. Y. (where Bro. Bailey may appoint), Sabbath, March 19th.
G. L. Teeple.

Southington, Ct..........Sunday, April 9th
Huntington, Mass..........Sunday, April 16th
Vernon, Vt..........Sunday, April 23d
E. Owen.

Hazardville, Ct..........evening, March 11th
Scitico, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th
Bristol, Ct..........Sunday, March 19th
Chicopee Falls, Mass..........Sunday, March 26th
Exeter, N. H..........Sunday, April 1st
A. M. Higgins.

Exeter, N. H..........Sunday, March 12th
J. A. Cleaveland.

Central Falls, R. I.........Friday evening, March 17th
West Greenwich (at Dea. Mattison's) eve., March 18th
G. W. Rathbun.

Allegheny City, Pa., the last and first Sundays in each month until April 1st.
Rouseville, Pa., the third Sunday in March.
John T. Ongley.

Seabrook, N. H..........Sunday, March 26th
Wm. C. Stewart.

Lanesville, Ct., Thursday and Friday evenings, March 9th and 10th.
New Milford, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th and through the week.
Roxbury, Ct., (as the brethren arrange) one week, commencing Sunday, March 19th, to accommodate those coming from Woodbury and Washington.
Lakeville, Ct., one week, commencing Sun., March 26th. Hope to find all ready to work for salvation.
H. K. Flagg.

Dinsmore Hill, Vt..........Sunday, March 12th
Geo. A. Cole.

West Abington, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th
W. S. Campbell.

Lewiston, Me..........Sunday, March 19th
J. Whitman.

Woodstock Valley, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th
A. Morse.

Clinton, Mass..........Sunday, March 12th
Charlton, Mass..........Sunday, March 19th
Some one meet me at the Oxford depot, forenoon train from Worcester, March 17th.
Brimfield, Mass..........Sunday, March 26th
E. Cotton.

Ornsville, Me. (Hoxie school-house) Friday, March 10th, and over the following Sunday.
Thomas Smith.

Starks, Me..........Sunday, March 12th
E. M. Haggett.

South Livermore, Me.......evenings, March 10th and 11th, and over the following Lord's day.
Jesse Gay.

North Abington, Mass..........Sunday, March 12th
Wakefield, Mass..........Sunday, March 19th
T. T. Farrell.

Newport, Vt. (Wilcox neighborhood) evenings, March 9th, 10th, 11th, and Sunday, the 12th.
Mary E. Otis.

Webster, Mass..........Sabbath, March 19th
Woodstock Valley, Ct..........Sabbath, March 26th
P. S. Butler.

Sidney (school-house, Dist. No. 1) Sunday, March 12th
Windsor, Me. (Preble school-house) Sun., March 19th
Thomas Hines.

Buckfield (Federal Corner)..........Sabbath, March 12th
Hartford, Me. (Stetson school-house)..........Tuesday evening, March 14th.
South Livermore, Me. (where Bro. C. Denning may appoint) evening, March 18th, and over Sunday.
O. W. Kimball.

Meredith, N. H. (Dolloff school-house), Sun., March 12th
N. Glidden.

Lawrence, Mass.........evenings, March 9th and 10th
Manchester, N. H..........Sunday, March 12th
Concord, N. H. (Centre Street Church) evenings, March 14th and 15th.
Portsmouth, N. H......evenings, March 16th and 17th
Dover, N. H..........Sunday, March 19th
Savoy, Mass. (New Chapel)..........Sunday, March 26th
If any of these appointments conflict with others, please notify me at Savoy, Mass.
Z. D. Baird.

Waterbury, Ct..........Sunday, March 12th
☞ No Name.

North Easton, Mass. (Ripley Hall)......every Sunday
Geo. Walch.

Lawrence, Mass.
A. Ross..........Sundays, March 12th and 19th
J. Couch..........Sunday, April 2nd
C. Goodrich..........Sunday, April 9th
M. Batchelor..........Sunday, April 16th

Haverhill, Mass.
A. P. Moore..........Sunday, March 12th
J. G. Smith (baptism)..........Sunday, March 26th

Springfield, Mass.
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, March 19th
Wm. N. Pile......Sundays, March 26th and April 2d

Worcester, Mass.
J. Couch..........Sunday, March 12th
Wm. N. Pile..........Sunday, March 19th
H. F. Carpenter...Sundays, March 26th and April 2d
S. S. Brewer..........Sunday, May 7th
A. Simpson..........Sunday, May 14th
W. H. Mitchell..........Sundays, May 21st and 28th

Lowell, Mass.
C. Cunningham..........Sunday, March 12th
W. H. Mitchell........Sundays, March 19th and 26th

Concord, N. H. (Centre Street.)
C. H. Fletcher..........Sabbath, March 12th
J. A. Cleveland..........Sabbath, March 19th and Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings, if the brethren wish me to do so.
C. S. Shattuck..........Sabbath, April 2d
T. W. Piper..........Sabbath, April 9th

Concord, N. H., (at the Bethel.)
Wm. Stuart..........Sunday, March 12th
E. Owen..........Sunday, March 19th
C. S. Shattuck..........Sunday, April 9th

Manchester, N. H.
T. W. Piper..........Sunday, March 12th
F. H. Carpenter..........Sunday, March 19th
C. H. Fletcher......Sundays, March 26th and April 2d

Portsmouth, N. H.
E. S. Moulton.......Sundays, March 12th and 19th
E. Owen.........Sundays, March 26th and April 2nd
J. S. White..........Sunday, April 9th

London Ridge, N. H.
Wm. C. Stewart..........Sunday, March 12th
T. W. Piper..........Sunday, March 19th
O. W. Kimball..........Sunday, March 26th

Vernon, Vt.
O. D. Woodruff..........Sunday, March 12th

Bristol, Ct.
Seth Woodruff..........Sunday, March 19th
B. Hitchcock..........Sunday, April 2nd
W. N. Pile..........Sunday, April 16th
Dr. A. M. Higgins..........Sunday, April 30th

Collinsville, Ct.
A. Elliott..........Sabbath, March 12th
S. Woodruff (communion)..........Sabbath, March 26th
B. Hitchcock..........Sabbath, April 9th

New Britain, Ct.
A. M. Higgins..........Sunday, March 12th

Putnam, Ct.
P. S. Butler..........Sunday, March 12th
Mrs. L. M. Stoddard..........Sunday, March 19th

Waterbury, Ct.
Wm. J. Ripley..........Sunday, March 12th
B. Hitchcock..........Sunday, March 19th
A. Elliott..........Sunday, March 26th

Portland, Me. (Union Hall.)
Henry Pratt..........Sundays, March 12th and 19th
C. H. Sweet..........Sunday, March 26th
S. S. Brewer..........Sundays, April 2d and 9th

Portland, Me.
Sec. Adv. Hall, Cushman's Block, 353½ Congress St.
B. S. Emery..........Sunday, March 12th
Peter Libby..........Sunday, March 19th
Caleb Richardson..........Sunday, March 26th
B. S. Emery..........Sunday, April 2nd

Vienna, Me. (Brick Chapel).
—— Jackson..........Sunday, March 12th
W. H. Doughty..........Sunday, March 19th

South Elliot, Me.
E. Owen..........Sunday, March 12th

Biddeford, Me.
Geo. A. Streeter........Sundays, March 19th and 26th
C. H. Sweet..........Sundays, April 2d and 9th
B. S. Emery..........Sunday, April 16th

Meetings in Portland, Me. (Union Hall.)
Having vacated Cushman Hall, on Congress Street, meetings hereafter will be held in Union Hall. Entrance on Free Street, nearly opposite the Baptist church. Seats free.
B. K. Dyer.
D. F. Scamman.
R. R. York.

Rochester, N. H.
There will be preaching in the chapel, near the brick school-house, in Rochester, N. H., on the first Lord's day in each month. Others can appoint so as not to conflict.

Advent Christian Church, Salem.
Meetings are held every Sabbath, at the Chapel, Sewall Street. Prayer meeting Monday evening, at the Ward Room, North Salem. Tuesday and Friday evenings at private houses. C. E. Barnes, Pastor.

New York City.
The Advent Church formerly meeting at Grand and Allen Streets, have removed to 406 Grand Street, one door above Clinton. Preaching every Sunday for the present. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening, at the house of J. K. Bellows, 19 Orchard Street.

Star of Hope Mission, 14 Laurens Street, New York City.
Sunday morning, prayer and conference, six o'clock. Sunday School, two o'clock P. M. Love feast, four o'clock P. M. Preaching, seven o'clock P. M.
Monday, (class meeting), seven o'clock P. M.
Wednesday, (preaching), seven o'clock P. M.
Friday, (prayer and conference), seven o'clock P. M.
Come one, come all. A. E. Smith, Principal.

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

☞ We cannot discontinue or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in PLAIN LETTERS.

☞ Wm. M. Bennett—It dates back to a. 98. It can be had of Harper & Bros, New York. Do not know the price of the last addition.

☞ E. Owen—Probably next week.

☞ Sarah Condell—Received.

☞ H. F. Shepard—Received.

Letters Received.

W F Collier, D Clew, C W Bixby, H B Sevey, T Flint, P S W Deyo, J M Tozier, G E Lee, H J Munson, D N Chadsey, H Munger, J T Ongley, C H Sweet, E Cotton, N L Willard, G A Chappell, N A Angell, H M Rose, E Evans, E L Stoughton, F H Chamberlain, T J Whitecar, Geo Thomson, L C Morgan, S Reed, H Knowlton, A A Phelps, J Robbins, T Glidden, T M Preble, W Kellaway, A Merrill.

Cash Receipts for Books and Tracts.

J Earle 75c, F Petton $2.50, B P Stevens $1.75, Mrs M Coons 50c, W C Nettleton $1.50, J Earle 75c, N Ainsworth 35c, S Tenney $1.00, E O Andrus 25c, Mrs Grover $1.50, [illegible] 50c, S Roby $4.00, W C Brock 25c, W T Doremus 50c, J L Roberts $1.15, A A Haven $2.50, S R Breed $2.00, J A Packard $10.25, W H Fay 35c, R C Carr 35c, N Wheeler 25c, T F Pinkham $5.00, P G Bowman $1.00, E Clark 90c, G Thompson 90c, S M Haynes $1.00, J F Huber $2.51, N Welner 50c, D W Spear Jr. $2.50, E D White 25c, S I Rockwood 50c, J R Potter $1.50, H F Thorp 50c, M Quinby $1.50, C. Hosmer 40c, H. Harris $10.00, S. Mitchell $2.50, H. H. Dickinson $1.75, W E Brown $.25, J Burch $2.63, M A Houston $1.50, P Webb $1.50, P Butler $2.00, A A Stiles $1.40, A C Taylor $2.78, R Harrison $10.00, C Brown 75c, N [illegible] 50, D F Barton 50c, O T Wyeth $1.30, S Gilbert $1.00, J Maxim 50c, J W Roberts $3.00, A A Hoyt 60c.

Books and Tracts Sent.

By Mail—J Hemenway (2), W R Payton, M Gunther, C Buswell, A Mallory, J W Sawyer, W McLellan, Mrs G W Cadwell, S. Mason (2), M D Stone (2), A Vandusen, A. D. Smith, J B Baxter, J E Pearce, J T Jordan, E A Fullerton, E Urch, J S Schomaker, A E Garrett, P C Child, J. M. Steele (2), N S Ainsworth, J Earle, Mrs E Coons (2), W C Nettleton, J Setler, E. C. Andrus, S Tenney, N H Brown, H Wells, F Petton, J Tyson, C Green (2), C W Bixby, D K Zumvalt, T Lindsey, E Grover, E. H. Morrell, J Maxim, J T Doremus, S Brock, S R Breed, A A Havens, N. Wheeler, J A Peterson, R C Carr, E H White (2), W H Fay, J M Wyman, J Earle, S T Fenton, J D Merriam, G Hampson, E Clark, P G Bowman, N Werner, D W Spear Jr (2), A B McMurphy, P S W Deyo, J F Huber, A Vender, S J Rockwood, S A Kinder, L Green, B F Thorp, P H Bartlett, F Webb, J Clark, L L Twitchell.

By Express—Dr. N Field, Judson & Flagg, M. B. Miles, J Leslie, S Roby, T F Pinkham.

"TALKS ABOUT PEOPLE'S STOMACHS,"

Is the title of a new work just issued by Dr. Dio Lewis, of Boston.

"Like all of his works, it is brimful of common sense. We do not know of another writer on matters pertaining to health, who says so many good things as Dr. Lewis."—Crisis of Dec. 7th.

"HEALTH BY GOOD LIVING."

A VALUABLE WORK, BY W. W. HALL, M. D.

These two works are for sale at this office, and will be sent by mail, on receipt of publisher's price. $1.50 each.

Ag't.

JUST PUBLISHED.

By the Advent Christian Publication Society, a new Tract, entitled, "The Judgment Impending: Prophecy and Chronology converging to one Grand Culmination." By Bro. L. T. Cunningham. 52 pp. Price, 8 cents per copy. Postage, 2 cts. 75 cts. per dozen. $5.00 per one hundred.

Ag't.

SHELDON'S FOUR NEW TRACTS.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

1. Life and Death Theology: or, The Scriptural Doctrine of Eternal Damnation an Everlasting Punishment. Price 8 cts. single, postage 2 cts.; 75 cts. per dozen, postpaid; $5.00 per hundred by express.

This work of forty-eight pages is the clearest and strongest document yet produced by Bro. Sheldon on this topic. It is just the thing to scatter among all classes.

2. Immaterialism: or, The Doctrine of Soul-Immortality Refuted. Price 5 cts. single, postage 2 cts.; 40 cts. per dozen, postpaid; $3.00 per hundred by express.

A tract of thirty-two pages, showing that fifteen cardinal errors spring out of the doctrine of the soul's immortality, and that those errors could not exist independent of that doctrine, thus showing it to be the main root of error. Let it be scattered widely.

3. Death and the Dead, 16 pages. Price 3 cts. single, postage 2 cts.; 20 cts. per dozen, postpaid; $1.50 per hundred by express.

Just the thing to scatter everywhere.

4. The Coming Judgment: Its Necessity and Result. Eight pages. 10 cts. per dozen, postpaid, or 75 cts. per hundred by express.

It will do much good.

THE DOCTRINE OF IMMORTALITY

ON SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

By Elder James H. Whitmore. Published by the Western Advent Christian Association.

This little volume of three hundred pages is a valuable contribution to the literature of the subject on which it treats, and is worthy of a wide circulation, not only among those who hold to the views advocated therein, but among others who have not given them due thought and investigation.

Price, single copy, postpaid, $1.00. Six copies, by mail, $5.00; by express, $4.20.

NEW TRACTS BY S. S. BREWER.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

The Seven Messages of the Apocalypse. Sent by mail for 13 cents. Postage 2 cents. $1.20 per dozen by express.

Evangels of the Coming One. Price by mail, 10 cts. single copy; per dozen, 70 cts.; per hundred by express, $5.00.

The Mystery of Iniquity. This is a work on the man of sin, as viewed in the light of historic testimony. Price by mail, single copy, 5 cts.; postage 2 cts.; 50 cts. per dozen; $3.00 per hundred.

THE JUBILEE HARP.

We are now ready to supply friends with the new Hymn and Tune Book, at the following prices:—

Plain cloth, leather backs, colored edges, $1.00 per copy; $9.00 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges, $1.15 per copy; $10.00 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges and covers, $1.25 per copy; $12.00 per dozen.

☞ Postage 16 cts. per copy additional, when sent by mail.

NEW HYMN BOOK.

"Hymns of the Jubilee Harp."

WITHOUT THE MUSIC.

The above work, printed in large, clear type, on beautiful paper, we are ready to fill orders for, at the following prices:—

Bound in cloth, with sprinkled edges, 75 cents per copy; $7.00 per dozen; $55.00 per 100.

Bound in leather, gilt edges, $1.00 per copy; $9.00 per dozen; $75.00 per hundred; when sent by mail, 10 cts. additional postage.

LIST OF ENGLISH BIBLES.

We have received and keep on hand the following English Reference Bibles:

Minion, 8vo., marg. ref., large type, circuit binding, $4.50; postage 25 cts. Do. plain binding, $4.00; postage 25 cts.

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., circuit binding, $3.50; postage 20 cts. (Best size for preachers.)

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., plain, $2.25; postage 20 cts. Do. ref. between verses, $2.25; postage 24 cts.

Pearl, 8 vo., marg. ref., circuit, $2.25; postage 20 cts. Do. plain, $1.75; postage 20 cts.

SPIRITUALISM CONDEMNED

BY THE TESTIMONY OF THE BIBLE AND ITS OWN WITNESSES.

BY M. D. WELLCOME.

Price 10 cents single copy. Twenty copies for $1.00; $3.50 per one hundred copies.

"ADVENTISM."

We have a supply of this valuable work.
Price in cloth..........75 cts., postage 12 cts.
Flexible covers..........60 cts., postage 12 cts.
Paper covers..........40 cts., postage 6 cts.
In paper covers by the dozen, by express, $4.75.

THE POWERS OF THE AIR.

A WORK THAT THOROUGHLY VENTILATES SPIRITUALISM.

276 pages. Price by mail, $1.25.

The above works for sale at this office.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRIST UPON THE CROSS.

Beneath the starlight of an orient sky,
In the fair land of olive and of vine,
He knelt, fore-doomed, upon the cross to die,
To cleanse a sinning world in blood divine.

Upon his ear fell earth's despairing cry,
Of conscious guilt and conscious misery;
While scene-like passed before his humane eye
The world as 't was, and is, and still shall be.

Stretched on the cross the Savior's blessed form,
And pierced with nails the tender feet and hands;
While on his brow the desecrating thorn
Left, in deep wounds, the scoffer's crimson brands.

"Father, forgive them!" Meek and lowly one,
How oft thy bleeding wounds our sins attest!
O, hourly crucified! blest "only Son!"
The crimson sweat-stain shadows still thy breast.

Stretched on the cross! the heart of nature quaked,
With mighty throes the temple's vail was riven;
And quiet sleepers from their graves were waked,
To marvel at the darkened earth and heaven.

The sun with shrouded glory hid his face;
O, dread Golgotha! light could not shine for thee;
Thou seem'st, indeed, a deat'ly dying-place,
For one like Him who suffered on the tree!

Mystery of mysteries! and yet how sweet
Is the sad story of a Savior's love;
Oh, how majestic was that spirit meek,
Which thus a love so limitless could prove.

O dear, dear Christ! to see thy lifeless form
Suspended, yet half-drooping, toward the earth;
While crimson drops, forced by the deadly thorn,
Traced on the anguished brow its kingly birth.

Look on this scene, O unbelieving one!
And ere the wrath of heaven be on thee hurled,
Believe, believe God's "own begotten Son,"
Suffered and died, to save a sinful world.

Valley of Tears, N. Y. G. H. CHAPPELL.

For the World's Crisis.

THE END.

The first discourse I ever heard on the destruction of the wicked, was in the large tent, in the city of Cincinnati, by Bro. Charles Fitch, in 1843. He stated that at the coming of Christ, the wicked would be "punished with everlasting destruction," and remain as ashes under the feet of the righteous for one thousand years, and then be resurrected. I took occasion to inquire of this devoted man of God whether I understood him correctly; that destruction in the sense he stated meant extinction, or extirpation. He answered in the affirmative. I was searching for light, for truth. My inquiry was, how, after final extirpation, they could possibly be susceptible of a resurrection. He, then, in his calm, benign manner, stated that he would investigate the matter. He did so, and, on board of the steamer, on our way to Pittsburg, he came to me and stated, that the judgment of God upon the wicked at Christ's second appearing was final. This originated an investigation in my mind with regard to the work that is to be accomplished at the second appearing of our Lord. Whether it is to be final—one burning day or two; or whether there are to be one thousand years between the resurrection of the two classes.

I must say that having been a firm believer in the above period, between the resurrections, I clung with great tenacity to what had been to me as a settled fact, and defended as such with all the ability I was capable of bringing to bear in that direction.

There were, however, some plain declarations that I had passed over previous to that time; not intentionally, but now, I perceived, they were insuperable obstacles to my favorite theory. Permit me to state some of them. I found in Dan. 1: 2, that both classes were awakened at the same time from the dust of the earth. This is harmonious with John 28: 29—"THE HOUR is coming in the which ALL that are in the graves shall hear his voice and come forth." Both classes are included, and Christ corroborates the testimony of the prophet.

The testimony of the apostle (Acts 17: 37) "He hath appointed a day in the which he will judge the world." This deeply interested me; for I did, and do now, understand the expression—"The world," in the same sense as in John 3: 16—"so loved the world." It certainly is expressive of all the universal brotherhood of mankind; and just as certain in the one case as in the other.

To this day all are destined for their rewards. "To reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished," is an inspired declaration. This day of judgment is at Christ's appearing. "Who shall judge the quick [living] and the dead at his appearing, and his kingdom." This expression—"The quick and the dead," I accept in precisely the same sense as in the phrase—"all that are in the graves," and as that in Dan. 12, all are included.

The language of the Revelation (chap 10: 18) seems expressive of the same fact. "Thy wrath is come and the time of the dead that they should be judged, and thou shouldest give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear his name, small and great; and shouldest destroy them which destroy [or corrupt] the earth." Thus we see that God's wrath comes upon the wicked at "the time of the dead," and the time of the dead is at the sounding of the seventh trumpet, which occurs next in the symbolic arrangement. His wrath terminates in their destruction.

Concerning this appointed day, Peter declares that "the heavens and the earth, which are now, are kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgment, and perdition of ungodly men. 2 Peter 3. I once thought that, probably, this day might be in extent a thousand years, from the expression in verse 8. But the plain, positive language of our Lord, as recorded by Luke 17: 29, precludes the possibility of any such idea in the mind of the apostle. Please notice. "But the same day that Lot went out of Sodom it rained fire and brimstone from heaven, and destroyed them all. Even thus shall it be in the day when the Son of man is revealed." Doubtless the mercy of God will interpose in the extirpation of those unfortunate creatures. It now appears to my mind that the words of Zephaniah 1: 18, are explicit upon this point. After the prophet describes the terror of that day, he then declares the Lord "shall make even a speedy riddance of all that dwell in the land," and doubtless such is the purpose of uncreated love and mercy.

The prophet Malachi declares that in the day that shall burn "as an oven," "all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble; and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch." In reading and re-reading this fearful malediction, I was forced to the conclusion, that "all the proud," and "all that do wickedly," are expressive of all; and so I now believe. And their being burned up, and left neither root nor branch, is, to my mind, conclusive that the day that cometh will witness the execution of the prophet's inspired declaration, and not a root or branch be left to germinate. In the language of the Psalmist,—"The transgressors shall be destroyed together; the end of the wicked shall be cut off." Ps. 37: 38. In the language of Prof. Murdock's translation of the Syriac (Matt. 3: 12)—"He will make clean his threshing-floor. The wheat he will gather into his storehouse; and the chaff he will burn with fire not extinguished" (margin—"fire suffered to burn on and consume what is in it.") Truly, when all the proud and all the wicked are consumed, left neither root nor branch, the threshing-floor—the earth—will be clean; nor will Satan, Gog or Magog ever defile it.

EVERY MAN REWARDED AT CHRIST'S SECOND COMING.

"The Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels; and then he shall reward every man according to his works" Matt. 16: 27. We read (Heb. 2: 9) that Jesus tasted death "for every man." I consider the one phrase as universal as the other. The entire human family is included; and thus the reward will be universal. I can draw no other conclusion. The same plain fact is set forth in the parable of the tares and the wheat. "The harvest is the end of the world," and, without doubt, it will be the end of all the proud, all the wicked, all the tares. At the smiting of the great symbolic image it is declared—"Then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and the gold, broken to pieces together, and became like the chaff of the summer threshing-floor; and the wind carried them away, that no place was found for them." It does seem to me that universal extirpation cannot be made plainer than these words of the prophet express.

With all the above conclusive testimony I have arrived at this conclusion: It is safe, entirely so, to believe the plain teaching of God's word in preference to any interpretation of the allegorical, especially of the 20th of Revelation. For me to believe that one thousand years shall intervene between the resurrection of the two classes is to disbelieve what is plainly taught in so many instances, as above cited. Whatever is designed to be revealed in Rev. 20, it is not intended to ignore the simple truths as above expressed.

Permit me to state, that the Revelator, after the thousand years had transpired, declared:—"And I saw the dead small and great stand before God; and the books were opened: and another book was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works. And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them, and they were judged every man according to their works."

I will now invite you to notice this judgment scene, after the thousand years have been fulfilled, in connection with these plain declarations such as, "who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing, and his kingdom." Now it is certain from the apostle's testimony that the judgment positively takes place at Christ's second appearing. Therefore it is not one thousand years afterwards. Again, please notice the words of Jesus: "For the Son of man shall come in the glory of the Father, with his angels; and then he shall reward every man according to his works."

Dear friends, I have not written for controversy, but to set forth in as plain and brief a manner as my ability will allow me, my reason for renouncing what I now consider an error: I once believed the thousand year period, without doubt, to be yet future. Plain testimony now compels me after years of careful investigation, to place it, without doubt, in the past. My belief is that when the prediction of Matt. 25: 37 and onward is fulfilled, and Christ shall sit upon the throne of his glory, "and pass judgment upon all nations, it will be final, and as he declares (v 46), "these shall go away into everlasting punishment; but the righteous into life eternal."

I can see but one burning day, that will renovate the earth, when the words of Isa. 62: 4 will be fulfilled—"And thy land shall be married." Never again will Satan, Gog, or Magog, be allowed by the infinitely pure and holy One to tread the bosom of the pure and holy sanctuary under their foul, polluting feet. "Thy land shall be married." When I consider the purity of the new heavens, the new earth, the new Jerusalem; the purity of the inhabitants, the bond of union as set forth in the marriage vow, I feel certain of earth's perpetual purity after the Lord is "revealed from heaven in flaming fire."

The Scriptures, in my humble opinion, teach but one burning day, and that at Christ's appearing. Then the prayer of David will be answered—"Let the sinners be consumed out of the earth, and let the wicked be no more." "Bless thou the Lord, O my soul. Praise ye the Lord." Ps. 104: 35. Then shall be fulfilled the prediction (Dan. 7: 14), "Then shall the sanctuary be cleansed;" then the wicked will be destroyed,—left "neither root nor branch;" no heterogeneous masses to appear on the new earth; no fiery deluge cast in furious indignation upon the placid bosom of Edenic purity. No, no!

Then will be consummated the vision of the seer of Patmos—"And every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them heard I saying, "Blessing and honor, and glory, and power, be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever." Amen and amen. "Even so, come, Lord Jesus," and "let the wickedness of the wicked COME TO AN END!" S. S. BREWER.

THE INNER SIGHT.

The Christian Union in a leader on the above topic says:—

"Christ's religion seems to rejoice in showing its power by bringing the brightest light out of the profoundest darkness. Its teaching is, to hope when all seems hopeless. In the words and in the life of Christ, sorrow is made the messenger and forerunner of joy. 'Blessed are ye that mourn, for ye shall be comforted!' The coming of the Son of Man, that grand consummation of good on earth, is to be heralded by dire calamity. Never has the imagery of the natural world been so grouped with the alarms and troubles of the soul, as in Christ's picture of those latter days. 'Signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars;' 'distress of nations, with perplexity;' 'the sea and the waves roaring;' 'men's hearts failing them for fear.' And the voice of these signals is to be: "Look up, and lift up your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh!' Horror itself is to be but the minister of triumphing, exultant hope!

So ever are trouble and sorrow made the harbingers of joy. Nowhere else in Scripture is the one universal grief of earth so pictured as in the mourning of Martha and Mary for their brother Lazarus. And it is followed by a joy so rare and deep as no other human experience ever revealed. So was it at the crowning of Christ's own work. To find the darkest moment in the world's history, the time when to human eyes hope seemed blotted out, we must look to the hours following the crucifixion. As the desire of the Messiah's coming had been long, as the joy of it had been great, as the newly risen light had been glorious,—so mocked and blighted did hope seem, when Christ died. And from that darkness dawned a splendor transcending the creation's morning and Bethlehem's star. From the grave of the crucified, rose the divine Savior of mankind. The heart-broken disciples of the slain Nazarene went forth the joyful apostles of a faith in which the world took refuge."

LETTER FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

The Spread of Prophetic Truth—Lectures on Prophecy by Bishop Coxe—Significant Remarks by the Editor of the Gospel Messenger—Elder Grant recognized as one of the "Institutions" of San Francisco.

A friend speaking to me a few weeks since in regard to the "interview" with Miles Grant, remarked that he thought the Elder was very venturesome when he expressed belief in the somewhat general recognition of prophetic truth among all sects, or among the real christians in all denominations, as the Day approached. I replied that the church in which we two had been educated was in England somewhat noted for its preachers who held to such views as the Elder advanced. Of course I referred to the Episcopal church. I also referred to Dr. Tyng, and the Bishops of Virginia and Ohio. I did not then know that Bishop Coxe, of Western New York (under whose fervid preaching in Hartford, Conn., I have often sat, when a collegiate), had given expression to Second Advent views even more pronounced and decided than those of Dr. Tyng.

Yesterday my brother handed me a copy of the Gospel Messenger, of Feb. 9th—a very excellent Episcopal weekly, published at Utica, N. Y. Glancing at the third page, my attention was arrested by the heading—"Prophecy and our own Times"; and I read and re-read with great pleasure the subjoined significant book notice. As the paper is kept on file, I must write out the extract for you. Invoking the spirit of patience on the part of your compositors, I quote:

"PROPHECY AND OUR OWN TIMES; Two Lectures, by A. Cleveland Coxe, Bishop of Western New York. Buffalo: Breed, Lent & Co.

We are greatly obliged to the publishers for this pamphlet, which we have read with great refreshment and impulse of devout gratitude. We say of all books what we think, at the risk of giving offence. And we think Bishop Coxe is entirely right in drawing the attention of the clergymen to the study of prophecy in these portentous times. One feels in reading this most appetizing brochure, a sort of hungering for a still more full and extended treatment of the subject; but he has condensed a great deal into a popular form in these two lectures. It is a bold, sketchy, and wonderfully suggestive outline of the whole period of 2500 years covered by the Image of Nebuchadnezzar, which he deems to have just expired during the last year. The period of 1260 years he believes to have begun about the year 610, the era of the rise of the Mahometan Imposture and the Usurpation of the Papacy, against which Gregory I. uttered his warning voice as the forerunner of Anti-Christ. It is remarkable how many writers of past generations have with one consent looked forward to about this time as the probable completion of one of the grand mystic periods of prophecy. Many years ago we derived almost this identical line of thought from Canon Townsend, the learned Harmonist of the Scriptures.

But what most writers have thrown out in fragmentary interpretations, Bishop Coxe has brought together in one view, and made exceedingly impressive and worthy of much reflection. For he has purposely kept out any influence of mere enthusiasm and imagination, as well as the technical discussions of learned criticism: seeking only to present the facts of history in such striking connection with the great outlines of prophecy, as will incite to a more general and correct study of the subject. The very style of these lectures, as of all his writings, shows Bishop Coxe to have always been a close and constant student of the Bible. It shows itself in every way, of subtle allusion, and delicate remembrance of coincidences, which one recognizes more easily than he can describe. No one has understood better in the midst of great wealth of literary acquisition, how to fulfill that charge of the Ordinal, to 'apply yourselves wholly to this one thing, and draw all your cares and studies this way.' The Bishop, in his application of prophecy to the present and the future, is quite reserved; he wisely says less than will occur to the mind of the reader. [The italics are in the original copy.] Breed & Lent publish the above, at $15 per 100. Also the Bishop's Lectures on the Signs of the Times, delivered at Rochester last year; $7.50 per 100."

Turning to the second page of same paper, I found something remarkable that "occurred" to the mind of the editor of the Messenger. For he editorially gives what is undoubtedly original suggestion with him and for him,—unless he chanced any time within these twenty-five years past to overhear the conclusion of a Second Advent discourse as he walked past the school-house or tent where an enthusiastic Elder was preaching so-called visionary things. But the subjoined Messenger editorial shows that light is breaking, and that the editor is "hungering" for more light, and is ready to fully appreciate the infidelity-destroying power of literal prophecy interpretation. The editor says:

"In connection with our notice of Bishop Coxe's Lectures on Prophecy, a thought has occurred to us of the real nature and value of the evidence of fulfilled prophecy for the truth of Christianity, and its paramount claim to the homage of mankind. In these days, what is called 'science' has taken us into a region of knowledge and thought very far from, not to say as alien as possible to, all the traditional ideas of historic religion. But this science gives us no satisfactory account of the moral and political condition of mankind to this day. What, then, if the current events of this age should show the finger of Providence writing out before men's eyes the fulfillment of the predictions of old in regard to the 'Times of the Gentiles,' so plainly that 'he may run that readeth it'? How all the fine spun theories of scientific and philosophic infidelity would be suddenly dissipated before such manifest working of God's providence in history,—such manifest completion of an ancient and far-reaching plan, as, for instance, that hid in the wonderful vision of Nebuchadnezzar's image! It more than half solves the problem of man's free agency within the limits of Divine Sovereignty. It is a very observable thing, to a close student of the Bible, how much stress is laid on prophecy in apostolic preaching. Whenever apostles preached Christ, especially to the Jews, their chief appeal seemed to be to the prophets of the old Scripture. To us Gentiles, it seems almost like inverting the order of proof; so that, as some one has said, we rather believe the prophets through Christ, than Christ through the prophets. But in one sense, after all, the old Jews were right. They knew that God spake unto Moses, and their ears had heard the noble works which God did in their father's time of old; and what claimed to be a new dispensation, must show itself to fit in with God's plan from the beginning; and this is, after all, the main burden of the arguments of St. Paul and St. Peter. The evidence of prophecy is the highest kind of evidence; and maugre all our refined 'scientific' processes, we are, perhaps, coming on the age which will compel us Gentiles to admit it, too. What an impulse such thoughts as these give to all devout and waiting hearts to redouble their supplications to the throne of grace, that the Lord of heaven and earth would make bare his arm,—make manifest to an unbelieving world his foretold power and glory!"

Can you realize that this is extracted from a leading Episcopal paper? Don't you think the editor did hear Elder Grant in Rochester, but attending from motives of curiosity, gave no immediate heed to what was argued, but had the gist of the discourse lodged in his brain, to be developed at a sudden mental "occurring," when some one having authority loosened the bands on the iron bedstead? But how refreshing the indications of the heart-readiness of many good men in all sects today to thoroughly comprehend and embrace the truth, if a hole can in any way be forced through their denominational wall.

Of course I have not yet seen Bishop Coxe's lectures, and they may not be in all respects such as I expect to find them, judging from the notice and editorial quoted. But we are assured they will incite the clergy of the Episcopal church, who read them, to "a more general and earnest study of the prophecies." It seems to me there is great encouragement in this publication for the extension of the prophecy-faith.

Elder Grant being in San Jose, it is a common remark that "we have lost one of our institutions." There is a decided vacancy in the church notices of the day; and I should not be surprised if his short absence proved of benefit in making some of us more determined to prevent his final departure before the summer opened. C.

San Francisco, Feb. 20th, 1871.

For the World's Crisis.

JOURNEYINGS OFT.

January 30. Started for Cushing conference with sleigh, on a little snow, traveled near sixty miles, over much bare ground; then the Lord furnished a wagon, after sleigh shoes were worn out. Thirty miles over frozen hubbles brought me to Cushing, Feb. 2nd. Here we met Brn. J. R. Hall and H. S. Mitchell, preachers of the word. Conference commenced. Although very severe weather, the people came out in large numbers, and listened with great attention. The brethren were active; the Spirit of God was present, and a blessed conference was enjoyed. Five came out for prayers, and we hope they will follow Christ. We found some new acquaintances among the Lord's children, and enjoyed pleasant associations.

February 6th, preached in Friendship Chapel to an interested audience, and found some living believers.

February 7th. Visited Alna, and put up with Brn. Harley families; found them in the faith and yet hoping for the Lord.

February 8th, filled my appointment in Windsor, preached to a few, and visited the old and tried ones of a former society. Found old Sister Hall, now a lone widow, infirm, but trusting in God and waiting with much interest the return of Christ. She did not forget the needs of the Lord's servant, but in her poverty gave the "widow's mite."

February 10th. Visited Bro. S. K. Partridge, No. Whitefield. Found him unable to preach, because of a bad cold, and consented to fill his appointment Sunday.

Febuary 11th. Visited China, Branch, and attended their monthly conference, which was well attended and a precious season. Sunday preached to a good congregation, who seemed to feast eagerly upon the word.

February 14. Visited Bro. Bates and family, Winthrop, and found them following the Lord. In the evening attended the Methodist prayer meeting. Found them very zealously engaged in a protracted effort. We helped them what we could, and were invited to remain and help them longer. Here we heard more scriptural prayers and testimonies than in any Methodist meeting for many years. Nearly all alluded to the coming kingdom, coming of Christ, or the judgment. The Congregationalist minister made a special appeal to the people in reference to the coming judgment and final separation. We felt to thank God for leading us there with the "Mission Tent" two years ago, to proclaim the judgment message. Its good results have been constantly seen in that community. I. C. WELLCOME.

Gems.

Watch not the cloud above thee—
Let the whirlwind 'round thee sweep;
God may the seed-time give thee,
But another hand may reap.

— When the evil man would seem to be good, then is he worst of all.

— Faith, if genuine, will as certainly produce good works, as a tree, if alive, will certainly produce fruit.

— Content and patience are the two virtues which conquer and overthrow all anger, malice, wrath, and back-biting.

— Essentials of a good officer—ability, clean hands, despatch, patience and impartiality.

Let us gather up the sunbeams,
Lying all around our path;
Let us keep the wheat and roses,
Casting out the thorns and chaff.
Let us find our sweetest comfort
In the blessings of to-day,
With a patient hand removing
All the briers from the way.

— To be content kills adversity if it assaults, dries tears if they flow, stays wrath if it urge, wins heaven if it continue.

— It is good to forbear to talk of things needless to be spoken; but it is much better to conceal things dangerous to be told.

— He who has begun, has advanced halfway toward the end.

— A little pack becomes a small pedlar, and a mean choice an humble conceit.

— Remember that self-interest is likely to warp your judgment more than all other circumstances combined; therefore, look well to your duty when your interest is concerned.

'Tis folly to inquire what the future may be,
Or picture the evils before us;
Take each as it comes, for we ever can see
Young Hope, like a star, beaming o'er us.

— Content makes men angels, but pride makes them devils.

— Good actions avail nothing, if the soul be unrenewed. You may stick figs or hang clusters of grapes upon a thorn-bush; but they cannot grow upon it.

— The beginning of things is in our own power; but the end thereof resteth at God's disposing.

— The worst thing in the world is not want of education, but a bad education.

— The common sort do take revenge for their credit; but noble minds forgive for their virtue.

Father, when the soul is struggling
'Mid the surging seas of life,
And the heart lies crushed and bleeding,
Weary of this fearful strife—
Then, oh give each struggling spirit
Strength to breast the fearful tide,
Strength to mount the surging billows
That arise on every side.

LET THEM ALONE.

Do not waste all your time in fighting bad men, or in seeking to undo what they have done. If, while you have slept, Satan has sowed tares in the field, his highest ambition would be to have you gather them up; for while pulling up the tares, you would root up the wheat also. Let both grow together till the harvest. You can break up new ground to raise a fresh crop, in less time than you can pick out the tares that Satan has scattered in huddled abundance among the wheat. Let both grow together. Wheat will ripen even in the midst of tares, but in seeking to separate them before the time, the wheat will be ruined and the labor lost.

The lesson that Christ would teach us is, to abstain from mere negations and contradictions, from disputings and vain janglings; to go our way, and do our own business, and trust in God to crown it with a blessing.

Suppose you are slandered and abused; suppose your friends turn away from you; what then? You can make ten new friends by minding your own business and serving God, where you can regain five old ones by quarreling with your enemies for their confidence. Let them alone; keep about your Master's work; and by-and-by they will come back, with tears in their eyes, confessing how they have been misled and have wronged you. The world is wide enough for earnest souls; if men elbow and crowd you from your rightful place, go out and find another and a better one. If they persecute you in one city, flee into another; if they lie about you, do not stop to bandy epithets, or waste time over it; every live man who serves God must encounter Satan's lies; but if you keep on the track you will out-travel the slanderer's falsehoods; and if you hurry you will distance the devil and his dust.

Some one once told a little girl that if she did not conform to his wishes in something, he would tell everybody he knew about it.

"Well," said she, "that doesn't trouble me any."

"Why not?"

"Because there are a great many people that you don't know, who won't know anything about it."

The man who can stand up in the strength and fear of God, and run the race set before him, looking unto Jesus, may be assured that God will open his way, and care for him, and direct his path. If enemies assail, and friends forsake, let them alone; go forward, and trust in God. You will find new friends for the old ones that you forsake; and fresher fields, and greener pastures, and purer streams will spread themselves before your feet if you hear the voice of the Good Shepherd, and follow on to know the Lord.—Christian.

For the World's Crisis.

CIRCULATE THE "CRISIS."

But few have any correct idea of the amount of good that can be accomplished by increasing the circulation of the Crisis, and other periodicals devoted to the advance of the truths we love. I have residing at L——, an aunt who is a member of one of our orthodox churches. She, like most of my relatives, was very much prejudiced against Adventism. She shunned our meetings, and rejected our tracts. Some time ago I paid her a short visit, and succeeded before leaving, in inducing her to subscribe for the Crisis for six months. When the time expired she renewed her subscription, saying she could not well do without it. In a letter which I received from her a short time since, she writes as follows:—

"I wish I lived near an Advent meeting. I would certainly attend it if I did. Since I subscribed for the Crisis, I have had a desire to go among them. There is altogether too much pride among the churches. They think more of dress than they do of Christ. It certainly does look as though Jesus would come soon. My faith in this blessed doctrine grows stronger every day."

No amount of talk could have removed her deep seated prejudices, and caused her to look upon our faith as she now does, but the regular reading of the Crisis has accomplished it. Probably all our preachers could report many similar cases. Let us then work with a will to get new subscribers for our paper.

C. H. SWEET.

THE TONGUE.

The only edge tool that becomes sharper by constant use, is the tongue. It is often a sting full of deadly poison. It is both an offensive weapon—a shield and a spear. Some carry dirks in their pockets, others in their mouths. The tongue of the malignant is like a masked battery, which makes us feel fire when we can't see smoke. There's never a spur for the tongue in all the Bible, but many a bit. As a condition of longevity physicians say: "Keep the head cool and the feet warm." This is Peter's recipe for a long and happy life: "He that will love life and see good days, let him refrain his tongue from evil, and his lips from speaking guile." Physicians are accustomed to judge of the state of the body by the condition of the tongue, assuming as a settled principle that there is an intimate connection between the state of the tongue and the tone of the system. The apostle James adopts a similar course. To judge of soul-health, he looks at the tongue. If any man offend not in word, his moral health is perfect. On the other hand, if any one seem to be religious while the tongue it unbridled, that man's soul is sick. Read the third chapter of James. What a delineation of the soul-sickness of the race!—Ex.

JUST A HINT NOW.—Some preachers are very successful in the pulpit, or in meetings in producing excitements, but very unfortunate everywhere else. They neither study, nor visit from house to house between meetings, but lounge away their time in the bed, parlor, and kitchen, of some wealthy brother near at hand. They exercise so little, are so irregular in their sleep and intemperate in their diet, that their health is soon impaired; they become nervous, peevish, fault-finding, and will soon wear out the patience of any family, in attending to their numerous whims and calls.

No preacher, young or old, unless he is sick, very sick, should keep his room twenty-four hours, unless he wishes to leave his name as a stench in the nostrils of those who may have the unpleasant task of looking after him, especially in his sleeping room. Your own health and respectability, the comfort and benefit of the families on whom you call, and the cause of God, demand that you should make as little trouble as possible; that you should be an example of early rising, of cleanliness, sobriety, patience, prudence, and industry in all things compatible with your calling. Think of these things, and some more which I have not named.

PROOF READING.—If the readers of newspapers understood one-half the difficulties in procuring accuracy, instead of wondering and scolding at mistakes, they would be surprised that there are not more. How few readers appreciate the services of the individual who examines the "proofs" of a paper before it is printed. He is one of the most important agents to the production of a correct literature, and one of whom no reader seems to think. His is the most thankless of all the employments among men. Let him bring out a paper without a fault for weeks and weeks in succession, and nobody thinks of him. But let him allow an error to go uncorrected,—as we happened to do in a five-line church item a few weeks since—and immediately he is known to be censured and his paper subjected to ill-natured criticisms. He has no thanks for his labored patience, but blame if he is not faultless. He is certain of one or two things—forgetfulness or censure.

BE COURTEOUS.—There is one duty which is very often neglected, or, when the attempt is made to perform it, is so badly performed that its proper effect is almost entirely lost. We refer to the duty of commending the religion of our Lord Jesus Christ to every man's conscience. It is not sufficient that a christian be honest, kind at heart, spotless in speech and behavior; for he may be all this and yet be very far from winning others to christian principles. He may be so narrow in his judgments, so thoughtless of the differing circumstances of his neighbors, so neglectful of courtesies, so impatient at imaginable provocation, that all who behold shall say that they have no need of a religion that would make them no better than other men.—Christian at Work.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

For the "Children's Corner."

INTEMPERANCE.

The following piece of poetry was recently spoken by a small lad in one of our S. S. concerts with good effect. As it was concluded, another lad approaching the first, asked the question contained in the first verse of the next piece following, whereupon the first repeated what follows.

Castleton, Vt. B. MATHEWSON.

WHO KILLED TOM ROPER?

Who killed Tom Roper?
Not I, said new Cider,
I couldn't kill a spider;
I didn't kill Tom Roper.
Not I, said strong Ale,
I make men tough and hale;
I didn't kill Tom Roper.
Not I, said Lager Beer!
I don't intoxicate. D'ye hear? (cross.)
I didn't kill Tom Roper.
Not I, said Bourbon Whisky,
I make sick folks spry and frisky;
The doctors say so; don't they know
What quickens blood that runs too slow!
I didn't kill Tom Roper.
Not I, said sparkling old Champagne,
No poor man e'er by me was slain.
I cheer the rich in lordly halls,
And scorn the place where the drunkard falls;
I didn't kill Tom Roper.
Not we, said various other wines;
What! juice of grapes, product of vines,
Kill a man! The Bible tells
That wine all other drinks excels;
I didn't kill Tom Roper.
Nor I, said Holland Gin;
To charge such a crime to me is a sin,
I didn't kill Tom Roper.
Nor I, spoke up the Brandy strong,
He grew too poor to buy me long;
I didn't kill Tom Roper.
Not I, said Medford Rum;
He was almost gone before I come;
I didn't kill Tom Roper.
Ha, ha! laughed old Prince Alcohol,
Each struck the blow that made him fall;
And all that helped to make him toper,
My agents were to kill Tom Roper.

KING ALCOHOL.

O Alcohol, come answer me
The question I shall put to thee;
What is thy age? what is thy aim?
What is thy trade? what is thy name?

HE ANSWERS:

My age is o'er a thousand years;
My aim, to fill the earth with tears;
My trade, to kill and make expense;
My name, it is Intemperance.

Long have I ruled upon the earth,
To many crimes I've given birth;
I'm father to all grief and woe,
And spread distress where'er I go.

My dwelling place is at the bar,
My customers are near and far;
I fill their heads and drain their purse,
And turn their blessing to a curse.

My face is covered with a mask,
My hiding place is in a cask;
My business is to gender strife,
And put asunder man and wife.

I visit grog-shops all around;
Where Satan is I'm always found;
I am his waiter day and night,
His service is my chief delight.

He is my captain and my guide,
I always stand close by his side;
Have killed more men, upon my word,
Than famine, pestilence or sword.

With my deceitful, flat'ring tongue,
I draw to me both old and young;
And when I get them in my snare,
I hold them fast and keep them there.

JOHNNIE AND HIS THUMB.

When Johnnie was a bit of a baby his thumb would often find its way to his mouth. It was always the same one, so his Mamma used to call it his sweet thumb. When mamma, or his nurse, laid him for his nap in his little crib, that thumb would walk straight to his mouth, and the other tiny hand would hold it up for him. He used to look very cunning, and quite comfortable, as he lay there awake. He seemed to say, though he could not talk, "Mamma may go, nurse may go, thumb will take care of Johnnie." Night after night, and year after year Johnnie never forgot to put his sweet thumb in his mouth. After he learned to talk he used to call it his "'ittle tumfort."

When Johnnie was three years of age his mother thought he was too old to suck his thumb any more. She showed him how much smaller that one was than the other, and told him if he did not stop eating it, that thumb would grow smaller and smaller, while the rest of his hand and body would grow large. Then, when he was a man, and wore pants like his papa, he would have one nice, large thumb, large as papa's and one bit of a baby thumb. But Johnnie did not like to give up his "'ittle tumfort" when alone in his crib.

One morning his mother said to Johnnie, "Johnnie does not stop eating his thumb, and to-night mamma must tie mustard around it, and then it will not taste good."

After a long, bright sunny day, night came. Mamma was fastening Johnnie's little white nightgown, when papa came into the nursery. He had finished his day's work down town, and was ready for a frolic with his little boy. Papa said, "How is it about that thumb, Johnnie? Are you going to let mamma tie mustard around it, just because Johnnie is not brave enough to give it up himself? I would not put my thumb in my mouth any more, not once more; I would stop now. Then Johnnie will conquer himself, and be papa's brave boy."

Johnnie was still a few minutes. He was deciding a hard question for such a little boy. His thumb was better to him than anything else. He could have it whenever he chose. How could he give up his "'ittle tumfort?"

At last Johnnie looked up in his papa's face and said, "Nonnie will stop. Nonnie won't eat his dear little tum any more, ever."

When Johnnie knelt soon after and said his evening prayer, he added, "Please, Jesus, help Nonnie not to eat his tum again."

You see Johnnie made up his mind to do right. He knew he ought to give up his "'ittle tumfort" because papa and mamma wished it. He made up his mind strong to do it, and then asked Jesus to help him.

Jesus loves to have little children ask his help, and he loves to help them too. He helped Johnnie to conquer himself, for brave Johnnie gave up his "'ittle tumfort," and never lived on his thumb any more.

Don't you think Johnnie's papa and mamma had reason to be proud of their boy who made such a noble effort to conquer himself? Don't you think he set a good example for some older boys to follow in breaking off their bad habits? Christian Union.

SPEAK KINDLY.

A man once saved a very poor boy from drowning. After his restoration he said to him:

"What can I do for you, my boy?"

"Speak a kind word to me sometimes," replied the boy, the tears rushing from his eyes. "I ain't got a mother like some of them."

A kind word! Think of it. This man had it in his power to give that boy money, clothes, playthings, but the little fellow craved nothing so much as a kind word now and then. If the man had ever so little heart the boy must certainly have had the wish granted. A kind word! You have many such spoken to you daily, and you don't think much of their value; but that poor boy in the village, at whom everybody laughs, would think that he had found a treasure if some one spoke a kind word to him.—Selected

A MURDEROUS SEA FLOWER.—One of the wonders of the sea is called the opelet, and is about as large as the German aster, looking, indeed, very much like one. Imagine a very large double aster, with ever so many long petals of a light green, glossy as satin, and each one tipped with rose color. These lovely petals do not lie quietly in their places like those of the aster in your garden, but wave about in the water, while the opelet generally clings to a rock. How innocent and lovely it looks on its rocky bed! Who would suspect that it could eat anything grosser than dew or sunshine? But those beautiful waving arms, as you call them, have another use besides looking pretty. They have to provide food for a large, open mouth, which is hidden deep down among them, so well hidden that one can scarcely find it. Well do they perform their duty, for the instant that a foolish little fish touches one of the rosy lips he is struck with poison as fatal to him as lightning. He immediately becomes numb, and in a moment stops struggling, and then the other beautiful arms wrap themselves around him, and he is drawn into the huge, greedy mouth, and is seen no more. Then the lovely arms unclose and wave again in the water, looking as innocent and harmless as though they had never touched a fish.—Bright Side.

THE USEFUL LITTLE ROCKING-CHAIR.—"Well," said a straight-backed, straight-legged chair to a cozy little rocking-chair by whose side it chanced to be placed, "before I would be such a drudge as you are, I would be a stool, or, if possible, something still more insignificant. People are not content with making you nurse every person, be they big or little; but you must also be continually rocking them to and fro."

"To be sure," answered the little rocking-chair pleasantly, "I am always busy, and on the go, for the gratification of others; but thereby have I won for myself many friends, and appear to be a great favorite with all. This well repays me for my trouble."

And so it is with persons: those who cheerfully and willingly do for others are the ones who gain for themselves many friends.—The Guiding Star.

"I WISH I could mind God as my little dog minds me," said a little boy, looking thoughtfully on his shaggy friend; "he always looks so pleased to mind, and I don't."

Hygiene.

"This is for your Health."

IMPORTANCE OF SLEEP.

1. Those who think most, who do most brain work, require most sleep. 2. Time saved from necessary sleep is infallibly destructive to mind body, and estate. 3. Give yourself, your children, your servants—give all that are under you the fullest amount of sleep they will take, by compelling them to go to bed at some regular early hour, and to rise in the morning the moment they awake; and within a fortnight, nature, with almost the regularity of the rising sun, will unloose the bonds of sleep the moment enough repose has been secured for the wants of the system. This is the only safe and sufficient rule; and as to the question how much sleep any one requires, each must be a rule for himself; great Nature will never fail to write it out to the observer under the regulations just given.—Dr. Spicer.

CURE OF DYSPEPSIA.

Voltaire's recipe for dyspepsia consisted in taking no other nourishment than the yolk of eggs beaten up with flour of potatoes and water.

Sir John Sinclair's recipe for dyspepsia: Beat up an egg in a bowl; then add six table spoonfuls of cold water, mixing the whole well together; then add two table spoonfuls of the farina of potatoes; to be mixed thoroughly with the liquor in the bowl; then pour in as much boiling water as will convert the whole into a jelly, and mix well. It may be taken alone or with the addition of a little milk, and moist, or best sugar, not only for breakfast, but in case of great stomachic debility, or in consumptive disorders at the other meals. The dish is light, easily digested, extremely wholesome and nourishing. Bread or biscuit can be taken with it as the stomach gets stronger.

HEALTHFUL FOOD.—Nature's bill of fare embraces all that is good, necessary or useful, in great simplicity, in the vegetables, grains and fruits of the earth as the most healthful diet for the human race. Such are the opinions of many eminent anatomists, physiologists, naturalists, philosophers of ancient and modern times, as may be seen by reading the works of Cuvier, Home, Lamb, Graham, Alcott, Trall, Jackson, etc. Animal diet corrupts the blood, making it inflammable, susceptible to fevers and other diseases. A calf kept in a field of good grass and water, with no other food, will grow and thrive, accumulate flesh, fat, bone, horn, hoof, muscle, etc., till it becomes a full grown animal in health, strength and beauty, proving the power of nature to supply all the component parts and structures of the animal from grass alone. Verily, "all flesh is grass." A child may be as fully developed in health, strength and beauty, from grains, fruits, vegetables and water, with their accompaniments, pure air, sunshine, exercise, rest, recreation, sleep, etc., all in due proportions according to physiological law.—Laws of Life.

How can I expand my chest?" an extortionate man asked of a physician. "By carrying a larger heart in it," replied the doctor.

The World's Crisis

AND

SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance.......................$2.50 a year.
Five copies six months to one address.........$5.60.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies six months to one address.......$10.00.
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage in the United States on each single copy of the Crisis is 20 cts. a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.

Over all matters not intended for publication, write—PRIVATE.
Over all business matters, write—BUSINESS.
Over all articles for the paper, write—For the Crisis.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's NAME, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of NEW subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save much labor.
PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, please write PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.
☞ Put business matters and appointments on separate pieces of paper, so so that they can be detached without interfering with any other communication.
☞ All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the POST OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to either

MILES GRANT, or GEO. T. ADAMS,
BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,

Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS.

PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Single copy, 50 cts. a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.
Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 40 cts. a year for each copy.
Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 35 cts. a year for each copy.
To Canada subscribers at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 803. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15, 1871. VOL. XXXII.—NO. 25.

The World's Crisis,
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, by the
ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY,
At No. 160 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass.
GEO. T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.
WILLIAM SHELDON, Corresponding Editor.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, L. BOUTELL,
JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
HOMER A. KING, H. V. DAVIS,
L. T. CUNNINGHAM, J. G. HAMBLIN,
H. B. DICKENSON.

The "Crisis" is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

THE SEASIDE WELL.

"Waters flowed over mine head: then I said, I am cut off."—LAM. 3: 54.

One day I wandered where the salt sea-tide
Backward had drawn its wave,
And found a spring as sweet as e'er hill-side
To wild flowers gave.
Freshly it sparkled in the sun's bright look,
And 'mid its pebbles stray'd,
As if it thought to join a happy brook
In some green glade.

But soon the heavy sea's resistless swell
Came rolling in once more,
Spreading its bitter o'er the clear sweet well
And pebbled shore.
Like a fair star thick buried in a cloud,
Or life in the grave's gloom,
The well, enwrapped in a deep watery shroud,
Sank to its tomb.

As one who by the beach roams far and wide,
Remnant of wreck to save,
Again I wandered when the salt sea-tide
Withdrew its wave.
And there, unchanged, no taint in all its sweet,
No anger in its tone.
Still, as it thought some happy brook to meet,
The spring flowed on.

While waves of bitterness rolled o'er its head,
Its heart had folded deep
Within itself, and quiet fancies led,
As in a sleep.
Till when the ocean loosed his heavy chain,
And gave it back to-day,
Calmly it turned to its own life again,
And gentle way.

Happy, I thought, that which can draw its life
Deep from the nether springs,
Safe 'neath the pressure, tranquil 'mid the strife
Of surface things.
Safe—for the sources of the nether springs
Up in the far hills lie;
Calm—for the life its power and freshness brings
Down from the sky.

—Sunday Magazine.

THE '73 TIME ARGUMENT.

It is with due regard for the feelings of those with whom I may differ, that I present a few thoughts, intended to show the weakness of the above mentioned argument. If what I may oppose, does not seem to those interested to weaken the argument, I shall only be pleased if they will explain, so as to make the matter clear and harmonious.

Objection first. I think the position which affirms that the three horns must be "plucked up by the roots" prior to the setting up of the abomination of desolation, is assumed. The prophecy simply states the fact, that three of the ten horns shall be plucked up by the little horn; but does not inform us whether this work shall be accomplished before or after the setting up of the abomination. In the explanation by the angel, we read "And he shall subdue three kings." Dan. 7: 24. Hence if the Gothic kingdom had been plucked up in A. D. 538, it would be no positive proof that the abomination was set up at that point of time. But suppose the above position to be correct, we will inquire; was the Gothic kingdom plucked up by the roots in 538? and I answer, I hardly understand how such a position could have been taken, when all history agrees that they were only compelled to raise the siege of Rome in that year. Let it be understood that Rome was not the capital of the Gothic kingdom, but rather Ravenna; and the Gothic army only fell back in the direction of their capital, where they maintained their position until the very last days of A. D. 539, when Belisarius and his army, through intrigue, were permitted to enter the Gothic capital. A few days after, in the beginning of the following year, 540, Belisarius was recalled by the Emperor, to Constantinople, when he took with him the keys of the capital, together with their king, as trophies of the war. See Gibbon.

Can we fairly take the position that a kingdom is subdued, simply by the loss of a battle? Is a kingdom

PLUCKED UP BY THE ROOTS,

when its king and its capital remain unharmed, and its army makes head against its enemies for fifteen long years? For all history agrees that the Goths chose a new king, and their army thrice again laid seige to Rome, entered and sacked the city; and were not finally subdued until A. D. 553.

But again. The argument claims that some extraordinary power was conferred upon the Pope of Rome by Justinian in the year 538, and by that act the following symbolic prophecy, then and there, received its fulfillment—"And the dragon gave him his power, and seat, and great authority." Rev. 13: 2. First, let me ask, what government is to receive this "power and seat, and great authority" at the hands of the dragon? If we refer to the context, we learn it is that symbolized by the beast which rose up out of the sea, having seven heads and ten horns, and which had the appearance of a leopard. Now is it not almost universally admitted that this leopard beast symbolizes the government which had its rise in the eastern division of the Roman Empire, the Greek nation being the first head? And is it not as universally admitted, not only by Adventists, but by nearly if not all commentators, that the dragon symbolizes the Imperial government of pagan Rome? Then what has the above transaction to do with the pope in any sense? I answer, nothing whatever. It was a voluntary act of presentation on the part of the civil government of pagan or western Rome, and the gift was accepted by the civil government of eastern Rome, its centre and seat being at Constantinople. And in my judgment there is no prophecy in the book of God, whose fulfillment is more clearly marked in history than is the above. And although I have quoted it in a former article, yet I will now bring it forward again, as it seems necessary to make the point clear. "The unfortunate Augustus was made the instrument of his own disgrace; he signified his resignation to the Senate, and that assembly, in their last act of obedience to the Roman prince, still affected the spirit of freedom, and the forms of the constitution. An epistle was addressed by their unanimous decree, to the Emperor Zeno, the son-in-law and successor of Leo, who had lately been restored, after a short rebellion, to the Byzantine throne. They solemnly disclaimed the necessity, or even the wish to continue any longer in Italy; since, in their opinion, the majesty of a sole monarch is sufficient to pervade and protect at the same time, both the east and the west. In their own name, and in the name of the people, they consent that the seat of universal empire shall be transferred from Rome to Constantinople. Gibbon, Vol. 3, p. 512. The date given in history for the accomplishment of this important transaction, is A. D. 476; more than sixty years earlier than 538, where the '73 time argument claims the prophecy to have been fulfilled. And now I ask the candid reader to judge—Does not the above quotation show a complete fulfillment of the prophecy under consideration? Please notice: The imperial title, power and authority, together with the seat of universal empire, were transferred, or given by the government of pagan Rome, to the government of New Rome, or Constantinople. That transaction, to my mind, looks something like the dragon giving his power, his seat, and great authority to the leopard beast.

THE IMPERIAL SUCCESSION

But the argument claims that the pope of Rome was vested with some additional power, and that he was exalted by Justinian to occupy the seat of the dragon in that year, 538. But let us examine and see if the pope did actually receive imperial power, and a regal seat, and great authority in the year 538. For the dragon's seat was royal, and his power was imperial; and when the above prophecy is fulfilled, the transfer must consist of what the dragon has to give. History says, during the period of the conquest of Rome and Italy, from A. D. 536 to 553, two popes occupied the papal chair, namely, Silverius and Vigilius. The first suffered degradation at the hands of Belisarius and his wife Antonia, at the request of the Empress in A. D. 537, by being driven from his See, and left to perish upon a desolate island. The other, Vigilius, the most doubtful character who had at that time occupied the chair of St. Peter, received his appointment through the arts of the infamous Theodora, the wife of the emperor Justinian, and suffered the judicial punishment of his weaknesses and crimes—"persecution, shame, remorse."

Again, the historian sums up the history of the papal power during this eventful period as follows: "During the conquest of Italy by the eastern emperors, and for some time after, the pope was not confronted indeed in Rome by a resident emperor, but was summoned at the will of the emperor to Constantinople, or in Rome rebuked by a victorious general, or an exarch, who, though he held his court at Ravenna, executed the commands of a sovereign accustomed to dictate, rather than submit to ecclesiastical power. At scarcely any period did the papal authority suffer greater degradation, or were the persons of the popes reduced to more humiliating subserviancy." Milman's Lat. Chris., Vol. I, p. 471. Bower also gives the same in substance.

Thus it will be seen that neither the papal hierarchy, or the popes, received any additional power or authority; neither were they exalted to a royal seat, during the period from 536 and onward for many years. But they were rather degraded from the exalted position they had occupied under the rule of the Goths. It is true the Emperor showed much respect for the popes when they agreed with him in ecclesiastical matters; but the emperor commanded, and compelled the popes to accept his definition of the articles of the Catholic councils. And although the Goths had been driven out of Rome, the civil power was not left in the hands of the pope (as is claimed), but was exercised by the generals of the eastern armies, in the name of the emperor Justinian, until the final subjugation of the Goths, when the eastern emperor appointed a provincial ruler, called the Exarch of Ravenna, who exercised the civil government of Rome and Italy in his imperial name.

But again, the '73 time argument claims that the 1260 years of papal supremacy ended in 1798, because the pope was taken prisoner in that year, which was just 1260 years this side of 538, where, it is claimed, the period began. Now the popes have been imprisoned and exiled so many times during the period of papal history, that the fact of the imprisonment of a pope in that particular year, seems to lessen its force as a point in the argument. Pope Silverius, mentioned above, died in exile, and Vigilius, the next pope, after suffering great indignities at the command of the emperor, was finally imprisoned and driven into exile for five months. And although he recanted and was permitted by the emperor to start on his return to Rome, he died before reaching the end of his journey. I will mention one other pope whose imprisonment and exile comes nearer the supposed point of the ending of the 1260 days. I refer to Pope Pius VII., who, after the death of the imprisoned Pope Pius VI., was elected to occupy the papal chair, March 13, 1800. Pius VII. continued to exercise the functions of the papal office, until A. D. 1808, when (April 2) Rome and the States of the Church were again seized by the French. The following year, 1809, the pope having ventured to disobey the mandates, and defy the menaces of Napoleon, was forcibly seized in his palace, dethroned, imprisoned, and Rome proclaimed the second city of the empire. This last captivity seems to be a more complete overthrow of the pope, and the whole papal system, than the imprisonment and exile of Pius VI. in A. D. 1798. But it is too late to fit in the argument. And now I repeat what I have said above. I see no force in the argument which ends the 1260 days at the captivity and exile of a pope of Rome, no matter at what point in its history such an event might transpire. It was not the pope, neither the papal hierarchy, that was to make war on the saints 1260 days; but rather the government symbolized by the leopard beast with seven heads and ten horns. The papal government is the "mouth" which was given to this leopard beast, which spake great things and blasphemies. And this mouth no doubt counseled the leopard-beast government to make war on the saints. And the prophecy affirms that the leopard-beast government did make war on the saints 1260 days. Hence in relation to the time when the 1260 days ended, the question is not, when was the pope taken prisoner, but rather, when did the seventh head of the leopard beast cease to make war on the saints? For the six heads of that beast were to make war during their entire history; but the seventh must continue (margin,—make war) only a short space.

For an answer to the above question, I refer you to an article recently published in the A. C. Times, giving a history of the rise and fall of the seven heads of the leopard beast, each in their order.

But it is said, you make the seventh head cease to make war on the saints prior to the darkening of the sun in 1780. Certainly; and did not Jesus say—"Immediately after the tribulation of those days the sun shall be darkened"? Matt. 24. And yet it is affirmed it was only the tribulation that ended prior to the dark day, and that the 1260 days continued on many years after. But let us briefly examine the affirmation. Does not the Revelator say the leopard beast should make war on the saints 1260 days? and would there not be tribulation as long as the war lasted? If so, then if the tribulation ended prior to the dark day of 1780, so must also the 1260 days' war on the saints. Jesus also says: "Except those days should be shortened no flesh should be saved." This language indicates that the tribulation would continue the full term of the shortened days. But this position may be looked upon with distrust, from the fact that of necessity the 1260 days' war must have commenced some years before the 1335 and 1290 days. Yet who that has read the history of these times will not admit that the leopard beast government did commence to make war on the different sects, in the interest of the Catholic religion, immediately after Justinian was proclaimed emperor in A. D. 518? In some instances he commanded they should be put to death wherever they should be found. In 524 he issued an edict, commanding the Arians to deliver up their church to the Catholics, and their bishops to consecrate them anew.

Finally, Justinian issued an edict commanding all, whether Jews, Gentiles or Christians, to accept the Catholic faith on pain of death or exile. And history records the fact, that one hundred thousand of his subjects perished under the enforcement of that terrible edict, in the year 532. But notwithstanding all this, I cannot believe the abomination was at that time set up in the sense of the prophecy. In short, it was necessary the beast should make war in the interest of the Catholic religion many long years before he could set up, or establish, that abominable system of worship as the universal law or creed of his vast empire. But, to be brief, I will suggest I do not understand there is an intimation in the prophecy of Daniel that there would be just 1260 days' tribulation; yet Jesus clearly refers us to the tribulation of those days spoken of by Daniel the prophet.

I admit we read in Dan. 12: 7 about a "time, times, and a half," but the margin says "a part," which I think is the correct rendering, from the fact that in the answer to the same question reiterated in v. 11, he makes the plain statement that there shall be 1290 days. And as the 1290 days and 1335 days begin together, at the time when the abomination is set up, or established, I conclude that inasmuch as Jesus said the days spoken of by Daniel should be shortened (see Matt. 24), the 1290 were shortened so as to end exactly where the 1260 days' war on the saints ended, which was just prior to the darkening of the sun in 1780. I know it has been our position that the 1260 days of the book of Revelations, and the 1335 days of the prophecy of Daniel, commence at the same point of time; and it seems hard to look at the matter in any other light; but when we remember that some eminent commentators commenced the 1260 days in A. D. 606–7, and also that we once held that the seventy weeks, sixty-nine weeks, and sixty-two weeks, all had one common commencement; ought we to be too firm in holding to our old position that the 1260 and 1335 days commenced together, especially inasmuch as time has continued so long, that to hold the old position throws the 1260 day period out of harmony with plain statements in the word of God, as shown above?

Again. If the 1260 days did not end until 1798, how can we harmonize that arrangement with the fact that the two witnesses were slain, if slain at all, prior to that time? For we all agree that the period of 1260 years, during which time the two witnesses prophesied in sackcloth, and the period of 1260 years' war on the saints, run parallel; and we read that when they shall have finished their testimony clothed in sackcloth (and the original will not allow of any other rendering), the beast that ascendeth out of the bottomless pit shall make war against them, overcome them, and kill them. Now if they were slain, and lay dead, as I think there is no doubt, during the years from 1791 to 1795 (for every feature of the events presented in the prophecy was fulfilled by the French government during those years), then the 1260 years' war on the saints must have ended prior to that time.

The foregoing are some of the reasons why I cannot accept the position that the 1260 days measure the period from 538 to 1798, and if our tolerant editor permits what I have written to appear for your consideration, in my next I will give you my views in relation to the abomination—what it is, when, and where it was set up in fulfillment of the prophecy. I do not write to oppose any one. I have great respect for the honest, intelligent views of all. My only object is to excite a spirit of kind investigation, that, if possible, a clear light may shine out from the prophetic page to guide us on our journey to the everlasting kingdom.

WM. F. COLLIER, in A. C. Times.
Worcester, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

LITERAL INTERPRETATION OF SCRIPTURE.

A PARTIAL REVIEW OF "THE END OF ALL THINGS."

(Continued.)

In our last we found that all the passages selected by Mr. G. would not only bear a literal interpretation, but that any attempt to give them a figurative interpretation, or reading, greatly weakened them, if not entirely destroyed them. We feel therefore equally sure that there will be no difficulty in finding an easy, natural, and scriptural solution of all that may follow. The next instance given is as follows:—

"Our Lord said to his disciples, just before he was about to leave them, 'In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you.' Interpret these words literally, and the result would be that there are material houses in heaven, and that every redeemed saint of God shall have a mansion to himself in the realms of glory. I may be met here with the remark that no one could ever understand this in a literal sense. To that observation my reply is, that it has been so understood, and is at this hour so understood by thousands of christians. The Swedenborgians—and as a body they are very intelligent—one and all so understand it."

And they are not alone in this belief. We, too, most faithfully believe that there are mansions in heaven (for Jesus says if it were not so, he would have told us) prepared for the saints, which will in due time be given to them—not in heaven, but—on this earth when it is restored. We are told of a "city which hath foundations" now in heaven, which shall descend by and by to this earth, and which shall be the glorious capital of the new world. Proof: "I, John, saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband." "Behold the tabernacle [or house] of God is with men." Rev. 21: 2, 3. Jesus went to "prepare" a place for the saints, and here it comes "prepared." The minute description of the golden city which follows this glorious announcement, forces us to take it as a literal city. Indeed, it can not be taken otherwise, for it is impossible for a city to exist without houses, or mansions. Therefore if the city is figurative, the mansions are figurative, the inhabitants are figurative; and if they are figurative, the throne of God and of the Lamb, which is in the city, is figurative; and if the throne of God is figurative, He who sitteth upon the throne is also figurative! Will those who differ with us accept this wholesale destruction "of the words of the prophecy of this book"? Either these passages are all literal, or else they are all figurative, for they are all equally plain and positive. As for me, I think I shall follow old Abraham's example, and take God at his word.

Again we quote—"In the eleventh chapter of John, we have three striking examples of the employment of figurative language on the part of our Lord, which in every instance were erroneously understood by his disciples in the literal sense, so earnestly contended for by modern millenarians. When Jesus, we are told, was informed that Lazarus, the brother of Mary and Martha, was sick, he said, 'This sickness is not unto death.' This our Lord meant in a figurative sense. If he had spoken in accordance with a literal interpretation of the words which he used, the event would have shown that he was mistaken as to the fact, for the sickness of Lazarus was unto death. This is one instance of Christ speaking in a figurative instead of a literal sense."

The peculiar selection of only a part of the sentence containing the words quoted, reminds me of that eccentric preacher, Lorenzo Dow. Being at one time greatly tried by the prevailing fashion among the women of his day, of wearing the hair in a huge ball, or top-knot, he announced one Sabbath that he would on the following Lord's day preach to the ladies, and prove to them from the Scriptures that Jesus condemned this method of wearing the hair. Accordingly at the time appointed, the church was full, all eager to know where the passage was that would convict them. With a solemn, stern countenance, Dow arose, and turning to Matt. 24: 17, he read in their astonished hearing, in tones of thunder—"Top-knot, come down"! From this he preached a powerful sermon, which had all the greater effect from the fact that, although his hearers were solemnly assured that those identical words were in the Bible, he knowingly omitted to give them the chapter and verse, by telling them if they read their Bibles as they ought to, they would find them.

So with our author. He takes only the first part of the sentence, and ignores the rest, and from this first part proceeds to make his deductions. Now is this the true way to read and interpret God's holy word? I honestly think it is not. Jesus, in this instance, said no more than was necessary to convey his meaning intelligibly to his disciples. Why, then, take only half of what he said, particularly as there is no break in his sentence? Let us read—"When Jesus heard that [viz., that Lazarus was sick], he said, This sickness is not unto death, but [or except] for the glory of God [why, Jesus?]; that the Son of God might be glorified thereby" (i. e., by Lazarus' death). But how could the Son of God be glorified by the death of a man whom "Jesus loved"? Because if Jesus had gone at once to see Lazarus before he died, his human nature might have been so overcome by the love he bore "Martha, her sister, and Lazarus" (for Jesus was "a man of like passions with us, yet without sin"), that he would not have suffered Lazarus to die. Therefore "he abode two days still in the place where he was," during which time Lazarus died.

But, Lord, we are like Martha; it is not fully clear to us yet how thou shalt be glorified by our brother's death. "Said I not unto thee, that if thou wouldst believe thou shouldst see the glory of God?" "I am glad for your sakes that I was not there, to the intent that ye [also] may believe." "Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead was laid. And Jesus lifted up his eyes, and said—Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me. And I knew that thou hearest me always; but because of the people which stand by, I said it, that they may believe that thou hast sent me. And when he had thus spoken, he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth! And he that was dead came forth." What was the result? "Many of the Jews which came to Mary, and had seen the things which Jesus did, believed on him." Ah! here, then, is the grand secret of Jesus doing as he did. It took a resurrection from the dead to convince some of the Jews, and to confirm those who already believed; and Jesus suffered Lazarus to die, and lay four days dead, in order to prove to them that he was the Christ, the Son of God. Thus was he glorified, and thus did he show the glory of God. How plain, and how touchingly beautiful is this simple narration of the doings of the Lord Jesus. Nothing figurative about it.

The second instance cited is the eleventh verse of the same chapter, where Jesus said to his disciples—"Our friend Lazarus sleepeth; but I go that I may awake him out of sleep." "The literal meaning of these words of our Lord," says Mr. G., "was, that Lazarus was simply asleep. But he did not use them in a literal sense, nor did he mean that they should be so understood by his disciples, for in the fourteenth verse of the same chapter, Jesus spake of the death of Lazarus, when he represented him as being only asleep, for he says in so many words—'Lazarus is dead.' This is another instance of error in a literal interpretation of Scripture."

There is no more reason for saying that this expression of Jesus is figurative, than there is for saying that Lazarus' sickness was figurative. Jesus knew the meaning of the words he used full well, and he used them in their broadest and most literal sense. He used the word "sleep" in its absolutely true meaning. Death is but perfect sleep. It is a sleep so profound, so absolute, so complete, that nothing short of Almighty power can break its spell. That rest which we enjoy during life, and which we call sleep, is but a counterfeit of the real sleep. Perfect sleep means absolute rest. However soundly a man may sleep in life, there are organs within him which know no rest until they rest forever. But in death's sleep the weary are indeed at rest. Therefore we hold that Jesus spoke the literal truth, and nothing but the truth, when he said, "Our friend Lazarus sleepeth." The disciples took his words figuratively, i. e., that Lazarus was taking healthful rest; whereas Jesus spoke only of that sleep which, but for the great resurrection, would be an eternal sleep.

We come now to the third instance given by Mr. G., preceding which he remarks, "The third instance will be found in the conversation which Jesus had with Martha respecting the death of Lazarus. The conversation commences with the twenty-first verse, and ends with the twenty-seventh. But the verse which bears on the point of a literal interpretation of Scripture is in the twenty-sixth, where Christ said to Martha, 'Whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die.' If these words of our Lord were received in their literal sense, they would justify the conclusion that no believer in Christ could ever die, but would live on forever and ever. But we know our Lord never meant them to be so understood. He spoke in a figurative sense. He spoke of spiritual, not natural death."

I do not wonder, when I see such mutilations of God's sacred word, that sceptics and infidels say that "the Bible is like an old fiddle; you can play any tune upon it you choose"; for instances like these make the remark a true one. Indeed, it is just this wholesale spiritualizing of the blessed book which gives a semblance of truth to their words. Take it as it reads, or as one would read any other book, and their shafts fall harmlessly. As this passage is frequently quoted on any and all occasions, whether pertinent or not, I propose to notice it carefully, and see whether it is nothing but a figurative expression. I contend that it (the story) is a beautiful narration of a most touching incident, given in explicit and truthful language, which language is most positive and literal. Let us therefore look it over, and see under what circumstances these blessed words were spoken, and what occasion gave rise to their utterance.

Jesus was then on his way to Bethany, to wake Lazarus out of sleep; and when Martha heard he was coming, she went to meet him, leaving Mary sitting in the house. "Then said Martha unto Jesus—Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died. But [note this most delicate and tender petition] I know that even now, whatsoever thou wilt ask of God, God will give it thee. Jesus saith unto her, Thy brother shall rise again! Martha saith unto him, I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection, at the last day. [Observe, the subject now is the resurrection, and the time mentioned is the "last day.] Jesus saith unto her—I am the resurrection, and the life [now by faith, but at the resurrection at the last day by sight]; he that believeth on me [as Lazarus did], though he were dead [as he now is], yet shall he live [at the resurrection at the last day]. And whosoever liveth and believeth in me [at the resurrection of the last day] SHALL NEVER DIE," (as Lazarus died.) Why, Lord? Because he "shall be changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump," and be caught up in the clouds, together with the resurrected saints "to meet the Lord in the air."

The idea of saying that Jesus spoke of spiritual and not physical death, is so utterly at variance with the whole account, that I cannot for the life of me see where the point is made. Jesus and Martha were not talking of spiritual death at all, for this would have been entirely foreign to the subject; besides, it would have cast a most unkind and unjust reflection upon Lazarus. But we know that Lazarus was a true disciple of Jesus, hence such remarks could not apply to him. Yet he was, nevertheless, the cause of this interview between Jesus and Martha, and the sole subject of their conversation from beginning to end. He was literally and physically dead, and Jesus recognized the fact by saying so. He came to Bethany for the express purpose of waking Lazarus from literal death, and not from spiritual death, for he had not died spiritually. Therefore taking these undeniable facts, and discarding fanciful theories, we hold most tenaciously that spiritual death was not spoken of, consequently has nothing whatever to do with the question, but is repugnant to it.

There is, however, another signification to our Lord's words which is equally literal and equally true; but it occurs in this instance in a secondary sense. We will take the language of Jesus as Mr. G. has quoted it, without any reference to its connection, and we find a most beautiful and comforting truth illustrated. "Whosoever liveth and believeth in me [in this life, even though he die as Lazarus did], shall never die" the second or eternal death; for his "life is hid with Christ in God," who will give it to him at the resurrection of the just forever. How simple this is. How plain and how in perfect keeping it is with the rest of God's word. Not one conflicting sentence, phrase, or word. Nothing figurative in either reading. All is literal. All is true. Thank God, that it is true.

It is this blessed and glorious hope of being redeemed from actual death, to enjoy actual life with Him who is the resurrection and the life, that acts as an anchor to the soul sure and steadfast. It is this hope that enables us to lay hold of the rich promises of God, remaining faithful to which we shall be permitted to sit down together with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and all the redeemed ones, in the kingdom of God, to go no more out forever.

Titusville, Pa. DR. N. L. WILLARD.

For the World's Crisis.

LOVE TO JESUS.—No. 2.

"We love Him, because he first loved us."—JOHN.

How many things there are to call love into existence: how many to give it birth. Beauty, with all its fascinations, is not the last or least prolific in this direction. The flashing eye, the rosy cheek, the dimpled chin, the spotless skin, the pearly teeth, the comely figure, have more than a thousand times accomplished the task. Accomplishments, too, have succeeded in the work. The flit in the dance-room, the tremulous public reading, the sweet strains that issued from a fair singer's throat, the music aroused from bone, wood, and wires, have captivated many a bystander's heart. Acquirements both useful and ornamental have issued their fiat to the susceptible individual, and love has been awakened. And we should not omit to mention what graces and charms of the person have done in this direction. The blush of untainted modesty, as it turned away from the rude gaze of human kind, have but led the being after it. The benevolence of a god-like soul has been more charming to many a heart than aught else. And hosts of other virtues have riveted the eye and heart on an object as desirable and worthy to be obtained. But how much greater is the number of those who have esteemed the belongings, or the property, of a person as worthy to secure love for the possessor. O this greedy love! How many men have loved women for their money and estates, and vice versa. And the last that may be mentioned here is position. The rich but low-bred have coveted a lordly ancestry; they have coveted the peerage of the noble, and for the sake of rising in the social circle, and having their names titled, they have wedded the poor daughters of reduced baronets.

So there are hosts of things which incline people to love others—beauty, accomplishments, graces of the person, property, and high position in the social circle.

But there remains yet one other more potent force than any I have mentioned. It is love. Love begets love. Do I feel within me that a heart burns with pure affection for me? Can I recognize in the tone of the voice, in delicate attentions, in the contemplative glance of a soul, that it moves to me—that I am the object of its special regard; then how can I help responding, if there is any response in my nature? How can I help reciprocating the feeling, if I will give way to the sentiments which reply to those evoked? He loves me. He visited me in my poverty, took my hand in his, filled my pantry with plenty, and seemed to yearn over me; how can I resist the secret magnetizing influence of this affection?

It is well to love from real motive and downright persuasion. Alas! love in its exercise is too often guided by whim. It is ruled by caprice. Begotten of fickleness, it lives a short life, dies in misery, and its decayed carcass appears in the Divorce Court. How much of this fickle love there is in these United States! But the Apostle loved from real motive. He had groundwork for his affection. He had built his love on a reasonable basis. The whole thing of Christianity with him was reasonable. His dedication to God was his "reasonable service." He was ready to give a reason of the hope which was in him. He loved, too, because he felt there was reason for it. Says he—"We love Him because he first loved us." John loved Jesus, not because of a floating whim that passed just under his scalp, and could be blown away by the next person or system he encountered; not because of some appearance of worth or merit, but "because He first loved us." His love was not born of nothing. John knew the origin of his love; it was the love of God in Christ Jesus his Lord.

Let us notice John's reason for loving God, and see if it is not provocative of love in us. O that it may reach the reader! O that it may stir us out of our indifference! O God! prepare our hearts, and open our eyes widely, that we may look at the fact of thy love as it really is.

"He first loved us." Who is it that loves? Who is the "He" of our article? Here let us stop for a moment; let us linger; and slowly and meditatively let us utter his name, which is unutterable. It is the Deity who loves. The Jew, as he utters the name of the Deity, bends his head in reverence. For the Deity is great. He is mighty. He is "a jealous God and a Savior"; and does not delight in those who take his name in vain. Angels will not dare do it; but man is vile, and he utters the sacred name of the Infinite as carelessly and commonly as he would the name of his companion. "He"—the Deity—who made us, O Christian, "first loved us"! "He" to whom heaven pays homage—"He" who counts it condescension to look upon the angels—"He" who provides for the whole world—"He" who is our Creator, Preserver, and Redeemer—loves us. If it were some poor, ignorant outcast, one of ourselves, who loved us, who could neither do us good or harm, then the world could afford to pass on without being particularly interested in the fact; but when we find that not the master of the factory, not the king on his throne, nor the angels, nor the archangels; but that the Head of all—even God himself, loves us, how shall we stand astonished, and rejoice with trembling. Here, my brother, my sister, let us devoutly acknowledge His kindness who deigns to love us.

And whom does He love? "Us." Who are we that God should love us? What the race to which we belong, that God notices it, and is attached to it? We are from the dust—that is what we once were before God made us men. We were a portion of the atoms which went to make up this body we call the earth. "Dust and ashes," as Abraham truly pleads. David, too, said God "remembereth that we are dust." And so it is, for "the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground." How with astonishment we cry to God, "What is man that thou art mindful of him?" And with still greater, "that thou dost love him?" Our origin is the dust. And our state is an alien one. We by nature and practice were outlaws in God's world; were sinners in his sight; and yet he loved us—us sinners.

"He saw me ruined in the fall,
Yet loved me notwithstanding all;
He saved me from my lost estate,
His loving-kindness, O how great!"

O how wonderful the fact. The pure Deity, and so lofty, loved me when I was impure and so despicable. I cannot help saying—who can?—"I love Him."

"He first loved us." The Bible opens with these four words—"In the beginning God"; and God has been first in all that is good and generous, and ever will be so. It is not—"We loved God, and then he loved us"; but, "He first loved us." It was in the past he loved us. "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins." "God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." "He first loved us."

This, then, is the source of our love to God—God's love to us. Ours is the consequence of his, and flows out of his. O for gratitude! God has loved us so as to provide us a Savior. O for grateful affection! Dormant powers, awake! Lethargy, begone!

"Dear Lord, and shall we ever live
At this poor dying rate,
Our love so faint, so cold to thee,
And thine to us so great?"

It must not be, ye godly souls. There must be an alteration. Lord, look thou into the mirror of our imaginations. Reflect thy likeness there. Show thyself the ideal and model of love. Show us thy love in the wounds of thy feet and side and hands. We love thee. "Thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I love thee." O quicken the flame. Let thy words of love be fast cast on the changing and dying embers of our affection; that we may always prove our love to thee by keeping thy commandments. "And let all the people say Amen." W. KELLAWAY.

— Every day that passeth, is not to be

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 803. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15, 1871. VOL. XXXII.—NO. 25.

The World's Crisis,
AND
SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, by the
ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY,
At No. 160 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass.
GEO. T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.
MILES GRANT, EDITOR.
WILLIAM SHELDON, Corresponding Editor.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, L. BOUTELL,
JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
HOMER A. KING, H. V. DAVIS,
L. T. CUNNINGHAM, J. G. HAMBLIN,
H. H. DICKENSON.

The "Crisis" is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

THE SEASIDE WELL.

"Waters flowed over mine head; then I said, I am cut off."—LAM. 3: 54.

One day I wandered where the salt sea-tide
Backward had drawn its wave,
And found a spring as sweet as e'er hill-side
To wild flowers gave.
Freshly it sparkled in the sun's bright look,
And 'mid its pebbles stray'd,
As if it thought to join a happy brook
In some green glade.

But soon the heavy sea's resistless swell
Came rolling in once more,
Spreading its bitter o'er the clear sweet well
And pebbled shore.
Like a fair star thick buried in a cloud,
Or life in the grave's gloom,
The well, enwrapped in a deep watery shroud,
Sunk to its tomb.

As one who by the beach roams far and wide,
Remnant of wreck to save,
Again I wandered when the salt sea-tide
Withdrew its wave.
And there, unchanged, no taint in all its sweet,
No anger in its tone.
Still, as it thought some happy brook to meet,
The spring flowed on.

While waves of bitterness rolled o'er its head,
Its heart had folded deep
Within itself, and quiet fancies led,
As in a sleep.
Till when the ocean loosed his heavy chain,
And gave it back to-day,
Calmly it turned to its own life again,
And gentle way.

Happy, I thought, that which can draw its life
Deep from the nether springs,
Safe 'neath the pressure, tranquil 'mid the strife
Of surface things.
Safe—for the sources of the nether springs
Up in the far hills lie;
Calm—for the life its power and freshness brings
Down from the sky.

—Sunday Magazine.

THE '73 TIME ARGUMENT.

It is with due regard for the feelings of those with whom I may differ, that I present a few thoughts, intended to show the weakness of the above mentioned argument. If what I may oppose, does not seem to those interested to weaken the argument, I shall only be pleased if they will explain, so as to make the matter clear and harmonious.

Objection first. I think the position which affirms that the three horns must be "plucked up by the roots" prior to the setting up of the abomination of desolation, is assumed. The prophecy simply states the fact, that three of the ten horns shall be plucked up by the little horn; but does not inform us whether this work shall be accomplished before or after the setting up of the abomination. In the explanation by the angel, we read "And he shall subdue three kings." Dan. 7: 24. Hence if the Gothic kingdom had been plucked up in A. D. 538, it would be no positive proof that the abomination was set up at that point of time. But suppose the above position to be correct, we will inquire; was the Gothic kingdom plucked up by the roots in 538? and I answer, I hardly understand how such a position could have been taken, when all history agrees that they were only compelled to raise the siege of Rome in that year. Let it be understood that Rome was not the capital of the Gothic kingdom, but rather Ravenna; and the Gothic army only fell back in the direction of their capital, where they maintained their position until the very last days of A. D. 539, when Belisarius and his army, through intrigue, were permitted to enter the Gothic capital. A few days after, in the beginning of the following year, 540, Belisarius was recalled by the Emperor, to Constantinople, when he took with him the keys of the capital, together with their king, as trophies of the war. See Gibbon.

Can we fairly take the position that a kingdom is subdued, simply by the loss of a battle? Is a kingdom

PLUCKED UP BY THE ROOTS,

when its king and its capital remain unharmed, and its army makes head against its enemies for fifteen long years? For all history agrees that the Goths chose a new king, and their army thrice again laid seige to Rome, entered and sacked the city; and were not finally subdued until A. D. 553.

But again. The argument claims that some extraordinary power was conferred upon the Pope of Rome by Justinian in the year 538, and by that act the following symbolic prophecy, then and there, received its fulfillment—"And the dragon gave him his power, and seat, and great authority." Rev. 13: 2. First, let me ask, what government is to receive this "power and seat, and great authority" at the hands of the dragon? If we refer to the context, we learn it is that symbolized by the beast which rose up out of the sea, having seven heads and ten horns, and which had the appearance of a leopard. Now is it not almost universally admitted that this leopard beast symbolizes the government which had its rise in the eastern division of the Roman Empire, the Greek nation being the first head? And is it not as universally admitted, not only by Adventists, but by nearly if not all commentators, that the dragon symbolizes the Imperial government of pagan Rome? Then what has the above transaction to do with the pope in any sense? I answer, nothing whatever. It was a voluntary act of presentation on the part of the civil government of pagan or western Rome, and the gift was accepted by the civil government of eastern Rome, its centre and seat being at Constantinople. And in my judgment there is no prophecy in the book of God, whose fulfillment is more clearly marked in history than is the above. And although I have quoted it in a former article, yet I will now bring it forward again, as it seems necessary to make the point clear. "The unfortunate Augustus was made the instrument of his own disgrace; he signified his resignation to the Senate, and that assembly, in their last act of obedience to the Roman prince, still affected the spirit of freedom, and the forms of the constitution. An epistle was addressed by their unanimous decree, to the Emperor Zeno, the son-in-law and successor of Leo, who had lately been restored, after a short rebellion, to the Byzantine throne. They solemnly disclaimed the necessity, or even the wish to continue any longer in Italy; since, in their opinion, the majesty of a sole monarch is sufficient to pervade and protect at the same time, both the east and the west. In their own name, and in the name of the people, they consent that the seat of universal empire shall be transferred from Rome to Constantinople. Gibbon, Vol. 3, p. 512. The date given in history for the accomplishment of this important transaction, is A. D. 476; more than sixty years earlier than 538, where the '73 time argument claims the prophecy to have been fulfilled. And now I ask the candid reader to judge—Does not the above quotation show a complete fulfillment of the prophecy under consideration? Please notice: The imperial title, power and authority, together with the seat of universal empire, were transferred, or given by the government of pagan Rome, to the government of New Rome, or Constantinople. That transaction, to my mind, looks something like the dragon giving his power, his seat, and great authority to the leopard beast.

THE IMPERIAL SUCCESSION

But the argument claims that the pope of Rome was vested with some additional power, and that he was exalted by Justinian to occupy the seat of the dragon in that year, 538. But let us examine and see if the pope did actually receive imperial power, and a regal seat, and great authority in the year 538. For the dragon's seat was royal, and his power was imperial; and when the above prophecy is fulfilled, the transfer must consist of what the dragon has to give. History says, during the period of the conquest of Rome and Italy, from A. D. 536 to 553, two popes occupied the papal chair, namely, Silverius and Vigilius. The first suffered degradation at the hands of Belisarius and his wife Antonia, at the request of the Empress in A. D. 537, by being driven from his See, and left to perish upon a desolate island. The other, Vigilius, the most doubtful character who had at that time occupied the chair of St. Peter, received his appointment through the arts of the infamous Theodora, the wife of the emperor Justinian, and suffered the judicial punishment of his weaknesses and crimes—"persecution, shame, remorse."

Again, the historian sums up the history of the papal power during this eventful period as follows: "During the conquest of Italy by the eastern emperors, and for some time after, the pope was not confronted indeed in Rome by a resident emperor, but was summoned at the will of the emperor to Constantinople, or in Rome rebuked by a victorious general, or an exarch, who, though he held his court at Ravenna, executed the commands of a sovereign accustomed to dictate, rather than submit to ecclesiastical power. At scarcely any period did the papal authority suffer greater degradation, or were the persons of the popes reduced to more humiliating subserviency." Milman's Lat. Chris., Vol. I, p. 471. Bower also gives the same in substance.

Thus it will be seen that neither the papal hierarchy, or the popes, received any additional power or authority; neither were they exalted to a royal seat, during the period from 536 and onward for many years. But they were rather degraded from the exalted position they had occupied under the rule of the Goths. It is true the Emperor showed much respect for the popes when they agreed with him in ecclesiastical matters; but the emperor commanded, and compelled the popes to accept his definition of the articles of the Catholic councils. And although the Goths had been driven out of Rome, the civil power was not left in the hands of the pope (as is claimed), but was exercised by the generals of the eastern armies, in the name of the emperor Justinian, until the final subjugation of the Goths, when the eastern emperor appointed a provincial ruler, called the Exarch of Ravenna, who exercised the civil government of Rome and Italy in his imperial name.

